"Of use, you dear little goose. Why, I wish you could see what a tremendous tuck you take in that road. It isn't half as long coming home with you at the end of it." I said. I thought she whispered something like: "If only I could make it safe as well as short," but I wanted to change the subject and was not sure.

I didn't like the queer, far away look in her eyes, and so before I left in the morning I looked up the good old doctor and had him

Summa Cum Laude.

With The Highest Praise.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY BURTON MCPHAIL.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

OE Morgan entered college in '93 full of ambition and hope and his freshman year indicated that success would eventually crown his efforts. His subsequent work during the remaining three years of college life both amazed and pained those who were watching his career. At the opening of the sophomore year Morgan found himself rooming with a young man from the West, Herbert Marshall. He had entered college as a second year man, when as a matter of fact he should have come as a freshman.

A widowed mother was sending him, and he, anxious to get ahead in his classes, had made And then I felt the touch of her dear little that mistake so frequently seen, managed to blunder through the examinations and enter heavily conditioned.

Morgan learned much of his roommate's circumstances within a few weeks and took upon himself the task of placing the young man upon his feet, for he was convinced that otherwise the year would be a failure and necessitate his entering as a freshman the following year.

entering as a freshman the following year.

Morgan's work began to fall off the first week than he began coaching his classmate, and after a month of unsatisfactory work he was taken to task for it. No word escaped his lips, however, and though the months passed and there was no improvement, he determined to fight it out on that line, whatever the cost. Marshall needed help, and he believed that it was his duty to stand by the young man.

It was a bitter struggle, how bitter only Morgan and Marshall knew; worst of all, the battle became more and more desperate as the year passed; it was a question which would win—grim determination, or the wolf and unconquered books.

It was the night before commencement, a gala conquered books.

It was the night before commencement, a gala time for most of the students, though a few trembled, thinking of the coveted sheepskin. Morgan had buoyed himself up during the past few weeks, hoping that somehow he would past few weeks, hoping that somehow he would manage to pull through and get his degree, and such was the case, though he escaped by less than one per cent. Not until that night had he realized the bitterness that was to be his, comparing his naked B. A. with the "Sum-ma cum Laude" he had set his heart upon when ma cum Laude" he had set his heart upon when entering college.

Marshall saw Morgan with his hands covering his face and noted the tears that tick-led down through his fingers. He said nothing, but somehow he guessed what troubled his roommate, and he determined that this wight has result as the night he would speak and tell the faculty the truth, relate the facts of that awful struggle and let the president of the college know that he, Marshall, had kept Morgan back nose three years. Marshall found the president at his desk and broached the subject at once.

"There has been a great wrong committed in this college," said Marshall, "one of the students has been defrauded."

"I do not understand you," said the president, dropping his pen, "what do you mean Mr. Marshall?"

"I mean this," said the young man, "a student has been wronged for three years and though he is to receive his degree, it is the lowest that the college confers, when as a matter of fact he should have received one of the highest. The one that has wronged him is to ceive a degree with the inscription 'C Laude,'" 'Who is this man?" asked the President.

"Joseph H. Morgan, sir, and I am the one who placed him where he is to-night. I came here three years ago unprepared to enter the sophomore classes, but Joe Morgan coached me night and day when he should have been at his own books. Not only that, but hard times came and the funds got low, and he did any kind of work to help me through. Now, I see it all in its true light, and I ask a favor—transfer the 'Cum Laude' to Morgan's diploma; it is he that should receive his degree, with praise, not I' not I."

"I think that the matter can be satisfactorily adjusted," said the professor, "go to your room adjusted," said the professor, "go to your room now, but say nothing of your talk with me."

It was Commencement Day, and the president of the college was upon the platform of the great hall, distributing the diplomas of the graduating class. The house was filled to over-flowing with the friends and relatives of the students. Among them was Morgan's father, stern and grim, for he had learned from different quarters something of his son's unsatisfacstern and grim, for he had tearned from diner-ent quarters something of his son's unsatisfac-tory progress and the slight margin that se-cured his degree. Marshall's mother was there, too, pained that her boy was to lose the inscription attached to his diploma, but happy through it all, knowing that he had done right.

one by one were the B. A. degrees conferred, and as the last one was delivered Joe Morgan turned pale and clutched the arm of his chair. He imagined that at the last moment the faculty had decided to withhold his diploma, and for an instant everything seemed to swim about

Then came the degrees "Cum Laude," and among them was Herbert Marshall's. Morgan had inteneded to lead the applause when his roommate received his degree, but in spite of himself a tear rolled down his cheek and a great sob came to his live.

himself a tear rolled down his cheek and a great sob came to his lips.

The degrees "Magna cum Laude" followed.
Then came those degrees most coveted of all—the "Summa cum Laude." There were not many of them and presently the president of the college held the last diploma in his hand.

"It has been my privilege to bestow the degrees of the college upon many classes," said he, holding the remaining diploma in his extended hand, "but never have I held a diploma that gave me so much pleasure in conferring as the one before you. one before you.

JOSEPH H. MORGAN, B. A. SUMMA CUM

For an instant there was utter silence, and then a cheer was given that shook the building. The students all knew of the struggle through which Morgan had passed, and they knew that he had the making of a man in him, and there was not one that questioned the action of the faculty. Morgan advanced as one in a dream and mechanically put out his hand for the diploma. It seemed to him as though he were dreaming and it was not until he was fairly in his room and looking at the precious roll that he comprehended it all.

HE term "fools cap" applied to a certain size of plied to a certain size of paper, has a curious ori-gin. This size was origi-nally used in England for official documents, and was water-marked with a crown. The Parliament of Charles I, wishing to of Charles I, wishing to show its contempt for the ruler, had all the of-ficial paper water-marked with a fool's cap and bells. It is said that they borrowed the idea from the notorious Henry VIII, who, in order to show his contempt for the Pope, used for his correspondence paper water-marked with a mitered

The President's Inauguration.

WRITTEN FOR COMPORT.

HE magnificent display which accompanied the inauguration of President McKinley on March 4th, 1901, as well as the inaugural address itself marked the great self, marked the great forward step which has been taken by the United States in the family of nations dur-ing the past three

This remarkable epoch of history is all within the first a dministration of Presiministration of President McKinley, and was fittingly referred to in his inaugural, which breathed in every word the ex-

STATUE OF WASHINGTON republic, and the up-lifting of humanity and patriotic principles. Nothing could give food for more thought than his references to the opposition which than his references to the opposition which every forward or independent movement has met with in America since the foundation of American independence by the colonies.

In view of the great step in advance which has been made by America in this brief administration and the place which she has taken in the world's history and council of nations, the the world's history and council of nations, the Congressional managing committee decided that this should be the grandest display of any inauguration which we have ever had, in keeping with what they believed to be the position as first among the great nations.

This perfectly proper determination to make this event creditable to the standing of the United States immediately brought down a stream of denunciation from the lower order of connection papers. The higher class papers re-opposition papers. The higher class papers remained silent, but those denominated "yellow" poured out a stream of coarse invective against what they were pleased to call imperialism, and contrasted the splendor of this inauguration with the simplicity of that of Thomas Jefferson. with the simplicity of that of Thomas Jefferson. It is a remarkable thing that these very papers which now laud Lincoln were the ones that were most victous against his administration; and in speaking of Jefferson, there is not a single political principle which he laid down which they to-day uphold.

As a matter ofplain common sense, however, the great display of the fourth of March was nothing different from what it should have been considering the greatness of this country.

been considering the greatness of this country, and was a sight long to be remembered by those fortunate enough to nave viewed its sevpast years, that it deserves pas-sing men-tion. When Washington was President, it is a well-known historical fact that he was greatly opposed throughout his two ad-ministrations by Jefferson, who was to follow who him as Presihim as President. It was claimed by the opposition of that time that Washington was seeking to be an emperor, and if his lead were followed the republic could not last but a few years, although it was greatly through his sagacity that it had been formed on the lines which it has followed for 125 years.

In his progress from Mt. Vernon to New York, where he was maugurated with the greatest pomp and show of which the country was capable at that time, Washington rode in a state coach with six white horses, postilions, coachmen and footmen in livery. He embarked in a state barge on the Jersey side of North River and was rowed to the Battery in New York City, and in a triumphal procession, amidst the booming of cannon and the clashing of bands, he rode to a point at the corner of Broad and Wall streets, in the front of Federal Hall, which is where the present Sub-Treasury now stands. In front of this building to-day there is a colossal statue of Washington standing on the spot where he stood when he was first inaugurated as President of this country were mere wintessed since the founding of the American government and citizens of the United States was fully $4,000,000, and the ceremonies were the most
and citizens of the United States was fully $4,000,000, and the ceremonies were the most of the American government. There were in the line of the procession 30,000 men, a large proportion being from the regular army and navy that He United States was fully $4,000,000, and the ceremonies were the most and citizens of the United States.

As our readers well know, no avenue in the White House to the capitol, more than a mile in a straight line. The avenue is so broad, being one of the widest in the world, that it gives the greatest opportunity for military display. There is not a break in the whole length, and the surface is asphalt, as smooth of the Line of the Suparation of a committe and for the first time was one long line of harmonious decorations. In front of the White House was the so-called Court of Hon

there is a colossal statue of Washington standing on the spot where he stood when he was first inaugurated as President of this country.

At that time New York was a city of 30,000 inhabitants, who all turned out and crowded around Federal Hali, which had been chosen as the Capitol at that time. For two nights the entire city was ablaze with bonfires and burning ter buckets. ing tar buckets. Washington throughout the whole dressed in the full uniform of a general of joy.

The scenes in New York in 1789 were repeated four years later in Philadephia, when Washington was inaugurated for a second time, and again brought down the denunciation of the opposition.

When Jefferson became President, four years later, the capitol had been removed to the spot designated on the Potomac, and now occupied by the city of Washington. The pretentious capitol building, which was burned by the British in 1812, the walls of which form the central part of the present capitol, was then in an incomplete state of building. Jefferson had resolved that no pageant should give the lie to his equality principles; and dressed in his plainest clothes, without a single attendant, he rode up the hill to the capitol, tied his horse to a fence, and without ceremony walked into the Senate Chamber and delivered an inaugural address, after which the Chief Justice of the United States administered the oath of office, and the entire ceremony was concluded before a small audience of spectators and Congress.

THE CAPITOL IN 1800.

and the entire ceremony was concluded before a small audience of spectators and Congress, which had assembled.

Since then the inaugurations have always been attended with more or less display, and with the growth of population and wealth, have steadily grown in magnificence; although proportionately and relatively nothing has ever approached the first inauguration of Washington.

The most exciting inauguration which has reference of the country, Lincoln was inaugurated, taking the oath from Chief Justice Taney, now principally remembered from his celebrated Dred Scott decision.

JEFFERSON'S SIMPLE INAUGURATION.

Dred Scott decision.

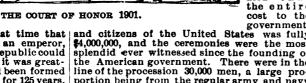

Lincoln had been obliged, through threats of assassination, to go into Washington unknown and disguised. During the progress of the parade, riflemen were stationed on the tops of buildings, every cross street was guarded by soldiers, and the entire line of march picketed by troops with loaded muskets. In front of the capitol was an immense mob of men filled with antagonistic feelings and all ready for an uprising. It has never been understood what prevented an explosion that day, as enemies and sympathizers, heavily armed, glared at each other throughout the proceedings; but the match that was to touch the train was not alight that day.

In point of attendance, the number that saw

In point of attendance, the number that saw Grover Cleveland inaugurated as the first democratic President for 24 years was the largest. 1,000,000 people are known to have been carried into the city by converging railroads to attend this fete.

The inauguration of Thomas Jefferson has been so often spoken of, not only lately but in 1812, the Mexican and Civil wars, and our own recent Spanish war. The newspapers have been so full of the last inaugura-tion of Presi-dent Mc-Kinley that there is little to add to what the press has al-ready told our readers.

It is estimated that the entire cost to the

The entire length of this avenue was decorated under the supervision of a committe and for the first time was one long line of harmonious decorations. In front of the White House was the so-called Court of Honor, upon which were urns which at night threw out chemical smoke, illuminated with colored electricity, and on the sides were the reviewing stands for the President, the government and the representatives of foreign countries and the army and navy. and navy.

The procession starts from the White House, whole dressed in the full uniform of a general of the Continental army. Never had a city of America been so gay with flags, bunting and streamers as was New York that day, and never had there been such wild demonstrations of joy.

The scenes in New York in 1789 were repeated four years later in Philadephia, when Wash-instruments of the control of th nounced as the Vice President elect. In this case Col. Roosevelt stood behind the President's desk and had the oath administered to him by the acting Vice President Wm. P. Frye of Maine. This was before the President and all the leading dignitaries. The procession then forms in the Senate and marches to the platform on the East front of the capitol, where the Chief Justice of the United States administers the oath of office to the President after which the inaugural is read; and then with a reformed procession, which in the present case was largely made up of a second division which had not before appeared, returns to the White House.

In the evening there is given in the Pension Building, beautifully decorated for the purpose, a magnificent ball, called the Inauguration Ball. It is said that the floor will hold 5,000 people, and in the immense pressure for tickets and invitations fully 10,000 could have had admission to this entertainment. It was a trempadous to this entertainment. It was a tremendous crush, though no one could estimate how many people were there. For two or three days after,

BAKING WASH BLUI DWDER WEIGELEANING BRIGHTENING STARBRIGHT

Pckge Headache Tablets

Box Washing Blue, - -

WE SELL IT ALL FOR

Total at Regular Price, $0.80

And make a present of the Set of Glassware to each purchaser.

We Pay Freight on everything to your nearest R. R. station allowing 10 days to deliver and collect before paying us.

The Premium you select is sent with the goods, thus proving that we have confidence in your integrity. You risk nothing when ordering from us.

SEND US your name and address, stating which offer you accept; while awaiting instructions go ahead and sell to everyone you know and others. You will soon earn one of the premiums or the cash needed.

Charges paid to your nearest Railroad station, BELLE BAKING POWDER is pure and stands Ohio Food Law Test.

Ladies' Tailor Made Garments, Tableware, Furniture, and a Thousand Other Useful Articles. Our Combination Package: Pound Baking Powder. -$0.40 Bar Complexion Soap, .10 Cake Starbright Polish our Belle Baking Powder, which we guarantee of a superior quality. We know its great merits, and are determined others shall know also; therefore we make our most Liberal Offer for each individual buyer and to each woman who will help us distribute twenty or more packages we present free an absolutely satisfactory and handsome Present, all freight

Tea & Dinner Sets are beautifully dec

Offer No. 1 We will give to any woman who acids 20 Combination packages at 50 cents (total of $10.00) a 44 piece Tea Set Quitar, Silver Watch & Pin, or $2.50 Cash.

Offer No. 2 We will give to any woman was to cents (total $15.00) an 8 Day Marblet Clock, 72-piece Dinner Set or $3.75 Cash. Clock, 72-piece Dinner Set or $3.75 Cash.

Offer No. 3 We will give to any woman was sells 40 Combination Packages at 50 cents, (total $20.00) a Gold-Filled Watch, handsome 100-piece Dinner Set, or $5 Cash.

JEF YOU ACCEPT Offer No. 1 we send 80 Glass handsome 100-piece Dinner Set, or $5 Cash.

Dishes (4 for each buyer) 20 lbs. Baking Powder, 20 bars Soap, 20 cakes Polish, 20 pekgs Tablets, 20 boxes Blue, Tea Set or other Premium. Freight paid to nearest Ry Sta.

DEGIN AT ONCE

Call on your friends, neighbors, in fact everyone until you have sold to a mess man assure us of your integrity, mail it to us, and as soon as received we will ship. FREIGHT PAIR.

Goods you sold, Glassware to give away, and the Present you select. In ordering, mention PLAN R.

THE PURE FOOD CO., 837 Main St., CINCINNATI, O. REMEMBER, You See and Know Everything is Just as Advertised Before We Get One Cent of Money.

.10

.05

50c

and added marked interest to the occasion. The President has, as a personal escort, a troop of cavairy from Cleveland, Ohio, which served in a similar capacity four years ago. They have a uniform of black trimmed with yellow, are magnificent in design, and on their splendid horses make a notable appearance. For the last time in history, the veterans of the Civil war to the number of over 1,000 marched as the escorting body of the President of the United States. The appearance of these grizzled veterans, who have held this place of honor for thirty-five years, and the knowledge that this was in all probability the last time they would take part in this particular parade, added a pathetic touch to a scene which otherwise was all joy and animaand added marked interest to the occasion.

was all joy and animation.

For the first time in battalion our history, a battalion of colonial soldiers or colonial soldiers marched with our own army. These were Porto Rican soldiers, and the warm reception that was given them caused their eyes to shine and faces to beam throughout the line of march. To do honor to the occasion, the foreign lega- WILLIAM MCKINLEY. tions and representa-tives were unusually decorated and splendid in appearance. The weather was magnificent, the skies bright, and the air baimy, in the forenoon; but unfortunately rained heavily during the inaugural exercises at the capitol with such a multitude cheering as Washington has never before seen.

It was an epoch in the history of America, and as a pageant was one that has never been equalled in this country, and which will never be forgotten by those who witnessed it.

IF YOU HAVE DYSPEPSIA Send no money, but write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., Box 36, for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Restorative, express paid. If cured, pay $5.50—if not, it is free.

LYON & HEALY'S BRASS BAND
Own Make

INSTRUMENTS. Indorsed by the great Julen Levy as the best in the world. Big Catalog, 400 illutrations, FREE. Positively the lowest prices on Band Instruments,
Uniforms and Supplies of all kinds
Also contains Music and Instrutions for New Bands. Lyon & Healy, Banufacturers. 28 Adams st., Chieggo.
'Lyon & Healy are the largest masic house in the world—Editor.)

NO SPAVINS

The worst possible spavin can be cured in 45 minutes. Curbs, splints and ringbones just as quick. Not painful and never has failed. Detailed information about this new method sent free to horse owners.

Write today. Ask for pamphlet No. 5.

FLEMING BROS., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, III.

AGENTS MAKE MORE MONEY SELLING OUR FAMILY Tremendous seller. A beautiful picture, background solid gold. Sample 12c., 10 for $1.00. Sells on sight at 50c. each. MIDLAND ART CO., Montclair, New Jersey.

80 Page book How to Get Plump and Rosy n one month FREE. Loring & Co., L't'd. Dept. 27, No. 40 W. 22d. St., New York City.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but Will Coin Dellars for You. Agents Wanted.

Will Coin Deliars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Pollahing Cloth, a wonderful present to the process of t worn threadbare. Directions with every the Greatest lavenum Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest lavenum the Century.

A Barpan Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to self-date cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, fror i least to cloth sat fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, fror i least nouse, everywhere. You can make 6200 s month profit, your and old, both sexes. Sells like greated lightning. One maybe cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only ill sent for agents prices and a paid three month trial subscription to the charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer made; we will return money if not parfectly satisfied.

SUNSHINE, BOX 851, AUGUSTA, MAIRE.

SKILLLED SUIT TAILORS will make the suit in the latest sack style to fit perfect, line it with fine mers satin and sew it with pures silk and on thread Guaranteed equal in quality, eviet, and our book of 50 cloth samples other suits and trousers, or send us your height, weight, chest, waist and crotch measure with $1.00 deposit and we will make and express the suit to you C.O.D. Subject to exa m in at ion. You can examine it at the Express office; try it on, see that it fits perfect and then pay the Express Agent $4.95 and express charges, otherwise pay nothing and we will refund your $1.00.

A pair, genuine Nottingham Lace, almost impossible to distinguish from Real Duchess Lace, made from fine double twisted threads, with handsome, artistic border, daintily executed fancy net center, non-raveling lockstitched edge, finely finished, 54 in. wide, 31-2 yd. long. Sold in many stores for double our price. OUR SPECIAL $2.55 PRICE is made possible by a lucky purchase of an enormous quantity of curtains at a price far below their real value. We bought them cheap. SEND NO MONEY

adv. and we will send you a pair of these fine gham Lace Curtains by Express C.O.D., subnation. Examine them at the express office gent our special price $2.55, and express after you find them everything we claim, esented, and the equal in quality of Curtains arry at $500 to $7.00, otherwise pay nothing, be returned at our expense. Write for we of lace Curtains. Pragery, etc.

at $8.15 and up and FARM IMPLEMENTS of all kinds at wholesale prices, are described ebrated cloth weavers, a recent importation, latest 1901 style bought in its real value enables us to sell this large, full 7-yard dress pattern f ation; examine it at the Express office, see that it is everything we claim and pay Express agent our Special Price $1.98 and express charges only after you find it ex, such a Dress Pattern in quality as you could not buy from many retailer under use Pattern at any price. Write today for FREE DRY GOODS CATALOGUE.

ANNOUNCEMEN

CROCKERY, Graniteware, Tinware and everything used on a dining room table or in the kitchen, at wholesale prices is illustrated and described in our FREE CROCKERY CATALOGUE. Don't fail to get this book. Write for it today.

T CONTAINS

1 package 38 inch half soling nails, 1 package 48 inch half soling nails; 1 package 68 inch half soling nails; 1 package 68 inch half soling nails; 1 package 68 inch half soling nails; 1 bottle leather cement; 1 bottle rubber cement; 18 saw and Harness Visc, 1 Tubular Riveting Machine; 1 box rivets; assorted sizes, 1 soldering iron; 1 soldering iron handle, 1 bar solder; 1 bottle soldering fluid; 1 box resin; 1 iron stand for lasts; 1 iron last for men's work; 1 bottle soldering fluid; 1 box resin; 1 iron stand for lasts; 1 iron last for men's work; 1 iron last for boy's work; 1 iron last for men's work; 1 iron last for boy's work; 1 iron last for men's work; 1 harness awl; 1 harness awl handle; 1 ball shoe thread; 1 ball shoemaker's wax; 1 bunch bristles; 3 shoemaker's needles and 3 harness maker's maker, and 1 copy each of Easy Directions for Half Soling and Tin Repairing.

WITH THE OUTFI harness, thware, and rubbers,—repair and resole your own and family's boots and shoes, and save the money you otherwise would be obliged to pay out for repairs to the harness maker, tinner or cobbler. It is of incalculable value in emergency cases, obviating vexatious delays when something breaks or gives out suddenly, is indispensible to every Livery Stable Keeper, Farmer and Artisan, and is absolutely a family necesity. In a year it will pay for itself ten times over.

SENDUS $1.50 mention special offer No. Bio and we will send you the we will refund your $1.50 instantly upon demand.

and re-hoes, and

GROCERY LIST FREE It tells you exactly what gro-cers pay for their goods before adding their profit, and enables you to buy your groceries in any quantity at the same price they pay for theirs. Write for it to day.

> JohnMSmyth COMPANYS

ORGANS $29.75, P etc., at wholesale price Free Musical Instru

UNK MAMMOTH CATALOGUE Represents stocks valued at $2,000,000 and quotes lowest whole-sale prices on everything that you eat, wear or use; tells exactly what your storekeeper pays for his goods before adding his profit, and enables you to buy your goods in any quantity, no matter how small, at the same price he pays for his, It is 8 3-4x II inches in size, 2 inches thick and contains 1100 pages devoted to illustrations and descriptions of over 50,000 articles, including Clothing, Cloaks, Furnishing Goods, Boots and Shoes, Dry Goods, Notions, Grocerics, Drugs, Crockery, Hardware, Jewelry, Stoves, Saddles, Harness, Buggles, Cutters, Sewing Machines, Organs, Planos, Musical Harness, Buggles, Cutters, Sewing Machines, Organs, Planos, Musical Goods, Books, Furniture, Hardware, Jewelry, Stoves, Saddles, Harness, Bocks, Furniture, Hardware, Jewelry, Stoves, Saddles, Harness, Bocks, Furniture, Hardware, Jewelry, Stoves, Saddles, Harness, Bocks, Furniture, Hardware, Jewelry, Hardware, Jewelry, Piones, Planos, Musical Goods, Books, Furniture, Hardware, Jewelry, Hardware, Jewelry, Piones, Planos, Musical Hardware, Hardware, Jewelry, Jewelr your 15 cents. Catalogues—Cood Wages—Write today. Men and Women Wanted to distribute HARNESS, SADDLES, FLY NETS, HORSE GOODS of all kinds at wholesale prices as illne LADIES' SUITS at $5.95 and up, cut and made to order from the latest cloths. A full upon request. Write for them today.

trated and described in our HARNESS.

Write for it Today.

SEND NO MONEY but s Oak or Birch is desired and send you this rich, luxu
Morris chair by freight O

Write for Free furned at our expense. CATALOGUE THIS, OUR SPECIAL MORRIS CHAIR is made with heavy frame of Golden Oak or Mahoganized Birch as desired, ornately carved and highly gloss-polished; 44 in. high, 28 in. wide, adjustable in four positions by means of patent device and rod, almost 6 ft. long when extended to fullest capacity, fitted with deep soft tufted, reversible cashions finely upholstered in fancy velours in beautiful shades of myrtle green and maroon, weighs about 50 lbs, freight for each 500 miles 55c to 80c. Order today for only materials shipped anywhere to any one on 30 days' free Trial without one cent in advance. Guaranteed 20 years. WRITE TODAY FOR FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOG, and see the marvelous bargains we offer.

WAX, THREAD

manufactural interpretation pattern on green center figure, and blended border of crimson, tan, gold and green, trimmed with 41.2 inch golden tan knotted fringe, guaranteed fast color; it's a rug of exquisite colors, the acme of rug art. We recommend the 30x60 lach rug for all round use, for it is just the right size to lay in front of a couch, sofa or dresser. Write today for FREE CATALOGUE OF RUGS, CARPETS, MATTING, ETC.

combinations wall Paper SAMPLES which we send anywhere upon request. We are not in the wall paper trust, but control at our prices the output of two notable wall paper mills, sell the cheapest wall paper mills, sell the cheapest at 55c a gallon and up, in 50 shades are shown on our Color Card. Write today for Wall Paper Samples or Color Card of Paints.

150, 152, 154, 156, 158, 160, 162, 164, 166 also 287 and 289 WEST MADISON STREET

Old And New Easter Customs.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

E think that we pay a great deal of attention to the observance of great deal of attention to the observance of Easter here in America, but much more is made of the day in some other countries. In Russia, for instance, Easter is celebrated with far greater ceremonythan here. There it is at the close of a severe observance of Lent, and the people feast and frolic and are merry to the last degree, to make up, perhaps, for all they have deprived themselves of during Lent. During those forty days they have religiously abstained from eating any kinds of flesh, and not even butter nor eggs nor milk have been partaken of. They have not danced nor made merry in any way, and none of them have been to the theater for the theaters have all been closed. Lent closes with milk have been partaken of. They have not danced nor made merry in any way, and none of them have been to the theater for the theaters have all been closed. Lent closes with deep solemnity, for during Passion Week all business is practically suspended and nearly all of the time is spent in the churches. On the day before Easter every Russian home is put in spotless order, and the American custom of having something new to wear is observed. If possible the Russian comes forth on Easter morning arrayed entirely in new garments, but it is regarded as really a duty to have at least some new thing.

Easter Eve finds all the churches crowded and the services last until midnight when the

and the services last until midnight when the churches that have been but dimly lighted up to this hour suddenly become a glare of light, each worshipper carrying a lighted taper and the chandeliers sending forth all the light pos-sible. The bells begin to ring joyously, and the boom of cannon is heard in all the cities. The splendidly apparelled priests come forth from the holy of holies chanting, "Christ is risen; Christ is risen from the dead!" Priests swing-ing perfumed censers march up and down Christ is risen from the dead!" Priests swinging perfumed censers march up and down among the people repeating the cry of "Christ is risen; Christ is risen from the dead!" The people bow low to receive the blessings of the fathers of the church and the scene is one of great solemnity. Then the Easter cakes receive the blessing of the priests. These cakes are set in long rows and the priests sprinkle them with holy water, after which the people take them to their homes. There is much kissing and all sorts of affectionate greeting.

The Easter breakfast is a very elaborate affair in which eggs play an important part, and pork is sure to appear in some way. The meal is so rich that it is a wonder that the after effects are not more disastrous after the long abstin-ence from meat and rich food of any kind.

ence from meat and rich food of any kind.

Many thousands of eggs are given as presents on Easter day, and with each gift the donor says joyfully, "Christ is risen." The eggs are often of glass or porcelain or even of silver and gold. Sometimes they contain valuable gifts of jewelry. The festivities are prolonged until the Sunday after Easter, and at this time the thousands of worshippers in the churches are given a part of a loaf with the words "Christ is risen" on it, and this memento of the day is kept sacredly until the next Easter. In no other country is Easter more elaborately observed than in Russia.

The Christians of long ago did not agree in

The Christians of long ago did not agree in regard to the time of the celebration of Easter, therefore the council at Nice made the rule that therefore the council at Nice made the rule that causes Easter to come on the first Sunday after the full moon, which happens upon or ext after March 21. If the moon fulls on lunday, then the following Sunday is to be the Easter day. According to this plan Easter cannot come earlier than the 22nd of March nor later than the 25th of April It was the custom of the children is one with which our readers are no doubt already so familiar that it need not be described in detail. Indeed, there is little to describe beyond the fact that on that particular Monday the children of Washington, irrespective of class or color, are given full possession of the White House grounds for the day, and they come in droves to roll their gay-colored eggs on the great lawn which is quite green even thus early in the spring in that latitude. There is no school on that day, and it tude. There is no school on that day, and it is looked forward to with more delightful anticipations of pleasure by the children than by the White House gardeners who must clean up the grounds on the following day.

When the Easter celebration was established by the Romen church it was intended to con-by the Roman church it was intended to con-tinue for eight days, and they were days of great happiness. The unfortunates who were great happiness. The unfortunates who were imprisoned for debt were set free, and many slaves were given their freedom. The courts adjourned and wrong-doers were unmolested. The poor were remembered just as we remember them at Christmas time in our own land There was a general atmosphere of kindness and generosity. Old grudges were forgotten, rich gifts were given, and the time was one of genuine Christian feeling.

In the England and Europe of the middle ages the people flocked to the cathedrals to see the priests enact incidents in the life of Christ, and chants of rejoicing were sung. After the religious ceremonies the jolly priests told amusing stories and engaged in ball playing and all sorts of athletic sports. But the reformers of the seventeenth century put an end to the undignified performances on the part of the priests, and there is less hilarity than there was at one time among the priests at Easter time.

time.

Greenwich Fair was always opened on Easter Monday, and all who could flocked thither to enjoy this festive occasion. The men at the fair would form a "chair" with their hands and arms, and it was not regarded as rude or discourteous for them to pick up any lady to whom they took a fancy, and place her on this imprevised "chair" and carry her around until she paid a forfeit, which was sometimes a kiss. It is said that the ladies did not make much effort to keep out of the way of these merry genfort to keep out of the way of these merry gen-tlemen, although they affected to be greatly shocked when they were captured, and made ineffectual attempts to escape. Easter is beautifully observed in the Tyrol by the peasants, who go about in the towns and valleys singing Easter songs to the music of guitars and other instruments. People invite the singers into their homes and refresh them with wine and cakes and present them with colored eggs. The simple and absolute faith of the Tyrolese has not been in the slightest colored eggs. The simple and absolute faith of the Tyrolese has not been in the slightest degree lessened by the modern materialism and skepticism of later days in other lands, and to the people of the Tyrol the death and resurrection of Christ is a fact of which they have no more doubt than they have of their own existence. This perfect faith has developed many beautiful traits of character in them.

In some parts of England archery is always played on Shrove Tuesday and on Easter Monday for a prize of a beautiful silver arrow on which is engraved a sketch of that dark Easter Monday when Edward III. was encamped with his army before the city of Paris. This prize is provided by the married men who have been Benedicts for less than a year, but I am unable to give the significance of this custom.

In all countries eggs enter into the observance of Easter. They are colored in many hues and given as presents. In our own country the confectioner's windows are filled with beautiful candy or porcelain or china eggs, and coll serve of farms in the form of career decored.

beautiful candy or porcelain or china eggs, and all sorts of favors in the form of eggs are de-vised for favors for parties held during Easter vised for favors for parties held during Easter week. No one can say definitely just when this universal use of eggs at Easter time came into vogue, but it is certain that it dates back hundreds of years. The custom may have had its origin in some superstition, but as the egg is a symbol of life it is perhaps the most appropriate symbol for the Easter time. Years ago it was the custom in some countries for the people to abuse the Jews and heap contumely upon them at Easter. In parts of England the boys would run about the streets crying out in "Christ is risen! Christ is risen! All the Jews must go to prison." And in France the believers in Christ departed

And in France the believers in Christ departed from his teachings to the extent of stoning the Jews on Easter day.

A century ago it was the custom in Oxfordshire, England, for the men and women to throw great quantities of apples into the churchyard at the close of the church service on Easter Sunday evening. Then they went to the house of the minister, and were regaled with bread and cheese and ale.

It is said that the dwellers on the western slope of the Alps observe the curious and somewhat amusing custom of laying one hundred eggs on a level space covered with sand, and a young man and a young woman dance a country dance around the eggs. If they finish the dance without breaking any of the eggs they become engaged. It is claimed that such couples will be sure to enjoy perfect connubial felicity, but we doubt if it would be safe for an American couple to risk their hopes of happiness on any such an uncertainty as this.

Of Easter legends there are no end, but we have no space for any of them. Some of them have their origin in the all-prevailing superstition of our contribution for we are still a superstitions pears and the superstitions pears and the superstitions pears are superstitions of the still prevailing superstitions of our contributions.

born of the still prevailing superstition of our own time, for we are still a superstition of our own time, for we are still a superstitious peo-ple. But the Easter legends and the Easter customs of our day have the merit of being harmless, and some of them have a very beautiful spiritual significance.

KHAKI.

HE origin of this permanent dye was effected by two inventors, who persisted until their at-tempts were successful. The color is adopted by our war office for the "government shade." New Zealand also has adopted this shade. It is difficult to obthis shade. It is difficult to obtain a uniform tint as on different fabrics this dye acts differently. This is especially true with woolens. And if five or six pieces of serge be dyed in identically the same vats, the result is almost certain to be five or six varieties of shades. But khaki will hold its color through any number of washings or any intensity of the sun's rays.

the sun's rays.

A complete organization of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States was not effected till 1785, in September.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE most pleasing feature of the present modes is the curious blending of the artistic and practical. These two elements meet on common ground, for the first time in my recollection, and even now I am convinced the tendency must be followed with caution. Listen to this: A soft summer weight cloth in delicate French gray, stitched with gray ribbon velvet several shades deeper in tone. The skirt is slightly fulled allaround, with the fullness at the back laid in four small boxpleats. The bolero is a most faithful replica of those worn during the '60 to '64 period, the back view revealing how it falls below the waistthe, with a tiny this bolero a complete shirt, or Garibaldi, as it was called so long ago, is worn, of soft mustilin, stitched and enhanced with lace, the full, puffed sleeves appearing beyond the bell-shaped ones of cloth.

The golfing girl is a great personage in our midst and has been pursuing her approved form of pleasure the whole winter through, whenever the snow disappeared enough to allow her. The red golf coat is her right and lawful possession, and is just now most correctly fashioned sacque wise, and is not too long. It is to be remarked that the prevailing fancy is for a coat falling well over the hips, with a close fitting back and semi-fitting, single-breasted front. A double-breasted front does not hang well when left unclosed. Skirts are very seldom now bound with leather. There is really so little necessity for such stringent measures, and the friction of the leather against the boots is sadly demoralizing to the latter.

One exceedingly sensible coat I have encountered, buttoned in semi-double fashion up to the base of the throat, where it was met by a velvet turn-over collar, just enough space being left to show a small knotted tie. And when required the fronts could be thrown back to form largels, this partic ul ar co at showing facings of butcher-blue linen. The material of the suit was devery and the same simply lovely, and surpass far and away an avertic ul ar co at showing facings of the server of the suit was delighted. The proposed such as a soft such as

The new satin-faced cashmere is a most The new satin-faced cashmere is a most worthy production, though indeed it is hardly new as we had it last year although we then declined to be tempted by it. However, this season a different tale is to be told, as cashmere has come to take its place in the first ranks of fash ion able side the respectimens.

foibles.

Just now the seems to be magi-cal. On every-thing we find trimmings in clusters of three. One finds three crosswise folds, three revers, three little cuffs, etc. The triple alliance is immensely im-pressive in its decorative influ-ence, and once the notion is portrayed in any one detail it is carried out through. the entire costume.

As I have said before, the fashionable skirt no longer rustles. Dame Fashion has turned against her former favorite and declines to allow a rustling skirt lining under any pretext. Satin is an ideal lining for those who can afford it and cashmere, too, finds favor in the eyes of the many. Other materials suggest themselves, but the maxim to be borne in mind is, "Take heed, lest ye rustle."

Other materials suggest themselves,

The newest French hats are soft and flapping, and very broad of brim. They are to be worn low over the face and trimmed quite flat, the favorite mode being a single long plume so arranged as to encircle the low crown and leave an end to drop over the brim at the side of the back.

With the simple muslin gown comes the wide sash of softest ribbon or silk. This is brought round the waist and arranged in a loose bow with long and at the same of the same o round the waist and arranged in a loose bow with long ends at the back, fringe often ad-joining the ends. Speaking of simple muslin frocks brings to notice the return of young girls to the simplicity of dress worn by their grandmothers for dressy functions. Nothing is more in favor than frocks of white mull daintily trimmed with narrow laces and fine handwork, the whole appearance being severe-handwork, the whole appearance being severely simple.

Chenille scarfs of very open mesh and quite deep fringe are quite the latest cry. They achieve an unparalleled success worn round the neck with loosely hanging ends in front. The bow of tulle worn at the back of the neck is still wonderfully popular and most becoming to all youthful faces, its misty folds adding, as it does, a bloom to the complexion. I am delighted to note the return of maltese lace, its silky surface and beautiful design making it a queen among laces. A good many people possilky surface and beautiful design making it a queen among laces. A good many people possess handkerchiefs with deep maltese borders. How to transform them into something which shall be of service and yet show off the beauties of the lace is the question. To cut costly laces is always a pity, but occasionally unavoidable, wherefore the question arises, how to cut to the best advantage. One way is exactly as we do with the silk Bandanna so lately in vogue; cut diagonally from corner to corner, and use the triangular pieces as epaulettes over the shoulders of a sleeveless evening bodice, or arrange as bolero fronts.

triangular pieces as epaulettes over the shoulders of a sleeveless evening bodice, or arrange as bolero fronts.

Petticoats are as extravagant as the gowns which cover them and require a whole chapter to themselves. Suffice it to say the colored silk petticoat is awfully passe for street wear.

Challies are wonderfully attractive this season and combine economy with beauty. A smart gown of this material in a bright shade of deep blue has the skirt elaborately stitched in waved lines about the hem, and the fullness at the waist set in small tucks, while the bodice is pouched a little and opens over a shirt of tucked muslin and lace, and the shoulders adorned with a large collar of val. lace mounted on a tiny foundation of muslin and run with rows of bebe black ribbon velvet. The sleeves bell a little over full puffs of muslin drawn into close wristbands stitched with bebe velvet.

In parasols this season there is a marked predilection for bright, self-colored silks with handles similarly tinted surmounted by great balls of crystal. The last named ornamentation is carrying all before it, and pushing quite to one side the recently prevailing ornithological specimens.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who wish it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 847 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the h
Promotes a luxuriant growth.
Never Fails to Restore Gr
Hair to its Youthful Colo
Cures scalp diceases hair failin
50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

A GRAND INVENTION LAST YEAR.

or taking Turkish, Hot Air & Vapor Baths at home, 3c each. Openar the millions of pores, draws out the poisons which cause disease. Millions eight of the Country of the Co

Sudden Death

You may die any minute—anywhere. Heart troubles, No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once, Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from coing weakly age. going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare; choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

Disease

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk. It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. F. G. KINSMAN, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE,

FOR THIS Beautiful Parisian Creation, value not

No. 8—The new Frem toque effect with rollir brim (designed by Mm Dion, of Paris), made or a mousseline prow Dion, of Paris), made of feed mouseline phisse, crown of red fancy braid, with chain braid edge; bands of black vel-vet around crown, encir-cling left side of crown is garland of fine quality red crushed roses and follage; in front is long handsome steel buckle; bandeau of black velvet. Can be ordered in black and colors.

nd colors.

We send it to your nearest express office, examine it, try it on nd if satisfactory pay agent price advertised and expres harges, if not, return at our expense. You run no risk what yeer. An elegant beveled mirror on easel will accompany th CHICAGO MAIL ORDER & MILLINERY CO., 45-53 E. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, III.

BABY Patterns Free to Expectant Mothers Book of valuable in-PIANO-HARP Louder than One sample Harp in each locality. Write for agency and send good list names people apt to buy; we write them to see your sample of new musical wonder with planoike tone. $2 profit on each sale you make. Retail price only $5, Harp Co., 21 M Nt., Columbus, Ohio.

If you have heart

FREE! We give you Free this per goods or money within two weeks. We send you goods by When sold send us the $1.00 and we send you CAME OUTFIT FREE—all charges prepaid. Send you CROWN MFG. CO., Dept. C. 88 Box 1197, BOS

Can Sell Your Farm

BIGSILK GOODS SALE

FOR $2,20 we furnish a waist pattern of 4 yards of HEAYY BLACK

FOR $5,50 we furnish a FULL SKIRT PATTERN

FOR $7,70 we furnish a full suit pattern of 14 yards, the equal of any

FOR $7,70 (blag you can buy from your local dealer at home for $14.00.

SEND NO MONEY; whether you wish waist, skirt or dress pattern and we will send the goods to you by express,

C.O.D., subject to examination. You can examine them at your express office, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, such value as you could not buy from your store keeper at home at less than double the price, a class of goods that is seldom found in country stores at any price, prenounced by veryone the greatest value ever shown in your section, then pay the express agent our Special offerPrice and express charges.

bhat is seldom found in country stores any price, prenounced by everyone the greatest value ever shown in your section, then pay the express agent Our Special OfferPrice and express charges. The express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By The express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By The express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By Special OfferPrice and express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By Special OfferPrice and express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By Special OfferPrice and express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By Special OfferPrice and express charges will average 25 to 50 cents. By Special Special

If the goods are not found perfectly satisfactory when received DONT PAY A CENT, and the express agent with return them to us at our expense. Order two, four or six patterns at these special prices by getting your friends to order with you, and the express charges for SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL, each will be almost nothing. Address. SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL, der to work your stamped satin and other pieces we solutely FRER, five skeins of elegant embroidery si bright colors. This silk is worth nearly the price remnants; but we know if you CRDER ONE to we say your locality, so make this liberal after besides giving I elegant piece of Piush containing 36 square inclusions.

on embroidery together with 6 months' subscription to vous ta; five loss $1.00. Address, COM FORT, Silk Dept. B. Augusta, Mail and in order to get you to advertise "COMFORT" and this big bargain to your friends and neighbors we will said free with a package our great book, With Eight Full-Page Illustrations, for ommenting the seams of Crazy Patchwork, or for other ornamental work where Faucy Stitches are used it has no equal. It shows how peece for patchwork be put together to get the best effect, how to cover up: seams with fancy stitches, how to for the bow peece for patchwork. The book illustrates over one hundred and friety of these besides directions for taking AFT MBES, comprising the outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasen and Chenille Embroidery, Kibbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It also tells how to de Kensington Fainting.

Emmark of the stitch, etc. It also tells how to de Kensington Fainting.

Emmark of the stitch, etc. It also tells how to de stamped sain piece 5 Skeins Embreiday (20 pages) skills, and a great lice, book on embroidery together with 6 months subscription to "COMFORT," all pe mily state of the state o

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comport PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly, and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and tift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixety, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an alomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then, they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plasser cast, take plaster of Paris and aissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-peased, pland downeard, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently welt taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixait;

istry in India, with the most expert pro-fessors of the science in the world. I will give you his method of reading be-cause it cause it will help all who are trying to read hands

He begins with the outward shape of the hand, the thumb and fingers and fingers, and then takes up the va-rious lines, mounts and other marks on the palm other marks on the palm of the hand.

CHEIRO AND FATHER TIME.

We ll its shape, size, consistency whether the fingers are square, conical, spatulated or pointed; he talks about your mounts of Venus, Jupiter, Apollo and Saturn and he tells you what type of hand yours is. By noting the temperature of your palm he tells you the state of your health. If it be cool, soft and even to the touch then your system is in a healthy condition, but the cold damp palm foretells liver trouble and the dry, cool palm an excited condition of the nervous system. Then comes a study of the heart, head and life lines, which never fails to interest both men and women.

Although most palmists choose the left hand alter the palmists choose the left hand and life lines, which never fails to interest both men and women.

Although most palmists choose the left hand Cheiro uses both the right and left hands, arguing that the left shows what we are born with and the right what we have made our-selves. When the left hand shows greater regularity than the right then it is concluded regularity than the right then it is concluded that the person is more passive than active and will succeed better in what he directs some one else to do than in what he undertakes himself. On the other hand, those who have the finest lines on their right palm must hope for nothing by chance or luck because they will succeed only through their own efforts.

He not only knows every marked line in your hand at a swift glance, but is deciding as to your temperament from the sound of your voice, your character from the look of your eye, your taste from the style of your dress and making a score of rapid observations before you realize that he has had more than time to ask in what month you were born. He is remarkably observing and quick witted and these qualities, combined with a wonderful command of the English language, have made a success in the English language, have made a success in the profession he has chosen as his life work.

"There's really nothing phenomenal about my reading people's hands!" he says. "Anybody can do it; all you need is to study the subject under a good teacher or from a thorough reading of books."

Cheiro starts back with the Bible, where you Cheiro starts back with the Bible, where you remember in Job is written, "God set signs and seals on men's palms that they might be read by all men;" you'll find that the hand is used throughout the Bible to express truth. Palmistry is very, very old, although it is only within recent years that it has received such marked encouragement from society. Why, divination by the forms and tokens of the hand attracted the attention of Plato, Aristotle and other ancient writers. The hand portrays the character even more clearly than the face; it is the very key to one's soul and yet the most beautiful hand does not indicate that its owner has a beautiful or ideal character. Take for instance a type of hand which I often see. It is symmetrically formed, delicate, with smooth, tightly-drawn skin, tapering fingers, narrow finger nails and thin in the palm. The characteristics which this hand shows are fickleness, a disposition to tease until she tires a friend out to get what she wants and then she will likely discard it. She is not ambitious, but rather lazy and indolent, and tightly drawn skin shows lack of sensitiveness.

I have only one H-28-M. hand to read this month and that belongs to H.

sensitiveness.

I have only one H—28—M.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests the readings unlers the sender has fully compiled with the packed will be taken of impressions and requests the readings unlers the sender has fully compiled with the reading unlers the sender has fully compiled with the reading unlers the sender has fully compiled with the reading unlers the sender has fully compiled with the reading unlers the sender has fully compiled with the packed of the reading unlers the sender has fully compiled with a packed packed or similar flame, until they are heavily appeared to the sender sender of the land to read this month and that belongs to H. 28 M. who sends some smoked paper impressions. His hand indicates great strength of character and self-control, although he is reading unlers the sender paper, pression, further and the mach sheet of paper, pression, and sheet of paper, pression, and sheet of paper, pression, so not to be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and tacter in an atomiser. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then, a state to the constitution of the sender with form they are called upon to do his best whatever work he may take up. He will, however, do better if guided and directed by others than he will constitute will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, send with the sender written on it. Putty is an extent to the constitution of the sender written on it. Putty is an extent of the constitution of the sender written on it. Putty is an extent of the constitution of the sender written on it. Putty is not box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is not box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is not box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is not box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is not box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is not box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is dence. A thumb that cannot be separated far from the hand indicates a stubborn and a close-fisted secretive nature while one that bends far back shows a pliant dis-position, ready to please others and be pleased by them. In reading hand, therefore, examine the thumb carefully and note well its beginning of the New Century, and with it a finely conceived picture of Cheiro in his "den," being consulted by old "Father Time" for a forecast of the twentieth Century. On the back was a poem by Cheiro, from which the following is to keep. ing is taken:

"I come with anxious heart, that I may hear My children's welfare for the coming year. Search, student, then, within my hand, and see The warp and web of things that yet may be. The toil increases with the trend of years; The day brings darkness, and the night-time fears; The whirl of wheels but weave the workers' doom, The shroud of death spreads swiftly on each loom. My children call me with a thousand cries, 'Neath Arctic darkness, and 'neath sunlit skies; The New Year breaks, then search thou well, and

The warp and web of things that yet may be."

A MONTH'S TEST FREE.

If you have Rheumatism, write Dr. Shoop, Racine,
Wis., Box 36, for six bottles of his Rheumatic Cure, exp.
paid. Send no money. Pay $5.50 if cured.

OF INTEREST TO GARDENERS.

H. W. Buckbee, Seedsman, Rockford, Ills., is sending out his annual catalogue of seeds for the farm and garden. Every reader who is interested in the subject should write for a copy. The work is of the best and the reliability of Mr. Buckbee as a seedsman is beyond question. He is a regular advertiser in Comport, and will be pleased to have you mention the paper when you write.

PRINTING OUTFIT 109

HEALTH AND WEA

The seeming mysterious force which was originated into a science by Prof. H. C. Murphy, President of the American Institute of Science, and was named by him

MODERN MAGNETISM

ING, gives its students the power to control the body and mind of others; also the power to dispel disease as if by magic. It is the grandest pain reliever known to man; it is the only sure road to success financially, physically, socially and politically. With this won-derful power, health, fame and riches can be obtained; also the affections of those you love. You learn this wonderful science at home. The only education necessary is the knowledge to read. The mail course which is sent to all, makes you efficient in each branch of this grand science. Through the knowledge you gain you are able, without the use of drugs or the surgeon's knife, to

Cure Yourself

as well as those about you. There are many people, both men and women, who shrink from the embarrassment of making their diseases public, and on this account go through the world suffering tortures and pain, but through this method you are able to HEAL YOURSELF IN THE PRIVACY OF YOUR OWN HOME, and in a few days you are in the sunshine of health to the surprise of your acquaintances. Many a modest woman suffering untold agony from diseases peculiar to her sex, has gone to a premature grave rather than subject herself to the embarrassment of an examination. The same can be said of men suffering from indiscretions that they were ashamed to confess. This grand method permits sufferers of both sexes to do away with this embarrassment, for by it they cure themselves without the assistance of anyone, of every disease and infirmity. THE BOOK OF HOPE, written by Prof. Murphy, in a plain and concise manner tells you exactly how you can gain this wonderful influence whereby you become proficient in curing disease and babits in yourself and in others; develop mental energy, gratify ambition and your every wish; also gives you the key to personal and social successes and teaches you the GRANDEST AND BEST PAYING PROFESSION OF THE AGE, as it is an acknowledged fact that there is no profession known to-day where independence can be so easily gained as through this grand profession. RETEMBER, this book costs you nothing, and it reveals wonderful secrets and makes the impossibilities of yesterday the realities of to-day.

ABSOLUTELY FREE Send your name and address and you will receive this grand book, which is beautifully illustrated, rich in all its details, on which neither expense or may be proud of. Remember, it costs you nothing, and with it you receive the Magnetic Record, a 36-page illustrated magazine. Thousands who have become successful through this mail course, write similar letters to these:

Rev. S. P. Freyberger, Goshen, Ind., writes: "Your course will enable the student to practice the Art of Healing as soon as the course is completed. Having practiced Magnetic Healing for a year past, and having been very successful, I thank you most heartily for the knowledge I received from a study of your mail course." Dr. E. Pritchard, Luling, Texas, writes: "I would not take $500 for your course and do without it. I had catarrh of the head, and also constipation, of several years standing, and have cured myself of both diseases. I have also cured every person I have treated." The field of Magnetic Healing is as broad as the world itself. It brings wealth, health, happiness and influence.

Write to-day and receive the Book of Hope and the Magnetic Record FREE.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE. NEVAUA.

Gold Stocks Free

Just to introduce our big western weekly mining paper (7th year) we will send a block of 5 shares full paid and non-assessable in a Cripple Creek Gold Mine Free. You must send us 50c. cash or stamps for a 6 months trial sub. to our illustrated weekly paper. Clubs of 5 or more 40c. each. Full mining news. Certificates sent by return mail issued to you. Oripple Creek is a world-beater. We refer to the editor of this paper. Address ROCKY MOUNTAIN MINER, (Inc) Denver, Colo.

FAVORITE SPOON

all kinds. Sent for 5c actual postage on sample. Large catalogue sent FREE, sample. Large catalogue sent FREE, HOUSEHOLD AOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Illia, or New York, Buffalo, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Scattle. This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable—Ed. We Teach You FREE and return to us the money and we will send at once this beautiful Watch Amer. Movement, Nickel-Plated or Gold Finished, whichever you prefer; warranted a good time-keeper. Best present ever offered for so little effort by any firm. NORWOOD NOVELTY CO., Dept. E, Bloomfield, N. J.

LIFE SIZE DOLL

FREE "Baby's clothes will now fit Dollie."

Girls can get this beautiful Life Size Doll absolutely Free for selling only four boxes of our Great Cold & Headache Tablets at 25 cents a box. Write today and we will send the tablets by mail postpaid, when sold send us the money ($1.00) and we will send you this Life Size Doll which is 2½ feet high and can wear baby's clothes, Dolle has an Indestructible Head, Golden Hair, Rosy Cheeks, Brown Eyes, Kid Colored Body, a Gold Plated Beauty Pin, Red Stockings, Black Shoes, & will stand alone. This doll is an exact reproduction of the finest hand painted French Doll, and will live in a child's memory long after childhood days have passed. Address, NATIONAL MEDICINE CO., Doll Dept. 3 D New Haven, Conn.

and easy. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, sample We want to interest every lady in the land who is fond of fancy work in our Monthly Journal. Send us only 10 cts. for a three months trial subscription and we will send you Free these six6-inch Fine Linen Doilies, all different and very handsome all ready to be worked SPECIAL INTRODUCTION OFFER to gain new subscribers. Address: WOMANS HOME JOURNAL, Dept. F. Boston, Mass.

PNEUMATIC RAPID-FIRE RIFLE.

darts making it desirable for outdoor target practice or parlor amusement or it can be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and entertaining form of evening amusement for the boys and girls as well as older folks. There is no smoke, odor or dust from this gun, it is endorsed by army officers as the best mechanical rifle ever produced and the possession of one of our accurate shooting air rifles makes a boy manly and affords him an excellent means of successfully competing with his chums for marksman's honors as well as teaching him the use of a rifle. Remember this is a combination gun, so your boy should have one be he old or young. If he is sick in the house he can shoot darts and keep out of mischief or go into the woods for game and get robust and healthy besides.

SPECIAL. Send at once for sample copies of our big monthly and subscription blanks and canvass among the neighbors. For a club of four yearly subscribers at the popular price of 25c, each, $1.00 in all, we will send one of these King Pneumatic Rifles free as a present, all charges paid, guaranteeing absolute satisfaction, or we will send paper one year and rifle free as above for $1.17. Address

Remember the above is a real gun, nearly three feet long. It looks like a gun and shoots like a gun.

We make it easy for you to do your shopping at home.

CHICAGO.

CHICAGO.

CHICAGO.

Chicago.

Chicago.

Chicago.

Capital $250,000.00.

Chicago.

Chicag

"OAKWOOD"

THE PRETTIEST WHEEL IN AMERICA.
SEND NO MONEY OF THE PRETTIEST WHEEL IN AMERICA.

SEND NO MONEY OF THE PRETTIEST WHEEL IN AMERICA.

SEND NO MONEY OF REAL AND ALL HAVE AND ALL H ur $15.95 price, you a standard wheel an ally. DESCRIPTION

45 THE REGULAR DIRECT FACTORY PRICE Which includes all attachments Which includes all attachments and accessories We offer this high-grade, 5-drawer, drop-head, No. 9

ARLINGTON Machine, the greatest value ever known, positively best and easiest running. Fine Golden Oak finish, handsome Marquetry decoration; self-threading shuttle; self-setting needle, automatic bobbin winder; automatic tension release; positive four-motion feed; round tool steel needle bar; high arm, 5½x8½. Attachments: One ruffler or gatherer, shirring plate, binder, set of four hemmers tucker, braider, quilter, thread cutter, also foot hemmer and feller, needles, bobbins, screw driver, oil can, complete thorough instruction books; shipped promptly and guarateed for 20 years.

SHIPPED C.O.D. ON 60 DAYS' TRIAL
We are having an immense run on this splendid machine; have genuin testimonials declaring it equal to highest grade makes sold at twice and thre times the price. Try them side by side and if you don't prefer ours send it bac order to DAY; NO RISK. Mention No. K 501. See our Free Catalog offer below

CUT THIS SLIP OUT AND MAIL TO US. Which of these FREE SPECIAL CATALOGUES do you want?
Answer by checking in square like this

CASH BUYERS' UNION, (Inc.) 158-164 W. Van Buren St., Chicago, III

Gentlemen: Please send me the following FREE Special Catalogues:

1 C. B. U. Sewing Machines.

2 C. B. U. Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments, Photographic Cameras, Graphophones and Public Entertainment Outfits.

3 C. B. U. Vehicles and Harness.

Post Office ants in detail. It will enable us to give you special and definite information.

4 C. B. U. Bicycles and Sundries.

5 G. B. U. Furniture, Stoves, Crockery, Glassware and Household Goods.

7 C. B. II. Baby Carriages and Go-Carts

Seasons

BUGGIES and HARNESS at the regular DIRECT FACTORY PRICE. A STRONG Send for Our Free Catalogue. Send for Any other Catalogue issued anywhere, lay them side by side; compare carefully quality described and

Our popular leader "AMERICUS"—a regular 275.00 two year guaranteed TOP BUGGY genuine leather-quarter top, wool lined. All wooler quick shifting shaft coupler, guaranteed hickory wheels, fine job painting $47,50 two year guaranteed hickory wheels, fine job painting $47,50 two years guaranteed hickory hickory hickory hickory hickory hickory hickory hickory hickory hickory thing compared with the saving. We will furnish the same is same in every respect except the patent rods, for quoted anywhere else. We have the most comdepartment in the world. Order today; no risk

CHEN DRUDGERY FOR $5.05 RECUEAR DIRECT FACTORY PRICE

50 THE REGULAR DIRECT FACTORY PRICE we furnish you "Pullman Sleeper" Go-Cart called "Pullman" because it can by an instantaneous patent adjust to a "Sleeper" Baby Carriage; fully equipped; with saten parasol. quality reed, handsomely woven; perfect gear of best quality spring go-cart on the market to-day. Money refunded if not perfectly satisfactory is arrival. If you prefer to examine the Go-cart, send 81.00 with your order and we for the balance.

DON'T FORGET the prices we quote in our advertisem baby carriage or gocart is worthy of consideration

(San full Frag Catalogue)

ORDER TO-DAY; NO RISK. Mention No. K-505. (See Our Free Catalogue Offer Below)

commercial instrument or from paying an excessive price.

Write for it before ordering.

IGNORANCE, INCOMPETENCE and DISHONESTY combined, work against you in musical line to a larger degree than any other. The manager of our MUSIC DEPARTMER acknowledged the greatest, best posted expert in America.

Consult him before ordering.

Wellars.

Not to be confounded with the filmsy sweat work extensively advertised. We make a specific programmer and programmer and programmer acknowledged the greatest, best posted expert in America.

Consult him before ordering.

(See our Free Catalogue offer below.)

SEND FOR THESE GATALOGUES—they are sent FREE postpaid We guard the customer's interest everywhere, always. It is safe, pleasant and profitable to deal with us. We take all the risk—you take all. All goods sent C.O.D. subject to examination, approval and comparison. If cash accompanies your order and you are on arrival of goods disappointed or dissatisfied with your purchase for any reason (and we wont inquire for the reason) we will promptly on demand refund all money paid including freight charges.

CASH BUYERS' UNION, (Inc.) is an old-established concern and perfectly reliable.—Ed. Comfort.

THE FIRST FREE LIBRARY.

WRITTEN FOR COMPORT.

ISTORY of the library dates back many cen-turies to the time of the Egyptian king Osmandyas who formed a library bearing the inscription, "Psyches in atte io n"—"the storehouse of medicine for the mind."

But this library has a far less important place in history than the famous Alexandrian Library, founded by Ptolemy Soter, in the city of Alexandria in Egypt.

Its first manager was one Demetrius Phalereus, a banished Athenian, and even in his day the library had a number of volumes or rolls amounting to fifty thousand. This number was increased to six hundred thousand in the days of Apollonius Rhodius and other noted and learned Egyptians. This library included the literature of Greece, Rome, India and Egypt, and it was a great loss to the world when a part of it was destroyed by fire during the siege of Alexandria by Julius Caesar. It was partly replaced by the collection of Pergamos which was presented to Cleopatra by Mark Antony. The entire library was destroyed by a mob of frantic Christians led on by the archbishop Theophilus about the year by the archbishop Theophilus about the year

The history of the library in America dates The history of the library in America dates back to the year 1621 when the first library foundation was established through a benefaction, on the part of an unknown person in London, to the Henrico college organized by the colonists of Jamestown, Virginia. This gift was composed of "a small Bible with a cover richly wrought; a great church Bible; the Booke of Common Prayer; S. Augustine De Civitaie Dei; Master Perkins, his workes; and an exact map of America." A few other volumes were added during the year but on March 22nd, 1622 the torch and the tomahawk of the red man descended upon Jamestown and of the red man descended upon Jamestown and the infantile library passed out of existence. The next attempt at the formation of a library in America was in 1638 at Harvard College. This library grew so slowly that a century and a quarter after its formatiom it had but 5000 a quarter after its formatiom it had but 5000 volumes and they were all destroyed by fire in the year 1764. There had, however, been formed in Philadelphia the nucleus of the "Philadelphia Library Company," an organization still in existence. It had its origin in a debating society of which Benjamin Franklin was one of the founders and which he called the "Mother of all the North American subscription Libraries." tion Libraries.

tion Libraries."
The first building erected in the United States to be devoted to the uses of a public library was that of the Loganian library which was the gift of James Logan to the city of Philadelphia and stood in Sixth street between Chestnut and Walnut streets.

This building was built in 1745—50. A circulating library was established in Boston in the year 1765 by one John Mein, a dealer in books, and this was probably the beginning of the circulating library in America.

But this article has to do chiefly with the first public library established and supported by direct taxation. From the first authentic records it appears that to the little town of Peterboro, New Hampshire, belongs the distinction of having established the first free public library. From a well written history of the town we learn that—

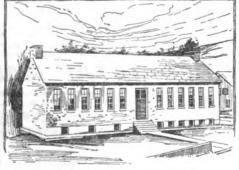

"The Peterboro Town Library was established in 1833 and was, without doubt, the first free

"The Peterboro Town Library was established in 1833 and was, without doubt, the first free public library in the United States. It was a step in advance of the times—they builded better than they knew. No town or place in the whole country had conceived the plan of furnishing free reading to the whole community at their sole expense, until some time after our project was in full and successful operation.

That it was founded by the town with the deliberate purpose of creating a free, general library, and has always been owned by it. Second: It has been managed by the town and every year since its foundation the town has appropriated money for its support, has chosen a library committee to take care of the same, and has expended the yearly appropriation in books. Third: It is free to all citizens of the town, has books for all ages, and is, and always has been, in the widest sense, a free public town library."

The Commissioner of Education at Washington, writing on the first free library in a letter says:

"The first free public library supported and aided by taxation, of which this bureau has any account, was established at Wayland, Mass., and was opened to the public in August, 1850; the second, at New Bedford, Mass., was opened in March, 1853. If the Peterboro Town Library was opened to the public prior to 1850. Library was opened to the public prior to 1850, whether supported by municipal taxation or by the income of invested bonds, it furnishes the first example of a free library, and we shall be terprise. The present building is a most substantial affair not so old as its style of architecture would indicate. The New England village and rural population read a great deal and some of the smallest of New England towns have remarkably good libraries and library buildings. They are usually the gift of some former resident to the town, and it is certain that they have much to do with the increased standard of intelligence in the towns in which they are located. they are located.

FIRST AMERICAN FREE LIBRARY.

IRRIGATION IN ITALY.

The Late King Humbert A Champion of In ternational Improvements.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HROUGH the assassination of King Humbert of Italy, the poor people of that his-toric land lost a conscientious friend. Although Rome, and later Italy, have sup-ported many ty-rants who have trampled upon the necks of the people as upon worms, others of its rulers, King Humbert among the number, have had the good of the peasants thoroughly at heart and have endeavored to improve and ameliorate their condition. Especially notable as a means to this end have been the irrigation works of Italy, largely undertaken and fostered by her successive monarchs and ministries.

The early Romans were careful irrigators and Italy is known in history as the classic land of irrigation, although it is not believed that any irrigation, although it is not believed that any large irrigation systems or great canals were constructed until in comparatively recent times. As in the Far East, springs, wells and small streams, easily diverted from their channels, were the sources of supply; but in the last few centuries Italy has developed some magnificent irrigation systems. In the districts of Piedmont and Lombardy hundreds of thousands of poor people have found relief and comfort through the revivifying influence of water, great tracts of marsh and waste land having been reclaimed to irrigation. Nothing could be more striking than the contrast between some of the irrigated and the unirrigated districts. Many of the former are among the most densely populated regions of Europe. Their densely populated regions of Europe. Their soils have received just the element needed to call forth their inherent powers, and instead of arid wastes and extensive marshes, corn-fields, rice grounds, flax-fields and green meadows producing wonderful crops, cover the face of the country, with prosperous farms and cottages surrounded by the vine and the fig, and inhabited by happy families. It is only necessary to compare the present condition of the provinces where irrigation exists with their destitute past to see the good which a wise government policy has wrought for the people. Nearly six hundred years have been required to perfect the splendid canal system of Piedmont, and to change its once arid wastes and dreary marshes into sheets of cultivation. The moral presents itself that to irrigators in the United States, who are but beginning this work; they may have cheerful hearts in sight of what has already been accomplished in this country by private capital in a fiftieth part of the time. The late King always evinced a particular interest in the irrigation work of the State and in the possibilities of rural improvement through water reclamation. While about seven million acres of land in Italy are already under irrigation, this is by no means all the land subject to reclamation, and projects are now on foot for additional development, the possibilities of which are very great. The great government-irrigating canals in Italy have a length of over 140 miles and the vast network of distributing channels aggregate a total length of something over 4,000 miles.

It is understood that the new King, Victor Emmanuel III, will devote himself largely to internal improvements, first breaking away from the staggering expense to the State of foreign entanglements and alliances.

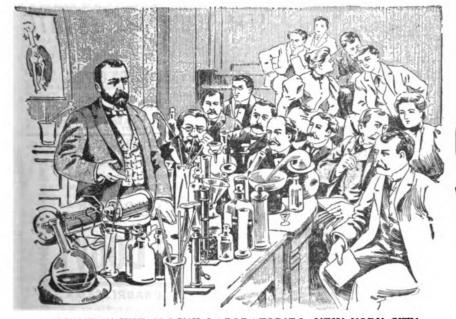

Italian history contains many interesting accounts of wars and strifes over the sources of irrigation during the days of feudalism and of conflicts with foreign nations. An interesting incident is told of the temporary destruction and immediate repair of the Naviglio Martesana, the large canal of Milan. During the last century, owing to excessive pressure, about 800 feet of the channel near Milan was carried away, cutting off the water supply of the city, and, occuring in April just as the demand for irrigation was utmost energy to complete the repairs in time to save the great crop dependent upon its waters. It was considered necessary, among other things, to replace the ancient earthen embankment by a vast retaining wall of brick masonry. The government acted with great vigor and the work was successful, six weeks of tremendous effort sufficing for its completion. At such times the people of irrigated of tremendous effort sufficing for its completion. At such times the people of irrigated countries appreciate the exertions of their governments. When the British government in India reopened the Delhi canal, great concourses of people accompanied the waters as they passed slowly along through the new channel—flowers were thrown into the stream, and the multitudes loudly expressed their joy, and welcomed with glad cheers the sight of the long desired waters. Similarly the inhabitants of Milan collected in vast numbers along the banks of the Canal Martesna upon its reopening, and cheer after cheer arose as the opening, and cheer after cheer arose as the waters poured past. All classes and parties joined in bestowing the highest praise upon the engineers and the Administration, for their energy had saved the crops of the year.

There is no line of work where the national government can do more good than in that which is being carried on by the G-ological Survey in directing the way to the development and conservation of the water resources of the country.

country.

THE DEFEAT OF CONSUMPTION.

SCENE IN THE SLOCUM LABORATORIES, NEW YORK CITY. Dr. Slocum Demonstrating to Medical Men, Scientists, Statesmen and Students the Value of the New Slocum System of Treatment for the Permanent Cure of Consumption, Catarrh and All Pulmonary and Wasting Diseases.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Slocum System of treatment for the Cure of Consumption, and nearly all the ills of life, is medicine reduced to an exact science by the world's foremost specialist, and our readers are urged to take advantage of Dr. Slocum's generous offer.

By their timely use thousands of apparently hopeless cases have been permanently cured.

The Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is needed by some, the Tonic by others, the Expectorant by others, the Jelly by others still, and all four, or any three, or two, or any one, may be used singly or in combination, according to the needs of the case. Full instructions with each set of four free remedies represented in the illustration.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Root out the slight cold or the little cough, which otherwise might develop into a grave and dangerous disorder.

It is just such unconsidered ailments, carely treated at all conseded by the most smith of the Nose, Throat or Lungs!

This remedy is the wonderful successfully practiced by the wold authority on Pulmonary Disease treatment, the renowned Dr.

lessly treated, or perhaps not treated at all, that grow to become a Pulmonary Trouble or a Wasting Disease.

This remedy is the wonderful discovery so successfully practiced by the world's greatest authority on Pulmonary Diseases and their treatment, the renowned Dr. T. A. Slocum, conceded by the most eminent medical lumi-naries to be the greatest physician in his specialty that ever applied his remarkable

FREE New Gure for Consumption Weak Lungs

Catarrh

and a

Run-Down

System

two, or even one. But together the four remedies form an impregnable bulwark against disease.

The first of these four remedies is the

The first of these four remedies is the EMULSION. It is the strength-giver PAR EXCELLENCE. It takes the enfeebled sufferer in its fostering care, and, renewing his nerves and tissues, builds up the system, so necessary to make the remaining remedies thoroughly effective.

The TONIC is number two. With the foundation laid by the EMULSION the sufferer, be he Nervous or Dyspeptic, Anæmic and Thin, regains appetite and nerve force and the most wonderful results follow. A new, revitalized being takes the place of the old, worn-out weakling who was sinking into death.

OZOJELL is the third in the galaxy of GHEATEST OF TONICS Haiss assess ales MET NO PHOOFIE the rimine of a diede i THE WAY TO HEALTH.

inflamed Mucous Membrane, soothing and healing it, and placing it in a condition which leaves no fear of recurrence.

Number four is the EXPECTORANT and Cough Cure. This is an absolutely reliable specific that can positively be relied upon. It is perfectly safe for children, goes to the very root of the trouble, and not merely allespecialty that ever applied his remarkable theoretical knowledge to a practical purpose. But be sure that you are CURED. Do not stop the cough or the cold and retain the cause. Root out the cause, and the cold will disappear, the cough will stop.

The remedy which will cure these minor troubles will also cure the serious disorders to which they lead, it will restore to perfect health sufferers whose lives are being drained every day by the White Scourge—Consumption, and all the ailments arising from an inflamed condition of the Mucous Membranes specialty that ever applied his remarkable theoretical knowledge to a practical purpose. Thousands of radical cures have established Dr. Slocum's well-won reputation.

Under the name of the Slocum System, it is daily adding sufferers whose lives have been despaired of, to the ranks of health, literally and the most wonderful results follow. And this is the system which the doctor offers to every sufferer—free!

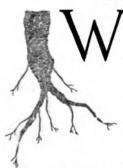

The treatment consists of Four Preparations. Not all of them are essential in every flamed condition of the Mucous Membranes.

Some sufferers require but three, or case. Some sufferers require but three, or case. Some sufferers require but three, or case.

To obtain these four FREE preparations, that have never yet failed to cure, all you have to do is to write, giving full address and mentioning COMFORT, to

DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 98 Pine Street, New York,

The four free remedies will then be sent you at once direct from the great Slocum Scientific Laboratories with full directions for use in any case.

E read in the papers of cotton mills being obliged to shut down because of the closing of the Chinese market, and we expect that the price of tea will be increased on account of the war in the Orient; but few people know that there is a trade of this country with China in the simple root of a wild ready feeling the effects of the war very mate that this trade is already feeling the effects of the war very materially.

For over a hundred years this country has been exporting ginseng root to China, and in that time the amount of money which has been sent back from the Flowery Kingdom to America for this humble product has been over twenty-five millons of dollars. As long ago as 1822 over seven hundred thousand pounds of ginseng root were shipped to China from this country. The value of that was only $314,000. Since then the quantity of root shipped has grown less, and the price has increased as the root has grown scarcer. In 1899 about one hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds were shipped, and the value was about $600,000. This year there is practically no foreign demand for it, and consequently the "sang" diggers, as they are called in the mountain regions of the Southern states, are out of a job. People who know the trade well, though, say that the Chinese people will not live without the root, even if it should have to be smuggled into the empire, and that as there will eventually be a demand for it again, it will be a good investment to buy now while the price is low, and hold for demand.

Ginseng root of good quality is usually rath-

Ginseng root of good quality is usually rather brittle. It comes in pieces about the size of one's little finger, and from two to four inches in length. Frequently the root is forked, and as it is an uneven, knotted root, it requires no great effort of the imagination to find in many pieces a resemblance to the body of a man. It

Ginseng: The "Man-Wort" Root Of The Chinese.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

E read in the papers of cotton mills being obliged to shut down because of the closing of the Chinese market, and we expect that the price of tea will be increased on account of the war in the Ginseng is a native of Asia as well as America.

Caused the Chinese to call it by a name which means "man-wort," and to believe that it has the power to preserve youth and strength. Certainly American and European chemists and physicians, after the most exhaustive experiments, have been unable to detect in the root any remarkable medicinal properties which would in any way justify the extravagant prices which the Chinese are willing to pay for it. Its weight in gold is a regular price in China, and often an extra fine piece sells for much more than that. The root when dried by the ordinary process is of a yellowish white color, with a mucilaginous sweetness resembling licorice, accompanied by a slight aromatic bitterness.

Ginseng is a native of Asia as well as America.

count of the war in the Orient; but few people know that there is a trade of this country with China in the simple root of a wild plant which amounts to almost a million dollars a year, and that this trade is also the war very mate-years this country has root to China, and in f money which has been over dollars. As long ago as d thousand pounds of ped to China from this that was only $314,000. Yo froot shipped has ce has increased as the tr. In 1899 about one five thousand pounds alue was about $600,000 to yo froot shipped has tead in the mountain restates, are out of a job. rade well, though, say ewill not live without ald have to be smuggled at as there will eventually and the pieces about the size of com two to four inches.

color, with a mucilaginous sweetness resembling lictorice, accompanied by a slight aromatic bitterness.

Ginseng is a native of Asia as well as America. At one time that gathered in Manchuria was thought to be the best, but this became so searce that an imperial edict was issued forbidding it to be dug. That brought from two sill as new prized most highly. At one time, at least, if not now, all the ginseng collected in China was imperial property, and was sold to the dealers in it at its weight in gold. The root is then suspended over the fire in a closed vessel and dried. If it is of good quality this process should leave it hard, resinous and translucent. Extra fine pieces the stock of a ginseng merchant as follows: "Opening a large outer box the merchant removed several paper parcels which seemed to fill the box. Under them was a smaller box, and when this was taken out the rest of the box was seen to be filled with similar parcels. The shought around the property, and was sold to the dealers in it at its weight in gold. The root is then suspended over the fire in a closed vessel and dried. If it is of good quality this process should leave it hard, resinous and translucent. Extra fine pieces which seemed to fill the box. Under them was a smaller box, and when this was taken out the r

The Chinese have a custom of sending a piece Ginseng root of good quality is usually rather brittle. It comes in pieces about the size of one's little finger, and from two to four inches in length. Frequently the root is forked, and as it is an uneven, knotted root, it requires no great effort of the imagination to find in many pieces a resemblance to the body of a man. It was probably this resemblance which first with a space between to hold water. The silver kettle has a cover depressed so as to form a cup. In this cup rice is placed with a little water. kettle has a cover depressed so as to form a cup. In this cup rice is placed with a little water. The ginseng root is placed in the silver kettle, with water. Finally a cover is put over the whole affair and it is placed over a fire. When the rice is cooked the medicine is ready. The patient eats the rice and drinks the ginseng tea at the same time. The proper dose of the root is supposed to be from sixty to ninety grains. The medicine is taken in the morning, before breakfast, for from three to eight days in succession, and sometimes is also taken at night. While it is being taken tea drinking is forbidden.

While it is being taken tea drinking is forbidden.

Ginseng is a plant of the genus Araliaceae. The botanical name of the American species is Panax quinquefolium, the last name meaning "five-leaved," because the leaves are divided into fives. It is an interesting coincidence that in the language of the Iroquois Indians the name of the plant is garentoquen, a word the significance of which is much like that of the Chinese name. The plant grows all through the eastern part of the United States and Canada, but it is usually found in profitable quantities only in a sandy soil in rather deep woods. Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina and West Virginia furnish large quantities, and in these Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina and West Virginia furnish large quantities, and in these states the typical "sang digger" is to be seen at his best. During the Civil War so many men went to fight that the industry was neglected so that in four years the plant made great increase in productiveness. Every state east of the Mississippi river contributes to the crop, but the bulk comes from the mountainous middle Atlantic region. Japan and Russia also export the drug, although there is a rather large domestic demand for it in Japan.

The high price which the root will fetch has

The high price which the root will fetch has led to many efforts being made to cultivate it, but as a general thing these have not been very successful. It is cultivated in both Japan and Russia, but it is said that the cultivated root is not thought to have so much efficacy as the wild. A man living in Missouri, after experiments covering ten years, has been very suc-cessful in the culture, and there is so much de-mand for roots and seeds for cultivation from others who wish to try the experiment that he has realized a handsome return from his garden has realized a handsome return from his garden since it came to bearing. The ordinary price for the roots is about twenty cents each. Ginseng is an unattractive plant to look at. It grows about two feet tall, and branches awkwardly. Each branch bears near the five leaves, and then a few inches above them, a cluster of berries. Each berry contains only two or three seeds. The plant does not come into fruit until it is two years old and the seeds are so few that they also sell at a high price to people who wish to cultivate the plant.

QUEER USES FOR MILK-CURD.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

OME new and very strange uses have been found for the curd which forms when milk sours. The forming of the curd is accelerated by adding a little acid to the milk, where up on the chemist takes it and washes it in water to remove the acid. Thus prepared it is nothing more nor less than pure caseine, and when dried it appears as a white powdery substance.

This substance is subjected to manipulation in curious ways. Of late it has been utilized in the production of various articles of diet. An alkali being added, it is used to thicken soups, and as a substitute for eggs, being specially popular among vegetarians when thus employed, because it furnishes "body" to dishes lacking most Lulieu of eggs, it serves as an popular among vegetarians when thus employed, because it furnishes "body" to dishes lacking meat. In lieu of eggs, it serves as an ingredient of custards, puddings, etc. Indeed, prepared in solution for cooking, it appears to have somewhat the same properties as white-deed.

white-of-egg.
Dissolved in borax, the powdered milk-curd makes an excellent glue, and, when mixed with a little quicklime and water, it furnishes with a little quicklime and water, it furnishes a first-rate cement for mending china. Otherwise prepared, it serves as a mordant in dyeing, and it is also used to give a waterproof coating to artificial leather. Compressed by hydraulic power, it is employed as a substitute for celluloid in the manufacture of buttons, combs, brushes, and various other such articles, and it is even said that before long satisfactory billiard-balls of milk-curd will be on the market.

The highest tides in New England are at Eastport Maine.

HE leaning tower of Pisa is one hundred and seventy-eight feet high, and at the base has a diameter of about fifty feet; it is made of white marble, and is eight stories high. It is currently believed that its leaning position is the result of accident, and there are unmistakable evidences that the builders tried upon the upper stories to regain the vertical position.

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn co-culation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found obsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and realways dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered. Fost will total parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sured green former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on thooks unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions. COLUMN was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine,

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine. Boston Office, Haneuck Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building.

Quaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every issue, Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

Why not import the Chinese and solve the domestic problem? They are said to be admirable servants. A removal of the exclusion act might solve the problem of how and where to get assistance in the domestic line.

Why does the public persist in "roasting" poor Alfred Austin every time he drops into poetry? The Poet Laureate gets about $500 per year yet every time he commences working at his job he is met with a howl of derision. Let the laborer be worthy of his hire.

A high city official of Brooklyn-the Registrar-has given a lesson to those holding valuable public positions. The fees of his office over and above the salary have amounted to nearly $50,000. This sum he proposes to return to the tax payers by crecting a statue of Washington. The statue will be modelled after the famous equestrian one in the city of Washington. The official claims that he has made the fees as small as the law allowed and in spite of this fact has that sum of money on hand. The fact illustrates a feeling rare enough in those holding lucrative positions, but at the same time the statue will suggest a possible field for economy in the administration of public affairs.

Around the World in Eighty Days! Who does not recall the sensation that the book containing that startling possibility made? To encircle this globe in that brief time seemed the dream of a popular romancer rather than a feat capable of accomplishment. Some few years ago, a newspaper and a magazine sent two young women on a globe encircling tour to demonstrate that the feat was possible. In a few years such an attempt will belong in fact and possibility to a past century. It will be possible to circle the world in one calendar month. The Trans-Siberian railroad will be completed about 1904. In twelve days it will be possible to travel from London to the waters of the Pacific. The time may even be less than that. No transportation plans since the Union Pacific crossed our own nation have offered such possibilities in the way of changing dis-

One success in a literary way seems to bring a deluge of books that just stop short of proving that imitation is the sincerest flattery. the Nation as an interpreter of the Constitution Everybody" has been reading Elizabeth Her German Garden. The book was a charmingly natural and loving view of Nature as shown in the garden. Books containing garden experiences have filled the advertising pages of publishing houses. The whole movement, artistic, literary and practical is a sincere expression of the great love for plants, flowers and birds, for the poetry of nature that marks the reaction from the love of city life. It is a healthful and hopeful sign. Such an interest is an antidote against the hurry and turmoil of the age. Nature teaches patience. Her results are slow. The man or woman who is fond enough of a garden to observe carefully the slow unfolding of leaf, bud and fruit must gain an insight into better conditions of living. Even those who make their garden observations through books may gain somewhat of the lesson of gradual development and patience.

Mr. Carnegie's continued gift of libraries shows no decrease. It is astonishing to reflect that the public library system of the United States is but little more than ten years old. The growth of libraries and the enormous out-coming the reading nation of the earth. The traveling library is the one however that meets the demand of the people who live in the country. It is there on the farm that the need of a library is most felt. The states are slow to give aid in this matter but wherever it has been tried it has met with the greatest success. One of the latest developments in subscription libraries has been a great success through its plan to bring the book to the reader. An agent calls at each house and delivers the book which the subscriber may desire. The books are all new; as soon as a volume shows wear it is replaced by a fresh one. One book a week is allowed on a subscription of five dollars per annum. Mr. Carnegie might increase the effect of his princely giving by establishing traveling libraries on the pledge of a state to maintain

A scientist claims to have made the discovery that electricity causes an increase in the deposits of fat. The experiment was made upon a number of pigs. A number of the same age and weight were selected to demonstrate the fact. A part of them were placed in cages or boxes surrounded by electric wires while the other portion were confined in similar cages minus the wires. The same food was given to all. The electric pigs grow fat and fatter and left their non electric colleagues far behind in the attainment of the ambition of a pig-fat. This seems to demonstrate a most alarming scientific possibility. The world is strung and crisscrossed with "live" wires. The very ground is full of the currents. Are we to become a race of Jumbos as electricity progresses in its afarming development? The heavy weights who watch the scales each week with anxious eyes and see the record climb steadily higher will have to reckon with this new mysterious force. In addition to Vichy and Kissengin and all the other "antifat" and "cure for obesity" remedies they will have to plan for clothing that shall be nonconductive. Glass is really made into cloth and a complete suit of this might act as a non-conductor and nullify the fattening power of the electricity.

A society has recently been formed for the preservation of historical and scenic landmarks. The Palisades of the Hudson were threatened with destruction and through the efforts of some of the members of this society they have been preserved. Scenes of natural beauty appeal to all, but the rapid growth of towns with industrial demands often threatens the extinction of natural beauties. We are rich in beautiful natural features and if the public attention is aroused these will be preserved. Our historic landmarks are fewer. Old buildings yield to the demands of modern buildings. No more worthy method of arousing patriotism could be found than the preservation of buildings and places connected with our early history. The various Revolutionary societies have done much commendable work in stimulating public interest in historic buildings and sites. A list of all the tablets and monuments placed to commemorate events would make an astonishing showing. There needs, however, to be state and national effort in this direction. Many buildings by reason of occupying expensive sites, are of too great value to be purchased by societies. It is planned to organize branches of the Society for the Preservation of Historic Landmarks in all the states. The idea is a practical one and should meet with support.

On the 31st of January 1801, John Adams appointed John Marshall as Chief Justice of the United States and on Feb. 4, 1801, Marshall took the oath of office for the position which he held with such distinction for thirty-four years. The one hundredth anniversary of this event was celebrated throughout the length and breadth of the United States. Bench and Bar wrote to show honor to the man who ranks as one of the foremost jurists of the world and to whom more than to any other one man the United States owes its strong central government. The value of John Marshall's services to his other distinguished public services are nearly overlooked. As a soldier in the Revolutionary army, as an advocate of the adoption of the Constitution, as a member of the Virginia Legislature and as envoy to France he performed services enough to distinguish one man. At the time that he assumed the high duties of Chief Justice of the United States the country had existed but twelve years under the Constitution. Whether that Constitution made provisions for a government strong enough to exercise power necessary for the establishment of national unity as opposed to separate and individual states was a mooted question. His services in the Congress of the United States and as John Adams' Secretary of State had shown Marshall the necessity of a strong central government. The tenor of each of the important decisions of the Supreme Court during his incumbency was to strengthen the power of the United States. He made decisions upon questions which were new so that precedent could not be used as a guide. He blazed the path along which Constitutional lawyers have since traveled. Chief Justice Marshall was not a man of great learning or erudition but he possessed in the most reput of the publishers show that we are fast be- markable degree the legal mind. His decisions were so clear, so concise, so seemingly inevitawere so clear, so concise, so seemingly inevitable after he had demonstrated the line of reasoning that led to the conclusion, that they form the basis of American Constitutional Law. He gave life, vigor, strength, meaning to what might have been an ineffective formula. The whole nation honors the anniversary of his entering upon a work as important as that of the framers of the Constitution or the defenders of the Union. defenders of the Union.

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr. M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

Catalogue by return mall. Address SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, National action and an area of the contraction and area of the contraction This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

* GOOD PAPER * ★ FULL SIZE ★

I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally, in cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or proving deaf, or have head-noise, don't waste time and money as 1 did Write me and I will gladly send you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINPALL, ORBOES, S.T.

SELL YOUR REAL ESTATE

OUR FREE BUGGY OFFER. We sell

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000.000 copies sold! No. 1651247181521797225213999955933

No. PIANO OR ORGAN.	FFERED AT THIS TIME.
165 American Liberty March Cook 101 Ancients Abroad. March—Two Step Cook	1236 Across the Bridge Le Bru
OAT Artist's Life Waltzon Strause	260 At Noontide 77 AveMaria.FromCavalleriaRusticana Masca 140 Beacon Light of Home Estabro
181 Auld Lang Syne. Variations Durkee 187 Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1	140 Beacon Light of Home
227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waitzes Strauss	282 Between Love and Duty . Drug
213 Black Hawk Waltzes Walsh 257 Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans Richards	226 Blue Eyes
221 Bluebird Echo Polka	# 268 Bride Bells
109 Bridal March from Lohengrin	276 Brown Eyed Bessie Lee. Chorus Arbac 192 Can You. Sweetheart, keepa Secret? Estabroa
229 Bryan and Sewall March	138 Christmas Carol 139 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schuma
I Catherine Waltzes Streh I	284 Come Back to Our Cottage . Estabroc 168 Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk Bla 92 Cow Bells. The. Boyhood's Recollection Grid
237 Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands Behr 145 Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step Missud	1294 Crown of Glory To
217 Cleveland's March	286 Durube River
269 Coppelia. Valse Lente Deibles 211 Corn Flower Waltzes Coote. Jr	176 Darting Nellie Gray 244 De Banjo am de Instrument Rutled
71 Crystal Dew Waltz	70 Dear Heart, We're Growing Old . Estabro 302 Dear Little Heart' Neath the Daisies Rutha
163 Dewey's Grand Triumphal March Marcel 287 Diamond Valley Waltz Morchouse 299 Eastlake Waltz Daggett	302 Dear Little Heart 'Neath the Daisies Rutha 304 Did You Ever Call Me Darling? Fo 128 Dou't drink my Boy, tonight. Temp. Hoo 230 Dream of Love
117 Echong Trumpets March Notes 303 Edelweiss Hernes	I acc Devoling with the Angels Charas Turn
91 Estella Air de Ballet. Very fine. Robinson	220 Ever Sweet is Thy Memory Hosto
155 Evergreen Waltz	132 Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
241 Fantastic Schottischo Gabriel 291 Fatinitza Galon Lu lwid	152 Flag of Our Country. Patriotic Main 156 Flag, The. Quartette
231 Faust. Selections	8 Flossie. Waltz Song Col
77 Fifth Nocturne . Leitach 233 Fürting in the Starlight, Waltz . Lasade 239 Flower Song, Op. 39. Lange 283 Forestyille Waltz . Zahn	138 For a Dream's Sake Con 66 For You We are Praying at Home Estabro
283 Forestville Waltz Zahn 277 Freischutz Selections	156 From our Home the Loved are Going Per 288 Gathered Roses Priss 202 Give a Kiss to Me Per
49 Full of Ginger, March Galop. Nattino 183 Golden Rain, Nocturne Cloy 147 Grand Commandery March—Two Step Missad	178 God Bless My Kind Old Mother Jeu 204 Golden Moon
981 Heel and Toe Polka . Laust 1	262 Greeting Duet
193 Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still . Richards	I IQR Heart of My Heart Kolum
17 Impussioned Dream Waltzes Rosas	272 How can I Leave Thee. Duet . Greenwo 184 1 Can't Forget the Happy Past Ske 74 In Sweet September
153 Jenny Lind polka Four hands	248 In Shadowland
195 Leap Year Schottische	296 It Is a Lerend Old Offenba 188 In the Starlight. Duet
253 Le Pettt Bal. Polka Mazurka. Behr 159 Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop 249 Lohengrin. Selections. Durkee 41 London March—Two Step Missua	1242 Kathleen Mayourneen Cros
243 Love's Dreamland Waltzes . Roeder	136 Killarney 132 Kiss me, but don't say goodbye . Rutte 130 Kiss that bound my Heart to thine.
99 Maiden's Prayer, The Badarreuske 240 Martha Selections Johnson 207 May Breezes, Four hands Krug	184 Larboard Watch, Duet . Willia
OC2 May Day Schottische	48 Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet . Estabroi
55 Memorial Day March Hewill	96 Lost Chord, The Sulliv
201 Music Box, The. Caprice Liebich	112 Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard . Acc 230 Memories of my Mother. Chorus . Al
305 Napoleon	172 Mother's Welcome at the Door 222 Musical Dialogue. Duet Estabroc
77 National Anthems of Eight Great Nations 75 National Songs of America 135 Nightingale's Trill, op. 81	232 Must the Sweet Tle that binds Falabro 76 My Home by the Old Mil Ulullo 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home
271 Ocean Waves Waltz 123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription Blake	170 My Old Kentucky Home For 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Disame
123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription . Blake 171 Old Ocken Bucket. The. Variations Durkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka . Straws	102 Old Sexton. The Rus.
219 On the Wave Waltz 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer
9 Our little Agnes. Waitz Gregoire	1258 Out on the Deep
	1 174 Parted from our Dear Ones Acc
193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Brunner 265 Psyche. Gavotte Mattei 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March Blake	254 Picture of My Nother, The
143 Richmond March-two-step Missud	274 Private Tommy Atkins Fold 136 Request. Sacred Graing 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep Anti-
245 Rustie Waltz	112 Rosemonde
189 Schubert's Serenade Transcription List 161 Silvery Wayes, Variations Wyman	224 Shall I EverSee Mother's Face Again? Adrian
169 Smith's (General) March Martin 295 Souventr of the Ball Waltz Ciark	124 Softly shine the Stars of Evening Disamo
95 Spirit Lake Waitz	278 Summer Shower
151 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature Weber	10 Sweetest Song, The 32 Sweet Long Ago, The Estabroo
The Sun in a Dand March Diver	46 That Word was Hope, Waltzsong . Nuttr 118 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds . Dan 206 There's Sure to be a Way Delor
115 Tornado Galop Arbuckle	158 Thinking of Home and Mother
103 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 . Bette 223 Twilight Echoes, Song without words Livell 113 Under the Double Eagle March . Wagner	116 'Tis True Dear Heart, We're Fading Estabreo
129 Venetian Waltz Ludorte 205 Vill ege Parade Quickstep	38 True to the Last 62 Your Mother's Love for You Kop
7 Visions of Light. Waltz Cook 203 Warblings at Eve Richards	252 Warrior Bold Adar 84 What are the Wild Waves Saying? Duet Glor
193 Wayes of the Ocean March Blake 261 Wedding March . Mendelssolm	58 When the Roses are Blooming Again 580 . Tray
251 Winsome Grace. A perfect gem ilowe	183 Whistling Wife, The, Comic Rama 1212 Why am I ever Watching deLasa
301 Yacht Waltz	300 Yellow Roses
DAN'T FARGET that the price you have	e to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-in address, postpaid; that all the little details are u	ip to the standard, including colored titles; ""

203 93 261 251 119 301 DO address, postpand; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored filler, the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES. Any 10 for 25 cents. Any 21 for 50 cents. Any 43 for $1.00. Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the mumbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

25.

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, if you will send 15c, for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Contont" for one year and give the music delivered absolutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Then't delay, but order today.

Address (CON TRUE): The Interview of the subscription o and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delan, but order todan.

Address "CO V FORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

MENOR OF THE PROPERTY OF THE

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

ITH the waning or popularity of the bicycle in this country, says a well known authority, there comes in its place another form of outdoor sport which gives promise of becoming just as popular as wheeling. Although comparatively new, the motor tricycle has already gained a foothold in this country and before another year the choo-choo of the three-wheeler will become as familiar as the singing of the wind through the spokes of the old ordinary someten or twelve years ago. Automobiles were the opening wedge and following close on their rear wheels comes the three-wheeled machine that comes as close to cycling as anything could wen be. In France and England the new vehicles are now a common sight. The French in particular are just as enthusiastic as they ever were over the bicycle and that is saying a good deal. They ramp and tear across country on tricycles at a pace that vies with the speed of the express trains, while on the race tracks the motor events are just as on the race tracks the motor events are just as popular as the bicycle races. Over in England good old "has beens" are having a new lease on life and the race-going public is treated to the sight of their old cycling champions once more straining every nerve to cross the tape first. In this country the Eastern cities were the first ones invaded.

ADJUSTABLE HANDLE BAR.

Boston can be safely said to be the real center of the new sport and in the Hub the motorists are increasing in numbers, at the same time the best three-wheeled machines are now made by the same firms that supplied that favorite bicycle—The Columbia.

From a mechanical standpoint the 1901 bicycle show is more like those of early cycling days than any which have been held in recent years. This year master mechanics of the various factories seemed to have vied with each other to produce not only good bicycles, but distinctive models; consequently improvement is the order of the day. Chainless bicycles seem to have the call, and the manner into which they have sprung into popular favor, must prove a source of no little pride to pioneer champions of the bevel gears.

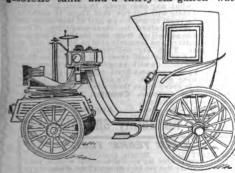

It will be of interest to know that a list of leading make of wheels includes one hundred and fourteen separate and distinct models of bicycles, which will be catalogued in 1901. This number could be swelled materially if the various options which are given to purchasers were also included. But the number above stated includes only the regular wheels of the various lines with their regular catalogue equipments.

The jobbing and parts sales department of equipments.

The jobbing and parts sales department of the American Bicycle Company exhibits a large line of complete saddles, pedals, chains, steel balls and component parts of bicycles, also automobile chains and steel vehicle and automobile rims. Special attention is directed to the detachable automobile chain, an ingenious device which enables the automobilist to quickly repair his chain on the road, and with tools at hand. Another novelty is the connecting link for quick bicycle chain repair, doing away with the chain bolt and nut, or it can also word for increasing the langth of the with the for increasing the length of the chain when desired.

The chief points of advantage in one of the steam automobiles shown are its substantial construction, large power and great all around capacity. It is equipped with a water tube boiler of novel and ingenious design, a six and one-quarter horsepower engine, a nine gallon gasolene tank and a thirty-six gallon water ink. This great power, fuel and water capacing, makes it possible to drive the carriage at a gh rate of speed for a great distance before sh supplies are necessary. It is also equipped than auxiliary water pump, situated at the see of the steering handle, which, in case of ssible failure of the regular pump to work, ables the operator to keep up the boiler supply without leaving the seat and without un-due inconvenience. The mechanism is simpli-fied by the introduction of a throttle and reversing lever combined in one, which is of advantage to the operator in case of emergency, as the carriage can be reversed instantly by one motion.

MOTOR HORSE.

It may not be generally known that the first bicycle inventor was Hiram Maxim, the man who afterwards became famous as the inventor bleycie inventor was fifram maxim, the man who afterwards became famous as the inventor of the Maxim gun.

When the Maxims lived in Sangerville, Maine, they were poor. Hiram was such a bad boy that the neighbors wouldn't allow their children to have anything to do with him, and he was taken early from the village school, for which he had little love, and apprenticed to a painter. While he worked for the painter Hiram was 'etarnally tinkerin' " with old wheels and things, and the painter soon got tired of him. He rigged up from two wagon wheels and some other truck that he found under the paint shop what is supposed to have been the first safety bicycle ever built, and upon this crude machine he raced down the steep hills of Sangerville at a speed that threatened his own life and the safety of anybody or anything that he might meet in the road.

hills of Sangerville at a speed that threatened his own life and the safety of anybody or anything that he might meet in the road.

One day he ran into an old farmer, wrecking the latter's wagon and making a general smashup, whereupon the farmer gave him a licking that lasted him a month and also took a fence rail and broke the "bicycle" to smithereens. That settled Hiram Maxim's experiments in the bicycle line, although he declares to this day that his first machine embodied all the salient features of the twentieth century wheel. The idea of the machine gun was not original with Hiram Maxim, having been a pet dream of his father's for years before Hiram was able to butter his own bread. The elder Maxim, however, lacked the mechanical skill to carry his ideas into effect, and it remained for his son to perfect the gun and reap the fortune and fame that came from it. When he had finished his first model he was without money, and he borrowed $100 from a friend to enable him to take the model to Washington. He received no encouragement from our own government, but in Europe he won government, but in Europe he won fame and fortune, as everybody knows. He came home a millionaire, and paid back the $100 with big interest.

Notwithstanding the diversity of opinion, I feel justified in making the broad statement that the bicycle has emancipated woman, revolutionized her dress and made possible the longest strides in evolution ever taken by her.

The bicycle found woman shut in on all sides by conventionalities; nervous and fretting under restraint she knew not how to throw off; longing for the freedom allowed her brothers, but hampered by race conditions in direct opposition; suffering from inertia and its attending ills brought on by sedentary employment and lack of proper, pleasant exercise.

Every woman, whether she rides or not, should rise up and call the bicycle blessed when she thinks of what the bicycle has done.
She can now go out in the rain or attend to her shopping in a dress which a few years ago she would not have worn in the privacy of her own home. It has reduced the summer outfit for seaside or mountains to a minimum, for at some of the most fashionable resorts it is the proper dress for all day and every day until evening. Judged from an economic standpoint it is an extremely important factor, when compared with the old time work and worry incident to the preparation for a summer's outing.

Lastly, the bicycle has brought woman near-mer's outing.

Lastly, the bicycle has brought woman nearer to nature than she could ever otherwise have been brought, and to what purer source could she go for life's lessons and pastimes? Surely, in no college or school could there be found a larger and more varied curriculum than nature larger and more varied curriculum than nature offers to those who will but look and listen.

No thinking woman can return from a ride in the country without feeling that it is grand to live, that the sweet odors, pure air and quiet have made her better able to again take up life's tangled skeins, which but for this brief respite would seem well-nigh impossible.

TEACHING OVER By Mail

The Interna-tional Corres-pondence Schools, Scran-ton, Pa., has stu-dents in every civilized country. Write for our cir-cular entitled International Correspondence Schools, Box 1190, Scranton, Pa. Established 1891. Capital $1,500,000.

Free to any address. Enclose 6 co

PLAYS Best List of New Plays. 325 Nos. Dia-logs, Speakers, Hand Books. Catalog free. T.S. DENISON, Pub., Dept. 8, Chicago FREE & Garment Co., 136 Van Buren St., Chicago.

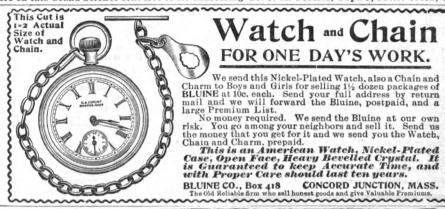

CURED BY MIGHTY POWER

The Secret of the Soul. Combined with Magnetic Medicines, the Mightiest Power Known, Cures So-Called Incurable Diseases.

The phenomenal cures made by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the eminent scientist of Battle Creek, Mich., have astonished physicians and scientists throughout the world, for in a marvelous manner he dispels all diseases and gives permanent health, vigor and strength to all who desire it. His work is indeed blessed and wonderful. His power comes from the fact that he has discovered the secret of the soul, which he terms psychic; this he combines with magnetic medicines prepared in his own laboratory, making the strongest healing combination known to the world. This wonderful man has so perfected his method that it now reaches all classes of people, for it annihilates pace and cures patients at a distance in the privacy of their own homes without the knowledge of anyone. If you are in any way sick and will write to Dr. J. M. Peebles, telling him your leading symptoms, he will through his psychic power diagnose your case and send you full instructions free of any charge; no matter what your disease or how despondent you feel, there is hope for you. Hundreds of women who suffer the many irregularities common to their sex, have been cured through Dr. Peebles' method after they had been told their cases were incurable. The same can be said of men who were debilitated from early indiscretions. Indigestion, stomach troubles, catarrh, weaknesses of all kinds, and in fact all diseases succumb to this wonderful man's method of healing. Remember, it makes no difference how hopeless your case may seem, or how many have pronounced it incurable, Dr. Peebles can help you, and it costs you absolutely nothing to receive his diagnosis and instructions. He also sends free of any charge, his grand book which will be of invaluable service to you, and a long list of testimonials proving beyond a doubt that his method is revolutionizing the art of healing the sick and despondent. Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Dept. J, Battle Creek, Mich.

WILL TEACH THE Dr. J. M. Peebles will teach the Psychic Science by mail, through which will give you success in SALESMEN WANTED to sell our goods by sample to wholesale and largest and only manufacturers in our line in the world. Liberal salary paid. Address CAN-DEX MFG. CO., Savannah, Ga.

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without

Be Your Own Boss!

MANY MAKE $2,000.00 A YEAR.

You have the same chance. Start a Mail Order Business at home. We tell you how. Money coming in daily. Enormous profits. Everything furnished. Write at once for our "Starter" and Free particulars.

K. O. Krueger Co., 155 Washingon St., Chicago, III.

SEND NO MONEY or magnificently engraved double ing case watch of Gold alloy with ex-t karat gold plate, equal in appear-to any 35 dollar watch. Movement is the best make, fully jeweled, duplex escapement, quick train, pat pinion, agement, quick train, pat-pinton, accurately regulated and adjusted with 20 YEAR GUARANTEE Railroad men allover the country buy shis watch on account of its durability and timekeeping qualities. Our factory price is $42.00 per doz. for the next50 days we will send you one sample for free inspection. If fully satisfied pay $8.50 and express charges, otherwise not one cent. State nearest express office, and if Ladies or Gents' watch. Fig. 323 at his 1 with every Watch Catalogue ion or detention from work. Write | handsome Chain and Charm worth $1 with every Wateh Catalogue free Excelsior Watch Co., 66 Central Bank Bldg., Chicago-

BIG DRESS GOODS OFFER. FOR $1.99
we furnish a Full seven yards of genules Norton Fancy Black Mercerized Crepon Dress Goods, regulars Fatters of Seven yards of genules Norton Fancy Black Mercerized Crepon Dress Goods, regulars Fatters of Seven yards of genules Norton Fancy Black Mercerized Crepon Dress Goods, regulars Fatters of Seven yards of genules Norton Fancy Black Mercerized Crepon Dress Goods, regulars Fatters of Seven yards of Sendy you a big full dress pattern of seven yards of subject to examination. You can examine the goods at your express office, and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, such a dress pattern as you could not buy from your storekeeper at home at less than 65.00, a class of goods that is seldom found in your section, then pay the express agent $1.99 and express charges. Express OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE.

THIS IS A GENUINE MORTON SLACK MERCERIJED CREPON DRESS GOODS an elegant strictly up-to-date fabric for suits or skirts, good weight for year around wear, a firm cloth we can guarantee for service, fancy raised crepon effect, goods that we have bought direct from one of the largest mills under a POSITIVE GUARANTEE FOR QUALITY.

OUR SPECIAL $1.99 PRICE for seven yards of this 38-inch goods (a full dress people everywhere to send for catalogue. Write for Free Dry Goods Catalogue. ORDER TODAY! DON'T DELAY! When these goods are gone they never again can be offered at the price. Order two, four or sky dress patterns at our special $1.99 price, 5by getting your friends to order with you, and SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME. There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

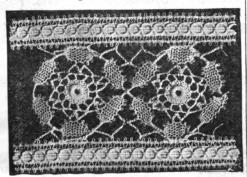

HE continued call for patterns for crochet work leads us to use illustrations descriptions which will be new to some of our readers, and therefore all the

some of our readers, and therefore all the more acceptable.
You will see by the illustrations that crochet noverty braid is used. It can be found at all the dry goods stores. No. 30 Coates' thread is used to connect the braids. For the center use braid which has the oblong figure in it. For the outside use straight that has loops on the edge.

For the center, fasten 6 of the oblong parts together at right angles as shown in illustration. Repeat until you have the length desired. With your thread wind around the smallest sized lead pencil which measures five eighths of an inch around it, or make a stick this size; wind the thread ten times, slip off and hold between the thumb and fore finger of left hand and crochet 24tr. join. Around this make 3ch. Itr. until you have gone around the ring; you should have 12 of the loops. Around these loops make 3ch., join to third loop in oval, 3ch. join to 3ch., 3ch. join to fourth loop, 3ch. join to 3ch.; repeat until you have joined to all the six ovals. Leave three inches of thread and sew fast with needle.

To connect the outside braid, fasten the thread in loop of straight braid, make 6ch,

To connect the outside braid, fasten the thread in loop of straight braid, make 6ch,

fasten to part between ovals, 6ch., skip 3 loops of straight braid, put needle through first loop of oval and fourth loop of braid; draw the thread through. Repeat until you have fastened 6 loops of oval to 6 loops of braid; 6ch. fasten to part between the ovals; 6ch, skip 3 on braid, fasten to fourth loop; 6ch., tr. in third loop of first oval; tr. in third loop of next oval; 6ch. fasten to fourth loop in braid; 6ch., fasten on part between oval. Repeat until all are connected. The same on the other side for the insertion.

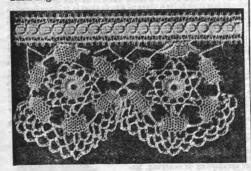

on part between oval. Repeat that are as the inected. The same on the other side for the insertion.

For the outside edge make the same as the insertion except that you join straight braid to only one side. Make 4ch., join to first loop in oval; 4ch., join to third loop; 4ch., join to fourth loop; 4ch., join to sixth loop; 4ch., join to part between oval. Repeat until you have gone across; next row, 5ch., join into previous loop. Last row, 6ch. joined into the 5ch.

Ellen J. Carnady of Emporia, Kansas, has contributed the following on rag carpets.

"There are old garments and sheets and pillow cases in almost every house that might be utilized in making a rag carpet, and there is no floor covering that in point of usefulness or economy can compare with it. When a garment that cannot be worn again comes to the wash, cut off the buttons and bands, and tear it in strips from one-half to three-fourths of an inch wide; the finer they are the prettier the carpet will be. Put them in a bag or a box with a closely fitting cover so they will be protected from the dust. The work of sewing them is neither tedious nor difficult. When you have enough for a carpet, mix them thoroughly so the colors will be evenly distributed. Take them to the sewing machine, lap the ends of two strips and sew across the lap and back again; then without raising the machine foot, prepare the next strip and sew it. Continue until you have about a pound sewed, then clip the threads and wind into a ball. Rich dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, the colors will be carped with dark colors, the colors will be carped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and warped with dark colors, sewed hit or miss and w produces a good effect and is very pretty for bedrooms, but it is too dark for a room that is in constant use; a dark carpet shows dust more than a light one. Hit or miss carpets usually have several colors in the warp arranged in the white rags yellow, red, blue and green with diamond dye for cotton. They make the carpet bright and will be pretty as long as it lasts. Black and white warp woven in brick work is pretty for striped carpets, or all brown or black may be used and will look better than bright colors. Get the best warp, for it is always the warp that wears out first, and have the weaver put five hundred threads in a carpet one yard wide. One pound of warp will be required for three yards, and one and one-fourth pounds of rags will weave a yard of carpet." CROCHETED SLIPPERS.

If you wish to make a striped carpet, save the dark rags for the hit or miss stripes and color

CROCHETED SLIPPERS.

Chain 15 stitches, turn. Chain 1, 7 doubles in 1st 7 of 15 stitches, 3 doubles in the next stitch, 7 doubles in remaining 7 stitches, turn. 2nd row—chain 1, make 1 double in each of 8 stitches, [taking up back loop of stitch, to give the appearance of a rib,] 3 doubles in next stitch, 1 double in each of 8 stitches, turn. Continue in this way, making 3 doubles in the center stitch each time until the work measures six inches deep over the widenings. Start another row as usual, working only half way to Continue in this way, making 3 doubles in the center stitch each time until the work measures six inches deep over the widenings. Start another row as usual, working only half way to the widenings, then turn and work back on the stitches just made, exactly as in making the toe of the slipper. Work in this way until you have a strip long enough to reach around the heel to the other side of the front. Sew or crochet together the two sides of the foundation, which forms the toe of the slipper, and join the end of the strip to the other side of the front. Finish the upper edge with *1 treble in a stitch, chain 2, miss 2, and repeat, forming spaces in which to run elastic or ribbon; add a row of shells, *1 double under 2 chain, 2 trebles, 1 double treble, 2 trebles under next 2 chain, and repeat. Place a ribbon bow on instep, and join to the slipper sole by sewing on wrong side. Germantown is the best wool to use for this purpose with a bone hook of medium size. A pair of slippers in this pattern can easily be finished in an afternoon.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female dis-eases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucor-rhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbinghouse lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

30 DAYS TRIAL FREE Family Record. A beautiful picture, rich colors, background solid gold. Tremendous seller. Agents delighted. Sample free for 12c. to pay postage and advig; 9 for $1.00 postpaid. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

ADIES I Make Big Wages

AT HOME

and you can readily do the same, for the rikis pleasant and will easily pay 818 weekly. I have often made aday. Even your pare time is valuable. This is no deception, the right pay of the right noney and will gladly send full particulars to all send p. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box S, Benton Harbor, Mich WARDROBE.

In preparing an outfit for an infant, it is always advisable to have patterns for the tiny garments, which should be properly shaped and executed according to the latest modes. This wardrobe consists of twenty-one pieces; Three long dresses, the ones with square and pointed yokes being less elaborate than the robe with the round yoke. Two short sacques for soft flannel or eiderdown. A simple slip for ordinary wear, and a night wrapper. Two long petticosts for flannel and cambric, and little shirts, with and without sleeves. A comfortable cape and cloak are also provided, and innumerable necessities in the shape of bibs, shoes, diaper drawers and flannel band. The wardrobe is the most complete and reliable in the market today.

6 Prizes Free

Absolutely Free ranted; 1 Chain Bracelet with I Stone in Antique Egyptian Stie Send your address at once before others get in the risk WE TRUST YOU and Perfum ng as WE TRUST YOU turnable if n

MUTUAL CO., DEPT. N. Z. 88 Griswold St., DETROIT, MICH.

New style collar, is trimine similarly and finished with bow and stream ers of satin ribbon is correct length and has full sweep and has full sweep sible si lined with black sill OUR CATALOGUE No. 7 mailed free. Write for it a DaySure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure; we

LORRIMER & CO., 331 NO. HOWARD ST., BALTIMORE, ND

ILK REMNANTS

to get your friends to join with you and make up an order for several waists ordress patterns to be sent toge.

THIS IS A BENUINE GUINET ET CIE, FINE ALL PURE SILK RUSTLING TAFFETA. One of the very THIS IS A BENUINE GOOD weight, 20 inches wide, makes up very stylish in a handsome silk waist or silk suit, a Good weight, 20 inches wide, makes up very stylish in a handsome silk waist or silk suit, a Good weight, 20 inches wide, makes up very stylish in a handsome silk waist or silk suit, a Good weight, 20 inches wide, makes up very stylish in a handsome silk waist or silk suit, a Good weight, 20 inches wide, makes up very stylish in a handsome silk waist or silk suit, a Good weight, 20 inches wide, makes up very stylish in a handsome silk waist or silk suit, a Good weight, 20 inches wide, and to be covered with laces that are so popular this sepace and the silk some in a big variety of beautiful colors. Every evening shade and opera colors. beautiful shades of green, brown, cardinal, blue, hellotrope, yellow, orange, violet, tan, whit beautiful shades an ample waist pattern; 14 yards a dress pattern; 10 yards a good skirt pattern. Understand, you take no risk. Do not send a cent, and if the goods are not perfectly satisfactory when receive the agent returns litatour expense. SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago, Madress your orders to

FREE! ADJUSTABLE RECLINING CHAIR.

This Easy Chair is Full of Durability and Utility.

The style was invented in England many years ago by Will Morris, the celebrated London artist. He built it from a knowl of anatomy. He was also a famous designer of artist furniture, is therefore called the Morris Chair. It is made of the finest and so arranged by a simple device in the back that it can be justed to either a lounging or upright position. It is the most ful and popular Easy Chair on the market, either in Europe America to-day. It is finely upholstered and tufted. Every needs at least one of these Chairs in their home, no mater humble or great. They seem to just fit the tired body after a day's work, in fact it fits one's every mood. We have dered many thousands of these Chairs direct from an mense furniture factory and although the Morris Chairs at many stores from $15.00 to $50.00 each, we are giving to Chairs away as Premiums for selling our Remedies.

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing

A NINE YEARS' TEST.

GALENA, ILLINOIS, Oct. 15th, 1900.

TO THE GIANT CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.
GENTLEMEN: Do you realize I have been selling your remedies for the past nine years? After acting thus as your agent for this long periodit is not flattery when I say to you that no business house exists that can surpasse your own in honesty and fair an expensive the property of the sightest cause for complaint is subjectioned beyond question in my into years' dealings with you. May you live long to enjoy the good you are doing is the wish of.

Yours truly,
FANNIE AUBUCHON.

THE GIANT CO. MUNCIE, INDIANA, Oct. 16
GENTLEMEN: After ten years of successful word can truthfully say that you have more than do agreed early long period of selling your fame like the say long period of selling your fame from getting my first box of Oxien. As for have received so many and such nice ones, cannot possibly enumerate them. They were all fix feetly satisfactory. I consider your firm one of the bistence and although I have had many flattering offer of the rooterens, I have always been true to The Co., for they have been honest and faithful in extent promises to me. Wishing you continued premain, Yours truly, EMMA E. In

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

S a rule, the efficient housekeeper will con-sider the conveniences of the kitchen of the house she is to occupy, whether it be one that is hired or one that is built for her supervision. She knows well how much the routine of domestic life de-pends upon a well-ap-pointed and well-situated kitchen. She knows the value of good ventilation and plenty of light; she is well versed in the tedi-ousness of the base-ment kitchen.

well versed in the tediousness of the basement kitchen.

Many a house will contain a very good parlor, and it will be very imposing, perhaps, with its spacious ness. The visitor will feel very comfortable and his dinner or supper put away internally, will judge the whole merit of the house from the parlor and his happy stomach. How else could he?

Yet all the while the good housewife is enduring all sorts of vexations and inconveniences from an ill-arranged kitchen. She would like to take a few feet out of the parlor and have the benefit of it where it is needed more. She would like not only more room, but more air and light. The kitchen should be one of the best rooms in the house as regards the points mentioned, and, of course sleeping-rooms as well. Within the last twenty years the kitchen has been more duly considered, so that we do not see so many dark and cramped places as we used to. In modern times we have some things apon which we may be congratulated. As we have gained more knowledge and refinement in cook ing, so we have become more alive to the situ atton and the accessories of our kitchens. The kit chen, which ought to be the "lungs" of the house, is too often a real plague spot, into which the mistress cares not to inquire too closely. How gloomy is the underground kitchen. You have read of and probably seen, some of the dark, moist, and vapory London kitchen, in owhich the daylight vainly struggles to gain an entrance.

You remember the "Marchioness" in the work of the content of t

some of the dark, moist, and vapory London litchers, into which the daylight vainly struggles to main an entrance.

You remember the "Marchioness" in the "Old Carlosity Shop," of Dickens, and her comparions, the black beetles down in the dingy, gloomy, underground kitchen. In kitchens have always been a matter of importance and in hygienic considerations help his we taken the lead, as well as their productions, the luxuries of the French Cuisine. Even the kitchen, the laboratory of the domestic would have been an evolution. In early doman days a vast apartment, back from the couse, served as a kitchen, and over it reigned the choice of cook with despotic rule. This was the case at least in the wealthy families; in others were often there was no kitchen at all, the cate are in the neighborhood supplied the meals at different rates in different localities, or a room served for the purpose; the lady of the house making the bread, and entrusting nothing of the cooking to the servants.

The atter is not of modern birth, but possesses an antiquity that dates as far back as the Homer cage when the kitchen was the heart of the house. Probably many of the Roman kitchen is were practically in the open air, there being to or of to the apartment set aside for the purpose, but an awning to shield from the sun and ai . In later days the Bayeaux tapestry gives us an idea of the open-air cooking of the Roman is.

The Sauls and Germans built their kitchens artime house, never within it, just as in India day the kitchen is a separate building until

coday
the kitchen is a separate building uncharge of a butler.

All old Norman castles included a round building completely roofed in which was the kitche, and which was on the same plan as in a series. As time went on, these kitche is grew in importance, and were often marre of architecture, finished off with windows and doors, every possible facility being for letting in fresh air and sunlight.

At first, the fire was built in the corner of the round but soon it became the central point, the sun we ascending to the roof in circles, and ke ascending to the roof in circles, and finding an outlet to the many chimneys. ame the introduction of tables for the on of food; stools and other furniture. ude spit, let down from the ceiling, was by a boy, while the cook sat in dignity ng the proceeding. Soon the chimney ilt over the hearth, and then the manilt over the hearth, and then the mane appeared.

the twelfth century only roasting and were attempted by the Normans and, and the only requirements were calddthe spit. Food was for a long time on the embers, but the days of chivalry uced many advanced ideas in European olds, and from that period kitchens unt a change for the better.

n the art of stewing was introduced, ose in importance. Charles V. of France ed a living upon all the officers of his n, out of gratitude for the discovery of a ish; while any new contrivance that ish; while any new contrivance that improve the well-being, so to speak, of chen was at once adopted.

ep into an Italian kitchen shows us a egged brazier which stands in the center apartment, and near it bend two men while on the floor squats another man ows the bellows, and two lads, one on side the fires sit on chairs, turning with ds the iron bars on which some birds sting, while above the stove or brazier rom a strong beam bunches of vegetables, old Roman kitchens were well equipped li the necessary utensils for the elaborate dishes of those days of much feasting. There were gridirons on four wheels which were moved about as needed to cook the large quanmoved about as needed to cook the large quantities of meat consumed in those days.

Gridirons were made of bronze, plated with silver. Shells made of bronze were used as moulds for pastry. Stock-pots had ladles attached, and colanders fitted inside to drain the vegetables, meats, etc. They had also a wonderful sauce-pan with a double bottom, in which pastry and light things for dessert were cooked by lighting a fire under the upper bottom upon which they rested. These sauce-pans were to be found in every well-appointed Roman kitchen.

Now for a few recipes from the sunny south.

Now for a few recipes from the sunny south

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOMS.

Melt two tablespoons butter, add three tablespoons flour and pour on gradually one-half cup each of chicken stock and milk; then add one and one-half cups chicken cut in dice and one-quarter pound mushrooms which have been previously sauted in butter until soft.

previously sauted in butter until soft.

CARNI CON CHILL.

Disjoint two chickens, season with salt and pepper, and fry in batter. Remove seeds and veins from eight red peppers, scald them until soft in enough boiling water to cover, mash and rub through a sieve. Add one teaspoon salt, one onion, two cloves of garlic finely-chopped, and boiling water to cover. Cook until chicken is tender. Thicken sauce before serving and pour around chicken.

ARROS CON TOMATES.

Melt two tablespoons butter, add one cup rice, and stir until well browned. Cook in double boiler until soft, in highly seasoned brown stock. Turn onto a serving dish, cover with creole sauce and garnish with pimento.

CREOLE SAUCE.

Cook two tablespoons chopped onion, two tablespoons chopped green pepper, one tablespoon chopped red pepper and four tablespoons chopped mushrooms in three tablespoons butter five minutes. Add two tablespoons flour, one cup tomatoes, a few slices truffle, one-quarter cup sherry wine and salt to taste. Simmer fifteen minutes.

CREOLE KISSES.

Blanch one-half pound almonds and cut in strips one-half of the nut meats and dry slowly in oven. Pour one-half cup boiling water over one-half cup sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved; then add remaining almonds and cook until syrup is a golden brown. Pour into a pan, cool and pound in mortar. Beat the whites of four eggs until stiff, add gradually one and one-quarter cups powdered sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla, the almonds and one-quarter teaspoon salt. Shape, sift sugar over them and bake in a slow oven thirty minutes. CREOLE KISSES.

Superfluous Hair Permanently Removed.
Dear Editor:—I have a treatment that never failed.
Removed hair of thousands afflicted, Your readers can have free. Write Mme. Doree 1813 N. 16th St., Phila., Pa.

THE NEW DUST PAN.—Rapid seller, Exclusive territory. Write for large extalogue. 50 other fast sellers, and how to get Sample Outlift Free, RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

SOLD BY ACENTS
WITH GREAT SUCCESS AND LARGE PROFITS.
Non-absorbent; no scraping nor scouring; saves labor and material. Four large sizes. 20 advantages. Sells in every house; A money maker that breaks all records. Model free saves labor and material advantages. Sells in every house; A money maker that breaks all records, Model free, Address American Bread & Pastry, Board Co., Cambridge, Ohio.

NO DIRT LEFT

in clothes washed with the "8USY BEE WASHER" 100 pieces in one hour and no hard work done. That is the record. AGENTS WANTED. Exclusive alle. Write for terms, alle. Write for terms, 155 E. 13 St., Erie, Pa.

This Beautiful Gold Plated Watch and 5 other Presents FREE;—for selling only 2 doz. Rolled Gold plated Collar Buttons at 10 cents each. Ladies, Boys and Girls, send name, we will mail Buttons. UNION CHEMICAL CO...
Dept.604, Bridgewater, Conn.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind.
Please mention Comfort when you write.

$600.00 & 6 PIANOS FREE

YEARBRUF PRILA YAM LUJY HARMC

Can you arrange these six different groups of letters into the names of six (6) of the months of the year? If so you can share in the distribution of the above. We shall give away 6 Fine Upright Pianos and cash amounting to $600 in Gold among these who enter this contest, and will work for our interest. READ CAREFULLY. REME EMB BEH we do not want one centrof your money when you answer this contest. In making the six names the letters can only be used in their own groups and as many times asthey appear in each individual group and no letter can be used which does not appear in its own group. After you have arranged the six groups and formed the six correct names, write them out plainly and send to us and you will receive our reply by return mail. TRY AND WIN. If you make the six correct names and send them to us at once who knows but you will get a big cash prize and possibly a Plano. We hope you will and anyhow it costs you nothing to try. Do not delay. Write at once.

READ WHAT THESE WINNERS SAY:

MISS HATTIE SIMS, 809 Franklin Street, Peoria, Ill. WINNER OF Grand Up. Piano $300.00 Cash Prize, 10.00

Cash Prize, 5.00

On receipt of her piano Miss Sims wrote us; "Dear Sirs,—Received my Piano today in good condition; am delighted and more than pleased with it as first prize. Many thanks. It is a much nicer piano than I expected. I am very glad I won the first prize."

We have other letters from Miss Sims acknowledging receipt of her cash prizes. Also from her cousin, Miss Eva Wonder, of Peoria, Ill., only 15 years old and a student in the Peoria High Schoel, who also won a Grand Upright Piano. She writes: "I write to inform you of the arrival of the Piano. I was highly delighted with it."

MRS. JOHN JUST, Enfield, N.H.,

WINNER OF

Cash Prize, 2.00

We have several letters from Mrs.
Just thanking us for prizes. On receiving her last $50.00 Cash Prize she writes: "Your letter at hand which brought me your check for $50.00 again, for which I thank you very heartily. I don't know what I shall do to pay you for what you have done for me us five months' time," About her second piano she writes:
"I take great pleasure in writing you that I received this morning my piano in good condition—the second in two months—and it is just as nice and beautiful as the other one was. I thank you a thousand times for it and for your honest treatment. I am very proud that I am so lucky."

MRS. JOHN LABENZ, 5113 Duncan St., Pittsburg, Pa.,

WINNER OF Grand Up. Piano, $300.00 Cash Prize, Cash Prize,

Mrs. Labenz writes: "I received the Piano this A.M. in a good, sound condition. I am very much pleased with it and think it is one of the finest ever made and thank you very much. I wish you would put my name among the list of satisfied prize winners so if any one wants any recommendation I can give it to them as I know your people have treated me fairly and squarely. Again thanking you for the beautiful Piano as first Frize, I remain, etc." Dec. 10 she wrote: "I received your check for $50.00 and I thank you very much. Thanking you for check and past favors, I remain, etc."

$500.00 FORFEIT. WHY DON'T YOU TRY?

We will forfeit $500.00 Cash to any one who can prove that we have very not paid all prizes as promised, or that the above testimonials or any of the hundreds in our possession are not ground. We will strong the second of the WOOD PUBLISHING CO. Dept. 134, 256 Franklin St. Box 3124, Boston, Mass

A new discovery odorless and tasteless, that Ladies can give in coffee or any kind of food, quickly curing the patient without his knowledge. Anyone can have a free trial package by addressing Rogers Drug and Chemical Co., 1852 Fifth and Race Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio.

ASTHMA Cure. Sample malled free to any sufferer. "Physician" Latentrelief & positive cure. Sample malled free to any sufferer. "Physician" have compared to the co

How to Quit Tobacco. Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

FORE TELL all affairs of life, with Photo of future Husband or Wife, for 10a, and birth date. ASTROLOGER, Box 3317, Boston, Mass.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

Shaving Set packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and five inches high. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor, single value, $3.00; 1 Genume, Horsehide, Double, Reversible, Canvass-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brash; 1 Cake Ferfumed Lump Magnesia; 1 Stick rich perfumed Cosmetic, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every Woman should see to it that etter her frather, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman. Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six insix minutes. Address

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscrib-s to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's en name and post-office address in full.

own name and post-ogice address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

1st.	For	the	best or	igina	letter		$3.00
2nd.	66		second	best	original	letter	2.50
3rd.	44	44	third				2.00
4th.			fourth	44		44	1.50
5th.			fifth	44		44	1.00

5th. "Afth Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least two new Cousins into the COMPORT circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together with 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions tent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

2 50

Pearl L. Noble.

Mrs M. W. Early,

A. M. Barnes,	4 00
Mrs. Louie V. Yeagley,	1.50
Frederick L. Neuland,	1 00
EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS. March is over, the President
ly inaugurated and started on an	other four years as head of our Governm farmers are busy in the fields, t at the spring house-cleaning, and ever the hum of busy, prosperous life. People are far too much oocupied at this season to have much time for reading, so I will be sparing of my remarks and hasten to unfold my budget of letters. The first comes from the far west, and tells us of the electric railroad at Cripple Creek.

The first comes from the far west, and tells us of the electric railroad at Cripple Creek.

"One of the chief objects of interest in Cripple Creek is the District Electric Railway, which connects a number of the largest mines of this district with 'the Greatest Gold Camp on Earth.'

"The cars leave Cripple Creek every half-hour, and wind around hills and grades so steep that it seems impossible for the power to pull the heavily loaded cars along. In some places the track can be seen below, so near that one can hardly believe the car ever passed over it. When the top of Gold Hill is reached a splendid view of the town of Cripple Creek and the surrounding country is obtained. The entire city is spread out so far below us as to appear almost like a bird's-eye view. At night it looks especially beautiful with its myriads of twinkling lights.

"Some of the most magnificent views, in a state noted for its beautiful scenery, can be had from points on this road. From Midway, a station about half-way between Cripple Creek and Victor, the view is unsurpassed. Toward the east one can see the rugged mountains of the Pike's Peak Range, with Pike's Peak rising cold and forbidding far above the other peaks. Looking westward, stretching from the northeast entirely around the horizon until hidden by the adjacent hills, are snow-capped mountain ranges, so far away that they look blue and hazy. In the Sangre De Cristo range are some of the highest peaks of the Rocky Mountains. On this side of the highest range we can see the wide valley of the Arkansas River, one of the most fertile in the state. Nearer are mountains with smaller valleys between them, while on the hills around us are mines known all over the world for their countless wealth of gold.

"At times while passing around the tops of the hills, Cripple Creek and the country for miles around is enveloped in the clouds, but where we are the sun is shining brightly. In the evening, from nearly every part of Cripple Creek we can see the brilliantly lighted cars ascending and starts on the Trossachs trip. There were eight large brakes full of passengers on the trip which your correspondent is now describing. The country is very beautiful, mountains, lakes and great sloping woodlands combining to lend it charm. The heather which covers everything gives a pinkish purple haze to the landscape, and at every turn you find children who are ready to toss you a large bunch of it for a penny. Three different kinds were noticeable—the white, which is quite rare, and two kinds of purple heather. An old man with a tartan around his shoulders, performing on and premiums you select, pay freight and allow you time to den before paying us. AMERICAN SUPPLY CO., 806 North Main Street, the bagpipes and attempting the Highland fling, lent a still more distinctively Scotch character to the bagpipes and attempting the Highland ling, lent a still more distinctively Scotch character to the landscape. The driver pointed out every thing of interest by name, though his Scotch dialect made it difficult for the passengers to understand him. On the way they passed in sight of Bruce's Monument, Bannockburn hill, Loch Achray and Ben Ledi.

Now let us cross to Scotland in company with Mrs. Early and enjoy with her the lovely views of Loch Katrine and the Trossachs.

THE TROSSACHS HOTEL.

"The travelers stopped for lunch at the Trossachs

"The travelers stopped for lunch at the Trossachs Hotel, the building represented in the picture before us, an extremely restful spot, with its grand mountain scenery and bracing air. From this point the tourists proceeded to Loch Katrine, rendered so familiar by Scott's 'Lady of the Lake'.

Beneath him rolled;
In all her length far winding lay,
With promontory, creek, and bay,
And islands that, empurpled bright.
Floated amid the livelier light;
And mountains, that like giants stand
To sentinel enchanted land.
High on the south, huge Ben-venue Down to the lake in masses threw Crags, knolls, and mounds, confus'dly hurled
The fragments of an earlier world."

"Ellen's Isle' was also pointed out to the travel-

The fragments of an earlier world."

"'Ellen's Isle' was also pointed out to the travelers, but it was a rocky, unpectic looking spot.

"Leaving Loch Katrine behind they took coach for Inversnaia, passing through a peat country and watching the natives gather peat on the way. Near Inversnaia is Rob Roy's grave. Indeed go where you will in Scotland, you can scarcely miss seeing some spot rendered famous by the glorious pen of Sir Walter Scott, and this is especially the case with the Highlands, where so many of his most thrilling scenes are laid.

"Whilst waiting for a boat to carry them across Loch Lomond, the traveler, visited a fine waterfall. After crossing, they took the train for Glasgow, having spent a thoroughly delightful and interesting day in the Trossachs."

MARY W. EARLY. Lynchburg, Va.

Most of us have seen the exhibitions of "glass-

Most of us have seen the exhibitions of "glass-makers" at fairs, summer resorts, etc., but not many have ever seen the inside of a glass manufac tory, so the following letter will, I am sure, possess much interest to most of us.

tory, so the following letter will, I am sure, possess much interest to most of us.

'The manufacture of glass is one of the noted industries of Pennsylvania. The first glass factory built in this country was located in this state, in that portion of it now known as Fayette county.

"A short time ago I had the good fortune to visit one of the largest glass factories in the state and one which contains most of the modern improvements in glass-making. In the center of the factory was a roaring furnace, the inside of which was a lake of molten glass in a white heat. The temperature of the furnace was so intense that the 'gathering boy' was compelled to use a cow-board over his face to protect it from the heat.

"The manufacture of window glass is more bewildering and fascinating than that of any other variety. A pipe, which has been heated in the furnace, is pushed by the gathering boy into the furnace, is pushed by the gathering boy into the furnace, its lowly around and then, pulling it out, he carries it to a tub near by, where he waits for the glass to cool. When it is cold enough he takes it to the furnace again and repeats the first operation, only increasing the size of his glass bulb Then he returns it to the tub and when sufficiently cool he begins to 'block' it in order to shape it up for the third 'gather', which is necessary for what is called a single strength roller. After its third cooling the pipe is carried to the block for the blower, who takes it from the gatherer and begins shaping it for the size of the roller he is making. In order to properly distribute the glass the blower makes many intricate manouvers, holding the glistening bubble at times above his head and then permitting it to swing back into what is called the swing hole. When the proper dimensions have been attained the blower passes the roller to the snapper who proceeds to blow the hole in its end. This hole is blown by heating the roller slowly at the end and blowing slight puffs into the pipe, holding the finger over the end to prevent the escape of the air. This done he deposits the roller on two frame horses where it gradually cools. When perfectly cold it is sent to the cutting room. Here the greatest skill and judgment are required, for a poor or inexperienced cutter plays havoc with the profits of the window glass company in a very little while.

"The articles used in the manufacture of glass are prified white sand, lime, sulphate of soda, arsenic, manganese, salt cake and broken glass or 'cullet'." FREDERICK L. NEULAND, Lucinda, Pa.

I bave often thought I should like to see Wis-

"One of the most charming features of Scotch travel is a coaching trip through the Trossachs of the Southern Highlands, between Scotland's two great cities, Edinburgh and Glasgow. This region is a famous resort for travelers on account of its magnificent scenery and bracing air, and is also popular from being a fine hunting country, being well stocked with pheasants and other game.

"The hunting season begins the last of August, which is very much like our bright October weather. The tourist leaves Edinburgh by railway, but after about an hour's travel gets off, takes a brake, and in Wisconsin. Several legends are told of its naming, but I have no room for them here. The lake is two miles long and a mile wide, and near the shore pleasant little description of one of them.

"Situated about three miles southeast of Baraboo. Wisconsin, is Devil's Lake. You may wonder at the odd name but I can assure you that it is not at all appropriate, as this lake is as beautiful as any in Wisconsin. Several legends are told of its naming, but I have no room for them here. The lake is two miles long and a mile wide, and near the shore there is a solid sand bottom which may be plainly seen through the clear water. Bluffs rise on three sides of the lake to the height of several hundred feet, and in the formation and grouping of the rocks of which they are composed there are some peculiar features. At one place they are piled in such a manner as to resemble a large gateway, and these bear the name of 'Devil's doorway.' Other parts of the bluffs, for similar reasons, bear the names of 'Devil's Nose,' 'Devil's Darning Needle,' 'Devil's Caif,' etc.

"On the sast side of the lake the reilroad passes."

Call, etc.
"On the east side of the lake the railroad passes between the lake and the foot of the highest bluff and continues on through a ravine. There are hotels here for those who wish to board, and cottages for others who prefer a more quiet life."

LIZZIE ATTEDGE, Baraboo, Wisconsin.

Here is a pleasant letter giving som account of the convicts employed in Alabama. Our correspondent says:

spondent says:

"I enjoy reading Comfort, and particularly the 'Chats with Aunt Minerva', very much, and I wonder if a few of the things I saw while on a visit home would not be of interest to the nicees and nephews. My home is in Alabama, and I reached there on election day, finding the weather very warm and springlike. The trees were like great bouquets, with their leaves of every color.

"The day after I arrived my sister and I drove to

FOR A CERTAIN

REE CHINA DINNER SET

WHILE there are some people who have a vague idea issued 100 or 1000 years ago are worth fabulous very few know that coin issued only a few years ago are premium. For instance, the silver dollars of 1835 and the earlier ones. The first Columbian half-dollars, issued for $1,000. All the half-dollars from 1879 to 1820 are at a maios Isabella quarters of 1833, the the property of th dian especially. There is also a premium on so MINT MARKS O, S, C, D or CC;

onal currency, colonial, continenta; and onal currency, colonial currency, colonial as found in Galveston worth $5,000. THE NEW Y with $1,200, and that Mr. Castle paid $4,400 FOR people have become wealthy by looking after old coin ing is a profitable business, as there are but few in it. il pays them big sums." Colus the life coppers for 86,915, 29 silver coin RE sold recently a lot of stamps (CIAL NEWS says: "The Numism deal with as any National Bank. lity." Send two stamps for our life lindependers. often easily found in others. A Boston baker sol others have done nearly as well. Mr. F. W. $250,000. THE COMMERCIAL AND FIN institution of its kind, but as reliable, safe and trustworthy to deal with as any candidate the highest them is the result of SQUARE DEALING and liberality." Send two stamps for our illustrated circumstamps, which may prove to be your stepping stone to wealth and independence. NUMISMATIC BANK, (Dept.

HANDSOME Write to-day for illustrated catalogue describing new and easy plac for selling our Tollet Soaps and Perfumes. Cash commission if preferred. Salvona Soap Co., 122 Locust St., St. Louis, No.

a small town about two miles away, where lime is burned. In Alabama convict labor is employed; that is, the convicts are hired out by the state to men who need their services. To every eight convicts there is one guard who marches back and forth, all day long, watching his prisoners. At night the convicts are kept in a building which might be called a house within a house, so high is the stockade with which it is surrounded. Inside this stockade bloodhounds are kept, and if a prisoner escapes, which sometimes happens, these are at once put upon his scent.

"Two convicts escaped while I was there. We were at breakfast when the long, dreadful cries of the dogs announced the fact, and shortly afterwards a man on horseback stopped to ask if we had seen any strange men passing. It is hard for a convict to escape on account of his clothes, a striped suit of black and white, and as he makes it his first care upon escaping to exchange this for less noticeable garments, and would do almost anything to obtain them, people are afraid of him and willingly give information which will lead to his capture if possible.

"If a convict escapes the man who is hiring him is obliged to pay to the state the sum of fifty dollars, and if not retaken this sum is increased to, I think, two hundred dollars; so every precaution is taken to prevent them from getting away.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 20.)

Thousands cured by my new discovery. Any case

A GOD-SEND TO PILE SUFFERERS.
Thousands cured by my new discovery. Any case permanently cured or forfeit $100. Treatment free to any afflicted person. Don't suffer longer but write to Mrs. M Fredericks, 1544 Euclid Av., Philadelphia, Pa

SPECIAL SALE.

FOR This month only, we ofter at a reduced price a quantity of elegant cloth bound books by such authors as Browning, Carlyle, Halevey, Bacon, Tennyson, Ruskin, Lamb and Arnold. These books are printed on good paper with clear type, and the best of ink. Are for library, school and home use being the best work of these writers. You cannot afford to be without these books at this unheard of low price. Hardly pays postage as each book weighs 12 ounces or over. If you send now we will send one on!" for 10c and pay the postage; four for 32c by express collect. If not satisfactory money refunded. Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home. ART INSTITUTE, Lima, Ohio.

$8 Paid Per 100 for Distributing Samples of Washing fluid. Send 6c. stamp. A. W. SCOTT, Cohoes, N. Y.

CRAZY WORK LITE SERVICES COUNTY TO THE SERVICE OF THE SERVICE SERVICE

YOU HAVE ANY DISEASE, write W. O. Broaddus School of Healing, Terre Haute, Indiana. $300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c.

MAXWELL, Box C, South Bend, ind.

PAY $18 A WEEK and Expenses to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. JAVELLE MFG. Co., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kansas.

919 New Sample Styles Envelops, Silk Fringe CARDS 19 New Songs, 50 Rich & Racy Jokes, Pack CARDS Fun, Recort & Flirting Cards, Star Beau Catcher, &c., All for 2 Cents. OROWN CARD CO., Columbus, Ohio.

to do piece work at their homes. We furnish LADIES all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly.
Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago

LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

SALESMEN Wanted to travel for old-estab. firm. $900,00 per year ence needed. W. B. HOUSE, 1020 Race St., Phila., Pa.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PHOTURES. PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Popt. C. P. OORY & OO. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

LADY AGENTS wanted everywhere to sell Dr. Snyder's Hemedial Soaps, Periumes, etc. Work permanent and profitable. For free sample and terms, address, T. H. SNYDER, & Co., 339 E. 3d St., Cincinnati, O.

17 JEWELED

NATIONAL SPECIAL WARRANTED 20 YEARS. 14K

engraved. Fit for a king. No better watch made. Must be seen to beap precuated. Special Offer for next 60 days, send your full name and ad dress and we will send this watch C.O.D. with privilege to examine. If found satisfactory pay agent 85.85 and express charges. A guarantee and beautiful chain and charn sent free with every watch. Write at nee as this may not appear again. NATL HFG. & IMPORTING CO., 134 Dearborn St., B 318, Chicago, III.

Any one can earn t Beautiful Gold-Plat Hunting Case St Wind Watch, lady's will send you 12 cards of Beauty Pins, 5 pins on a card, sell them at 10 cents per card, send us the $1.20 received, and we will send you FREE, a beautiful Watch-Chain and Charm, also a Solid Gold Finished Ring. Address, Royal Pin Co., Dept. c. F. Bridgeport, Conn. Royal Pin Co., Dept. c. F. Bridgeport, Conn. and Charm, also was told who and where parents lived where prents lived where parents lived where lived

MAN WANTED IN EACH COUNTY, SALA HORSE & WAGON

t to sell Teas, Coffees, Spices, etc., direct to house stores, with or without valuable premiums to meat India Co., 164 Greenwich St., New York Co.

SEND NO MONEY if you live within 500 miles of Chicago, (Il further, send $1,00), cut this at send you this, THE BEST 8-FOOT STEEL WINNING MADE, complete with wheel, vane, head, pell set vice and wood games peals. send you this, THE BEST O-TUUT STEET mineral MADE, complete with wheel, vane, head, pull cettin and wood pump pole, by freight C. O. B., subjetto amination. You can KXAMINK the Windmilatyor nearest railroad station, and if found perceipt satisfactory, exactly as represented, see of these steel windmills made, and the equal of milised by others at double our price, pay the railroad set to you should be supported by the rail weight of the will weight as 855 pounds, and the freight will average $1.50 to $2.00 for each $60 miles.

OUR $14.75 WINDMILL is one of the highest grade mills made. Extremely simple, made of few parts, cannot get out of soft. Automatic self oiling device, positive brak, shed makes two and one-half revolutions to as sink of the pump, responds instantly when there are of the pump, responds instantly when there are not become the pump, responds instantly when there are not seen the property of the pump, responds instantly when there are not seen the property of the pump, responds instantly when there are not seen the property of the pump, responds instantly when there are not seen the property of the pump, responds instantly when there are not seen the pump, responds instantly when there are not seen the property of the pump, responds instantly when the property of the pump, responds instantly when the property of the pump is the p made of few parts, cannot get out of acet, automatic self oiling device, positive brike, visci makes two and one-half revolutions to sea sink of the pump, responds instantly when have in tower. GCARANTED the easiest rasing, lest, strongered and most durable windmill made. A strongered with a neglect wind made and strongered with a neglect wind made and strongered with a strongered windmill made. A strongered windmill made and strongered with a strongered windmill made. A strongered windmill made and stron is the order of the day. The Empire Mustache is the latest fad out. You show your friend the fine growth of nice black hair on your lip and say, "How do you like the looks of it?" then while she or he is intently examining it you quietly infiate the thing by a simple, easy breath and—Great Scott!! Expansion—why preath and—Great Scott!! Expansion—why or can't keep a straight face when you see the startled leek come into your friend's face, for this funny mustace just expansion sand stretches out way across into position and away it goes again. Thus back and forth it plays to the mystification of the observer and delight of the wearer. The device that works it is so easy and simple that you wonder why it was not invented before. They are the greatest marvel now on the market.

FREE. If you write today sending 10 cents for a three months' subscription to SUNSHINE, our great monthly, we will send you a mustache free, postpaid; for 25c., or send "? cents for one dozen if you want o sell them at a profit. Address

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

WE GIVE THIS WATCH FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a time keeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make vice, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase of vice, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase of subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will paper do you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 55 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of our sub-ribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see the subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see five sub-can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five sub-can do. Remember we guarantee every watch, If you get five sub-can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five sub-can do. Remember we subscriber to same we will also send you a nice chain. Address by the official census of 1901, which will be taken this Spring.

$10,000,00 TO BE CIVEN AWAY

We have made arrangements with the PRESS PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION to enable our readers to participate in the distribution of these great prizes, amounting to

$10,000.00

OUR OFFER: UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE every one who sends us 25 Cents entitled to one guess. Present subscribers may take advantage of this offer and their subscribtion will be extended a full year from date of expiration. No advance is made in the price of our paper; you get the guess absolutely free. Try your luck.

will be extended a full year from date of expiration. No advance is made in the price of our paper; you get the guess absolutely free. Try your luck.

YOUR GUESS When you send in your subscription, make your guess. Be sure as soon as we receive your subscription we will send you a certificate of the PRESS PUB-LISHING ASSOCIATION, containing your guess, which will entitle you to any prize your skill or good fortune may win. We will file the duplicate certificate with the PRESS PUB-LISHING ASSOCIATION containing your guess, which will entitle you to any prize your skill or good fortune may win. We will file the duplicate certificate with the PRESS Publishing Association. Every subscriber can: receive as many certificates and have as many guesses as he sends subscriptions to THE COLUMBIAN. If you want more than one guess get your friends and neighbors to subscribe. In case of a tie for any prize it will be equally divided.

Prizes to be Awarded as follows:

	•			•	•	•		٠.	٠.		_	•	-		-
	rect	near	RR.					1	3	5	,()(OC	0.0	0
To	the	2nd									٠		2	,000.	00
														700.
To	the	4th												300.	00
To	the	5th												. 100.	00
To	the	6th												. 50,	00
To	the	next	12	n	ea	re	st	CC	IT	ec	t p	que	550	,
	$1	0.00	-	ch		m	ou	nt	in	e t	o.			120.	00
To	the	next	42	n	8	re	st	CO	T	ec	tg	ue	sses

Total, 1,000 prizes, $10,000.00

VALUABLE INFORMATION. To aid subscribers in forming their estimate, we furnish the following data:-

Total Population
3,689,257
4,324,810
4,833,239

Women's Club Houses.

The population for 1901 at an increase of 12% over the population would be.....5,413,227 At an increase of 15% it would be.....5,558,224 At an increase of 20% it would be....5,759,856 At an increase of 25% it would be....6,041,548

YOU HAVE A GOOD CHANCE.

REMEMBER Every 26 cents you send us pays for a full year's subscription to THE $10,000.00 to pay these prizes has been deposited in the Central Savings Bank and will be paid promptly, as in case of the previous U. S. Census Contest. See testimonials at the right. The names of the winners will be published and the awards will be made within 30 days after, the publication

THE COLUMBIAN, Dept. 18, 394 Atlantic Ave., BOSTON, MASS.

GEO. MOHN, Jr., Pittsburg, Pa.

i readily see nesty. This ss. I intend your Canaes absolute fairness. I intend many guesses in your Cana-contest, in which I hope you very great success. Thanking comptness in paving my prize,

WHAT IT MEANS TO THEM.

It is very interesting to think what the winning of these prizes, without their costing a cent, means to these different persons.

Mr. Geo. Mohn. Jr., who has received the $15,000 to is a member of the firm of Mohn Bros., laundrymen of Pittsburg and Allegheny, and is very much elated at this success. He is the father of four children and says he will divide the fortune among them and a nice who lives with him, all of whom helped him in making his successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a hank account of $2000 to Without the Month Bros., laundrymen or the street father member of the firm of Mohn Bros., laundrymen or the street father of four children and says he will divide the fortune among them and allegheny, and is very much elated at his success. He is the father of four children and says he will divide the fortune among them and successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will be winner to successful guess. So each of the five children will start life with a successful guess. Do RHO

Knoxville.

J. D. RHO

Knoxvill

WOMAN'S CLUB, LOS ANGELES.

be a realization. A fine lot of land on Beacon street, near State House, has been secured and the plans for the building call with large and small club rooms, secture halls and one large auditorium. The basement will be utilized for shops and the upper floor tor ar tists' studios which have already been spoken for at good rentals, so that the success of the scheme as a business venture seems already assured. In fact, the club boyest so for hear sured. In fact, the club houses so far have proved to be paying ventures, several of them paying a very handsome per cent through their rentals to outside parties. Within the with an intheir rentals to outside parties. Within the limits of Bost on there is but one other woman's club house, that being the Dorchester Woman's of oak and Club House, which was built by the heroic efforts of a corporation made up of individuals from that large and active club, which has already paid a good per cent. annually on the cost of the structure. The Cantabrigia Club of a club house in the near future, but most of the other clubs are depending on the Beacon Street structure, known as the Boston Woman's Club House. The first woman's club house in Massachusetts was built in Andover by the November Club.

The first stock company of women to exist in venient ac-

November Club.

The first stock company of women to exist in the United States, it is said, was that formed in Milwaukee by members of the Woman's Club of Wisconsin in 1886 for the purpose of building the first woman's club house in America. This club house is of particular interest as it was the gathering place of several thousand women in June when the Biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs was held in that city. Mrs. James S. Peck, wife of ex-Governor Peck was the prime mover in this building project, just as she beat been the prime mover in most important movements in her city for many years. Mrs. Peck was the President of the Local Board of Managers to welcome the several thousand

On entering one is struck at once with the artistic taste that has been exercised in all the arrangements. The decorations are in soft, delicate tones that we have come to appreciate as restful and inviting, a beautiful harmony of coloring being preserved through every apartment. On the first floor is the club parlor, capable of seating two hundred persons. It is handsomely furnished and fitted. A library and a small tea-room—used, too, for committee meetings—are on the same floor, a central hall adding to the spacious effect. The second story, excepting for dressing rooms, is a noble assembly room with a high arching roof—an ideal music or ball room as large as the club parlor, above, the decorations here being in white A kitchen suite with pantry, store-room, etc. adjoins this room. The club believes in the silent but effective education of artistic surroundings, and it has accumulated in its years of housekeeping many beautiful things. The Athenaeum cost twenty-five thousand dollars and is now valued at forty thousand. The shares of the stock are twenty-five dollars each and have earned handsome dividends each year.

The Propyleum of Indiana was one of the steps towards organizing a stock company for

The Propyleum of Indiana was one of the first club houses built in this country, the first steps towards organizing a stock company for this purpose having been taken in 1888. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, whose name is familiar wherever women's club were ever heard of, was the founder of this scheme. The capital stock is twenty-eight thousand. It is a beautiful and the first floor of the state of the musical club of Grand Rapids, also owns a handsome club house of stone, brick and terra cotta costing over fifther where the first floor of the state of the musical club of Grand Rapids, also owns a handsome club house of stone, brick and terra cotta costing over fifther where the first floor of the state of the musical club of Grand Rapids, also owns a handsome club house of stone, brick and terra cotta costing over fifther where the first floor of the first floo ciassi c structure of stone, Romanand con-venient ac-commodations for club meetures, public and private entertainments and other gatherings it is now an indispensable and paying feature of the capital city of Indiana.

HALLWAY OF LOS ANGELES CLUB HOUSE.

No club house in this country is better known mover in this ruilding project, just as she had been the prime mover in most important movements in her city for many years. Mrs. Peck was the President of the Local Board of Managers to welcome the several thousand club women to Milwaukee last summer. The name of the Wisconsin Club House is the Athenaeum and there open house was kept throughout the Biennial, while some of the smaller meetings were held in the assembly hall which is capable of seating 500 persons.

This club house in this country is better known to club women at large than the New Century of Philadelphia. This club house was the direct outcome of the Athenaeum in Milwaukee. It is a more expensive building however, having cost some $80,000. Here were held the meetings of the Biennial in 1894 and the Council of the G. F. W. C. in 1899. The small hall is in constant demand by outside parties for private theatricals, balls, receptions and concerts and the income accruing therefrom pays a handsome percentage on the original investment. It occupies one building lot on a down town street and is constructed of Pompeiian building to the "Ladies Literary village, as a club house. Now it happened that this organization which he desired to favor had been incorporated with all the pomp and ceremony of the law under the name of the Woman's, Club and therefore could not under that name inherit the property meant for them At last accounts they were making an effort to get around the law in some way.

Illinois, too, is quite up-to-date in the mat.

to get around the law in some way.

Illinois, too, is quite up-to-date in the matter of club houses. Peoria has a beautiful club house which was completed in 1894. The main entrance leads into a tiled vestibule opening into a reception hall. The spacious parlor with its decorations and furnishings in the style of Louis XIV. is the embodiment of coziness and good cheer. The library, committee rooms and large commodious dining-room and kitchen brick and terra cotta. On the first floor is a fine large parlor with several reading and committee rooms, a superintendent's office and a large hall and vestibule. The drawing-room or auditorium occupies two stories above and is approached by a massive oak staircase A supper room and a smaller tearoom connect with it. On the fourth floor are kitchens, well equipped to furnish refreshments to whatever club festivity may be going on. Among the distinguished women who have been president of this club and have had much to do with its success is Mrs. Charles G. Ames, now well known in Boston. The New Club House was designed by a woman, Mrs. Minerva Parker Nichols, and cost eighty thousand dollars. By the way, the architect who has charge of the Boston Clubhouse is Miss Josephine Wright. Chapman.

There are several club houses for women in Michigan, that of the Laties' Literary Club of Grand Rapids being perhaps the best known. This was built about the same time that the Milwaukee Athenaeum was erected and has earned over $2500 a year for the club during the recent years of its existence. It is open every day in the week, heated and cared for and the fact that this rendezvous is always awaiting them has helped to make this club one of the largest and most influential in the country.

The St. Ceclila Society, the musical club of Grand Rapids, also owns a handsome club house of stone, brick and terra cotta costing over fifty thousand dollars. The Lansing Woman's Club balve as women's club of Grand Rapids, also owns a handsome club house in the first floor of which is valued at $6000. It is a substantial two story brick building, the first floor of which is occupied by a bus in essafirm. It was in Michigan that a man dide so me two years a go who belonged to profession the second. The kitchen is in the basement. There is an ideal auditorium with a spacious stage and a setting capacity of five humbers club mest fact bub with the sapure ture in all cases, and is a source of pride and club which was ture in all cases, and died so me two years a go who belonged tc

the old schoolof gentle men who will not for the world speak of the fair sex as anything but
"iad tes".
In his will he left a hand so me
building to building to the fair sex as anything but
"iad tes".
In his will he left a hand so me
building to
bu also entered directly from 'Tuckerman Street, and on this floor will be parlors, reception-rooms, etc. As is customary in most women's club houses, the large assembly room will be on the second floor and will seat some six hundred received.

on the second floor and will seat some six hundred people.

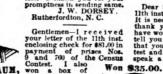

The Middlesex Woman's Club of Lowell has beautiful headquarters, although they do not own the building which they occupy. They are in the Pollard building on Middle Street. Their Colonial Hall seats some six hundred and is beautifully decorated, having a commodious stage with all its accessories connected with it and several parlors and ante rooms, the club occupying the entire floor. The decorations and furnishings are all of the most beautiful style of modern art and there is no more delightful spot for a club to meet than their delightful spot for a club to meet than their club house.

The Los Angeles, California, Woman's Club The Los Angeles, california, woman's club is about completing a very handsome club house, one of the prime movers in building it being Mrs. Caroline Severance, who helped (CONTINUED ON PAGE 19.)

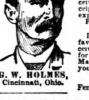

Gentlemen—I received your letter of the 11th inst. enclosing check for $81.00 in payment of prizes Nos. Ontest. I also Contest. I also Won Eremme Osage. Mo. cigars from my neighbor, who said I would not get anything even if I guessed would not get anything even if I guesse PERRY SIMONS. Hetland, So. Dak

Gentlemen—I presented my check yesterday on the Central Savings Bank and received $5,000 in payment of the second prize which I won in your Census Guessing Contest. I wish to sincerely thank you for the prompt payment of same.

Yours very truly.

McLAUGHLIN. G. W. HOLMES, Detroit, Mich. Cincinnati, Ohio.

Yours respectfully, Tuscola, Mich. W.J. HARRISON.

Dear Sir—I beg to acknowledge the check or $75.00 which you kindly sent me. and blige, With many thanks, Darien, Conn. LEROY MONROE.

Dear Sirs—I am in recept of your check for #200.00 in payment of the sixth prize in your Census Guessing Contest, for which please accept my most hearty thanks.

MISS D. E. LEDOUX. Glen Falls, N. Y.

when an opportunity is afforded.

Won $30.00.

Lawndale, N. C.

J. D. RHODES. Knozville, Ala.

THE COLUMBIAN, Dept. 18, 394 Atlantic Ave., BOSTON, MASS.

An April shower of greetings to you all, my dears, and a wish that they will bring you May flowers of all kinds of earthly blessings. And with this sincere salutation let us get to work on the real talk that we are all so interested in.

On the real tank that we are all so interested in.

The first one in the list is Cousin Alice of Water Valley, Miss. and she wants to correspond with some of the cousins, if I will give her their addresses. But I cannot, because I do not believe in unknown correspondence? of any kind. I know that sometimes much pleasure and no harm comes of it, but there are too many chances of harm to take any risks, so I must refuse the request of Cousin Alice and of all others making a similar one.

one.

Topsy, Valton, Wis.—There are firms in Milwaukee and Chicago which buy such pictures as you paint, but you will have to go there and let them see what you can do and accept their prices until you have made a name for yourself. (2) There is nothing to do when you have been thanked publicly by a meeting except to say how glad you are and how much you appreciate such recognition of what you have done. Write such a note to the President. President.

President... Mildred, Austin, Texas.—Don't use arsenic. Exercise, proper diet and care of the skin is the best thing for the complexion. (2) The best training for the stage is the dramatic school. You can learn there whether you have the qualifications or Lygia, Neenah, Wis.—The work of teaching may not pay quite as well as that of trained nurse, but it is far less difficult and does not require anything like the amount of time and nervous energy and strain. My advice is to continue teaching.

Gray Eyes, Shell Lake, Wis.—I have answered all your questions at least fifty times in this column, and now ask you one: "Do you ever read what I say?"

Blue Grass, Ashland, Ky.—Haven't space to print "My Maryland" in this column. You will find it in any collection of southern poems, or in Dana's "Household Poetry."

Mae and Ero, Silver Star, Mich.—"May a girl except a small present from a boy older than herself?" "Yes, and it would be better than to accept it; but better still—it would be for her to learn to spell before she talks about beaus.

Spell before she talks about beaus.

Cousin Frankie, Saratoga, N. Y.—Socially a chef is not recognized as a gentleman, although he may have all the instincts and manners of one and be more of a man than many so called gentlemen. You did wrong in accepting the attentions of a man you did not know, but your uncle has no right to call him "a tough" unless he knows him to be one. You are more to blame than anyone else.

Marguerite, Lewiston, Me.—If your parents or guardian permit you to go to dances and theatres, I suppose it is correct. (2) Good novels may be read with benefit. (3) Ask your escort in if it is not too late. (4) If a girl of fourteen can be a house-keeper she ought to be glad. Don't go to the theatre very often.

Brown Eyes, Odin, Ills.—To prevent hair falling out, wash the head each night rubbing in the following: Teaspoonful salt, gramme and a half of quinine added to a pint of brandy; mix well.

Peach Bud, Cosmos, O.—Yes, it is right to ask the gentleman to call again. (2) Make your own reply to an introduction.

Florence, Philadelphia, Pa.—A sensible girl of fifteen will laugh at the young man who makes love to her. (2) Tell the young man he can not go with you because your parents object.

Snow Flake, Post, Ore.—Rosy cheeks are nature's product.

Anna, Upland, Neb.—In congratulating a married couple it is best to say you are very glad and to wish them all earth's blessings. There is no form for those things.

for those things.

Rose Bud, Valley City, N. D.—The young man is not acting fairly with you. Tell him so, and discontinue your relations with him.

M. K. Traverse, Minn.—Presents of flowers, books and candy are permissible from a young man to whom you are not engaged. (2) Thank the young man for his escort. (3) Cake walks at dances are acquiged in, but they are not refined. (4) Don't dance with one man all the evening. (5) Yes.

Violet. Myerstown, Pa.—Don't write to a young man until you know how to begin and end your letter.

Barnesville, Minn.—Don't be married in all white is the correct thing. (2) Custom as to wearing mourning; a year for a sister, Bleeding Heart, Ville de Collins, N. J.—It is in-eed quite "pommes de terre", to do things you mention, but isn't your French struck by Jersey lightning?

Lina, Pinkney, N. C.—An unmarried woman should never be called an "old maid." (2) She can't. (3) If you have done wrong it is your duty to ask the young man's forgiveness. (4) I only wish I could tell you how to earn your living, but that is a question each of us must answer for herself.

Sweet Violet, Brooklyn, O.—The man who "fools around with other girls" is a flirt, and that is the kind to let alone.

Chatterbox, Moweaqua, Ills.—Better wait until you receive a present before giving one. (2) Unless you are engaged there is no harm in accepting the attention of as many nice men as you can.

Bertha, Providence, R. I.—Ask your mother the questions you have asked me. You need looking after.

The Chums, Eustis, Fla.—The exchanging of photographs is admissible among friends of long standing, and so is the wearing of rings. (2) Explain to the young man concerning the falsehoods that have been told.

nave neen told.

Blue Eyes, Decatursville, O.—Physiology is in all the examinations. (2) Better let hypnotism alone.

Coyote, Larimore, N. D.—It is not improper for a girl to ride horseback. (2) Spank the fourteen year old child and send her to bed and sic the dogs on the young man.

Orange Blossom, Lincoln, Del.—Knowledge of organ playing is of no value in playing any stringed instrument. Rudiments of the music only are the Mamie, Chicago, Ills.—It is quite the proper thing to acknowledge a wedding gift by letter, but, my dear, don't you think you could write it yourself without my help? I didn't receive the present.

Think of it, you can get an Upholstered Coach, 2 pairs of Lace Curtains and a handsome set of Table Silverware, for selling our Remedies. There is no chance or deception about this advertisement. We speak the truth and nothing but the truth. We are determined to introduce our Remedies into every household, and every person answering this advertisement who will sell only 6 boxes of our Positive Corn Cure, a positive cure for corns, bunions and callous feet, will receive our generous offer of a handsome Upholstered Couch and two pairs of Nottingham Lace Curtains, with a sterling silver plated Butter Knife, Sugar Spoon, and a beautifully engraved Salt and Pepper Set, which we give absolutely free for selling only 6 boxes of Salve at 25 cts. a box. If you agree to sell the Salve, write to-day and we will send them by mail. When sold you send us the $1.50 and we guarantee if you comply with the offer we shall send you with the Silverware; the Upholstered Couch and 2 pairs of Nottingham Lace Curtains will be given absolutely free. We are an old, reliable concern, with a reputation for square and honest dealing, and we guarantee to do exactly as we say. Our Lace Curtains are 3 yards long and over a yard wide. The Silverware is guaranteed silver-plated on pure metal. The Couches are full size, over 6 feet long, and over 2 feet wide. They are well stuffed, beautifully upholstered with handsomely colored velour, and when shipped are sent from the factory by freight direct to your address.

MANUFACTURERS' SUPPLY DEPARTMENT 22 A, No. 65 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK CITY

May Rose, Mann, Texas.—No, to both your questions.

Poor Girl, Noble County, Okla.—You must ask the people in your own town what you want to know. It is impossible for any one else to tell you. Vio-Rose, Volcano, W. Va.—If the man won't give up his bad habits for his sweetheart, he certainly will not for his wife. (2) Forty is too old for sixteen. Nan, South Heart, N. D.—Third finger left hand.

(2) It is no more proper to ask a man in leap year to marry you than it is any other time.

Amy, Greenwich, Conn.—Gray slippers with gray gown and no veil. (2) Your idea of wedding cards is in bad taste. Better keep to the old style.

Moss Rose, Bellville, Texas.—Don't write to him until you first hear from him. (2) I really don't know.

Kitty, Baukana, Mich.—There are no "complex-ion receipts;" what is good for one complexion may ruin another. Proper exercise, diet and bathing, is the only rule of general application. (2) Wear any kind of a light waist that is becom-

There, dears, all the questions have been answered that should have been answered and I hope you will profit by them. The Lord be with us till we talk again.

COUSIN MARION.

SELF HOME TREATMENT FOR LADIES.

I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorrhea, Ulceration, Displacement and all female diseases, to all ladies sending address. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask.

MRS. M. SUMMERS, BOX 206, Notre Dame, Ind.

Whale fishing was carried on by the Norwegians as early as 1837.

SEEING IS BELIEVING.

One often sees the expression in an advertisement "Money refunded if not as advertised." This, of course, is done for the purpose of inspiring confidence in a probable buyer, for the reason that any one contemplating a purchase from a concern making such an offer feels reasonably sure that if the goods are not satisfactory, their money will be returned. In this issue we have an advertiser who goes still further and says, We do not have to promise money back if not as advertised; we ship our goods on credit; in this way you see and know everything is as advertised, before paying one cent of money. Read the large advertisement on another page of this firm has been in business a number of years, are well known for their promptness and conscientious manner of keeping all their promises. Readers who answer this advertisement will undoubtedly be pleased with the liberal terms offered by this firm and which is called attention to in the announcement.

$4 A Day to correspondents and writers all over. News & Stories wanted. "A" Union Associated Press, New York. BIG PAY for distributing circulars and small books. Narder Advertising Co., 611 Broadway, N. Y.

$50 A Month distributing samples. Enclose stamp.
Inter'l Dis. Bureau, 43 John St., New York. C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio

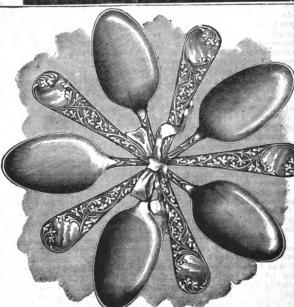

WANTED at home. Plain needlework. Good pay. Steady work. Experience unnecessary. No canvassing Address with stamp. Ideal Home Work Co., Chicago, Ill.

China. Tottering

$1000m GOLD 7 20 15 19 23

Each one of the above three lines of figures spells the name of a great city in the United States. This is a brand new puzzle and can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, Il number 2, C mmbrd 2, etc., throught the entire alphabet. In NUMBER 11 (1970) of 1, 1970 of

FREE Silver Spoons.

We will deliver free, all charges paid, one-half dozen elegant silver-plated Tea Spoons of the latest de-sign, to any one who will send us one new yearly 25c. subscriber to this sign, to any one who will send us one new yearly 25c. subscriber to this paper within thirty days. These Spoons are warranted extra quality and the style and workmanship is of the best. If you have not time to get the new subscriber send in a renewal for yourself or have the paper sent to a friend. You can sell the Spoons for a good price. We got a very large lot of them to close and our subscribers as long as they last, so you better send your 25c, subscription today if you want a bonant surprise, as they will not be offered in any other manner and we are anxious to increase our subscription today if you want a bonant surprise, as they will not be offered in any other manner and we are anxious to increase our subscription list this month just one hundred thousand. Address

COMFORT, Augusta, Me.

FREE BOOK ON HYPNOTISM

Women's Club Houses.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

form the New England Woman's Club in Bosform the New England Woman's Club in Boston more than thirty years ago. The Cincinnati Woman's Club, the Woman's Club of Minneapolis and several other prominent clubs in different parts of the country are building club houses at present. Wherever these structures have been put up they have proved to be the centres of social and intellectual life of the town, and have invariably proved good business ventures, paying handsome dividends. Doubtless in ten years from now the woman's club house will be considered almost a necessity to every ambitious town and altogether too common to allow of newspaper articles being written about it. written about it.

Princess Beatrice.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HEN the world turns from sor-row over the death of Queen Victoria, its thoughts natur-ally center on the figure of her eldest son, Ed-ward VII., now King of England. But we who visited the Isle of Wight that summer think first of mer think first of the Princess Beatrice, and of the fortunate day when it was our privilege to see the late

We were standing on the end of the pier at Ryde. At our feet, a trig little pinnace bearing the royal coat of arms, rocked lazily on the waves that curled and rippled about it. When waves that curled and rippled about it. When a traveler sees an emblem of royalty emblazoned is the company of the stand by," as Captain Cuttle would say, to see what comes of it.

The present instance was no exception to the region of the present instance was no exception to the region of the region of the present instance was no exception to the region of the region of the present instance was no exception to the region of the region of the present instance was no exception to the region of the regi things.

The Duke of Connaught, by far the handsomest member of the English royal family, has an aristocratic, high-bred face, and carries himself with a military air. The duchess, who is a German, is quite plain, with an uncomfortable amount of flesh.

The tage of the Princess Beatrice impresses fortable amount of flesh.

The face of the Princess Beatrice impresses one as honest, sensible, motherly and good. In fact, as a voluble shop-keeper said to us the day before: "All the Queen's girls are good girls." The ladies were simply dressed, the princess wearing a plain black skirt and jacket with a white sailor hat. A sailor hat seems to be the national head gear of an Englishwoman, by the way. by the way.

by the way.

In an unostentatious, but business-like manner, H. R. H. Princess Henry of Battenberg, or the Princess Beatrice, as she is familiarly called, goes over the island attending her duties. She makes purchases at the little shops, and occasionally drops into some quiet cafe for afternoon tea. Since the death of the former governor, Prince Henry of Battenberg, the position has been held by his widow, the Princess Beatrice. While the title may be an honorary one, there are many real duties, well performed by this youngest daughter of the late Queen. She is the patron ess of charitable bazaars held on the island during the summer, and it was on one of these occasions that we saw Queen on one of these occasions that we saw Queen Victoria.

When it was announced that her Majesty when it was announced that her Majesty

When it was announced that her Majesty would attend a midsummer fete given at Carisbrooke Castle in aid of the parish church, the success of the un dertaking was assured.

The castle, finely situated on top of a wooded hill, is of itself well worth a visit. On the date of the fete it took on an unwonted air, and develoed gypsy tents in historic corners, with mysterious palmists lurking in time-honored ledges. The ancient banqueting hall, with its timbered roof and crumbling walls, was transformed into a theater with an improvised slage. The private chapel of King Charles became a dressing-room for the artists. Pleasure seekers poured in by coach, and by train, and the place became enlivened with music and laughter.

A Biegele Caris

A Bicycle Gymkhana was held on the old green. All sorts of competitions took place during the ride and prizes were awarded the winners. There was an egg and spoon race, and there were lay figures to be picked up from the ground without dismounting. Two of the games secreted works. English and less of the games seemed more English and less familiar than the others. One was called a Gretna Green race. Each gentleman rode from the starting point, leading his fair one's bicycle to the half-way post, where the lady mounted and rode with him to the notary's table. Then they rode back, hand in hand, to the starting point, the first couple to arrive there winning the prize.

g the prize.

NFORT, APP

The gentleman carried the paste bucket and posters; the lady carried the brush. Posters were stuck right side up on boarding, as the place for bills is called in England. The bills had to stick until the competitors returned to the starting point.

Tea was served. It was expensive, to be sure, Tea was served. It was expensive, to be sure, and the service was not beyond criticism. A cup without a saucer is by no means the most convenient arrangement. A spoon handed one by a member of the nobility is soothing so far as it goes, and may be considered as a symptom of tea; but when it is not followed by any further evidences of refreshment, considerable is left to the imagination. Not every day, however, does one have the honor to be served by high-born ladies; and as they looked on all deficiencies as a huge joke, American good humor was soon able to see things in the same light.

Princess Henry of Battenberg, with her children and other members of the family, appeared at four o'clock—in time to attend the peared at four o'clock—in time to attend the concert.

Two hours later, in the mellow afternoon light, just as the sun was flashing messages that were caught by the royal standard as it floated from the old keep, the Queen arrived at the castle. A little old, old lady in a pair of spectacles, seated in the corner of an open landau. So small was this little old, old lady, as to be almost hidden from view by the high sides of the carriage. She wore a mushroom shaped hat, tied under her chin, and there was a drop curtain sort of veil which the young princess who was with her, tucked up and around the hat in order that the people might have a good view of their revered sovereign, have a good view of their revered sovereign, Victoria, Queen of England. As Her Majesty turned to acknowledge some

Victoria, Queen of England.

As Her Majesty turned to acknowledge some lusty cheering near us, we saw one familiar feature—the round mouth that we have learned to know in the youthful pictures of the Queen. The outriders in scarlet made way for the coachman who handled the reins over a pair of grays. A Scotchman in national costume also sat on the box, but there was no call for his assistance as the Queen did not leave the carriage Members of the royal family grouped themselves about the august visitor. The scene was a pretty one. On one side, gray, ivy-grown walls; on the other, a beautiful lawn backed by fine old trees. Several teams of lady cyclists with their machines tastefully decorated in flowers, rode in procession. Picturesque gypsies carrying tambourines, walked by making deep obeisance as they did so. To all the arrangements made for her entertainment the Queen gave pleased and interested attention.

The royal visit lasted about half an hour; then, amid cheers and to the strains of the national anthem, Her Majesty left Carisbrooke and rode on toward Osborne House, the place now in the minds of all as the last earthly home of a noble woman—the late Queen and Empress—Victoria of a noble woman-the late Queen and Empress

MANUFACTURED ART.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE close of the day's HE close of the day's work brings me to where, on my way home, a dark-eyed, s warthy-skinned, s miling Italian stands on the corner, and presides over a basket of little plaster images—Venuses. ter images—Venuses, A pol los, Mercurys, Dantes, lions, lioness-

Dantes, lions, lionesses, flower girls, Washingtons, Deweys and other celebrities. One evening a particularly pretty little statuette attracted my attention, and in the conversation that followed I became greatly interested in the subject of these little, works of art. Under the direction of my friend accordingly I one day visited the place where his stock in trade was manufactured.

The making of these image-reproductions of some of the greatest works of ancient art, as well as some more modern work of our foremost sculptors—which are so common on the street corners and in our homes, gives employment to a large number of men in our large ment to a large number of men in our large cities, and is a process of manufacture about which comparatively little is known. vendor of the images is often also the manufac-turer, though it is oftener the case that one of these establishments fills the baskets of dozens of the peddlers. Some out-of-the-way basement is usually chosen for the workshop. Each man employed does his one special part of the work, though none of them are artists. Some good sculptor is usually employed to copy the piece to be reproduced in marble or clay. This pattern he sells to the factory or sometimes leases it for a fair price. This copy is used for a model from which all the plaster reproductions are taken. There are two processes of making the reproduction. In the first the model is made of rive, and in the other which es of making the reproduction. In the first the model is made of glue, and in the other, which is used in the reproduction of panels and plaques, a model of sulphur is used.

In the first process the model is first thoroughly oiled, and is then hung in a vat of liquid glue. The glue adheres to the image and is allowed to cool and harden, when it is cut away in two pieces. The model is removed, the mould fastened together again and liquid plaster poured into the hollow.

plaster poured into the hollow.

The rough cast thus produced is then taken by another workman, who with a knife smoothes off the rough edges left by the glue mould. Another goes over the whole figure and rubs and smoothes it still further into shape. It an ivory finish is desired the cast is shellacked and by the application of different kinds of paints it is made, to resemble bronze or terra-cotta to suit the fancy of the purchas-The other was a bill posting competition. kinds of paints it is made to rescale of the purchaser. Often very meritorious work is done by these workmen in shading the casts, by a judicious use of paint in the deeper parts.

Often very meritorious work is done by

In making a plaster image like a statuette it is necessary to mould different parts of the figure separately, and these parts are afterwards firmly joined by means of wooden pegs and the joint cleverly concealed with plaster. Then, too, a leg or an arm in a larger cast is sometimes made stronger by means of a wire embedded in the plaster. All these processes require no little skill on the part of the workmen.

In the use of the sulphur mould the model is covered with melted sulphur, which, when cool, makes a much more durable mould than glue, which is not good for more than a dozen castings.

But supplying the baskets of street peddlers with images is not the only channel by which the plaster image manufacturer disposes of his wares. A considerable business is carried on with the clothing stores, milliners, hair-dress-ers and the like, and the beauties we see adorn-ing the show windows and displaying to advantage Brown's $5 suit of clothes, or Jones latest creation in spring head gear, also had their origin in the plaster image factory. Another source of revenue is in supplying the art schools with models in the form of plaster casts, while some of the larger and better class of these manufactories make really meritorious reproductions of large works of art which are of these manufactories make really meritorious reproductions of large works of art, which are used as mural decorations in some of our homes. Lately some of these places also have taken plaster casts of the hands of people vain enough to think that member worth preserving, and rich enough to gratify the whim.

The business in America is yet young. Most of the images were formerly made abroad, (principally Italy) and exported to America, but of late tariff charges have made it cheaper for the vendors to have the work done here.

In conclusion, whatever our views may be on the subject of art, who shall say that the business that places in our homes, at a ridiculously small price, reproductions of all that is best in ancient as well as modern sculpture, is not worthy a high place in our esteem?

stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

420 Quilt Sofa and Pin Cushion Designs many new and original designs never before published. Book contains bebefore punished. Book contains besides, lesson one embroidery, on Battenburg Lace making, ali illus., alone worth 50c. each; also illus. lists of materials and quilting designs, including 100 fancy stitches for patch work. Regular price is 25c., but to each reader of this paper we will send a copy postpaid for 10c. LADIES' ART CO., Dept. 5 D, St. Louis, Mo.

Farmers' Sons Wanted of farm stock and tion to work in an office; $45 a month with ad-it; steady employment; must be honest and re-anch offices of the association are being established in each state. Apply at once, giving full particulars. The Veterinary Science Association, London, Canada.

WE GIVE AWAY FREE one rolled gold solltaire Puritan rose diamond ring, solid-gold statem, for selling 20 packages Garfield Pure Peptin Gum among Friends at 6 cents a package. Send full name; we mail gum. When sold send money; we will mail ring; few can thrond gum taken back. With for extangue of GARPIELD GUM CO., 117 MEADVILLE, 7A.

20th Century MUSICAL WONDER. With little practice any Complete Orchestra Or Full Brass Band ALL IN ONE.

gaus can be detained and the second of the control of the control

A Labor-Saving device

factured into sponges for the Housekeeper, Herchank, Liver, Metal Workers, and all persons who desire to keep their homes, o and business places in a clean and healthy condition.

No Soap or water is needed or even used with the Magical S for Cleaning Windows or any outside Metal. In the winter time or equal, it does not freeze, and no water being used (other than or equal, it does not freeze, and no water being used (other than see that the second of the seco

Chats With Aunt Minerva.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 13.)

"We heard afterwards that these two men had requested permission of their guard to go into the woods a few steps to get a stick to use in driving the oxen, with whose help they were hauling logs. The guard consented, but the men, instead of returning to their work ran deeper and deeper into the woods. They were fired upon, but the trunks and foliage of the trees protected them and they got away. The guard could not follow them until he had locked up the remaining six convicts under his charge, so they had a long start of him. One of them was never caught. The penalty for an attempt at escape is a whipping in addition to the fact that an escaped convict must serve his whole sentence over again, dating from the time of his recapture, no matter how much of it had been already served, so it is not often that one of them tries to escape."

MRS. LOUIE V. YEAGLEY, Indianapolis, Indiana.
Our next letter takes us back to our own coun-

Our next letter takes us back to our own country, and to its earliest colonial days.

"I am sure that quite a number of Aunt Minerva's nieces and nephews are familiar with the story of the lost island. Atlantis, but how many of them have ever heard of Dorchester, the city that passed away.

"In 1696, while Charleston, South Carolina, was yetin its infancy, a settlement was made in that State by a band of Congregationalists from Dorchester, Massachusetts, who embarked December 5,1695, in two small vessels. Though they had a rough passage, encountering many severe gales, they reached the Carolina coast safely, and in a little less than two weeks. They ascended the Ashley River almost to its headwaters, and there began the settlement to which they gave the name of the one whence they had come.

RUINS OF THE OLD WHITE MEETING HOUSE.

"They took up their abode in the unbroken forest, among savages and wild beasts, at least twenty miles from the dwelling of any other white man. They were pioneers of an intrepid, industrious spirit, and soon had a large and flourishing town, which in time grew to a city of nearly two thousand inhabitants. Stores, dwellings, and schoolhouses were erected, while a fort was built on the river bank, not only as a means of defence against the Spaniards, who were constantly making invasions into Carolina, but also as a place of refuge in the event of an attack from the Indians. The fort was constructed of coquina, powdered shells cemented together. Some parts of it are still in good preservation. "Strange to say the Dorchester colony did not together. Some parts of it are still in good preservation.

"Strange to say the Dorchester colony did not erect their church in the town, but two or three miles away. It was called the "Old White Meeting House" to distinguish it from the other church, St. George's Episcopal, built in the town some twenty years later. Two walls of the 'Old White Meeting House' are yet standing. Many distinguished men have preached in it, among them the great Whitfield.

"St. George's was quite an imposing edifice, built in the form of a cross, with Gothic windows and a fine, strong tower in which there was a chime of bells.

"In 1752, the people of Dorchester, for some reason not now known, deserted their city with all its son not now known, deserted their city with all its evidences of their painstaking labor, and, cross-ing the Savannah River, settled in Liberty County,

THE TOWER OF ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

Georgia. Here they organized what has since been called "Old Midway Church." D. Abiel Holmes, father of Oliver Wendell Holmes, was paster of this church from 1785 to 1791.

this church from 1785 to 1791.

"At the present time nothing remains of the once thriving city of Dorchester, South Carolina, save the ruins of the old fort and the tower of St. George's Church." the ruins of the old for and the ruins of the old for and George's Church."

A. M. Barnes, Summerville, S. C.

Here is a letter which I wish had reached me in time to be given to you in the winter, but as it did not I will let you have it now, hoping it is not too late for your answers to be of some use to the writer. He says:

er. He says:

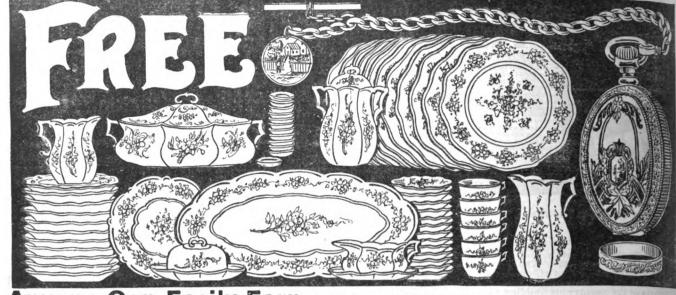

"I wish some friend would tell us about peanuts, the kinds best adapted to a northern climate, most productive and quickest in maturity, culture and curing.

"I had more than half a bushel from a fifty-foot row, the experiment of last season. I think they might become a new, profitable crop on Long Island. The first two frosts in the fall did no damage, and the third, heavy, frost did only light damage to leaves. I took the first premium at the Suffolk County Fair with them, and I wish to try half an acre of several best kinds in this season."

SIMPSON THOMAS, Aquebogue, Long Island, N. Y. Here is another Georgia cousin who wants to

Here is another Georgia cousin who wants to have a little talk with us. Truly our Georgia cousins are sociable and neighborly, and we owe them at least a vote of thanks for being so nice to us.

"We live on a high hill with a large oak grove on the south and east, and in the fall this grove is glorious with its brilliant foliage. On the east side the hill slopes down to the old mill which does the grinding for all the neighborhood. Just above the mill is a pond whence come all our fish. Sweet potatoes are very abundant with us and I often think of and pity the Northern people who do not know what it is to have a surplus of them. After they have been 'hilled,' as we call it, for a while, they are very sweet, and we Southern women think our kitchens are not complete unless they have a basket of sweet potatoes in them.

Anyone Can Easily Earn a beautifully decorated 56 Piece Tea Set, full size for family use, also a Gold-Plated Nickel or Silver Watch, Chain and Charm and a beautiful gold finished Ring You can get all of these presents absolutely free if you comply with the offer weaking advantage of this advertisement. We guarantee to do exactly as we agree and do not ask you to send us one cent. If you agree to sel tweet and when sold send us the $1.20 and we will send you the perfume. Sell them among your friends and neighbor and when sold send us the $1.20 and we will send you a Watch-Chain and Charm, a beautiful gold finished Ring which is equal in appearance to a solid gold in and our offer of a 56-Piece Tea Set which is full size for family use and contains tea pot, sugar bowl, cream pitcher, also plates, cups and saucers, cake dishes, etc., all carefully packed. We send you the premiums promptly. This is a rare chance to obtain useful and beautiful presents of an old and reliable concern. WRITE TO-DAY AND EARN YOUR PREMIUMS IN A FEW DAYS. GLOBE PERFUME CO., DEPT. 201 No. 65 COURT ST., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

"We also raise a great deal of cotton; this is beautiful in the full when it opens white among the green leaves, and when it happens that there are also the red blooms on the same plant it is a scene for a painter. Grain is cultivated by us as well as cotton." With best wishes,

MRS. F. P. HARVEY, Monitor, Ga.

I have a nice letter from a young cousin, Freda Bayer. Thank you very much. Freda, for remem-

Bayer. Thank you very much, Freda, for remembering me, and I wish I could see your flock of chickens. They must be well worth a visit.

Albert C. Adams, of Yoakum, Texas, writes me a vivid description of that awful disaster, the Galveston flood; but I cannot use 'timely' articles. My "copy" has to be prepared at least two months before it appears in print.

There, that is the last for this month, I think, so with the best wishes for your success in all your spring undertakings I will say good-by.

AUNT MINERVA

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample copy free on application AGENTS MAKE $50 PER WEEK and expenses MAGIC LIGHT CO., Chicago $5 A DAY Selling Flavor Powders. Sample Free. C. S. HORNER CO., 1409 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

PILES CURED. Box Free. L. F. WAGNER, P. O. Box 163, MILWAUKEE, WIS. THE YANKEE FIRE-KINDLER Builds 100 Fires with 3c of Oil.

No kindlings, Warnand 3 years, Greatest Salles for Americans Language Sample 3 years. Greatest Seller for Agents ever invented. Sample with id, 15c. YANKEE KINDLER CO., BLOCK 41, OLNEY, ILL.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to some work.

Memorials:" good profits and steady work.

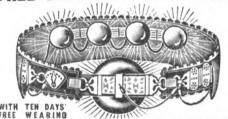

Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 610 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

OLD Confederate and United States stamps bought and sold. Geo. O. Greene, Princeton, 111., Box 41.

Young Americans Letter Writer,

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every 10-needed. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE LIB AT YOUR OWN home, we furnish the genuine and only seader of this paper. No money in advance; very low cost; positive surantee. COSTS ALMOST NOTHING compared with most all other reatments. Corres when all other electric belts, appliances and remeles fall. QUICK CURE for more than 50 allments. ONLY SURE URE for all nervous diseases, weaknesses and disorders. Familial confidence of the confidence of TRIAL in your own home, we furnish the ge HEIDELBERG ALTERNATING CURRENT ELECTRIC reader of this paper. No money in advance; very dollar me, hly. We pay all charges on the two of the agrats. Send 15c, for a four months' subscription and we send one Bagpipe free. One dozen Bagpipes for only $1.00. You can easily sell them for 25c, each and make two dollars by the transaction. Address send one Supple free. One dozen Bagpipes for only $1.00. 100 can easily sell them for 25c. each and make two dollars by the transaction. Address, FAMILY HERALD, Dept. H, Augusta, Maine.

Dance the Highland Fling. A REAL SCOTCH BAGPIPE

If you are suffering from Lost Manhood, Nervous Debility, Strucken Organs, Variococle, Sexual Weakness, etc., and want asure, quick cure, just write to me in confidence, and I will send you a free prescription, with full directions for a simple home treatment, in plain, sealed envelope—one that I know will do the work, no matter how long standing or from what cause. My business is manufacturing Churns and other merchandise, but I have taken up this war against medical fakes, and propose to send this prescription free to all who need it. It is free from humbug, and you can, out of gratitude, the noblest impulse of the heart, conscientiously recommend it to your fellow-men.

Bo not delay until the last ray of hope is gone, but begin NOW-TODAY, and win back your manhood. This offer may not appear again. Address,

THOS. BRADFORD, 30 Bradford Big., Cincinnati, O.

Or the New Art of Polite Correspondence. Book that Will Lead You on to Fame.

Adapted for Both Sexes. This is the Best Letter we Eourpe or America. It teaches how to write a Lette out of the writer's own head, or to compose a first Business Letter, or a Love Letter, never fail to penetrate the Heart No other Book has this MYSTERI OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE dies fail. Quite a view of the confidential entalogue, cut this ad out and mail to us.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago, III.

"The Book of Politeness," "Society Dances," and "free. Address SUNSHINE, and weather free. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta,

Prof. Baron's Complete Instructor inall

The Society Dances of America

uadrille Sociable, the Waltz Qu uard Quadrille, the Caledonians

SPECIAL. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta,

The STANDARD BOOK on POLITENESS

Good Behavior and Social Etiquette. Your Manners May Be Your Fortune.

any family in America, and there become great. It is a charm b
This Book embraces the Uss Etiquette, Social Intercourse, and Presents, Conversation, M Parties, Love, Courtship and Promenade, Boating, Staying act in any emergency, or enter and how to avoid incorrect and or in Society. It is a Perfect of life, Parents should purches of SPECIAL send 50 cents to-day for a two years' subs SPECIAL popular monthly SUNSHINE, and we will "The Book of Politeness," "Society Dances," and "I'd e c. "ddress SUNSHINE, 1222 BRETHREN OF THE SEA.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE earliest pirates known on the coasts of America were the notorious buccaneers who began their career in no objec-tionable way. Some of the West Indies were overrun with wild cattle and when this was known

Indies were overrun with wild cattle and when this was known among the sailors on trading vessels from Europe, it was a common occurrence for them to stop at the small sea-ports and load their vessels with this dried beef which they learned how to prepare from the natives. Hence their name from the French word boucanier, meaning simply a "drier of beef." Gradually, however, the word buccaneer began to mean sea-robber and some of their evil deeds have never been surpassed even by the pirates of the old world.

Soon piracy became a sort of brotherhood. These desperate men who sailed under the black flag called themselves "The Brethren of the Sea," and among themselves it is quite probable that honor existed.

One John Esquemling, a native of France, by a peculiar train of circumstances joined this brotherhood and sailed the seas for several years as a pirate. Finally he returned to his own country and in 1672 wrote a history entitled "The Buccaneers of America, or The True Account of the Most Remarkable Assaults Committed of Late Years upon the Coasts of the West Indies, etc., etc., by One of the Buccaneers Who Was Present at Those Tragedies." This was afterwards translated into English and Spanish and the tales come down to us as historical.

Among other famous men of this fierce description were L'Olonnois who after perpetrating some of the blackest deeds was finally captured and torn literally limb from limb, and each fragment thrown into a fire. When this monster had been consumed his ashes were scattered so not a vestige of him should remain.

Henry Morgan was recognized as "buccaneer-in-chief" of the West ladies and commanded twelve ships shes were satisfied as a solution of him should remain.

Henry Morgan was recognized as "buccaneer-in-chief" of the West Indies and commanded twelve ships and seven hundred men. To relate the abominable tortures he and his men inflicted upon poor people would make one's flesh creep. This shrewd man was at one time acting Deputy-Governor of Jamaica and was knighted by King Charles, who would not listen to the atrocities he had committed and dubbed him "Sir Henry Morgan" for his great bravery. After the death of Charles II. he was sent to England in chains, but what his end was we do not know.

"Blackbeard," whose real name was Thatch, was the terror of all the Southern coast, especially Virginia. He was finally killed by a sailor named Maynard. Stede Bounet, a retired Major in the British army, became one of Blackbeard's leading men. He was, after a wicked life of murder and robbery, hanged by LAFITTE. the Governor of South Carolina.

Man alone did not hold the laurel for dark deeds in those days more than ours. There the Governor of South Carolina.

Man alone did not hold the laurel for dark deeds in those days more than ours. There were two women who, dressed as men, sailed under the black flag, who happened during their piratical life to be thrown together, one, Anne Bonny was the daughter of a Carolina planter who in his early days was an Irish lawer. This daughter married a young sailor and afterward leaving him married one of the foremost pirates of the day a Captain Rackham. She was finally captured, and put in irons in England but pardoned eventually.

Mary Reed, daughter of an English captain of a trading vessel, was dressed in boys'clothes from childhood on account of a whim of the mother, and became a pirate at an early age. She fell in love with one of her bandit companions whom she married. Mary Reed like the previously mentioned woman was caught and imprisoned in England. She was tried for piracy and condemned to death but died of fever soon after her conviction.

Jean Lafitte, the gulf pirate, was a very talented man, a blacksmith originally. This occupation he gave up for the more profitable one of piracy. With his two brothers as assistants he managed a system of privateering which for a long time was considered partially legal. Nothing is known of his end. By some it is confidently believed that Aaron Burr's beautiful daughter Theodosia who met an unknown fate on the seas was captured and held by this pirate Lafitte.

known fate on the seas was captured and held by this pirate Lafitte.

Among all the bandits who have been lauded in legend or some there is none with whom all are so familiar as Captain Kidd. And every where from the Gulf to Canada his spoils are said to have been buried. According to stories told by old inhabitants of Cape Cod, Capt. Kidd once captured a young woman named Hannah and not knowing how else to dispose of her he buried her with his treasures in order to have her keep away intruders until he should return. This has been commemorated in a little ballad "The Lady Hannah" by Mr. James H. Morse. William Kidd was executed and his body hung in chains on the banks of the Thames, Eng. where it dangled as a warning to sailors for many years. where from the Gulf to Canada his spoils are said

As our country became better settled and our commerce was protected by well-armed revenue cutters, these daring sea-rovers became fewer and gradually passed away altogether.

N New York there have recently been built two hotels which are unique on this side of the Atlantic though similar ones have proved highly successful in London. They were built by Mr. D. O. Mills a prominent philant bronst and are intended to prominent philanthropist and are intended to furnish comfortable lodgings and wholesome food to the large number of men of small means, laborers and mechanics and others, who are not seeking charity, but who cannot afford to pay laborers and mechanics and others, who are not seeking charity, but who cannot afford to pay regular hotel rates.

The two Mills Houses as they are called are situated on Bleecker and Rivington streets. They are large handsome buildings, well lighted and ventilated, provided with baths, smoking, writing and game rooms, a library, and a laundry, where the lodger can either do his own washing, or have it done for him if he prefers. In the basement is a restaurant where for fifteen cents a dinner of soup, meat, vegetables and dessert may be purchased. For twenty cents a comfortable, well-heated and lighted room may be procured, which though small is scrupulously clean and comfortable.

Mills House No. 1, on Bleecker street contains over 1500 rooms while that on Rivington street has 600. Both hotels have been crowded since they were opened and numbers have been turned away. Besides providing a fund for deterioration on this property, the owner has been able to realize a good per cent. on his investment. Knowing that they are honestly paying for what they get, men who would never accept a cent of charity gladly availthemselves of the privileges of the Mills House. So successful have they been that a stock company is being formed to build a similar hotel for women.

HE cultivation of the rubber plant is the most profitable agricultural pursuit of Brazil and adjoining states, and is attended with very little labor. The rubber plant reaches maturity at six years and is then tapped. In a healthy plant the amount of milk exuded increases until the tree is thirty years old, after which time it gradually diminishes, although many of the trees live to be one hundred years old. The trees live to be one hundred years old. The bark of the tree is cut, and the milk or sap is allowed to run down to the root of the tree where it forms into an irregular, rubber-like mass, which is gathered and sold for shipment mass, which is gathered a to foreign manufacturers.

The highest taxed country in the world is Roumania; there is a tax even on female servants. Every bottle of foreign wine has to pay a shilling duty. There is a tax on the doorplates, and one which doctors must pay yearly for the privilege of following their profession.

EVERY LADY READ THIS.

I will send free a positive cure for all female diseases, irregularities, etc. A simple home treatment, a common sense remedy that never fails. Free with valuable advice. Mrs. L. D. HUDNUT, South Bend, Ind.

THE LATEST POPULAR SONGS.

Cost in single copies at least 40 cents each; but we have a book of one hundred and fifty-six popular songs sentimental, pathetic and comic with words and music complete which we will send to any friend who will send six cents to pay mailing expenses and our illustrated catalogue of latest bargains.

S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

Get Married 8000 ladies want to marry.

Many rich. Send 2 cts. for photos and big sealed list with addresses and full description. Satisfaction guaranteed. Union Corresponding Club, Box 608, Austin, Ill.

THE SNAKE CHARMER has no influence on this joily musical novelty. You blow it up and see it slowly expand. It is a regular Rubber neck, for it stretches out to see like a peninsular, and what heaps of fun you can have with it. Let a friend take hold of it fun you can have with it. Let a friend take hold of it and feel it squirm, then see your friend squirm when it begins to hiss and hiss and double up rubber around. They create more sport in a crowd than you can imagine and everybody wants one just to have some sport with their neighbors. Don't miss it; you will laugh and grow fat over the sport it will make. They sell quick at Fairs and on the street. Send 10 cents for a four months' trial subscription to our great home monthly and we will send you one FREE. Send 15c, you get two, 25c, for four, 60c, for one dozen. You make big profits; we pay postage. Address SUNSHINE, Dept. 6 L, Augusta, Maine, words are represented in the above picture? If you can you may w NOSOME REWARD. This is a new puzzle and if you are smart, you can, with study, give the correct and win some Cash. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF MONEY WHEN YOU ANSWER THIS

You have absolutely nothing to pay for your guess, so the cash you receive will be clear gain. Only yourness, so the cash you receive will be clear gain. Only yourness all owed you, so Try and Win. This is a free contest and contains no elements of chance and we you have to pay all patrons Cash for correct solutions. If your answer is correct you will hear from mail. Address, THE CENTURY MEDICINE CO. 18 Spruce St. New York Dept. 237 A.

We Make Men and Women

SINCERITY

In speaking as they think, believing as they pretend, acting as they profess, performing as they promise, and being as they appear to be.—Boston Post.

You can obtain in from 2 to 10 days the MIRACULOUS POWER OF YOUNG VIGOROUS MAN-BHOOD AND WOMANHOOD.

A second youth will come again to you, with sparkling eyes, resolute step and full confidence restored and sus-

No man or woman who is sexually weak should lose hope. They may have tried a hundred different remedies without getting relief; but no case is hopeless if our treatment has never been taken. We do not expect to convince sufferers with words alone, but we can make them

BEYOUNG feel young and buoyant again if they will only try

Back to Robust Health and New Life.

BE YOUNG

DR. ARCHAMBAULT'S PARIS VITAL SPARKS

OUR FREE OFFER.

- Marital Strength, Vitality, Manhood & Womanhood IN TWO TO TEN DAYS.

Night Losses, drains and emissions cease at once—Errors of Youth, Premature Decline, Lost Manhood, Varicocele and all Diseases and Weaknesses of Men or Women, from whatever cause, permanently and privately cured. Weak Men Enlarged and Developed.

FREE! FREE!! FREE!!!

Our regular $3.00 package Paris Vital Sparks, a full month's treatment, 100 doses, sent by mail, scaled. Write today.

No C. O. D. fraud, no prescription that you cannot get filled, but a full month's treatment. If they do as we claim, you can pay after you are cured; and we leave it entirely to your honor. Our faith is so great, and we know so well the wonderful virtues, we can do this. They surprise and please you. They astound the medical world. They act at once on the urino-genital system, and no miracle of olden times can compare with the wonderful results obtained. They cure urinary diseases. Stop night losses in from seven to ten days, so that they never return. Emissions, drains and losses in urine entirely cease after a few days' treatment. The skin becomes clean, the eyes bright and clear Confidence returns, step elastic, bowels regular. They assist digestion, increase the appetite when it is poor, headaches, flushings and nervous symptoms fade away, the head becomes clear, the memory good, the mind bright and active. They make new, rich red blood, which mantles the cheeks and lips and makes them rosy with health. Dark circles under the eyes disappear, and the weak man or woman is made a new being and restored to perfect health and vigorous sexual power and glorious youth at once.

Just as Good Foor Woomen.

In Female Diseases they surpass all remedies hitherto known to the most eminent medical men of the day. They quickly cure Leucorrhosa or whites; bring about regular menstruation and act as a powerful tonic to the great generative system of the female.

A food for Brain, Blood, Muscles, Bones and Nerves. Not a stimulating drug, to help for a few days and leave you in a worse condition in the end, but real, permanent good always results, no matter how chronic the case. Do not even send us a postage stamp. We have the only SURE CURE. Just send us today your name and address, plainly written. We will treat it with all confidence, and for your trouble will send you our valuable offer FREE.

DR. T. R. ARCHAMBAULT CO., 38 Pemberton Square, Boston, Mass.

Bracelet. Hat Pin, Chatelaine, Knife, Shirt Waist Set. etc., to anyone who will sell 10 of our ROMAN GALTH PINS are the Royal Advance; lust send your name and address saying you willisell the pins or return them and we will send them at oncepostpaid with large premium list of Watches, Chains. Opera Glasses, Clocks, etc. When sold you send us the money and we will send them at oncepostpaid with large premium list of Watches, Chains. Opera Glasses, Clocks, etc. When sold you send us the money and we will send the premium you select. Our Premiums are the Best.

M. R. COMPANY, 79 Dearborn St., Dept. 64, Chloage

If you would live a great deal longer, Have perfect health and feel much stronger,

Be happy and enjoy life gaily, Keep Ripans Tabules by you daily.

WANTED.—A case of bad nealth that R:1-P-A:N S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. In for 5 cents at drug stores. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co. No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

HALT Stop Fatal Operations: in Women's Diseases, Tumors Ovariotomy, Falling, Congestion, Appendicitis, Absorption Home Treatment avoids cutting. Archibald-Ayers, 1135 Broadway, N.Y.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

MOTHERS If your children suffer with Kidney or Bladder weakness, send for a free box of PEN-INE, cures every case, old or young. MO, REMEDY CO., St. Louis, Mo.

NOT A PIG

In a poke, but did you ever hear a Pig Sing? Well, this Musical Pig right from the Paris Exposition, is the latest and greatest wonder out. More fun with this cute little porker than anything ever invented. You simply blow him up like the picture or then the Pig begins to while he squeals, then collapses, then gives up the ghost with a last faint grunt and finally dies. Everything about the tragic ending is so laughable, however, that you nearly burst with hilarity, so funny is the ending of poor Piggy. Thousands of these Musical Dying Pigs were sold in Paris at the Exposition this season and they are now all the rage in New York. Don't fail to get one if you want some fun. They are strongly made of a thin rubber substance so you can carry them in your vest pocket and suddenly blow him up and then there is more fun ahead than a box of monkeys. Just get one and try it. Agents can sell them at the rate of a hundred an how in a crowd. We send one FREE with 16c, three months' trail subscription. One Doz. $1.00, postpaid. Address, COMFORT, Box 770, Augusta, Maine.

Two sent for 25c., or five for 50c.

BARGAIN SALE Remnants SILK RIBBONS

BEAUTIFUL SILK RIBBONS

is the Intreest in quan sty, value and variety in New York City, we have marked the prices way down. These are the most beautiful Silk Ribbons in the East, and at this remarkable mark-down sale we are making an unprecedented and raparableicd BARGAIN OFFER. These beautiful Silk Ribbons were recently purchased at wholesale auction sales at prices which will enable our lady customers to secure unheard of bargains. We are overstocked and must sell them at a greatly reduced price from their real value. These ribbons are really very fine ribbons. Please do not judge them by our MARK-DOWN PRICES. They are bought in very large quantities at wholesale auction sales, and we generally buy for spet cash all the ribbons a mill has. We have bought as high as $3,000 worth of these beautiful Silk Ribbons at one time, and they are certainly of most excellent value. We are anxious to sell a lot of these rare Silk Ribbons in overy neighborhood, as their beauty and value at OUR CUT PRICES will sell lots of them to your lady friends. Now, remember, these remnants are all from one to two and three yards in length, and many of them are the friest quality of Ribbons in fact, nearly all colors are represented; also different kinds of Ribbons adapted for bounet strings, neckwear, trimming for hats and dresses, bons, scarfs, etc., etc. No lady can purchase such fine Ribbons as these at any store in the land for many times our price, so that the bargains offered by us should be taken advantage of by our customers.

Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these as-cent our customers.

Our stock of Silk Ribbons, from which we put up these 35-cent packages, consists of Crown Edge, Gros Grain, Moire, Picot Edge, Silk Brocade, Striped Ottoman, and various other styles of Plain and Fancy Silk Ribbons suited to the wants of arefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors, no remnants less than one yard long, and all We put up carefully assorted packages of Silk Ribbons, assorted colors, no remnants less than one yard long, and all first-class, useful goods.

We will send 1 package for 35 cents, silver, or 36 cents in 2-cent stamps. Carefully packed in boxes, postpaid, upon receipt of price. Address

PARIS RIBBON CO., Box 3044, NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

TO ALL WHO HAVE

If you suffer from Epileptic Fits, Falling Sickness or St. Vitus' Dance, or have children that do so, my New Discovery will CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for my FREE REMEDIES and try them. They have cured thousands where everything else failed. Sent absolutely free with complete directions, express prepaid. Please give AGE and full address

Dr. W. H. MAY, 94 Pine Street, New York City.

$3.75 BUYS A $35 WATCH and a handsome watch chain and a charm. THIS IS A GENUINE GOLD-FILLED WATCH in appearance, superbly engraved, double hunting case, stem wind & set, fitted with a high grade ruby jeweled movement, absolutely guaranteed for 25 YEARS.

Cut this out send it to us and we' will cend you the WATCH AND GHAIN & CO. D. S.3.75 and express charges for examination. If as represented, pay our special price 83.75 & exp. charges, and it is yours. Mention if you desire Laddes' or Gent's size, CALUMET WATCH CO., Dept. 181, Chicago.

Novelties, etc.) When honey and we will for-ss a beautiful BISQUE and, remit us the money and respectively over address benutini BISQUE FRENCH DOLL, handsomely dressed, nearly ONE AND ONE-HALL FRET TALL, with natural sleeping eyes, jointed body, turning head, pearly texts, slippers and slockings and hour joint A BIG and the girls. Order 30 Novelites at one, sel them at ten cents each and receive this hand in. Address, NOVELTY WORKS, aln St., BRIDGEWATER, CON.

CONSTIPATION, HEADACHE, and DYSPEPSIA absolutely cured. Instant relief, never returns. Acts like magic. A boon to sufferers. Trial Box. Fros. Address C. J. MASON, Box 519, New York, N. Y

FREE Book, Hypnotism to Date. Learn Hypnotism and the Lathrop Method of Magnetic Healing from the originator. Psychism the best paying profession of the age. Needed in any branch of business. Dr.W. W. Lathrop, Sta. X, Jackson, Mich.

HOME WORK FOR MENE WOMEN FREE

$3 A DAY Guaranteed to any enterpris-tleman. Work can be done at Address ORDWAY CO., Camden, Maine.

MARRY 10,000 are anxious to MARRY 2cts for big sealed list with descriptions and Photos. Address STAR AGENCY, No. 415, AUSTIN, ILL.

OR NO PAY. Dept. 78 C. MIL WAUKEE, WIS.

Electro-Magnetic Battery Does wonderful cures, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Toothache. Price 50c., postpaid. Agents Wanted. Oatalogue 2c.

ATTRACTIVE YOUNG WOMAN. Handsomer Wants to marry a good man. All letters answered. Will send Photo if 10 cents is sent to guarantee safe delivery. Miss Eva Stephens, c/o 293 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

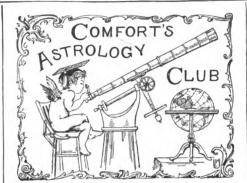

Heroes Are Made of Good Stuff SO IS THIS ALL METAL HERO KNIFE.

o solid best of steel blades, bright metal handle, strongly riveted, without bolsters, being the two parts and nothing to break, giv-ing the knife a smooth, thin appearance. This is not a clumes woodsman's Infire a smooth, thin appearance.
This is not a clumsy woodsman's knife but suitable for a gentleman's vest pocket, or desk or the school boy and in every way will be found practical and serviceable. Makes a most acceptable present for fa ther or brother and is symptomic work will be for the property of the pro new proud to give away and an everlasting pleasure to the style thin knife that asure to the eiver.
These Hero Knives are all the rage just fits the pocket without making holes in the cloth. Better for vest pocket use than scissors and given absolutely free as a present.

FREE
OFFER.

To quickly introduce our Healer of all Wounds, Oxien Arnica Court Plaster, we will send seven wallets Free. Each handy each. Every person will buy a package as it "HEALS ALL WOUNDS SAYE THOSE OF LOVE." Send us the money after you sell them for only 5c. the packages of court plaster, 35c. in all and we will send you after the you can get and are warranted O. K. Girls Look ff you prefer a smaller or Ladies Knife we will send one instead of the Hero. Address Arnica Court Plaster Co., 80x 652, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR MAY, 1901.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR MAY, 1901.

MAY I—Wednesday. Deceptive appearances and baffling hindrances are likely in the real estate transactions of this day, though the day is fair for business with public officers and corporations; the forenoon is better for selling than buying; give preference to the afternoon for business dealings with manufacturers and traders in machinery, chemicals, drugs, metals, glassware, fire-arms and cattle; the latter part of the day should give real enjoyment in pleasure-parties, musical entertainments and all amusements.

The day in general conduces to busing entertainments and all amusements.

2.—Thursday. The day in general conduces to business activity and enterprise, though quite a degree of caution in matters of writing should be observed to guard against precipitancy, and where it can be done conveniently it is better to postpone writings or agreements of consequence until more favorable influences rule.

3.—Friday. Be in no haste to begin musical or artistic matters in the forenoon hours nor should any favor be expected from thy superior in business or authority; give thine employer a wide berth and no cause for disastisfaction; as the noon is passed begin thy dealings with the builder, plumber, agriculturalist, landlord, and all engaged in the dirty avocations; purchase goods for trade, deal with banks and other monied institutions and persons of wealth and high in judicial stations.

4—Saturday. Continue thine efforts of yesterday through two-thirds of this day; when also deal with churchmen, mining insulutions, ship-builders, and contractors; as the evening advances, let all beware of contention or controversy nor begin any litigation.

5-Sunday. Conditions are fair for this Sabbath though religious injunctions from the pulpit are likely to be characterized by unusual aggressiveness in dogmatic pugnacity be deliberate and moderate in judgment and duly tolerant of the opinions of others.

6—Monday. The petition for advantage at the hands of public officers or superintendents of large corporations will not find much favor on this day nor should much progress be looked for in the literary pursuits.

7—Tuesday. Employ every moment of this day pushing business to the utmost; success attends the mechanical trades; transact business with lawyers, surgeons, chemists, and the mechanical classes generally; have surgical operations performed; trade in cattle and metals; deal with the printer, publisher and bookseller; the afternoon and evening derives much pleasure from social gatherings or the drama.

social gatherings or the drama.

S-Wednesday. Be up before the sun and employ every moment of the day until five in the afternoon; literary labors are performed with more facility from midnight until the afternoon of this day, especially such as pertain to finances and the financial world; the forenoon is particularly propitious for the jurist, banker, capitalist and those in ecclesiastical callings; buy goods for trade and push all general business to the utmost; soliet money favors, adjust accounts, make collections and deal with banks and persons of means; beware of dealings in real estate in the late hours of the day when also the aged will not be as pleasantly disposed as usual.

S-Thursday. An excellent day for the elegant pur-will not be as pleasantly disposed as usual.

9—Thursday. An excellent day for the elegant pursuits; push business generally but give preference to dealings in fancy goods, dress materials, jewelry and all articles of adornment in the forenoon; seek the dressmaker, milliner, tailor, and decorator; make engagements with publishers pertaining to poetical and other work of elegant character in the literary world; urge correspondence, send out financial circulars and deal with monied institutions.

10-Friday. Fairly good for most of the pursuits of ife, though conditions are not vigorous in any particular direction; let all routine labors be hastened and the moments fully improved.

11—Saturday. A day greatly to be avoided for wooing or wedding; and thou shouldst not be disappointed if little success attends thine efforts today; be careful in digment; seek no promotion at the handa of thine employer; be wary of errors in accounts or writings; postpone important contracts and be watchful in giving thy pone important contracts and be watchful in giving thy signature to commercial paper of all kinds.

12—Sunday. Bridle the tongue during the morning hours lest quarrels come, and the day is best used for rest and quiet.

rest and quiet.

13—Monday. The week begins most auspiciously; choose the day for transacting business with landlords or landed proprietors; make agreements and sign writings concerning houses, lands and mining properties; the landscape painter and musical and dramatical artist have fortunate conditions on this day and should improve every moment; exercise thy taste in matters of dress and decoration and lead thy fair one to the altar. Buy merchandise to seil again, deal with printers and persons in the literary walks of life; seek favors from thine employer and crowd all business vigorously; the evening will be unusually fortunate for dramatic, musical and social entertainments.

14—Tuesday. The forenoon is the best part of the day, but it is doubtful if thy petition for favor meets with much consideration; beware of making purchases of a speculative character in the afternoon when also see that no loss comes through carelessness or neglect; postpone correspondence.

postpone correspondence.

15—Wednesday. Avoid thy landlord in the morning hours nor shouldst thou have any dealings in real estate; as the day advances, conditions are vastly improved and all efforts should be increased, especially those of a mechanical character; use the afternoon for dealings of consequence pertaining to manufacture or construction; trade in fire-arms, chemicals, machinery, glassware, metals and drugs.

als and drugs.

16—Thursday. Continue thine efforts of yesterday during the first two-thirds of this day, especially, those relating to the mechanical callings or productions; use the afternoon for dealings with banks and persons of wealth, also for money transactions of all kinds; make purchases of goods in trade and generally crowd all the honorable undertakings.

nonorable undertakings.

17—Friday. This day should be used for dealings in real estate and the steady application to business; trade in agricultural tools and implements, also products of the

PROCLAMATION TO WEAK MEN

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

FREE TO ALL

W. S. Harter an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an overgenerous offer that comes in the shape of a proclamation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality and in every instance the same wonderful results were experienced as was in his pitiable one, by reason of continual drainage, his constitution was weakened to such a degree that it was impossible for him to perform his duties. He spent hundreds of dollars for remedies and to specialists, but could not regain his vitality or check the awful drainage. One day a brother lodge member called his attention to a remedy, for his affliction; he did so, and in one month's time was entirely cured, his constitution rejuvenated and his vitality regained. Today he is a man in every sense which that word would imply. Mr. Harter is not what one would call an immensely rich man, but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he intends making his life's labor that of putting this remedy in the hands of all those afflicted as he was. Mr. Harter, being a very conscientious

TO WOMEN WHO DDEAD MOTHERHOOD!

TO WOMEN WHO DREAD MOTHERHOOD!

Information How They May Give Birth to Happy, Healthy Children Absolutely Without Pain-Sent Free.

No woman need any longer dread the pains of child birth. Dr. J. H. Dye has devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. He proved that all pain at child-birth may be entirely banished, and he will gladly tell you how it may be done absolutely free of charge. Send your name and address to Dr. J. H. Dye, Box 137, Buffalo, N. Y., and he will send you postpaid, his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to happy, healthy children, absolutely without pain. It will cost you not a single cent to accept his magnanimous offer, so do not delay but write to-day.

Women Wanted Do Binding. $9.00 week. Steady work. We furnish and send material prepaid. Send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. Universal Co., Dept. 29, Walnut St., Phila, Pa.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return.
A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic.
Trial box MAILED FREE. Address.
Dr.E.M.Botot,Box 978,Augusta,Me.

BOYS AND GIRLS

FRUIT

YOU PRESS THE HANDLE. IT TAKES THE HULL QUICKER AND NEATER THAN BY HAND.

OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER

hulls Strawberries, Gooseberries, Black Currants, etc., and picks out Basting Thread and Stitches. Has place for thumb and forefinger; doesn't slip or fill up. A simple little thing, saving Time (most essential thing to housekeepers), Temper, Stained and Sore Fingers. Will not crush ripest fruit. Takes out soft and green spots, leaving berries clean, neat, and clear cut, making them look fifty per cent better in the dish, and makes you wonder why it was not thought of before. With one you can do the work twice as quickly, and without any of the usual unpleasant features of this work. Every lady who tries this once in the berry season will never be without it again, or allow her friends to hull berries with fingers. One trial only is needed. Housekeepers write, "Could not get along now without it." They are brightly nickelpolished and ornamental. Splendid side line. A day's supply goes in your pocket. We deliver all goods so your profit is clear. Send for trial sample, which we will send postpaid for 6 cents, including 3 months' trial subscription to this paper. Send 20c. for a 6 months' subscription and one-half dozen Hullers, or a year's subscription and one dozen Hullers, 38c. In large quantities, three dozen $1.10, six dozen, $2.18, a whole gross 144, $4.00, sell for $14.40. Big Profits. Now is the time.

Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

charm complete
1.98. The handsomest watch and the most beautiful chain
1.98. The handsomest watch and the most beautiful chain offered at the price. SEND NO MONEY, cut this out and send in swith your name and address and we will send the watch chain and charm to you by express. You examine them at the case office and if as represented pay express agent our special deductory price $1.98 and the watch and chain and charm are yours. A guarantee for 5 years with every watch. Address R. E. CHALMERS & CO. 352-356 Dearborn St. Chicago.

EY AND BLADDER CURE FREE.

r sufferer from kidney and bladder diseases, Bright's se, urethral troubles and any disease of the urinary by sending address to Dr. D. A. Williams, East bton, Conu., will receive by mail, absolutely free, Treatment of the one medicine that will perma-y cure after everything else has failed.

I wish every person in the U S. suffering with FITS, EPILEPSY or FALL-ING SICKNESS to send for one of my large-sized 16-ounce bottles FREE. OR. F. E. GRANT, Dept. 54. Kansas City, Mo.

RUPTURE CURED! WORN NIGHT and DAY.
Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

-FORTUNE

rs, domestic troubles, business and financial success. Send your date of and 2e postage for my great REVIEW ON ASTROLOGY, sever testimonials and a personal, type-ritten, trial Horoscope of your all FILES. PROF. H. EDISON, T. Binghamton, N. Y.

THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., Detroit. Mich.

Women Made Beautiful and clears the skin. Beautiful women energy where owe their superb figure and matchless loveliness to Vestro. Harm-less, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photos, testinonials, etc., scaled for the control of their control of

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS REVEALED BY LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

Wonderful Foresight of a Physician.

Wonderful Foresight of a Physician.

By a lock of your hair, age, name and sex, Dr. J. C. Batderf prepares a scientific diagnosis of your case free and tells what w.ll cure your aliments. It is a remarkable gift to thus read by the simple guide of a lock of hair and reveal the state of health and outline the way to happiness. Thousands of men and women are taking advantage of the doctor's offer to give one reading free to each applicant. It is a very interesting and structive proceeding; and the doctor's forty years' experience in practice has wonderful keenness in reading and diagnosing the ills of humanity. Write your name plainly, age, sex and enclose 4 cents in stamps, a lock of your hair men. Address Dr. J. G. Batdorf. Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

e what the doctor can do for you. It is well worth your Address Dr. J. C. Batdorf. Dept, 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

MUSICAL PIPE. On it any one can play any tune they know. It is a real Musical Instrument. The Multiphone Musical Pipe is Multiphone Musical Pipe is a great surprise to every one for besides getting real music out of this little Wonder you can imitate any Bird or Animal, and produce all sorts of queer and varied noises. The diaphragm has the same principle as the Telephone and Phonograph, and the operator can successfully imitate most any sort of Musical instrument of south the vibration is such that you can have a Saxaphone, Bag Pipe, or most any other instrument, all Charionet, Trombone, or most any other instrument, all contained and manipulated in the Musical Pipe. These Pipes are beautifully and strongly made, colored Red, White and Bire. It is the most ingenious and satisfactory production ever offered to the public. Get one: You cannot fail to make a hit. Full directions with each instrument.

FREE Send 15c. for a three months' subscription and we will send sample Pipe free, postpaid. One dozen 51.00. Address, SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

earth of all kinds—wood, coal, petroleum, lead, etc.; deal with contractors, masons, plumbers, and persons generally in laborious occupations; seek favor from thine employer and public officials in the afternoon.

18—Saturday. Look sharp that thy tongue does not run away with thy judgment; think before speaking and utter no untruth. It is a time when many strange and regretable marriages take place; better remain single than marry in the early hours of this day; especially should the young shun marriage with the aged. If thou art in love avoid disagreements with the person who has engaged thine affections; especially if born about the 7th of January, April, July, or October of past years. Married ladies claiming birthdays near the dates indicated are cautioned that the passing weeks are somewhat adverse to their peace of mind and they are urged to have consideration for their married partners and to see that unpleasant experiences and marital ruptures at this time cannot be traced to faults of their own. Mutual forbearance and consideration will bridge over many dangerous chasms in the marital relations. Physical ailments of married partners in the lives of persons so born are in many cases the cause for unusual anxiety just in these passing weeks.

19—Sunday. Decidedly evil. Impulses to commit crimes are quickered during the thirty-six hours ending passing weeks.

19—Sunday. Decidedly evil. Impulses to commit crimes are quickened during the thirty-six hours ending at midnight tonight. Cruelties to women and much suffering to that sex are probable. The insane develop malice and cunning or become obstinate, frantic, or furious according to the degree of infirmity, and should be carefully watched lest they harm themselves or others. Fires are to be guarded against at this time and the past thirty-six hours may witness unusual losses from that element.

20-Monday. Drive thy business all this day; push mechanical, chemical and scientific pursuits; engravers, carvers, sculptors, engineers, surveyors should improve this day. Persons in the manufacturing enterprises should fully employ the passing moments; deal with military men, brass and iron workers, butchers, tanners, bakers and machinists.

21-Tuesday. Make no contract concerning real estate or with the aged during this day, in which adverse conditions seem to conspire in a general way to baffle best progress or success in any direction; routine matters should have principal attention under these influences and no beginning be made in any important undertaking.

22-Wednesday. Have no dealings concerning pa-tents or patented goods, nor expect advantage from writ-ten applications to railroads or other corporate bodies; as the noon is passed let all interested engage earnestly in the elegant occupations; pursue music and the fine arts, and urge trade in fancy wares and articles which please and gratify.

please and gratify.

23—Thursday. A most excellent day for business; select the early hours for musical or artistic professions or speculations, also for courtship or marriage; urge literary matters, especially poetry, the drama, and the elegant branches generally; commercial men are favored in an eminent degree; press writers and public speakers are much assisted by prevailing conditions; travel and remove thy residence if desirable near this time.

remove any residence it desirable near this time.

24—Friday. Give preference to the forenoon for the most active efforts in thine affairs, being careful lest a desire to gratify thyself in some particulars may induce extravagance in thy purchases; be watchful of the pennies in the afternoon when no purchases should be made for purposes of trade; do not bargain for houses or lands, or any mining or agricultural production in the last half of the day.

of the day.

25—Saturday. It will be well if fires have been guarded against during the night preceding this day, as combustion has been promoted in the passing time; the day will be one of quickened activity and especially conducive to bad disputes; let bank officials scrutinize bills and handwriting and those who earn their livelihood by the use of the pen be very careful in all acts; make no new beginnings in any of the artistic pursuits in the early afternoon; the late hours of the day are the best, when money favors and financial advantages may be more easily obtained.

ily obtained.

26—Sunday. The forenoon does not provise well for mental exertions but inclines to petulance and irritability; the afternoon brings considerable improvement, particularly to lovers of music, the fine arts and the elegant in literature.

27-Monday. Begin the week with the dawn and work diligently; urge business of all kinds, but especially that which pertains to the elegant and artistic in life; during the forenoon applications to employers and persons in authority for preferment or advantages are likely to meet with more favorable consideration than usual.

during the forenoon applications to employers and persons in authority for preferement or advantages are likely to meet with more favorable consideration than usual.

28—Tuesday. Conflicting influences prevail on this day and more than ordinary circumspection should be exercised in all thine undertakings of much magnitude; indeed a little procrastination at this time will be likely to prove more salutary than unwise. REGULUS particularly charges all persons born about the twenty-fifth of February, 28th of May, 30th of August, or 28th of November of past years, to exercise more than ordinary prudence in business ventures and in physical matters; be careful in diet; avoid heat, inflammatory and hemorrhoidal troubles and look out for fires and accidents; they should be sure to hold complete mastery over the temper and any rashness of speech or action, lest they spoil their best interests in life by foolish precipitancy or rebellious controversies; those of the gentle sex so born will be wise not to permit serious difficulties or controversies to interfere with their best welfare in life.

29—Wednesday. A fortunate day generally for the literary pursuits and for dealings with persons engaged in clerical capacities, also teachers, students, surveyors, civil engineers, and mathematicians generally; let mercantle business of all kinds be urged to the utmost, particularly during the forenoon hours.

30—Thursday. Urge all business to the utmost during this day, giving preference, if any, to the forenoon hours for travel, removal, and the prosecution of the mechanical trades; the purchase of machinery, implements of manufacture, electrical apparatus, hardware, cutlery, glassware, metals, leather, chemicals, or drugs; the operations of surgeons and dentists meet with more than ordinary success; have money dealings in the afternoon.

31—Friday. Vigorously prosecute all business on this day, giving preference, if any, to the forenoon for the buying, selling, or improving of real estate; for horticultural designs and labors,

The Presbyterian Church was established in Scotland, by Andrew Melville, in 1592. They became established in the United States in 1689.

This is an honest contest. Every person who can rightly guess what State is represented in the above picture, can get a reward; when correctly answered it is the name of a State in the United States. You may win Cash Reward. This Contest is Free; it contains no elements of chance and does not require you to send any money with your reply; all correct patrons can get some cash without any rouble, expense or risk. The answer is on your map. Find it and win. Your guese costs nothing, so the cash you receive is clear gain. You have a right to one answer. Send it at once, naming what state you think is correct, and we positively guarrantee to pay you a Cash Reward. Correct. Address BESS REMEDY CO., Poph 1.5. M., New York.

ANYONE CAN EASILY EARN a handsomely decorated 56 piece Tea Set, also a Warch and Chain and Charm and a beautiful Parisian Diamond Ring. You can get vertisement. We do exactly as we agree and do not ask you to send us one cent. Send name and address (no money) and we will send you 12 packages of perfume to sell at 10 cents each. When sold send us the $1.20 and we will send you at once a beautiful Parisian Diamond Ring. a Watch-Chain and Charm, and our offer of a 56 piece Tea Set which is full set for family use and very dantily decorated. The ring has an imported stone that cannot be told from a genuine diamond. We ship you the premiums in a few days. we ship you the premiums promptly. Write to-day and earn your premiums in a few days.

UNION PERFUME CO., 105 Liberty St., Dept. C, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MEN; BE STRONG!

PROF. JULES LABORDE, DISCOVERER OF "CALTHOS."

NERVOUS DEBILITY and LOST MANHOOD

Full 5 Days Treatment ABSOLUTELY FREE By Sealed Mail.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

For years the cry has gone up from hundreds and thousands of men, young and old, for a remedy that would rid them of the terrible result of early follies or excesses, or of the overwork and worry that spaths physical vitality.

The medical profession of this country seemed powerless to cope with the appalling and disastrous diseases and annoying weaknesses of men resulting from violation of Nature's laws.

The von Mohl Company desires is that you give the remedy a fair and thorough trial, and they are willing to standail the expense connected with the trial to prove the faith in its merits.

POWER OF "CALTHOS" PROVED.

The first day you take the treatment you will be benefited. The second day you will feel an improvement. The third day you will note an increase of strength. The fourth day will show a gain both

PROF. LABORDE'S WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

PROF. LABORDE'S WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
It remained for the eminent French authority, Prof. Jules Laborde, to conduct scientific inquiry into the cause and cure of Lost Vitality, Sexual Weakness, Sperzaatorzhoa, Epilepsy, Impotency, Small Parts, and the world today acknowledges the supremacy of the wonderful remedy "CALTHOS."
The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, recognizing the commercial value of Prof. Laborde's discovery, secured the sole American rights for "CALTHOS." and through its agency thousands of men who suffered from sexual diseases and enfeebling nervous maladies have been restored to health and the virile powers of perfect manhood.

THE VON MOHL CO'S. REMARKABLE OFFER.

of men who suffered from sexual diseases and nefeebling nervous maladies have been restored to health and the virile powers of perfect manhood.

THE VON MOHL CO'S. REMARKABLE OFFER.

We are now anthorized, by The Von Mohl Company, to announce that every man who sends simply his name and address will be supplied absolutely free by sealed mail, with five-days full treatment of "CALTHOS." This is no C. O. D. or Deposit Scheme, and there is positively no condition attached to the offer. You need not give humiliating details regarding your trouble. You need not send one cent of money-not even a postage stamp. All the sale of your family and friends, as well actally the five-days free treatment of the five-days free treatment of money-not even a postage stamp. All the sale of your family and friends, as well plain sealed package, at once.

The Von Mohl Co., 969 B, Proparations in the United States. Cincinnati, O.

POWER OF "CALTHOS" PROVED.

The first day you take the treatment you will be benefited. The second day you will feel an improvement. The third day you will note an increase of strength. The fourth day will show a gain both mentally and physically. The fifth day you will feel like a new man. If you suffer from any form of Nervous Decline and Sexual Weakness, Spermatorrheas, Varicocele, Impotency, Small Parts, Night Sweats, Palpitation of the Heart, Norvousness, Confusion of Ideas, and Loss of Memory, you can positively be cured by "CALTHOS," but if the disease has progressed to the stage marked by the symptoms of Epilepsy, Consumption or Insanity, we cannot promise complete recovery.

PROMPT ACTION IMPORTANT.

A Complete Outfit of 44 Tools FREE. EVER SEEN: NEEDED IN EVERY HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

HEIPLATES

RELPLATES

The above illnetration, engraved by our artist direct from a photograph, shows th itivele is furnished exactly as shown in the illustration, with the exception of the ladie adies' style), and with the exception of the sprocket, which comes in a variety of pattern of the sprocket, which comes in a variety of patterns.

in a above illinstration, engraved by our artist direct from a photograph, show it circle is furnished exactly as shown in the illustration, with the exception of the laddes' style), and with the exception of the sprocket, which comes in a variety of the laddes' style), and with the exception of the sprocket, which comes in a variety of the control of the laddes' style), and with the exception of the sprocket, which comes in a variety of the control of the laddes' style), and with the exception of the sprocket from any other house or houses advertised in this or any other peoper; let each subject from any other house or houses advertised in this or any other peoper; let each subject except without deposit and with the privilege of 10 days' triat; let the different bicycles come to your nearest railroad station to be examined; examine and try them side by side, and if our bleycle is not pronounced by everyone at least $15.00 CHEAPER IN PRICE and $20.00 BETTER IN QUALITY, we will expect you to refuse it, and our bicycle will be returned to us at our expense. For a strictly high grade, up-to-date, new 1901 model bleycle, with all the new features, all the improvements for this season, is a price heretofore unknown, and you should not fail to get your order in at once. DON'T DELAY four ORDER. Don't wait until later in the season to get your order in at once. DON'T DELAY four ORDER. Don't wait until later in the season to get your order in at once and the extra one at profit enough to get your sfree. You can make $500.00 this season selling Edgemere Bleycles.

HOW WE CAN MAKE THE WONDERFUL LOW PRICE.

$11.75 hardly covers the bare cost of material and labor, with the smallest possible profit added. It is less than dealers pay for such bicycles, even in carload tots; it is less than it costs nine-tenths of the manufacturers to build a strictly high grade bicycle. How then can we make the price! We have a contract with the largest maker of high grade bicycle hat it turned to take every bicycle that it turned to th

SPECIFICATIONS AND DETAILED DESCRIPTION.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DETAILED DESCRIPTION.

FRAME—The Edgemere frame is made from genuine 1½-inch best Shelby seamless steel tubing, either 22, 2½ or 36-inch frame, as desired; well fitted at every joint, made extra strong and handsomely finished. The Edgemere frame has all the strength of the highest priced bicycles made. The gents nodel is the latest 1901 diamond frame, as shown in the above illustration. The Edgemere is made with the handsomest 1901 drop curved frame. HANGER—The Edgemere is made with the latest two-piece hanger, ball-bearing throughout, extra well finished. The cranks are highly polished and heavily mickeled. HANDLE BARS—The Edgemere is furnished with a strictly high grade handle bar, the off ½-inch seamless tubing, either down or up-turn, as desired, fitted with a troughout the seamless tubing, either down or up-turn, as desired, fitted with the latest philosome is furnished with a strictly high grade handle bar, the off ½-inch seamless tubing, either down or up-turn, as desired, fitted with the latest philosome is strong, well finished spokes, 38 spokes to the front wheel, 36 to the rear. CHAIN—the Edgemere is fitted with a best non-warpable Benton rims, extra strong, well finished spokes, 38 spokes to the front wheel, 36 to the rear. CHAIN—the Edgemere is fitted with a best non-warpable Benton rims, extra strong, well finished spokes, 38 spokes to the front wheel, 36 to the rear. CHAIN—the Edgemere is fitted with the latest political full finished. SADDLE—The Edgemere is fitted with the latest political full finished. SADDLE—The Edgemere is fitted with a saddle, full grain stock leather saddle, an especially come of the nost durable and most comfortable bicycle saddles made. GEAR—The Edgemere is furnished in 68 to 84-inch gear, as desired. Unusual demand may prevent sending exact gear ordered. We will always send the nearest possible. FINISH—The Edgemere is given an extra fine finish throughout. All usual parts are heavily nickel plated, highly polished. The bicycles come enameled in black

YOU NEED NOT SEND ONE WITH YOUR ORDER, but if you use for a new 1991 model, high grade, go latest style bicycle, if you would like to me $5.00 to $15.00 net profit with almost no trouble of a bicycle, simply write to us. mention special 1911, write your name plainly and in full, name of office and nearest railroad station, say whether you wo gents, hicycle, color and gear wanted, and we will

Our Special Offer Price

LOOK OUT FOR CATCHY BICYCLE
MENTS! Don't be deceived by ad

The EDGEMERE BICYCLE has the very best reputation. We self the end of the control good points of all other high grade wheels, excelled by none; the very sense of bleyele con- WEASK 50 CENTS EXTRA, for the ladies' model for true tion. The dropeurved frame costs more, wheel guard add to the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of the cost of the bleyele, and the 50 cents extra we ask represents the exact property of the cost of th extra additional difference in cost to us.

ALMOST EVERYONE KNOWS US knows that we are a customers in all parts of the country. For the benefit of those who do, us, who have never had any dealings with us, and do not know us by reput will say for their benefit that we are authorized and incorporated under of the State of Illinois, with a capital and surplus of over one million do!

bleyele customers in every state and territory.

UNDERSTAND, YOU NEED SEND NO MONEY, simply men have represent accept it and charges, you t

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago.

DCEMERE SEWING MACHINE

DOGEMERE SEWING MACHINE

To your nearest railroadstation for you to see and examine. You can call in any expert to examine it, compare it with sewing machines that others sell at $40.00 to $60.00, and if everyone pronounces it in every way the equal of such machines, by far the low-price ever attempted, for such a high grade, high arm, drop head cabinet machine, the most wonderful bergain you ever $11.95 pounds, and the freight charges. The machine weighs, crated for shipment, about 120 and of the pay the receipt charge of the pay the receipt charges of price, you will not be under slightest obligation to keep it, but you can return it to us at our expense of freight charges both ways.

As a guarantee that the

THREE MONTHS FREE TRAL

As a guarantee that the kigemere Sewing Material is the equal of any other machine sold in your market at more than three time will give the best sold the privilege of using this machine in your own home for three months, and proceed that the during the three months you become dissatisfied or only cause whatever, if you find any reason to be dissatisfied with the world of at any time during the three months you become dissatisfied for any cause whatever, if you find any reason to be dissatisfied with the world of the three months and if at any time thinges both ways and We WILL IMMEDIATELY RETURN YOUR MONEY.

SPECIAL FEATURES OF OUR $11.95 EDGEMERE: 5-Drawer Prophead Oak captured that when not in use the head may be dropped out of sight, where it is protected from dust and dirt and affords you a handsome desk, stand or table. COLORED MARQUETRY DECORATION. From the illustrations, which are engraved by our artist from photographs, we have endeavored to show the design of the handsome colored manquetry decoration on the Edgemere cabinet. The Edgemere cabinet is of solid antique oak, highly finished and finely decorated with handsome colored manquetry decorations on the panels, drawers, top and corners with a handsome colored manquetry taper measure inlaid on the front of table. HIGH ARM. Our $11.95 Edgemere has one of the highest arms of any sewing machine made, giving ample room for the handling of large and bulky material. FINISH. Our $11.95 Edgemere is given an extra fine finish throughout. Has a heavy nickel plated face plate, including balance wheel, VERY FINEST FULL FINISHED ENAMELING, with fancy colored decorations and ornamentations.

ACCESSORIES FURNISHED.

At $11.95 we furnish the Edgemere complete with the following accessories: 1 package of needles, 1 quilter, 2 screwdrivers, 6 bobbins, 1 oil can filled with oil, and one complete instruction book.

FOR 75 CENTS EXTRA

(or $12.70) we furnish the machine complete with set of the highest grade foot attachments, packed in a handsome velvet lined metal box, as follows: I foot hemmer, I ruffler, I shirring plate, I tucker, I under braider, I binder, I short foot and set of hemmers of different widths up to % of an inch. In ordering be sure to state whether you wish the machine without these attachments at $11.95 or complete with attachments at $13.79.

With every Edgemere Sewing Machine at $11.95 we issue a written binding 20 years' guarantee, by the terms and conditions of which if any piece or part gives out within twenty years, by reason of any defect in material or workmanship. WE WILL REPLACE OR REPAIR THE SAME FREE OF CHARGE. DO NOT GOMPARE our special $11.95 with any of the cheap, shoddy sewing machines that are being widely advertised by houses, some of questionable reputation, at prices ranging from almost nothing up to $30.00. If you want to appreciate the value we are riving, the difference between our $11.95 Edgemere and machines advertised by others at the same and higher prices, let us send you the Edgemere to your nearest railroad station, let any other house sendyou their machine at the same time, to compare them side by side, and if you do not find the Edgemere cheaper in price and far better in quality and finish, you can return the machine to us at our expense.

by side, and if you do not find the Edgemere cheaper in price and far better in quality and finish, you can return the machine to us at our expense.

OUR NEW 1901 MODEL EDGEMERE has every modern improvement, our expense. The provided in t

No. 191L2 ORDER BY NUMBER.

drops into the cabinet out of sight, extended leaf falls over, you have a handsome piece of furniture for use as a table or

PLEASE UNDERSTAND OUR OFFER. All that is necessary for the do is to write to my mention Special Offer No. 1911.2, give us the name of your postoffice and new frailroad station, being sure to write your name plainly and in full. We will the machine by freight, C. O. D., subject to examination, but we, of course, LYM YOU TO ORDER IN GOOD FAITH. We expect that if you find the machine state of the state of the base, handsome colored transfer ornamentation, beautiful nickel trimmings throughout.

SPECIAL NOTICE to our thousands of customers in every state. As this advertage polished, and polished, and the set its sense in thousands of cases. Will fall into the hands of our thousands the things of the person that you the the set of the fall into the hands of our thousands of cases. Will make the set into the hands of our thousands of cases. Will make the set into the hands of our thousands of cases. Will make the set into the hands of our thousands of cases will make the set into the hands of our thousands of cases. Will make the set into the hands of our thousands of cases will not the hands of our thousands of cases will not the hands of our thousands of cases will not the hands of our thousands of cases will not the hands of our thousands of 191L2 ORDER BY NUMBER.

NUMBER at NUMBER.
This illustration, which has been engr ed by the state of the new photograph, will give yon some idea of the new 1901 style, extra high arm, handsome Edgemere Stewing Hahead dropped from sight and extended 1e a 1 folded and elosed, forming a handsome and convenient center table, stand or desk. The cabinet is beautifully decorated, finished and polished, and while these illustrations give you some idea of its appearance, you find the state of t

AUGUSTA, MAINE.
Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.
Incorporated.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

prices for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have compiled with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be necessary particulars being here clearly sets for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Confort" and who send with every manuscript at least four yearly subscribers (together with 25 cents to pay for each subscribers osen) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same encelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSIBELL STORY CLUB care of COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fection—of adventure, love, war, peace, of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

1. No MANUSCHET WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CRUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE WITAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SERD.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as wards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the fregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

The Writers who hear nothing o

PRIZE WINNERS FOR MAY.

H. M. Strong, Second Prize. Erskine M. Hamilton, Third Prize.

James Reddington, First Prize.

Crandon Hawes, Fourth Prize. Jonathan Gray, Fifth Prize.

The Strangest Rescue On Record. WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY JAMES REDDINGTON.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

HEN the man with a strong foreign accent expressed his desire to open an account with us, giving his name as the Marquis di Paolo, I confess to some misgiving. He seemed to take a long time to transact a little business, and his restless eyes kept wandering about the bank as a man in a strange place trying to get his bearings. But when John, the watchman, came into the bank at the closing hour and said that the Italian was haunting the exterior of the premises still, I grew a little concerned. There were about sixty thousand dollars in cash in the vault, besides securities to the value of half a million. Although Douglaston was a mere suburb of the great metropolis, there were rich residenters as well as two or three large factory corporations keeping large accounts with us, and probably no bank within a hundred miles of New York did a better business considering the size of the community. It often occurred to me that when bankbreakers cast their eyes about for the likeliest suburban savings institution to crack, they might think us quite worthy of consideration.

"Where does that Marquis live?" I asked the watchman, concealing the concern I might feel or undue interest in the stranger.

and fronting State street," replied the trusty. that lay within my reach. My head continued and cook. They took the house for the summer, I'm told. They have been there more than a month now. They seem to be supplied well with money and live very quietly. I just noticed the chap whom they call 'the Marquis' pacing from the mansion through the narrow garden toward the bank as if he were measuring the distance. Wouldn't have thought much of it if he hadn't looked a little flurried when he raised his eyes and saw we were watching him. Don't know that there is any cause to be alarmed, but all the same I will bring my brother up with me to-night and let him promenade the rear while I keep watch on the street side. What do you say, sir?"

"Very well, John. Go and come back early.

I shall close up now."

When the watchman was gone I locked the front door after him and went back to my desk for a little quiet cogitation. I had a very peculiar feeling -a premonition of something disagreeable. However, since I had been cashier of the Nassau National Bank this feeling had come with every attack of indigestion, so I made light of it. Gazing about the room my death, but I was roused by a rapping, rapping eyes fell upon a big black dictionary on the just below me. For a long time this continued, shelf. An idea struck me. I thought it would then something fell and a draught of air seemed be a very easy thing to cut out a big square space in the center of the volume and deposit I felt myself gasping for breath, actually within at least twenty or thirty thousand dollars, laying it on the shelf over the time-lock safe in the vault. No bank-breaker would ever think of looking into a dictionary for treasure. I took the book down and began the task of cutting out the greater part of the interior so deftly that no evidence of its hollowness was visible from the outside. This done, quite triumphantly I went back through the grating gates to the vault before the door of which my big Danish mastiff slept soundly. I do not know why I was so considerate of the beast, but in swinging the big door I opened it only wide enough to slip into the vault so as not to disturb the mastiff's slumbers. Once in the little brick-and-iron bound chamber, I fell to packing the interior of the big dictionary with the largest bills from the inner chest of the steel time-lock safe, and with about forty thousand dollars thus disposed of, I tossed the volume carelessly upon the shelf above, littering it with documents and papers of little value. I was smiling at my little strategem when on turning about, I heard my big mastiff stir and then proceed to perform a feat that to this day is unaccountable. The Dane had a habit of jumping up on the street door and looking appealingly into the window till some one let him in. Why he should have jumped up on the vault door at that moment I cannot imagine. At any rate, I heard his paws against the iron, and then the door swung shut, the bolts sliding with an ominous clank.

It was some few minutes before 1 realized that I was actually a prisoner. I tried to move the bolts from the inside, but I simply could not budge them. My dog was whining and beating his huge paws against the door as if he too realized my predicament, but soon stopped, and as I suppose resumed his slumbers. The vault was air-tight and almost sound-proof as weli, illuminated by a single electric globe hanging from the ceiling. There was not a soul in the building and the streets of Douglaston at that hour of the day were usually quite deserted. I knew that even if I had some heavy into ament with which I could sound the clarm against the door, there would be few to hear and none to realize my predicament. Then to make the case still more alarming, I calculated that the air in the vault would last me about two hours and no more. In the center of the vault I stood, great drops of sweat rolling down my cheeks. Here I was sepulchered with a large fortune, facing death, with no man in the world who had his freedom that was not richer.

Seeing the necessity of instant action, I looked about for some instrument with which I could make myself heard, but finding nothing I took off my shoe and began pounding on the vault door, shrieking my loudest. I don't think 1 ever experienced such maddening silence. I called and called till my strained throat began to swell, then I moved back to the far end of the vault and sat down on an iron chest to think. I do not know how long I sat there, but soon I became conscious of growing weakness and a giddiness of the head. Queer sounds rang in my ears and I saw visions of supernatural beauty. I seemed to be under the influence of some powerful drug. Sliding to the floor of the vault, the cool stone seemed to revive me for the instant and I breathed with less difficulty. But those queer sounds and phantastic visions came again, and I knew that I was being slowly asphyxiated in the carbon of my own lungs and that the supply of lifegiving oxygen in the vault was growing less with every breath.

I remember a man who once travelled with a show as a hypnotist's "horse", saying that he could go into a fake trance and remain as one dead, breathing but once a minute for a day. That if a man lay perfectly quiet he might reduce food and respiration and even the heart action to the minimum. I resolved to make the experiment. Stretching out on my back as one dead, I saved my breath as if every atom "In that old mansion at the rear of the bank of it was more precious than the bank notes "There are five of them all told, housekeeper to bind frightfully at the temples, however, and the pageant of my whole life swept before me in lurid hues and phantasmal shapes as one drowning. Then would come moments of complete unconsciousness, out of which state I would be suddenly roused by the most dreadful visions and appalling sounds. I seemed to see my children torn limb from limb in the hands of giants and the wife of my heart subjected to atrocious tortures. These maddening deliriums drove me frantic, yet I seemed perfectly powerless to stay them. The flesh and the spirit seemed to separate, and I in the spirit seemed to be watching myself in the flesh enduring the most hellish agony, yet unable to escape it. I went through the bodily anguish of ten thousand deaths, saw myself laid away in the grave, heard the dirt beat down upon my narrow house and felt the worms gnawing at my vitals till I lay a black skeleton, which in turn crumbled away into dust, and each period seemed to take years. After that came oblivion.

> I have no idea how long I lay there in that state of unconsciousness bordering on actual to envelop me with its life-restoring bounty. breathing once more, and the heart took up its heavy beatings. Opening my mouth wide, I drew in the precious volume, and slowly my sense of sight was restored and thoughts clear and consecutive came back to me. The rapping continued, but louder now, and again and again that sound as of brick and mortar falling. Then to my utter astonishment, right through the floor of the vault not two feet before my staring eyes, I saw the end of a burglar's jimmy thrust up again and again as the hole widened to its force. At last I realized what had happened. Burglars were at work below. In their daring strategem for plunder the bank reakers had unconsciously saved my life.

My first impulse was one of such intense gratitude that could I have reached down the big black dictionary, I think I should have gratefully rained down thousand-dollar bills through the rift and bidden the marauders away to make merry. But with gathering strength the enormity of the offense took more distinct proportions. I fell to meditating upon a capture. Suddenly I heard a low whisper. "Per Dio!" said a voice in very good Italian, "there is a light still in the vault above." To which a comrade replied, "Tanto miglio!" ("So much the better.") With this much vouchsafed me it was not difficult to guess the character of my unexpected guests.

It is remarkable how in a trifling but anxious space of time the pros and cons of a strategem will combat each other to a finish, leaving one perfectly numb. Finding that I had regained strength enough to reach around to my hip pocket, I drew the revolver which I usually pocketed every night for my lonely walk to my home on the very outskirts of the village. I now feit a cherished sense of relief in its possession; and clasping it firmly I steadied it against the floor with the muzzle within six inches of the breach through which I had received my lease of life, but through which was soon to force the hand of death. Meanwhile the tools were working away diligently and I marveled that the ruffians were not overheard by the watchmen promenading without. It was a simple game of waiting. I had resolved at first to blow the top off the first human head that popped above the level of the floor. But after a time the shameless advantage which I would thus take over an adversary caused me to waver and await the natural turn of events. I was calm now, the ringing in my ears had ceased, the binding grip on my temples had abated. I felt that within a half hour I would be quite equal to any controversy 1 might be forced into, however unwillingly.

Brick by brick the fragments gave way and rolled down to the floor of the cellar below. The scoundrels were working hard and saying little. The cold steel jimmy thrust up through the cleft every moment or two, sent a queer thrill into my heart. Then at last I caught a glimpse of a hand-not that of a laborer, indeed, but long and thin, without callous, and bleeding slightly from many scratches. It shot up, clutched the cement floor, then slipped and disappeared. My heart was in my throat, for I knew that there was a crisis near. Another wrench of the steel and down fell a vast shower of debris, leaving a hole large enough to admit a human body. 1 clutched my weapon, covered the rent and waited.

There seemed to be some sort of a consultation going on in the cellar below-a question as to who should be first to advance. But soon I heard a stir below me, then up shot that same lank hand, the left grasping the opposite edge of the breach. Slowly then as if boosted up from below there came a round black hatless head covered with dust and a pair of shoulders strained through the breach, back to me. The wriggling, struggling torso was half way through the rift before I made a stir. Then with revolver poised steadily on a level with the intruder's head, I said with as much affability as I could command, "Buona sera, Signore!-

The dark shape twisted violently, and a face as colorless as chalk swept around and faced me, eyes bulging and mouth agape with sudden horror, his long thin nose barely brushing the muzzle of my weapon. The scoundrel was simply struck speechless.

"Good evening, Marquis," I repeated. "Did you come to get your deposit? You might have trusted us till morning. No-not a stir. or I shall blow that Rabelaisian face of yours clean through the back of your neck. Stay just where you are and let us talk things over."

Below there was a series of clamorous halfsmothered cries. "What's the matter? Why don't you go on? What has happened to you? Hark-hark!"

"Of course, Marquis," I continued, "I could blow you into kingdom come right here in cold blood, even as you would delight to finish me and would have done so if you had had the chance. But to tell you the truth, without knowing it you have saved my life. Now I am not a mean man, and I am inclined to deal very leniently with you. You saved my life I say and I am going to spare yours, but on condition that you and your ruffian confederates leave town this very night and never set foot in it again. Yes, I will even do more. I will supply you with railroad fare and enough money for provisions for a good long journey beside. But mark you, go you must, Mage no mistake about that. After this embarran ing episode your presence is highly unwelcome in Douglaston and I may say dangerous degree.'

Still the Marquis was dumb with uncertain; and terror. Still hoarse whispers collected from below and hands tugged at the limp lorn trapped midway between death and freedom

"Now, Marquis," I resumed, "while I core you with my revolver with one hand, I am go ing to write a confession for you to sign which will make things perfectly clear to my superion and to the public over whose funds I stand guard. You must sign that document." He I drew forth paper and pencil, writing with one eye on the pad and another along the barrel of my weapon. "I, Marquis di Paolo, hereon certify that with several confederates I con spired to rob the Nassau National Bank Douglaston, hiring a house in the vicinity for the purpose, and from the cellar of the same dug a tunnel to the cellar of the bank building breaking through into the vault where i was confronted-

I paused. The Marquis, who had evidently been standing upon his confederates shoulden below, suddenly threw up his hands and with a cry went down through the rift like a drowning man. Stunned and mortified that my captive had so easily eluded me, I leaned over the hole and looked down. The place was de-

LYON & HEALY'S BRASS BAND

the great Jules Levy as the best in the world. Big Catalog, 40 ills strations, FREE. Positively blowest prices on Band Instruments Uniforms and Supplies of alkinds Also contains Music and Instructions for New Bands. Leva & Buy, Manufacturers, 23 Adams st., chiegs. (Lyon & Heal) are the largest as sic house in the world—Editor.

MARENTS $200 TO $500 make from 2200 3000 a month handling the COMING Ment. Brighter than electricity, cheaper that kensene. Thousands of testimonials from people using them over a year. Latestimprovements. Endorsed by Ins. Co's, Larrest factory in U. S. 41 styles. Lowest max. Retail $4 up. Sample lamp half pries. want one agent, merchant or individual every town. Illustrated catalogue free. STANDARD GAS LAMP CO. 118-120 Michigan St., Chicago.

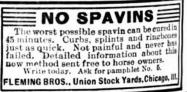

MOUTH-HARP PLAYERS: Me Money selling The Ser Harp-o-chord. Harp and Zither combined. 17 inches long. 10 times louder that mouth-harp alone. Easy to learn. Our fine Mouth-harp sent for 6 names harp players and 14c. postage. Callog Free. Harp-O-Chord Co., 21 M St., Columbus, 0.

I WAS

I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally cured myself by Galvanic Bleft city. If you are deaf, or grown deaf, or have head-noises, on wasto time and money as 1 dwarf with the me and I will gladly as you full information free. Adams with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, over Postoffice, W. J. CHORES, but the stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp with stamp with stamp. W. J. TRIDALL CHORES, but the stamp with with stamp with stamp with stamp with stamp with stamp with stamp

LET US START YOU! $100 HON Gold, Silver, Niekel and Metal I At home or traveling, taking orders, selling Prof. Gray's MACHINES Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bischen

Gold Stocks Free

We refer to the editor of this paper. Address ROCKY MOUNTAIN MINER, (Inc) Denver, Colcerted, a lantern faintly illumining the grim depths. A frenzy of rage seized me. Without a thought of the danger of encountering a whole quartette of outlaws, down through the breach Is sipped, failing headlong over the heap Then gathering myself up bruised of debris. and bleed ing, through the great hole which had been mad in the side of the vault leading into the cellar I plunged, revolver in hand, resolved to fire at the first sight of human being. Through the darkness toward the rear of the building I crept, expecting to hear at any moment the crack of a pistol and feel the sting of a bulle . Still, I plunged on, crouching low to the damp floor, till finally reaching the rear wall, I to und myself at the mouth of a rude tunnel w hither on hands and knees through the dark roess four men were scrambling like wolves sproked from their lair.

Turning an ear in the direction I plainly heard the panting and struggling of the fleeing marauders, and the prospect of my utter helplessness to stay them enraged me. Raising my weapon I fired after them into the darkness. Through the silence afar I heard an answering oath. "Iddio!" a hoarse whisper echoed back. "I'm hit, I'm hit! Stop-wait-help, comrades!" The thought that I had winged my man gave me a frenzy of satisfaction. Again I raised my weapon in the direction of the agonizing voice and fired.

What happened then seemed absolutely a supernatural and must be accounted for by one of those caprices of nature which defy science and sanity itself. What my bullet struck I shall never know. But instantly there was a blinding flash of light seen far down the black depths of the tunnel-a fierce glare that imprinted on my memory forever the picture of white faces and moving forms against a background of gray. The earth rocked and a noise like a salvo of ten-ton guns burst through the midnight silence, while something struck me with the force of an avalanche. I remember plunging with great violence face down in the debris, then came merciful oblivion. When I awoke I was lying on the couch of the cashier's office in the bank above, my wife and children hovering about me and two physicians picking stone and mortar out of various parts of my - anat -omv.

Time tragedy of Douglaston was a nine-days nati wonal wonder, but the story I told up to the lima tof my recollection was confirmed the next day by digging along the tunnel from end to end, and the finding of four bodies frightfully min tilated in various contortions in the narrow de poths. One piece of metal baffled all curiosity um til a mining engineer recognized it as part of a dynamite cartridge. It proved that the garag had meant to blow their way into that sixty thousand dollars at all venture. Astrommers say that once in many millions of years two planets will collide in space, and great is the explosion thereof. This is the only blirad logic by which I can account for my bullet reaching that dynamite cartridge and bringing four outlaws to instant and terrible judgment. Other speculations are quite in

The Bones of Spire Steeple.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HOWARD MARCUS STRONG.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

T was high tide and the Merry May lay with her bowsprit overlapping Fish Wharf. On board the mate was slowly coiling yard after yard of brown, hook-strung line into a slimy green tub.

"No," he said in answer to my request; "but I don't know anything about it. Ask the old man."

Down in the cabin I discovered the captain seated before a soapy washstand and staring hard at two blank sheets of paper, while he endeavored to crystallize his thoughts by chewing the end of a red penholder. He seemed relieved at the interruption.

"Certainly," he replied, after listening to my request to be allowed to accc any him to the fishing banks. "We drop out about midnight. Now you can do me a favor. I can't think and write at the same time; suppose you push the pen for me."

On leaving the Merry May I posted the following remarkable letter:

"De. Ruggles.—Since it was hauled up I have had no luck. I figure that it has Jonahed me. I must put it under again, and will pay you back the money.—C. GROTER."

Returning to the schooner at midnight, I found the crew all on board and the captain closeted with Dr. Ruggles. Just as we were short to cut loose the doctor went ashore. hughing loudly.

BIG BABIES.

HEALTHY CHILDREN MAKE HAPPY MOTHERS.

No baby ever came into the world, however weak and frail, but held as its birthright the precious dower of a mother's priceless love. But love can do so little for the weakling child except pity it and sorrow for its helplessness, that the mother who had looked forward to the care of her child with happy anticipation finds it a task that tests her devotion, to care for a puny, fretful, wailing baby.

What a difference when the baby is big, healthy and happy! What a joy to watch the growth of the sturdy little one, whose gurgling laughter finds an echo in the voice of every member of the family.

The question is, are the conditions which deunalterable? Is it possible that a mother who | pense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent has borne several children and lost them all stamps for the book in cloth binding, or only because of inherent weakness, can be so 21 cents for it in paper-covers. Address Dr. R. strengthened that her children shall be healthy V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. and hardy?

READ THE ANSWER

to that question, written by a woman who is certainly competent to speak as to the remarkable strength-giving of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Mrs. Alex Kjer, of Gordonville, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., writes: "When I look at my little boy I feel it my duty to write to you. Perhaps some one will see my testimony and be led to use your 'Favorite Prescription' and be blessed in the same way. This is my fifth child and the only one who lived; the others having died from lack of nourishment-so the doctor said. I was not sickly in any way and this time I just thought I would try your 'Prescription'. I took nine bottles, and to my surprise it carried me through and gave us as fine a little boy as ever was. Weighed ten and onehalf pounds. He is now five months old, has never been sick a day, and is so strong that everybody who sees him wonders at him. He is so playful and holds himself up so well. So many have asked me, 'Do you think those are the testimonials of the people, or has Dr. Pierce just made them up and printed them? that I should like you to print this.

"I do hope that if any women have the same trouble that I have had they will try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. We recommended it to one of our neighbors and she tried it and the result is a big, healthy boy. Her last two hahies hefore th is one were horn dead she had suffered untold misery. She feels very grateful for the 'Favorite Prescription.'"

Such testimony as that of Mrs. Kjer must carry conviction to the mind of every woman who reads it, and let this be remembered: there are thousands of such testimonials to the fact that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. There is indeed scarcely a form of disease peculiar to women and curable by medicine which has not yielded to the use of "Favorite Prescription."

WEAK AND NERVOUS.

"I was very weak and nervous when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' about a year ago," writes Mrs. M. E. Everetts, of 89 Oxford St., Woodstock, Ont. I had been suffering for seven long months, and had taken medicine from a physician all the time but it seemed to make me feel much worse. My stomach was bad (so my doctor told me), and my nerves were in such a state that I would start at the least noise. I felt irritable all the time; was not able to do any of my own housework; had to keep help all the time. How I "I'll have to give you something for your suffered God and myself alone know. I was ing your medicines, but the first bottle seemed to help me, I took five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription', two of 'Golden Medical Discovery'. also two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I can highly recommend 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' to all who suffer as I did. My sickness dated from the birth of my last child, who died the same day she was born. My own life hung on a thread for weeks. If I had only taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I am sure my poor baby would have been alive to-day. I suffered all the time before she was born. I never had better health than I now enjoy and it is all owing to Dr. Pierce's medicines."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a safe and sure medicine for women. It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor any other narcotic. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammatermined the strength or weakness of the child tion and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

It is the best preparative for maternity-tranquilizing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep. It cures the nausea experienced by many women who anticipate maternity. It increases the physical vigor and vitality, so that the ordeal is approached without anxiety, and the baby's advent is made practically

WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Dr. Pierce invites women who suffer from long standing ailments to consult him by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is no motive for substituting except to enable the dealer to make out of his customer the little more profit paid by less meritorious medicines.

ABSOLUTELY PRICELESS.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is priceless in two meanings: It is priceless as being above price, and priceless as being without price. It is the best popular work on medicine at any price and it costs nothing, being sent entirely free on receipt of stamps to pay ex-liver, Captain," he shouted back from the wharf.

As we worked down the harbor and out past the island light, the captain lounged over to where I was leaning against the rail.

"You're on a hoodooed boat," he remarked. "None of us will get any fish this trip. I've bartered away my luck."

"What is the trouble?" I inquired sympa thetically.

"If you'll accommodate me with a little of the weed." he replied, "I'll give you the straight of the whole business."

At last his pipe glowed red through the mist and the unburdenment began.

"Spire Steeple," he said with lowered voice, was John Bain; born at Halifax. I had him aboard the Merry May when he was twenty years old and eight feet long. He was a good hand, but he took up too much room. When his knees were hoisted up under his chin, he filled a whole bunk. Being short on room I had to let him go.

"I only saw him a few times after he left me. Once he said that there was a man after him day and night, wanting him for a freak in some museum. I could see that it worried him for he was always mightily ashamed of his

"The next thing I heard of the lad he was traveling around the country with some big modest he was. But the truth came out at last; the show people had kidnapped the poor fellow, keeping him a prisoner while they exhibited him around the country.

"One day he turned up at the dock where we were unloading fish. He was thin as a skeleton and looked as if his cruise was almost up. He had escaped from his captors and walked all the way back to the city. Although he had brought in thousands of dollars to the show. they had never given him a cent and had starved him into the bargain.

"Well, his troubles weren't over vet. Some doctor happened to spy him on the street and wanted to make a dicker right there for his bones. If Steeple would will him his remains. he promised to keep him in comfort as long as he lived (which the doctor probably knew wouldn't be long.)

"A month ago Steeple came to see me for the last time. 'Captain,' he said, 'I've brought you seventeen dollars-all I have. When I'm dead I want you to roll me up in an old sail, put a stone to my feet and then heave me overboard three miles out. No one will be able to disturb me there.'

"I didn't care for the business; but he plead herring if they hang me for it."

greatly discouraged when I commenced tak- with me with tears in his eyes and I rinally swore to do it. A week later I had to keep my promise. In some way the doctor had heard of the matter and he insisted on going along.

"'It's no use, sir,' I told him. 'You can't get Steeple. I never broke my word to a living man, and I'm not going to begin with a dead

"'You're right,' said he, looking very much disappointed. 'But I'll accompany you, any-

"Early in the morning we sailed out to the three-mile limit with Spire Steeple sewed up in a piece of canvas. Just before we reached the proper place the doctor came up and stuck a roll of bills in my hand. It looked terribly big but I told him that I couldn't break my word. At that he cleared his throat and winked.

"'I don't suppose you can have any objection to my fastening a line to the body,' he said.

"That roll of bills was getting larger every minute. 'Do as you please,' I said at last, and cursed myself for a scoundrel.

"We slid the body off a grating and the line spun out.

"'That's deep enough to drown conscience," the doctor said at last. 'Pull in now, boys.'

"It was a bad business for me. Since the time that body came up over the rail, all wet and dripping, I haven't taken enough fish to pay expenses."

"And where is it now?" I asked; for the captain had broken off his narrative abruptly and started aft.

"The poor devil's bones are jangling on wires up at the museum now," he replied, and disappeared below. "For heaven's sake come down here!" he yelled the next minute.

"Well?" I inquired, cautiously descending the ladder.

"Sh-h-h!" he cautioned.

A moan followed, apparently rising from the planks beneath our feet. Then a strange, muffled voice announced: "I'm-I'm the-I'm the immortal o'-I'm the immortal o' Spir-r-re Stee-ee-ple." "Hear it?" gasped the captain, and before I could answer it came again. "Help!" moaned the terrified skipper. "It's his voice. I can recognize it." "It's some one down in the hold," I asserted.

'Cail the crew in here and see who is missing." With surprising alacrity they all shuffled into the cabin, each face wearing a look of unnatural solemnity.

"I'm-I'm the immortal," wheezed the mysterious voice.

"It's Judas money," cried the captain, fumbing at his pocket. "I'll throw it overboard." "N-n-o-o," moaned the voice; "give it to the poor."

"Who's the poor?" whined the captain, half crying.

"Crew-crew," came the ready answer.

Without waiting for a further monition, the captain dealt out the bills to a dozen willing

"This is a put up job," I protested vainly. 'Some one is stowed away below."

The men eyed me evilly and hastened to quit the room before the captain could recall his penitential act. In the course of a five minute talk I succeeded in convincing the terrified man that he was the victim of a practical joke.

"I'll look into this business," he said, picking up his courage and a lighted lantern; but scarcely had he reached the deck when, from out across the water, there arose a terrific bellowing.

Through the gray of the early morning we could make out a monstrous shape, half animal. half serpent. As it bore down upon us, the air became charged with a rank, musk-like odor, which was almost unbearable.

"Put her about, mate," cried the captain. 'God help us, we may get away from it yet."

"Don't be a fool and make us lose the day's fishing," pleaded the mate, who was also part owner of the schooner. "It's only a sea-turtle, and the voice was a hoax. You can have your money back."

"I tell you to put her about," shrieked the captain, as the bellowing increased and the rater was lashed into foam. "I want to or shore before all hell breaks loose."

The mate went so far as to drag out the "immortal o' Spire Steeple" from the forward hatch; but the skipper even refused to believe when thus confronted with evidence in the shape of his own nephew. Back went the Merry May to Fish Wharf, and on shore went the captain without a word to any one.

"He'll bear watching," said the mate. "Will you join me?"

We had proceeded perhaps a dozen blocks when a man suddenly dashed by us, holding in his arms a great stack of human bones. Far in the rear two portly policemen and a few museum attendants were shouting themselves hoarse.

"The old man will be out there and before they reach the wharf," said the mate, as we turned to join the pursuers. "But they'll ' v for him."

It was just growing dusk when the little schooner once more approached her moorings and the officers sprang aboard. From his post at the wheel the captain spied me among the curious crowd on the wharf.

"I'll bet it's deep enough to drown conscience this time," he shouted; "and I don't give a

A Visible Thought.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY ERSKINE M. HAMILTON.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

AM a chemist by occupation, and the very nature of my work has brought about some strange experiences and developed certain theories peculiarly my own. I was always fond of the occult and loved to delve in matters pertaining to the so-called spiritual world. In truth, my experiments along this line, pursued in a scientific way, produced at one time such a startling result that I feel it my duty to give the facts to the public, that science may be benefited thereby.

The start of the matter was simple enough. One morning my wife came to my laboratory where I was working at a new explosive which I thought would revolutionize modern warfare.

"John," she said, pushing her head through the doorway, and giving a dissatisfied sniff, "it seems to me you keep the most horrid smelling things in here."

"Very well, my dear. If you will just close the door and go back to your sitting-room you won't have to smell them," I answered. I was very busy and I did not wish to be disturbed, even by so good a woman as my wife.

"But, John, Mrs. Thornton was over here just now, and there is to be a spiritual seance at her house this evening. She says Miss Meadows, the celebrated medium, is to be there Meadows, the celebrated medium, is to be there and will give some of her wonderful manifestations. You and I are invited. Will you go?" "Certainly I will," was my prompt reply. Indeed, I was eager to go. It would give me opportunity to test a theory I long had in mind and it may be well to explain somewhat of my views. I believe there is no existence but what is material; that the so-called future, or spiritual world, is just as material as the one we live in. I judge everything to be a substance, and capable of chemical analysis. Those good people, the Christian Scientists, have simply reversed the truth when they say there is nothpeople, the Christian Scientists, have simply reversed the truth when they say there is nothing but the spiritual; that what we think is material is just our imagination. And now to my theory. What is that peculiar something that passes through the brain, which we call "thought?" Is it an identity apart from us? I believe it is. Noted scientists tell us that thought actually leaves a visible impression on the brain. Therefore, my belief is if a visible impression is thus made, it must certainly require a material something to make the impression. That seems to me common sense. Thought, therefore, is a material substance and, perhaps, could be made visible. The seance would give me an opportunity to experiment.

And so my wife and I went to Mrs. Thorn ton's. A small company were present, includ-ing Miss Meadows, the medium. The usual rappings and table-tippings were given and then it was announced that visible manifestathen it was announced that visible manifesta-tions would take place, and a number of "late lamenteds" would appear. The lights were turned quite low and the audience sat expect-antly. At the farther end of the room, away from the company, a small platform had been erected, and on this stood a closed cabinet. Within this Miss Meadows secluded herself, and complete silence reigned. Then I began within this Miss Meadows secluded hersell, and complete silence reigned. Then I began my experiment. I concentrated my thought on Uncle George, who had died of delirium tremens about ten years before. With all the force of a resolute nature I thought of him, and willed that he should appear. Presently a and willed that he should appear. Presently a vaporish light came into view at the side of the cabinet. It grew denser and brighter and began to take form. There could be no mistake. In a moment more Uncle George stood before me. The apparition seemed very un-steady in its movement, and swayed backward and forward, but I was jubilant at my success. A murmur of awe and surprise ran through the audience, while my wife grasped my arm convulsively and whispered:

"Goodness gracious, John! Look there!
There is Uncle George, and he is drunk, as

Huar:
I did not reply; I was too intent on my exeriment. I allowed my thoughts to wander and I observed the figure began to diminish and fade away, and when I fixed them on Uncle George he came plainly into view. I was fully satisfied. A thought could be made visi-

"Wasn't it wonderful?" remarked my wife after we had returned home. "Why see Uncle George as plain as could be. "Why, I could

You didn't see him," I replied.

"You saw my thought—my materialized thought," I answered. And I tried to make clear my theory and its result.
"Well," continued my wife, not half comprehending, "all I have to say is, that if your thoughts are as drunk as Uncle George seemed to be, you had better have them sign a temperance pledge."

I said nothing to this, for, after all, what does a woman—especially my wife—know about science? My success, however, gave an impetus to my investigation. If a thought could be made visible, was it not, therefore, material? And, if so, could it be chemically analyzed? This problem perplexed me for several days as I worked in my laboratory. One thing I soon discovered. I could not produce a visible thought without a medium. Where should I get one? Fortune, good-luck, or something, settled the matter for me. One day at dinner, my wife remarked with an air of deep concern:

"John, I am real sorry on your account, but I have just received a letter from Aunt Mary, and she is coming for a month's visit."

"Jolly! I am glad to hear that."
"Why—John!" and my wife looked at me in astonishment. "You always said you couldn't bear Aunt Mary; that she was one of those fidgety, hysterical women who ought to be in heaven instead of on earth. Those were your heaven instead of on earth. Those were your very words."

"Yes—I—that is, I think I was a little hasty when I said that," I answered, lamely. "Anyhow, we will try to make her visit pleasant."
Secretly I was overjoyed at her coming. With her peculiar nervous physique and psychical tendency, I was sure she would make a good medium. The trouble would be to get her consent. She was a woman of strong prejudice, I knew and especially abhorred modern spirit-I knew and especially abhorred modern spirit-

I knew and especially abnorred models spatialism.

"No, John," she said emphatically, when I broached the subject to her after her arrival, "I won't do it. All this spirit-rapping is just the work of the devil, that's what it is. And Mary Jane Morrison isn't going to make a Witch of Endor of herself for nobody."

I fully agreed with this. or pretended to do

I fully agreed with this, or pretended to do so. I argued, vehemently, against spiritualism, saying it was a fraud and delusion, and ought to be exposed. And I further explained that my experiments were made to simply show the people how they were being deceived. Aunt Mary was entirely willing to expose fraud, and with this intention she became my earnest with this intention she became my earnest helper.

The results were surprising. Night after night, with a number of invited friends, we held our seances. Aunt Mary speedily became a splendid medium, although she was not aware of it. She explained to every one who came that the whole thing was the work of Satan, which she was trying to expose and overthrow. I only smiled, and said nothing. We became so proficient, from continued practice, that I had but to think of something and it would appear. One night I thought of mice, and all the ladies sprang upon their chairs at the sight of the little creatures. I soon noticed another fact. It was not necessary, even, to have our seances at night, with darkened room. I could produce a visible thought just as plainly in daylight, if Aunt Mary were present. Her presence, light, if Aunt Mary were present. Her presence, however, was indispensable for a manifestation. But one thing troubled me. When Aunt Mary mut one thing troubled me. When Aunt Mary was with me my thought would often become visible without any wish or effort on my part. This was very annoying, as one does not wish people to see what he is thinking about. Indeed, an inadvertence in this regard finally resulted in disaster, and sent Aunt Mary home in high dudgeon.

high dudgeon.

I wish to say here that we have a college in our town, and one of the faculty is Professor Grandal, a very learned man, and a great admirer of Darwin and the doctrine of evolution.

The Professor and Aunt Mary were old friends and schoolmates, and neither of them had ever married. In truth, it was rumored they were sweethearts in former days, and that Aunt were sweethearts in former days, and that Aunt Mary's visit with us had a double purpose. Personally, I knew nothing of the facts. My wife, however, had her suspicions, and she twitted Aunt Mary about it, whereupon that good lady blushed violently.

"What," she said, "do you suppose I would marry a man who goes against the Bible, and says we all revoluted from a monkey?"

Nevertheless, the Professor was a frequent visitor at our house, and Aunt Mary seemed very fond of his company. On one point, however, she was very sensitive. For some unknown reason she refused to have him invited to our seances, and insisted he should be kept known reason she refused to have him invited to our seances, and insisted he should be kept in ignorance regarding them. And so the days passed, I engaged in my scientific investigation, and Aunt Mary innocently trying to expose the works of the devil. Our experiments were the same, but with widely different motives. The door of my laboratory was opened cautiously, one afternoon, and my wife looked in. "John, have you anything in here that will blow up? If you haven't, I will come in." "You will be perfectly safe, unless you blow me up," I answered, laughing.

My wife has a profound awe regarding my chemical apparatus, lest it might explode, and she prudently took a seat near the door.

"Now, John," she said, "I am going to bring this thing to a head."
"Bring what to a head?"

this thing to a head."
"Bring what to a head?"
"You old goosey! Why, this affair between Aunt Mary and Professor Grandal, of course.
Any one, with half an eye, can see they are in love with each other, and all they need is a little encouragement. I think I can manage the matter." matter.'

I remained silent, for I knew her ability as a match-maker. To be sure, most of her ef-forts in this line have been failures, but she is never discouraged, and always ready for an-never discouraged, and always ready for another venture.

"I shall give a small dinner-party to-morrow evening," she continued, "and invite Professor Grandal and a few other people. If matters go all right—and I mean they shall—the Professor will propose before he goes home." With this remark, and a resolute toss of her head, she left me

Now I shall not describe this dinner-party. It began auspiciously, and my wife was correspondingly busy and happy. After the company had assembled she so arranged that the Professor and Aunt Mary were almost constantly together, and had frequent tete-a-tetes by themselves. She asked Aunt Mary to take the Professor out to see the young pear trees I had planted in the yard, and noticed, smiling, that they lingered long in the viewing. When they returned she remarked, boldly, in their presence, that they were a fine-looking couple, and ence, that they were a fine-looking couple, and were made for each other. This seemed to embarrass the Professor, but as my wife passed him a moment later she paused to whisper:

"Never mind; you two understand each other, I am sure. True love, like true blood, will always tell."

Everything had gone well so far, and finally we sat down to dinner. The Professor and Aunt Mary were sested together at one end of Aunt Mary were seated together at one end of the table, and it so chanced I was placed right opposite them. The other guests were given seats, here and there, as it happened. It was a merry company, and laughter and talk went around the table freely. Every one was in good humor, and my wife beamed with satisfaction. Presently some one spoke of Drummond's new book, "The Ascent of Man", which had just appeared in the literary world. The mention of this aroused Professor Grandal, as it was his favorite topic. "That book of Drummond's is a wonderful book—a wonderful book!" he exclaimed, enthusiastically. "It is so in accord with divine revelation that, after reading it, I do not see how any one can dispute the great doctrine of

Then he proceeded to explain his theories, and as he was a man of great scholarly attainments we all remained silent to listen. When very much in earnest, the Professor had a pe-culiar habit of bobbing his head up and down, to emphasize his remarks, I suppose. I noticed the habit, particularly, on this occasion, and, I regret to say, I became so absorbed in watching this movement that I forgot my surroundings. It reminded me of a small donkey, owned by my father in my boyhood days. This donkey would often come to the garden fence, and gravely bob his head in precisely the same manner. And, also, the Professor's face had a strong resemblance to that of the donkey—long and lean. And the ears, too, how supernaturalvery much in earnest, the Professor had a peand lean. And the ears, too, how supernaturally long they were, and apparently growing. It was strange I had not noticed this before, but—was strange I had not noticed this before, but—A loud scream from Aunt Mary interrupted my reverie, and I saw her fall fainting to the floor. Confusion reigned. The guests sprang from the table, and my wife dropped a cup of scalding tea on our pet poodle, and laughed hysterically. What did it all mean? I looked toward the Professor, but he was not there.

In his place I saw a donkey, benignantly bobbing its head up and down. I understood it then. My wretched reflections had brought a dire result. My thought had materialized!

The professor had risen to his feet, and was looking about him in blank astonishment. He looking about him in blank astonishment. He did not comprehend the cause of the uproar until he saw his own reflection in a mirror opposite him. Then, with a piteous moan, he sank back in his chair.

in his chair.

"Oh, heavens! What is this? Have I lost my identity? Am I mad?"

The excitement was brief, however, for as my thought turned in another direction the materialization ceased, and the Professor resumed his normal appearance. But no explanation would satisfy him. He left the house immediates the same of t would satisfy him. He left the house immediately, and has been exceedingly cool to me ever since. Of course, the dinner-party was broken up, but that was not the worst of it. The match between the Professor and Aunt Mary came to a sudden ending at the same time, and for that I was made to suffer. Aunt Mary said I had grossly deceived her; that instead of exposing the works of the devil I had been his willing agent, and she insisted on going home at once. As for my wife—Well, with the curtain-lectures I received, and the remorse I felt, I was a miserable man.

But it is ever thus with science. It may bring

But it is ever thus with science. It may bring trouble to the searcher after truth, yet I think I have been of benefit to mankind. I have discovered there is such a thing as a visible

How the Sophomore Class-book Was Discovered.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY CRANDON HAWES.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

HARLES Alexander, Chief of Police at Cambridge, owned a fine orchard, one in which he took much pride. Such being the case, it is not at all strange that college boys helped themselves from time to time, and what is still less to be wondered at, Chief Alexander, noting the depredations, took steps to apprehend the culprits. The offenders were not caught, for they easily outstripped the chief and the officer who was watching with him, but in their flight one of the young men dropped a book which could not be replaced—the records of the Sophomore class, and this the chief locked in his safe, sending word to the president of the class that it was in safe keeping and would be delivered to the one who dropped it-provided that he cared to call at his office in the station-house.

That was a hard nut to crack. The class clamoring for the returns of the records, but Joe Tingley, the poacher, well knew that if he presented himself at the chief's office he would be arrested for trespass and larceny. The manner in which he solved the problem was decidedly original and masterly, indicating sharp wits that turned in the right direction would have placed him at the head of his classes.

"Are you ready for a lark to-night? aneried Tingley one evening shortly er the class-book was lost, "there's no end of un shead of us, if we manage things right, Tom, and just enough danger connected with it to make it

"I'm your man, Joe," said Tom Partridge,

"I'm your man, Joe," said from Partringe, Tingley's boon companion, "if there's going to be any fun, you can rely on me."

"I thought so," said Tingley, complacently, "come to my room an hour hence and we will start on the war-path."

Shortly after nine o'clock two young men might have been seen walking across the cam-pus toward Brattle Square; one was tall, the ther of medium height; the former was Tingley, the latter Partridge. Tingley was ex-plaining the plot and Partridge was roaring with merriment as he learned more of the de-

"It will be the richest joke on record," said Tingley, "will square old scores with Accounter, and insure a speedy return of that con-"will square old scores with Alexan-

"Well, here we are, Joe," said Partridge, in time to catch Henderson before he closes up for the night."

"Hullo, Vic!" said Tingley, clapping the Square barber on the shoulder, "what will you sell your barber-pole for?" "What do you want of that?" gasped the old man.

"Never you mind, Vic; what will you sell it for, that's the question."

"Well, seeing as it's getting pretty dingy,

I'll let you have it for five dollars, boys; fact is,

I need a new one."

"It's a bargain, Vic: just make out a receipt for five dollars while we are taking down the pole."

"These college boys do beat the Dutch," said Henderson as he began making out the receipt, "always up to some mischief or other, though what is their game now is more than I can understand."

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 28, 34 Sold to Joseph H. Tingley, one barber-pole Received payment, Victor Henderson.

"That's all right," said Tingley, glancing at the receipt as Partridge shouldered the pole, "you will find out to-morrow what we want of this pole, Vic."

Presently the two turned into Bow Street, a short distance from the Square, and were walking briskly along when an officer intercepted them.

"What are you doing with that pole?" demanded the blue-coat, laying his hand heavily

"What are you uong with that pole?" demanded the blue-coat, laying his hand heavily on Tom's shoulder.

"Nothing much," said Partridge, "just carrying it home, that's all."

"Come with me," said the officer, roughly, "you college boys cause more trouble than all the rest of the city put together."

At the police-station Chief Alexander was in charge for the night, the marshall being off on his vacation. He was ordering the officer to lock the two young men up in separate cells when Tingley interrupted.

"Pardon me, sir," said he, "but you are making a serious mistake; you are holding innocent men. We bought this pole of Henderson in the Square and here is a receipt that he gave us."

"That changes the color of things," said the chief looking at the bit of paper, "officer re-chief looking at the bit of paper, "officer re-lease the prisoners."

"Stop right where you are," said Roundsman Thomas, half an hour later, intercepting two young men who were carrying a barber-pole, "where did you get that pole?"

"Henderson in the Square sold it to us," said

"Likely story, that," said the officer, with a grin, "fall in. You college boys are a bad lot." "Confound it," said Chief Alexander, looking up from his desk as the officer entered with his two arrests, "let those young men go; Pike

A MONTH'S TENT FREE.

If you have Rheumatism, write Dr. Shoop, Racite, Wis., Box 36, for six bottles of his Rheumatic Cure, exp.
paid. Send no money. Pay $5.50 if cured.

The Light of the World

Our Saviour in Art

cost nearly $100,000 to publish. Nearly 100 super cogravings of Christ and His Mother by the great painter. Child's atories for each picture. So beautiful it sells itself. Presses running day and night to fill order itself. Presses running day and night to fill order, bearing the sell of the s

RHEUMATISM CURED BY HOME TREATMENT.

Nine years ago I was attacked by muscular and infamiliary rhounatism. I suffered as those who have it know, or over three years, and tred almost everything. Final for more than the sum of the sum of

Two Rings Free! We will give these Two SOLIB
GDLLD laid Rings, one set with larg Garnet and three Pearls, one with Ring and two Brilliants, FREE to anyow that will sell 12 of our Gold Plate Emamacled Brooches, set withdifferent colored stones at 10 cents ext, and sends us the $1.20. No moor required until brooches are sold. We take back all not sold. Address
HOWARD MFG. CO., PROVIDENCE, EL

AGENTS MAKE MORE MONEY SELLING OUR FAMALY RECORDS than any other business on earth abolic gold. Sample 12c, 10 for $1.00 Sells on signal $50. each. MIDLAND ART CO., Montclair, New Jerrey. PRINTS YOUR NAME. POCKET STAMP 15¢

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but it Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Pollshing Cloth, a wonderful prepared doth that gives electric brightness and lastre to every metal it to the state of the state of wom threatbare. Directions with every the free state of the free s

HIS LARGE CATALO

Gives Wholesale Prices on 70,000 Things

There are 17,000 pictures and over a thousand pages in it. You will find in it everything that anybody needs, from a windmill to a needle-70,000 articles in all. The prices are about the prices your dealer pays. They are from 15 to 50 per cent less than he charges you.

It Will Show You

All that a Clothing Store carries-the latest Spring styles in all the things that men wear.

All that a Dry Goods Store carries—all that is new in woman's wear.

All that a Millinery Store shows for Spring.

All that a Shoe Store carries, and every piece of footwear is reliable. All that a Grocery Store carries in any line that can be ordered by mail.

All that a Drug Store carries-every patent remedy, every drug that is used in homes.

All that a Paint Store carries.

All that can be found in a Furniture Store, and all styles and grades. All that any Carpet Store can show.

All that a Crockery Store carries—dinner sets, toilet sets, china of all kinds. All that Music Stores sell, at scarcely more than half their prices.

All that a Jewelry Store can offer you.

All things in House Furnishings that the most complete stores in the largest cities can show.

All that any Hardware Store sells. Probably no such store around you shows a tenth as much.

All that a Plumber carries.

Farm Machinery of all kinds, Agricultural Implements, Wagons and Buggies, Pumps and Feed Cutters, Rifles and Shot Guns, Sewing Machines.

It Will Give You

Prices on everything that no one else can compete with. Ordinary dealers pay about what we sell for.

It gives you descriptions that are honest. Not the slightest exaggeration ever appears in our catalogue.

It brings into your home descriptions, pictures and prices of $2,500,000 worth of merchandise that we carry.

It offers you selections many times larger than any ordinary store can show. It will save any ordinary family at least $100 per year. It may save that on one purchase. It enables you to order by mail, at the lowest wholesale prices, from a stock that covers 25 acres of floor space. It offers you a warrant that you will be satisfied with any article bought here; and millions of dollars are back of the warrant.

We are the originators of the catalogue business, starting 29 years ago. Our purchases equal those of 2,000 ordinary stores, and of course we buy much cheaper than they can, and we give you the saving.

You who live away from large cities can save a third of what you now spend, if you buy here. It is the right way, the modern way to buy. And at this store you will find no misrepresentation.

Our methods will keep your trade when we get it.

Either you who have not tried our way are right, or our two million customers are - which is it?

You cannot think of anything that's lacking.

If you want our catalogue, fill out carefully the slip to the right of this and mail it to us today, enclosing 15 cents. This catalogue which we offer you costs us about 50 cents to print, even in million lots. The postage on it costs us 30 cents more. We ask you to send us but 15 cents (half the postage alone) just to show that you do not send from mere curiosity

This book will save any average family at least $100 per year. If you don't find that it will save you at least a hundred times what it costs you, simply write us and we will cheerfully send your 15 cents back.

Send today, before you forget it.

Cut this slip out and send it with 15 cents in stamps Today. Montgomery Ward & Co., Michigan Ave. and Madison St., Chicago Enclosed find 15 cents for partial postage on your Buyers' Guide No. 69 for Spring and Summer, 1901. (Be sure to write very plainly.) Postoffice_ Be sure to enclose this slip in an envelope. This slip was clipped from Comfort.

Montgomery Ward @ Co., Michigan Ave. Chicago brought them in here less than an hour ago.

They bought that pole of Henderson."
"That's what they said, but——"

"There are no buts about it; let them go!" roared the chief.
Half an hour later the head of the police force looked wearily up from his desk as the door

Caught these rascals carrying off-

"Get out of here and let them go," thundered the chief, catching sight of a long striped pole.

"I—1—" gasped the officer.
"Get out of here!"
"Bergeant," said the chief, addressing the officer at the 'phone, "reach the night-men as fast as you can and tell them not to trouble two young men who are carrying a barber-pole: in fast as you can and tell them not to trouble two young men who are carrying a barber-pole; in fact, one young man, for they may separate. Tell them that it is my positive order."

The two college boys heard the chief's order as they rejuctantly left the station-house, and as they parted with the officer the ghost of a smile that had been playing about their mouths blossomed into a hilarious laugh.

"Now for business," said Tingley; "you take this end of the city and I will take the other. Be careful that no one sees you at work. So long, Tom; be at the room by one o'clock."

From time to time the officers on their beats saw a young man hurrying along the street.

From time to time the officers on their beats saw a young man hurrying along the street, carrying a barber-pole, but he was not molested for it was the chief's order, and the head of the force was supposed to know his business. Bright and early the following morning, just as the chief was leaving his office, an angry looking individual strode into the station. "Are you the chief of police?" he demanded. "That's what they call me."

"Well, now ain't this pretty works in a city of this size. Some imp carried of my barberpole last night."

pole last night."

"Huh!" said the chief, passing his hand across his forehead.
"My barber-pole was stolen last night," said

"My barber-pole was stolen last night," said the man savagely.
"Oh, yes, I see," said the chief.
"Well, what are you going to do about it?"
"I'll speak to the officer on the beat; just give me the name and address."
"But I've seen the officer, and he says that you gave positive orders for him not to arrest anybody who was stealing barber-poles," shouted the barber.
"Good morning, Mr. Alexander," said a gentleman, stepping up to the desk, "what can you do for me? Some joker ran off with my barber-pole during the night."
"Hello!"
The sergeant was answering the 'phone.

The sergeant was answering the 'phone.
"Yes, yes, just so. Will report to the chief. "Madden, on Elm Street, tells the same sto-

"Madden, on Elm Street, tens the same sur-ry," said the sergeant, turning to the chief.
"I'll attend to this matter," said the chief, reaching for his hat, "just leave your com-plaintat the desk." Chief Alexandar had gone. plaint at the desk." Chief Alexandar had gone. Matters looked very serious at noon. No less than forty barbers had entered complaints. Certain officers, anxious to shield themselves, had told the exasperated tonsorial artists of the strange order that had come from headquarters. When the chief returned to his office at dusk and saw the batch of complaints, he turned at least three shades paler. On his desk, however, was a type-written letter, the reading of which evidently pleased him, for he was observed to smile.

was observed to smile.

"Upon receipt of the class-book, dropped in your orchard the evening of September 25th, the work of replacing the poles appropriated last evening will be begun. Have the book left in the recitation room in the museum between the hours of seven and nine on Wednesday morning, September 30th."

Such was a portion of the anonymous letter received by the chief. Promptly at seven o'clock the following morning the muchwanted book was delivered at the aforesaid place, and less than twenty minutes later a carpenter drove into the Square with a considerable load of barber-poles, which he began at once to replace.

There is little doubt but that the abid could be minuted in the institution had heard these same remarks a hundred times and in the main they thought that the superintendent was correct.

Occasionally one of them would be caught napping, however, with more or less serious results. Then the head of the asylum would smile in a superior sort of way, remarking on the discomfited one in particular.

David Ransom's turn came in due time, however. Then the wardens and nurses smiled; so did the superintendent—when the affair was all over and things were straightened out.

at once to replace.

There is little doubt but that the chief could have made considerable trouble for both Tingley and Partridge, had he been so disposed, but Chief Alexander had been, and was a dear lover of a practical joke, and somehow he relished the plot and its masterly carrying out, good-naturedly joining in the laugh which the whole force was indulging in at his expense.

Superintendent Number 2.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY JONATHAN GRAY.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

ever docile he might seem.

N the year 1897 there was incarcerated in the was detained at the institution. On every point, save one, he was perfectly rational. He imagined that he was immensely wealthy, his riches far surpassing those of the Vanderbilts and Rothschilds, when as a matter of fact he was absolutely penniless. Ordinarily he was as harmless as a child. but at times, incensed by imprudent ones who laughed at his vagaries.

he would become exceedingly violent. The superintendent of the asylum. David Ransom, was a man of stern, unrelenting hand. He trusted not an inmate of the asylum, how-

"The quietest lunatic is the most dangerous; look out for him." was a favorite maxim of the superintendent; "never turn your back to an insane person when you are within reach of most lustily.

David Ransom's turn came in due time, however. Then the wardens and nurses smiled; so did the superintendent—when the affair was all over and things were straightened out.

The superintendent was expecting two physicians one morning and anxious that everything should appear at its best he had made an early round of the buildings, seeing that the patients were well cared for and the work properly attended to. All would have gone well, no doubt, had not the superintendent in an unlucky moment unlocked Room 43, occupied by the individual referred to in the opening paragraph of this narrative.

by the individual referred to in the opening paragraph of this narrative.
Entering, and in a moment of absent-mindedness turning his back to the lunatic, he gave the inmate an opportunity to escape, and this he was not slow in improving. Quick as a flash he bolted through the open door, slamming and locking it behind him, coolly pocketing the superintendent's keys and walking

Scarcely had this remarkable feat been accomplished when the two doctors which the complished when the two doctors which the superintendent had been expecting put in an appearance, Percival smilingly admitting them to the office, making free with the choice cigars which he found in the desk, the while enter-which he found in the desk, the while entertaining his visitors with his witty conversation. "Suppose we now begin the trip through the asylum," said Percival, at length removing his cigar from his mouth, "and if there is any particular ward in which you are interested we will go there first."

"I understand that there is a peculiar case being treated here at the present time," said one of the physicians. "Charles Percival is the name, I believe; imagines that he is very wealthy, though apparently sane on other points."

"Yes, peculiar case, that," said the superin-points."

"Yes, peculiar case, that," said the superintendent pro tem. a curious light coming into his eyes, "we will go and see him directly."

"Perfectly rational at times, isn't he?" queried the other doctor.

"True; you might talk with him for an hour, if you had not become acquainted with his case, and imagine you were in conversation with some person connected with the institution."

As the trio emerged from the office there seemed to be a great commotion at the farther end of the corridor. One of the prisoners was shaking the iron bars of his cell and shouting

"That's Percival," said the protem. official, leading the way, "he is very violent this morn-leading the way, "he is very violent this morning."

The superintendent no doubt, was one of the most sane people in the world when he entered that cell, but at that moment he appeared far from it, and when Percival suggested that the two physicians keep out of his reach, lest they expose themselves to bodily harm, he simply lost all control of himself.

"Are you fools?" he shouted, "get the keys from the lunatic and let me out. He is liable to kill you any moment."

"Another of his fancies," said Percival, smiling triumphantly, "at times he has a notion that he is superintendent and everyone else is insane."

"Too bad! Too bad!" said one of the doctors, as they passed on, "naturally of splendid inas they passed on, "naturally of splendid in-tellect; the old story of burning the candle at both ends."

both ends."

From ward to ward Percival led the two physicians, carefully avoiding the cells where the wardens and nurses were imprisoned, proving an exceptionally entertaining companion and guide, completely deceiving his companions to the end. Three hours from the time they came, the two doctors took their departure, convinced that the superintendent of the Barre Asylum was a man peculiarly suited to the position.

flash he bolted through the open door, slamming and locking it behind him, coolly pocketing the superintendent's keys and walking away.

At the end of the corridor was the office and thither he hastened, securing two loaded revolvers, and thus armed started out on the warpath.

The first person that attracted his attention was one of the wardens who was making his asylum was a man peculiarly suited to the position.

The physicians having gone, Percival turned his attention to other matters. In the store-room was a supply of food intended for the with numerous bottles of choice brandies. Percival now busied himself preparing a spread with which to regale certain inmates of the wardens who was making his attention to other matters. In the store-room was a supply of food intended for the with numerous bottles of choice brandies. Barre Asylum for the insane a man of remarkable ability. Of keen wit and peculiarly intellectual the visitor could scarcely comprehend

Wat part.

The first person that attracted his attention was one of the wardens who was making his rounds, and surprising him, at the point of a revolver he forced him to a remote cell, where he turned the key on him. Then he resumed his wanderings, actually meeting and making prisoners consecutively the remaining twelve attaches of the asylum.

With which to tag with anylum whom he had met from time to time in hours of recreation under the eye of one of the officials. This spread was a howling success from the standpoint of those who participated in the festivities. Roast beef and cold chicken oners consecutively the remaining twelve attaches of the asylum. dicated anything, it would seem that brandies were poured out with lavish hand between every course.

Shortly after dark an attendant who had been out of town for the day returned, and discovering the superintendent's dilemma, released him. When they opened the door to the dining-room a most remarkable state of the dining-room a most remarkable state of affairs was perceived. Seated about the long table were fifteen revelers, most of them with just their heads showing above the table, the rest sprawling half across the board.

The ludicrous side of the situation was simply irresistible, and the warden laughed outright, while ever the superintender smiles.

while even the superintendent smiled and looked as though he would like to have joined his companion.

That was the golden opportunity for removing the lunatics to their respective rooms and this was quickly done without mishap, not one of the number realizing what was transpiring while they slept.

Later the other officials and nurses were found and released, and while they agreed that Percival had done a most clever thing, hoodwinking as he did two astute doctors, it was unanimously voted that the story should not get outside the asylum. It was too good to keep, however; the truth leaked out, and that is how this happens to be in print. Percival has gone by the name of Superintendent Number 2 from that day, and the facts would seem to warrant the appellation.

Men, Women and Things.

CONDUCTED BY JENNIE MELVENE DAVIS.

Prince Luigi Amadeo of Savoy Aosta, Duke of Abruzzi, is the son of an ex-king of Spain, the cousin of the present King of Italy, but all these distinctions of mere rank fade beside the fact that he can now claim the honor of having been "Farthest North." He has succeeded in reaching latitude 86 degrees and 33 minutes while Nansen's record was 86 degrees and 14 minutes. It is doubtful whether he has been able to add any valuable data to science but his personal achievement is remarkable. The Prince has never been willing to lead the idle life of pleasure that his rank and opportunities would suggest. He is but 27 years of age but has already made a name for himself as a mountain climber. He has asserted that his mountain climbing was for sport and not for glory. The native home of the House of Savoy is in the heart of the Italian Alps and Prince Luigi's childhood sport was to venture among the glaciers. He climbed all the famous mountains of Europe and then succeeded in breaking the record of all ascents of Mount St. Elias in Alaska. His father was King of Spain from 1870 to 1873 but the Prince has proved that he has other distinction than being the son of his father. In 1896 he visited America as a lieutenant on the Italian man-of-war Cristoforo Colombo. June 12, 1899 he sailed from Christiana on his ship the Stella Polare. Many people refused to regard the expedition seriously, looking upon it as the work of an amateur, and to those the news that he has reached the highest latitude ever attained by an explorer comes with all the surprise of the unexpected. The young Duke has courage, perseverance and untiring energy but above all the "knack" of success. His title and rank will not now cause scientists to feel that he is merely an ambitious boy. He has succeeded in two difficult lines of exploration or daring and the world now begins to wonder what his next attempt will be.

The old saw about whistling girls has been thoroughly contradicted since whistling has been recognized as an art and an accomplishment. Mrs. Alice Shaw was almost the first one to whistle in public and although she had many rivals she has had no superiors. She is known abroad as La Belle Ziffleuse. It is thirteen years since Mrs. Shaw found herself with four small daughters and no means of support. She had whistled for her own amusement and the idea came to her of turning her somewhat unusual gift to account. The idea was bitterly opposed by her triends but Mrs. Shaw persisted. Mrs. Shaw whistles the most difficult music and can accompany any singer or musician with an obligato whistle. The volume, sweetness and flexibility of the sound is astonishing. It is said that the roof of Mrs. Shaw's mouth is higher even than that of Patti. She whistled in Russia and at first was looked upon with disfavor as the Russians have a superstitious aversion to whistling. But the music of the wonderful whistle conquered prejudice and on her second visit to Russia, Mrs. Shaw received a decoration from the Czar himself. Her London success has been no less marked. The Prince of Wales never misses an opportunity to hear the wonderful whistle. Mrs. Shaw is much in demand as an entertainer at the homes of the nobility. Her twin daughters have appeared with her during the last year. The music of the trio is remarkable and meets with the most enthusiastic applause. Mrs. Shaw has whistled ill luck down the wind and disproved the old adage that whistling girls come to some bad end.

The railroad business furnishes some of the finest chances for rapid rise to those who show ability. The new president of the American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents is Henry C. Townsend of St. Louis, Mr. Townsend is General Passenger Agent of the Missouri Pacific and is widely known for his alert, energetic and progressive business methods. His career is a practical illustration of man. He was born in Pittsburg in 1847. In compliment paid to him by President McKin-1863, he became clerk in the office of the auditor of the Bellefontaine Railroad. From there he went to the freight department of another road and in 1871 became the advertising clerk of the passenger department of the Pennsylvania. This work gave him opportunity for original ideas and methods and developed the qualities that have made him a successful manager of passenger traffic. For six years he was General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw Railroad. Since 1884 he has been at the head of the passenger department of the Missouri Pacific. He is one of the best known railroad men in the United States and he has gained his knowledge through the practical school of slow promotion.

Minnie Tracey is a plucky American girl who has made a success wrung from failure. She appeared as one of the leading sopranos in the season of English Grand Opera. Her work seemed successful but she was discharged with a very short notice by the manager. He rather bluntly stated that her singing was satisfactory but that her form was of too generous proportion to fit the characters that she represented. Public opinion was on the side of the artist and she immediately gave a series of concerts with a long list of patronesses that included the leading names in New York's Four Hundred. She has had the position of leading soprano in the leading French opera houses. Last winter she spent the entire season as the leading artist at Bordeaux. She won great success at Marseilles. An artist must sing three times there in opera before receiving an engagement. Then it is the approval or disapproval of the audience that determines their fate. Applause or catcalls follows the presentation of the artist's name. Miss Tracey passed through this ordeal that most artists shrank from, and won the most decided success. The general verdict was that Miss Tracey was thoroughly at home in opera and an entire success in her work in America, and the failure to retain her position awakened much indignation. She was plainly shown by the applause of her audience that her pluck and ability were appreciated by Americans.

A successful writer of plays has a vocation that almost rivals the ownership of a gold mine. No man can determine what the success of a play may be so the element of speculation is involved. Arthur Wing

Pinero is conceded to be the most successful of modern playwriters. His plays are intensely modern and frank to a degree that arouses surprised criticism but they draw immense audiences and sparkle with brilliant dialogue. The well-known English actor John Hare has bought the latest of Pinero's plays, The Gay Lord Quex to the admiration and criticism of Americans. Mr. Pinero was born in London. His early career was as an actor. He did not make any marked success in this field but he acquired a knowledge of the practical routine of stage craft that stood him in good stead when he became a writer of plays. His early successes were the Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith and The Second Mrs. Tanquery. His work is in the line of problem plays and it is said that he never touches the heart of his audiences but he certainly stimulates and piques their intellect. Mr. Pinero lives in a delightful house at St. John's Wood. His study is filled with portraits of the great Italian actress Eleanor Duse. He does not know her personally but considers her the most wonderful artist now on the stage. Mr. Pinero is a familiar figure in London, but in spite of this fact few people know him well. He is often called The Philosopher of the Drama. His plays are bird's eye views of life lightened by brilliant epigrams but a somewhat sad philosophy.

It is a rare occasion when the President of the United States in selecting a man for one of the difficult diplomatic positions ignores party policy and names a man of opposite politics from the party in power. Our minister to

ley. During President Cleveland's administration, Oscar Straus was minister to Turkey. So well did he perform the difficult task of successful services at the court of the Sultan that he was asked to fill the place again when President McKinley realized that a task of unusual delicacy and diplomatic skill was to be performed. Oscar Straus passed his boyhood days in a quiet little Georgia town called Talbotton. The little town was a center of wealth and culture and sent out many men who made a name in the world. When a child, Oscar Straus came to this town with his parents and three brothers. The family were not rich in worldly goods but in earnestness, culture and intellectual strength they possessed a fortune. Oscar was the eldest and in the days of the Civil War he is remembered for the speeches he made imploring money aid for the soldiers at the front. He took a high rank at the local school until the family removed to Columbus. At the close of the Civil War he came to New York and graduated at Columbia. He commenced the study of law in the office of Charles O'Conor and soon rose to a high rank in the legal profession. He is as honored a scholar as is shown by the honor of the degree of LL. D. conferred upon him by Brown University, Washington and Lee University and the University of Pennsylvania.

The man who would be king might receive a few lessons from the phenomenal success of R. G. Reid who for the last two years has been king Newfoundland in all but name. Two years ago the island was practically bankrupt and the control of some of the public works and the development of the resources of the island were passed over to Mr. Reid. Mr. Reid is a Scotchman about fifty years of age and has passed the greater portion of his life in Canada. His remarkable success in directing the finances of Newfoundland has made him well known in the money centers of the world. He made a contract with the government of Newfoundland to construct a railroad 650 miles in length across the island. For this work he received a subsidy of 2,500 acres per mile. At the end of fifty years upon the payment of $5,000,000 he is to own the road. The best government docks are owned by him, the telegraph system is another item in his holdings and he is building a line of mail steamers for which he receives an annual subsidy of $100,000. The land granted to him contains rich mines of coal, copper and iron. By contract he must mine at least 50,000 tons of coal every year. Lumber and pulp mills are supported by the products of the land and these mills are also under the control of a canny Scot. The Newfoundland people have had a reaction from the gratitude they felt at first when Mr. Reid commenced to make a financial success of what had been failure. At the last election they showed this change by defeating the leader of the Conservative party Mr. Morine who was believed to be in entire sympathy with Mr. Reid. The new premier, Mr. Bond, will endeavor to have the telegraph system repurchased by the government. As it is, the greater part of resources and development of Newfoundland are in the hands of Mr. Reid.

ble success for a young woman who left college but nine years ago. Miss Tomkins is a California girl, claiming Oakland as her birthplace. She spent her early girlhood on a ranch. When she was but twenty years of age she graduated at Vassar and then returned to her home in California. She commenced writing short stories and doing some work for a San Francisco paper. Her brightness and the vivacity and "go" of her literary work resulted in an offer of a position in New York. She is at present editing a successful popular magazine. Her short stories are marked by an off-hand ease and sparkle and a brightness of dialogue that compares favorably with the famous Dolly Dialogues of Anthony Hope. Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Knight Tomkins, 1s well known as a writer. Miss Juliet Wilbor Tomkins will soon publish a long story of life on a California ranch. Her success has been in the line of the steps in the ladder of success as a railroad Turkey Mr. Oscar Straus has had this great newspaper and magazine work but her admirers believe that her more serious attempt will add to her reputation.

your nearest express office this P ove cut. Beautifully made of the terials, by the best milliners mon ancy straw shape, the crown and uped with imported a fancy straw shape, the crown and rim artisted draped with imported straw cloth, a large fancy at silk chiffon, resette to the front, with receive elegant silk and velvet roses and granish cut see Buckle go to make up this elegant hat suitable occasions. If you find the hat equal to or better that you can buy of your milliner at from $4.00 to $4.00 to

TODD, SMITH & CO.,

THIS REFRIGERATOR, $8.95.

Our General Catalogue No. 99 contains thousands of bargains like the above, tells about everything to eat, use and wear, a contains 480 pages, size 10/x14 in. Each book costs us $1.25 per se. 95, Freight Paid.

$8.95, Freight Paid.

$1.00. Address this way:
Julius Hines & Son, Balto., Md.

Dept. 389

WE respectfully announce the completion of the most wonderful outdoor annasement for young people (8 18 years old) ever invented. Made of light wood, with this metal wings. Guaranteed to fly over trees and house without wind. To get samples into every section of the United States at once, we will send, postpaid, for 30 days only.

No. 1." for Children 5-9 Years

Flying-Machine

"No. 2," for Children 9-18 Fears to any one who will cut out this "ad." and send it with 15 two-cent stamps and the name of some smart boy to be our local agent. Not over two machines to one address on this oner. Send now, and you can surprise your friends.

AMERICAN FLYING MACHINE CO., PROVIDENCE, B.I.

Please mention Compost when you write

SKILLLED SUIT TAILORS

measure with $1.00 deposit and we will make and express the suit to you C.O.D. Subject to exa m in atton. You can examine it at the Express office; try it on, see that it fits perfect and then pay the Express Agent $4.95 and express charges, otherwise pay nothing and we will refund your $1.00.

SEND NO MONEY but sen

A pair, genuine Nottingham Lace, almost impossible to distinguish from Real Duchess Lace, made from fine double twisted threads, with handsome, artistic border, daintily executed fancy net center, non-raveling lockstitched odre, finely finished, 54 in, wide, 81-2 yds. long. Sold in many stores for double our price. OUR SPECIAL $2.55 PRICE is made possible by a lucky purmade possible by a lucky pur-chase of an enormous quan-tity of curtains at a price far below their real value. We bought them chan and we sell them chan. SEND NO MONEY but send this adv. and we will send you a pair of these fine senume Nottingham Lace Curtains by Express C.O.D., subset to examination. Examine them at the express office in pay the Agent our special price $2.55, and express harges only, after you find them everything we claim, each ja represented, and the equal in quality of Curtains stailed regularly at $5.00 to $7.00, otherwise pay nothing, and they will be returned at our expense. Write for rec Catalogue of Lace Curtains, Drapery, etc.

PLOWS at $8.15 and up and FARM IMPLEMENTS of all kinds at wholesale prices, are described and illustrated in our FREE AGRICULT.

TRALIMPLEMENT CATALOG. Write for it today.

REFERENCE --- Any Man, Woman or Child in Chicago.

DRESS GOODS PATTERN $1.98

Write for Free

Bicy€le Catalog

75

express office, and pay the exprescribed, the equal of bicycles sold otherwise tell the agent to return WRITE FOR CATALOG.

WHY PAY A PROFIT TO STOREKEEPERS? It's no longer necessary; it's wasteful and whenever you do so, you simply paying out money that you should keep in your own pocket. OUR MAMMOTH CATALOGUE Represents stocks valued at $2,000,000 and quotes lowest whole-sale prices on everything that you eat, wear or use; tells exactly what your storekeeper pays for his goods before adding his profit, and enables you to buy your goods in any quantity, no matter how small, at the same price he pays for his. It is 8 B-4x11 inches in size, 2 inches thick and contains 1100 pages devoted to illustrations and descriptions of over 80000 articles, including

SEND NO MONEY Oak or Birch is desired an

Write for Free FURNITURE

OF Golden Oak or Mahoganized Birch as a nately carved and highly gloss-polished; 41 in, wide, adjustable in four positions by means or ice and rod, almost 6 ft. long when extendingly upholstered in further than the control of the contr

finations, from best selected materials shipped anywhere to any one on 30 days Free Tries any one on 50 days Free Tries Gueranteed 20 years, WRITE TODAY FOR FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOG, and see our bull-bearing Machines at $44.55.

CARPET 24c a YARD and up. in a magnificent assortment of peautiful our big and colors, is shown in our big FREE SPECIAL CARPET which we send to CATALOG, which we send quest. It contains many col plates, showing in their colors an endless variety of grain, Brussels, Velvet, Mogu quest. It contains many colored plates, showing in their true colors an endless variety of largrain, Brussels, Velvet, Moquette, Axminster and Wilton Carpet, Axminster and Wilton Carpet, Axminster and Linoleums, which we sell direct to the consumer at actual mill and factory prices. We save our customers the middleman and retailer's big profits, and give you a bigger line to choose from than any other firm. Write for Catalog to-day.

combinations among the FREE WALL PAPER SAMPLES which we send anywhere upon request. We are not in the wall paper trust, but control at our prices the output of two notable wall paper mills, sell the cheapest white blank to the richest tapestries direct to the consumer in any quantity no matter have small and the consumer in any PAINT at 55c a gallon and up, in 50 shades are shown on our Color Card. Write today for Wall Paper Samples or Color Card of Paints.

W. MADISON STREET CH 150-166 and 287-289

On The Bowery.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

COOPER UNION.

H the Bowery! The Bowery!
They do such things and they say such things,
On the Bowery."

most wish to see.
What, then, is the Bowery?

It is the street, passing through the crowded East Side of New York, where the poorer classes of the city's dwellers live, which has come to be the synonym for almost everything that is bad in the city's life. Rampant vice, brawls, fights, even murders distinguished it. So awful did its life become at one time that one special resort came to be known as "Suicide Corner," because so many despairing wretches had ended their lives them. despairing wretches had ended their lives there.

I am no different from the majority of people.

I am no different from the majority of people. On the evening of the first day I was ever in New York I started out to find the street of which I had heard so much. I was told that it began at the New York end of Brooklyn Bridge, and that I easily found. If there exists in the world a more stupefying confusion of cars. carts, men, women and children, and noises, than surges around this terminus of this bridge I have yet to find it.

I sought information of the first policeman I saw, as to where the Bowery was. The officer as we have the Bowery was. The officer was grandly, gloriously drunk, although he wore his uniform and was on duty. But it was a mellow kind of a drunk, and made him good designated various different brilliant lights, by means of which he directed me to various concert halls and places which he said I would find interesting.

"But the glory of the Bowery is gone," he said, in parting, as he gave me a friendly shove out into the throng. "It's been cleared up. It ain't now what it used to be."

That was several years ago. What was true.

miles, reaching as it does up into Harlem. It is a broad, straight street nearly all the way. Of course only the lower part of it, where it passes through the thickly settled part of the city, is particularly distinctive, but this part, although only a fraction of the whole nine miles is long enough so that one wellking on it. miles, is long enough so that one walking on it thinks it endless. It is this element of size which most impresses me, now. In other American cities one may find streets which for a block or two are not essentially different from this, but nowhere else in America do I know of this, but nowhere else in America do I know of a street where one walks for blocks and blocks and blocks through such scenes as these.

It is a natural step from writing of the Bowery to turn to the records of the police courts of the city; the books in which are written down the history of what is known as "the dark side of New York." The week to whose record I happened to turn was what the officers called a "dull" week, because there were reported in it no murders, only two successful suicides, a "dull" week, because there were reported in it no murders, only two successful suicides, and only forty sudden or violent deaths.

Six other persons tried to kill themselves, but failed. The two who succeeded were men, and of one of them the only record which could be made of his name and history was, like so many others, "Unknown." Who was he? Where was his boyhood home? Did proud and loving parents once look upon him as destined to make his mark in the world, little thinking a mellow kind of a drunk, and made him good to make his mark in the world, little thinking natured.

"The Bowery?" he said. "Why, you're on it now." Then he pointed off up the crowded, struggling street, leading off up town, and years old. Because there were no murders does not mean that there were no attempts. One of these was very funny. A fight took place in a saloon, and although the assailant meant business, all right, and tried to shoot to kill, the only wound which his would-be victim received was made by a bullet which hit him in the great toe. Quong Chong, whose name reveals his race, was injured internally by kicks administered by Carlos Admolieno. Angelina Picaraffaelli was attaked by one of his countrymen with a razor, and slashed on the cheek. Another man was slashed with a razor, and a man with a Jewish name was attacked with a club. The record in all these cases, however, was the same; "No arrest." They were simply incidents.

H the Bowery! The Bowery! The Bowery! They do such things and they say such things, On the Bowery."

Thanks pro bably more to the catchy music to which the words are set than to the sentiment itself, the words of this song have made one street in New York more famo us than a ny other in the whole United States. It is safe to say that seven out of every ten persons who come to say that seven out of every ten persons who come to say that seven out of every ten persons who come to say that seven out of every ten persons which they most wish to see.

What then, is the "unknown" grave. One of the five was the body of a boy baby, with a cord tightly knotted and drawn about its neck. Without doubt this was a murder, although perhaps not committed in that particular week. There was nothing by which the child could be identified There were forty-five fires, and in one of these, eight persons were burned to death. This was the burning of a tenement house on one of the most crowded streets in the poorest part of the city, a street leading off the Bowery. The fires of the week were generally spoken of as of little account, though, because there was practically no financial loss.

A BIT OF THE BOWERY.

Sixty-one accidents were reported. Nine of these resulted in sudden or speedy death, and twelve were ultimately fatal. Several of those hurt were injured by objects falling upon them. Others fell from windows, scaffoldings or fire escapes. Six children were hurt by falling off a fence on which they were playing. Twelve persons were run over by wagons of various kinds, and seven were injured by street cars. One man died in a train of the elevated road. One man tried to stop an elevator with his foot and lost his foot as the result.

During the last official quarter—three months—before the week of which I write, the police of the city made 36,503 arrests. 7,457 of those arrested were women. The suicides during this quarter numbered 216. Poison is the favorite method employed to end life. Of the number given above, ninety-six used poison. Forty-one accomplished the same result by inhaling gas.

It would not be fair if I gave the impression.

It would not be fair if I gave the impression that all life on the Bowery was dark. The place swarms with children, and in summer time, at least, they evidently enjoy themselves. time, at least, they evidently enjoy themselves. Boys and girls alike on roller skates shoot in and out amid the crowds on the street and sidewalks. Rotund politicians, gossiping mothers with market baskets on their arms, drunken sailors, spooning couples are all alike to the children. What they cannot go under they go around.

At the head of the Bowery, where it merges into Fourth Avenue, stands a statue of Peter Cooper, and that bigger and nobler statue to him, founded by his money, "The Cooper Union," designed and sustained as an influence for good in this region. Farther down the Union," designed and sustained as an influence for good in this region. Farther down the street, in the most sordid surroundings, is the superb building of the "Bowery Savings Bank." Y. M. C. A. rooms fasten their doors open almost beside the saloons, and church settlements and missions give their workers a foothold. The "Squirrel Inn," just in the very worst part of the whole street, offers a decent meal at a low price, and a comfortable reading-room to those who will avail themselves of the chance. Only a block away are some of the most magnificent and skillfully directed free hospitals the world has ever known.

The words of the song do not tell the whole story. Not all of the things done and said on the Bowery are bad.

the Bowery are bad.

The modern horseshoe is supposed to have been invented in the ninth century.

The Italians are supposed to have invented portable firearms about the year 1430.

How the Farmer Gets His Mail.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ONGRESS has taken a great step in advance by appropriating during its recent session. the sum of $3,500,000 for the coming year's work in the rural free delivery of mail intend-ed for the farmers and outlying agricultural sections of the country, and to give in a measure the same mail service in detached sec-tions as is now given to residents within the cities where there are letter carriers to deliver and receive mail every day.

Incidentally it is in-Incidentally it is interesting to know that the free delivery system has only been in operation in the cities for about thirty-five years, and the original cost was $300,000 a year, while about $15,000,000 is now paid for its maintenance. maintenance.

IN A BLIZZARD. is now paid for its maintenance.

Until the present time, rural free delivery has been largely experimental, but it has now passed that stage, its success is assured, and it is a question of general introduction on the lines of establishing one route and gradually extending throughout all districts. The history of this service is most interesting. No longer ago than 1893, Postmaster-General Bissell concurred in the opinion of his assistant, Gen. Jones, that "The department would not be warranted in burdening the people with such an expense." The next year the same postmaster-general absolutely declined to expend a small appropriation of $10,000 which Congress had made to test the feasibility of the scheme, stating in effect that if it should prove a success it would cost about $20,000,000 annually for general introduction, and he did not believe that the people wanted it. It was with no sorrow that people living in rural homes learned that Gen. W. S. Bissel had retired from Mr. Cleveland's cabinet. Notwithstanding the opposition of the department at this time, Congress the next year appropriated $20,000 for of the work, and notwithstanding the expressed misgivings of Gen. Bissell, evaded any test on similar grounds; but in 1896 Congress again forced the issue by appropriating $40,000 for the work, and notwithstanding the expressed misgivings of Gen. Wilson, he was obliged to put the service in motion. To this end he expressed misgivings of Gen.

Wilson, he was obliged to put the service in motion. To this end he expressed misgivings of Gen. In motion. To this end he chose forty-IN A BLIZZARD.

motion. To this end he chose forty-four widely divergent routes, se-lected with a lected with a view of difference in physical features and density of population.

It would be interesting, but impracticable.

practicable, to repeat in detail the detail the history of the service as given on the earlier routes. In some portions of the country the success was immediate and all that could be wished for by its promoters, while in others the recognition of the service as a convenience was tardy, and for one reason and another not appreciated at its full worth; but the result, with the widely divergent conditions, demonstrated clearly that rural free delivery, judiciously inaugurated, could be made less expensive and more nearly self-sustaining than city free delivery as established in many of the smaller cities under authority of Congress. It was thus made evident that the general success of rural free delivery could only be a question of time. To no two persons living in America is the success of the successful introduction of the free delivery more due than to the present Postmaster-General, Charles Emory Smith, and his former able, energetic, and progressive first assistant, Gen. Perry S. Heath. The latter had the direct charge of this great undertaking under the present administration, and what he did with it can be told in a very few words

Whenever the residents of any rural section ration, and what he did with it can be told in a very few words

Whenever the residents of any rural section desire to obtain this new system of mail delivery, a petition is signed, and on a map is laid out a route covering about 20 miles, on which will be supplied not less than 100 families. This is forwarded to the local congressman, who endorses it and sends it to the Post Office Department, where it is put through the usual routine, and an inspector visits the locality, goes over the routes, and appoints a carrier.

the routes, and appoints a carrier.

Carriers are paid at the rate of $500 a year and furnish their own conveyances. These vary in different parts of the country; one route has automobiles where the roads are good and hard outside of city limits. In the country around Rhode Island, most of the carriers are mounted on bicycles. On some of the earlier established routes are smart teams and delivery wagons.

One of our illustrations shows the team and wagon used on a route in Westmoreland County, Maryland, where much experimenting has been done by officers interested in the estab-lishment of the system.

THE WESTMORELAND OUTFIT.

Another view shows a girl carrier on horseback. She is Miss E. J. Hill of East Greenwich, R. I., who delivers in the country around her own home, riding on a horse in the sum-mer, and in the winter going either in carriage her own home, riding on a horse in the summer, and in the winter going either in carriage or sleigh, and winning the admiration of all those who know of her self-reliance and courageous undertaking.

The rural free delivery has leaped into instant success, and so great has been the pressure upon Congress that from an appropriation of $1,750.000 available last year, they have appropriated $3,500,000 for the work commencing July 1 of this year, and the extension from now on will be very rapid until the country is one network of these routes.

Incidentally, as the carrier takes mail as well as delivers it, sells stamps and does the other work of a postoffice, in fact his carriage is a traveling postoffice, a very great many small offices are and will be discontinued, so that the postal business will be largely concentrated into the larger offices from which the rural routes emanate. This is a great advantage to the average rural citizen, as he will get much better service than he has ever obtained from the small and rather irresponsible offices.

These carriers do some express work on their routes, and so add some to the Government allowance, but it is at best a hard life as they

that part of the world that for a long time it was felt it was left it could not be success-fully carried out in the sparsely populated sections of sections of the United States; but it has been a surprise to all concern-ed, friends and enemies

Our Canadian readers will be pleased to know that the system is soon to be reported on favorably for that country, the Dominion Postmaster General, Wm. Mulock, accompanied by Assistant Postmaster George Ross, of Toronto, having made an investigation in the United States and come back with favorable ideas for its adoption in the king's dominions where the environment is similar to that in the United States.

Synthetic Whiskey.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

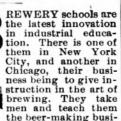

IVILIZED man will no longer be obliged to depend upon grain or potatoes for his whiskey. It has been found that the beverage can be produced by synthesis from such base and at first glance unpromising substances as unpromising substances as blast-furnace slag, coke, and plain water. The slag is raised to a high temperature in the presence of coke, thus evolving calcium carbide. The latter is then put into water, which is electrolyzed, the result being that ethylene gas is formed.

This ethylene gas, at the proper temperature, unites with strong sulphuric acid to form ethyl-sulphuric acid. The latter, when heated with water, forms sulphuric acid and ethyl alcohol. From the ethyl alcohol an artificial whiskey is produced by diluting, coloring and flavoring. It looks and tastes just like any other whiskey, though it is probable that, merely through the influence of prejudice, the average whiskey drinker will continue to prefer rye or Bourbon.

No. 4-Price $1.98

Brewery Schools.

men and teach them the beer-making business from the rudiments up, beginning with the malting of the grain and winding up with the packaging of the goods for market.

Such a school has on its premises a model brewery, which is complete in all respects and exactly like a real brewing establishment, except that it is on a very small scale. Incidentally to the course of instruction, regular brews of beer and ale are made, though perhaps not ally to the course of instruction, regular brews of beer and ale are made, though perhaps not more than three or four gallons of the beverage are turned out at one time. Naturally, one of the most important parts of the teaching relates to the theory of yeast-production and the preservation of the purity of those microscopic fungi upon which the brewer is obliged to denend.

THE LIGHTEST METAL

You have no idea how THE LIGHTEST METAL in the world is Aluminum. You have no idea how well it is adapted to every-day use unless you have one of our Frosted Silver Finish Aluminum Pencils, vest pocket size, patent lead protecting delivery when not in use, can be concealed and prevent lead from breaking. A business man's pencil, a ladies' pencil, or for school children there is no equal. To get our big catalogue of novelties hands we will send one for only 5c. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

CONSTIPATION

SEND NO MONEY IN ADVANCE 4—Short back Sailor of white shell braid. Trimmin ling crown and corded drap with long steel buckle; side

45 - 53 E. Jackson Boulevard,

I Print My Own Money saver, make.

Cards Type settle gasty, rus sent, Write for eathly sent, Write for eathly Books, to factory. Books, Card Press $5 Newspaper. THE PRESS CO. Meriden. Conn.

Sa Day Sure

Send us your address and we will show you
absolutely furn;
the locality where you live. Send us your address and when you will be you
absolutely furn;
the locality where you live. Send us your address and when you will be your address and we will be your address and we explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure. Write at 600, BOX216, Detroit, Re.

by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who for the correctly all Private Affairs, Health, Eusten Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Sarategs,N.Y.

Dance the Highland Fling

One person out of every four has a weak or diseased heart, and still very few people are aware of it. To trouble is that most doctors don't understand heart troubles. very often treat patients for disorders of the Stomach, Lungs, Kidneys and Nerves, when the trouble is in the heart itself.

You can tell whether your heart is affected better than a physician. The signs and symptoms are sure and certain. If you have any one of the following symptoms, you are in grave danger, and may be the next victim to drop dead.

Symptoms of HEART DISEASE

Fluttering, Palpitation, or Skipping Beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); Shortness of Breath from going up stairs, walking, etc.; Tenderness, Numbness or Pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Hungry or Weak Spells; Spots Before the Eyes; Sudden Starting in Sleep; Dreaming, Nightmare; Choking Sensation in Throat; Oppressed Feeling in Chest; Cold Hands and Feet; Painful to Lie on Left Side; Dropsy; Swelling of the Feet or Ankles (one of the surest signs); Neuralgia Around the Heart; Sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

MEDIGINE SENT FREE. I have a positive cure in my Heart Tablets for this most dreaded of all diseases. I am daily curing hundreds of men and women. To show my confidence in my Heart Tablets, I will send, postpaid, a box for trial absolutely free to any sufferers who will send their name and address. This liberal offer should be accepted at once, because heart disease is always fatal, and death comes like a flash of lightning. Enclose stamp for postage. Address, DR. F. G. KINSMAN, Box 962 Augusta, Maine.

630 SILK OFFER. FOR $2.49

4 yards of genuine Le Dorris Cordet Tafeta Silk, the equal to us, enclose $2.49, mention No. 281L, and we will send you this full

THIS IS A GENUINE LEDDRRIS high grade at Taffeta stylish silk shown this season. It is a new 1901 act, and our special 63-cent price barely covers the act, and our special 63-cent price barely covers the country of the styling of t

manifed strictly pure, the most stylish silk shown this season. It is a new 1901 French weave, made for us under contract, and our special 68-cent price barely covers the cost to produce, with but our one small profit added, less than dealers can buy in dozen piece lots, one half the price charged by the best city retailers. IT IS POSITIVELY INE VERY LATEST EFFECT in a handsome corded all pure silk, made especially for walsts, and it is offered by the most fashionable dealers in this and other large cities at fancy prices. It comes in white, maize, light blue, heliotrope, cardinal, nile, violet, pink, rose, fuschia, cerise, turquolse, gray, reseda and black. BR SURE TO STATE COLOR WANTED, and grie first and second choice. Where the same does not state the corded that it is not perfectly satisfactory when received we return your money at lonce. Order two, four or six of these handsome walst patterns at OUR SPECIAL 82.49 PRICE by getting your friends and neighbors to order with you and in this way the express charges for each WILL BE ALMOST NOTHING.

Address all orders SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL, and the price charges for seach WILL BE ALMOST NOTHING.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE

To introduce our famous little Glant exien

To introduce our famous little Glant exient Palls, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life-giving wonders, we send two boxes absolutely free, all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box, send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dlash free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver; they are suitable for dining table use, or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address is coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quicked to no n Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels, and special organs of either sex. All life vanish as if by magic if you see these Pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get cill particulars of our great money making energy proposition, where you get in a gency proposition, where you get ment. Address,

IANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M. Augusta, Maint,

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M. Augusta, Maint

THE DEFEAT OF CONSUMPTION.

SCENE IN THE SLOCUM LABORATORIES, NEW YORK CITY. Dr. Slocum Demonstrating to Medical Men, Scientists, Statesmen and Students the Value of the New Slocum System of Treatment for the Permanent Cure of Consumption, Catarrh and All Pulmonary and Wasting Diseases.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Slocum System of treatment for the Cure of Consumption, and nearly all the ills of life, is medicine reduced to an exact science by the world's foremost specialist, and our readers are urged to take advantage of Dr. Slocum's generous offer.

By their timely use thousands of apparently hopeless cases have been permanently cured.

The Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is needed by some, the Tonic by others, the Expectorant by others, the Jelly by others still, and all four, or any three, or two, or any one, may be used singly or in combination, according to the needs of the case. Full instructions with each set of four free remedies represented in the illustration.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of the Nose, Throat or Lungs! of cure." Root out the slight cold or the little cough, which otherwise might develop into a grave and dangerous disorder.

It is just such unconsidered ailments, carethat grow to become a Pulmonary Trouble or Wasting Disease.

Do not trifle, therefore. Do not delay!
But be sure that you are CURED. Do not stop the cough or the cold and retain the cause.

Root out the cause, and the cold will disappear, the cough will stop.

The remedy which will cure these minor croubles will also cure the serious disorders. to which they lead; it will restore to perfect health sufferers whose lives are being drained health sufferers whose lives are being drained every day by the White Scourge—Consumption, and all the ailments arising from an inflamed condition of the Mucous Membranes of the first of the sufferer with the doctor of the whole was sinking into years on earth of death.

The treatment consists of Four Preparations, and all the ailments arising from an inflamed condition of the Mucous Membranes of the whole was sinking who was sinking into years on earth of death.

OZOJELL is the third in the galaxy of Slocum System of the whole was sinking into open the whole was sink

This remedy is the wonderful discovery so successfully practiced by the world's greatest authority on Pulmonary Diseases and their treatment, the renowned Dr. T. A. Slocum, treatment, the renowned Dr. T. A. Slocum, conceded by the most eminent medical luminaries to be the greatest physician in his specialty that ever applied his remarkable theoretical knowledge to a practical purpose. Thousands of radical cures have established the property of the propert

Consumption Weak Lungs Catarrh and a Run-Down

FREE

New Gure for

System

THE WAY TO HEALTH.

dies form an impregnable bulwark against

The first of these four remedies is the

two, or even one. But together the four reme- inflamed Mucous Membrane, soothing and healing it, and placing it in a condition which leaves no fear of recurrence.

Number four is the EXPECTORANT and Cough Cure. This is an absolutely reliable specific that can positively be relied upon. It is perfectly safe for children, goes to the very root of the trouble, and not merely alle-theoretical knowledge to a practical purpose. Thousands of radical cures have established Dr. Slocum's well-won reputation.

Under the name of the Slocum System, it is daily adding sufferers whose lives have been despaired of, to the ranks of health, literally and Thin, regains appetite and nerve force and the most wonderful results follow. A new revitalized being takes the place of the sufficient of the sufference of the eath.

OZOJELL is the third in the galaxy of Slocum System cures Consumption and all

To obtain these four FREE preparations, that have never yet failed to cure, all you have to do is to write, giving full address and mentioning COMFORT, to

T. A. SLOCUM, 98 Pine Street, New York,

The four free remedies will then be sent you at once direct from the great Slocum Scientific Laboratories with full directions for use in any case.

Guiseppe Verdi.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

UISEPPE Verdi, only a few weeks ago one of the greatest living composers, is now ranked with the great masters who have long since passed

He was born in the little village of Roucole, Italy, where his father was an inn-keeper, in very ordinary circumstances. After he graduated from being an altar-boy in the church of his native town, he became organist at the age of ten years.

About this time he attracted the attention of About this time he attracted the attention of a wealthy brewer, for whom he worked, who assisted him in getting a part of some charitable fund, which allowed him, in our money, one hundred and twenty dollars for two years; and full of hope and ambition he started on a course at the conservatory of music in Milan. But this was very quickly curtailed when the masters of the conservatory rejected him on the grounds that he showed no aptitude for music.

Nothing daunted, however, he pursued his studies for two years with the leader in an orchestra in one of the theaters. During the next ten years he produced sixteen operas; out of these only a few became popular.

At the age of twenty-three he married the daughter of the distiller.

daughter of the distiller.

In 1853 what is generally conceded to be his greatest work, "Il Trovatore," was written and published. In his early struggles he was commonly called the "Hand-organ man," but now all Italy adored him and as one biographer has well said: "He was able to drink of worldwide fame and not have it go to his head."
While he was composing a comic opera for a theater in Vienna, in two short months he lost his wife and two children, and was it any won-der that this opera was unsuccessful? Verdi was worshiped in his country. He was

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

The crushing is done by expensive machinery in what are known as stamp mills, where great hammers drop in rapid succession on the ore. From the drop in rapid succession on the ore. From the stamp mills the crushed mass is taken to the smelters, where heat and chemicals are used to separate the baser from the precious metal.

Perhaps the most interesting method is a comparatively recent one, which is known as the cyanide process. In this the ore is crushed to powder and then dumped into great steel vats filled with a strong solution of cyanide of potassium. The cyanide dissolves the gold and the refuse settles to the bottom. Then the auriferous solution is poured over tanks filled with fine zinc shavings. The gold is deposited on the zinc and the cyanide drawn off. Then the gold covered zinc is melted and the yellow metal at last comes out in its free state. al at last comes out in its free state.

By far the most gold that has yet been taken from the earth has been found in alluvial de-earth to dissolve. Then he carefully pours out the muddy water.

By repeating this process several times he has left a lot of gravel and black sand. Filling the pan with clean water once more, he dexterous-left and the rock and the masses of stones broken into small chunks. The se chunks are in turn crushed in a fine powder, which is treated in various ways to separate the gold.

The crushing is achinery in what are where great hammers, where great hammers, where great hammers, where great hammers, which is treated it mass is taken to the dehemicals are used to the precious metal. It at the end of his clean which is the ore is crushed into great steel gold and bottom. Then the aured over tanks filled with e gold is deposited on le drawn off. Then the left is treated in various ways to see the condition of cyanide of led down off. Then the left and the rock and the drawn off. Then the left and the rock and the darw off. Then the left and the rock and the drawn off. Then the left and the rock and the darw off. Then the left and the rock and the darw off. Then the left and the rock and the rock and the darw off. Then the left and the rock and the

and in exceptional cases more. A man can wash out about 40 panfuls in a day. Undoubtedly it must be fascinating and exciting work when for each quarter hour's labor the miner sees his hoard of dust increased by from $1 to $50. But, on the other hand, picture to your-elected member of the Italian parliament and appointed a senator by Victor Immanuel, but he had a horror of notoriety and never took his seat. On being made "Marquis of Busseto" (where he owned a country house) he replied: "My gratitude will be far greater if this honor be spared me."

All the world is thinking of this great and sincere regret. According to Verdi himself, Pietro Mascagni, of "Cavelleria-Rusticana" fame, will be his successor at the head of the Italian music of today. Verdi left about $\frac{x}{2}$, condo,000, most of which goes toward the support of his Home for Musicians

Mining and Its Processes.

Dosits—that is, it has been found mixed with gravel and dirt along the banks of small stream good claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd claim or working a worthless one. It must be back: breaking work to wash out pancuse it has been washed down from surrounding the banks of small growd later pancul of earth and to find at the bot on not a trace of the glittering yellow meats to get a good claim, however, he is usually not contented to stick to the must be a pancuse pancuse pancuse. The several back: back is the pour proved claim or working a worthi placer mining must be done near a small stream or river, but fortunately for the miner the placers are usually located in just that position.

N quartz mining the gold is found imbediated in the middy water.

By repeating this process several times he has bottom and lodge against the cleats. The sieve bottom and lodge against the cleats. The sieve is lifted out the gravel dumped and the process repeated. Atthe end of the day's work the strips of carpet are dried and then beaten carefully on a paper or sheet to knock out the precious dust. The black sand which has accumulated on the bottom of the cradle is carefully scraped into a pan and washed. With a rocker one man can wash as much dirt in a day rocker one man can wash as much dirt in a day as ten men using pans.

If he is a good carpenter, he can take advantage of a still more elaborate apparatus and greatly increase his product. A sluice box or tom and rifle box works on the same principle. They require streams of running water, and sometimes the miner must dam up a small creek to get the required head. Then there is hydraulic mining, which is only a scientific application of the same principle. Instead of shovelling the dirt into a box a strong stream of water is thrown against a gravel bank, and contrivances for catching the gold are arranged contrivances for catching the gold are arranged in the path of the water as it runs away All of which information is for the benefit of those who are not going to the goldfields and who have never been in a gold country, yet who read with absorbing interest about the who do go and pile up fortunes in a few

Colored window glass was known to be used in churches as early as the eighth century.

Torricelli, an Italian, invented the barometer. He was a pupil of Galileo. He died in Florence, in 1647.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comfort Palmistry Club. Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank

for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fraity, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this timpression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

NUMBER of questions come to be an-

NUMBER of questions come to be an swered this month.

N. E. W. says: "I have two marriage lines under the little finger, the upper one larger than the lower. (In both hands alike.) My life line has an accompanying line (not the line of Mars) at about twenty-five years of age for about ten years, then it stops; it disappears into the life line; a little lower another line begins and goes down close to the life line to the wrist. This line; a little lower another line begins and goes down close to the life line to the wrist. This is in the left hand. In the right hand the upper line is not visible, but the lower, however, not as clear as in the left hand. Then my fate line has below the head line also, a similar line close to it up to Mount of Saturn in both hands. Now are these lines an indication of two marriages? All the lines are more clearly marked in the left hand." These lines would indicate two marriages and the age must be determined by the position of the lines with regard to both life and fate lines.

Dora asks several questions. First, lines gard to both life and fate lines.

Dora asks several questions. First, lines starting from the lower Mount of Mars, crossing life, fate, and head lines to the heart line, mean what? They mean some interference with love affairs, either on your own part or on the part of some one very near to you.

Second. What does it mean when the life line is broken near the lower end and the sun line starts from the end of the lower piece of life line and curves upward with a system line following to the base of the third finger? The break in the life line indicates the end of the life unless the other lines follow it closely enough to bridge over the trouble. The sun line accompanied by a sister line indicates a weakening of the effect of the latter. Care should be taken, however, not to confound the sun and the fate lines.

Third. A line that starts from the life line sun and the fate lines.

Third. A line that starts from the life line crossing the fate line to the Mount of the Moon? This would mean some interference with the life at the point indicated on the life line. It may be for good or for evil, according to the way the lines read after the date of this one.

What is the signification when the head line is forked with one line going down to the Mount of Moon, displacing the fate line which begins below the break and goes to the heart line with a line.

the fate line which goes to the heart line with a line going from the crossing of fate and head to the heart line, as in cut? The head line branching with one line dewith one line descending, gives an indication of hypocrisy and deceit. This will be bettered if there is a good line of Apollo or a strong fate line. In this particular case I should say the sign was a good one, the subject being imaginative and poetic in temperament with an ability to turn this faculty to good account.

How can you tell the marriage line by the side of the life line from the line of Mars? The side of the life line from the line of Mars? The marriage line follows much closer to the life line than that of Mars. Is it a sure sign of marriage when accompanied by the marriage line under the little finger? It is so stated by authorities. It should be noted, however, that in palmistry as in all occult sciences, a marriage and a very close intimacy are considered the and a very close intimacy are considered the

I should not pay much attention to lines that can only be seen when the hand is wet can only be seen when the hand is wet.

Several people have inquired for the price of the best books on palmistry and where they may be obtained. Heron-Allen's Manual of Cheirosophy and Cheiro's Book of the Hand are the best books and may be obtained by sending to Brentano, Union Sq., New York City. The price of each is $2.00.

"Cody" sends two fine impressions of his hand for this month's reading. He has an excellent business hand. He has good judgment, an upright moral character, good sense and manliness. He is of a venturesome disposition but he needs to cultivate the habit of depend-an upright moral character, good sense and manliness. He is of a venturesome disposition but he needs to cultivate the habit of depending upon his own judgment. In early life he was kept under the jurisdiction of others, but some close friendship or intimacy formed then will grow apart from him and this will be for his advantage. He is a very ambitious man and will realize his ambitions, but not until after he has made some hard struggles. He will do well to go into a mining region and try his fortune there, but he will need to have not only the kind of courage to start with but to keep him at it even when things look most discouraging. He is liable to have a disappointment in love somewhere from twenty-five to thirty, or possibly thirty-two, but it will turn out to be a good thing in the end. I think he will not marry before he has reached thirty-five and then will make an advantageous marriage. He will be wealthy in his old age but must not look for great success in a financial way before the age of forty-five at least. I predict that he will be a distinguished man in old age, and probably one of the leading men in his part of the country. On the whole he will be a successful man, his greatest success greatest success coming after he is fifty years old, and when he has developed the power of striking out for himself and making new ventures. He is fitted for life in the mining course. the mining country and would enjoy it much better than being tied to business customs in a more conventional place.

So many questions are asked with regard to the marriage line

tions are asked with regard to the marriage line that I will give you what Heron-Allen quotes as signs of a happy marriage. A cross upon the Mount of Jupiter denotes a happy marriage, and if a star be found there also, it indicates a brilliant and advantageous marriage. If the fate line goes from the Mount of the Moon up to the heart line and then mingles itself with the heart line, both going to the Mount of Jupiter, it is an infallible sign of a rich and fortunate marriage. A star on the Mount of Jupiter signifies a brilliant marriage with good luck, honor, love and success. The only good signification of the cross is upon the Mount of Jupiter when it signifies a happy marriage.

His signs of unhappy marriage include a worry line, starting from the Mount of Venus going straight to the heart, and if it forks where it cuts the life line it indicates an unhappy marriage or even a divorce. Another is when the line of heart turns down to the line of head or sends a ray across it; it is a sign of a miserable marriage or deep grief of the heart. A star at the base of the thumb between the phalanx of logic and the Mount of Venus points to an unhappy marriage which will be the curse of the whole existence unless the Mount of Jupiter be developed in which case the subject will get over it. A line extending from a star on the Mount of Venus to a fork under the finger of Saturn betrays an unhappy marriage. If, however, this line ends in a square in the palm of the hand instead of the aforesaid fork, it signifies a narrow escape from a miserable marriage. Lines from the phalanx of logic to the line of life are thought by the old authorities to indicate marriage; if they are confused they betray troubles in love and marriage. If a man's hand has the Mount of Mars well developed and with few lines or rays it is the sign that he will marry late in life, but will always be the victim of pretty women. Men having the type of hand developed after the Mount of Apollo, often make unfortunate marriages because often their ideals ar of logic and either one very deep, or three strong lines upon the Mount of Apollo, which is situated under the third finger.

Salaries of Admirals.

DMIRAL Dewey will receive $13,500, whether on duty at sea or on shore. The senior rear admirals' pay is fixed at $7500 at sea and $6375 on shore. Rear Admiral Schley is in this list, but only receives the minimum amount as he is assigned to shore duty. The junior rear admirals receive $5500 while on sea duty and $4675 on shore. Rear Admiral Sampson is in the junior list, but having a command at sea receives the maximum pay.

How to Quit Tobacco.

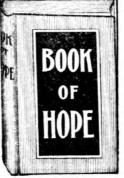

A TRIAL PACKAGE FREE.

Cured After Using Tobacco 40 Years

HEALTH AND WEAL

The seeming mysterious force which was originated into a science by Prof. H. C. Murphy, President of the American Institute of

MODERN MAGNETISM

and now known throughout the entire world as MAGNETIC HEAL. ING, gives its students the power to control the body and mind of others; also the power to dispel disease as if by magic. It is the grandest pain reliever known to man; it is the only sure road to success financially, physically, socially and politically. With this wonderful power, health, fame and riches can be obtained; also the affections of those you love Youlearn this wonderful science at home. The only education necessary is the knowledge to read. The mail course which is sent to all, makes you efficient in each branch of this grand science. Through the knowledge you gain you are able, without the use of drugs or the surgeon's knife, to

Cure Yourself

as well as those about you. There are many people, both men and women, who shrink from the embarrassment of making their diseases public, and on this account gothrough the world suffering tortures and pain, but through this method you are able to HEAL YOURSELF IN THE PRIVACY OF YOUR OWN HOME, and in a few days you are in the sunshine of health to the surprise of your acquaintances. Many a modest woman suffering untold agony from diseases peculiar to her sex, has gone to a premature grave rather than subject herself to the embarrassment of an examination. The same can be said of men suffering from indiscretions that they were ashamed to confess. This grand method permits sufferers of both sexes to do away with this embarrassment, for by it they cure themselves without the assistance of anyone, of every disease and infirmity. THE BOOK OF HOPE, written by Prof. Murphy, in a plain and concise manner tells you exactly how you can gain this wonderful influence whereby you become proficient in curing disease and bad habits in yourself and in others; develop mental energy, gratify ambition and your every wish; also gives you the key to personal and social successes and teaches you the GRANDEST AND BEST PAYING PROFESSION OF THE AGE, as it is an acknowledged fact that there is no profession known to-day where independence can be so easily gained as through this grand profession. RETEMBER, this book costs you nothing, and it reveals wonderful secrets and makes the impossibilities of yesterday the realities of to-day.

ABSOLUTELY FREE Send your name and address and you will receive this grand book, which is beautifully illustrated, rich in all its details, on which neither expense or the grand profession and elegant illustrations, and is a token which anyone may be proud of. Remember, it costs you nothing, and with it you receive the Hagnetic Record a 36-page illustrated magazine. Thousands who have become successful through this mail course, write similar letters to these:

Rev. S. P. Freyberger*, Goshen, Ind., writes:

Rev. S. P. Freyberger, Goshen, Ind., writes: "Your course will enable the student to practize the Art of Healing as soon as the course is completed. Having practiced Magnetic Healing for a year past, and having been very successful, I thank you most heartily for the knowledgel received from a study of your mail course." Dr. E. Pritchard, Luling, Texas, writes: "I would not take $500 for your course and do without it. I had catarrh of the head, and also constipation, of several years standing, and have cured myself of both diseases. I have also cured every person I have treated." The field of Magnetic Healing is as broad as the world itself. It brings wealth, health, happiness and influence.

Write to-day and receive the Book of Hope and the Magnetic Record FREE.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE,

ADIES I Make Big Wages AT HOME— this pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. I have often made a day. Even your spare time is valuable. This is no deception, out to momey and will leadly send full particulars to all send-

Even your spare time is valuable. This is no deception, money and will gladly send full particulars to all send-pp. ARS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box S, Benton Harbor, Mich.

WORN NIGHT and DAY.
Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about ated Book telling all about upture sent FREE, secure-sealed. G. V. HOUSE 'F'G. CO., 744 Broad-ay, New York. ar when you write.

Fasy, permanent home cure. Absolutely publish, New Germa disphine, Opium, Laudanum and kindred drug habits. Confederation Correspondence Invited. Trial Treatment FREE, Berlin Remedy Co., Suite K, 1123 Broadway, N.I.

DO YOU WANT A WATCH that runs and keps god me? This watch has a SOLID GOLD laid case, hardens all, dust proof, adjusted to position, nated seapment, and highly finished. This is a remarkable watch by causing the property of the seament is an AMRICAN STILL, especial

$5.00 SHAVING SET

For selling only six of our Electric Porous Plasters. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc., etc., and will send you six of our 25c. Plasters which you are to sell and return the money ($1.50) to us, and we will send you, all charges paid, the elegant Shaving Set, packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and five inches nigh. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor, single rate, $3.00; 1 Genuine, Horsehide, Double, Reversible, Canvas-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Rator, and the Strop, value, $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Strop, value, $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Strop, value, $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle combination. Every Man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother, or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 1229, Augusta, Maine.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publi-cation of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscrib-rs to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's wn name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

1st.	For	the	best or	igina	letter		$3.00
2nd.	44	44	second	best	original	letter	2.50
3rd.	44		third			44	2.00
4th.			fourth	46			1.50
5th.		44	fifth	44			1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least two new Cousins into the Comport circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together rith 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this artment.

• premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in er this Price Offer.

I communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, of Comport, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

83.00

2.00

1.00

Mrs. Rose Lane Brown, George Osborne,
Fannie Muraski,
E. M. Paquin,
Mayme Pranger,

EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS: Howling March has given way to fickle April, and now "Smiling May" is ushering in the long, beautiful summer season. I hope you are all in a condition to enjoy it and that every one of you will be able to spend a part of its pleasant days in resting from your usual cares and duties in some delightful spot.

Our first letter this month is a touching tribute to the old and fast disappearing black mammy of the South. Those of us who have spent any part of our lives in touch with this dear old friend, and I am happy to say that I am one of those, will glad ly join me in thanking Mrs. Brown for giving us this beautiful letter, and illustrating it with a photograph of her own "erst-while black Mammy photograph of her own "erst-while black Mammy Chloe."

"The Black Mammy', a vestige of the old South, is yet to be met with occasionally, although, alasi the ranks are thinning sadly, and some day soon her 'chillun', white and black, will stand with streaming eyes, and drop regretful tears into the open grave of the last member of that faithful band. Her place can never be filled by her peers again, and when the last 'black mammy' is gone then, indeed, will the ante-bellum south be but a memory. It is well that the grand purposes of God be consummated; and when He decrees that a peculiar people, or class of people, shall become extinct, not all the riches of the world, not all the art nor desire of man can replace them. But the 'black mammies' will live on forever in the memory of those who have known and loved them.

"If there is any one, north or south, who does not know what a 'black mammy' is let ours be the loving task of painting her dear portrait. She was the old black woman who usually was the first to receive into her faithful arms the new-born babe of her mistress, and on her broad bosom it was hushed to sleep and in some cases shared with her own offspring the sustenance furnished by nature; upon whose shoulders childish griefs were wept away, who coaxed refractory patients into swallowing hatel medicine by promise of surreptitious treats;—who petted and scolded, caressed and chastised, all the while exacting for herself absolute obedience and respect,—who soothed as none else could, the fevered restlessness of illness, and wept with heart-broken abandon when death robbed her of her charges. Those of them yet ungathered unto the great harvest, though their heads are whitened by the frosts of many winters and the old hands withered and trembling, are garrulous of the powerty and general 'no 'countedness' of these degenerate days. When the dim old eyes are closed in the last sweet sleep which falls on God's faithful and patient ones, may He grant her oft-repeated win the last sweet sleep which falls on to one of the 'white and shining ones' of His angel band." Rose Lane Brown, Athens, Tennessee.

"MAMMY CHLOE" AND HER LATEST CHARGE.

Now here is a pleasant and helpful letter which explains itself.

"Many cousins have written me concerning this locality and not finding it convenient to answer each one separately I have appealed to our good auntie to help me out by publishing a few lines to you. Several men who have recently left the east say that wages for labor there and here are about the same—one dollar to one and a half per day or twenty-five dollars and board per month for farm hands; clerks here receive an average of two dollars per day without board; from sixty dollars to one hundred per month are paid to teachers. Some one asked about hop-picking: it lasts but two or three weeks and is paid for by the hundred lbs-ninety cents to one dollar. Apple picking is much better and lasts for several months. The climate is all that could be desired, and in that respect the worker has much advantage over his eastern brother. The mercury seldom registers more than ninety-six degrees in the shade in summer and then only for two to five days when a fog comes in from the ocean. You can form some idea of our winter when I say that geraniums grow and bloom in the open air. The different soils are sediment along the river, adobe, loam, clay and sand in the hills and valleys."

IVEA B. CLARK, Watsonville, Cal.

I am fond of traveling and of seeing new and

I am fond of traveling and of seeing new and strange places, but I would rather be excused from a similar experience to the one related below, wonderful and magnificent though it must have been. Our friend says:

Our friend says:

"I was highly pleased with Miss Wood's description of Honolulu in one of the late numbers of Aunt Minerva's Chats. It is true to life. The following story is no fancy yarn, but my own experience and impressions of the wonderful volcano.
"During one of my many visits to the crater of Kilauea, Hawaii, I was fortunate enough to view it at a season of great activity, and on that day I had a most thrilling experience that I am not likely soon to forget. I had lost my way and was found by the guide near the edge of the lake and in one of the most dangerous places possible to find. Fortunately, we got away just in time, for, before I realized my danger, a terrible commotion occurred, and in a minute I was nearly blinded with smoke, choked with sulphur fumes, scorched with heat, deafened with noise, almost covered with 'Pele's hair', and at the same time nearly thrown from my feet by the terrible shock.
"But what a marvelous sight met my astonished gaze as the molten lava commenced to lash the sides of the crater like the waves upon the seashore! Then, with lightning quickness small fountains began to play all around the sides of the lake and three large fountains of fire started near its center. Larger and larger they spread, higher and higher they went, brilliant and more brilliant they grew, and at last they flew together in one grand, indescribable conflagration, with a force that seemed to shake the foundations of the world, and a noise like the crack of doom, while the place on which I stood seemed to writhe and shake like some great monster in pain.

HALE-MAU-MAU

"To say that I was speechless with wonder and fright is putting it very mildly. For one moment I felt that no power on earth could save me from the horrible death of being engulfed in this seething ocean of fire. No words of mine can express the thankfulness which I felt when I got safely away from this terrible caldron and stood once more upon solid ground."

George Osborne, Pannilo, Hawaii

The following letter will be of interest to those

The following letter will be of interest to those of my readers who have not had the pleasure-or the misery-of a visit to China.

"One of the most interesting sights to be witnessed in San Francisco is that portion of the city known as Chinatown. It comprises some twenty or thirty blocks of closely built structures into which are huddled many thousands of Chinese, the merchants conducting their business in that part of the building which can be entered from the outside, and living with their families in the rear of their stores.

the merchants conducting their business in that part of the building which can be entered from the outside, and living with their families in the rear of their stores.

"The dividing line which separates Chinatown from the rest of San Francisco is most distinct, and in fact one almost feels on entering Chinatown that one has crossed the broad Pacific and is in the kingdom of China. The Chinese will not be separated from their native customs but carry them wherever they go. They decorate their stores with the various colors so delightful to the Oriental eye, they dress themselves in the self-same style in which their race has dressed since the beginning, and even though they have come to a country where there is plenty of room they huddle in the closest quarters they can possibly find. In fact, there are places in Chinatown which descend two and three stories underground and ascend as many stories overhead, while in buildings twenty-feet in width by seventy-five in length dwell as many as five hundred Chinese. The better class, however, live a little more comfortably.

"Their New Year occurs some time in the month of February. Its festivities last for ten or twelve days, during which time business is suspended and the Chinese live a life of gayety according to their ideas. They deck themselves in garments comprising all the colors of the rainbow and visit back and forth among themselves. In the evenings they invite a limited number of their American friends to visit them, to whom their hospitality is unbounded; for they not only set before their visitors all the choice fruits and dainties imported from their native land, but they bestow upon them package after package of the same to carry away with them.

"The narrow streets of Chinatown present a very curious appearance on these evenings, being illuminated with thougands of brilliantly colored paper.

"The narrow streets of Chinatown present a very curious appearance on these evenings, being illuminated with thousands of brilliantly colored paper lanterns and made noisy by the din of Chinese music and the display of fireworks; and thousands of Americans, not favored with invitations to the dwellings, walk about viewing the strange sights. The Joss houses and theaters in which the Chinese perform their curious plays, and the tea house are open to all visitors, however, and so, although special invitations to private houses are limited to the favored few, there is very much which is open to any one caring to visit this curious place.

Fannie Muraser, San Francisco.

Our friends this month seem to have the negro The narrow streets of Chinatown present a very even the old board house rattled to the tune. One peculiar feature of the scene was that every man danced with his hat on his head. I asked a colored woman near me why the men did not remove their hats while dancing:

"'Laws me! Some one would steal 'um,' was the reply.

"When the cotillion was ended they all filed into the next room—a lean-to. We followed. There, spread upon a table, were candies, cakes, nuts and heaps of 'chicking,' roasted and fried. Each fellow was expected to treat his late partner. 'Chicking' was in great demand, and as a dime was the charge for a leg, wing, and so on, it struck me that Uncle Bob, at whose house the festival was given, had an eye to profit as well as pleasure. Uncle Bob invited us also to patronize him, so, following the entertainment), we saw through the open door that they were forming another 'set'. The violin was being tuned, and in order to free their hands every one on the floor was cramming his or her mouth to its utmost capacity. Then from the dark corner came the music—a wild measure which compelled one to listen, yes, and to pat one's foot too, even though growing old. Again the noisy, rollicking fun. The jolly, black faces, with their white teeth and flashing eyes, seemed to have a light of their own as they swung through the dusky room. Around the walls a legion of men and boys were potting 'juber' and dancing breakdowns, apparently to their own satisfaction, and altogether it was the most care-free crowd I ever came across.

"We watched them a while and then said good-by to Uncle Bob and departed, leaving the old house rattling merrily as they all came down the middle to the tune of 'Sally Gooding'."

E. M. Paquin, W. Wiggs, Arkansas. woman near me why the men did not remove their hats while dancing:

"Laws me! Some one would steal 'um,' was the reply.

"When the cotillion was ended they all filed into the next room—a lean-to. We followed. There, spread upon a table, were candies, cakes, nuts and heaps of 'chicking,' roasted and fried. Each fellow was expected to treat his late partner. 'Chicking' was in great demand, and as a dime was the charge for a leg, wing, and so on, it struck me that Uncle Bob, at whose house the festival was given, had an eye to profit as well as pleasure. Uncle Bob invited us also to patronize him, so, following the example of the others, we took chicken, and I must say that the cooking was excellent.

"While holding our 'drumsticks' in our fingers, (plates, knives and forks not being a feature of the entertainment), we saw through the open door that they were forming another 'set'. The violin was being tuned, and in order to free their hands every one on the floor was cramming his or her mouth to its utmost capacity. Then from the dark corner came the music—a wild measure which compelled one to listen, yes, and to pat one's foot too, even though growing old. Again the noisy, rollicking fun. The jolly, black faces, with their white teeth and flashing eyes, seemed to have a light of their own as they swung through the dusky room. Around the walls a legion of men and boys were potting 'juber' and dancing breakdowns, apparently to their own satisfaction, and altogether it was the most care-free crowd I ever came across.

"We watched them a while and then said good-by to Uncle Bob and departed, leaving the old house rattling merrily as they all came down the middle to the tune of 'Sally Gooding'."

E. M. Paquin, Wiggs, Arkansas.

Here is a pleasant home letter from our Georgia cousin, Millie Darby.

Here is a pleasant home letter from our Georgia cousin, Millie Darby.

Georgia cousin, Millie Darby.

"I would like to tell you, dear Comfort readers, something of this section of Georgia, eighty miles from Savannah and one hundred from Macon.

"This is the fruit growing section of the State. Last year thousands of carloads of peaches, pears, berries, grapes and melons were sent from this section. The fruit crop was larger than it has been for years. The Elberta peaches shipped from here can nowhere be excelled. This too, is the pine belt of the State. Lumber and turpentine make the chief wealth of Southern Georgia but in a few years the timber will have been used up, and more attention will be turned to cultivating the soil, which is very fertile. Cotton, corn, rice, potatoes, sugar cane, tobacco, peanuts, oats, rye and wheat can be successfully grown here, also any varieties of vegetables and many kinds of fruit. We have cotton factories and oil mills, but there is room for more, and canning factories would pay well here.

"The climate is pleasant in the summer, as we get here.

"The climate is pleasant in the summer, as we get the breezes from the ocean. In winter we often have ice and sometimes snow.
"Taking everything into consideration this is a pleasant place to live. Northern people are discovering this fact, for hundreds of them have settled here."
MULLIE A. DARRY, Vidalia, Georgia.

MILLIE A. DARBY, Vidalia, Georgia. The following letter will interest our "old soldiers" of whom I hope there are many among the readers of COMFORT.

diers" of whom I hope there are many among the readers of Comfort.

"The Soldiers' Homes, as known within the United States today, are unique. Institutions of Similar character, under various names, have long been maintained by the great nations of Europe; but in proportion to the numbers in their respective military establishments, the capacity is very small and the use mostly confined to a favored few. It remained for our country—the most liberal in all history to its defenders—to provide Homes for its soldiery by tens of thousands. "To General Winfield Scott belongs the honor of the first successful effort to found a Soldiers' Home in America: and he reinforced his request to Congress by sending to the Secretary of War a draft for $100,000, which he begged to have used for the purpose indicated.

"It was finally decided to have a Soldiers' Home in Marshalltown, which is about in the center of Iowa: and a tract of land, consisting of one hundred and twenty-three acres, was devoted to this purpose. The buildings are located upon a commanding eminence overlooking the city and about a mile and a half distant from its center.

"The chief buildings for the present Home village is four stories in height and furnishes dormitory room for three hundred and fifty men, with chapel, library, reading and recreation rooms, kitchen, laundry, shops, bathrooms, etc., including the headquarters' office. Other buildings are the Quartermaster's department, original hospital, now used as a dormitory, a separate lighting and heating plant, cottages for Commandant, Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon, and ten small cottages each designed for a soldier and his wife. Many soldiers live out of doors during the summer months in little caves or dug-outs.

"There is a large piece of ground connected with the Home which the soldiers cultivate. Beds of all imaginable shapes filled with flowers dot the grounds in all directions. There are also many hot-houses. Artificial lakes and ponds peep out here and there, and the lowa river, which flo also provided with gospel privileges, medical attendance, medicines, laundry work, stationery, postage stamps, tobacco and shaving.

MAIN BUILDING OF IOWA SOLDIERS' HOME.

"The new hospital is handsome and inviting, both within and without, and, besides the surgeon-incharge, there is an experienced lady superintendent who is a trained nurse and who has a corps of other ladies under her direction as assistants."

MAYME PRANGER, Fort Madison, Iowa.

Now here are a few extracts from a long and incharge.

Now here are a few extracts from a long and interesting letter from one of our Texas cousins. He to the favored few, there is very much which is open to any one caring to visit this curious places.

Fannie Muraski, San Francisco.

Our friends this month seem to have the negrorace much in mind, for here is a second letter on the topic, but on quite a different phase of it. This time it is a "festival" among the colored people which calls for our attention.

"I was once an invited guest at a festival among the darkeys speak of their 'festivals,' and was quite auxious to see one, so this was an opportunity not to be neglected.

"We arrived about dark, and found the interior of the rough, board house doubly dark with the assembled crowd. There was one small, chimneyless lamp burning on the mantel shelf, but so many black faces quenched its light until it seemed more like a bright spot than an illumination. In one corner the blackest of negroes was playing on a violin, and as we entered they were just forming their first cotillion.

"They were soon dancing, and to use a slang phrase, 'dancing all over'; feet, arms, body and head being possessed by the rhythm of the music;

And now good-by for another month.

AUNT MINERVA.

IF YOU HAVE DYSPEPSIA Send no money, but write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., Box 36, for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Restorative, express paid. If cured, pay $5.50—if not, it is free.

SPECIAL SALE.

FOR this month only, we offer at a reduced price a quantity of elegant cloth bound books by such authors as Browning, Carlyle, Halevey, Bacon, Tennyson, Ruskin, Lamb and Arnold. These books are printed on good paper with clear type, and the best of ink. Are for library, school and home use being the best work of these writers. You cannot afford to be without these books at this unheard of low price. Hardly pays postage as each book weighs 12 ounces or over. If you send now we will send one only for 10c. and pay the postage; four for 32c. by express collect. If not satisfactory money refunded. Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

AGENTS MAKE $50 PER WEEK and expenses.

FREE Handsome Catalogue. National Shoe & Garment Co., 136 Van Buren St., Chicago.

$50 A Month distributing samples. Enclose stamp. Inter'l Dis. Bureau, 43 John St., New York.

WE are giving away Life Size Dolls for a little work.

Address National Medicine Co., New Haven, Conn.

"SPRING CATALOGUE FREE. Write for it. M. PHIL-"SPRING CATALOGUE IPSBORN, 138 State St., Chicago."

F YOU HAVE ANY DISEASE, write W. O. Broaddus School of Healing, Terre Haute, Indiana.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio. WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home.

$300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c.

R. MAXWELL, Box C, South Bend, Ind.

PILES CURED. Box Free. L. F. WAGNER, B. O. Box 163, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

$5 A DAY Selling Flavor Powders. Sample Free, C. S. HORNER CO., 1409 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample copy free on application.

$8 Paid Per 100 for Distributing Samples of Washing fluid. Send 6c. stamp. A.W. SCOTT, Cohoes, N.Y.

Will Answer All Mails. Orders for Ranges and before buying. C. R. Everson, Macedon, N. Y.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work.
Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 610 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

FREE DOLL offer to girls. A big and lovely beauty, 1 M feet tall. No money wanted. FIRESIDE JOURNAL, Bridgewater, Coun

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No cantor reply. Miss MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind. Please mention COMFORT when you write,

GUITAR VIOLIN, MANDOLIN BANJO Self-Taught, Without Notes by Figure Music. Send for BIG Illustrated Catalog of Instructors and Instruments E. C. HOWE, 1642 Masonic Temple, Chicago.

PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS entirely removed in 2 to 5 days Never fails. Skin left soft, clear and healthy. Perfectly harmless. Send 10 cts. Prof. F. R. BIRD, Dept. 82, 64 Federal St., Boston, Mass.

AND WATCH. Sell 20 stamped DOILES, BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS, to friends and neighbors at 10c. each and give away FREE 20 Coupen Cards and when remistances for doilles and cards have been sent us, we send you a BEAUTIFUL WATCH, guaranteed a good time-keeper, and a ROYAL TEA SET, every piece full size for family use, beautifully decorated and of very latest chape. Send only name and advesse (no money) and we will send doilles, etc., po-stpaid. Benember, we positively give both WATCH and TEA SET. WE TRUST YOU.

ROYAL SILK CO-9C. A. 25, NEWAR, NEW HRSET.

This firm actually gives Watch and Tea Set.

NOT A PIG

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other pa-per or magazine in America. Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and re always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered. POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepried by us. CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure ogive former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on ur books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions.

COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Mouthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building

Guaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES Each and Every Issue, Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

May must bring a sense of relief to those dwellers in the North who have regretfully chronicled one hundred and sixteen days of continuous sleighing. Only those who have spent nearly one-third of the year on runners can really appreciate May. It was one of the victims of that climate who rejused to buy a coonskin coat because there were two months of the year in which he could not wear it.

The Pan-American exhibition that opens in May at Buffalo promises to surpass all previous efforts in the line of electrical display Away back in the Colonial times Franklin astonished the scientific world of Europe by his discoveries in electricity. Since then America has led the world in its discoveries in the field of electricity and its practical application of the science. The power supplied from Niagara is to be used and it is safe to say that the wildest dream will not exceed the beauties and wonders of this greatest demonstration of the advance of electrical work.

The industrious philologists who are perpetually searching for the origin of words, phrases and proverbs have run the word "tip" to earth. The modern "tip" is the result of an old English custom of placing a box against the wall with the words above "To insure promptness." Patrons of the inn dropped small sums in the box and the amount was divided among the waiters. "Tip" is the initial letters of the phrase. America has contracted only the expression of the fact for the "tip" itself has grown out of all proportion in its American development.

An English Woman's Love Letters and Love Letters of a Musician are among the most discussed books of the year. In addition to this we have the letters of the Brownings, of Hugo and of Balzac. Everyone is eager to read these lengthy records of sentiment. It may be because those of this century have no time to write the record of their affection with rhetorical flourishes. The telegraph, the telephone and the messenger boy suggest brevity and directness. There is no time for the written word. No one really writes love letters today and the next generation will have to go without the pleasure of editing the love letters of famous men or women. All the love letters of famous men or women. All the love letters that this century has time to write are those intended for publication and written at so intended for publication and written at so much "per"-and yet we find time to read the long letters published.

One of the best drawing features of the Sportsmen's Show is Hiawatha. The Indian tribe whose manners, legends and customs live in the beautiful poem enacted the scenes last summer at their reservation near Lake Huron. Longfellow's daughter was their guest and it was for her entertainment that the tribe undertook the play. The result of the Indians' work was so satisfactory that they were brought on to New York. It is said that they will have further instruction in the details of giving the play and will present it during the summer with the wild scenery of Lake Huron as a stage setting. The Indian is naturally dramatic but this use of his talents is new and strange. The novelty will attract the curious and the pleasure seeker while the strange contrast between the real life of the primitive Indian and the mock representation of it by the modern Indians will suggest much to the student of history.

"To be a butterfly" has long been a term of reproach when it was applied to a person.

terflies give to the landscape? Their airy, aimless, graceful flight with its restful lack of purpose has a distinct artistic value. The practical patriotism of the Revolutionary societies in marking by tablets and monuments the great deeds of the Revolution. beauties of the long drowsy summer days, the memories of country flowers and sounds are all included in the motion. One tired city dweller of London has appreciated ail this and has asked the park committee to introduce butterflies into the city parks. He suggests that small fields of nettles be planted and the eggs and grubs placed on these. These species are recommended because the caterpillars are of the hairy kind most unpalatable to birds. These species are familiarly known as the "red admiral," the "peacock" and the "tortoise shell." The idea is well worth a trial not only in London but in all large cities. Children take especial delight in butterflies, but many city children have never seen one. The child who called a butterfly a flying flower saw in it just what the nature lover who wishes butterflies in the city feels. a beautiful element in the

The observance of the first of May as a holiday seems to be English in its origin. The erection of a May pole and the dance on the village green were typical features of English rural life. Tennyson's "May Queen" illustrates the simple, pretty customs of the time. Under Cromwell, the Puritans forbade the observance of May Day and the New England Puritans visited the frivolous revellers at Merrymount. cut down the May pole and caused the pleasure seekers to dance with pain under the whip of their stern justice. New York City seems to have little sentiment and in a city so cosmopolitan in development and history one scarcely looks for the preservation of old customs. The visitor to the metropolis is therefore surprised to see on the first of May and also during the early weeks of the month, hundreds of May parties seeking Central Park. The groups of children carry a ribbon canopy over the head of some proud little queen. The white dresses, gay ribbons, flowers, and general air of gayety are strange contrasts to the hurrying crowds and the desert of stone. It is an idyllic touch of sentiment in the midst of the rush and strife of commercialism. For a moment one feels that he must be in the condition of him who "babbled of green fields," and that the vision will fade. It is a custom peculiar to New York. From all the crowded cross streets of the East side the parties come. Thousands of these May parties are held. New York might for a brief period seem like its old English namesake-York-in its perpetuation of the rural customs of old England.

Mr. Carnegie's magnificent gifts to the city of New York and to the employees of the Carnegie company are unparalelled even in this land of munificent giving. There is a tendency to question the ethical side of his library giving. It is a principle with the Scotch Steel King that It is a principle with the Scotch Steel King that his gifts must always be met with the promise to maintain and support the buildings which he donates. Up to this time, the libraries have been given to smaller towns and cities. The city furnishes a site, provides the books and guarantees to maintain the library. This is committing the locality to a large annual addition to its taxes forever. In many cases this may be wise. The cost to New York means many millions in return for the $5,000,000 that Mr. Carnegie donates for the sixty-five library buildings. Thousands of children are crowded out of the schools of the city today because there are not enough buildings. It is urged that the city should not neglect these weightier matters in its enthusiastic response to Mr. Carnegie's offer. In reality the city is able to do both and all that directs the purpose of the rulers of the city toward aiding the higher conditions of living should arouse no adverse criticism. It is true that Mr. Carnegie's gift, magnificent although it be, is only a drop of the stream of wealth that the city must pour out, but it has been the means of producing the result. Mr. Carnegie's attention should be drawn to the thousands upon thousands of people living upon farms who are cut off from all access to books. A great traveling library that could be brought to the isolated person who hungers for intellectual stimulus would be the noblest work that Mr. Carnegie could undertake. his gifts must always be met with the promise

A monument to General Richard Montgomolution proposed this some time ago and the authorities of Quebec agreed to give the site. The monument aroused much opposition in Canada. The objection was based on Montgomery's having once been a British officer and on the fact that he was attempting to capture Quebec. The opposition has died out and the monument is to be built and will be an added point of interest for the throng of American tourists who yearly visit the picturesque old city. Three young generals have died upon the city. Three young generals have died upon the battlefield of Quebec—Wolfe, the English general who captured the city; Montcalm, the gallant young Frenchman who died defending it, lant young Frenchman who died defending it, and Montgomery, who with Arnold made the brave attempt to capture Quebec during the first winter of the Revolution. Montgomery's body was brought back to New York fifty years after the great battle, and rests in the churchyard of St. Paul's, directly opposite the famous old Astor House. The monument to General Richard Montgomery which stands against the Broadway side of the church, is the first monument ever erected by Congress. The spot where Montgomery fell on the heights of Quebec has been marked by a rude wooden spot where Montgomery fell on the heights of Quebec has been marked by a rude wooden sign board, saying, "Here Montgomery fell." No single deed of the Revolution was more filled with heroic endeavor than that assault up the almost perpendicular heights of Quebec in the blinding snow of a Canadian winter. Canadians can have no better menument to their adherence to the English cause in the days of '76 than such a shaft would afford. The How many people realize the charm that but- invasion of Canada was not again attempted.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE. 82.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Agents Big Profits Best Goods, all prices. Flavors, Perfumes, Household, Toilet Goods. Select any. Fine Premiums free. Herbene Laboratories, Box 54, Station L, New York.

Reliable Men in everylocality throughout the United States to introduce our goods, tences, along roads, and all conspicuous places, also buting small advertising matter. Commission of $850.00

THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., Detroit,

n to look after our growing business in and adjoining Counties, to act as Manager orrespondent; work can be done at your Enclose self-addressed, samped enter or particulars to A. H. SHERMAN,

St. Paul Association. 48

TO HYPNOTIZE!

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism

* FULL SIZE *

LARGE TYPE *

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five ets. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000.000 copies sold! IS TIME.

over the continent. None but high-priced copyri printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new	ight pieces or the most popular reprints. It is plates made from large, clear type — including printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new colored titles — and is in every way first-class, an	nd worthy of your home. 3,000.000 copies sold!
No. PIANO OR ORGAN.	FFERED AT THIS TIME. No. VOICE AND PIANO OR OBGAN.
165 American Liberty March Cook	236 Across the Bridge Le Brunn
247 Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss 181 Auld Lang Syne. Variations . Durkee	27 Ave Maria, From Cavalleria Rusticana Mascagni
187 Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1 Pacher	124 Poontiful Moonlight Dunt
215 Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive . Anderson 179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands Streabbog	238 Bells of Seville
7 179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz, 4 hands Streabbog 227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes . Strauss 2 13 Black Hawk Waltzes	282 Between Love and Duty . Dryden 226 Blue Eyes Elson
257 Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans Richards	246 Boyhood Days, Chorus Fritt 200 Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow Carew
227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Strauss 213 Black Haw Waltzes Walsh 215 Blue Bells of Scotland Trans. Richards 221 Bluebird Echo Folka Morrison 219 Boston Commandery March Carter 109 Bridal March from Loiengrin Wagner 229 Bryan and Sewall March Noles 255 Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands. Mascagni 289 Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni 33 Cadences and Scales in all Kevs Czerny	226 Blue Eyes 246 Boyhood Days, Chorus 240 Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow 250 Bridge Else. 262 Bride Bells. 263 Bride Bells. 264 Bride Bells. 265 Bride Bells.
229 Bryan and Sewall March Noles	192 Can You, Sweetheart. Keepa Secret? Estabrooke
255 Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands. Mascagni 289 Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni	214 Childhood's Happy Hours . Dinsmore
Catherine Waltzes	190 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schumann
1 Catherine Waltzes	284 Come Back to Our Cottage . Estabrocke 168 Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk Blake
45 Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step Missud	92 Cow Bells. The. Boyhood's Recollection Grimm 294 Crown of Glory Tours
217 Cleveland's March Noles 81 Coming from the Races Galop . Wheeler	294 Crown of Glory Tours 286 Danube River Aide 250 Darling I Shail Miss You Cohen 176 Darling Nellie Gray Hasby 244 De Rayloam de Instrument Rulleden
269 Coppelia. Valse Lente Deibles	176 Daring Seine Gray
71 Crystal Dew Waitz Durkee	244 De Banjo am de Instrument
163 Dewey's Grand Triumphal March . Marcel	304 Did You Ever Call Me Darling? Vane
299 Eastlake Waltz	290 Dream of Love Elson
8 Coming from the Races Galop Wheeler	Oce Dwalling with the Angele Chorne Turner
121 Electric Light Galop	220 Ever Sweet is Thy Memory Hosfeld
107 Ethel Polka Simons	180 Far Away Bliss
241 Fantastic Schottische	180 Far Away Bilisa 182 Father is Drinking Again. Temperance 152 Flag of Our Country. Patriotic . Mathiot
291 Fatinitza Galop Ludwig	136 Fing, The. Qualitette
107 Ethel Polka Stanors 155 Evergreen Waltz Stoddard 241 Fantastic Schottische Gabriel 291 Fatinitza Galop Ladleig 231 Faust. Selections Durkee 77 Fifth Nocturne Leubach 233 Flirting in the Starlight, Waltz Lasade 230 Flower Song, On 39 Lange	B Flossie. Waltz Song Cones
	138 For a Dream's Sake 66 For You We are Praying at Home Estabrooke
283 Forestville Waltz Zahn 277 Freischutz. Selections Durkce	166 From our Home the Loved are Going Percy 288 Gathered Roses Pinsuti
177 Frolic of the Frogs Watson 49 Full of Ginger. March Galop. Nutting	202 Give a Kiss to Me Percy
183 Golden Rain. Nocturne	178 God Bless My Kind Old Mother Jewell 204 Golden Moon Iras 262 Greeting Duet Mendelssola 150 Gypsy Countess. Duet Glorer 198 Heart of My Heart Robinson
281 Heel and Toe Polka Faust	150 Gypsy Countess. Duet Glover
173 Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes Jewell	198 Heart of My Heart Robinson 272 How can I Leave Thee. Duet . Greenwood 184 1 Can't Forget the Happy Past
139 Home, Sweet Home. Transcription . Slack	74 In Sweet September Skelly Temple
153 Jenny Lind polka Four hands Muller	248 In Shadowland Pinsuti
157 Last Hope. Meditation Gottschalk 195 Leap Year Schottische	184 Can't Forget in Happy Pass
253 Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka Behr 159 Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop Durkee	188 In the Starlight. Duet
195 Leap Year Schottische	242 Kathleen Mavourneen Crouch
243 Love's Dreamland Waitzes . Roeder	Balte Balt
240 Martha Selections Johnson	130 Kiss that bound my Heart to thine Acti 164 Larboard Watch. Duet Williams
263 May Day Schottische	48 Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet . Estabrocke
225 McKinley and Hobart March . Turner 55 Memorial Day March Hewitt	154 Little Voices at the Door Danks
263 May Day Schottisene	96 Lost Chord, The Sullivan 234 Margaretta Balle 112 Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard . Keige
201 Music Box, The. Caprice Liebich	230 Memories of my Mother. Chorus . Allen
305 Napoleon	222 Musical Dialogue. Duet Helmund
	232 Must the Sweet Tie that binds . Established
175 Nitional Songs of America	110 My Little Lost Irene Dankt
123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription . Blake	170 My Old Kentucky Home . Foster 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dinamore 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) Foster
273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka . Strauss	102 Old Sexton, The Russell
123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription Blake 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Durkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz Gregoire	270 Old Village Church
245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz Gregoire	90 On the Beach. Nost beautiful ballad Robinson
tol Over the Wayes Waltz Rosas	160 Outcast, An. Character Song Fritt
193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Brunner	174 Parted from our Dear Ones Stelle
67 Red, white and Blue Forever. March blake	148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic Cooks 274 Private Tommy Atkins Geniner
9 143 Richmond March—two-step Missud	136 Request. Sacred
127 Rustling Leaves. Idylle Lange	142 Rosemonde Chammude
189 Schubert's Serenade, Transcription Lists	and the state of the state of the state of Administration
161 Silvery Waves. Variations Wyman 169 Smith's (General) March Martin	194 She Sleeps among the Dalsies . Dissmore 124 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 210 Son's Return, The 210 Stars at Sas Descriptive . Hullah .
295 Souvenir of the Ball Waltz
259 Spring Flowers Polka Devrient	278 Summer Shower
151 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature Weber	32 Sweet Long Ago, The Estabrooke
279 Stephanie Polka 151 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 73 Storm Mazurka 109 Sultun's Band March. 209 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 115 Tornado Galop 103 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 223 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 112 Under the Double Ragle March. 113 Under the Double Ragle March. 114 Under the Double Ragle March. 115 Under the Double Ragle March. 116 Under the Double Ragle March. 117 Under the Double Ragle March.	32 Sweet Long Ago, The 46 That Word was Hope. Waltz song 118 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 206 There's Sure to be a Way 158 Thinking of Home and Mother 292 Titania's Cradle 116 'Tis True Dear Heart, We're Fading Estabreois 108 Tread softly the Angels are calling Turner
209 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription Blake 115 Tornado Galop Arbuckle	118 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 206 There's Sure to be a Way 158 Thinking of Home and Mother Cohen
103 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 Wede 223 Twilight Echoes. Song without words Jewell	292 Titania's Cradle . Lehmann
205 Village Parade Quickstep Ludoric	62 Your Mother's Love for You
205 Village Parade Quickstep . Allen 7 Visions of Light. Waltz . Cook 203 Warblings at Eve . Richards	252 Warrior Bold
no W P. M O Wough	58 When the Roses are Blooming Again Stelly
93 Waves of the Ocean March Blake 261 Wedding March . Mendelssohn	86 When Winter Days Have Gone . Traint
261 Wedding March . Mendelssohn	86 When Winter Days Have Gone 188 Whistling Wife, The. Comic 212 Why am Lever Watching deLasaide
261 Wedding March 251 Winsome Grace. A perfect gem ilowe 119 Woodland Whispers Waltzes	86 When Winter Days Have Gone 186 Whistling Wife, The. Comic 212 Why am I ever Watching 218 Why do Summer Roses Fade Rended!* deLasside: Rar! cr Relss
261 Wedding March 251 Winsome Grace. A perfect gem ilowe 119 Woodland Whispers Waltzes	186 Whistling Wife, The. Comic 212 Why am I ever Watching 218 Why do Summer Roses Fade 300 Yellow Roses Whiston

et music is only twenty-five dunt fulfil cents; that for this you get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES. Any 10 for 25 cents.

Any 21 for 50 cents. Any 43 for $1.00. Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and sen us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered abs lutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "COMFORT Music Room," Angusts, Maine.

DON'T TAKE MY LITTLE HOME.

SONG AND REFRAIN.

WORDS AND MUSIC BY E. NINIAN.

Copyright, 1898, by N. E. Byers, 56 W. 22d St., N. Y. City, N. Y.

A Chance For All.

One of the best opportunities which has been given the public for a long time is COMFORT'S music offer, found on another page. Owing to improved modern machinery music in large quantities is published at less cost than ever before in the history of the world. Many people always connect low prices for music with some poorly printed inferior and cheap imitation of real music; but with COMFORT Music it is different, as every piece is full size sheet music with full size notes and words. It is exactly the same thing which has cost you anywhere from forty cents to a dollar for at music stores. We could furnish hundreds of letters from delighted buyers of this music;

Apple St., Milton, Pa., writes us: "Am so well pleased with your music that I cannot be I can to get my pupils to buy music from you." subscribers, writes: "My children love to sing and play COMFORT music. Such fine pieces for the money. I don't see how you can afford it." And that is but a sample of all. If you care for music yourself or have friends who love it, turn to our music offer and try just one time. The cost is trifling; the delight perfect.

Biblical Music Instruments.

The Jews were intensely fond of music and the general tone of all. Annie M. Harris, 123 vention of instruments far surpassing those of any other ancient nation. Music appears well noted London publisher. Mme. Patti has exdefined before the chronicle of the flood and to pleased at any music store. I shall do all that Jubal, the son of Lamech, is attributed the earliest invention of the harp and organ. The L. S. Greenwood, Napa, Cal., one of our oldest | Jewish musical instruments were mostly used in | ized by the country folk for her lavish charities. the temple worship and may be divided into wind, string and struck instruments. So far had the development of music proceeded that we have authentic accounts of the harp of ten strings, the sackbut and psaltery, which came down to modern times in practically the same shape in which they were used by King David. It is a curious fact that in a modern band will be found in the present shape only the adaptations of the Jewish instruments which were in common use fully four thousand years ago.

but will give extracts from but two to show early displayed a love of the art and an in- Mme. Adelina Patti, the great singer, is about save many dollars and be perfectly satisfied.

to sell her castle, Craig-y-Nos, in Wales, to a pended over 100,000 pounds ($500,000) on this beautiful estate, since she purchased it some twenty years ago. Mme. Patti has been idol-

Jean de Reszke's great success in his recent reappearance in opera in New York has dispelled all stories of his lost voice. Critics who heard him agreed that the Polish tenor's voice was as good as ever, and no signs of deterioration. He was given great receptions.

When you think you wish new music look over the list COMFORT publishes every month and then take advantage of the offer. You will

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

REPE de chine has no rival among summer stuffs, even as I predicted, and is so constantly brought before us in some brought before us in some new and charming guise that we feel we can never do without this pliant material again. I saw a vision of a dress in this material, a pale tint of pretty color. The skirt fitted beautifully over the hips to the depth of about 8 or 9 inches where a threeo inches where a three-inch band of rather heavy yellow lace was inserted, showing glimpses of the pale blue silk lining through its open meshes. From this band of lace the From this band of lace the material was accord in on pleated and allowed to fall perfectly free, with a band of the lace set two inches from the foot. The bodice had the inevitable jaunty bolero made entirely of lace matching the bands on the skirt, elaborately brought out in gold, worn over a blouse bodice of the smallest of tucks intersected with narrow stripes of lace. A broad girdle of pale blue satin was folded about the waist and brought into a smart knot at the back with the pointed ends drooping considerably below the waist.

below the waist.

below the waist.

A feature of many of the new gowns as well as separate bodices is the crush belt, wide or narrow, fastened with the knot at the back. Often this extends into an elaborate arrangement composed of the trimmings used on the waist and reaching half way down the skirt. It is a dainty finish and seems to impart just the note of connection the separate bodice and skirt seem to need. Sashes are certainly very much in favor; some of the more elaborately embroidered ones reminding me of gorgeous ribb on s geous ribbons geous ribbons grand mother used to display a mong her treasures. A crisp gown of snowy white beige over a foundation of white satin white satin whose gleam is seen between the threads of the transparent stuff, has a "gathered" skirt, gathered by means of scant shirrings at the waist ex-tending below the belt a couple of inches, set off by a knee deep flounce headed by a knee deep flounce headed by a broad band of yellow lace. Here and there at irregular intervals, some directly on the band and some a few inches above are scattered silk flowers in several pastel shades, all delicately outlined with gold. The simple bodice has an unusually low cut yoke bordered by a band of the lace. From under the arms come clusters of the silk flowers forming a bolero. About the waist is crushed a broad sash of palest blue having blunt rounded ends, and arranged in a full bow at the back. Short Etons of black satin are the smart wrap and when collarless are open to a variety of neck-fixings. One of the smartest collars I have seen was in deep sailor shape with its edges cut out in scallops and in each scallop set a lace rose having a pink silk heart. There were flaring turn-back cuffs to match, and it was all very natty and a fitting finish to any toilette. Today I have been shown some stunning models in summer wraps among which was an Eton summer wraps among which was an Eton very square and flaring, made of dead white taffeta, accordion pleated and finished with a flat band of the silk stitched several times. There was a deep round collar of hand em-broidered white muslin, while the broad bell sleeves were finished with a wide cuff to match. sleeves were finished with a wide cuff to match. The sailor collar is again a strong feature of the "wash" outing gown. Very often it is worn without a standing collar, showing the throat pointedly in front, and this recommends it to the affection of every comfort-loving woman. Very pretty indeed are the nand-worked, turn down collars of muslin, rolling broadly away at the front to show a smartly arranged cravat of silk. They are intended for wear with any thin gown. A clever girl I know has transformed an old bodice into a perfect dream by dint of a bit of work and a small expenditure. The original waist had yoke and sleeves of dainty white lace, the ripple at the hand edged with a binding of black velvet. The body of the bodice consisted of blue and white striped silk, and this had become quite worn under the arms, under the arms, and generally frowzy looking, while the lace remained fresh. She ripped the silk from the fitted lining, and in its place ar-ranged pale blue crepe de chine all laid in the smallest sort of tucks, while a crush belt of the blue was tied in a bow, with pointed ends, at the back. An extra bit of the lace was fashi on ed was fashi one d into a collar with covered bones to keep it in place, and the top set off by folds of blue and black.

Among the season's millinery are some extremely picturesque head gears. A large brimmed hat of white neapolitan has its brim bound with wide black velvet ribbon, while around its broad crown was crushed masses of snowy roses and cool-looking green over the face with the hair Pompadour. Another hat has a soft, full crown of pale blue, wide brim all pleated and bent in and out. At the front is a large cluster of pink roses, while around the crown is a tangle of stems, with a few streaming over the edge to which are attached small buds and leaves.

Persian velvet in bits tone many of the sober colored gowns. The more brilliantly colored Persians are combined cleverly with black and white. The combination was seen upon a gown of royal blue, and was immensely liked.

A Well-Known Beverage.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE word chocolate probably found its origin in this way.

On the island of San Domingo years ago the Indians use to take the fruit of this tree and grind the seeds with cinnamon and powdered red peppers and of this combination make a tablet which they dissolved in cold water and mixed into a cool refreshing drink with a spoonlike instrument called a "molinet" and the peculiar noise made in stirring they put into words as "choco," "choco." This combined with "molinet" probably was the derivation of "chocolate." The growth of the chocolate tree is very lucrative.

In South America the tree grows to thirteen feet and is five to eight inches in diameter. It requires much more attention than coffee and requires a temperature of about eighty degrees. Between each two rows are planted bucare trees which grow to a greater height and much more rapidly than the chocolate tree, and are used as a protection.

Once a week the plantation is watered and after five years the plantation bears fruit, two crops annually. The trees are fruitful until about forty years old.

When the trees are ready to harvest, the ripened pods are cut down and left on the ground for twenty-four hours. They are then opened and the seeds taken out and carried in baskets for curing. There is always an acid juice accompanying the seeds which is drained off, and the final important step in the process is the "sweating." The seeds are inclosed in a box for two days and allowed to ferment. The flavor depends largely on this process. After the sweating box they are exposed to the sun for drying, when they are ready for use.

Cacao-red, a coloring matter, and cocoa-butter are obtained from this seed.

SELF HOME TREATMENT FOR LADIES. I will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple oreparation for the cure of Leucorrhœa, Ulceration, Displacement and all female diseases, to all ladies sending address. I ing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask Mrs. M. Summers, Box 206, Notre Dame, Ind.

MUSIC GIVEN AWAY.

One hundred and twenty-five Favorite Song Jewels. A large book of music containing words and score of the latest popular songs sung in the theaters and churches everywhere. Comic, Sentimental, Pathetic and Religious. This great collection would cost from $15 to $20 in the usual sheet music form. The best colin the usual sneet music form. The best corlection for home and concert use ever published. We will give the book as a free present to any person sending us six cents in stamps for a trial three months' subscription to our sparkling, monthly paper which we are introducing into 100,000 new homes this season.

Supering Angusta Maine.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

TO ALL

If you suffer from Epileptic Fits, Falling Sickness or St. Vitus' Dance, or have children that do so, my New Discovery will CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for my FREE REMEDIES and try them. They have cured thousands where everything else failed. Sent absolutely free with complete directions, express prepaid. Please give AGE and full address

Dr. W. H. MAY, 94 Pine Street, New York City.

Drunkards Easily Cured

Miss Edith Williams Wants Every Lady Reader of this Paper to Know How She Saved Her Father.

Used an Odorless and Tasteless Remedy in His Food Quickly Curing Him Without His Knowledge.

MISS EDITH WILLIAMS.

MISS EDITH WILLIAMS.

Miss Edith Williams Box 36, Waynesville, O., who cured her drunken father after years of misery, wretchedness and almost unbearable suffering says:

"I shall be so glad if you will publish my experience for it will reach many others and let them know about that wonderful Golden Specific. I will gladly do all I can to help any suffering sister who will write me."

Dr. Haines, the discoverer, will send a sample of this grand remedy free to all who will write for it. Enough of the remedy is mailed free to show how it is used in tea, coffee, or food, and that it will cure the dreaded habit quietly and permanently. Send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Haines, 957 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will mail a free sample of the remedy to you securely sealed in a plain wrapper, also full directions how to use it, books and testimonials from hundreds who have been cured, and everything needed to aid you in saving those near and dear to you from a life of degradation and ultimate poverty and disgrace. al life of degradation and ultimate poverty and disgrace.
Send for a free trial to-day it will brighten the rest of your life.

KIDNEY CURE

Cures every disorder of the Kidneys, Lame Back, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bladder Troubles and even the hopeless cases of Bright's Disease and Diabetes. Trial packages of this remarkable remedy are now being mailed free to every suffers sending name and address to the Peruviana Herbal Remedy Co., 1100 Second National Bank Building, Clincinnati, Ohio. Do not delay, but write to-day, it may save your life.

Anyone can easily earn a WATCH CHAIN and CHARM. GOLD PLATED. NICKEL OF SILVER WATCH. RING and a 56-PIECE TEA SET, by selling our celebrated Perfume. You can get All of the above premiums ABSOLUTELY FREE if you comply with the offer we send to everyone taking advantage of this advertisement. Send name and address (no money) and we will send 12 packages of Perfume to sell at 10c, each; when sold send us the $1.20 and we will send you a Watch-Chain and Charm, a beautiful Gold Finished Ring and our offer of a 56-PIECE TEA SET which is full size for family use. GLOBE PERFUME CO., 65 COURT ST., Dept. CF BROOKLYN, N. Y.

A POWERFUL HEALER TELLS HOW AND
If sick or ailing
Give n am e, age,
tom of the disease
most, enclose four tom of the disease most, enclose four I will send you a nosis of your disoutline a course of cure your aliments, perience, 10,000 Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Young Americans Letter Writer Or the New Art of Polite Correspondence.
Book that Will Lead You on to Fame.

Book that Will Lead You on to Fame.

Adapted for Both Sexes. This is the Best Letter writer published Eourpe or America. It teaches how to write a Letter on any subsequence of the writer's own head, or to compose a first class, intelligent to the state of the state Book or Address

Prog. Baron's Complete Instructor in all The Society Dances of America, Folks Actiows.

THE GERMAN-116 Figures, giving the Names and Full Description of each, and how to dance them correctly. It is a book of great when Frice 25 German 100 cm and the correct of the control of the control

Good Behavior and Social Etiquette.

THE ANALY IN THE CONTROL OF THE CONT

Send 50 cents to-day for a two years' subscr popular monthly SUNSHINE, and we will so f Politeness," "Society Dances," and "Let Address SUNSHINE, Augus

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin DEMNANTS FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK. ART in needle work is on the advance. We know the ladies ded pieces of silk and satin—"CRAZY QUILT" making is again yer alt. We are sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight, handso me, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate we been the past season and they are now burdened with remna many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of satin on hand which we are going to give you a big on. People at a distance have hard times getting the assortment to put into soin-pillows, quilts, etc., and help you out now. We are going to dispose of this in the pyou out now. And the pyou out now the pyou on the pyou out now.

For an advanced the pyou out now. Shower

ery, is a great bargam.

Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free, he der to work your stamped satin and other piece we have need a solutely FREE, free sheins of elegant embroidery with all different solutely FREE, free sheins of elegant embroidery with all different free sheins of the sheet of th

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

OMAN'S work in the home demands in-telligence, skill, patience and endur-ance. She must hold in her hands the many reins of the domestic machinery. There is no letting up, and when emer-gencies come there must be more endurmust be more endur-up, and when emergencies come the remust be more endurance, more patience, perhaps linked with attion steps in and forces the patient hands to lie still, the weary brain to rest, and the exhausted system to recuperate. And here we may emphasize the fact, that it is the bounden duty of every woman to so plan, systematize, reduce, and order her work as to make it as easy and comfortable for herself as possible.

The amount of work coupled with care involved in keeping house is no small, insignificant thing in the experience of the average housekeeper. Some women are born housekeeper. Some women are born mechanics. A woman who has a method, a system, and keeps to it, will find that the domestic routine will run more smoothly and with much less vexatious friction to the nerves than without method. The larger the family, the more a systematic method is needed.

In the well regulated families each member considers it a duty to adhere to the family rules, thus helping to preserve the harmony and comfort that results from an orderly household. A rigidly prim household is monotonous and painful. There is a free and easy medium that comes between rigid rules and confusion. This is the happily and well regulated home in which order and method bring pleasure.

In hundreds of homes there are no servants to carry on a regular routine, and the wife must tax her ingenuity to keep everything going. Not only the kitchen routine devolves upon her, but she has the care of a family, and the social element of the family to maintain, and oftentimes the usual welfare as well.

Generally speaking, husbands and sons have not the slightest idea of the complexity of woman's work. The petty things as it were, when considered by themselves go to make up the momentum of the daily duty. In woman's kingdom it is the multiplicity of duties that distracts. Oftentimes the trifles are vexatious and wear a woman's nerves more than one mighty and important and pressing duty. She mighty and important and pressing duty. She mighty and important and pr while woman's work is never done!"

The woman who makes her own butter, does all her cooking, washing, ironing and sweeping, makes her children's clothes, even cutting them herself, and doing a hundred other things that are sure to come up in housekeeping, and preserves her health, including nerves of course, and an angel's temper, deserves a crown of laurel. One might safely say that there are fifty branches of employment represented in genlaurel. One might safely say that there are fifty branches of employment represented in general housework, and often one woman is expected to do them all. Housework, so far as it goes without exhaustion is healthful, but it loses the tonic of out-door work or exercise which more often falls to the husband, and what is better nervine than fresh air?

Now for some recipes.

We have been requested to give a simple menu for a spring luncheon, and the following recipes being new we trust they will be just what our reader requires.

CANAPES.

Freshen smoked herring, remove skin, and finely chop fish. Fry I teaspoon finely-chopped onion in 1 tablespoon butter until yellow, add 1-4 cup chopped mushrooms, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 cup brown stock and fish enough to make a stiff mixture. Add 1 teaspoon chopped parsley and paprika to taste. Spread pieces of toast cut in shape of horse-shoes with the above; sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown. until the crumbs are brown.

SHAD WITH CREAMED ROE

Remove roe from shad and parbon for 20 minutes in boiling salted acidulated water. Remove outside membrane, and mash. Cook

EGG SALAD.

1 teaspoon finely-chopped shallot in 3 table-spoons butter 5 minutes. Add roe, sprinkle with 11-2 tablespoons flour and stir in gradual-ly 1-3 cup cream. Let cook slowly for 10 minutes; then add the yolks of 2 eggs, salt, pepper and lemon juice to taste. Plank a shad, season with salt and pepper, brush over with butter and cook 25 minutes in a hot oven or under a gas flame. Remove from oven, spread under a gas flame. Remove from oven, spread with roe, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and return to oven to brown crumbs. Garnish with mashed potatoes, tomatoes, lemon and parsley. BELGIAN HARE.

Clean and split a hare, season with salt and pepper and lard back and hind legs. Put in pan with a small quantity of brown stock and vegetables, including carrot and onion cooked in bacon fat. Baste hare often with stock in pan and bake 45 minutes; then add 1 cup cream to which is added the juice of 1 lemon and 1 tablespoon flour diluted with enough cold water to form a smooth paste. Baste hare with cream and cook 15 or 20 minutes longer. Strain sauce in pan and serve with hare.

EGG SALAD.

Chop the whites of 4 hard-boiled eggs, mix with 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, press the yolks of 4 eggs through a potato ricer and mix with 5 tablespoons mayonnaise. Mould, chill, remove from mould and serve on crisp lettuce

PLOMBIERE GLACE.

Cover the bottom of small paper cases with vanilla ice cream, sprinkle ice cream with marron glace broken in pieces; arrange lady fingers at equal distances and allow them to extend one inch above cases. Pile whipped cream sweetened and flavored in the centre, and garnish with marron glace and violets.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING.

Mix 1 teaspoon each of salt and mustard, a few grains cayenne, the yolk of 1 raw egg, the yolk of 1 hard-boiled egg and 2 teaspoons dissolved gelatine. Add gradually 1 cup olive oil and 1 tablespoon each of vinegar and lemon juice.

PLOMBIERE GLACE.

By request we give the following recipe.

MOCK CRABS.

Cook 2 1-2 tablespoons butter with 1 teaspoon COOK 2 1-2 tablespoons butter with 1 teaspoon finely-chopped onion 5 minutes; add 4 tablespoons flour and 3-4 cup scalded milk. Add 1 cup Kornlet, 1 1-4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1-3 teaspoon mustard, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, and a few grains cayenne. Just before serving add 1 beaten egg.

The nervous headache and irritable condition of the busy business man is prevented by the timely use of two five-grain antikamnia tablets. Every bicycle rider, after a hard run, should take two tablets on going to bed. In the morning he will awaken minus the usual muscular pains, aches and soreness. Keep a dozen tablets in your medicine chest.—Pharmaceutical Notes The nervous headache and irritable condition

The first advocate of Unitarianism in England was John Biddle, of Oxford. It was introduced into the United States about 1756.

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

8 ROLLS OF ENTE WALL PAPER

troduce our goods in each town. Elegant goods, low, nice Paper, 1c, 2c and 3c roll, up. Order direct and save 50%, 3c. stamp for samples. F. H. Hews, Lowville, N. Y.

Kingfisher—One bite, one fish sure.

Pardon Fish Hook Co., Owensboro, Ky.

THE NEW DUST PAN.—Rapid seller, relusive territory. Write for large catalogue. 50 her fast sellers, and how to get Sample Outil Free. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

Buy Dearborn Special Full Jeweled

WARRANTED 20 YRS. ladies or gents'size 14k Gold plate hunting case, elegantly engraved. Special offer, send your full name & address & we will send this watch C.O.D. with privilege to examine. If found satisfactory pay agent $5.60 and express charges. A guarantee and beautiful chain and guarantee and beautiful chain and charm sent free with every watch. This is a big bargain and the best watch ever offered by anyone for the money, its better than many watches sold at twice the price. Write at once as this many not appear again.

KOHL & CO., Mfrs., 332 Dearborn St., B 8, Chicago, III.

The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27 Salina, Kansas

30 DAYS TRIAL FREE

BUSY WIFE

Should use a

BUSY BEE WASHER

100 pieces in one hour and no hard work done. That's the record. AGENTS WANTED. Exclusive sale. Write for terms. Lake Erle Mfg. Co.155 E. 13th St., Erle, Pa.

Make Big Money selling our new aluminum or tinned steel boards AGENTS

Make Big Money selling onr new aluminum or tinned steel boards for bread and pastry dough.

We are largest manufacturers of Aluminum, Granite Adress Dept X HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable,—Ed.

AND BLADDER CURE FREE.

PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, OPERRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z CORY & CO.. 41 & 45 Jefferson St.. Chicago.

HOME WORK GO! A SHEET COPYING
SEND STAMP-WHOLESALE SUPPLY CO. South Bend Ind STAM

FREE. FREE. FREE.

As a grand premium any one can earn this Beautiful Gold Plated Hunting Case Stem Winder Watch. Charm, and Chain (guaranteed) a perfect time keeper, by selling our ELECTRIC LAMP WCKS. They can be sold in a few hours. They are practically indestructible. No trimming; no smoke; no smell.

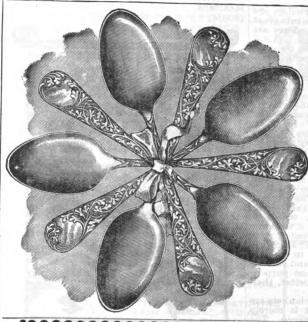

OUR SPECIAL 90-DAY OFFER:

OUR SPECIAL 90-DAY OFFER OUR SPECIAL 90-DAY OFFER Send your name and address, and a and remit us $1.20, and we will mail to your address, free santiful Gold Plated WATCH-CHAIN AND CHARM. BRILLIANT WICK CO., Dept I . Orange, N. J.

Women Made Beautiful

BIG DRESS GOODS OFFER, For $1.99 seven yards of genuine Norton Fancy Black Mcreerized Crepon Dress Goods, regular value, $5,00. Cut this ad, out and send it to us, enclose $1,99, encion No. 2761, goods by express. After received, if you do not find it perfectly satisfactory, exactly as goods by express. After received, if you do not find it perfectly satisfactory exactly as represented, such a dress pattern as pattern as it you do not find it perfectly satisfactory, exactly as represented, such a dress pattern as represented, such a dress pattern of not buy from your storekeeper at home for less by everyone the greatest value ever aftern in your receion, return the goods to us and we will seem from $5.00, a class of goods that its sedom found in country stores at any price, pronounced will immediately return your money, including what you paid for express charges; express charges; will average from $5 to 50 cents. By ordering two or more dress patterns at once, the charges charges will average from $5 to 50 cents. By ordering two or more dress patterns at once, the charges charges will average from $5 to 50 cents. By ordering two or more dress patterns at once, the charges of the service, fancy trained creating two or more dress patterns at once, the charges for service, fancy trained creating the order of the service, fancy trained creating the order of the service, fancy trained creating the contract of the largest mills under a PONTITIVE GUARANTEE FOR QUALITY. OUR SPEGIAL $1.99 PRICE for seven yards of this 33-inch goods (a full dress produce, is less than dealers can buy in pattern), is a price based on the actual cost to by any house. We make this heretefore unheard of fore of $1.90 to a full dress produce, is less than dealers can buy in pattern). Is a price based on the actual cost to by any house. We make this heretefore unheard of fore of $1.90 to a full dress produce, is less than dealers can buy in pattern), is a price based on the actual cost to by any house. We make this heretefore unheard of fore of $1.90 to a full dress produce

FREE

Silver Spoons.

We will deliver free, all charges paid, one-half dozen elegant silverplated Tea Spoons of the latest design, to any one who will send us one new yearly 25c. subscriber to Comfort within thirty days. These Spoons are warranted extra quality and the style and workmanship is of the best. If you have not time to get the new subscriber send in a renewal for yourself or have the paper sent to a friend. You can sell the Spoons for a good price. We got a very large lot of them to close an old account and we offer the bargain to our subscribers as long as they last, so you better send your 25c. subscription today if you want a bonarza surprise, as they will not be offered in any other manner and we are anxious to increase our subscription list this month just one hundred thousand. Address We will deliver free, all charges

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

PERFECTION AT LAST.

YOU PRESS THE HANDLE. IT TAKES THE HULL QUICKER AND NEATER THAN BY HAND.

OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER

OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER
hulls Strawberries, Gooseberries, Black Currants, etc., and picks out Basting Thread and Stitches... Has place for thumb and forefinger; doesn't slip or fill up.
A simple little thing, saving Time (most essential thing to housekeepers), Temper, Stained and Sore Fingers. Will not crush ripest fruit. Takes out soft and green spots, leaving berries clean, neat, and clear cut, making them look fifty per cent better in the dish, and makes you wonder why it was not thought of before. With one you can do the work twice as quickly, and without any of the usual unpleasant features of this work. Every lady who tries this once in the berry season will never be without it again, or allow her friends to hull berries with fingers. One trial only is needed.
Housekeepers write, "Could not get along now without it." They are brightly nickelpolished and ornamental. Splendid side line. A day's supply goes in your pocket.
We deliver all goods so your profit is clear. Send for trial sample, which we will send postpaid for 6 cents, including 3 months' trial subscription to this paper. Send 18c.
for a 6 months' subscription and one-half dozen Hullers, or year's subscription and one dozen Hullers, 30c. In large quantities, three dozen $5c., six dozen, $1.65, a whole gross 144, $3.25, sell for $14.40. Big Profits. Now is the time.

Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE very latest in em-broideries and in dec-orations of all kinds orations of all kinds—for gowns and for house furnishings,—are oriental. Everything strong in color and bold in outline is the very latest wrinkle, and very stunning effects are gained.

Our older readers will remember the

Our older readers will remember the cross-stitch embroidery in vogue years ago, first as it was done on plain canvass and afterward "filled-in,"—and later, when it was done on the canvass which was finished, and so needed no filling. These embroideries have been revived and in the shops carrying the latest of everything in the fancy goods line, sofa pillows, mantel covers and scarfe are shown in this cross stitch design, carried out in strong colored silks and oriental patterns. Cross-stitch work is very fascinating and exceedingly simple to do, as it requires only accuracy in counting.

stitch work is very fascinating and exceedingly simple to do, as it requires only accuracy in counting.

Our illustrations show a new garniture for a summer waist. The strip of trimming, of which we show a section, is two yards long and is intended for the front, sleeves, collar and belt of a shirt in tucked batiste. The embroidery is a design in oil paint on a strip of yellow linen, in colors, dull red and green, yellow and black. Then this design is outlined in the same colors of silk, using a short chain stitch instead of the ordinary outline stitch. After the outlining is done there is a little gold thread run into the design, to give it further oriental tone.

If one is clever with the pencil and brush, a design could be drawn and then cut from heavy cardboard, making a stensil. Then the stensil could be laid onto a strip of heavy linen of color to correspond with the waist upon which the embroidery is to go, and a thin coat of oil paints in the colors desired applied. Care must be used not to let the pattern slip, and to use as little paint as may be. The same design could be used on white, with gold, and would be so entirely different as not to be noticed by an ordinary observer as being the same pattern.

These strips cost $1 (and the silks extra),

These strips cost $1 (and the silks extra), which would be saved by the clever woman who which would be saved by the clever woman who made her own design.

Now that such showy designs and colors are being used, the Navajo blankets come into great prominence as a decorative feature. They are used as rugs, portieres and hangings. A description of the manufacture of these blankets by the Navajo Indians will perhaps be interesting.

scription of the manufacture of these blankets by the Navajo Indians will perhaps be interesting.

The Navajos occupy a large reservation in southern Arizona and New Mexico. The tribe numbers about sixteen thousand and they are among the most highly civilized of the remaining Indian tribes. Their chief occupation is sheep-herding, and the Navajos own over a million head. From the wool is made the blankets that have become so famous that they are to be found all over the world wherever beautiful and artistic fabrics are appreciated.

The method of making the blankets is very crude. The wool, after being washed and carded, is spun upon a large spindle which is set upright in a wooden bowl. The woman, for of course the squaws do all this work, fastens the thread to the spindle, which is shaped like a large top, and twirls it with one hand, while she draws out the thread of wool with the other. The yarn is afterwards rewound in the opposite direction to make it more smooth. Though not so fine and smooth as machine-made yarn, it serves the purpose of blanket-making as well, if not better, than the modern manufactured yarn.

The favorite colors used in the blankets are black, red and yellow. The black is merely yarn spun from the wool of black sheep. The red is a dye sometimes made from plants growing on the reservation, and sometimes made by soaking the dye from goods obtained in frontier towns, where indigo is also obtained for the blue color. A certain native flower color. A certain native flower found in the arid districts yields the brilliant yellow that is such favorite with the favorite with the Indians.

The looms are very simple, consisting merely of two beams, one suspended against a vertical surface, the other fastened near the ground. near the ground. Between these beams the warp is stretched. The is stretched. The shuttle consists merely of a stick around which the thread is wound. The worker sits on the ground, and as the blanket is woven it is is woven it is wound around the lower beam. The favorite patterns are always in regular geo-metric shapes; diamonds, ovals, and some very ef-ective stripings.

The Indian agent on the Navajo reservation is said to have the finest collection of these blankets in existence. The demand for Navajo blankets was greatly increased by the discovery of gold in Alaska, for the miners who visited that region soon discovered that these blankets were the only things that would successfully combat the terrible cold of the Northern regions; ordinary blankets being of very little use. Besides this the Indian blankets are practically indestructible as the Indians claim to possess specimens that have been in constant use for over one hundred years. They are very heavy; some have been made that weigh over fifty pounds, though this is excessive, a twenty fifty pounds, though this is excessive, a twenty pound blanket being regarded as quite heavy enough.

LINEN COLORED BATISTE WAIST.

The Indians sell their product by weight, The Indians sell their product by weight, and until within a year or so the price for them has averaged about a dollar a pound. The great demand for the blankets recently, however, has raised the price, and it is said that the Navajos have been able to dispose of all the blankets that they can weave at the price of two dollars a pound.

Some writer on the subject has said recently that the wily Indians have discovered the utility of Germantown yarns and Diamond Dyes in the production of their blankets; but until this is more definitely proved, it is certainly more pleasant for the seekers after romance to still believe in the home-spun yarns and berry dyed article.

to still believe in the home-spun yarns and berry dyed article.

Where the Navajo originally learned the art of blanket weaving has never been agreed upon. It is claimed by some students of the subject that they learned the art years ago from the Mexicans, but this theory the Indians stoutly deny. However that may be, the Navajo blankets are far superior to those made by the Mexicans, or tor that matter by any other people; which fact should establish the Indians

The Portraits of Our Presidents With Biographical Sketches

General Charles H. Grosvenor, Member of Congress for nearly 20 years.

Contains twenty-four large Photo-gravure Etchings from the paintings endorsed by the families and near relatives of the Presidents. Printed on heavy plate paper, embossed. A very large book; title page cosigned by Tiffany. Biographical sketches printed in large, open type in two colors. The greatest work of the 20th Centry. So beautiful that when President McKinley saw it he subscribed immediately. One agent selling 600 copies in small territory in Pennsylvania. A million copies will be sold quick. Fortunes will be made this Inaugural year. High class man or woman of good social standing ean make a little fortune in this territory. Territory is going rapidly. Presses running day and night to fill orders.

orders.
Wanted.—State Manager to look after correspondence mad agents. Salary or commission.
Address today THE CONTINENTAL PRESS, CORCORAN BUILDING.
Washington, D. C.

WE GIVE AWAY FREE one rolled gold solitaire Puritan rose diamond ring, solid-gold pattern, for selling 20 packages Gearfield Pure pattern, for selling 20 packages Gearfield Pure pattern, for selling 20 packages Gearfield Pure en mail gum. When age. Send full name; we mail gum. When all the pattern was tellfrom GENUINE DIAMOND. Unsold gum taken back. Write for catalogue of GARFIELD GUM CO., 117 MEADVILLE, PA.

$600.00 8 6 PIANOS I

YEARBRUF HARMC

Can you arrange these six different groups of letters into the names of six (6) of the months of the y of so you can share in the distribution of the above. We shall give away 6 line Upright Planos and amounting to $600 in Gold among those who enter this contest, and will work for our interest. READ CAREFU REME EMBEEM we do not want one centrof your money when you answer this contest. In making it names the letters can only be used in their own groups and as many times as they are the contest. In making it no letter can be used which does not appear in its own group. After your of the six groups and for the six correct names, write them out plainly and send to us and you will see or anged the six groups and for the six correct names, write them out plainly and send to us and you will content out properly by return no TRY AND WIN. If you make the six correct names and send them to us at once who knows but you will get cash prize and possibly a Plano. We hope you will and anyhow it costs you nothing totry. Do not delay. Write at

READ WHAT THESE WINNERS SAY:

MISS HATTIE SIMS, MISS HATTLE SIMS, 609 Franklin Street, Peoria, III.
WINNER OF
Grand Up. Piano $300.00
Cash Prize, 10.00
Cash Prize, 5.00
Cash Prize, 5.00

MRS. JOHN JUST, Enfield, N.H.,

WINNER OF Grand Up. Piano 8300.00
Grand Up. Piano 300.00
Gash Prize, 50.00
Cash Prize, 50.00
Cash Prize, 20.00
Cash Prize, 20.00

MRS. JOHN LABENZ, 5113 Duncan St., Pittsburg, Pa.,

WINNER OF Grand Up. Piano, $300.00

Cash Prize, Cash Prize.

Cash Prize, 5.00
On receipt of her piano Miss Sims wrote us: "Dear Sirs, Received my Plano today in good condition; am delighted and more than pleased with it as first prize. Many thanks. It is a much nicer plano than I expected. I am very glad I won the first prize."

We have other letters from Mrs. Jour thank of the plano this A.M. in a ceived the Plano this A.M. in a condition. I am very glad I won the first prize."

We have other letters from Mrs. Jour thank of the word of the first prize. We have other letters from Miss Sims acknowledging receipt of her cash prizes. Also from her cousin, Miss Eva Wonder, of Peoria, Ill., only 15 years old and a student in the Peoria High School, who also won a Grand Upright Piano. She writes: "I write to inform you of the arrival of the Plano. I was highly delighted with it."

WHY DON'T YOU TRY

We will forfeit $500.00 Cash to any one who can prove that we have not paid all prizes as promised, or that the above testimonials or any of the hundreds in our possession are not genuine. Wood Pub. Commonials from those who have won prizes in our various contests, all showing that we always as we agree and satisfy all winners. Our patrons have participated in the distribution of $36,000.00 Cash Prizes and thousands of duser worth of Premium Merchandise. Would you like a part of this $600.00 or a Fine Upright Piano? If so, see if you solve the puzzle printed above and send us a correct answer. Perhaps it will be easier think and you may win a fine prize. Try it. Sit down and study it out at once, send us you toon and we will write you at once whether it is the correct one or not. Now is your chapter of the word of the will prize the prize that the correct one or not. Now is your chapter of the word of the will be casier the prize that the prize that the correct one or not. Now is your chapter of the word of the will be the prize that the correct one or not. Now is your chapter of the will be casher the prize that WOOD PUBLISHING CO. Dept. 134, 256 Franklin St. Box 3124, Boston, Mass

CHINA DINNER SET
FOR SELLING 15 POUNDS QUEEN BAKING POWDER
Our inducements are enormous. To every purchaser of a por our Queen Baking Powder with a bottle of Vanilla Extract, be Blue, package of Pepper, cake of Toilet Soap and a box of Po give FREE abeautiful Royal Blue Pitcher and 6 Glasses to match. T who sells 15 pound cans Queen Baking Powder we will make a a handsome 50-Piece Dinner Set, full size tableware, handsom rated and gold traced. We also give Walsts, Skirts, Jackeis, Sewing Machines, and hundreds of other valuable premiums four groceries. We also give cash commission. Write to-day an illustrated plans offering many premiums to customers; it will No money required. We pay freight and allow agents time of American Supply Co., 806 North Main St., Dept. 57, St. I

RICH ART TABLE COVER FREE

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUEBED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY

Oxien was last year put to the test as a remedy matism and it made a record of absolute cures Rheumatism, frequently called rhematic cardit's (inflammation of the investing men heart). Endocarditis (inflammation the last), Endocarditis (inflammation of the property of the less avere attacks of the disease).

REE 200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE.

azing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but the either suffer from rheumalism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies a refore, if you want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainty as our clerks a
THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augu ****************

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

E are soon to have in this country a test of horseless carriages that will have a tendency to build up confidence and prove that the automobile has a great amount of utility and is thoroughly reliable, as the Automobile Club of America is contemplating holding a test of endurance. This will begin at New York and end at Buffalo. The speed feature will not enter into the competition, the principal idea being to demonstrate that the automobile can be trusted to go long distances without breaking. The present idea is to make the awards on the following basis:

First.—Vehicles making fewest stops en route.

Second.—Vehicles carrying greatest weight in passengers in proportion to their own weight.

Third.—Vehicles requiring least repairs (if any) maintaining an average speed of from 12 to 15 miles an hour.

On the route stops will be made for meals and sleep. It is expected that the average daily travel will be 100 miles or more. There will be no special charging stations or depots for fuel along the course, competitors relying entirely for supplies upon the cities and towns through which they pass. The competition will be open, to all motor vehicles carrying two persons side by side on one seat. This will bar out motor bicycles, motor tricycles and motor quadricycles.

There will be two classes, one for manufact-motor bicycles, motor tricycles and motor quadricycles.

There will be two classes, one for manufacturers and the other for individual owners. A prize fund of $2500 has been established and awards may be made both in specie and plate, though this has not been definitely decided upon. It is thought conditions will be more favorable in the error autumn thanks any other favorable in the early autumn than at any other

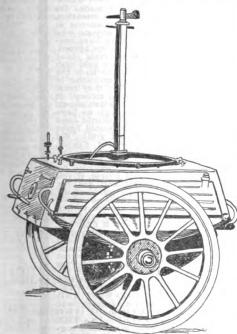

There is no doubt that the automobile will supersede the horse, according to the Patent Record, but it has been recognized for some time that this innovation would be more quickly brought about if there were some satisfactory means of displacing the horse at once and, at the same time, enabling merchants and storethe same time, enabling merchants and store-keepers to utilize the wagons which they have already in their stables. This has been done by the invention of Joseph Vollmer, a German inventor, who has devised what he calls a Vorspann, which is really a mechanical horse. It is carried on two wheels, and is so constructed that with but little alteration it may be substituted in place of the former front wheels and driver's box on almost any form of pleasure or business vehicle. Thus any stage coach or horse drawn four-wheeler, which is not too antiquated to warrant the expenditure coach or horse drawn four-wheeler, which is not too antiquated to warrant the expenditure which such a change necessarily entails, may be transformed into an automobile quite up to date in appearance and comparatively inexpensive as regards the cost of operation.

The carriage horses of Queen Victoria were early broken to have no fear of automobiles. Three types of vehicles were taken not long ago to the royal stables, and the horses were first made acquainted with them as they stood motionless, and then they were driven around them while the machines were in motion. It took but little time to thoroughly familiarize the animals with their rivals of iron and steel. Alencon is one of the first cities of Europe to have a motor ambulance service. A motor have a motor ambulance service. A motor quadricycle, carrying two persons is hitched to a regular ambulance. The "Quad" accommodates the operator and the doctor, and the patient is drawn behind in the ambulance.

The German postal officials have been so impressed with the success of the inventor's experiments that the Vorspann has been applied to many of the postal delivery wagons of the empire, and it is stated that the entire cost of this new government contract has been more than offset to the postal authorities by the great saving of money formerly spent on the nost-horses.

VOLLMER MECHANICAL HORSE.

post-horses.

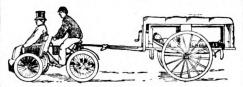

These motors are capable of sustained speed of from fifteen to twenty miles an hour. In a recent test in London one of them was attached to one of the cabs for which the English metropolis is famous. The vehicle was by no means of recent date, but when the change was made it presented a very modern appearance. The metamorphosed rig perfectly fulfilled every condition of the test, running over fifteen miles an hour and easily surmounting the steep grades of the trial course. One filling of gaso-line lasted for one hundred miles at a cost of a line lasted for one hundred miles at a cost of a trifie less than a cent a mile.

An American type of this same kind of vehicle is a single-wheel motor, which has just been placed on the market. This motor is also of the gasoline type, but has the apparent disadvantage of being open to the dust and mud of street traffic—a defect which cannot but help to have a severe action on the working parts. The ease with which it may be attached and detached gives it a great advantage over similar motors, in that its owner may use it for business purposes during the week and for an outing with the children on Sundays.

The Berlin Post-office Department has just

MOTOR AMBULANCE.

put into service six of the Loutzki automobiles for the use of the carriers in the collection and delivery of mail matter. A large number of the same style of wagon is also under construction, and at an early date the horses of the service will be entirely supplanted by motor vehicles.

Speaking of what the bicycle has done for women is it not eminently fitting that now at the beginning of the twentieth century woman should have become so general and fearless a rider of the wheel, certainly she will enter this new century on whose threshold we already stand, better equipped mentally and physically for the business obligations and enjoyments which await her than even the wildest hopes of her most sanguine friends could have foreseen.

But let us hope that out of this woman which the bicycle has developed we may have true womanliness, true individuality and less personality.

One wheelwoman, with the additional aid of bird books and glass, has learned the names and notes of sixty different birds, and is now studying the different varieties of trees which she finds on her trips. This, at first thought, would seem to necessitate an immense amount of time and labor, but she is a working woman and has accomplished this holidays and vacations. Surely her testimony on this subject. tions. Surely her testimony on this subject would be interesting reading. And so in an educational way the bicycle may lessen the amount of insipid afternoon gossiping, and break up some of the debating societies that formerly assembled at the corner grocery, but it will spread wholesome recreative enlightenment everywhere. It will call the merchant from the counter, the mechanic from the factory, the lawyer from his office, and the housekeeper from her monotonous round of employment, and will give them all a more intelligent appreciation of their own and the world's great work.

GERMAN POSTAL WAGON.

FREE HELPFOR WEAK

CALTHOS"

Prof. Laborde's Marvelous French Cure for Lost Manhood.

FIVE DAYS' TRIAL TREATMENT Sent Absolutely Free by Sealed Mail To All Sufferers.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

The only preparation known to science which really cures Lost Manhood is "CALTHOS," the marvelous French remedy discovered by Prof. Jules Laborde. It is controlled in this country by The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a concern which occupies a high and honorable place in the world of medicine. It is one of the largest and most responsible houses in Cincinnati, as anyone who is acquainted in that city will testify.

anyone who is acquainted in that city will testify.

The Von Mohl Company invites all men suffering from Lost Manhood, Spermatorrhæa, Vavicocele, Small Parts or Weakness of any nature in the Nerves or Sexual Organs, to send their names and receive a five days' treatment. This will prove the wonderful vitalizing powers of "CALTHOS." After using it five days the sufferers will find new vigor in their organs, new force in their muscles, new blood in their veins, new ambition, and rapid progress toward the buoyant feelings and sensations of younger days.

This liberal free offer is genuine. There is no swind-tions of younger days.

This liberal free offer is genuine. There is no swindling C.O.D. or Deposit Scheme connected with it. The five days' treatment is sent by sealed mail to all on request, wrapped in a plain package, and full printed instructions accompany the medicine, so that each patient becomes his own doctor and cures himself at home.

It doesn't make any difference what caused the weakness—whether bad habits in youth, or excess, or overwork, or business troubles. "CALTHOS" will effect a cure, no matter what big name the disease may be called by doctors.

The Von Mohl Company treats all correspondence in cure, no matter what big name the disease may be called by doctors.

The Von Mohl Company treats all correspondence in perfect confidence. Under no conditions will it make public the names of the thousands who have written testimonials telling of their restoration to robust manhood after other medicines and appliances have proved worthless. "CALTHOS" is regularly used in the French and German armies, and the soldiers in those countries have come to be perfect models of strength and vitality. Cures are effected at all ages from twenty to eighty years. There is no case (except where the stage of epilepsy or insanity has been reached) which it will not radically, quickly and permanently cure. Sexual weakness does not cure itself. It grows worse from week to week. Each day aggravates the mental and physical anguish.

Send today for the free five days' trial treatment. If it helps you, more of the medicine can be purchased. If it does not nelp, no harm is done and no money has been paid out. You can send your name in the full knowledge that it will be kept from all. The "CALTHOS" department of our business is strictly confidential. Address applications for trial treatment, etc., to Largest Importers of Standard Preparations in the United States.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

ATTRACTIVE YOUNG LADY. Handsome: We althy! Wants to marry a good man. All letters answered. Will send Photo if 10 cents is sent to guarantee safe delivery. Address Miss Josie Stevens, c/o Box W, 536 Chicago, Ill.

Get Married 8000 ladies want to marry. Many rich. Send 2 cts. for photos and big sealed list with addresses and full description. Satisfaction guaranteed. Union Corresponding Club, Box 608, Austin, Ill.

Absolutely cured. Never to return.
A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic,
Trial box MAILED FREE. Address,
Dr.E.M.Botot,Box 978,Augusta,Mc.

KILAN

Ripans Tabules, good suggestion, Cured my painful indigestion; Cleansed my liver, made me sleep, Now I'm happy, life is sweet.

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. 10 for 5 cents at drug stores. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

-THE EAGLE CLAW, 2000 A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

BEST TRAP
IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALO, AND ALL MANNER OF CAME.

A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

and small had a game. It did satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50. hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Is A Most Marvelous Invention, Its

of 1900.

I had the pleasure of meeting Johanna for the first time when the circus came to Boston about five years ago. The show was to open on Monday for a week's engagement. An invitation was extended to the newspaper men to come up on Sunday, after the tents were up, to meet Johanna in a social way while she would be free from the exactions of entertaining the crowds which were to come later in the week.

Johanna received us most cordially. If her keeper had not been on constant guard to see that we did not get too near the cage she would keeper had not been on constant guard to see that we did not get too near the cage she would no doubt have received us more cordially still. She smoked cigarettes with us, drank a bottle of wine, and wrote her autograph for each one of us. She must have had a number of names, and wrote a different one for each of us, since no two of the sheets she handed back resembled each other. Her keeper warned us that it would be the control of the sheets of the sheets of the sheet warned us that it would be the sheet of the sheets of the sheets of the sheet warned as that it would be the sheet of the sheets of the sheet of the sheets o and wrote a different one for each of us, since no two of the sheets she handed back resembled each other. Her keeper warned us that it would be just as prudent not to hand her the entire note book, if we wanted to be sure of getting it back, so we tore out leaves and handed them in, one at a time, with a pencil. Johanna would take the paper and pencil in the most serious manner imaginable. It was always a puzzle to me just how much was mere imitation. Her manner of writing was peculiar, to say the least. She would lay the paper down on the floor of her cage and sit on one corner of it to hold it down. Then she would write rapidly, looking down all the time as intently as any person would, to see what she was doing. When she had finished she would hand the paper and pencil back of her own accord, without any signal from her keeper to do so.

Oddly enough, the scrawl which she put upon the sheet of paper which I handed her could, with very little stretch of the imagination, be thought to read "Joanna." It was so nearly that, anyway, that my paper had it reproduced in fac simile as "Joanna's autograph, written by her for the Boston—." I give a copy of it here. It will be seen that she preferred to spell her name without the "h."

cage. He said, "Women are so changeable you Johanna.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

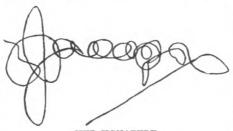

OHANNA is dead.
Johanna was the largest, the most intelligent, and the most famous animal of the monkey kind that has ever been kept in captivity. She was a chimpanzee, nearly as big as a med iums iz e d man, and stronger than any two men. She had many of the accomplishments of the accomplishments of the accomplishments of the monked kind had the temper of a fiend. She was the property of Barnum & Bailey's circus, and died of of 1900.

I had the pleasure of meeting Johanna for the first time when the circus came to Boston about five years ago. The show was to open on Monday for a week's engagement. An invitation was extended to the newspaper men to come up on Sunday, after the tents were up, to meet Johanna in a social way while she would be tree from the avections of entertaining the received and included the received the received the received and included the received the received the receiv or attention size attracted as and the state of the crowded streets with her keeper.

Johanna was the widow of Chiko, another remarkable chimpanzee, who died at Central Park a few years ago. She was larger than her husband, to whose memory it is probable she was inconsolably devoted, since when she was riven a new husband, some time afterwards. was inconsolarly devoted, since when she was given a new husband, some time afterwards, a chimpanzee of a homelier countenance, she strangled him the first night he was in the cage, and the keepers found him dead the next morning.

Once she got away during the night, when the circus was in winter quarters. She had always seemed to have a particular dislike for the giraffe, whose cage generally stood near hers. When found, in the morning, she had climbed up on the giraffe's cage and was pounding him over the head with the handle of a broom which she had picked up.

HER SIGNATURE.

She nearly killed her keeper when he tried to recapture her, and tore his clothes into strings. She broke the broom handle over the head of another keeper who came to the first man's rescue. She was finally secured by shoving a two gallon jug of port wine, of which she was particularly fond, into the room. After smelling of the wine, and tasting of it to make sure it was what she liked, she drank the whole of it, and was made so stupid that she was recaptured. by her for the Boston—." I give a copy of it here. It will be seen that she preferred to spell her name without the "h."

Johanna's keeper was Connecticut man. The same man had the entire care of her ever after she was brought to this country, and his whole time was devoted to her. He was a man of superb physique, and one of the handsomest men I ever saw. Johanna worshipped him, but he never trusted her enough to go into her

She nearly killed her keeper when he tried to recapture her, and tore his clothes into strings. She broke the broom handle over the head of another keeper when he tried to recapture her, and tore his clothes into strings. She broke the broom handle over the head of another keeper who came to the first man's rescue. She was finally secured by shoving a particularly fond, into the room. After smelling of the wine, and tasting of it to make sure it was what she liked, she drank the whole of it, and was made so stupid that she was recaptured.

95 THE PRETTIEST WHEEL IN AMERICA Something Entirely New-Three Crown Send no Money — Just Order

CASH BUYERS' UNION, (Inc.) 162W. Van Buren St., Dept. P-5, Chicago

HANDSOME Write to-day for illustrated catalogue describing new and easy plan for selling our Toilet Soaps and Perfumes. Cash commission if preferred. Salvona Soap Co., 122 Locust St., St. Louis, No.

When Professor Garner, who spent weeks in a steel cage in the center of an African forest, surrounded by wild gorillas, that he might watch their habits and learn the sounds by which they communicate with each other, returned to this country, it is said that he tried to interest Johanna by repeating these sounds, but that she would have none of him. The employes of the circus said that she had been away from Africa so long that she had forgotten her from Africa so long that she had forgotten her native language.

Johanna's food was chiefly bread soaked in milk, and fruit. She was especially fond of chestnuts, and seemed to know by intuition when the season for them came around.

ALWAYS BUY THE BEST.

ALWAYS BUY THE BEST.

It is a true saying, "the best is always the cheapest," if bought at the proper price; and the careful intelligent buyer always buys from the merchant or manufacturer who has gained a general reputation for honesty by fair treatment of his customers.

The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, O., (see advertisement on page 17), as the result of intelligence and honest treatment of their patrons, are now the largest and richest importers of standard preparations in the United States, and their financial and mercantile character has never been questioned.

"The Electric Fly Killer," FOUND AT to CHAS. STEVENS & CO., Tremont, Ill., for terms and agents outfit by mail prepaid.

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

7S. We are headquarters for every he picture line, Family Records s and Religious Pictures. Write FREE filustrated catalog. If you Small WE WILL TRUST YOU C. KEISER ART CO., 6001 Wentworth Ave, Chicago

FREE

To quickly introduce our Heal Oxien Arnica Court will send seven wallets Fre

GOLD DOLLARS Can You Solve This Puzzle?

Each one of the three lines of figures IN THE CENTRE OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT spells the name of a great city in the United States. This is a brand new puzzle and can be solved with a little study as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2 C number 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000.00 WHICH WE ARE GIVING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This and other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best New York magazines into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. When you have made out the names of these three cities, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to us, and you will hear from us promptly BY RETURN MAIL. It may take an entire evening to solve the three names, but STICK TO IT AND TRY TO GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1,000.00. A copy of our highclass ONE DOLLAR MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to everyone answering this advertisement. Do not delay Send your answer in immediately. WE INTEND TO GIVE AWAY VAST SUMS OF MONEY in the future, just as we have done in the past, to advertise our CHARMING MAGA-ZINE. We find it is the very best advertising we can get to give away LARGE SUMS OF GOLD FREE. Here are the names and addresses of a few people we have recently awarded FREE GOLD PRIZES: Mrs. J. M. Lachlin, Twenty-third Street, Pittsburg, Pa., $130.00; Mr. O. F. Ackerman, Hill, N. H., $125.00; Mr. Fred. Pease, 146 Atkinson Street, Rochester, N. Y., $125.00; Mr. George Corbett, Five Islands, Nova Scotia, Canada, $80.00; H. C. Hare, 49 Wisconsin Avenue, Columbus, O., $1,750.00 (this includes the $950.00 Cabinet Grand Upright Piano); W. Kettle, 2705 Carson Street, Pittsburg, Pa., $190.00; Miss Martha Gregory, 3 Park Street, Norwalk, Conn., $105.00; Mrs. John Just Box 7, Enfield, N. H., $100.00. We could go on and point hundreds of names of people who have gained large sums of money from our contests, but only give a few names, as we desire the space to tell you all about THIS SPECIAL $1,000.00 IN GOLD FREE OFFER. The above solution can be worked out by an alert and clever person, and the reward is so handsome that it will amply pay you to TRY AND SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES. Brains and energy nowadays are winning many Golden Prizes. Study it very carefully and let us see if you are clever and smart enough to spell out the Three Cities. WE HAVE THE $1,000.00 IN GOLD.

Have you the brains and energy? If you can make out the names of the three cities, send them to us without one cent of money. Remember, this is our $1,000.00 in Gold Free Distribution, and we don't want you to send any money. When we say FREE, we mean PERFECTLY FREE. We would rather take this way of advertising our excellent magazine than spending many thousands of dollars in other foolish ways. We freely and cheerfully give the money away.

YOU MAY WIN. We do not care who gets the money. TO PLEASE OUR READERS IS OUR DELIGHT. The question is, can you solve the above unique proposition?

Gold?

you can do so, write the names of the three cities and your full address plainly in a letter and mail it to us, and you will hear from us promptly by return mail. Money is a nice thing to have because there are so many useful uses we can put it to. By a little extra effort someone will get the money we give away. Some lazy and foolish people often neglect these grand golden free offers we make, and then wonder and complain about their bad luck. There are always plenty of good opportunities for clever, brainy people who are always alert and ready to grasp a real good thing. We have built up our enormous business by being alert and liberal in our GRAND

GOLD FREE DISTRIBUTIONS. We are continually offering our readers RARE AND UNUSUAL prizes. This special contest we consider one of the greatest offers ever made. Do not delay in giving this matter your immediate attention, and if you-can spell out the three cities send your answer at once. $1,000.00 REWARD will be paid to anyone who can prove that, in the many Free Cash Contests we have conducted in the past years, we did not do exactly as we agreed. We have a big capital and anyone can easily ascertain about our strong financial condition. To pay out these big gold cash prizes is always a pleasure to us. We intend to have the largest circulation of our high-class one dollar magazine in the world. In this progressive age publishers find they must be liberal in giving away prizes of great sums of money. It is the only successful way to get your magazine talked about. For instance, if you should solve the peculiar way we have of spelling the names of the three cities, and we should hand you a large sum of money as a free prize, you would never stop talking about our magazine, now, would you? We POSITIVELY CLAIM that these three lines of figures, by our plan, do actually spell the names of three cities, and that a clever, brainy person who can think and will patiently endeavor to solve how it is done will be amply rewarded by sharing in our $1,000.00 in Gold Free Offer. Of course, if you are easily discouraged and are not patient and are not willing to spare an hour or so in trying to work out the solution, you certainly cannot expect to win. This advertisement was not written for drones or idlers who are not willing to give a liberal use of their time. We expect the reader to do some work and give it the time and attention it deserves. USE YOUR BRAINS. If you are successful and as it does not solve you one cent to solve and answer this splendid Free Money Offer, it will be very foolish for you to pass it? In all fairness give it some of your leisure times before you give up the idea of solving the puzzle. The hard GOLD FREE DISTRIBUTIONS. We are continually offering our readers RARE AND UNUSUAL prizes. This special 24 NORTH WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

A May Day greeting, dear cousins, to one and all of you, and a sincere wish that Spring ends happily to you all, and you will go into the rose month merrily. Now let us talk of other things.

The first question I come to is from Cousin Jennie of Geneseo, Ills., and she wants to know what finger the engagement ring goes on. My, my, I thought every girl knew as soon as she got out of her baby clothes that it was the third finger of the left hand, and ought to be a solitaire. She asks another question about her eyes and skin, that the doctor can best answer.

Brown Eyes, Baltimore, Md.—Don't teach children kissing games. (2) Of course it is proper to rest your head on a car-seat back, when you are tired. (3) Don't worry about the young man. He is silly or he isn't old enough to know any better. You are acting quite right.

Sweet Brier, Porthill, Idaho.—Let the young man go with the other girl if he wants to. Is he the only one on earth?

L. E. W., Mauston, Wis.—Yes, you may send your graduation card to the young man. Put your name on the card. (2) The giver's name may be written in the book given, or not, as you please. (3) Your other questions are not foolish but I have answered them many times here.

Pansy, New Brighton, Pa.—Don't let the young man put his arms around you unless you are engaged to him. The better you'like him the more reason for this. (2) Elopements are altogether too risky for me to advise you to get a husband that way.

Mocking Bird, Lake City, Fla.—It is quite right to hope you will see the young man again, and say so. (2) Collars seem to be as high as ever and silver bracelets are popular. (3) A girl should be at least twenty before accepting men's attentions. (4) Sitting out a dance is all right—even on a porch, I suppose, but it would be rather chilly in Maine.

Pet, Graniston, Texas.—If you have rosy cheeks he yellow castis possibly natural. (2) I can't give dvice about eyes. They are too delicate. Talk to a doctor. (3) Engaged couples are a law unto themselves and you must use your own judgment as to how familiar your fiance may be.

Rose and Orange, Stony Point, Mo.—Don't marry a man younger than yourself if you can get any other. (2) Let the caller light his cigar in the hall. (3) Don't ask the young man to join your charch, and then he will not refuse. But he should go to shurch with you. (4) A boy of twenty should not call every Sunday night. (5) Shake hands at the door.

Charlotte, High Bridge, Mich.—You are so mixed up with your heart affairs, my dear, that I cannot advise you. Drop them all for a year and begin over again with new people.

Crazy, Waterboro, Me.-I think you are as you sign your name. You know it isn't right to accept the attentions of married men.

Ida, Keener, Ark.—Make the young man jealous by smiling at some other.

Ben, Pine Bluff, Ark.—If the friend does not care to eat, leave her alone until you have finished. (2) Wash Battenburg in white soap, slapping instead of rubbing, and pin out on a pillow or the floor, with a towel between, to dry. Some iron on one side. (3) Better mind your mother about the young man for a couple of years. If he is the right kind he will not object.

Sunflower, Friend, Kans.—The young fellow, who ill not go to see you because you won't let him ug you, has the making of a scoundrel in him.

Kid, Daisy, Wash.—Store or office acquaintance is enough in small towns for a speaking acquaintance. (2) I don't see how you can help forgetting one who has proved unworthy. Why remember him?

C. G. N., Uniontown, Pa.—The hostess, of course. (2) Yes. (3) Twenty may marry forty-five if she wants to. (4) Better obey your parents. (5) If you don't love the man tell him so.

S. J., Tangipahoa, La.—No, if you are engaged to him. (2) School girls should not go to balls. (3) You might go riding occasionally.

Ella, Arnold, Pa.—Your love affairs are too com-plicated for me to advise.

Pansy and Violet, Maysville, Ga.—"Don't mention it", or "You are quite excusable" are good answers to "I beg your pardon". (2) Really, I don't know, but it seems to me if you were thankful to get the engagement ring you might say, "I thank you, kind sir," or something like that. There isn't space to answer all your questions.

Mildred, Louisville, Ky .- Settle the religious

CALIFORNIA Cuff Buttons or Pin Cushion made from famous Big Trees, sent on receipt 25 cents and 2c stamp. W. J. ABERNETHY, P. O. Box 2693; San Francisco, Calif.

LADIES TOME, PLAIN SEWING AT guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. Hutton & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

LADIES to do piece work at their homes. We furnish all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly. Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago.

MAN WANTED In EACH COUNTY. SALARY HORSE & WAGON, If competent to sell Teas, Coffees, Spices, etc., direct to housewives and stores, with or without valuable premiums to customers. West India Co., 104 Greenwich St., New York City.

Any one can earn this Beautiful Gold-Plated Hunting Case Stem Wind Watch, lady's or gent's size, a perfect time-keeper, also a Solid Gold Figure 1 in the state of the state keeper, also a Solid Gold Finisned light selfung our Beauty Pins a mong friends and neighbors, also other valuable presents OUR 60 DAY OFFER, which is apart from the above. Send name and address and we will send you 12 cards of Beauty Pins, 3 pins on a card, sell them at 10 cents per card, send us the $1.0 received, and we will send you FREE, a beautiful Watch-Chain and Charm, also a Solid Gold Finished Ring. Address, Royal Pin Co., Dept. C. F. Bridgeport, Conn.

question before you marry. This is easy if you are both Protestants, or both Catholics.

Clinette, Cincinnati, Ohio.—No wonder you are in "deep trouble". A girl with "five beaus" ought to be. Send four of them to New England where men are scarce, and see if that does not afford some relief.

Bertha, Altoona, Pa.-Ask him to explain his treatment of you, but only on friendly grounds. If he won't return, let him stay away.

Bessie and Louella, Dunnville, Ind.—Isn't there something else you can talk about except beaus? At least until you are older.

Neoma, Kendrick, Idaho.—Be as indifferent and changeable as the young man is. (2) Say whatever you think pretty in congratulating a newly married pair. (3) Be polite to the girls you mention, and no more. Don't have anything to do with "wild girls."

girls."

There, my dears, your questions are all answered except some who seem to think I can answer forty questions at once. It isn't nice to be so greedy. May you be happy and have all things you ought to have. By, by.

COUSIN MARION.

St. Vitus Dance. Oue bottle Dr. M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

PLAYS Best List of New Plays. 325 Nos. Dialogs, Speakers, Hand Books. Catalog free. T.S. DENISON, Pub., Dept. 8, Chicago

Electro Magnetic Battery. Cures matism and Neuralgia. Solid gold band ring FREE to sell 3 batteries at 50c, each. B. G. STAUFFER, Dept. C, Harrisburg. Pa.

with 20 YEAR GUARANTEE Railroad men all over the country buy this watch on account of its durability and timekeeping quali-ies. Our factory price is $42.00 per dox; for the next 60 days we will send you one sample for free inspection. If fully satisfied pay $3.50 and express charges, other inspection. If fully satisfied pay 63.60 and years the first of the control of th

SEND NO MONEY

SERD NO MONEY. We will give you a splendid Solid Watch, ladies' or gents' size, equal in appearance to a $25 Solid Gold Watch, ladies' or gents' size, equal in appearance to a $25 Solid Gold Watch, ladies' or gents' size, equal in appearance to a $25 Solid Gold Watch, warranted to keep perfect time and wear for years. We mean every word we say. To quickly introduce our house and goods we will send you this watch ABSOLUTELY FREE if you take advantage of our marvelous offer. If you want one send us your name and address (no money) and we will send you by mail, postpaid, 12 latest style jeweled scarf or stick pins to sell at the your of them, $1.20, and we will send you our watch offer and this inne gold plated Ring, any size, set with a rare Clicco Co. They sell on sight. When sold send us the money that you get for them, $1.20, and we will send you our watch offer and this inne gold plated Ring, any size, set with a rare Clicco Co. They sell can be suppleaded to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest style polearance to a $60.00 diamond ring; also a set of the latest st

60° BLACK SILK SATIN OFFER-

BLACK SATIN, the equal of anything your storekeeper sells at $1.25 to $1.50. Big 4-yard $2.40 | Big 10-yard $5.90 | Big 14-yard $8.25 to $1.50. Waist Pattern, $2.40 | Skirt Pattern, $5.90 | Suit Pattern, $2.50. Suit Pattern, $2.50. Suit Pattern, $5.50. Suit Pat Waist Pattern, $\subsection{\Psi} = \mathbb{N} \ | \mathbb{N} | \mathb be much reduced. If sent by mail, ENCLOSE 12 CENTS EXTRA to pay for postage,
THIS IS A VERY FINE, EXTRA HEAVY, GENUINE DUCHESSE, ALL PURE SILK BLACK SATIM, 19 inches wide, the handsomest silk dress fabric poduced, distinctively a ladies' dress. Is a rich, lustrous, glossy black, extra heavy silk. It is made for us under contract by one of the best French makers, and our special priet is based on the actual cost to produce, water and rail transportation, and our one small profit added, one-half the price charged by others. UNDERSTAND, you take no risk, if the goods are not perfectly satisfactory when received, we will return your money at once. Order two, four or six patterns at these special prices by getting your friends to order with you, and in SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handlest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address GOLDEN MOMES

Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

OVER A QUARTER OF A MILLION SATISFIED CUSTOMERS WE WILL SHIP A CORNISH PIANO OR ORCAN ANYWHERE upon the distinct understanding that if it is not entirely as represented after 12 months' use we will take it back and refund the purchase money and freight charges both ways, together with interest at the rate of six per cent. This unique method of selling Planos and Organs has attracted world wide attention; it has brought us sales from every part of the world; over a quarter of a million satisfied purchasers prove that the public appreciate the Cornish plan of business. We sell existively to the general public at first cost clustively to the general public at first cost clustively to the general public at first cost clustively to middlemen's and dealers' profits are saved to the purchaser of the Cornish Plano or Organ; this means from twenty-five to fifty per cent. THE CORNISH PIANOS AND

20th.CENTURY MODELS NOW READY

FOUR PIANOS FREE!

To every person mentioning this paper we will send a cautiful miniatures of our latest style Pianes show ag the instruments in their natural wood effects. These iniatures have been produced at a great cost; they are most expensive advertisements of musical instruents issued by any firm in the country. No intending urchaser, can afford to be without these handsom ouvenirs. Also FREE—our Jubilee Catalogue handomely illustrated, describing all our Pianes and Organs

THE CORNISH PIANOS AND ORGANS ARE UNEQUALED
In tone and appearance; in fact there are no more beautiful instruments manufactured in ithis country; purchasers have the benefit of lifty years of practical experience in Piano and Organ building. Every Piano is fitted with the new Cornish Musical Attachment; this can be had with the Cornish Piano only; it sour exclusive patent; every Cornish Organ is litted with our Orchestral Action, pronounced to be the finest combination reed action in the world.

RUPTURE Cured while you work. You no pay. ALEX. SPEIRS, Box 532, Westbrook, Maine.

HOME WORK 60c. a sheet for copying. No canvassing steady employment. Send stamp. THE WORLD CO., Sta. B., Battle Creek, Mich.

I wish every person in the U S. suffering with Fits, EPILEPSY or FALL-ING SICKNESS to send for one of my large-sized 16-ounce bottles FREE. DR. F. E. GRANT, Dept. 54, Kansas City, Mo.

A Labor-Saving device entirely new and universal in demand. Will last a lifetime and costs but Twenty-five cents. Just on the market and over 500 Gross sold last method. Every family in the land wants one or more. All you do to sell the work of miply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works of miply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works of miply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works of miply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works of miply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works of miply show the lady of the depart with one less every time, but in its place and you will the common sponge is of vegetable origin and found in the United States, dug from the ground, carefully prepared and manufactured into sponges for the Housekeeper, Herchant, Liveryman, Metal Workers, and all persons who desire to keep their homes, offices, and business places in a clean and healthy condition.

No Soap or water is needed or even used with the Hagical Sponge for Cleaning Windows or any outside Metal. In the winter time it has no equal, it does not freeze, and no water being used (other than what is in the sponge) all trouble and hard work is avoided. For Cleaning Baseboards, Window Sills, Wainscoating and palated surfaces, it acts like a charm; takes all the finger marks, spots, grease and dirt away, leaving a Clean, Polished Surface.

Good men wanted all over the country to handle these goods, big inducements offered steady workers, and exclusive sale. To Agents, Salesmen, and house to house canvassers, who send us 25 cents for a 6 months' subscription, we will send one sample post paid, and mak them a business proposition. Write at once. Secure your territory.

MAKERS OF PIANOS AND ORGANS TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

THEY ARE BEAUTIES. FREE! ADJUSTABLE RECLINING CHAIR. This Easy Chair is Full of Durability and Utility.

The style was invented in England many years ago by William Morris, the celebrated London artist. He built it from a knowledge of anatomy. He was also a famous designer of artist furniture. It is therefore called the Morris Chair. It is made of the finest Oak and so arranged by a simple device in the back that it can be adjusted to either a lounging or upright position. It is the most useful and popular Easy Chair on the market, either in Europe or America to-day. It is finely upholstered and tufted. Every one needs at least one of these Chairs in their home, no matter be it humble or great. They seem to just fit the tired body after a busy day's work, in fact it fits one's every mood. We have or dered many thousands of these Chairs direct from an immense furniture factory and although the Morris Chairs.

dered many thousands of these Chairs direct from an immense furniture factory and although the Morris Chairs sell at many stores from $15.00 to $50.00 each, we are giving these Chairs away as Premiums for selling our Remedies.

at many stores from $15.00 to $50.00 each, we are giving these Chairs away as Premiums for selling our Remedies.

LAGE CURTAINS FREE, Sell only six Electric Plasters at 25c.

Lage Curtains, each Curtain is mine feet long so you get six yards of Ourtains in the pair, and as they are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely and furnish an elegant drapery for even the very broad windows; are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely and furnish an elegant drapery for even the very broad windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home with. Every one of taste will tell you that there is nothing which "dresses up" a room so much as a pair of lace curtains, for the finest effects are obtained by these draperies. They show from the outside as well as from the inside. They are of the real Italian pattern and formerly sold as high as six or eight dollars a pair. They are delivered free to you, all you get the curtains and learn all about the Morris Chair inducement. It will surprise you in liberality, make you the most liberal, honest and straightforward offer ever put out. We are paying our agents over two dollars for selling only $1.50 worth of goods as some firms profess to do, but we over two dollars for selling only sind offer ever put out. We are paying our agents of the real Italian pattern and for the six Plasters to-day. Address, That GilaNT PLANTER CO., Box C Augusta, Maine.

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing.

A NINE YEARS' TEST.

TO THE GIANT CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.

GENTLEMEN: Do you realize I have been selling your remedies for the past mine years? After acting thus as your dealers for the past mine years? After acting thus as your that no bull-long period it is not flattery when I say to you that no bull-long period it is not flattery when I say to you that no bull-long period it is not flattery when I say to you that no bull-long period it is not flattery when I say to you had been supposed to the period of the patrons. Not one dealings—even more, generosity to its patrons. Not one dealings—even more, generosity to its patrons. Not one dealings—even more, generosity to its patrons. Not one dealings—even more generosity to its not one dealings—even more generosity to its not include the patrons of the patrons of

A TEN YEARS' TEST.

THE GIANT CO. MUNCIE, INDIANA, Oct. 10th, 1900.
GENTLEMEN: After ten years of successful work for you I can truthfully say that you have move than done as you agreed during my long period of selling your famous Oxien Remedies. There has nothing taken away the Joy that came to me from getting my first box of Oxien. As for Premiums I have received so many and such nice ones, too, that I cannot possibly enumerate them. They were all fine and perfectly satisfactory. I consider your firm one of the best in existence and although I have had many flattering offers to work for other concerns, I have always been true to The Giant Oxie Co., for they have been honest and faithful in carrying out their promises to me, Wishing you continued prosperity, I remain, Yours truly, EMMA E. BEANSON.

o FREE ARTICLES.
The Gents' Complete Outfitting Co.,
H 34 State Street, Chicago, Ill.
Please mention Comfort when you write,

AGENTS
TORIDE

Storm of the man and lady rider on an every town in the U. S. to introduce them. BIG MONEY proposition.

We want a gental end and lady rider on an every town in the U. S. to introduce them. BIG MONEY proposition.

stpaid. WE IRECSI 100.

IE BLUINE MAN, Box 418, Concord Junet.

The Old Reliable firm who sell honest and give valuable premiums.

True Hair Grower

Virginia Ave. ersey City, N. J

free trial of this grand treatment, together with testimonials and full particulars how to cure all on receipt of a 2 cent stamp to a 2 cent stamp to Address distinctly.

LORRIMER & CO., 118 N. Paca St., Baltimore, Md.

CONSTIPATION, HEADACHE, and DYSPEPSIA absolutely cured. Instant relief, never returns. Acts like magic. A boon to sufferers. Trial Box

SALESMEN Wanted for travel for old-estab.

Responses. No previous experience needed. W. B. HOUSE, 1020 Race St., Phila., Pa.

Fires Must Be Kindled 3 Times a Day in Summer.

THE YANKEE FIRE-KINDLER Bulls 100 Fires

With 3e of Oil.

No kindlings. Warranted 3 years. Greatest Seller for Agents ever invented. Sample with terms prepaid, 16e. YANKEE KINDLER CO., BLOCK 41, OLNEY, ILL.

Tottering China.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

HE sun touches the point of his extreme northern declination, being the first minute of the sign Ca ncer, at about twenty minutes past ten o'clock in the evening of the 21st day of June, this year. At that moment the 20th degree of Aquarius will be rising and the 8th degree of Aquarius will be culminating. The sun will be conjoined with Meptune on the cusp of the 5th house in which Venus is also found; Mercury is just inside the 6th house, with Herschel in the 10th but in benevolent aspect with Jupiter and Saturn in the 11th house and favorably beholding Venus and Mercury in the 5th house. This figure corresponds in its main features with that erected for the Total Eclipse of the sun which occurred May 18th, this year; the superior planets being in the same parts of the figures are good for the country's progress there are detrimental indications which invite comment. Herschel in the 10th in square with Mars and Moon in the 7th house, points to some national disquietude over developments in our relations with foreign powers; showing some dispute or contention over international matters in which a show of force in the nature of a military or naval move is quite probable. The administration suffers some criticism by the people of its manner of dealing with the question and there will be likely to be considerable antagonism displayed among the people and very bitter disensions over the doings of great corporations or combinations of capital. There are likely to be some disagreeable questions of finance or trouble in our commercial relations with other governments; some retaliations as to tariff regulations. There will be likely to be some conflict in western localities either in the nature of a strike or some lawlessness or mob violence. Saturn opposing Venus in the 6th and the Sun going to the opposition of uniter and saturn affects the nation in a pecuniary sense for a season; the failure of some eminent firms shakes public confidence to some exient and there are likely to be some wide fluctuations in stock prof

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR JUNE 1901.

JUNE 1-Saturday. Conflicting conditions prevail on this day, not encouraging the beginning of any important venture in life; do not use the day for anything but routine matters; beware of incurring the displeasure of those in authority; government officials and officers of railroads and other large corporations will not be favorably disposed all of this day and the next; explosions and accidents are prone to occur in these passing hours and Regulus desires to impress his friends with the necessity for unusual caution in these respects; the suggestion is particularly urged upon those who were born about the 28th of February or May, 30th of August, or 5th of December, of past years. Ladies so born are many of them experiencing unusual trouble of mind over the conduct of affairs of near male relatives or those who are expected to become their marital partners.

2-Sunday. Peculiar sentiments and odd expres-

2—Sunday. Peculiar sentiments and odd expressions will be observable in the extemporaneous discourse of to-day; contentions and quarrels are to be especially guarded against; let all be guarded against fires.

3.—Monday. Unpromising for dealings in decorative or ornamental goods; nor should the time be chosen for a wedding day; correspondence and contract-making is best deferred until the forenoon of the morrow.

best deferred until the forenoon of this day should be vigorously employed for the prosecution of all general business; for dealing in metals, machinery and cutlery also for the pursuit of the mechanical trades and inventions; seek money accommodations; adjust accounts make purchases for trade in the early forenoon but expect to be somewhat disappointed in such matters in the day.

day.

5-Wednesday. An indifferent day in nearly every respect, when little permanent progress need be looked for in the greater enterprises of life; keep out of quarrels in the atternoon when the patience is likely to be short and rebellious inclinations are easily excited.

WHAT AILS YOUR HAIR?

Upon receipt of this FORM carefully filled out, and enclosing a few hairs, or a sample from the daily combings, we will send you a dainty BOTTLE of Cranitonic Hair Food and a trial cake of Cranitonic Shampoo Scalp Soap FREE by mail prepaid and a diagnosis and complete REPORT upon the condition of your hair after scientific microscopical examination by our Physicians and Bacteriologists.

Applicant's Full Name-Address in Full-Have you Dandruff? -_ Is the Dandruff Oily or Dry?-_ Losing color ?_ Is your hair falling out? Any scaly eruptions? Does your scalp itch?_ Any eczema on scalp or body? _ Occupation_

CRANITONIC HAIR FOOD CO., 526 West Broadway, New York.

BE GOOD TO YOUR HAIR!

Hair needs food to keep it alive.

The food should be supplied by the blood vessels of A the scalp which run up to the hair roots.

> If the roots have been weakened by the attacks of the scalp microbe, your hair falls sick, falls out, turns gray.

> A sure sign of "hair disease" is dandruff.

> If dandruff is allowed to remain it smothers the growth of your hair

MICROBES HAVE JUST ATTACKED THIS HAIR

A-The Hair.
B-The Scalp.
C-Microbes.
D-Food Gland.

Heretofore the treatment of diseases of the Hair and Scalp has been a matter of guesswork, without regard to the

In the laboratories of the Cranitonic Hair and Scalp Institute, of New York, the only institute in America devoted to diseases of the hair and scalp, the cause of the disease is learned by means of a Microscopic Examination of the hair, and a cure effected by exact and scientific methods.

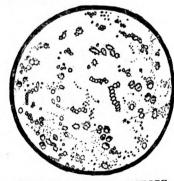

In a microscopic examination of 1,000 different samples of human hair, made in the Cranitonic Hair and Scalp Institute (incorporated under the laws of the State of New York), 24 different diseases of the hair and scalp were discovered, many of them highly contagious and all fatal to the life of the hair.

The Cranitonic Hair Food and Shampoo Scalp Soap were formulated for the exact purpose of preventing and curing all hair and scalp diseases, and are sold by druggists all over the world.

For purposes of scientific research and investigation, and in the perfection of its formulae, the Cranitonic Hair Food Co. has already expended more than $200,000.

Over three hundred thousand letters from people who have been successfully treated can be seen on file in the company's office.

pany's office.

THE DANDRUFF MICROBE ching by Falling Hair and finally Baldness. From Micro-Photograph by Dr.E. Fahrig, Chief Cranitonic Laboratories.

(Copyright 1899.)

FREE HAIR FOOD

The advantages of these researches and investigations are offered free to all, as the above offer of free Hair Food and Shampoo Soap and free microscopic examination and diagnosis of hair show. If you wish to be cured of dandruff, to save your hair and grow more, write to

CRANITONIC HAIR FOOD CO.,

526 West Broadway, New York, and you will get a FREE BOTTLE of Cranitonic Hair Food and Shampoo Soap, by MAIL PREPAID, with testimonials, full directions for use, and a FREE REPORT on the condition of your hair and scalp, after microscopic examination, and scalp, after microscopic examination, and a 48 page illustrated "Hair Care" book.

$3.75 BUYS A $35 WATCH THIS IS A GENUINE GOLD-FILLED WATCH

> 25 YEARS. Cut this out send it to us and we' will zend you the WATCH AND CHAIN & CHARM G. O. D. $3.75 and express charges for examination. If as repre-sented, pay our special price $3.75 & exp. charges, and it is yours. Mention if you desire Ladles' or Gent's size. CALUMET WATCH CO., Dept. 203, Chicage.

THIS BEAUTIFUL hours work:

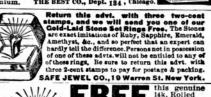

Cirls, send your name and address and we will mail you 24 jewelry novelties to sell at roc, withis handsome French Doll, elegantly dressed in silk, 16 inches high, full jointed, bisque head, pearly teeth, automatic sleeping eyes, slippers and stockings to take off, long flowing hair which can be combed, braided and curled. It is a large and beautiful up-to-date and will please the girls. A most liberal offer. Send and address at once to

J. B. PITCHER, Dept.902 Bridgewater, Conn.

SILK Large Pkg. pretty pieces for crazy patch, 100 crazy stitches, a 50c. lesson on embroidery and a 50c lesson on Battenburg lace making illustrated with the stitches required, all sent postpaid for 10c, to introduce our goods. Ladies' Art Co., Dept. 5 R, St. Louis, Mo.

Cash For Your Farm Residence or Business Property may be obtained through me. No matter where located. Send description and selling price and get my successful plan. W. M. OSTRANDER, 126 Heed Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

FREE this genuine
lak. Rolled
lak. Rolled
lak. Rolled genuine
lak. Rolled
lak. Rolled
a Band Ring,
Braceiet, Hat Pin, Chatelaine,
Knife, Shirt Waist Set, etc., to Knife, Shirt Waist Set, etc., to anyone who will sell 10 of our ROMAN GOLD STICK PINS at locts, each. They sell quickly at the sell quickly at the Money Required in Advance; just send ur name and acdress saying you will sell e pins or return them and we will send to f watches, Chains. Opera Glasses, ocks, etc. When soid you send us the present will send the premium you lect. Our Premiums are the Best.

R. COMPANY. 79 Bearbows St. Dent. 64 Chicago.

M. B. COMPANY, 79 Dearborn St., Dept. 64, Chica

SELL YOUR REAL ESTATE We want good City and Farm property in all parts of the U.S. and Canada. Send description and cash price. WINSLOW REALTY AND INVESTMENT CO., Sta. E., South Bend, Ind.

REVEAL YOUR IN LOTE, MARRIAGE, BUSINESS and SPEC LATION, When to MARRY and whom You LIFE COMPLETE WAN MY AUTOMOTE AUTOMOTE AUTOMATIC PROPERTY.

will on receipt of the with your age and set send to you sealed a complete your future. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

THIAL TREATMENT FREE.
We will forfeit $50 for any case of Internal, External or Itching Piles the Germ Pile Cure fails to cure, Instant and permanent relief, Write at once.
Germ Medical Co., 215 E. 3d St., Cincinnati, O.

Family Record. A beautiful picture, rich gold. Tremendous seller. Agents delighted. Sample free for 12c. to pay postage and advig; 9 for $1.00 postpaid. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

ARRY 10000 are anxlous to MARRY 2 cts. for big sealed list of Ladies or Gents all description and residence. Best Plan. Satisfac-d. Address STAR AGENCY, No.41f, AUSTIN, ILL.

ACTIVE MAN by large Manufacturing House side of 12 days trial; promotion and permanent position if satisfactory. Address G. B. P. Co., 723 Chestnut St., Philada.

Instant relief & positive cure. Sample mailed free to Any suffere. "Physician" Box 36, Augusta, Maine.

REE Clairvoyance. It sick or ailing, send own name, age, sex, lock of hair and 2 stamps to DR. D. Hinkly, X10, Grand Rapids, Mich Your children cured of incontinence of urine. Sample Free. Dr. F. E. May, Box 304, Bloomington, Ill.

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every conseded. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

FORETELL All affairs of life, with Photo of future Husband or Wife, for 10c, and brith date, ASTROLOGER, Box 3517, Rosson, Macs.

WHISKEY Receipt to make it without a still 10c. Eric Novelty Co., Horrs, Ohio. Attractive Widow, very wealthy, wants good honest hus-

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

WED 5.000 LISTS and PICTURES FREE: WISELY

THE SNAKE CHARMER has no influence on this lolly musical novelty. You blow it up and see it slowly expand. It is a regular Rubber neck, for it stretches out to see like a peninsular, and what heaps of fun you can have with it. Let a friend take hold of it and feel it squirm, then see your irlend squirm when it begins to hiss and hiss and double up rubber around. They create more sport in a crowd than you can imagine and everybody wants one just to have some sport with their neighbors. Don't miss it; you will laugh and grow fatover the sport it will make. They sell quick at Fairs and on the street. Send 10 cents for a four months' trial subscription to our great home monthly and we will send you one FREE. Send 16c. you get two, 26c. for four, 50c. for one dozen. You make big profits; we pay postage.

12—Wednesday. Give preference to the forenoon for the principal ventures of the day, though the time is not recommended for any literary enterprise of consequence; after 3 o'clock in the afternoon give attention to matters of an elegant or artistic nature, dealing in dry goods, fancy wares or musical merchandise; musical and social entertainments and dramatic engagements are encouraged for the afternoon and evening; the day is unfortunate for persons born about the 5th of January, April, July or October, of past years, and no engagement should be made at this time concerning purchase or sale of real estate and care should be had by such persons in all matters of writing, accounts, and agreements; many of them this year have digestive annoyances of serious character and will need to be more prudent than usual in their diet; nervous troubles and mental disquietudes fall to the lot of a majority of such persons and good rest and sleep will be good medicine for them.

13—Thursday. One of the best days of the month; be up with the sun and urge business vigorously throughout the day; buy goods to sell again; deal with the banker and all persons of prominence or distinction. Regulus advises his friends to lose none of the golden moments of this day but to push all honorable transactions with more than the ordinary assurance of success; preference, if any, may be given to the last two-thirds of the day for mental efforts, the beginning or pursuit of all literary undertakings and generally for the planning of all enterprises of moment, business arrangements, commercial contracts, journeys, educational projects, stock and monetary programmes and ecclesiastical or judicial deliberations and decisions. If this be the anniversary of thy birthday or if form about the 4th of May or 5th of November, of past years, the above suggestions are peculiarly appropriate. Use the day for the mechanical and chemical pursuits; begin important ventures of that nature, institute legal proceedings, practice surgery, buy machinery, employ me lands in the afternoon.

14-Friday. An indifferent day in which care and moderation are invited; do not bargain for houses or lands in the afternoon.

15—Saturday. An adverse day in which matters of much importance are best deferred; see that thy tongue or pen do no violence to good judgment on this day; moral deformities are excited and crimes are increased and disclosed; quarrels, bad accidents, and sudden deaths are induced; do thou beware of litigation and contentions at this time for the day is one of strife and discord; let all persons born about the 5th of March, 2nd of June, 5th of September or December, of past years, guard carefully the health at this time; avoid all controversy and be sure that business ruptures do not come through acts of theirs; married ladies born on either of these days should be guarded at this time against promoting domestic unpleasantness, as anxieties through or in behalf of their married partners as also lovers' quarrels and estrangements are very probable.

16-Sunday. An excellent day for mental exertion and for association with thy superiors who will feel well disposed and agreeable.

disposed and agreeable.

17—Monday. Beware of making purchases on this day, for disappointing experiences will result in most cases and general conditions bid thee pause before engaging in any matter of great importance. Give thy landlord a wide berth and avoid all matters pertaining to real estate. Hold fast the purse-strings and do not loan thy credit or sign as security on any money obligation.

18—Tuesday. The forenoon gives the best hours, especially for removals and for the literary pursuits, mental efforts and the execution of writings of consequence pertaining to educational publications; as the evening approaches let all be guarded in handling inflammables or explosives.

flammables or explosives.

19-Wednesday. This day favors all manner of engagements in connection with strange and uncommon subjects, promoting metaphysical discourse and antiquarian researches; do not make any application to persons in authority for favor or advantage in the late afternoon.

20-Thursday. Defer thy purchases of wearing apparel or fancy or ornamental wares until a more favorable time, and look out in the pursuit of pleasure or recreation or in obtaining gratifications of itaste that extrawagant drains are not made upon the purse or that articles purchased are of the value represented.

21-Friday. Ask favor of heads of departments, functionaries of state, or superiors in rank in the early forenoon and bend all thine energies to the pursuit of business generally; matters of a literary character are less favored during the middle hours of the day; seek money accommodations in the evening, when also bargain for houses and lands or secure architectural or horticultural advantages.

22-Saturday. Urge sales of merchandise of an or-namental or decorative character in the forenoon; be-ware of a too ready tongue in the middle hours lest haste spoil many good ventures; fires and explosions are easi-ly caused and hurts from vicious animals are to be guarded against 23-Sunday. The morning hours are best for en-joyment of the elegant in literature and activity of the imagination; few conditions, however, conduce to re-ligious fervor or moral advancement.

24-Minday. Pecuniary losses are among the affects induced by the prevailing conditions of this day; so be thou careful that thy purchases are prompted by necessity rather than for profit or self-gratification and defer the speculative until a more propitious time; be sure and have no dealings in houses or lands nor make any contracts or engagements for their improvement or extensive repairs; do not buy mining stocks nor the products of mines or wells.

products of mines or wells.

25-Tuesday. The unpropitious moments of this day occur around the noon hours when business of all kinds should be transacted with unusual caution; avoid important contracts and defer correspondence at that time; those employed with the pen should act with great circumspection; errors of account are more than usually liable in the noon hours; the morning is not propitious for any of the elegant pursuits and should not be chosen for any new enterprise calling for the exercise of unusual taste; do not use the time for buying any artistic or decorative goods.

26-Wednesday. Be early at thy post, pushing business vigorously while the day lasts; speculations in railroad stocks and money transactions result favorably to those whose nativities also promise fairly at this time; buy goods for trade; let judges weigh testimony and decide important cases. The day is peculiarly fortunate for persons born about the 29th of April or August, of past years.

past years.

27—Thursday. Another of the excellent days of the month which should be used for inaugurating important matters connected with art, music, fancy goods and the elegant in life; deal in such commodities as coal, iron, wood, lumber, lead, wool and grain, and with discretion in mining stocks; make contracts for building and repairing and such also as pertain to manufacture or large mechanical or engineering enterprises.

28-Friday. Begin the day early; do correspondence and urge all manner of business with vigor; deal with booksellers and stationers and those engaged in the intellectual pursuits generally.

29-Saturday. An unpromising day for persons in the polite avocations; seek no favor from railway officials nor from persons high in public office make no contracts concerning patents, copyrights or trademarks.

30 - Sanday. A rather quarrelsome and contentious Sabbath inviting patience and forbearance in a remarkable degree; the religious discourse of the day is likely to be aggressive and controversial and be marked by hasty logic or offensive references. Let all persons born about the 29th March, 1st of July or 2nd of October, of past years, be especially watchful of finances at about this time or some bad losses will come. They should practice strict economy and be very conservative in all their ventures.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female dis-eases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucor-rhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

PUT ME OFF AT BUFFALO!

If you are not going to the Pan American Exposi-tion this summer we will set you at work in a pay-ing cash business, only 30c. required for a start. If you are interested address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Health for Mother and Child.

No woman need any longer dread the pains of child-birth. Dr. J. H. Dye, Box 137, Buffalo, N. Y., has devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. Send him your name and address and get his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to healthy children absolutely without pain.

Rods
For locating gold and silver. Positively guaranteed. From $5 up. Catg. and testimonials free.
A. L. BRYANT, Box 10, R Dallas, Tex.

PROCLAMATION TO WEAK MEN

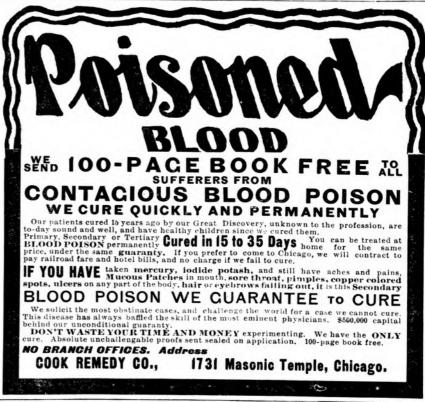

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

SENT FREE TO ALL

W. S. Harter an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an overgenerous offer that comes in the shape of a proclamation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality treatment, and in every instance the same wonand its kindred ailments. His case was a most pitiable one, by reason of continual drainage, his constitution was weakened to such a degree that it was impossible for him to perform his duties. He spent hundreds of dollars for remedies and to specialists, but could not regain his vitality or check the awful drainage. One day a brother lodge member called his attention to a remedy, in fact, implored Mr. Harter to take the remedy for his affliction; he did so, and in one month's time was entirely cured, his constitution rejuvenated and his vitality regained. Today he is a man in every sense which that word would imply. Mr. Harter is not what one would call an immensely rich man, but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he intends making his life's labor that of putting this remedy in the hands of all those afflicted as he was. Mr. Harter, being a very conscientious

SPECIAL PREMIUM ANNOUNCEMENT.

COMFORT,

Augusta, Maine.

Magnificent goods of the highest quality, articles for personal use and giving every month more pages of clean, wholesome, interesting, up to date reading matter than any other monthly printed anywhere. home adornment, given as Free Premiums for small clubs.

Please read carefully, compare with similar offers and preserve for future reference.

It is not without some feeling of pride that we present this newest list of beautiful presents to you and we shall feel repaid if you place it in the hands of some interested person after you have made your selections or we will gladly forward a copy to any address upon receipt of a postal card.

We are planning to increase our present large circulation and have made the selection of these various articles after a thorough canvass of our old and valued subscribers, learning their wants and making our selections accordingly, thus we feel that we offer an unusually attractive line of premiums, something for old and young, the mother, father or whole household can enjoy individually or together.

The old fashioned plan of giving pictures books and small town has been been together.

The old-fashioned plan of giving pictures, books and small toys has been long ago considered an unsatisfactory method of obtaining new subscriptions, yet no reliable publishing house on earth has placed before its readers such substantial, useful articles as we do.

The subscription price to our magazine is the ever popular amount, the same price we have maintained from the first, 25c. for a whole year, single subscription or in clubs, standing.

It is so easy to get up clubs you will wonder why every one is not canvassing, but every one does not have time or inclination. If you have never done any canvassing it will be a great surprise to you how easy it will be to get the names of friends and neighbors and before great surprise to you how easy it will be to get the names of friends and neighbors and before you know it you will have earned the present you desire.

Send for specimen copies of our big monthly, subscription blanks and all necessary instructions and other matter giving full and explicit instructions on easy club raising.

You can find profitable employment raising clubs of subscribers, earning these beautiful goods and selling them to persons that do not have time to get up clubs.

After you have thoroughly examined every offer, should any particular article interest you, do not hesitate to write us for further particulars. In an advertisement we cannot always describe an article as fully as it should be done, but we are always glad to answer any and all questions and make everything clear before you go ahead. Our correspondence department is at your command. Write often, and as much as you like. Your interests are ours until we have delivered your presents to your home and you can put every confidence in our genuine, up-to-date, honest business methods.

You are referred to any bank, the Postmaster or Mayor of Augusta for our commercial standing.

Yours truly,

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Secret Discovery Brings About a Revolution. America Leads the World in the Manufacture of All Coods and Now Rivals Europe in Chinaware. Sixty Per Cent in Duty Saved.

The Old Colonial Blue and the Delft Blue of Holland have long been the popular colors in chinaware since that lost art of blue coloring was restored. Every one knows how expensive an old blue Tea Cup or plate is and how delighted a good housewife is to secure a piece of the old colonial blue for a keepsake. butter dishes, bowl, creamer, sugar bowl, platters and two covered vegetable dishes are American kilns have been established for years but it is only lately that our all of the best and latest pattern size and stlye as shown here. The works have been enabled to fire chinaware that anywhere near rivaled that of combination of embossing and blue mottled coloring gives a very pleasing and foreign makers. The discovery of a secret in coloring now revolutionizes the Dinner and Tea Set business.

Owing to the manufacturers being anxious to place this ware quickly and the fact that Piece Royal Blue Dinner Set for securing a club of only 17 yearly subscribers to this paper at 25c. each. Surely the like of this offer was never made before and any one should be able to get a set of these dishes by a few hours' work. If you have no use for them yourself it is a rare chance to get them and sell the set to a neighbor who may not have the time to dozen each full size Tea, Dinner and Breakfast plates, sauce plates, etc. The cups, saucers, decided effect to the ware and it ought to please any man or woman either in America or Europe.

FREE SEVENTEEN

beauty and shape of our new ROYAL BLUE 80 PIECE DINNER SET. There are a

What the Set Contains. Our illustration gives you a good idea of the style,

We have never before been able to offer even a small Tea Set for less than a club we save a large duty we get very low cash terms on it and can thus offer you an elegant 80 of twelve or fifteen and you can therefore appreciate this liberal effort to supply you with so large a set for such a small amount as only 17 subscribers. We can now also furnish you a regular 56 Piece Tea Set in the same Royal Blue Ware for a club of 10 yearly subscribers at 25c. each. If you want to buy this 80 Piece Dinner Set the price will be $4.87 including a two years' subscription to our great monthly which is the best and spare. We send subscription blanks, sample copies of the paper and everything free on most popular all round family paper ever gotten out. The Dishes go by freight. Send in your list of subscribers for this 80 Piece Dinner Set at once. Don't delay.

Most Fashionable Furniture

application. "Comfort" is the best and easiest monthly published to get subscribers for.

the illustration Furnish room with a clean white iron bed and be happy forever after, but for that matter you can have one in every room for they are absolutely Free. We send Bed carefully covered and wrapped for a club of only 14 new trial yearly subscribers to this paper at 25c. per year; or for a club of 24 new trial yearly subscribers at 25c. each, $6.00 in all, we will send the Complete Set, A

White Enamel Brass Trimmed Iron Bed, Mattress and Spring. Bed is 6 feet 4 inches long, over 4 feet wide, 46 inches high, all complete. The use of iron beds is fast becoming universal and you should be the first in your neighborhood to have one. A great many people have sent us clubs for complete household furnishings. Goods for every room from cellar to garret. We offer useful, handsome gifts for small clubs. Better start to-day and earn the Bed, Mattress and Spring.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Today OPAL Hand-Painted

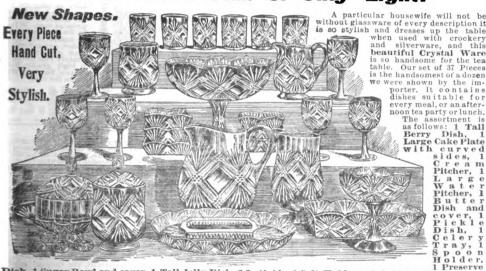

Our premium goods are always the highest class of merchandise and we take pleasure mealing to your at tion our latest addition to the long list of desirable articles offered to our friends as premiums for slight labour behalf. My ladies toilet is her one particular personal charm, without the proper furnishings on the dress cannot be a pleasure. See what a happy thought this beautiful Bureau Toilet Set was. Can you resist it?

A WORD ABOUT IT. The ware is an entirely new-product called Embossed Opal, from its similarly shade to the famous opal stone. It is a magnificent embossed semi-white ware, very firm, not brittle made in just the attractive shapes pictured in our filustration. There are ten useful pieces in the complete A pair of Jugs 10 inches high and 19 inches in circumference fitted with stoppers for Toilet Waters of Bay Bay and knick-knacks; one round cornered Puff Box and an oblong Hair Pin Box. Every article very useful and knick-knacks; one round cornered Puff Box and an oblong Hair Pin Box. Every article very useful. THE HAND PAINTING. The decorations on each piece are in natural flower this violets, pansi proses, etc., furnishing the subjects, and the colorings are equal to nature's own work. The effect of a beaut spray of violets in the center of the large tray with Gold embossed edge produces a most charming firths and may the set aluxury indeed. Every piece has the same color scheme throughout, thus harmonising the whole be tiful effect. You need not wait for Christmas nor go without anything else to buy one of these sets. We agreed introduce them for the firm that decorates them and shall send by express, carefully pracked, one complete Piece Set as a grand free premium for a club of only six trial yearly subscriptions to this monthly at 25c, cach, we will accept cash $1.62. Address

37 PIECE GLASS WARE TABLE SET

Given for a Club of Only Eight.

1 Sugar Bowl and cover, 1 Tall Jelly Dish, 6 Individual Salt Holders, 6 Goblets, 6 Tumblers, ry or Ice Cream Dishes. For a short time we are to make low prices on this ware and it is best that you our order early. For a club of only eight new trial yearly subscriptions or eight renewals to this paper at ch per year, we will send this complete set as a free premium, or sell it for each for $2.17. Address

In an Elegant Case FREE.

Every Lady needs just such a Watch. No matter if she has a $50.00 one it won't keep any better time and this is for use and every-day wear. It will last a lifetime. It is an entirely new pattern. The Pin is good size, strong and hand-Yes! pretty as a picture! Best of all, we got a Bargain on them, for the Makers are anxious to get them introduced, so we can sell hundreds where one goes first. We will send one, packed in the satin-lined Morocco covered case, free, if you get up a club of only 10 subscribers to this paper at the special price of 25 cents per year. You can easily sell this watch for $5.00 if you want to, but after you get it you won't part with it for any money. Send us the 10 names and $2.50 and the watch is yours, any man has a sweetheart and wants to make her happy, he should get her this watch at once.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. free. If any man has a sweetheart and Sent for $2.63 cash.

GIVE THIS WATCH FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight server, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 25 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you a nice chain. Address

A Complete Outfit of 44 Tools FREE.

GREATEST MONEY MAKER AND MONEY SAVER IN THE WORLD.

Hundreds of dollars are wasted every year in paying for repairs which could be done by you just as well as by the person you hire. "Yes." you will say, "I could do this work if I only had the tools." You have to hire the plumber or cobbler and pay him for his time while you stand around and look on, watching him do the work which you could do as well as he, but it is always that you have no tools. We have put together the best kit of tools for repairing which was ever seen, and we will sell the entire outfit for less than half the money for which you could buy it at any store. The outfit consists of forty-four first-class tools, as shown in the above cut, viz. I iron last for men's work: I iron last for boy's work: I iron last for women's work: I iron last for boy's work: I iron last for women's work: I iron last for children's work: I iron stand for lasts; I shoehammer; I shoeknife: I peg awl handle: I seewing awl: I wrench for peg awl handle: I sewing awl handle: I sewing awl: I stabbing awl: I bottle leather cement: I bottle rubber cement: I bunch bristles: I ball shoe thread; I ball shoe wax: I plg. cli ich nails. 4-8 in.; I pkg clinch nails. 5-8 in.; I pkg. clinch nails. 4-8 in.; I pkg. clinch nails. 4 prs. heel pla. es. assorted sizes: 6 harness needles: I harness and saw clamp; I box slotted rivets, assorted sizes: I rivet set for same: I harness and belt punch: I soldering fron, ready for use: I handle for same: I bar solder: I bar resin; I bottle soldering fluid: I copy directions for halfsoling, etc., I copy directions for soldering all securely packed, together with directions for use, in a neat case. These tools bought at a hardware store separately would cost between 87.00 and 89.00. You can repair boots and shoes, tap and heel them, mend your harness or make a new one, mend all kinds of tinware, repair yumps, plumbing and similar work, would cost between $7.00 and $9.00. You can repair boots and shoes, tap and heet them, mend your harness or make a new one, and all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of tinware, repair pumps, plumbing and similar work, at do all kinds of rubber made articles. The clamp is used for mending harnesses and filing saws. Has a coil spring and is made of iron. You can easily save five times the cost of this couff, and if you have these tools in your house you can make repairs and save a great deal of money which you would pay if you let a break go or bired a man to do your repairing work for you. Every one of these tools are full sized, practical, nest and cheap. It is the only complete outfit in the market and thousands have been sold in past years for $3.00 when the outfit contained but about half as many smaller articles to people living in the country and small towns as well as in the city. This repairing outfit, weighing 20 lbs. will be sent by freight complete as above described for only $1.62 which includes a 6 months trial subscription to this paper.

GREAT PREMIUM OFFER.—If you will get up a club of 6 yearly trial subscribers to this paper at the special article of 25 cents each, we will send you one of these repairing outfits as a present to you.

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A PAIR OF

Nottingham Lace Curtains Each Curtain Nine Feet Long.

This Most Beautiful and Elegant Premium Has Just Been Added for Selection to All Who

Club of Only 4 New Names.

The curtains are full width and just what any one needs to adorn the home with. Every one of taste will tell you that there is nothing which "dresses up" a room so much as a pair of lace curtains. The finest effects are obtained by these draperies. They show from the outside as well as from the inside. They are of the real Italian pattern and formerly sold as high as six or eight dollars a pair. They are delivered free to you, all charges paid, for a club of only 4 subscribers, including a subscription to this magazine for yourself. Most ladies send a club for each window so as to have all look alike and as well as your neighbors. If you have three windows to furnish send 11 subscriptions and $2.75 for 3 pairs. Send early to get choice selections. If you are too busy to get up clubs send cash $1.18 for 1 pair, or $3.00 for 3 pairs.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

for exquisite articles of use vary, but all agree with our foreign agent who selected and sent us this handsome Seven Piece Cut Glass Berry Set in this odd shape and new Gold and Glass effect. You will note the odd shape of these dishes, it attracts the eye at once, and the effect of the clear cut pattern of each dish in harmony with the deep rich band of gold running around the top of each and extending down over a half inch is beyond imagination. The extra heavy glass used in making these dishes allowed the makers to put into each piece an immense amount of cutting, as the thickness gives opportunity to cut deep lines, wide grooves and delicate tracings. A large glass dish is the most serviceable piece of ware in a ladies' china closet. For berries, desserts of all kinds, ice cream, sauces and fruit. The size of these dishes recommends them for all such purposes. The large dish will contain over two quarts, is ten inches broad and five inches deep with flaring sides in a very pretty dip effect. The six individual dishes are the usual size, are five inches broad and have the same dip sides making the complete matched set a beauty.

We will gladly furnish specimen copies of our monthly magazine fre with subscription blanks and instructions to canvassers to all who apply. Send to-day and begin your canvass. It is very easy to get this Free premium. We send it carefully packed for a club of only 5 new trial yearly subscriptions at 16c. each. Or will accept cash $1.37. Write now to it carefully packed for a club of only 5 new trial yearly sub-25c. each per year, or nine new six months' trial subscriptions at 15c. each. Or will accept cash $1.37, ed by freight, but charges will be small. Write now to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A Reclining Chair, FOR A CLUB OF 14.

Adjustable to Ease and Comfort.

This style of Chair was invented in England many years ago by William Morris, the celebrated London artist. He was also a famous designer of artist furniture. It is therefore called the Morris Chair. It is made of the finest Oak and so arranged that it can be adjusted to either a lounging or upright position. It is the most popular Easy chair on the market, either in Europe or America today. It is finely upholstered and tufted. Every one needs at least one of these Chairs in their home, no matter be it humble or great. They seem to just fit the tired body after a busy day's work. We have ordered many thousands of these Chairs direct from an immense furniture factory, and although the Morris Chairs sell at many stores from $10.00 to $50.00 each, we are giving these Chairs away as Premiums with our charming home monthly for a little pleasant work among friends and neighbors soliciting new subscribers at the special yearly rate of 25c. each. This Chair will be sent carefully packed and protected for a club of only 14 new names, $3.50 in all, or will send this paper one whole year and Chair free for $3.82.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

PNEUMATIC RAPID-FIRE

A New Style All Steel Combination Rifle for Birds or Came

using shot that can be obtained anywhere at a trifing expense, also shoots darts making it desirable for outdoor target practice or parlor amusement or it can be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and entertaining form of evening amusement for the boys and girls as well as older folks. There is no smoke, oddr or dust from this gun, it is endorsed by army officers as the best mechanical rifle ever produced and the possession of one of our accurate shooting air rifles makes a boy manly and affords him an excellent means of successfully competing with his chums for marksman's honors as well as teaching him the use of a rifle. Remember this is a combination gun, so your boy should have one be he old or young. If he is sick in the house he can shoot darts and keep out of mischief or go into the woods for game and get robust and healthy besides.

SPECIAL. Send at once for sample copies of our big monthly and subscription blanks and canvass among the neighbors. For a club of four yearly subscribers at the popular price of 25c. each. $1.00 in all, we will send one of these King Pneumatic Rifles free as a present, all charges paid, guaranteeing absolute satisfaction, or we will send paper one year and rifle free as above for $1.17. Address

COMPORT, Augustas, Maine.

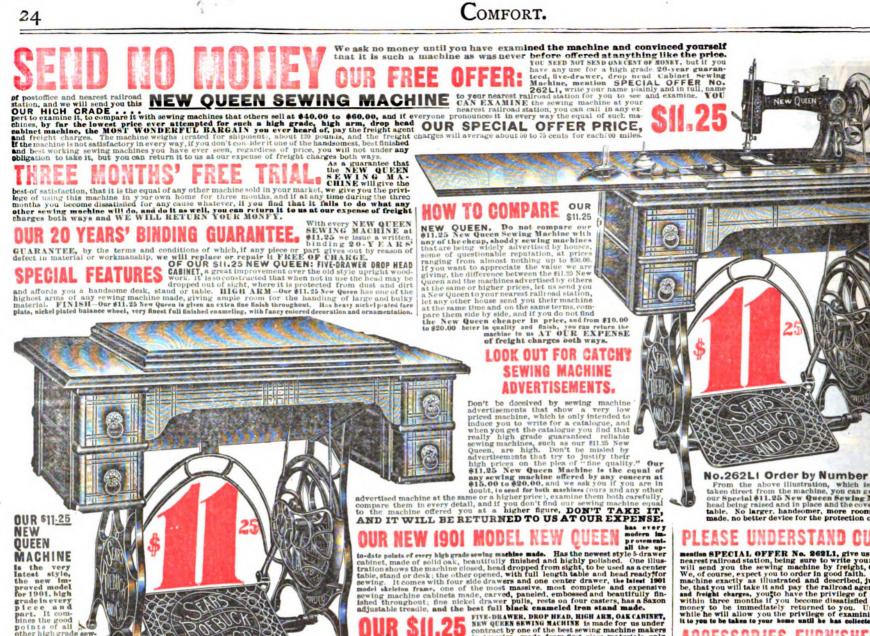

Remember the above is a real gun, nearly three feet long. It looks like a gun and shoots like a gun.

OUR GRAND SILVER SET.

Coin Plated on hard metal and fully war-ranted. This set has ranted. This set has all the useful pieces wanted in every family. There is nothing more useful than a Pie Knife and the style of ours makes it just the thing to serve Pie, Ice Cream or Salada and an all around handy piece of silverware. The other 3 articles are all as useful. Cold Me at Fork, Berry Spoon and Ladle, each one over nine inches long packed in a neat satinet lined case for use on the sideboard and an ornament to the dining room of any home. Each article can easily be sold at retail for $1.00. The four pieces sent as a free premium gift for a club of only five trial yearly subscriptions. Or $1.37 cash including a year's subscription. all the useful pieces COMFORT.

Augusta, Maine.

Address your orders plainly to SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

There will be NO DELAY IN YOUR RECEIVING THE MACHINE.

what the price, whether twees expensive or at an apparelly selfit is such A BICYCLE AS WAS NEVER BEFORE OFFERED AT ANYTHING LIKE OUR FIRE OUR FREE OFFER if you have any use for a new 1901 model, high grade, but guaranteed, latest style bicycle, if you expect to 1901 bicycle now or later in the season, if you would like make from $5,00 to $15,00 net profit with almost no trouble on the season, if you would like the sale of a bicycle, simply write to a latest style bicycle, if you expect to 1901 make from $5,00 to $15,00 net profit with almost no trouble on the sale of a bicycle, simply write to a latest style bicycle, if you expect to 1901 write your name plainly and in full, name of your postoffice and nexed railroad station, say whether you wish ladies' or cents bicycle older and goar wanted, and we will send you this, our latest style bicycle, if you expect to 1901 write your name of your postoffice and nexed railroad station, say whether you wish ladies' or pents' bicycle older and goar wanted, and we will send you this, our latest style bicycle in the season. color and gear wanted, and we will send you this, our model, highest EDGEMERE BIGYCLE pres, grade, 1901 style EDGEMERE BIGYCLE pres, subject to examination. YOU CAN EXAMINE THE BICYCLE examine it, compare it with any bleyele shown, regardless and if found perfectly satisfactory, exactly as repreprior on the proposition of the proposit or heard of, then pay the railroad agent OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE (50 cents extra for Indics' bleyele, freight or express charges, which will avecuts for for each 500 miles. When ordered two or more the charges for each bleyele will be After you pay the railroad agent our special effect of the beyele ten days' trial, during which the price, and if you are still not satisfied that they out the beyele ten days' trial, during which double the price, and if you are still not satisfied that you have saved from $20.00 to $30.00, and that you have the grave our expense of transportation charges both ways ampleted which was a supering to sell you we will immediately return your mome.

LOOK OUT focedeved by advertisements that show a will have severed the price of transportation charges both ways ampleted by the "agency" advertisements, offering to sell you we will immediately return your get their alogue you find the reliable, guaranteed wheels are high. But misted by the "agency" advertisements, offering to sell you we will immediately return your moment. Anyone, and when you get their alogue you find the reliable, guaranteed wheels are high. But misted by the "agency" advertisements, offering to sell you we will immediately return your moment and get you to take orders for their wheels." Anyone, and a get you to take orders for their wheels." Anyone, and get you to take orders for the same price, as low as you we will flit the activity of the second of the same price, as low as you we will out the reliable, guaranteed wheels are larged to the misted by the "agency" advertisements, offering to sell you to take orders for their wheels."

THE EDGEMERE BIGYGL we said thousands of Edgemere with all these segment model is the latest 190!

The ladies' models are made (generous and thousands of Edgemere is furnated the second of t No. 262L2 ORDER BY NUMBER. BICYCLE THE ABOVE ILLUSTRATION, engraved by our artist direct from a ph BICCLE. The bicycle is furnished exactly as shown in the illustration, with the exception of the sprocket, which comes in a company of the sprocket, which comes in a company of the sproket, which comes in a company of the sproket, which comes in a company of the sproket which comes in a company on their house or houses advertised in this or any other paper. Let them also send you their bicycle without deposit and with the privilege of ten day's trial; let them also send you their bicycle without deposit and with the privilege of ten day's trial; let them also send you their bicycle without deposit and with the privilege of ten day's trial; let them also send you their bicycles come to your nearest railroad station to be examined; let them saide by side, and if our bicycle is not pronounced by everyone $15.00 cheaper in price and $20.00 better in quality, we will expect your to refuse it, and our bicycle will be returned to us at our expense. Statistically a company of the proposed by the side of the season, is a price hereofore unknown, and you should not fail to get your will the season to order your bicycle, as we can only guarantee this unheard of $11.75 price until our contract with the manufacturer is completed. Order two or more Edgenere Bicycles at once. You can sell the extra one at profit is never years to the season selling Edgenere Bicycles.

SPECIAL NOTICE

SPECIAL NOTICE

NOTICE THOUSANDS OF CUSTOMERS in every state. As this advertisement in thousands of cases will fall into the hands of our many customers in fall into the hands of our many customers in fall into the hands of our many customers who receive this paper to please refer this page to an interested friend or neighbor. Perhaps you have a friend or neighbor or know of some one who has no up-to-date bicycle or sewing machine from us and therefored on onterphore. Perhaps you have a friend or neighbor or know of some one who has no up-to-date bicycle or sewing machine or who inte THE ABOVE ILLUSTRATION, engraved by our artist direct from a photograph, shows the appearance machine maker in Ame

E WILL SHIP PROMPTLY. We are ready to fill your order and ship your sewing machine as soon as your order reaches us.

A SEWING MACHINE VALUE NEVER BEFORE ATTEMPTED.

No.262L1 Order by Number

unt of order, all parts pensating, all parts in reable, a swing maat will last a lifetime.

ompletely from sight, table folds up, and being highly polished and finished soak, very elaborately decorated, you have really a beautiful piece of furniture.

strations and descriptions can give you but a very faint idea of the handsome eathe New Queen is, of the WONDERFUL VALUE WE ARE OFFERING.
1.25. You must see it, catamine it, use it, and compare it with other machines y appreciate the value we are offering.

regular ladies' style), and with the exception of the sprocket, which cor in all parts of the country. For the benefit of those who do not know us have nearly two never had any dealings with us and do not know us by reputation, we will say for their benefit that we are authorized and incorporated under the laws of the State Illinois, with a capital and surplus of over one million dollars paid in full. We say illinois, with a capital and surplus of over one million dollars paid in full. We say illinois, with a capital and surplus of over one million dollars paid in full. We say illinois, with a capital and surplus of over one million dollars paid in full. We say illinois, with a consumers. We refer, by special permission, to the National Eank or the German Exchange Bank of New York, to the Mctropolitan National Bank or Corn Exchange National Bank of Chicago, to any railroad company, press company, business house or resident of Chicago, and we nefer with every condence to hundreds of thousands of customers in every state and territory.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER TO DEALERS sheeper han dealers can buy such goods for high grade sewing machine is cheaper than dealers can buy such goods for high grade sewing machine is cheaper than dealers can buy such goods for the say of the FRAME—The Edgemere frame is made from genuine lk/inch best Shelly seamless steed thing, either 20 right from genuine lk/inch best Shelly seamless steed thing, either 20 right from genuine lk/inch best Shelly seamless steed thing, either 20 right from genuine lk/inch best Shelly seamless steed thing, either 20 right from genuine lk/inch best Shelly seamless at the strength of the highest priced bicycles made. The genuic model is the latest light strength of the highest priced bicycles made. The genuic model is the latest light strength of the highest priced bicycles made. The genuic model is the latest light strength of the highest priced bicycles made. The genuic model is the latest light strength of the highest priced bicycles will late strength of the high grade black the latest two-piece hanger reprint the l

ety of patterns, and the handle bar, which is furnished in either up or

SPECIFICATIONS AND DETAILED DESCRIPTION.

Address your orders SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

VOLXIII NO 8 MN 152

KEY TO A MILLION AND A QUARTER HOMES

NEW YORK

AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

Incorporated.

least the persual leave. A Fee can't festion the second resident of the persual leave. A Fee can't festion the second second resident second that is and the second leave makes a second leave makes. The second second leave makes the second leave makes a second leave makes a second s

Design copyrighted 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Pub.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following comittions govern the awarding of eash prites for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have compiled with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal forcors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. (inly persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least four yearly subscribers (together with 25 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prices.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to Editor Nutshell Story Club care of Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or Retion—of adventure, love, war, peace: of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. No Manuscript will be returned under the sent hy check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this short Novy Price Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a price.

at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR JUNE.

C. E. Barns, First Prize. James Riley. Second Prize. Rupe Barmby, Third Prise. Sarah E. Gannett, Fourth Prize. M. B. Thrasher, Fifth Prise.

The One Night's Madness of Dr. Florell.

WRITTEN FOR COMPORT BY C. E. BARNS.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

TOP, wait! Don't pour the ether yet, Doctor, I beg of you. I have something to say to you. It is most important. Stoplisten!"

Weirdly the straining voice rang through the clear whiteness of the operating room. The two white capped nurses turned quickly with glances of sudden question upon their usually imperturbable faces. The doctor replaced the glass stopper in the big blue bottle.

"Step closer, Doctor," pleaded the panting voice between throbs of agony. "I will promise not to occupy your time but a moment-

"But, my dear sir, it is not my time but your own, that is so precious."

"Nonsense! I've got all eternity before me. I've cashed in my last stack, Doctor,-I know it, I feel it! You need not smile to mask your convictions with kindly encouragement. I'm face to face with one adversary at last where a bluff won't go. But, see here. Before you begin work let me just speak a word or two in secret, alone. Ladies, this is the last request I shall ever make of you in the flesh. Will you do me the kindness?"

The nurses looked at the doctor, saw his sign of approval and left the room. The door closed softly and the doctor stepped closer with some energy.

"Oh, you need not tell me that time is valuable," continued the patient. "I know it; but I think that when a man gets here, Dr. Florell, he may at least dedicate a few moments of a fading existence to one who has been so kind to him." He gave the young practitioner a grateful look. "In the first place, my name is not 'Hammond', as the hospital's blotter reads, and I am not a 'financier'. My name is Parkins, sir, and by profession I am a gambler." He paused to note the expression change in the listener's countenance. "Of course I have not a sou to reward you for all this kindness to me during these three weeks, ever since I was picked up unconscious in Madison Square and brought up here in the auto-ambulance. You see, the last homeward ocean trip did not net me much more than the passage money. Either the captain spotted me and let my game be known through the smoking-room, or else everybody came back from Paris broke. But the only four games I got into were mere tuppenny bits-" He stopped, for the pain racked him bitterly.

"My dear sir," admonished the young doctor with some pity in his professional insistence, "you are not growing stronger with this delay and effort. I can pull you through all right if you will only-

"Thanks!" interrupted the patient with a laugh of satanic bravado which showed him at least the physical hero. "You can't perform miracles, Doctor, and that is why I want to tell you something. Now, as I said, I leave nothing behind by which to compensate-

Why, man, I am a salaried officer of this city institution. I expect nothing-"

"That's just why I insist upon giving it to rooms of the clubhouse, and without knowing this part of the house was quite deserted. "in you. Now, I doubt whether you will ever be placed in that position where you will be compelled to use it, but I am going to tell you a simple secret about any game of cards that has netted me from ten thousand to fifty thousand dollars a year, and allowed me to live like a prince of the blood in any quarter of the globe I chose, and which may help you out of a tight hole some day----"

"I assure you, sir," rejoined the doctor with some severity in the rebuff, "I rarely touch cards, and then only with friends for the mere social pastime, and above all, while I possess my present modicum of good sense, not to mention honor, sir, I should decline to win by any secret which may have netted you a devil's ransom. Let your secret die with you-or, rather—let me proceed to prove that I can save your life that you may turn to a profession better adapted to one of your talents."

"Not so brilliantly, my friend. You have not traveled as much as I or you would know that there comes a crisis now and then in a man's life when he will sacrifice a wee bit of his 'good sense' and even somewhat of his cherished 'honor,' sir, if thereby he may be saved from utter ruin and no one the wiser. Heaven grant that you may never be placed in that predicament; but if you are, here is your salvation, and once saved you may present as many diamond necklaces to the Jerusalem shrine of the Virgin as the Russian princes do every time they 'remove' an obstructing heir or a too-complaining peasant. Will you bend closer? It will take me but just one moment and it may save you from some Waterloo-

"Will you be short and to the point?" asked the practitioner, without knowing that he was being led into the mazes of dangerous inquisitiveness by the soft, melting plea of the man on the brink of the eternal. Then he bent low over the still white face all seams and scars like a parchment map of a battle-field, listening like one hypnotized, unable to drag himself from the ensnaring confessions which seemed to rack the soul of the giver as a miser on his death bed reluctantly parts with his beloved treasure. When the fine young face of the scientist lifted it was flushed, and a guilty sense contained him without his knowing why. Then with a few kindly syllables he bade the patient compose himself for the ordeal, and summoned the nurses. Twenty minutes later two orderlies were carrying a motionless figure on a stretcher to the dead-room, and Doctor Florell, the most promising surgeon on the whole metropolitan staff, was wandering through the walled garden back of the institution, like a man crushed in between two opposing forces; the surgical problem that had defeated him, and the gambler's secret that had won him, and both in spite of his entire rallying powers of mind and morals. But alas, it was the former that soon passed away and it was the latter that remained to haunt and torture bim.

Nor did the haunting lessen with the passing of the hours. A thousand times he wished that his surgical skill might enable him to trepan the skull of the white shape in the hospital dead-room and thrust back the secret that the gambler had given him. And the thought that this same little secret had netted its discoverer the neat though ill-gotten average of thirty thousand dollars a year for half a lifetime, while he a battler against abstruse adversaries in medical science was not yet sure of as many hundreds—this thought did not contribute to his mental composure. Matters drew to an unexpected climax when, on crossing Madison Square on his way to the west side to his favorite Bohemian haunt to dine, he ran plump into Paisley-Paisley of uptown brokerage fame, wit, orator and budding politician.

"What! Not going to the Civic League dinner tonight?" said Paisley, throwing back his greatcoat and exposing an expanse of whiteness, "and you a city official too?"

"I may be a city official, Dan, but I am not in politics. I think that politics and such humanitarian things as hospitals should be kept well apart."

"But that's no reason why you should not be present at the Club dinner. It will be well worth while-the best of speakers and a fourdollar-a-plate spread. Can you resist that? Come: I'll march over to your chambers with you and hustle you into broadcloth. I want you to hear my speech. Why did we come from the same Ohio county save for the sole advantage of glorying in each other's gloryeh?"

"I have always been more than glad of your success, Dan," said the doctor, urged along against his will but secretly pleased to find such congenial company at a moment when he was the most oppressed. And that was the beginning of it. Within an hour Daniel Paisley and Doctor Thomas Florell were side by side at the damask of the Civic League, the waiters busy about them, a Babel of tongues and popping of champagne corks threatening to rain down the decorations from cornice and chandelier. The gambler and his accursed secret was forgotton.

But after a number of celebrities had been brilliant of wit and wisdom and Paisley had distinguished himself, making proud his com-

how he was urged thither, Doctor Florell found himself in the card room on the top floor-a sort of pit of Inferno, thick with tobacco smoke and noisy with the clatter of chips on bare mahogany. A diabolical madness came into the young practitioner's heart. In a patient he would have described it as acute mania. In himself he let it go without analysis. Without knowing that he was doing something he would regret for the remainder of his days, Doctor Florell discovered himself at the furthermost round table, Paisley opposite, two politicians on either side, a fiftydollar rampart of chips before him, and flushed face and parched lips that sought more often than discreet the cooling refection of icy wine sparkling at his elbow. He was playing the dead gambler's game almost by the force of the unseen spirit at his side reading the cards over his shoulder and dictating the play after the manner of his well-trained rascality. "At least," thought he, "as a psychological experiment it is worth fifty dollars to me to study myself under these excitements, and then I'll ease my conscience by giving the spoil to charity."

And so the play ran. So deeply absorbed and contained by the marvellous workings of the gambler's secret system was the doctor that he did not notice he had won a thousand dolfars within an hour, the two politicians were scarlet with rage in defeat, and Paisley very white, with eyes glaring like a hyena driven into a corner with hot irons. Then one politician threw down his cards in disgust, another coming to fill his place, and after another half hour's play, during which the now thoroughly maddened doctor took in another six hundred dollars, Paisley excused himself, promising to return. He was gone some time. but so terribly interesting was the play that the winner scarcely noted his absence. Once or twice the doctor glanced into his friend's face, noting how set and drawn it was in its desperation, but his success blinded the winner to every human sense of pity or consideration. For the time he was Play incarnate-wrapt. enthralled, pilloried with the passion that for the first time stole into his nature and utterly transformed it. Then after losing a large sum. Paisley again excused himself.

This time he was gone for quite an hour, but when he returned, he entered the play with apparently unlimited means and a resolve to do or die. If the young doctor had come out of his terrible trance long enough to see himself and others as he would in ordinary life, he might have cried, "Halt!" and fought down this lust for money-more money, ill-gotten, stolen, blood-stained money that scorched his sensitive soul with a new and terrible passion But he was blind with triumph, maddened with the possession of such a colossal sum of the root of all evil, and heard nothing but the ring of gold and felt only the demon within him. Then there came a climax.

Four times the seats of the politicians, all expert men at the cards, were filled, and away they went in defeat. It was about three o'clock in the morning when Paisley arose after the turn of a fatal card, placed his hands against his temples, uttered a low moan and turned about. The doctor heard that little cry, and it went to his heart like cold steel. Excusing himself, he arose abruptly and in a sort of delirium of shame and resolve, followed the tottering figure as it moved through the smoke like a lost soul through the sulphurous realms of hell, on toward the door and thence through the deserted corridor to the cloakroom. There, unknowing that he was followed, the young broker and wit, utterly abandoned and already more than half insane with defeat, hurried over the threshold, closing and locking the door behind him.

"My God!" murmured the doctor. "This will never do. He contemplates something desperate. I must get at him some way-He stood still, trying to rally himself to the breach when he remembered another entrance into the cloakroom, and through corridor and several chambers he hurried, haggard and distraught, dashing into the apartment just in time to see a tottering figure standing before the mirror, his white face gleaming like drenched ivory, a revolver in his right hand, the muzzle at his temple.

With what marvellous rapidity does the human mind work in such appalling crises as these! Doctor Florell did not shriek out and alarm the house, neither had he the time to rush through the masses of hats and coats in nelter-skelter confusion everywhere and lay violent hands upon the madman ere the deed was done. He simply reached down and seized two of the nearest silk hats and flung them both with all his strength straight at the dishevelled and rigidly poised head before the glass. One hat went wide of the mark, the other struck the clenched hand enough to turn the muzzle from its fatal mark just as the revolver exploded, making an ugly scalp wound. Paisley turned instantly, falling back against the mirror, steadying himself there, staring at his apprehender like one gone stark mad on the moment, blood trickling down his colorless cheek and over his scarcely paler shirtfront.

The doctor had closed and locked the door, and fortunately the revelry of the clubmen afar rade of years, the diners repaired to the various drowned to them the noise of the shot, and the name of heaven!" moaned the life-saver as he advanced upon the trembling figure, "what does this mean?" He drew his handkerchief and with a practiced twist bound up the flesh wound, wiping the blood from face and shirt. front as the stiff shape stood there like a pillar

"Mean?" echoed Paisley, in the voice of the grave, "it means that I am ruined—disgrace: lost." He suffered the kindly ministrations without scarcely noticing them. "First I lost nine hundred dollars—all my savings for lay wedding trip next month with the sweetest woman on God's earth." He paused, then plunged on with the abandon of a man on the rack. "Then I went away and returned with thousand dollars more. Do you know where got them? I stole my mother's marriage jewels and pawned them." A frightful silence ensued The doctor fell back with a gasp. The confess. ing one was not yet done, however. "I lost and went away again, returning with three ther. sand dollars, for I felt sure that I should retrieve all I had lost—I could not see how a man like you so ignorant of cards should continual. ly defeat me who, alas, has given them too much study. Well, do you know where I got that three thousand dollars? I went to the office of my employer, got the watchman to let me in on a plausible pretext, went to the safe and took the money—the firm's money. Brield me then! I am a thief, a desecrator, a default.

"Stop, stop!" It was a mad cry that broke from the listener's blue lips, and quite for the first time during this halting confession the broker faced his friend. The countenance of the usually calm practitioner was frightfulte behold. Even Paisley shuddered, for he say there a grief even more terrible than his own if such could be. "Not another word, Palety, You did not steal that money, my boy. It is You did not steal that money, my boy. It was I who stole it. You are not the descrator of your mother's treasury—you are not its scoundrel—it is I. Listen! listen! Today—loday—or was it yesterday—God! I am losing my mind—today—but let that pass. You are to all guiltless, nor am I all guiltly. There is all guiltless, nor am I all guiltly. There is a great spirit of Evil that steals into men's bestile when they know not—" The would-be succein a state of stupefaction had slipped into an armchair and lay like dead. "Paisley, Paisle!" resumed the doctor. "a moment more and I resumed the doctor. "a moment more and I

A MONTH'S TEST FREE.

If you have Rheumatism, write Dr. Shoop, Racine,
Wis., Box 36, for six bottles of his Rheumatic Cure, exp.
paid. Send no money. Pay $5.50 if cured.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold P.; d lever collar buttons, either for Gentlement addies. This can only be done to introduce a treat catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Fra o-day to Comport, Augusta, Main.

gs. Road Carts, etc. We are exclusive the output of well known factories, which consumer at the actual cost of material the manufacturers amail profit added slip rect from factory without see ceat is except the manufacturer of the manufacturers are the manufacture JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150 to 166 and 30. 328 W. N. Madison St., CHICAGO

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will strong absolutely sure, so the locality where you live. Send us your address and we sile explain the business fully, remember we guarantee adea 10th of $3 for overy day's work, absolutely sure.

BOYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 216, Detreit lish.

KOIN MONEY. It Wen't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but h

Will Coin Dellars for You. Agents Wanted. The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderfulpt of the Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderfulpt of the Electric Polishings and lustre to every post that gives electric brightness and lustre to every both that gives electric brightness and lustre to be published.

should have been a murderer. As it is my lad, I thank God for salvation and a great lesson. I have the money here-we shall return every penny before the loss is discovered. Take my hand comrade. Let us together swear before the Almighty and allwise ruler of our destinies that we will never touch another card nor drink another drop of the sparkling madness so long as we shall live. Shall we swear it—you and _b_ ere together?"

Peisley struggled up like a drowning man dragged from the roaring torrent. The two mera clutched each other there, reading their inmost souls in each other's eyes. "I swear, I swear!" he moaned out like a death-rattle in the agony of his regeneration.

"And I too, Paisley, and I too. Amen, and amen! Come; let us get out of here before we are discovered. Pull yourself togetherquick!"

The next morning Doctor Florell wandered down to the dead-room of the great hospital and stood in meditation beside the white figure on the slab. An orderly passed near. "Shall we take that body to the Morgue or to the college!" he asked in tones of wooden blunt-

"Neither," said the doctor. "Call an undertaker. This man shall have no pauper burial." Then as the orderly moved away, addressing the inanimate clod as if even now it had ears to hear, "Stranger, I have six hundred dollars left of your accursed spoil for charity. I shall give you a decent burial, not because charity in this case begin at home, you scoundrel, but because deep down in my heart I am grateful for the most terrible and lasting lesson of my Life."

Uncle Zeke's Boston Mare.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY JAMES RILEY.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

NCLE Zeke bought the mare in Boston for a song, at an auc-= tion, and how he ever came by her I so cheap was always to him a mystery. But I never did see a man step bigger in his boots than he did that night after he came home-going up to the house after putting in the barn the Boston mare.

"I got the hoss now Rhody," he said, speaking to aunt that night in the kitchen, all of us sitting around the room. "I got the hoss now that will take us down to Rev. Mr. Little's church to the Green Sundays a flyin.' The sarmon next Sunday may be kind o' slow-be little fire, lightnin' an' etarnel punishment in is but ther's goin' to be a good deal o' arenestness in our gittin' thar!"

He was so "tickled," to use his own expression, that he lay awake all night-worked up with the pleasure of his success, and in the morning when I looked out of my chamber window, there he was-the Boston mare hitched into one of the gigs and going up and down the road, the animal stretching it off at her level best. Overcome with excitement he could hardly eat any breakfast, and fairly whistled in peeling a potato.

"I golly," he said, "I'm goin' to Bridgton Cattle Show today an' enter the trot fer the fust premium. Enter my Boston mare! An' she'll git it-I know she will! Beat anything in Phillips County! 'R else I miss my guess! I'll show em' what Zekel Thrasher ken do behind a hoss!"

Now Uncle Zeke never lied in any one particular, excepting in a horse trade, and here, if he was trading with a "feller that thought he knew it all," as he used to say, he would, if he could, show the "feller," that he knew a little something. In such cases his talk and promise record was always somewhat winding. The Tess up o' jedgment," as he used to "where heads I win, an' tails, you, the gull lost," was particularly alluring pastime to Uncle Zeke. For human nature like, and Yankee like in particular, he did want to come out ahead of anything he went into. On the other hand, as he used to say, "If anybody comes to me an' says, 'Here Zeke Thrasher, you git me a hoss! I don't know anything 'bout a hose! You know what I want! One'll road it an' work on the farm-an' 'fore cattle, I put it all in your hands!' Well if anybody comes an' save that, I git 'em an' honest hoss.'

And folks did say, those who went to him in that way, that they found they had from him when the horse was tried, about such an animal as they wanted at a fair price. But with the akins, he was a skinner.

"Wish he'd be ther'," I heard him say to himself while stepping into the gig, "make out they were sisters, like enough."

iventured to suggest that the Boston mare looked very much like our gray "colt," as we called her. She was just the same size, color and age, and it would be a good plan to drive them down as a span.

"Span!" sneered Uncle Zeke. "Span! Humph!

Span! It takes a good deal besides gray hairs last, on the third, he drove leisurely back, "To and uncle laughed the words, as the man in the an' the same size bones under hoss flesh to make a span sir! Know it? It takes G-I-S-M gism! You put 'em both together an' see."

After breakfast I did go down to the pasture and led up our young gray mare, to find uncle was right. That although they did look just alike in every particular, still on the whole, when you looked at the two together, they were as different as life is to death.

Uncle was struck however with their similarity, and as he was getting into the gig said, "If I draw the fust premium, an' I know I shall, I don't see why the fast gray can't sell the slow gray. You hitch her into the tother gig an' git down ther' 'bout quarter or half after 'leven. Drive round to the main entrance-by the grand stand. I want to git rid o' that dum dumpish thing some how or other."

He stopped when he drove out into the road and reminded me again. "Drive down 'bout quarter er half past 'leven John an' wait at the back entrance. Wait ther' till I come."

He would have said more, but Arad Dumfy just then drove along and they both "skited" down the road, Uncle Zeke giving Arad his dust and shouting, "How does she look from behind Arad?"

It was three miles to Bridgton Cattle Show and I should like to have seen the picture uncle left on the farmers' minds of Phillips County as he wheeled by them one after the other, Arad Dumfy the rear of the long line of wonder.

"Ther's Zeke Thrasher," said Hiram Handley to Abial Brown, seeing uncle driving around the track, "now 'Bial he ain't here for nothin'! Not fer nothin' 'Bial! What's he got thar? By G. Whitaker, don't that hoss step? Looks to me zif ther' was a hull hoss in them shafts

Abial Brown agreed with Hiram Handley and the thousands of others on the grand stand as well as those across on the other side of the fence, that Zeke Thrasher was holding in with the ribbons a marvel of equine grace and restrained fire.

"Haint no Boston mare, an' nothin' o' the kind;" snarled out Jason Tupper, and Uncle Zeke heard it-stopped before the judge's stand at the time and speaking to the latter. "He's entered her's the Boston mare! But it's the daughter o' the hoss I sold him six years ago. Haint good fer nothin'! Says he bought her to an auction in Boston. Humph! Lies! Needn't be 'fraid of her!''

Uncle drove along some ways and turned-all eyes on him-for no matter where the animal came from she was to be admired. He passed the grand stand-holding in the mare to an easy movement just beyond a fast walk, a little man with skin drawn tight over a peaked face, that was helped out and accentuated with a chin whisker of fifty or more blazing red hairs.

"I don't know," said Brown to Tupper as the latter drove up and stopped, "I don't know Jason! That hose is all thar-even if she did come as you say, from the mare you stuck on him six year ago. Lord! if she beats here today Pat Hegerty, that still owns the old one 'll make a mint raisin' colts."

"Haint good fer nothin'! Haint good fer nothin'! Break all up 'fore she gits half round the track the first time," returned Tupper.

"Don't know," said Brown, as both looked to where Uncle Zeke was before the starting stand-looking up and talking with the judge. 'Don't know 'bout that. When that little goatee o' Zeke Thrasher's is turned up in that fashion, the way 'tis now as he's talkin' with the committee, it looks to me zif 'twas sayin' with him, 'Zeke Thrasher's got the only piece o' buttered bread ther' is on the track this day an' he ain't goin' to drop it nuther."

The two smiled, and as Tupper was driving away from the man on the other side of the rail, Uncle Zeke stepped his mare in a grand anticipatory motion along the track. He noticed Tupper's satisfied grin and Brown's smile and said to himself, "I'll give him enough

It was bad enough for uncle to get fleeced six years previous by Jason Tupper, who sold him a gray mare for a high price, that had blind staggers, but now to know—as he caught again some words of Tupper's that his Boston mare was being traduced, made the short hairs under his little white slouched hat almost stand on end. But he held himself in, and the mare too, until at last, after three attempts, the start was made.

"It's all right! It's all right!" shouted Uncle Zeke, passing the starting-point away behind the other four on the track-"All right!" and he was going round the track, closing in the distance and going by the next in the rear as he shouted.

Orrin Chase led out with Jason Tupper next and for some time it was between the two, but just as Tupper had passed Chase, he found himself neck and neck with a little gray mare that was carrying along a small red chin whisker, that under a white slouched hat was pointed toward business as the words came, "It's all right! Daughter o' the old mare! All right!"

And so round and round they went, uncle gradually leading and giving more and more room for the eyes of the spectators on the grand stand in which to roam between him and Jason Tupper, the next behind. In fact it was hardly a trot-Uncle Zeke coming in at each of the see what had become of Jason and the rest," as he jokingly said to the committee above.

"Want to swap hosses?" asked Uncle Zeke, after the time was announced, and he was adjudged the winner of the purse of a hundred dollars, "want to swap with me, Jason?"

All the county was on the grand stand or across the track fronting it and waiting for the answer. Jason looked admiringly at the horse, and so did Orrin Chase.

"Pooty good trade ye made on me after all," said Jason, stepping from his gig. "Yes, gentlemen, I sold him the mother o' that mare," and he sleeked her down the back as he spoke. 'Good hoss! Good hoss! Ain't ye pooty well satisfied now, Mr. Thrasher?"

"Yaas," said Uncle Zeke, "kind o' satisfied. None of us 's ever quite satisfied." And then he said to himself, holding his lips together with an effort, "Ye darn insultin' cuss! Think I lie, do ve?"

"Want to sell the boss?" asked Jason.

"Yees, I'll sell the mare! I don't want so fast a hoss. What'll ye give?"

Jason Tupper's offer of three hundred dollars only brought a sneer on Uncle Zeke's face. If he was to sell the Boston mare he was going to get what she was worth he thought, but at last when Jason raised a hundred, uncle began to think that his taxes were due, as well as some notes, and not knowing what bad outs the mare might evolve, he began to think seriously of selling.

In a tone of regret he said he would drive her around the track once more and think about it -this after Jason had gone up to four seventyfive, adding with a grit of his teeth in the tone that showed he meant it, "and not another

Uncle drove down the track and for a brief space was lost to view beyond the hall, at the rear entrance, and when he came back jumped with the air of a martyr resignedly from his gig.

"I guess you ken take her," said uncle. "Take hoss an' gig fer five hundred dollars?"

After some haggling Jason accepted the offer and taking out his pocket book uncle quickly closed the strap over a half a thousand, trying to contain himself from growing out of his boots while doing so, and Jason Tupper likewise trying to withhold his consciousness of increased riches in the possession of the fastest horse in Phillips Corner.

Thinking only of his good fortune, Jason Tupper sprang into his gig behind his newly purchased trotter, giving no heed to Uncle Zeke, as the latter hurried to the main entrance.

Jason's friends, and admirers of horses generally gathered around him as he sat in his gig, offering their heartiest congratulations and looking critically at the champion. But somehow the horse seemed dumpish. There was no fire in her eye, and one dealer remarked, that as Zeke Thrasher made the last half of the track, in the drive he took just before the money was passed, it didn't seem to him it was the same animal on the track.

They were noting and in this way commenting, while uncle was speaking to me at the entrance. "Ye did well," he said. "Ye did well not to drive in. 'Cause I didn't want her seen. Did she hold hard?" I told him that she was rather restless, and leaving the gig as I spoke, he took my seat and the ribbons and drove down in front of the grand stand.

"Want to swap hosses? Swap hosses fer five hundred dollar's to boot! Who-o-o-Nancy!" Nancy was the name of the Boston mare, and as Uncle Zeke shouted the word, and held back on the reins, coming up and stopping alongside of Jason Tupper, the latter turned pale.

For a moment Tupper was speechless, and then he shouted, "You've robbed me! What fraud is this?" and he looked at his listless dead and alive thing before him with head down, and from it to the uneasy and noble animal a few feet away—restless and impatient as it were to get at a distance from such commonplace company. Some crookedness had been consummated—that was evident.

"No fraud or robbery," said Uncle Zeke, "no fraud or robbery! You're all right Jason Tupper! You bought the daughter o' the mare ye sold me six years ago, an' I sold her to you! You were satisfied, an I was satisfied! Now what more d' ye want? If you buy what you want fer the price you set, an' then find out afterward that buyin' on yer own jedgment's a pooty poor light to go by, an' that you bought too high-that ye bought a hose with a dif'rent trot from what ye expected, it's about time when ye do that, to git out o' the hoss business an' git into some other kind o' follorin' that ye understand! Do it soon's ye ken-I should! What do you s'pose is your business? Whoa-Nancy! Whoa!"

Uncle Zeke had gone on conscious of one great snicker from every one in hearing,-and knowing that the farthest was retailing the spice to others, until the grand stand as well as those opposite were knowing that Jason Tupper had been stepped ahead of in a horse deal—but just how was a mystery.

"Hello, what's comin' here?" and Uncle Zeke as he spoke looked up the track where every eye was on an old gray horse moving very slow, seemingly the ruins of what was Guess you know a good deal about it boy! three heats farther and farther ahead, until at never much of a horse. "Pat Hagerty, I vow!" Arnica Court Fluader or Ladice Knife we will seed of the land of gig that was coming in front, laughed a reply in "Did ye do it Misther Thresher? Did ye do it? Ye sould me this ould horse for twenty dollars that ye said ye ped him two hundred for, an' now if ye got some iv it back I'm glad!"

I had joined, on the road coming, Pat Hagerty at the fork in the turnpike, and told him about uncle's Boston mare,—that he had gone ahead to put her on the track, and I was coming up with our slow "colt," in hopes as uncle said, that the fast gray would sell the slow gray. He had been guessing at uncle's scheme, when uncle had me change places with him at the back entrance behind the hall, the old man saying "Consarn him, he swears I'm lyin'. Says I'm drivin' on the track the daughter o' the mare he sold me six year ago! I'll give him enough on't!-Callin' me a liar! I'll sell him the d'generacy o' what he sold me, as long as he insists on't!"

Pat Hagerty heard no more, and I had nothing to tell him, but he knew and so did I, what was coming-that there was some skinning to be done in a horse trade, and that this time the coon to be "skunned" was Tupper.

"Now Pat," said Uncle Zeke to the man coming up in the gig, who stopped as he spoke, "I want you to tell me right here-right afore ev'rybody!-I want you to say how much I cheated ye on that hoss ye got in them shafts, and that ye bought o' me? Now come, tell right out!"

"I chated meself! Bought the divil's mother

I may say, while ever she had life, at my own price, you advisin' me to buy the sorrel. But I tuk me own way an' iv coorse am sat-is-fied!"

"Well now Pat you're holdin' the ribbons on

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, 32.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE LIGHTEST METAL

in the world is Aluminum. You have no idea how well it is adapted to every-day use unless you have one of our Frosted Silver Finish Aluminum Pencils, vest pocket size, patent lead protecting derivery when not in use, can be concealed and prevent lead from breaking. A business man's pencil, a ladies' pencil, or for school children there is no equal. To get our big catalogue of novelties into new hands we will send one for only 5c. Address SINSUINE

STAMMER

LYON & HEALY'S BRASS BAND

INSTRUMENTS. Indorsed by the great Jules Levy as the best in the world. Hig Catalog, 40 illustrations, FIKE. Positively the lowest prices on Band Instruments, Uniforms and Supplies of all kinds. Also contains Music and Instructions for New Rands. Lyna Allealy, Manufacturers, 33 Adams st., thicago.

(Lyna & Healy are the largest music house in the world—Editor.)

A big 7-yard dress goods pattern of fine black brocaded worsted Fruncile cloth, woven by Johann Meyerhoff & Sons of Germany from selected yarn in rich, elaborate satin-finished de signs, latest 1901 style. Suitable for young and old, a firm, fast-color fabric, 36 inches wide, good weight for year around wear. Guaranteed 44.00 value. Our price, 7 yds., $1.99; per single yd., 29c.

you this beautiful satin brocaded black dress pattern by express C. O. D., sub-ject to examination. Examine it at the express office, see that it is overything we claim, satisfy yourself that you have we claim, satisfy yourself that you we claim, satisfy yourself that you was that you aved from $1.50 to $2.50 by bu us and pay the express agent our special price express charges, otherwise pay nothing and he in ta tour expense.

70 SAMPLES FREE send this Adv. to us and we will dross pattern and 70 samples of other dress goods and silks Order to-day, or write for ampleo to 166 and 287 and 289 Wood JOHN M. SMYTH CO. Madison Street, CHICAGO

Please mention Compost when you write.

FREE

OFFER.

which of 'em is her daughter?
"No need o' me answerin' "No need o' me answerin' that!" said Pat.
"Can't any one see the two in family? Ould age lank an lame, an' young age fat and lazy!
An' over here," and he looked at the Boston An' over here," and he looked at the Boston mare—life from her nostrils to the last hair of her tail, as she stood proud in the shafts before uncle, "over here is the fire iv the road! Ye see it!—See it in her huff an' eye!"

The word came to clear the track for the next trot.

next trot.

"I guess," said Uncle Zeke, as the inquiring knot of humanity around the gray horses united and the band struck up "Yankee Doodle," "I guess the next time Jason Tupper you won't want to call me a liar right afore ev'rybody at Cattle Show, an' then put in five hundred dolla's in yer faith that I am a liar! Costs five hundred dollars to call me a liar Jason,—an' ye have to settle out o' court at that!"

Swift Vengeance.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY RUPE BARMBY.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

F the reader will glance at a map of America, he will notice that a promontory of land juts out from Central America toward the peninsula of Florida (the two together forming the confines of the gulf of Mexico), and which as he doubtless well knows is the province of Yucatan. The history and interior of this country is but comparatively little known to this day. Formerly it is reported to have been inhabited by such a fierce and warlike race of Indians as to render its exploration practically impossible. Many a scientific and exploring expedition went into its tangled forests in early spring never to return or be heard from again. Tradition has it that long ago a native dweller on the seashore succeeded in penetrating far into the interior, and climbing a lofty tree saw in the distance the towers and spires of an ancient city, but upon returning to the coast again and telling of his discovery, was found on the morrow in his lonely hut with a dagger sticking in his heart.

The Yucatan of today is not especially interesting. It is for the most part in a low flat country, covered with a dense and tangled growth of tropical verdure. From Merida, its principal city, on its northwest coast, a pretense at a railroad runs some little distance inland. The country produces for export mainly a species of cactus from which rope is made. Its inhabitants of today are, in the main, peaceable and industrious, of a mixed Indian and Spanish blood. Who their Indian ancestors were they do not know, but modern science has at least discovered that they were a race of advanced intelligence and culture. Also that they left behind them ruins of vast structures of stone, some of them bearing carvings of most fantastic shape; which would ings of most fantastic shape; which would go to demonstrate that the legend of the early explorer from the coast certainly savored of the truth.

the truth.

One peculiarity of Yucatan is that it is almost wholly wanting in brooks and rivers, so that practically all the water supply which it affords must have been gotten from the many caves and subterranean caverns which, curiously enough, are found throughout the country. The early inhabitants of the country, whoever they were, must have frequently resorted to these caves, both to enjoy their cool and dim interiors, as well as to obtain water, which drips from their ceilings in many places, drop by drop, and which could be obtained nowhere else. The very fact that many of the ancient ruins of Yucatan are in the vicinity of these caves would of itself indicate that they were often thus visited.

were often thus visited.

But who were these early visitors? Who can tell? There is an ancient legend, for the truth of which I do not undertake to stand sponsor, that long ago a famous chief among these people, whoever they were, had a daughter, Uxna, so beautiful of face and feature and graceful of carriage that the famous has accessed. graceful of carriage that the fame of her spread abroad throughout all this land, and many young braves made the long and tedious journey to the north, where her father resided, solely for the purpose of looking upon her, or possibly with a few of the more daring, to make the attempt, though destined to failure from the beginning to win her hand in model. from the beginning, to win her hand in wedlock.

Now there also dwelt at about this time in the extreme south of the country, probably as far down as what is now known as the province of Guatemala, a young chief of most extraordinary courage and physical strength, the bitter enemy of the tribes of the north, whose skill and tact in battle were well known; and seldom indeed were heard his propole courselled. seldom indeed were he and his people compelled to undergo the humiliation of defeat. His chief peculiarity was his love of the dog, and his devotion to its training and breeding was one of the principal secrets of his success in Arms.

Much of his time had been devoted to the training and taming of the Yucatan dog, rough drawings of which antedating the sixteenth century, with its slender body, long snake-like neck, and head somewhat resembling that of an eagle, are to be seen on ruins in Yucatan to this day. He invariably went into battle accompanied by a large pack of these fierce animals, long since extinct, and it was to their savage ferocity, to a large degree, that his victories were due.

Reports of Uxna's beauty finally reached as far south even as the home of this rival chief.

tain, Anxul, and he resolved, as many another had done before him to make the journey to the north, and if possible bring back this fair damsel as his bride. He accordingly set out, unaccompanied except by a chosen pack of his best and most sagacious Yucatan dogs. It is a remarkable fact, that though Yucatan is so poorly supplied with water courses, it is favored nevertheless with as luxuriant a growth of matted jungle as can well be found. To make one's way through this forest tangle is a herculean task, even at this day, but Anxul was not a man to be deterred by any such obstacles, and though it involved many days of wearisome travel through the unbroken wilderness under the burning sun, he finally made his way tain, Anxul, and he resolved, as many another under the burning sun, he finally made his way to the palace of the north, and concealed him-self in the thicket near the massive structure of self in the thicket near the massive structure of cut stone laid in mud cement, with his faithful dogs close at hand.

And now how was he to obtain a glimpse of the vision of beauty he had come so far to see? To wait patiently hidden where he was until the object of his search should walk abroad in the cool of the day, as was the custom with all, seemed to be his only course, alone as he was in the midst of so many enemies, and this he determined to do. Nor was he destined to be long disappointed, for on the second day of his vigil, towards sundown such a one came forth vigil, towards sundown such a one came forth from the palace as could be none other than she, and but to gaze upon whom was ample reward to Anxul for all the privations of the long journey be hed endured.

ward to Anxul for all the privations of the long journey he had endured.

But how was he to make known to this fair one the object and purpose of his visit? This was the matter which the young chief was turning anxiously in his mind as he watched from his place of concealment the damsel slowfrom his place of concealment the damsel slow-ly pace along the path from the castle to the great, yawning mouth of the cave in the hill nearby, which was alike the source of the water supply of the castle and the cool retreat of the royal household from the heat of the fierce tropical sun, in the interior of which a pile of fagots was continually kept ready for burning, to furnish light to the visitor to its dim depths.

Uxna passed within the cave, as was her wont at this time of the day, to apply her torch to the pile of fagots and sit for awhile watching its cheery blaze in the cool and damp interior. No sooner had she entered than the lithe body of the young chief emerged from the thicket and followed noiselessly after with tread as soft as that of the cougar, and movements as supple as the adder's.

tread as soft as that of the cougar, and movements as supple as the adder's.

Now it so happened that Uxna had been thinking much of the future of late, as she sat gazing into the bright flame of the fagots. She was now no longer a child, but had come to womanhood, and true to her sex was already impatient to add as only woman can to the happiness of another, rather than continue longer in her present life of lonely isolation. Yet her father was so stern! Not one of the brave young chiefs who came to the castle so frequently was permitted by him for a moment to sue for her hand, but was turned roughly and to sue for her hand, but was turned roughly and angrily away. Not yet! was his invariable reply to any remonstrance from her upon the

Such things as these she was brooding upon that day, when lifting her eyes she beheld directly before her as handsome and sturdy a young chief as had ever yet been at the castle. Instinctively her heart told her the meaning of his presence there, and leaped within her as she listened with burning cheeks to the passionate words which the reader may imagine him breathing out to her. Fear, surprise, caution, all were forgotten in the thrill of response which swept over her. "I am Anxul, prince of the south, come to claim you. My kingdom shall be yours, and my right arm shall protect you. Come and be my bride!" pleaded the young chief; but had the two been less engrossed in one another they would have noticed a stalwart form noiselessly entering the cave, none other than the irate father himself, constantly on the watch over his daughter, and that the young chief was already in danger of his life, himself.

As the words "Anxul, prince of the south" Such things as these she was brooding upon As the words "Anxul, prince of the south,"

As the words "Anxul, prince of the south," reached the ears of the approaching form, his face became livid with rage. His hated enemy, here in the very midst of his realm! and in the presence of his child! Instantly his hand went to his side where was constantly kept his sharp dagger of flint, chipped to the finest possible edge. Like a snake, with glistening eyes and darting tongue, creeping with noiseless folds upon its unsuspecting prey, the furious chief crept up under the shelter of a neighboring rock, to avenge himself at last upon this long time enemy. Slowly the bronzed arm clinching the dagger was raised little by little above the rock until it was directly over the head of the unsuspecting Anxul.

the rock until it was directly over the head of the unsuspecting Anxul.
Already the knife had begun its lightning descent when a sound like a rushing wind filled the cave, and in the twinkling of an eye the upraised arm was in the jaws of the Yucatan pack. To struggle for life against their ferocity was useless, and almost before the other occupants of the cave were aware of what had happened, the body of the unfortunate assailant was torn limb from limb, the very bones being crushed between the unyielding teeth of the relentless animals, and scattered about the cave. Uxna fainted at the awful sight, but was borne away unconscious in the strong arms of scious in the strong arms of Anxul, not again to recover consciousness un-

Anxil, not again to recover consciousness until she was far on the way through the jungle toward the south.

It is said that peace is the foster mother of progress. May it not be that the feuds between the tribes of the north and the south of Yucatan having been brought to an end by the manufage of the princes of one to the prince of marriage of the princess of one to the prince of the other, opened the way to that high state of development which science tells us from the relies which it left behind, was reached by the early inhabitants, of whom so little is known?
Occasionally in the caves of this country to-day there are to be found bits of broken earthenware, the charred embers of fires kindled by unknown hands thousands of years ago, and in one of them has been discovered broken bits of Scientific men have suggested that putting scientific men have suggested that putting these three clues together—the embers, the broken dishes, and the shattered human bones, there is pretty good evidence that these early people were cannibals. What does the reader think; are these the remains of some demoniacal feast held in the dim cave, or might the earthenware be the remnants of water dishes, resembling that of an eagle, are to be seen on ruins in Yucatan to this day. He invariably went into battle accompanied by a large pack of these fierce animals, long since extinct, and it was to their savage ferocity, to a large degree, that his victories were due.

Reports of Uxna's beauty finally reached as far south even as the home of this rival chief-of these caves, which they have kept untold already for a thousand years and more.

COMFORT.

Three Chautauqua Girls.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY SARAH E. GANNETT.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

OODBYE, goodbye, goodbye," sang the Chautauqua chorus, five hundred voices strong.

"Goodbye," pealed the great organ and the two grand pianos.

"Goodbye, good-bye," shouted the orchestra with all the strength of its many and variously attuned voices. The vast audience rose to its feet. the fluttering handkerchiefs gave the Chautauqua salute, turning the old amphitheatre into a billowy sea of white, and the Chautauqua Assembly of 1900 was ended and its members reluctantly streamed out into the shady streets and spread far and wide through the grounds.

Three young ladies, with singing books in their hands, came out of the choir entrance and walked down the hill toward the pier-house.

"Now is our chance, girls," said one of them. 'But we must hurry, or some one else will have monopolized our corner before we get there. No, Harry," turning to a young man who came hastily toward them with invitation in his eye, "I cannot go rowing tonight. I know the moonlight is enchanting, but Miss Starr leaves in the morning, and this will be the last meeting of our trio. Tomorrow night I'll go with you."

The girls sped on, across the mall, and up the The girls sped on, across the mall, and up the inclined walk to the broad, second-story veranda of the pier-house, where they were soon in possession of the coveted corner, from which they could look down upon the lake sparkling in the moonlight, the pier, alive with steamers and moving forms, and the beautiful, tree-shaded lawn crowded with people walking about or sitting on the benches.

For a time the girls sat quietly enjoying the about or sitting on the benches.

For a time the girls sat quietly enjoying the scene, but at length Marjorie Starr drew a long breath, exclaiming:

"To think that this is my last night in this beautiful place! But teachers, like beggars, cannot be choosers, so I go where duty calls," and she ended with a resigned sich and che and she ended with a resigned sigh and a draand she ended with a resigned sigh and a dramatic flourish.

"Well, Marjorie," said Julia Randolph,
"Mary King and I would pity you if we could, but the same evil day is coming for both of us and all too soon, and we have no sympathy to waste. But come, you know we were each to tell tonight of some experience which has come to us which will help us in our next year's teaching. Who begins? Mary?"

"Not I," answered the girl who had, so far, taken no part in the conversation. "I am sorry not to do my part, but I can think of nothing which has happened to me this summer outside of Chautauqua which is worth the telling, or which will help my teaching in the least."

"Oh! oh!" exclaimed both girls, "indeed you

"Oh! oh!" exclaimed both girls, "indeed you cannot be let off in that way. You must tell us something."

"But how can I? I've nothing to tell."
"Well," said Julia, hesitatingly, "would you mind?—I've wanted to know all summer—telling us why your hair is so white? You surely see as young as we but your hair is se white or ing us why your hair is so white? You surely are as young as we, but your hair is as white as my grandmother's."

"Yes, I am only twenty-five; but, well, I will tell you if you like after you have each told your story. It was a terrible experience, one of which I do not like to think, and I seldom mention it: but you have a right to know it.

which I do not like to think, and I seldom mention it; but you have a right to know it. Now, Marjorie, you begin."
"Well," answered Marjorie, "my last Easter vacation was spent in Pittsburgh, that city of smoke, dirt and cinders. One day my friend, who is much interested in settlement work, took me to visit a school for teaching poor young girls how to make a home. We went down into the heart of the city, where the houses are of many stories, but where two or three rooms at most make the home of a famithree rooms at most make the home of a family. Here a building of four stories and a basement had been rented and fitted up for this work, and here we found fifty or sixty girls from ten to twenty years of age, busily and happily employed. In the basement was the laundry, and here were a dozen girls washing and ironing; for all the pupils are invited to bring not only their own personal washing but that of their entire family, to be washed, ironed and mended.

bring not only their own personal washing but that of their entire family, to be washed, ironed and mended.

"On the first floor were kitchen, dining-room and parlor. In the kitchen are prepared not only lunch and dinner for the pupils, but also for the children whom some of the girls are obliged to bring with them. In the dining-room they learn to serve a meal in a proper manner and also take turns in sitting at the head of the table and acting as mistress. In the parlor they are taught by turns to be parlor maid, visitor, and lady of the house, receiving visitors and governing and directing her household.

"Up stairs we found, besides the living rooms and bedrooms of the teachers, a fine library and reading-room for the girls, a nursery for babies, a kindergarten and playroom for the older little ones and a sewing-room where both making and mending of garments is carried on.

making and mending of garments is carried on. Among the workers in this room I noticed a Among the workers in this room I noticed a little girl of ten with an anxious, careworn face. She was patching with infinite pains a tiny pair of pants, but I could see that her thoughts were only half upon her work. Every

GUITAR VIOLIN, MANDOLIN BANJO Self-Taught, Without Notes by Figure Music. Send for BIG Illustrated Catalog of Instructors and Instrumenta E. C. HOWE, 1642 Masonic Temple, Chicago.

95

I WAS

I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly setd you full information free. Address with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, Over Postonice, COROS, I.T.

I Print Gard Press $5

My Own Larger $18

My Own
Larger $18
Money saver, maker.
Cards
Circulars, Books,
The PRESS CO.
Newspaper.
Meriden, Conn.

All Wool Suit $55 MAN'S SUIT made from rich Nary Blue Serge Cheviot, woven by America's best woolen mill from fine picked wool yarn, dyed by a new process and cannot fade—famous for SKILLED SUIT TAILORS will make the suit in the latest sack spin to fit perfect, line it with fine farmer's satin and sew it with pure slik and lines thread. Guaranteed equal in quality, style and looks to other's $10 suits. 50 SAMPLES FREE, Send this adv. to send free a sample of the fine Serge Cheris, and our book of fifty cloth samples of ster suits and trousers, or send us your heith, weight, chest, waist and crotch measure wit $1.00 depost, and we will make and erprest the suit to you C. O. D., subject to examisation. You can examine it at the Expresoffice, try it on, see that it fits perfect and then pay the express agent $4.35 and express charges, otherwise pay nothing and we will refund your $1.00. JOHN M. SMYTH CO.

150-166 & 287-289 W. Madison St., CHICAGO Please mention Comfort when you write.

20th Century MUSICAL WONDER. With little practice any one can produce the most charming music on this latest of masch wonders The Marie Harmonophone. It's complete Orchestra and Fill complete. Complete Orchestra & Brass Band all is is a delightful instru-play upon. Every on what the large hern w fully a mile and distin instrument we results and teach you how to play results and teach you how to play results and teach you how to play results and teach you can give concerts, play for from this instrument that you can give concerts, play for from this instrument that you can give concerts, play for from this instrument that you can give concern the property of the play in several different keys by only having one Phone. We want to get these wonders before the people at once so will send once free to any one who will forward ble. for a special two yans subscription to COMFORT. Special Doz. rates furnished.

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

m

One person out of every four has a weak or diseased heart, and still very few people are aware of it. To trouble is that most doctors don't understand heart troubles. They very often treat patients for disorders of the Stomach, Lungs, Kidneys and Nerves, when the trouble is in the heart itself.

You can tell whether your heart is affected better than a physician. The signs and symptoms are sure and certain. If you have any one of the following symptoms, you are in grave danger, and may be the next victim to drop dead.

Symptoms of HEART DISEASE

Fluttering, Palpitation, or Skipping Beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); Shortness of Breath from going up stairs, walking, etc.; Tenderness, Numbness or Pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Hungry or Weak Spells; Spots Before the Eyes; Sudden Starting in Sleep; Dreaming, Nightmare; Choking Sensation in Throat; Oppressed Feeling in Chast. Cold Hands Chest; Cold Hands and Feet; Painful to Lie on Left Side; Dropsy; Swelling of the Feet or Ankles (one of the surest signs); Neuralgia Around the Heart; Sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

MEDICINE SENT FREE. I have a positive cure in my Heart Tablets for this most dreaded of all diseases. I am daily curing hundreds of men and women. To show my confidence in my Heart Tablets. I will according to the state of the To show my confidence in my Heart Tablets, I will send, postpaid, a box for trial absolutely free to any sufferers who will send their name and address. This liberal offer should be accepted to any sufferers who will send their name and address. at once, because heart disease is always fatal, and death comes like a flash of lightning. Enclose stamp for postage. Address, DR. F. G. KINSMAN, Box 962 Augusta, Maine.

lew moments she would run across to the aursery door and listen, and finally, as a baby Fail issued from that room she disappeared algosther. We soon after followed and found the sitting in the nursery, a baby of six months on her lap, while a pair of two year old twins and a little cripple of four years cuddled at her side. We went softly out before we were observed and our guide told us the story of this brave little woman.

"Her mother died last Christmas, leaving seven children, of whom this little Mary is the eldest. With her last breath she begged Mary to keep the children together and make a home for the father. He is a millman, and fond of the children and of his home when not in liquor, but a very demon when drunk, and little Mary was trying, with all the skill and tact she could command, to make a comfortable home for him, and so to induce him to stop drinking. Oh, it was so pathetic! the sight of that tiny child so bravely doing a work that many and many a woman has failed to accomplish. Girls, it seems to me that if that settlement should succeed in helping only that one little one in her hard life, if it saves only that one family from evil, it will be worth all it has cost. one family from evil, it will be worth all it has

"That morning's visit taught me a lesson that I shall never forget, and I shall try my best, this year, to get near my pupils, to learn something of their home lives, their trials and perplexities, their joys and sorrows, and try, as far as I can, to help them."

as I can, to help them."

There was a moment's pause when Marjorie ceased speaking, and then Julia said, seriously:
"You are right, Marjorie. Such a work is a noble one, and we ought all to keep watch for opportunities to help it on, but there is another side of the social question which has troubled me much of late, and I am trying to do my little best to remedy this evil. It relates to a very different class of society than the one of which you were speaking, however, and perhaps you blood run cold.

different class of society than the one of which you were speaking, however, and perhaps you will laugh at my anxiety.

"As you know, my school is in Washington, a sixth grade in the northwest part of the city, and my way to school leads me through Iowa Circle, which is surrounded by the residences of wealthy people, and where the colored nursemaids of the neighborhood are in the habit of gathering with their tiny charges. Some of these maids are trustworthy, and devote their entire attention to the children as they play about under the trees; but there are others who wish to gossip with each other, or worse, with a male friend, and who will not be interrupted by running after the children. Frequently I have seen babies lying screaming in their carriages, with the hot sun full in their faces, or an older child forced to sit for an hour on the bench by the nurse while she enjoyed herself. Many a time I have seen such a little one cuffed and shaken by the nurse when it cried to get down and run about, and the language and the threats used to the poor little innocent babies are enough to make one's blood run cold.

"Finally, one day last spring, after I had seen innocent babies are enough to make one's blood run cold.

"Finally, one day last spring, after I had seen a high-spirited boy of two years beaten, shaken, sworn at and frightened several times by his unprincipled nurse I could bear it no longer, and ventured to call upon his mother and tell her what I had seen and heard. At first she would not believe me, she had so trusted the girl; but at length she was induced to go herself to the park disguised by a mourning dress and a thick veil, and one hour there convinced her that I had told only the truth and that her boy was being shamefully abused by the nurse. She trembled for fear she had made the discovery too late, and that the boy's mind might be already permanently injured, and she took immediate possession of the child and dismissed the nurse upon the spot.

"I succeeded in that one effort of mine, but think of the thousands of children of the better classes who are thus left to the mercy of ignorant, wicked servants! Surely there should be a school for wealthy mothers to teach them their duty to their habits."

classes who are thus left to the mercy of ignorant, wicked servants! Surely there should be a school for wealthy mothers to teach them their duty to their babies."

"Yes, there's no doubt as to the necessity of such a school, Julia, dear; but the thing is to make those mothers see its necessity, or even if they acknowledge it to be willing to sacrifice themselves for their little ones."

"Why, girls," interrupted Mary, "there is the 'Mothers' Congress'; you know that was organized partly for that very purpose, and they say it is doing a good work along the lines for which it is carried on."

"Oh, yes," replied Marjorie, "I had forgotten that; but still, how few, comparatively, of the mothers ever heard of that, or, if they do know of it will take the pains to profit by its advice and teachings."

"I know," answered Julia, "it is a discouraging outlook, but still I am going to try to raise the standard of the nursemaids of Iowa Circle, at least. But it must be half-past nine o'clock, and the chimes will ring in half an hour, and we have yet to hear Mary's story; so I'll stop talking. Go on, Mary," and Mary began:

"It was five years ago last June and I was just twenty years old, when I closed my first year of teaching in Pass Christian, Mississippi, and started for a month's visit to my grandmother in Camden, Arkansas, before going to my home. There was a smallpox scare in Pass Christian just then, so the schools were closed a week earlier than schedule time, and without a day's warning; so I was that much earlier in my visit than I had arranged to be, and arrived very unexpectedly.

"My grandmother lives in one of those large, white two storied and the property in the white two storied and the property in the white two storied mangions so common in the very unexpectedly.

"My grandmother lives in one of those large, "My grandmother lives in one of those large, white, two-storied mansions so common in the South, with the gable projecting over both first and second story porches, and supported by tall white columns. Long wings run out to right and left, which, since my grandfather's death, have been much neglected. I found the house full of company, aunts and cousins, and no room vacant for that night but one in the disused east wing.

"There was no help for it, so I took possession as bravely as I could, locked my door, and surveyed my quarters. An immense room panelled to the ceiling, a great open fireplace, heavy, old-fashioned furniture and the bed a 'four-poster' with dark silken hangings.

"I hurriedly undressed and tumbled into bed, leaving my candle burning and longing

"I hurriedly undressed and tumbled into bed, leaving my candle burning and longing for daylight; but youth and the fatigue of the journey soon overcame my fears, and for an hour or two I slept soundly. Suddenly I sprang up in bed with the feeling that there was some living thing in my room. My candle had burned out, but, although there was nothing standing by it, I had forgotten to look for the matches before I went to sleep and I dared not get up to hunt for them. Soon the thing. get up to hunt for them. Soon the thing, whatever it was, began to move about, and I could hear its feet on the floor and a snapping, snarling, gasping sound as it felt its way along.

Before long it reached the bed, and seizing the silken hangings at the foot tore them down unreasonable. He loved his children, and had with a growl of rage and began to clamber on the bed, while I slipped softly over the low headboard and crouched behind it, listening in terror to the tearing of the sheets and headboard and crouched behind it, listening in terror to the tearing of the sheets and counterpane.

"Who or what my unwelcome visitor was I could not conjecture. I dared not cry out; I could not make a light, and so I remained as I was until the creature crawled over the headboard just as I had done, and landed on the floor near me. Then I began to creep softly away, but wherever I went the dreadful thing followed, still snuffling and whining. Round and round the great room we went, I dare not say how many times, until it seemed to me that I could not go another step. I tried, when I reached the door in the first round, to unlock it and get out, entirely forgetting that I had been so foolish, when I locked it at bedtime, as to remove the key and hide it under my pillow. When this fact finally dawned on my bewildered brain I also remembered that I had heard it, when the creature was tearing up the sheets, fly out of the bed and strike against some article of furniture. Under the circumstances I could not, of course, search for it, so I was evidently, to my horror, a prisoner in the room until daylight.

"At last the creature wearied of its wanderings about the room dropped asleep on the

"At last the creature wearied of its wanderings about the room dropped asleep on the floor; but I dared not stir, and daybreak found floor; but I dared not stir, and daybreak found me still standing with my hands on the wall ready to move on at the slightest motion of the thing towards me. Daylight showed me a great mass of coarse grey hair coiled up on the floor, but this in no wise relieved my terror. However, I managed noiselessly to reach the window, remove the screen, climb out, and, clinging to the windowseat and sills, to close it securely. There I hung or clung until some of the servants discovered and released me; but for three weeks I raved in a brain fever, and it was months before I was myself again. Do you wonder that my hair is white?"

"Indeed I do not; but what was the thing, and how did it come to be there?"

"It was a Barbary ape which had escaped and how did it come to be there?"

"It was a Barbary ape which had escaped from a travelling show a day or two before. It had evidently clambered down the great chimney and hidden in the fireplace, and its movements about the room were only its efforts to find its way out; but I shudder, even now, to think what might have been my fate had I fallen into his clutches in his enraged state."

"I don't wonder. What an awful experience it was! But we must not let you think of it any more tonight or you will not be able to sleep. Oh! there are the chimes now, ringing for ten o'clock and bedtime. How lovely they sound with the moonlight and the beautiful, dark blue lake. That's 'Auld Lang Syne' that they are playing, and now they have changed they are playing, and now they have changed to 'Home, Sweet Home.' And as the last liquid bell note dropped upon the air the girls rose and with arms about each other's waists went silently down from the veranda and disappeared under the dark, over-arching trees.

A Friend In Need.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY M. B. THRASHER.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

EORGE Kingsley thrust the rake which he was using out beneath the overhanging branches of the alder bushes and drew it back with an angry jerk, as if the wisp of hay which it brought back each time was a personal offender against his rights. Across the field his father raked steadily opposite him. They had begun at the lower end of the big meadow and were raking around it, drawing the hay away from the bushes which grew about the field to where a horse rake could get at it. At the upper end of the meadow they met.

The farmer bent over and felt of a handful of the last roll of hay which his rake drew in. It rustled in his hand, dry and crisp. He looked out over the big field, shimmering gray-green in the blazing sun of an August afternoon, and twisting the handle of his rake around in the soft ground into which he had thrust it. He soft ground into which he had thrust it. He knew he could not go, and yet he could not keep from asking once more.

This was to be such a great game. His own high school nine, at the village only two miles away, were to play the nine from another school; and George had always played first base. Of course there were fellows who could take his place, but this was to be the great game of the year, because Anderson, the famous college player, the idol of half the school boys of New England, the athlete who had broken the records of years and won numberless championships for his college, was coming to umpire the game.

umpire the game.

The boy's father's lips shut together in what one of his neighbors once had called "Kingsley's steel trap."

one of his neignbors once had cancelley's steel trap."

"No," he said. "I told you so once. I don't want to hear anything more about it." He stuck his rake up beside the other, and started across the field to where a horse hitched to a horse rake was feeding in the shadow of a clump of water maples.

no dearer object in life than to provide for their welfare in what seemed to him the best possible way. And yet his fellow townsmen said: "Si Kingsley's a hard man on his family." He kept his children in school until they graduated from the high school, but he did not believe in college education, and he did not hesitate to declare that he thought athletics foolish. "Jest let 'em work on a farm," he would say, "if they want to get up muscle." The summer had been a trying one for both father and son. George had graduated from school that year and wanted to go to college. His father not only would not help him, but would not even give him permission to go. The clash between the ball game and this last day's work in haying had called forth from Mr. Kingsley what he had intended for a final decision in the matter.

Two hours later the hay had been tossed into tumbles and they had begun carting it. George loaded the great forkfuls as his father passed them up to him on the cart, and Alma, one of the boy's sisters, rode the horse rake back and forth behind the load to gather up the scatterings. As fast as a load was put on it was driven to the barn and the hay mowed away.

Afterwards, neither George nor his father could tell just how the accident happened. They were going to the barn. The farmer himself was driving. Perhaps he made too short a turn, or else a wheel may have dropped into a hidden rut. George felt the lofty load quiver, and let the beast free. Then he saw that his father was caught beneath the load.

The farmer's body was hidden by the hay. no dearer object in life than to provide for their

and let the beast free. Then he saw that his father was caught beneath the load.

The farmer's body was hidden by the hay. He lay upon his back, with only his head in sight, and the binding pole across his breast with the weight of a good part of the load upon it. He could not speak, and his purple face and gasping breath showed that his life was being crushed out.

The boy thrust his arms into the hay and tried to drag his father out, but could not. Then he seized hold of the end of the load, and tried to free the helpless man from its weight, but the pole only bent and sank deeper into the hay.

into the hay.

He cried for help again and again, but the cart had stopped in a turn of the road which was out of sight from both house and meadow, was out of sight from both house and meadow, and too far away for any one to hear him. He was down on his knees now, tearing wildly away at the hay. He had forgotten the ball game, college, everything, now, except that the man who was dying there was his father. Something crashed in the bushes beside the road, and a man came leaping through. A young man in knickerbockers and a gorgeous sweater.

sweater.

"What's the matter?" he cried. "Who shouted for help?" and then, in a moment seeing the answer to his own question, said to the boy, "Come here," and ran to the end of the load where the pole stuck out.

"Take hold of the end of that pole," he said, "and lift for all you're worth."

Then, stooping down in front of the boy, to where he could just place his shoulder under the pole, he slowly, slowly straightened upward.

ward.
"Pull him out!" he gasped. "Shout when you've got him!"
George darted around the cart and dragged his father out to the roadside, crying "All right!" as he did so.
The load settled back upon the ground again, and the young man came out from behind it.

and the young man came out from behind it pulling his sweater down into place.

When his neighbors talked the matter over afterwards, they said: "Si Kingsley never'd have give in an' let George go to college in the world, if it hadn't been for that college chap who was goin' cross lots there after the ball game gettin' along jest in season to h'ist that load of hay off'n him. An' if he hadn't come Si pretty likely never 'd have consented nor objected to much of anything more in this world."

George plays first base on his college nine, and twice, when there have been great games coming off, his father has been down to see him play.

CURIOUS CONDITIONS CHANGED BY QUIET.

When jaded by the cares and worries of this

When jaded by the cares and worries of this life, when filled with a spirit of unrest, the best thing imaginable for the afflicted to do is to hie himself to new scenes—to the primeval wilds, in that part of New England known as the fishing regions, there to enjoy a period of absolute quiet.

The enjoyment, the complete retirement in which one finds himself, is the best health restorer you can find. The manipulation of hooks, nets and lines, the sight of a big, wary fish, anxious for a tussle, and the excitement attending the landing of one of these fine fellows, will drive away the blues, and every moment of the spring vacation is one of intense enjoyment.

enjoyment. The region in the blazing sun of an August afternoon, and then looked up at the cloudless sky.

"You go and hitch the horses into the cart," he said, "and I'll begin taking. Tell the girls to get up the cows for us, tonight, so as to save time, and have Alma come down in about two hours to rake after the cart. If we have good luck we'll finish up today."

"Then I can't go to the game," his son said, twisting the handle of his rake around in the section in which spring fishing is a predomi-section in which spring fishing is a predomi-nant feature, and the pamphlet, "Fishing and Hunting," gotten out by its General Passenger Department, whose offices are in Boston, Mass., is chockfull of interesting information which every sportsman should read, and a two-cent stamp sent to the above address will procure it for you.

LADIES TO DO PLAIN SEWING AT guaranteed; send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Slocum's New Discoveries Praised Everywhere.

Consumption, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Weak Lungs Cured by His Marvelous Treatment.

FREE TO YOU.

Dr. Slocum's success in curing consumption and all diseases of the head, lungs and bron-chial tubes has been the subject of wide comment throughout the country.

That he has completely mastered the consumptive bacilli is generally admitted.

Hundreds of letters are being received daily from every State proving the great value of the Slocum system—testimony that comes from leading citizens in such a way as to leave no room for doubt.

leading citizens in such a way as to leave no room for doubt.

Every reader of COMFORT who suffers owea a duty to health and posterity, the performance of which means a speedy trial of Dr. Slocum's four preparations, which are free on request.

Every weak and emaciated person needs the Slocum System to strengthen and produce

Every hollow-chested and weak-lunged sufferer needs it to fortify against the changeable spring weather.

Every one with catarrh, a stubborn cough or cold needs it to render the system proof against bacilli infection.

GROVE PARK, Alachua Co., Fla.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM, Oct. 19, 1900.

DEAR SIR:—I received your letter, also the remedies that you sent at my request. The pain in my chest has vanished and I am feeling a great deal stronger than before. I shall recommend your remedies to all in my town who are suffering from consumption or any disorder of the throat, chest and lungs. Thanking you very kindly for what you have done for me, I remain, Yours respectfully, M. T. BOOKER.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM.

DEAR SIR:—My delay in reporting to you the effect of your wonderful remedies was prompted by the desire to ascertain whether the results would be permanent, and am now thoroughly convinced that your Remedies are all that you have claimed. My wife has been losing strength and flesh for about twelve months. She has taken your remedies and gained several pounds. I will gladly recommend your medicine to my friends. Please accept thanks for your kindness in sending the Remedies, and if I need any more of your medicine I will send to you for it.

Respectfully,

J. W. WHIDDON. SYCAMORE, Ga. Feb. 13, 1901.

WRITE NOW.

If you want to get well quickly, write Dr. T. A. Slocum, 96 and 98 Pine Street, New York, giving your full address, and he will at once send you the full free course treatment fresh from his great laboratories. Remember, he charges you nothing for the treatment, and only asks your commendation to others after being cured. Please mention Comfort when writing the Doctor. writing the Doctor.

NO SPAVINS

The worst possible spavin can be cured in 45 minutes. Curbs, splints and ringbones just as quick. Not painful and never has failed. Detailed information about this new method sent free to horse owners.

Write today. Ask for pamphlet No. 5. FLEMING BROS., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, III.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canfor reply. Miss Modelle Miller, New Carlisle, Ind.
Please mention Comfort when you write.

ACENTS WANTED

MONEY For Soldiers' HEIRS. Heirs of Union Soldiers who homesteaded less than 160 acres before June 22, 1874 (no matter if abandoned), should address H. N. COPP, Washington, D. C.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

for selling only six of our Electric Porous Plasters. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, To our Popes, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatis m, etc., and will send will send will send.

Shaving Set packed in a case eight inches long, six inches wide and dive inches high. The combination consists of 1 Royal Steel Swedish Razor. single value, $3.00; 1 Genuine, Horsehide, Double, Reversible, Canvass-back. Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; 1 Real China Shaving Mug; 1 Cake Star Shaving Soap; 1 Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brush; 1 Cake Ferfumed Lump Magnesia; 1 Stick rich perfumed Cosmetic, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency's use. Every Woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best presents one can give to a gentleman. Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address.

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handiest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address GOLDEN MONESNAS, Augusta, Mat

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE summer girl considers her shoes an important item, and very justly so this season, for though the skirts are long, they will be well held up and the shoes very much in evidence. This year are shown a number of fascinating shapes. Shoes for utility are not pointed at all but shaped like a man's shoe, straight on the inside and curved on the outside. This shape carried out in a girl's trim shoe makes her foot look very much smaller, and is quite as good as a pointed shoe and far more comfort a ble.

Very stunning some of these shoes look and one finds one'sself admiring them whether on the pretty foot of a pretty girl or arranged in the shop window.

The very daintiest of all the new shapes in shoes is the Colonial; a low shoe, having a gh, arched heel, or a low flat one all the new shapes in shoes is the Colonial; a low shoe, having a round toe, a high, arched heel, or a low flat one as one's taste may incline, and two little flaps crossing and buttoning each way over a large, pointed tongue adorned with a large square buckle of gold or silver. This is the very latest cry in shoedom and no up-to-date maiden considers herself properly geared, as to her feet, if she does not possess a pair of Colonial shoes.

Sleeves are marvelously picturesque, exceedingly fanciful, softly drooping, and infinitely graceful, probably in order that they may match or harmonize with the inserts about the hem and the height of the knee, while the fulled skirts are more and more in favor. With this drooping effect the bolero is used in countless variations and is completed by deep collars drooping far below the shoulder. Many of these collars are genuine works of art so far as delicacy of needlework is concerned. A wonderfully dainty affair of this sort has white mousse line de soie for the body and is cut in shawl effect with sole for the body and is cut in shawl effect with a curve at the back and one at either side. There is a fluffy border of knife-plaited mousseline de sole edged with lace

and attached to edged with lace and attached to the collar by means of a lace stitch topped by a fancy Honiton be adding. The shape of the curves is followed by three rows of delicate Val. lace each outlined by the Honiton beading. No daintier collar No daintier collar

No daintier collar can be imagined. Another style of somewhat greater elegance has an under collar of ceil blue Liberty silk in square sailor shape bordered with a plaited frill of the silk having a plain edge. Over this is the collar proper of white, transparent Liberty silk appliqued profusely with flowers formed from Honiton braid mixed richly with gold. These flowers arranged along the edge give a graceful, broken effect.

I saw a stunning little frock in white wool as soft and flexible as crepe de chine; it was folded over on each side of the front to outline a panel, had slight puckers reaching toward the back, and was daintily trimmed about the hem, with the exception of the front breadth, with a number of graduated rows of gray velvet ribbon. The blouse bodice was made up of grayish tinted lace, very much pouched in front and confined closely about the waist by a front and confined c girdle of gray vel-vet fastened by an antique silver clasp set with rhine-stones. The Bishop sleeves were fin-ished at the wrist, as was the tall choker by rows of bebe velvet ribbon, gray in color and caught together by tiny silver buttons. Simple gowns of white wool are made up with tucked skirt and tucked blouses or boleros sometimes boleros sometimes bordered with flat bands of the cloth, stitched. Many of the French frocks show such a mix-ture of materials as to really bewilder one and to make it to really bewilder one and to make it seem an impossible feat to think of copying one. A gown worn at a recent function shows such a glory of rich coloring and such a mystic arrangement of materials as to make one marvel and yet its construction was most simple when one came to direction. The gown was composed of coarse black net, and had two graduated flounces on the skirt decorated with applique creton flowers in a perfect frenzy of color, largely pinks, greens and pale mauves, the edge of the hem cut out to conform to the shape of the flower. A little bolero of the net bearing the creton decorations fastened on one shoulder with a gorgeous jeweled buckle, while a deep girdle of pale green Liberty satin was crushed about the waist.

Elbow sleeves are certainly very much in favor and wonderfully becoming to a prettily rounded arm. To be sure they necessitate the wearing of the long glove but what is more graceful? I saw a bit of daintiness in the shape of a bodice designed to be worn with a skirt of tucked white crepe de chine but which could be made to do excellent service worn with a skirt of any pretty color or with one of black net; the under slip of this waist was a well-fitted one of white taffeta covered with white mousseline de soie set in clusters of small tucks intersected with inch-wide straps of white taffeta stitched along the edges and ornamented with hand embroidery all in white. A narrow yoke is formed by the application of taffeta bands set together by a fancy lace stitch, the bands decorated with French knots. Bands narrow yoke is formed by the application of taffeta bands set together by a fancy lace stitch, the bands decorated with French knots. Bands of taffeta form a girdle to the depth of several inches. The choker consists of several straps of the taffeta set together like the yoke. This dainty dream of a blouse may be worn over a slip of any color with good effect and would look especially charming over a body of brocade in white; the floral decorations are a dull pink.

ranks, Lace stock collars entirely unlined are very natty and are combined with every possible sort of gown. They are made without lining of any sort save for the clouding of chiffon or net, and cleverly boned to keep in place.

Polka dots are used in profusion in all the new materials. I saw a smart toilette in black and white, the material being black berege polka dotted with white and trimmed elaborately with row upon row of white velvet ribbon on the two circular flounces of the skirt. The bodice was composed entirely of the tucked berege set together by bands of the velvet ribbon, the ends falling below the belt, which consists of white velvet brought snugly around the waist, one end crossed at the back and fastened to the bodice in quite a new and most fetching way.

most fetching way.

Buttons are used lavishly upon the newest gowns, among the most popular being those of black satin, very small and having eyelets in the center.

Feeling is a sense—feeling pain is nonsense, when the civilized world can get five-grain antikamnia tablets. Why suffer pain when harmless relief may be had? No matter what the cause, nor where the pain may be, two of these tablets will stop it. Get a dozen from your druggist and have them near by when needed—Medical Philosophy.

WURLITZER BEATS THE WORLD Brass Band INSTRUMENTS, DRUMS, ETC.
Reduced Prices, Don't buy until you see new 80-pp. Cat. B. Malled Free.
The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.
245 E. Fourth Street, CINCINNATI, O.

TAKE ORDERS FOR GROCERIES and get a 112-piece Dinner Sewing Machine, etc., Free, also cash commission. NO MONEY REQUIRED. We pay freight. AMERICAN SUPPLY Co., Dep. 67, 806 N. Main St., St. Louis, Mo.

with beautiful chain and charm complete for $1.98. The handsomest watch and the most beautiful chain ever offered at the price. SEND NO MONEY, cut this out and send it to us with your name and address and we will send the watch and chain and charm to you by express. You examine them at the express office and if as represented pay express agent our special introductory price $1.98 and the watch and chain and charm are yours. A guarantee for 5 years with every watch. Address R. E. CHALMERS & CO. 352-356 Dearborn St. Chicago. e mention Comfort when you write.

WE GIVE AWAY FREE one rolled gold sollisize Furifian rose diamond ring, soll-degold pattern, for selling 20 packages Garfield Furger pattern, for selling 20 packages Garfield Furger peptin dum among friends at 5 cents a package. Send full name; we mail gum. When selliforn GENUINE DIAMOND Unsold gum takers back. Write for catalogus of GARFIELD GUM CO., 117 MEADVILLE, PA.

LADIES to do piece work at their homes. We furnish all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly. Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago.

Return this advi. with three two-cont stamps, and we will send you one of our Gold-Laid Stone Set Rings Free. The Stones are exact imitations of Ruby, Sapphire, Emerald, Amethyst, &c., and so perfect that an expert can hardly tell the difference/Persons not in possession of one of these advis. will not be entitled to any of of these rings. Be sure to return this advi. with three 3-cent stamps to pay for postage & packing. SAFE JEWEL CO., 19 Warren St. New York.

$8 BELLEVIEW SEWING MACHINE Which is accurately described and finely illustrated in our FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOC, together with our

$40.00 DROP-HEAD FAULTLESS AT . . . $50.00 BALL-BEARING NEW ERA AT . . $60.00 BALL-BEARING HAPPY HEARTH AT

and a big line of drop-head upright and drop-desk machines from $12.50 up. We a sive agents at our prices for the output of sewing machine factories with national sell direct to the consumer at actual cost of material and labor with but the manufact profit added. Ship anywhere direct from factory without one cent in advance days' trial and guarantee our machines for 20 years. 200,000 now in use-thouss monials. Write to-day for Free Special Sewing Machine Catalog and post yourse

JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150 to 166 and 287 and 289 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILL

We are giving away Watches, Furniture, Wearing Apparal, Sporting Goods, Musical Instruments and many other valuable premiums to any man, woman, boy or girl selling 20 pieces of our fine Jewelry, such as Broaches, Hair Ornaments, Stick Pins, Charms, etc., at 10c each. Don't send any money in advance, we trust you. Simply send your name and address and we will forward you the box of jewelry by prepaid mail. When sold, send us the money and select any premium you want from our large catalogue; all you have to sell is $2.00 worth of goods. This is no fake, we are the largest concern in America. Write us at once. EDDY SUPPLY CO.

45-47 Lake St., Chicago, III.

ACTIVE MAN by large Manufacturing House; $36.00 in eash paid for 12 days' trial; promotion and permanent position if satisfactory. Address G. B. P. Co., 723 Chestnut St., Philada.

Women Wanted Do Binding. $9.00 week. Steady work. We furnish and send material prepaid. Send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. Universal Co., Dept. 29, Walnut St., Phila, Pa.

LADIES WANTED to work on Sofa Pillows. Materials experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to Miss S. McGee, Needle Work Dept., Ideal Co., Chicago, Ill.

Pree Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

ES I Make Big Wages

— AT HOME—

ant and will easily pay $18 weekly. I have often made en your spare time is valuable. This is no deception, nev and will gladly send full particulars to all send ARRS. A. B. Wi661NS, Box 8, Beaton Harbor, Miela.

If you suffer from Epileptic Pits, Falling Sickness or St. Vitus' Dance, or have children that do so, my New Discovery will CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for my FREE REMEDIES and try them. They have cured thousands where everything else failed. Sent absolutely free with complete directions, express prepaid. Please give AGE and full address

Dr. W. H. MAY. 94 Pine Street, New York City,

Hall Chemical Co., ST. LOUIS, MO.

SELL YOUR REAL ESTATE

BIG DRESS GOODS OFFER. SEND NO MONEY. Cut this send you this fine, in your section, then pay the express agent $1.99 and express cha OUR SPECIAL OFFER PRICE... $1.99 and express cha 50 cents. By ordering two or more dress patterns at once the charges will aver much reduced. 19 ents. By ordering two or more dress patterns a three days of the heduced. If more than seven yards are wanted, 86 cents per yr THIS IS A GENUINE NORTON BLACK MERGERIZED GREPON DRESS GOODS an elegand of the days of the days up-to-date fabric for suits or skirts, good weight for year around wear, a firm claim can guarantee for service, fancy raised crepon effect, goods that we have bughted from one of the largest mills under a POSITIVE GUARANTEE FOR QUALITY OUR SPECIAL $1.99 PRICE for seven yards of this 38-inch goods (a fullow my in 100 piece lots, is such value as was never before offered by any house. We make the part of the par oan buy in 100 piece lots, is such value as was never before offered by any house. We make the cof $1.99 for a full 7-yard dress pattern to advertise our Dress Goods Department and & Cor catalogue. Write for Free Dry Goods Catalogue. ORDER TODAY! DON'TDELAY as they never again can be offered at the price. Order two, four or six dress patterns of the price of the corresponding of the corresponding to the price. Order two, four or six dress patterns of the price of the corresponding of the A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxics Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life-giving wonders, we send two boxes absolutely free, all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c, perbay, send us the money within 20 days, 50c, in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are varied quadruple plated silver; they an fluted top and beautiful and useful ornament, they are suitable for dining table use, or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address a once so your friends can derive the great benefit coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick stand special organs of either sex. All lift and special organs of either sex. All the vanish as if by magic if you use these Pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and geful paticulars of our great money-making agency proposition, where you get husdreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address, To introduce our famous little Giant Oxica

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M, Augusta, Maine

FOR GRAZY PATCHWORK.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publi-ation of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscrib-to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's en name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hudred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prizes will be paid monthly: lst. For the best original letter
2nd. "second best original letter
3rd. "third"
4th. "fourth ""
5th. "fifth ""

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least two new Cousins into the Compost circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together with 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department. No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, Care of Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Genevieve Fleming. Mrs. Mary Edmondson Britton. Gertrude Lafrentz, 2.00 Frank E. Halbert, 1.50 Mabel E. James,

EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

June is with us once more—dear, delight-ful, beautiful June—with all her witcheries of earth and air and sky; and she beguiles us, in spite of our stern resolves not to be lured from the well-trodden and monotonous path of daily duties, to lose ourselves in the delights of the old but ever new miracle-the awakening of nature. It may be a yellow dandelion by the roadside, it may be a little hooded fern, or it

"A noise like of a hidden brook In the leafy month of June, That to the sleeping woods all night Singeth a quiet tune."

But be it what it may it woos us, charms us, and withal, refreshes us so that we feel, as we take up our burdens once more, that life is worth the living, that we have blessings all about us if we will only see them, and that our Heavenly Father cares for the pleasure and happiness of his children as well as for their right or wrong doing.

Blessed be June!

Our first letter this month is a continuation of one which we enjoyed a few months ago, which took us up the Saguenay river to the little village of Tadoussac. Our correspondent says:

of Tadoussac. Our correspondent says:

"The next morning found us a long distance up the river at Ha-Ha Bay. Here we were obliged to wait for the tide, so our little party of three set out at the early hour of half-past five on a voyage of discovery. An old Frenchman agreed to drive us through the two villages, St. Alphonse and St. Alexis, which lie along the curve of the bay, and we embarked in his ramshackle, one-horse conveyance. He could not speak a word of English, but as two of our party understood French we got along very comfortably together. He had a fine old face, kindly, with a humorous twinkle in his brown eyes, and he seemed to regard everything in the light of a joke, even the serious catastrophe of almost overturning us in the mud

CAPE TRINITY.

"The morning betokened rain, but the sun was struggling through masses of purple clouds, tinging the circling mountains with a misty blue, and sending long streaks of red and amethyst light across the gleaming waters of the bay, where one boat rested with its white sails outspread. The villages themselves were not particularly interesting except for their quaint, almost primitive simplicity.

ing except for their quaint, almost primitive simplicity.

"Our next stopping place was Chicoutimi, which is as far up the river as the boat goes. The only thing of special interest there was the Cathedral. We remained about an hour and then the steamer turned her course and began the descent of the Baguenay, the mighty, fathomiess river which has been called by some the River of Death, or the American Styx. Rugged mountains, covered with a sparse growth of pines, rise straight from the water's edge. It is said that in some parts no fish inhabit the waters nor winged creature the air.

"The steamer moved slowly, giving us time to enjoy the scenery, and at last stopped before Cape Trinity, a gigantic rock rising eighteen hundred feet below. As we approached it rose before us in three steps. On the first ledge was a figure of the Virgin thirty-two feet in height, and yet appearing only life size. The next step, six hundred feet higher, was surmounted by a cross. As we rounded the cape it presented another view, for here it towered in all its fearful majesty, sheer up from the water's edge, its top rounded to form three columns, from which it takes its name.

"Cape Eternity, almost as tall, shuts us in just beyond, and the two form a cove or bay. A feeling of almost oppressive awe comes over you as you gaze up at these battlements of nature, which probably no human foot has ever scaled. The pine trees look like a fringe of coarse grass on their brows and a vague dread steals over you lest the whole mass of rock might topple over and crush the steamer, which looks like a mere atom at its base. At one point you can trace a profile on the rocks, the strong, intelligent face of a man with the head thrown back as though reclining. The features are strongly marked and even the eyebrows and beard are defined by pine trees. In some places there are deep crevices where the rocks have cracked in the cold, and down these mountain torrents fall like silver threads suspended from the summit of the cliff to the water.

"Just before leaving the steamer gave several shrill whistles, which reverberated again and again among the mountains. For a long distance the banks continued to be a series of lofty mountains, rising peak after peak, and the river is so devious in its course that sometimes we seemed to be completely shut in, as though we were sailing on a lake.

"Just as daylight was fading, however, we again reached Tadoussac and cressed the live witch pletely shut in, as though we work lake.

"Just as daylight was fading, however, we again reached Tadoussac, and crossed the line which marks so distinctly the confluence of the two rivers. The stars came out, the flush died away in the western sky, the Saguenay, for us, was a thing of the past and we were steaming up the St. Lawrence toward the grey-walled town of old Quebec."

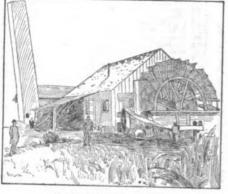

GENEVIEVE FLEMING, Washington, D. C.

A few months ago, also, we had a letter on the making of beet sugar in Virginia. Today I have making of beet sugar in Virginia. Today I have one for you on the making of sugar from cane in Louisiana.

"I am sure a great many of our Northern cousins would like to hear how sugar is made way down south, in Louisiana. The stalks of cane are stripped of all their leaves just as they get ripe, then are cut down and shocked up. In a few days the cane is carried to the sugar housefrom all over the plantation in little mule cars run on tram tracks. There it is thrown into an immense hopper that gradually drops the stalks between two large rollers which crush the juice out and leave the stalks perfectly dry and useless. The juice is carried by machinery into a square vat or kettle. There it begins to boil. As it reaches a certain stage it is transferred to another kettle simply by turning a crank, and continues to be changed from pot to pot until it gets thick enough to almost cut with a knife. Then it is ready to be carried through a rolling process that seems to fairly wring all moisture out of it. The damp brown sugar comes pouring down a funnel right on the floor in the 'sugar room,' where it is hoed and shoveled up like so much dirt. Then it is either put into sacks and shipped as a cheap grade of sugar, or carried into the refinery near at hand and put into the large, circular, porcelain-lined, centrifugal kettles one after another, and whirled around at a terrific rate and steamed until it comes out the lovely white sugar you see on your table. When it is half syrup and half sugar it is called 'pollies', and is said by many to be better than either sugar or syrup. All Louisianians are particularly fond of it. But it is of purely local value ast will not keep in this shape, and is not put on the market at all. We have to send to the refinery to get it."

AN OLD DRAINING MACHINE.

MARY EDMUNDSON BRITTON, Lehmann, La.

I thank James C. Brown, of Farmer's Creek,

I thank James C. Brown, of Farmer's Creek Michigan, for his letter, and hope he will write again when he has time.

Mrs. F. C. Graves sends me a letter on raising oranges in California, which has been crowded out, but for which I thank her.

Now let us make another summer trip. This but for which I thank her.

Now let us make another summer trip. This time across the ocean to the vaterland.

"Perhaps you would be pleased to hear about the trip which I have made to a place held dear in memory by my parents as their birthplace. It is a little island called Fehmarn situated in the East or Baltic Sea, in the eleventh degree of longitude east from Greenwich and between the fifty-fourth and the fifty-fifth degrees of north latitude.

"Fehmarn now belongs to Germany, but prior to 1871 it was under Danish dominion. In area it cannot compete with any one of our great American cities, but it has a very healthy climate and is comparatively well populated. Besides the city of which it can boast there are as many as twenty-five towns and villages.

"The main industry and occupation of the inhabitants is that of farming. In this they are thorough. The soil is very fertile, and wheat, rye, oats and barley yield abundantly. Unlike to what Americans are accustomed, the farmers there dwell in towns, their farmland lying, sometimes, at a considerable distance. In the summer time cows, horses and sheep are tethered in the fields. They are cared for from five to six times daily, and with unfailing regularity. Milking is done mostly by women. An able-bodied, self-respecting man will generally shun it. In fact, few men know how to milk. A milk wagon, a truck not unlike a brewery wagon, from the sides of which are suspended wooden buckets, their bottoms wider than their tops, their insides painted a spotless white while the outside color is a bright green offset by bands of black, is a sight well worthy of a photographer's consideration, especially when the driver's seat is filled by a merry maid wearing a large white apron and an old-fashioned sunbonnet.

"The most unique sight that I beheld was at harvest time. The men, dressed in garments of homespun and homewoven materials, were loading the well-sunned sheaves, and were bringing them into the barns. Following them was a busy crowd of poor women and children p in the most unique sight that I beheld was at harvest time. The men, dressed in garments of homespun and homewoven materials, were loading the well-sunned sheaves, and were bringing them of poor women and children picking up the stray and broken ears heedless of the fact that their the worse for repeatedly coming in contact with the sharp tops of the stoppel. A bag, serving serving the stray and broken ears heedless of the fact that their the worse for repeatedly coming in contact with the sharp tops of the stoppel. A bag, serving serving serving strated by mens of strangs around the for the purpose of removing the straw, was fastened in like manner.

"Another thing attracting the attention of strangers is their wooden shoes. These are mostly of home production. The trunks of all trees, producing the special content of the sharp tops of the stoppel in the sharp tops of the stoppel the straw, was fastened in like manner.

"Another thing attracting the attention of strangers is their wooden shoes. These are mostly of home production. The trunks of all trees, producing the straw, was fastened in like manner.

"Another thing attracting the attention of strangers is their wooden shoes. These are mostly of home production. The trunks of all trees, producing the stray of the stopped to the stray of the stopped the stray of the stray of the stopped the stray of the stopped the stray of the working people, so much so that they have lost all respect for Sunday. An ordinance prohibiting manual labor on Sundays, especially during the hours of Divine services, has been in effect for years, but is not heeded except through fear of the watchful eyes of the police who are ever eager to make arrests."

GERTRUDE LAFRENTZ, Chicago, Ill.

Here is an interesting letter from Colorado. But indeed, I think Colorado cannot help sending us indeed, I think Colorado cannot help sending us interesting letters it is such a wonderful state.

"In the pioneer days of Colorado gold was the main object of the settler. While standing on the eastern slope of the Rockies and looking eastward over vast, barren plains which he had crossed so laboriously, he little dreamed that the time would come when they would be teeming with farms, orchards and populous towns. Following him came the cattleman who found these plains to be excellent pasture lands, and he turned out upon them vast herds of cattle which increased and multiplied. He paid not a cent for the privilege of grazing his herds of cattle upon the public domains, and they were left to shift for themselves after being branded. Many of the cattlemen took up homesteads on the streams that flow down the mountain ranges and through the plains, and are bordered by bottom lands watered by the spring overflow and underflow from the beds of the streams. These men raised vegetables which they hauled to the mining camps and sold for high prices. After a while they dug irrigation ditches in a smail way, so that soon all the bottom lands were under cultivation. Wheat was raised in large quantities and ground into flour by mills located on the streams, and this brought high prices at the mining camps. "Still the great plains, comprising an area of nearly forty thousand square miles, remained in their natural state. The spring rains covered them with grass and with flowers of rare beauty. Experiments proved that the soil of the plains could be made productive by the aid of irrigation, and straightway the construction of extensive irrigation systems began; so to-day there are more than nine thousand miles of main ditches in the state, and over two million acres of land under cultivation systems began; so to-day there are more than nine thousand miles of main ditches in the state, and over two million acres of land under cultivation. This development of agriculture has been made possible by the great snowfall in the moun

Still another summer trip, but this time awheel and in our own country.

and in our own country.

"There are few more interesting short trips awheel than a spin from Kingston, Massachusetts, to Plymouth. Leaving Kingston you ascend a long hill. On either side of the ascent there are fine houses surrounded by well laid out grounds. On the right a number of noble elms line the roadway, while on the left is an evergreen hedge which curves gracefully inward toward the gateways which are placed back several feet. At the top of the hill Plymouth Bay lies before you. On the left, across the bay toward Duxbury, is the monument to Myles Standish, sharply outlined against the sky. Farther on is the double lighthouse called the Twin Lights, and near by is Clark's Island on which the Pilgrims spent their first Sabbath in this country. The long sand bars, one of them over nine miles in length, add much to the beauty of the scene, and keep out the big waves which would otherwise often interfere with sailboats in the bay. In the dim distance can be seen Cape Cod, reaching out into the ocean like a gigantic finger. Toward the right is a bold headland upon which forest trees grow in abundance almost down to the water's edge.
"Pedalling along you pass a very large ash tree.

ward the right is a bold headland upon which forest trees grow in abundance almost down to the water's edge.

"Pedalling along you pass a very large ash tree, whose low, wide-spreading branches reach out protectingly over the walk. This tree is known among the young people as the 'kissing tree.' The tall chimneys of the Plymouth Cordage Co., the tallest one of which measures two hundred and twenty feet, next claim attention. Near the railroad, just hefore and anters the village of Plymouth is one of the best springs of water in New England. The water flows with the same volume and at the same temperature the year round, being undisturbed by either the heats or rains of summer or the storms and severe cold of winter.

"A little further on, up the hill to the right, is the monument erected by the Government to the Pilgrim Fathers. It is the finest granite monument in the world. The next place of interest is Pilgrim Hall. Here are to be seen famous paintings of Pilgrim scenes and relies of Pilgrim days, many of which were brought over in the Mayflower. The old cemetery should next be visited, where are weather-beaten and moss-covered tombstones, with quaint epitaphs in old style spelling. Near the center of the town is the oldest street in New England. On one side is a row of linden trees which were planted by some of the early settlers. At the upper end of the street is a house which was built in 1730. Many were the war councils held within its walls during the Revolution. Near the foot of this street is that famous rock which has been poetically called 'the corner stone of a nation'. Over it has been erected a marble canopy at a cost of $30,000. Plymouth Rock is now visited by thousands of tourists every year.

"Continuing southward we come in sight of the oldest house in the state if not in New England.

and numerous churches. Many of the state buildings are located here—the hospital for the insane, the penitentiary, the reform school, the school for the blind and that for the deaf and dumb and the United States Indian training school. The state fair is also held here annually on the extensive fair grounds a short distance from the city.

"Salem is an educational center, pupils coming here from all parts of the northwest. The oldest institution of learning here is the Willamette university, founded by the Methodist missionaries in 1840. The city has fine water power, as is evidenced by its many woolen, flour, and saw mills, and various other industries, whose machinery is all moved by water power.

by its many woolen, flour, and saw mills, and various other industries, whose machinery is all moved by water power.

"Salem is surrounded by a fine farming country, the Willamette valley being adapted to the culture of fruit, flax and hops. The average hop crop requires from eighteen to twenty thousand pickers to harvest it; they commence about the first of September and continue picking for three weeks. It is an amusing sight to see the pickers start for the fields; the entire family, from the baby to the grandmother, are loaded upon hayracks together with their camping outfit, and the cow, if they are so fortunate as to own one, is tied behind.

"The climate of Salem, like that of the greater part of Oregon, is pleasing and diversified, being a pleasant mixture of sunshine and rain. She prides herself in her beautiful flowers and glories in her grand and lofty mountains, several of which are visible on a clear day in Salem. A favorite outing for Oregonians is a trip to one of these mountains and an attempt to scale its precipitous sides, and inscribe their names in a book kept at the summit for that purpose."

MABEL E. JAMES, Salem, Oregon.

I must also thank William O. Penney, of Jack-

I must also thank William O. Penney, of Jackson, Missouri, for his letter on "A Turkey Drive." I hope he will not be discouraged because I could not use it, but will try me again.

H. Jones will have to pardon me for not using his letter, which reached me too late to serve the purpose for which he intended it.

And now we must say goodby for a month.

AUNT M'NERVA.

IF YOU HAVE DYSPEPSIA Send no money, but write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., Box 36, for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Restorative, express paid. If cured, pay $6.50—if not, it is free.

Agents Big Profits Best Goods, all Prices. Flavors, Fertumes, Household, Toilet Goods.

CREDIT GIVEN We allow express. Agents' Terms Free. Herbene Laboratories, Box 54, Station L, New York.

PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z C. P. CORY & CO., 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

PLAYS Best List of New Plays. 325 Nos. Dialogs, Speakers, Hand Books. Catalog free. T.s. DENISON, Pub., Dept. 8, Chicago

Earn $8 BY DISTRIBUTING 100 SAMPLES OF

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio. YOU HAVE ANY DISEASE, write W. O. Broaddus School of Healing, Terre Haute, Indiana.

CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample copy free on application. FREE Handsome Catalogue. National Shoe & Garment Co., 136 Van Buren St., Chicago

Home Work 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp, Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind. $300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c R. MAXWELL, Box C. South Bend. Ind

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home. FREE M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., Chicago

WE are giving away Life Size Dolls for a little work Address National Medicine Co., New Haven, Conn

AGENTS MAKE $50 PER WEEK and expenses. $50 A Month distributing samples. Enclose stamp.
Inter'l Dis. Bureau, 8 Gold St., New York. $5 A DAY Selling Flavor Powders. Sample Free. C. S. HORNER CO., 1409 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every to cality. Act under orders. No experience needed. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work.
Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 610 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

PAY $18 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send tamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kansas.

FREE Sleeping Beauty DOLL, elegantly dressed, nearly two feet tall. Address, NOVELTY WORKS, Bridgewater, Conn. ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. "Physician" Box 36, Augusta, Maine.

Magic Goldometer. For hunting Gold and Silver, also rods and needles. Circular 2 cents. B. G. Stauffer, Dept. C, Harrisburg, Pa.

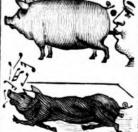

FREE WATCHES, Chains, Rings, Bracelets, Silverware, Cameras, Telescopes, Printing Presses. NO MONEY WANTED, STAYNER & CO., PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Family Record. A beautiful picture, rich gold. Tremendous seller. Agents delighted. Sample free for 12c. to pay postage and advig; 9 for $1.00 postpaid. J. LEE, Omaha Bidgi. Chicago, III.

PRINTS YOUR NAME. POCKET STAMP. 15¢ MARKS ANYTHING

STAMPS OF ALL KINDS, RUBBER TYPE ETC.
PERKINS RUBBER STAMP CO. F8, NEW HAVEN, CONN. THESE BEAUTIFUL TURQUOISE or LOVERS

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other pa or or magazine in America. Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and are always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered.

POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us. CHANGE OF ADDERS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on our books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subscriptions.

COMPORT was started and inscriptions.

COMFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages.

When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine. Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building

Guaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND: COPIES, Each and Every Issue, Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

June! Month of roses, weddings, commencements and vacations!

About this time even the pastors begin to think of the wisdom contained in the words "sermons in running brooks."

When the "poor ask for bread" nowadays the millionaires give them libraries and picture galleries. It's the soul that lives anyway, so

When Uncle Sam says his letter carriers may wear shirt waists Mrs. Grundy must succumb. The shirt waist has arrived in spite of the frowns of last summer.

Given an active fancy, a guide-book, a week of leisure to get the result-either of disillusion or entire happiness, all depending upon the who mives the ingradients of the vaca-

The shortest road to happiness is to skip all the articles of diet, food, and how to keep cool. Don't spend all your time in a mental struggle over the method of doing the stunts the papers propose. The way to accomplish something in these lines is to do nothing.

We count our progress by certain outward and visible signs. Time was when one elephant made a circus; now even the most unsophisticated town demands a herd of elephants. The city has no interest even in the herd of elephants unless they are able to do all sorts of stunts, from waltzing to playing dead. The national horizon has enlarged and the circus has been obliged to offer three rings, and every thing else in proportion. As the poor little Japanese remarked, "Everything beeg-in this your United State."

College statistics show a steady increase in the number of graduates. The ratio of college bred men and women to the entire population is steadily increasing. Thousands of earnest young men and women will count June 1901 as one of the milestones of life. All school life is in a large measure artificial. We are born, we die, we marry, but we do not all graduate from some one of the higher institutions of learning. The transition from school into the actual business and social life of the world is the greatest that can be made. The longer the period of study has extended the greater is the less corruptions of pure English. The persisseparation from practical affairs. The work of tent reader of dialect stories has his eye and ear the schools is a preparation for life, but it is a preparation that temporarily unfits the recipient. The speed with which he recovers himself after the plunge and adjusts himself to new conditions, is an unfailing index of the value of the preparation. College training is a means, not an end. Regarded by that standard the familiar word "commencement" takes on a new meaning.

zen has offered two prizes of $50 and $100 for the best kept school grounds. Walks, trees, flowers and shrubs are to be considered in awarding the prize. A photograph of the grounds is to be sent with some official data. The general observance of Arbor Day led to this idea, and it is one well worthy of adoption

The phenomenal increase of trolley lines has developed a new sort of personally conducted tour that promises to become popular. A great number of points of interest in our cities can be seen from a street car. Many people dislike to make themselves conspicuous as sight-seers by driving in open carriages while an ignorant Jehu flourishes his whip and imparts a mass of misinformation at the top of his lungs. Washington has originated a scheme of sight-seeing that is being copied in many other cities. At regular scheduled times a car especially built for observation leaves certain points. A nominal sum is charged for the round trip. Each car has a well-informed guide in attendance who gives a rapid, accurate and amusing account of all points of interest. History, gossip, statistics and narration add an interest to the trip. It enables one to get a good general idea of the points of interest. It saves time, money and trouble and this recommends it to the average American who is in as much of a hurry over his pleasure as he is over his business. Now that a railroad is to reach Jerusalem we may anticipate a personally conducted trolley trip through the Holy City as one of the possibilities of the century.

A new method of advertising books will have to be devised if Boston continues to exercise its literary censorship with such a Carrie-Na-tion-like lack of discrimination. It is not so tion-like lack of discrimination. It is not so long ago that the fact that a book or play had been condemned was enough to insure its financial success. Every one wished to judge for himself wherein the offences lay. The committee of the Boston Public Library will soon described the successful discrete that he was all the second that the second the second that the troy all the possible advertising that lay in a books being rejected by the censors. Out of thirty-two books that had been selected for reriew by one of the most conservative of papers. Boston rejected twelve as being unfit for a place in its public library. And the list of authors that this included! The best known authors that this included! The best known names in American contemporary fiction—authors whose reputation was so firmly established that they did not need the possible advertising that a less wholesale Index Expurgatorius might have furnished. Upon what have these critics fed that they have grown so dyspeptic? Even the Body of Laws of Massachusetts or the Blue Laws of Connecticut could hardly have set such a standard as these Boston critics. "I am nothing if not critical" says the old quotation, and by its standard the Boston committee must call itself "nothing". Criticism is not wholesale denunciation. Criticism is not wholesale denunciation.

1901 is the one thousandth anniversary of the death of Alfred the Great. In 1849 the thousandth anniversary of his birth was celebrated at Wantage, England. Among the best books of Alfred. His military fame is based upon his success with the Danes. He made a treaty with them and by giving them a definite portion of northern England put an end to the long wars. Alfred established a navy, brought scholars from Europe to England and made the earliest translations of Latin books into English. His embassies penetrated even to India. As a scholar, a warrior and a statesman he left a lasting result in England. As an example of versatility in the strenuous life, Alfred stands without a peer in the long line of England's monarchs. It is not what he did however but what he was that forces this busy modern world to step aside for a moment to remember a man who has been dead a thousand years. No trace of what he did remains but what he was in 901, he is in 1901—a character grand in its strength, simplicity and sincerity. "What is excellent as God lives is permanent" says our own Emerson and it is this fact that makes the anniversary exercises of 1901 interesting to all of the English speaking race. 1901 is the one thousandth anniversary of the Imitation may be the sincerest form of flattery but there is more than this behind the fact that a successful book is followed by twenty others along the same line. It is the business instinct of writers and publishers that seizes the evidence of the public's interest and proceeds to work the vein until the discriminating reader is surfeited and nauseated. The historical novel has almost exhausted the field of early American history. It is doubtful if any of the popular books in this field of fiction will be read fifty years from now. Sir Walter Scott first developed the historical novel and today Ivanhoe cannot be equalled as a historical novel but it is not widely read now. The dialect stories have made the localisms of town and county and state familiar to all readers. Imitation may be the sincerest form of flattent reader of dialect stories has his eye and ear so perverted that he ceases to speak good English. "Love letters" both real and imaginary seemed to please the public and forthwith more love letters were printed than all the real lovers of the world ever penned. Kipling's Jungle Book, "Brer Rabbit" and Thompson's "Wild Animals I Have Known", opened the way for more "animals" than ever went into Noah's Ark. Modern literature illustrates the old theory of the flock of sheep that follow one another over the fence. Art is not imitative but business is. but business is.

The little old red schoolhouse of early days is fast becoming a mere memory. If land was good for nothing else it was good enough for a school site. Our ancestors were earnest enough in the desire to furnish educational opportunities and noble men and women were the products of the little one-story log or frame buildings. The three "R's" were thoroughly taught and along with them a development of character along the same lines of rugged strength and simplicity. Mere beauty was little regarded in the homes and far less in the schools. What a different picture the rural school of today presents. Every effort is made to beautify the surroundings, for the modern educator realizes that all this makes for culture. New York state pays particular attention to the grounds of its country schools. A public spirited cition best authors range in chronological order from the state of the schools of the school of the schoo best authors range in chronological order from Homer to Tennyson. Poetry, philosophy, essays and fiction are included in the list. To the summer reader who would prefer to read the novels of power rather than mere time-killers, the list furnishes some suggestions. Arabian Nights may be read. Among the authors of fiction are Bunyan, Cervantes, Dickens, Dumas, George Elfot, Goldsmith, Hawthorne, Hugo, Scott, and Thackeray. Their works are included either in whole or part. The list suggests the well-known books or the best-known books of each author, Pilgrim's Progress, Don Quixote, Tale of Two Cities, Three Musketeers, Adam Bede, Vicar of Wakefield, Scarlet Letter, Les Miserables, Ivanhoe and Vanity Fair. The list of novels is long enough so that at least one might be included in the mass of reading that the summer reader does. does.

Rescued From Drink

MARENTS M $200 TO $500 a month handling the COMING LIGHT.
Brighter than electricity, cheaper than kerosene. Thousands of testimonials from people using them over a year. Latest inprovements. Endorsed by Ins. Co's. Largest factory in U. S. 41 styles. Lowest price.
Retail $4 up. Sample lamp half price. We want one agent, merchant or individual in every town. Illustrated catalogue free.

STANDARD GAS LAMP C 118-120 Michigan St., Chie

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

* FULL SIZE *

※無法案業

* GOOD PAPER *

	E have made arrangements with one of the	e lar	* UNABRIDGED *
The	readers with ten pieces, full size, complete e quality of this sheet music is the very best. r the continent. None but high-priced copyr	The	composers' names are household words a prin	nted on regular sheet-music paper, from new	plate	s made from large, clear type - including rthy of your home. 3.000.000 copies sold
lo.	nted on regular sheet-music paper, from new bred titles—and is in every way first-class, at LIST OF THE PIECES O PIANO OR ORGAN. American Liberty March	FFE No.	RED AT THIS TIME.
65	American Liberty March	236 260 27	At Noontide Le Bru Av e Maria, From Cavalleria Rusticana Masca
81 87	Ancients Abroad. March—1wo Step Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss Auld Lang Syne. Variations . Durkee Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1	140	Beacon Light of Home Estabroo
15 79	Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive . Anderson Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands Streabbog Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes . Strauss	238 162	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet Bells of Seville
27 13 57	Black Hawk Waltzes	226 246	Blue Eyes Boyhood Days, Chorus Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow Car Bridge Bells
99 09	Boston Commandery March	200 268 276	Bridge, The. Words by Longieriow Car Bride Bells Brown Eyed Bessie Lee. Chorus Arbico Can You, Sweetheart, Keepa Secret? Estabroo
29 55	Beautiful Blue Danube Waitzes Black Hawk Waltzes Blue Beits of Scotland. Trans. Biuebird Echo Polka. Boston Commandery March. Boston Commandery March. Bryan and Sewall March. Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands. Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni Cavaleria Rusticana.	192	Can You, Sweetheart, Keepa Secret? Estabroo Childhood's Happy Hours Dinsmo Christmas Carol Turs
33 1	Cadences and Scales in all Keys . Czerny Catherine Waltzes Stroh	190	Come Back to Our Cottage Estabroo Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk Bla
97 37	Catherine Waltzes Strok Chatelaine, La Menuet Lange Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands	92	Crown of Glory
17	Coming from the Races Galon Wheeler	286 250	Darling I Shall Miss You Coh
69	Corn Flower Waltzes Coote, Jr	176 244 70	Darling Nellie Gray
35 63	Crystal Dew Waltz Day Dawn Polka Dewey's Grand Triumphal March Diamond Valley Waltz Eastlake Waltz Echoling Trumpets March Edelweiss Dayett Antes Hennes	302 304	Darling Nellie Gray De Banjo am de Instrument. Rutled Dear Heart, We're Growing Old . Estabros Dear Little Heart 'Neath the Daisies Rutled Did You Ever Call Me Darling? Va Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp. Hor
87 99 17	Eastlake Waltz	256	Dwelling with the Angels, Chorus, Turn
2!	Fatalla Air de Ballet Very fire. Robinson	220	Ever Sweet is Thy Memory Hosfe
55	Evergreen Waitz	180	Father is Drinking Again Temperance
4 I 9 I 3 I	Fatinitza Galop . Ludwig Faust. Selections	156 144	Flag of Our Country. Patriotic Mather Flag, The. Quartetic Firting in the Starlight Dela Flossic Waltz Song Colo
77 33	Fantastic Schottische Gabriel Fatinitza Galop Ludwig Faust Selections Durkee Fifth Nocturne Filtring in the Starlight. Waltz Lasaide Flower Song. Op. 39. Lange Forestville Waltz Zonge Forestville Waltz Zonge Froile of the Frogs Durkee Froile of the Frogs Watson Full of Ginger. March Galop. Nutting Golden Rain. Nocturne Grand Commandery March—Two Step Missud Faust Faust Faust	138	Flossie. Waltz Song For a Dream's Sake For You We are Praying at Home Estabroo
93 77	Forestville Waltz Freischutz. Selections Durkee	288	Gathered Roses Pinsu
49 83	Full of Ginger. March Galop. Nutting Golden Rain. Nocturne		God Bless My Kind Old Mother Jew
47 81	Grand Commandery March—Two Step Missud Heel and Toe Polka Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still . Richards	262 150	Greeting Duet
73 39	Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes Jewell Home, Sweet Home. Transcription . Stack	104	1 Can't Forget the Hanny Past . Skel
53 57	Jenny Lind polka Four hands	74 248 266	In Sweet September Temp In Shadowland Pina In Summer Time Marrie It Is a Legend Old Offenba In the Starlight. Duet Glov Juanita. Ballad Mark
95 53	Leap Year Schottische	296 188	It Is a Legend Old Offenbar In the Starlight, Duet Glov
49	Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still Richards Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes Jewell Home, Sweet Home. Transcription Slack Impassioned Dream Waltzes Rosas Jenny Lind polka Four hands Muller Last Hope. Meditation Gottschalk Leap Year Schottische Kahn Lee's (Gen'i) "On to Cuba "galop Lohengrin. Selections Durkee London March—Two Step Love's Dreamland Waltzes Roeder	242 196	Kathleen Mavourneen
00	Maidan 's Prover The Radarrenske	130 164	Kathleen Mayourneen
		146	Listen to the Mocking Bird Hawthers Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet . Estabroo Little Voices at the Door Dan
55 31	Memorial Day March Hewitt Monastery Bells, Nocturne Welv	234	Margaretta
8:	Music Box, The. Caprice Liebich	230 172	Memories of my Mother. Chorus . Alle Mother's Welcome at the Door Estabrook
87 87	National Anthems of Eight Great Nations	222 232	Musical Dialogue. Duet
75 35 71	Nightingale's Trill, op. 81 Kullak Ocean Waves Waltz Keefer	118	My Little Lost Irene Dan My Old Kentucky Home Fost
71	Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations Durkee	216 228 102	Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) Fost
97	On the Wave Waltz Dinsmore Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson Orvetta Waltz Spencer	104	Old Village Church
91	Over the Waves Waltz Rosas	160	Out on the Deep
79	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Brunner	174 254 148	Parted from our Dear Ones
43	Red, White and Blue Forever. March Blake Richmond March—two-step	274 136	Private Tommy Atkins Total
27 49	Rustling Leaves. Idylle Lange Salem Witches March—Two-Step Missud	142 80	Rosemonde
69	Suith's (General) March Martin	194 194 124	Shall I EverSeeMother's FaceAgain? Adrian She Sleeps among the Daisies Softly shine the Stars of Evening Son's Return, The Frill Hulla
95 95	Souvenir of the Ball Waltz	120	Storm at Sea. Descriptive
70	Stephanie Polka Storm, The. Imitation of Nature Weber	32	Sweetest Song, The Sweet Long Ago, The Estabrook
09	Sweet Long Ago. Transcription Blake	118 206	There's a Rainbow in the Clouds . Dank
03	Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 Wede	158 292	There's Sure to be a Way Thinking of Home and Mother Titania's Cradle Lehman
13 29	Under the Double Eagle March . Wagner	108	Tis True Dear Heart, We're Fading Estabrook Tread softly the Angels are calling True to the Last Kom
05	Village Parade Quickstep Allen Visions of Light. Waltz Cook	252	Warrior Bold
:6 I	Waves of the Ocean March Blake Wedding March . Mendelssohn	58 86	When Winter Days Have Gone . Train
51	Winsome Grace. A perfect gem ilowe Woodland Whispers Waltzes Stanley	186	Whistling Wife, The. Comic Why am I ever Watching de Land

JUN 1 FURGET that the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only twenty-fire address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer.

PRICE Control of the that the instrumental pieces give the bass as your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES. Any 10 for 25 cents.

Any 21 for 50 cents. Any 43 for $1.00. Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER. To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, it you will send 15c. for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any ten pieces or to any subscribe who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and send us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delivered aboutety free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delan, but order tolan. ly free. You can readily sett ten pieces of the music for today.

Address "CONFORT Music Room," Augusta, Maine.

Address "CONFORT Music Room,"

HOKEY SPOKES.

A CHARACTERISTIC TWO-STEP MARCH.

Rag Time Music.

A great many writers in referring to the present liking for "rag time" music, express much surprise that it has lasted over a couple of years, and speak of it as being something new. As a matter of fact "rag time" is one of the oldest forms of dance music and is seen at its very best in Scotch music. Take any of their strathspeys, reels, flings, or sword dances, and you will have as pure "rag time" as you find in any of the "coon" songs and dances which have been so very popular. It was a noticeable fact that when Sousa's band was on its European tour last summer, no music proved more gen-erally popular there than the two-steps and

It is always well to remember Poor Richard's maxim, "A penny saved is a penny earned." No better way of saving money can be found than to take advantage of COMFORT'S music offer on another page. In this way you obtain fer on another page. In this way you obtain the best sheet music, just such as costs 40 cents and more at stores, for a trifling cost over post-age for mailing. Be sure to have your musical age for mailing. Be s friends read the offer.

Lightning presses and new methods have revolutionized the production of music in sheets. The effect is to make low prices. Read the music offer on another page.

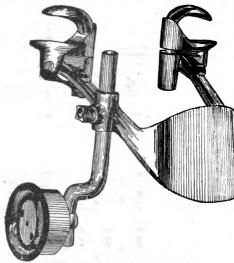

One of the bottest regions of the earth is along the Persian Gulf, where little or no rain falls. At Bahrin the arid shore has no fresh water, yet a comparatively numerous population contrives to live there, thanks to copious springs which burst forth from the bottom of the sea. The fresh water is procured by diving.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

HATEVER people may say, interest in the bicycle is as great as ever this summer and more people are riding wheels than in any previous season. Improvements, however, are not as radical as they were a few years ago. The changes were generally in the use of either larger or smaller gauge tubing, lower drop, or change in position or rake of fork. In several instances the motor cycle and motor carriage are in close following to the bicycle—an indication, perhaps, of what one may expect in the near future, when these machines will very likely be found wherever the bicycle is for sale. It seems that the 'bike' has gone to the far east. The first consignment of safety bicycles was brought to Bangkok by Dr. P. T. Carrington, an American dentist, in 1896, writes United States. Previous to that time, one or two of these wheels had been imported for private use. There are now in this city between twenty-five hundred and three thousand bicycles. They are to be seen in all parts of the city and are used by all classes. The King of Siam rides an American bicycle of the latest and most improved model, and it is by no means an uncommon thing to see the ministers of the government coming and going to their duties, and even to public functions, on their wheels.

The minister of the interior has systematically encouraged the use of the wheel, believing that its employment will lead to better roads in the city and in the country towns. He is at the head of a large bicycle club that numbers upwards of four hundred members. Among the members are many of the princes and government officials, and in the favorable seasons of the year this club indulges in long runs to the remote parts of the city. These runs are generally held during the cooler portion of the night and wind up in a banquet well towards morning. The crowning endeavor of this club was a grand bicycle pageant, given some months ago in the presence of the king and queen of Siam, and participated in by nearly every prince of the country. The entire affair was a great succes

THE BEST AUTOMATIC BRAKE.

China the "foreign devil" who goes out on a machine is no longer liable to be stoned to death by an infuriated mob or hauled before the local Taotia on a charge of offending the gods with his blasphemous inventions. At least one Englishman has ridden right across the Celestial Kingdom without coming to any harm, and Chinese gentlemen have been known to convert their voluminous skirts into "rationals" and themselves bestride the steed of steel. A demand, it appears from a consular report, is springing up for French bicycles among the Hovas of Madagascar, and in many parts of the Dark Continent, from Tangier to the Cape, the untutored African is a keen and diligent cyclist. Even in the Ottoman Empire the vehicle has made some headway. The advanced young Turk, who reads French novels, drinks absinthe and plays billiards, bicycles as becomes a lover of progress, and skims along, not unimpressive, in tweed knickerbockers, black frock coat and red fez.

Stamboul poured out its motly multitude to see the show. Mussulman and Christian, Greek Jew and Armenian paid their entrance fee and forgot for a space their secular differences as they beheld the competitors fly past. Three times was Pera's Sabbath illumined by this entertainment. The cyclists scorched; the multitude said "bravo!" or "Bismillah!" according to its nationality; and the proprietor of the Palace Hotel secured legitimate gate money. But he had reckoned without the vigilance of the Porte and the fears of the Sultan.

money. But he had reckoned without the vigilance of the Porte and the fears of the Sultan.

Crowds are not welcome in the neighborhood of the padishah's sacred person. When a number of people are gathered together it becomes a riot, and they make it easier for the caliph's loyal subjects to conspire together, and perhaps to arrange attempts against their sovereign's life. This feeling on the part of the Turkish authorities has acquired fresh energy since the murder of King Humbert, so that they are now living in a fever of suspicion lest some Anarchist or Armenian plot should be attempted against the life of Abdul Hamid. So even the bicycle races were vetoed, and when the fourth Sunday came round there was no "fixture," the meeting having been forbidden by the police.

An automobile on runners would seem to be a queer thing, but one was tried successfully in Massachusetts last winter. The tires of the front wheels of the locomobile were removed, and runners about five feet long were fitted to the rims of the wheels. The rar wheels, givfront wheels of the locomobile were removed, and runners about five feet long were fitted to the rims of the wheels. The rear wheels, giving the motive power, were without runners and revolved as on bare ground, but in the track made by the runners in the snow. It was found that the rig was as easy to steer as when four wheels were used, and it is thought that better speed can be made over a snow surface than with wheels. So that next winter we may see them in common use.

than with wheels. So that next winter we may see them in common use.

An automobile expert, who has recently returned from a tour through Europe, made with the idea of determining the situation in foreign countries, states that the Americanbuilt machines are taking the first rank in England, just as ten or fifteen years ago all American buggies compelled German coach builders to import from the United States until they had time to manufacture carriages after our models. In England most of the machines are gasoline motors imported from France, and are said to be noisy and evil smelling, with more mechanism than a Swiss watch, while electric vehicles are unknown, excepting only those of American make.

NT FREE

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

W. S. Harter, an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an overgenerous offer that comes in the shape of a proclamation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality the local Taotia on a charge of offending the gods with his blasphemous inventions. At least one Englishman has ridden right across the Celestial Kingdom without coming to any harm, and Chinese gentlemen have been known to convert their voluminous skirts into "rationals" and themselves bestride the steed of steel.

A demand, it appears from a consular report, is springing up for French bicycles among the Hovas of Madagascar, and in many parts of the United Strick of Continent, from Tangier to the Cape, the untutored African is a keen and diligent cycleis. Even in the Ottoman Empire the vehicle has made some headway. The advanced young Turk, who reads French novels, drinks absinthe and plays billiards, bicycles as becomes a lover of progress, and skims along, not unimpressive, in tweed knickerbockers, black frock coat and red fez.

The ladies have taken to it also. It has been introduced into the best harems, and no really indulgent pacha, who has a sufficiently secluded garden, would deny his wives and daughters the amusement. Such being the case, the proprietor of the Pera Palace Hotel, having taken a lease of the Municipal Gardens, was justified in concluding that a series of Sunday bicycle races would attract the public. The contests were held, three of them, and hanger, steel tempered cranks, r, large heavily nickeled spi some designs, genuine Faultless with fine the ball-bearing pedals, fine padded top full stock saddle and gennine Faulitie and tools, toolbag and quick repair outfit, choice of men's 22 or 24-inch and Guaranteed for one year. SEND NO HONEY but send this Adv., state size of frame and color desired, and we will send this send that send the send that send that send that send the send that se $40.00 Faultiess Bleycle by express C. O. D., subject to examination. Examine it at the express office, and pay the express agent our special price $11.75 and express chargescribed, the equal of bleycles sold regularly at $40 and even $50, and such side. Otherwise tell the agent to return it at our expense. JOHN M. SMYTH CO. WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO WRITE FOR FREE BIOYOLE CATALOGUE.

$11.75 BUYS A $40.00 FAULTLESS BICYCLE

98

net drop head CENUINE DELMAR SEWING MACHINE, mot send one cent, but cut this ad, out and send to us, and we machine to you by freight C.O.D., subject to examination, you can examine to you relight to and if found perfectly satisfactory, strictly had an equal to sewing machines that retail at $30.00 to $40.00. $9.98 methen pay the railroad agent of UR SPECIAL PRICE. $9.98 money to us, (nearly every-one sends cash in full) money any time within three months if you become dissatisfied for any reason. Every machine guaranteed 20 years. Only 1,200 machines to be sold below cost to build. Our ABOUR NEW FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOGUE WILL ASTONISH YOU. WRITE Address, Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO

In Paris there are a great number of gasoline cabs and hotel omnibuses, which make a noise like a cotton mill and leave a trail like a polecat, but they are not of the sort that would meet with any degree of public favor here. Some of them are built to look more like carriages and less like a Chinese puzzle turned wrong side out, but the internal mechanism is so complex that when they are turned loose on a rough road something drops every time. The American machines, both electric, steam and gasoline, are so constructed that they will stand almost anything, and it was easy to pick one out almost every time along Piccadilly or in the Bois on account of its handsomer lines and more nearly noiseless running. and more nearly noiseless running.

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

REVEAL YOUR! LIFE COMPLETE ept of 10e with your age and sex send to you sealed a complete. PROF. RENFREW, MEDFORD, MASS.

ATTRACTIVE YOUNG LADY, Handsome scalp humors, from whatever with testimonials and full particulars however all hair and scalp troubles and restoregain to its natural color without dyelns receipt of a two-cent star.

with addresses and full description. Satisfaction guaranteed. Union Corresponding Club, Box 608, Austin, II

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUERED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY

Oxien was last year put to the test as a re-

200,000 BOXES OF RHEUMATISM CURE. FREE.

heumatism, or are arrand or it through instantant abox free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed rant a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.

THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine

Sent Free to Everybody!

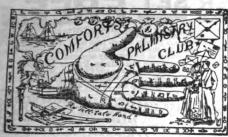

The fashion in Hammocks is ever changing. This year we offer you something entirely different than the usual premium hammock, a fine quality, fancy pattern, fish-net cotton, same as is used by fishermen; something substantial and is tested to hold 300 pounds, dead weight, is 10 feet long, over 32 inches wide. Highly colored in red, black yellow and white. Each Hammock has a pocket in the end of the net for a concealed stretcher, any narrow piece of strong wood can be inserted and will serve the purpose, giving the Hammock a fine finished and inviting spearance.

of strong wood can be inserted and will serve the purpose, giving the Hammock a fine finished and invines pearance.

For hot summer days you can have nothing that will afford more pleasure than a quiet hour in a hammock in some shady nook. Now to every one who will get up a club of 3 subscribers for this paper at the special trial price, some shady nook. Now to every one who will send one of these Hammocks FREE, we paying all express and malling charges. By showing a copy of this great paper to your neighbors, friends and acquaintances, you can easily getty a club in one evening; for with its many improvements and new original copyrighted departments, now necessity to be seen to be appreciated. To those who do not care to go to the trouble of getting a club we will send our paper for one year, together with one of these Hammocks (all express and mailing charges paid by us), upon receipt of cts.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comfort Palmistry Club, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

tor readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, paims downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixalif, which can be bought at a drug slore or an art store or made with gum arabic and water in an adomiser. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if its desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is constitutes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixalif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

NCHOR E" whose hands were read here several years ago asks the following ques-tions which will interest you all. "I find in Cheiro's 'Language of the "I find in Cheiro's 'Language of the Hand,' a mark, which he calls the Tripod, but which should, from Webster's definition, be called the Trident, and which is the sign of Neptune. Now can you tell me what this sign indicates? I find it in my own right hand, as a termination of the Fate line on Mt. Saturn. In a friend's left hand, I see it terminating the Fate line where it intersects the Heart line. Can you tell me what these positions of this sign would indicate?" The mark spoken of is called a tripod by all palmists. Prof. Hagert says it has no meaning at all, and Heron-Allen does not even refer to it anywhere in his book. The ancients did not recognize it and I have yet to discover that it is of any importance.

100

- Kr

refer to it anywhere in his book. The ancients did not recognize it and I have yet to discover that it is of any importance.

"I've found two new signs in my right hand—by new, I mean that I never until lately saw them, perhaps I ought to say three instead of two. I've always had a distinct triangle on Jupiter in both hands.

"Lately the one in the right hand has changed, so that two corners of the triangle are stars, and in the left, the triangle is double, like this and then a deep line from Venus runs up to the base of finger of Jupiter and cuts through both. Also in the right, a perfect star, distinct and separate from lines, has recently appeared on the outer edge of Mt. Jupiter, just below base of finger and almost touching the star at upper corner of triangle, but a fine horizontal line is between. Besides, on the percussion of the right about one third the way below heart, I find a new mark like a square. It is very faint yet, of very fine lines. I am more than ever interested in this delightfully fascinating and wonderful science." The star on the Mount of Jupiter is a very lucky sign. A woman who has this sign is pretty sure to make a distinguished and fortunate marriage. The recent appearance of these lines would indicate that such a marriage is in the near future; or if the subject is already married, then some great honor or gratified ambition is soon to reach subject is already married, then some great honor or gratified ambition is soon to reach her. I should not attach much meaning to the year on the subyear on the subject entitled 'Your Fortune is in Your Hands,' under nom de plume honor or gratified ambition is soon to reach her. I should not attach much meaning to the new square as yet.

"One other question—is it usual for men to have fewer lines than women? I have found it so. The hands of men, so far as I have observed, are usually much less wrinkled than are those of women."

This is true. Many fine lines are the outcome of a nervous temperament and this, I think, accounts for the fact that women's hands are much more interlined than men's.

She also asks: "Is there some fellow member of the club who would like to correspond with me regarding this study? I have just sent for the course published by "T he Alumbia Scientific Acade my," New York City, and intend to continue this work. I published a little book last year on the subject en titled nom de plume of Anchor English, published by Fred Schwartz, Pub. Co., Phil., Pa." Letters sent to her, care of these publishers would reach this palmistry club-member.

"Ozella L." sends me some good impressions on smoked paper for this month. She has the hand of a nervous, affectionate and artistic type. It is somewhat hollow, which of course, always means trouble. Her life line is well separated from the head line at the start, showing that she is a person of good courage and good ideas with energy and perseverance enough to carry them out. She is a person of great ambition and will succeed to a degree, although all of her ambitions will not be satisfied. She had an early love affair, which caused her a great deal of worry, but which I think did not amount to a marriage. She will marry at about the age of thirty and a new love will come into her life at forty-five. She is very attractive to men and will receive a great deal of attention throughout her life, but will not marry the man she loves best until she is forty-five or perhaps a little more. A superficial reader would say that her life line is very short, but it looks to me as if her life from the time of this latest and real love would take a new turn from that time henceforth, and that new turn from that time henceforth, and that she will travel a great deal from that time on and even in foreign countries, living to be quite an old woman. I think she will see a great deal of life at cross-purposes between the ages of twenty and forty-five, after which she will see a great deal of the world in an entirely new sphere and enjoy herself very much. She may expect to travel a great deal all her life, as both expect to travel a great deal all her life, as both her natural disposition and her outward circumstances will lead her that way. She is of a nervous type, as I said before, and does not take things so philosophically as she ought. This will lead her, if she is not careful, into a habit of worrying over matters which she cannot control and give her many bad headaches. It is necessary for her to cultivate calmness and patience and get good control over herself. She is easily influenced by others, and has a pliant yielding nature. Much the better part of her life will come after the age of forty and she should be very patient and hopeful until then. The early love affair of which I speak, will cause her a great deal of trouble and some sorcause her a great deal of trouble and some sorrow, but she needs to obtain full control over herself so that she need not worry over what she cannot help but look forward to a better time coming by-and-by.

There is a new book out on palmistry which covers ground not hitherto much worked up.

covers ground not hitherto much worked up.

covers ground not hitherto much worked up. Our readers who are interested in marriage as seen on the hand, should send for Hargett's New Discoveries in Palmistry which is issued by the Occidental Publishing Co.

Nearly half its contents are new discoveries; it has two new types of hands; it is the most fully illustrated publication on the subject of palmistry; it excels anything else in its line by orderly and tasteful construction; it explains positive and negative causes and effects, passive and active causes and effects, passive and active causes and effects, passive and active prospective effects; and last and most astoundprospective effects; and last and most astound-ing claim of all, is that it shows how one may read in the palm of the hand the record and read in the palm of the hand the record and date of marriage, broken marriages, broken loves and engagements, whether the love or engagement holds good—all relations in love or prospective love. What palmist could go farther than that? According to the professor, it is really only a matter of lines, and he wisely prepares the mind for this great discovery by informing the reader that "The record and date is there whether you get the time right or not." Then he goes on to say: "This record and date is on the life line, and it is always on the life line or on the fate line. In some hands it is on the fate line. On the hands of some subjects it is found in the left, others in the right, then again in both. Sometimes a person has been active in his affections, aggressive in pushing his interests, then it is in the right hand. If it is on the left hand then he has been passive, and some other party has the aghand. If it is on the left hand then he has been passive, and some other party has the aggressive spirit. Or if one is active in his purposes, it may be in both hands, especially if he is ardent and the suit is very agreeable. It gives the age at which this strong interest occurred and, if vigorous, whether it is active now, or relaxed, or dead; whether the party is exceedingly anxious about the matter or whether the interest is slack or medium.

"The hand tells the number of these interests.

"The hand tells the number of these interests, and which party broke the tie or spiritual union, if broken; and often the nature of the relationship, whether sincere, pleasant or welcome to the party in whose hand you find the record; whether it was a morous or discordant; whether it was a holy or noble purpose." Then he shows by engraved plates the marriage lines as they should appear under the different circumstances enumerated; whether they do so appear is a matter for each one to decide for himself after a study of his own hands and the palms of those friends and relations whose "The hand tells the number of these interests palms of those friends and relations whose matrimonial history he already knows something about.

The Blue Grotto.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

PPOSITE Naples, on the other side of the bay, is one of the most attractive little islands called Capri. Tourists are con-stantly visiting this little island in boats from Naples and Sorfrom Naples and Sorrento, and the chief attraction is the Blue Grotto. This wo nis entered at a small opening by means of a very small row boat. The aperture is in-deed so low that only two in one boat can enter at the same time and then only by lying at full length on the bottom of the boat.

After getting within the grotto the sea may become rough and tourists have been imprisoned here for twenty-four hours, while the waves dashed over and completely hid the en-

The walls, roof and water within this fairy-like place all shimmer like blue satin, and alto-gether it is the most awe-inspiring place of its size in all the world. It was on this island the villa of Tiberius stood and from the summit

$600.00 § 6 PIANOS FREE

YEARBRUF HARMC

Can you arrange these six different groups of letters into the names of six (6) of the months of the year? If so you can share in the distribution of the above. We shall give away 6 Fine Upright Fianos and cash amounting to $600 in Gold among those who enter this contest, and will work for our interest. READ CAREFULLY. BEM EM BEE we do not want one cent of your money when you answer this contest. In making thesix names the letters can only be used in their own groups and as many times as they appear in each individual group and no letter can be used which does not appear in its owngroup. After you have arranged the six groups and formed the six correct names, write them out plainly and send to us and you will receive our reply by return mail. TRY AND WIN. If you make the six correct names and send them to us at once who knows but you will get a big cash prize and possibly a Plano. We hope you will and anyhow it costs you nothing to try. Do not delay. Write at once.

READ WHAT THESE WINNERS SAY:

MISS HATTIE SIMS,

MRS. JOHN JUST, Enfield, N.H.,

WINNER OF Grand Up. Piano $300.00
Grand Up. Piano $300.00
Cash Prize, 50.00
Cash Prize, 50.00
Cash Prize, 50.00
Cash Prize, 2.00

Cash Prize, 50.00
On receipt of her piano Miss Sims wrote us: "Dear Sirs,Received my Piano today in good condition: am delighted and more than pleased with it as first prize. Many thanks. It is a much nicer piano than I expected. I am very glad I won the first prize."
We have other letters from Miss Sims acknowledging receipt of her cash prizes. Also from her cousin, Miss Eva Wonder, of Peoria, Ill., only 15 years old and a student in the Peoria High School, who also won a Grand Upright Piano. She writes: "I write to inform you of the arrival of the Piano. I was highly delighted with it."

MRS. JOHN LABENZ, 5113 Duncan St., Pittsburg, Pa.,

WINNER OF Grand Up. Piano, $300.00 Cash Prize, Cash Prize, 25.00

Mrs. Labenz writes: "I received the Piano this A.M. in a good, sound condition. I am very much pleased with it and think it is one of the finest ever made and thank you very much. I wish you would put my name among the list of satisfied prize winners so if any one wants any recommendation I can give it to them as I know your people have treated me fairly and squarely. Again thanking you for the beautiful Piano as first Prize. I remain, etc." Dec. 10 she wrote treated in thank you for check and past favors, I remain, etc."

We will forfeit $500.00 Cash to any one who can prove that we have not paid all prizes as promised, or that the above testimonials or any of the hundreds in our possession are of genuine. Woon Pra Ca

WHY DON'T YOU TRY?

We will forfeit $500.00 Cash to any one who can prove that we have not paid all prizes as promised, or that the above testimonials or any of the hundreds in our possession are not genuine. Wood Pus. Co. where the control of the third of the control of the contr WOOD PUBLISHING CO. Dept. 134, 256 Franklin St. Box 3124, Boston, Mass coal and gold at Samar; coal, oil, gas, gold, copper, iron and mercury at Pannay; the same at Cebu. Pearls are found in the Sulu Archi-

PUT ME OFF AT BUFFALO!

If you are not going to the Pan American Exposi-tion this summer we will set you at work in a pay-ing cash business, only 30c. required for a start. If you are interested address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

TELLS HOW AND
If sick or ailing
Give n am e, age,
tom of the disease
most, enclose four
I will send you a nosis of your disoutline a course of cure your ailments.
perience, 10,000
Dr. J. C. Batdorf, Dept. 15, Grand Rapids, Mich.

10,000 ARE YERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E. Chicago.

Ripans Tabules, friends of all, Rich and poor, great and small; Largest boon for smallest price, Swift and certain, neat and nice.

WANTED.—A case of bad health that R.I.P.A.N.S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. 10 for 5 cents at drug stores. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

FREE! ADJUSTABLE RECLINING CHAIR.

This Easy Chair is Full of Durability and Utility.

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing.

A NINE YEARS' TEST.

GALENA, ILLINOIS, Oct. 15th, 1840.

TO THE GIANT CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.

GENTLEMEN: Do you realize I have been selling your remedies for the past nine years? After acting thus as your agent for this long period it is not flattery when I say to you that no business house exists that can surpass your own in honesty and fair dealings—even more, generosity to its patrons. Not one jar or the slightest cause for complaint is surely evidence beyond question in my nine years' dealings with you. May you live long to enjoy the good you are doing is the wish of Yours truly,

FANNIE AUBUCHON.

A TEN YEARS' TEST.

THE GIANT CO. MUNCIE, INDIANA, Oct. 10th, 1900.
GENTLEMEN: After ten years of successful work for you a can truthfully say that you have more than done as you agreed during my long period of selling your famous Oxien Remedies. There has nothing taken away the joy that came to me from getting my first box of Oxien. As for Premiums have received so many and such nice ones, too, that is cannot possibly enumerate them. They were all fine and perfectly satisfactory. I consider your firm one of the best in existence and although I have had many flattering offers to work for other concerns, I have always been true to The Giant Ozi, for they have been honest and faithful in carrying out their promises to me. Wishing you continued prosperity, remain, Yours truly, EMMA E. BRANSON.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE newest idea for HE newest idea for engaged girls is the wedding chest, and even girls who are not engaged are the secret possessors of this sentimental, and this sentimental, and at the same time sensible, article. The wedding chest may be a trunk, a fine new trunk of the latest style, or it may be a fine cedar chest, or of carved wood, all beautifully ornamented, or it may be a plain wooden affair prettily covered and lined with flowered chintz. Some of the handsome chests are lined with quilted and scented sat-the handsome chests are lined with quilted and scented satin, but sachet bags can be put in any of them for that matter.

The idea is to fill the chest with pretty things to wear or for the furnishing and decoration of a home. One girl is filling hers with dainty lingerie, which she is making herself; another is buying things from time to time, and filling her chest with them. Not alone things to wear, such as gloves, lingerie and dainty hosiery, but pieces of lace, tapestry squares for covering sofa pillows, and handsome table covers.

things to wear, such as gloves, lingerie and dainty hosiery, but pieces of lace, tapestry squares for covering sofa pillows, and handsome table covers.

Another girl is making a fine collection of table linen—napkins, doilies, centerpieces and so on. She already has a number of beautiful pieces of linen and lace, some hemstitched, some embroidered and some with elaborate drawnwork. Pretty lists of china and bric-a-brae go into the chest of another girl, while still another is making a collection of after dinner coffee cups and tiny spoons.

Thus the girls are slowly collecting pretty things and saving them for use in their new homes. As a rule their friends know of the chests and take pleasure in helping fill them, although some of the girls like to feel that everything was bought with their own money, and selected by their own taste. Viewed in any light the idea is a pretty one and full of charming and sensible sentiment.

There is a little light cape for the baby that can be bought in the shops or made at home with the least possible amount of trouble. It is made of a single square of cashmere or fine flannel, which is made into the little cape, shawl-shaped. One point is in the back, the other two coming around in front, while the fourth is gathered up on the top of the baby's head, the point trimmed round and finished with a rosette of baby ribbon. Gather it in at the neck, and there is a little cape and hood, and a pretty one. The little garment is finished inside with a square of silk fitted to the cashmere, and the cape may be finished on the edge with a tiny scallop of embroidery or the lining simply blind-stitched to the edge of the cashmere, which is turned in.

American housewives are now adopting an old English idea that Parisiennes adopted a few seasons ago. It is the ruffled pillow case, with the initial hand embroidered in one corner. Our women have never used these cases before this season, but they seem to have crossed the Atlantic to stay, and who knows but what the "sweet scented lavender" th follow.

An enthusiastic gardener has discovered a new way to start her flower seeds. The idea comes originally from a farmer's wife and has had plenty of practical demonstration.

THE GIBSON GIRL.

"The very best way to start annuals early," she says, "is to take a dozen large potatoes, cut them in two lengthwise, and with a spoon scoop out the inside, leaving only enough to TREE Catalogue Millinery, Corsets, Shoes, Gloves, etc.

hold the rind firmly. There is no waste in this, for you can use the potatoes you know, for the table," says this thrifty housewife.
"When you have them all scooped out, fill the shells with very fine soil. Then sow your seeds according to directions, and stick a tag with its name on each potato with a pin. The potatoes should be kept in plates with a little water in them. Place your seeds on a table in front of a sunny window in a warm room. For a day or two keep them covered with a wet front of a sunny window in a warm room. For a day or two keep them covered with a wet square of muslin. After that keep the wet muslin on them only at night, and if they look dry spray them with an atomizer.

"You will be surprised to see how quickly they will come up. Leave them in the potatoes until they are quite strong, then transplant to boxes or pots, or, if it is late enough, to the open border. I think there is some virtue in the potato itself, or perhaps it is only because open border. I think there is some virtue in the potato itself, or perhaps it is only because the rind keeps the earth moist, but I have found seeds come up more quickly and are stronger in that way than in any other."

Our illustrations show some unique match scratchers. These are so necessary in every room, of every house, that it is with pleasure that we find such useful articles in such pleasing shapes.

that we find such useful articles in such pleasing shapes.

The cat is cut out of black sand-paper and smoothly pasted onto a white card. Then a collar of white, white eyes, nose and mouth and black whiskers are painted on in water color, and a ribbon tied at the top for a hanger.

The Gibson girl is not so easily made, but if one has not artistic ability sufficient to draw and paint this girl's head and shoulders and foot, one can be cut out of a copy of Life, or other magazine or paper with a good-looking other magazine or paper with a good-looking girl in it. Paste the girl so cut smoothly onto a card, and over the skirt paste a piece of black sand-paper cut to fit. Then color the waist a brilliant red, with hat band to match, leaving the tie and stock white. These are easy things for the children to

OLD TOM.

These are easy things for the children to make,—in fact this cat illustration was made from a scratcher made by a child of eight. One idea will lead to another, and many pleasing pictures may be made by a child with bright ideas,—and as these scratchers are appropriate gifts for both sexes and all ages, a child could do a dozen or two and present to her little and big friends at Christmas time.

ST. VITUS' DANCE. Sure Cure. Get Circular. Dr. Fenner, Fredonia, N. Y.

FREE RUPTURE CURE!

The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27 Salina, Kansas. DAYS TRIAL FREE

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

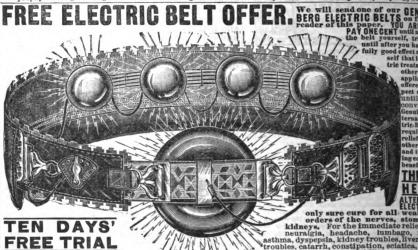

HILD LOST for 15 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who for tells correctly all Private Affairs. Health Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga, N.Y.

"The Electric Fly Killer," FOUND AT to CHAS. STEVENS & CO., Tremont, Ill., for terms and agents outfit by mail prepaid.

DINNER SET

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING If you have been unable to obtain relief by means of any other treatment, electric or otherwise, don't fail to cut this ad, out and send to us and our Free Electric Belt Catalogue and FREE TRIAL OFFER will be sent to you by return mail.

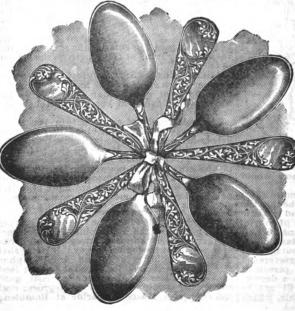

tionsof the different electric belts we days' free trial offer, will be sent free to anyone who will apply for it.

EVERY HEIDELBERG BELT BOTCH TWO THE STATE OF THE STATE OF

on request SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAR

$1000in 19 20

branch and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1,8 mumber 2,6 mines, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1,8 mumber 2,6 mines, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1,8 mumber 2,6 mines, and we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. Letter A is number 1,8 mumber 2,6 mines, and the cities of the 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIE YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000 WHICH WE ARE GIV ING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of your time. This are other most liberal offers are made to introduce one of the very best New York magazines into every home.

FREE Silver Spoons.

We will deliver free, all charges paid, one-half dozen elegant silvar-plated Tea Spoons of the latest design, to any one who will send us one new yearly 25c. subscriber to COMFORT within thirty days. These Spoons are warraned extra quality and the style and workmanship is of the best. If you have not time to get the new subscriber send in a renewal for yourself or have the paper sent to a friend. You can sell the Spoons for a good price. We got account and we offer the bargain to our subscribers as long as they last, so you better send your 25c. subscription today if you want a bonarisurprise, as they will not be offered in any other manner and we are anxious to increase our subscription its this month just one hundred thousand. Address We will deliver free, all charges

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine,

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

E are reminded by a constant reader that it is a long time since we have given any recipes for cake, so we will devote our space this month to some this month to some good recipes for cake and dainty desserts, trusting that other readers will be as well pleased with the cake recipes. Right here let me say that if there is anything special that readers want recipes for,—I mean, of course, recipes not too much out of the ordinary,—set to find and submit

Aunt Sarah will do Aunt Sarah will do her best to find and submit

WEBSTER CAKE.

WEBSTER CAKE.

Cream 1-2 cup butter, add gradually 1 cup sugar, the yolks of 3 eggs well beaten, 1-2 cup milk, 13-4 cups flour mixed and sifted with 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder and the whites of 3 eggs beaten stiff. To a trifle less than 1-2 the mixture add 1-3 cup walnut meat broken in pieces, 1-3 cup raisins seeded and cut in pieces, 1-3 cup figs finely chopped, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1-4 teaspoon each of mace and nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-8 teaspoon salt and 1 1-2 tablespoons flour. Flavor with 1 tablespoon brandy or wine. Arrange in a deep pan and bake in a slow oven 1 hour. Cover with maple sugar frosting. sugar frosting.

MAPLE SUGAR FROSTING.

Break a pound of soft maple sugar in pieces, add 1-2 cup boiling water and let boil until mixture will thread when dropped from tip of spoon. Pour syrup gradually onto the whites of 2 eggs beaten stiff, and continue beating until mixture is stiff enough to spread.

LITTLETON CAKE.

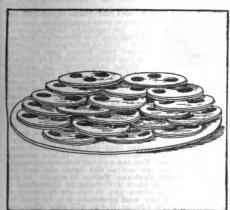

Cream 1-2 cup butter, add gradually 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs well beaten, 1-2 cup milk, 1 square chocolate dissolved in 1-2 cup coffee infusion, and 21-2 cups flour mixed and sifted with 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder. Bake in layers and put together, and on top chocolate frosting. Sprinkle with finely-chopped almonds.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING.

Melt 2 squares Baker's chocolate, add 1-4 cup boiling water, a few grains salt, and confectioner's sugar to make of proper consistency to spread. Add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

JELLY JUMBLES.

Cream 1-2 cup butter, add gradually 1 cup sugar, 1 egg well beaten, 1-2 teaspoon soda dissolved in 1-2 cup sour milk, 1-4 teaspoon salt, and flour to make a soft dough. Chill, shape with a round cutter and on one-half the pieces put currant jelly; in the remaining pieces cut 3 small openings. Put pieces together, press edges slightly and bake in a rather hot oven, that jumbles may keep in good shape.

JELLY JUMBLES.

DELMONICO GINGERBREAD.

Boil 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup molasses, and 3-4 tablespoon ginger 10 minutes; then add 1-2 cup flour, and stir until smooth. Spread mixture on a pan inverted and buttered, and bake in a moderate oven. Cut in squares and remove from pan.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

Rub 2 pounds of butter into 5 pounds of flour. Add 1 pound of sugar, then 3 gills of distillery yeast, 1 pint of milk, 4 eggs well beaten, a gill (half a cup) of wine, and another pint of milk. Beat well, and let stand to rise all night. In the morning add a gill of brandy, another pound of sugar, and half an ounce of nutmegs. Let rise until very light, then put into the pans alternately with a sprinkling of a pound, each, of currants and seeded raisins. A pound of citron, cut fine, may also be added. Use one cake of compressed yeast or one dry yeast cake, softened in a cup of lukewarm water, when distillery yeast is not procurable.

CREAM SPONGE CAKE.

Beat the yolks of 4 eggs until light. Add gradually 1 cup of sugar, and, alternately, half a cup of double cream and 2 cups of flour sifted with half a teaspoonful of soda and 2 level teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar. Add a grating of lemon rind and the stiff-beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a loaf about forty minutes.

YORKSHIRE PUDDING.

Sift together half a teaspoonful of salt and one cup and a half of pastry flour. Stir in gradually one cup and a half of milk so as to form a smooth batter. Then add 3 eggs beaten, without separating, until thick and light, and turn into a hot gem-pan, after brushing the inside with the dripping from roast beef. Bake nearly half an hour. After the pudding is well risen, baste with the fat from the roast beef. Serve around the roast. Set the gem-pan into a dripping-pan before basting. The pudding may also be baked in a small dripping-pan, and cut in squares for serving. and cut in squares for serving.

STRAWBERRY BASKETS.

STRAWBERRY BASKETS.

Cream 1-4 cup butter, add gradually 1-4 cup sugar, 1 egg slightly beaten, 2-1-2 ounces flour and 1-4 teaspoon vanilla. Bake, shape and fill with whipped cream sweetened and flavored, and strawberries. Serve at once.

A slight description of the above recipe is necessary. When the ingredients are mixed, roll out very thin and cut with a round cutter about 4 inches in diameter. As soon as taken from the oven, and while yet warm,—roll 2 sides up so as to form a sort of boat, and set them close together in a dish, to hold them in that shape until they are cool and hardened. Then prepare the filling by cutting the strawberries, sweeten with powdered sugar and mix with thick whipped cream. Fill the baskets, and place a whole strawberry on either end,—as shown in illustration. Do not fill the baskets until time to serve, as the cream softens

STRAWBERRY BASKET.

the pastry, if allowed to stand, and the baskets will lose their shape.

Here is probably the oldest recipe in the world for fish chowder, and is given in rhyme:—

for fish chowder, and is given in rhyme:—
To make a good chowder and have it quite nice, Dispense with sweet marjoram, parsley and spice;
Mace, pepper and salt are now wanted alone,
To make the stew eat well and stick to the bone.
Some pork is sliced thin and put into the pot;
Some say you must turn it, some say you must not;
And when it is brown, take it out of the fat,
And add it again when you add this and that.
A layer of potatoes, sliced a quarter inch thick,
Should be placed in the bottom to make it eat
slick;
A layer of onions now over this place.
Then season with pepper and salt and some mace.
Split open your crackers and give them a soak,
In eating you'll find this the cream of the joke.
On top of all this, now comply with my wish,
And put in large chunks of your pieces of fish;
Then put on the pieces of pork you have fried,
I mean those from which all the fat has been tried.
In seasoning, I pray don't spare the cayenne,
'Tis this makes it fit to be eaten by men.
After adding these things in regular rotation,
You'll have a dish fit for the best of the nation.

EVERY LADY READ THIS.

I will send free a positive cure for all female diseases, irregularities, etc. A simple home treatment, a common sense remedy that never fails. Free with valuable advice. Mrs. L. D. HUDNUT, South Bend, Ind.

Women who suffer with ailments peculiar to their sex, from stooping shoulders, weak back and general ill-health, or lack of strength and vitality, will be interested in the advertisement of The Natural Body Brace in another column. Husbands and friends of such women will be interested in it also. The company's high standing and pleasing business methods are vouched for by the leading banks throughout the country and by many thousands of customers. Satisfaction is guaranteed by the fact that the full purchase price is refunded to any one not pleased after 30 days' trial. The Brace is comfortable and invigorating. It brings light step, graceful figure and good health. It enables a weakly woman to walk, work, ride a wheel or play tennis or golf with ease and pleasure. It is free from all the objectionable features of other supports and treatments. It does away with pessaries. We suggest that you read the advertisement and write at once for free book and full particulars.

The oldest regular newspaper published in England was established by Nathaniel Butler in 1562.

Salaried Positions for Learners

Our new free circular points out the direct way to a well-paid place in Civil. Mechanical or Electrical Engineering, or Architecture, Qualify yourself quickly for a position where you can earn while you learn. We also teach by mail Steam Engineering; Drawing; Chemistry; Telegraphy; Teaching; Stengraphy; Book-keeping; Engilah Branches. When writing state subject in which interested.

Box 1190, Scranton, Pa. Established 1891. Capital $1,500,000.

AGENTS Send 6c postage for free sample. Made of best quality tin One turn of flat thin knife cuts loose a perfect cake. Simple and durable. We manufacturers of Aluminum. Household by the and Tin Ware in U. S. Dept Aute and How to Quit Tobacco. A new discovery odorless and tasteless, that Ladies can give in coffee or any kind of food, quickly curing the patient without his knowledge. Anyone can have a free trial package by addressing Rogers Drug and Chemical Co., 2245 Fifth and Race Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE NEW DUST PAN.—Rapid seller, xclusive territory. Write for large catalogue. 50 their fast sellers, and how to get Sample Outlif Free. RICHARDSON MFG. Co., C. St., Bath, N. Y.

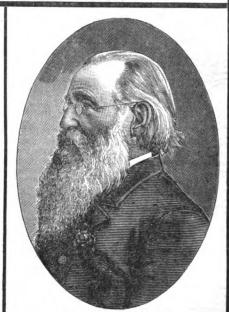

- CURED BY

With Magnetic Medicines, the The Secret of the Soul, Combined Mightiest Power Known, Cures So-Called Incurable Diseases.

DIAGNOSIS, FULL INSTRUCTIONS AND A GRAND BOOK FREE

The phenomenal cures made by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the eminent scientist of Battle Creek, Mich., have astonished physicians and scientists throughout the world, for in a marvelous manner he DISPELS ALL DISPACES. FASES and gives permanent health, vigor and strength to all who desire it. His work is indeed blessed and wonderful. His power comes from the fact that he has discovered the secret of the soul, which he terms PSYCHIC; this he combines with magnetic PSYCHIC; this he combines with magnetic medicines prepared in his own laboratory, making the strongest healing combination known to the world. This wonderful man has so perfected his method that it now reaches all classes of people, for it ANNIHILATES SPACE and cures patients at a distance in the privacy of their own homes without the knowledge of anyone. If you are in any way sick and will write to Dr. J. M. Peebles, telling him your leading symptoms, he will through his psychic power diagnose your case and send you full in-symptoms, he will through his psychic power diagnose your case and send you full instructions free of any charge; no matter what your disease or how despondent you may feel, there is hope for you. Hundreds of women who suffer the many irregularities common to their sex, have been cured through Dr. Peebles' method after they had been told their cases were incurable. The same can be said of men who were debilitated from early indiscretions. Indigestion, stomach troubles, catarrh, weaknesses of all kinds, and in fact all diseases succumb to this wonderful man's method of healing. Remember, it makes no difference how hopeless your case may seem, or how many have pronounced it incurable, Dr. Peebles can help you, and it COSTS YOU ABSOLUTELY NOTHING to receive his diagnosis and instructions. He also sends you FREE OF ANY CHARGE, his grand book which will be of invaluable service to you. You also receive a long list of testimonials proving beyond a doubt that his method is revolutionizing the art of healing the sick and despondent. Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Dept. J, Battle Creek, Mich. REMEMBER, it costs you nothing.

DESPAIR NOT, THERE IS STILL HOPE FOR YOU!

Dr. J. M. PEEBLES WILL TEACH THE PSYCHIC SCIENCE by mail, through which you are taught Psychic and Magnetic Healing, also Occult Powers, which will give you success in life. Full information regarding lessons and literature on this Grand Science, will be sent FREE to all addressing DR. J. M. PEEBLES, Department J, Battle Creek, Mich.

> one in each town to ride and exhibit a sample 1901 model bicycle of our manufacture. YOU CAN MAKE $10 TO $50 A WEEK besides having a wheel to ride for yourself.

1901 Models High Grade $10 to $18 '00 & '99 Models Best $7 to $12 500 Second Hand Wheels 3 to $8 taken in trade by our Chicago retail stores, $3 to $8 we ship any bicycle ON APPROVAL to anyone without a cent deposit in advance and allow

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL. You take absolutely no risk in ordering from us, as you do not need to pay a cent if the bicycle does not suit you.

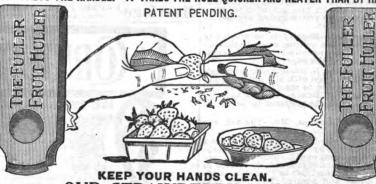

DO NOT BUY a wheel until you have written for our FACTORY PRICES and FREE TRIAL OFFER. This liberal offer has never been equaled and is a guarantee of the quality of our wheels.

a reliable person in each town to distribute catalogues for us in bicycle. Write today for free catalogue and our special offer.

MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. 17 F, Chicago.

PERFECTION AT LAST.

YOU PRESS THE HANDLE. IT TAKES THE HULL QUICKER AND NEATER THAN BY HAND.

OUR STRAWBERRY HULLER

hulls Strawberries, Gooseberries, Black Currants, etc., and picks out Basting Thread and Stitches. Has place for thumb and forefinger; doesn't slip or fill up. A simple little thing, saving Time (most essential thing to housekeepers), Temper, Stained and Sore Fingers. Will not crush ripest fruit. Takes out soft and green spots, leaving berries clean, neat, and clear cut, making them look fifty per cent better in the dish, and makes you wonder why it was not thought of before. With one you can do the work twice as quickly, and without any of the usual unpleasant features of this work. Every lady who tries this once in the berry season will never be without it again, or allow her friends to hull berries with fingers. One trial only is needed. Housekeepers write, "Could not get along now without it." They are brightly nickelpolished and ornamental. Splendid side line. A day's supply goes in your pocket. We deliver all goods so your profit is clear. Send 6 cents for 3 months' trial subscription to this paper and a sample Huller. Send 18c. for a 6 months' trial subscription to this paper and a sample Huller. Send 18c. for a 6 months' subscription and one-half dozen Hullers, or a year's subscription and one dozen Hullers, 30c. In large quantities, three dozen 85c, six dozen $1.65, a whole gross 144, $3.25, sell for $14.40. Big Profits. Now is the time.

Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

Now come the sweet June roses, dears, and may their fragrance be, to each and every one of you, a fact and memory. With this little poetic greeting I shall content myself and get right to work on the pile of your letters before

The first one I take up is from Cousin Pansy of Lorne, Va., who wants to know what a pina skirt and some small rubies are worth. Nobody can answer a question like that but a dealer in such things, and I suppose the nearest one to her is in Richmond.

D. V. V., Stanford, Mo.—Act as if you did not care for him. If there is a way to win a man, that is the only one I know of. (2) Better obey your parents in love affairs until you are past twenty-one. (3) It is the lady's place to ask a third person to join her party.

Louise, Granite Mountain, Texas.—Can't the young man pay for his own lunch, or bring it with him? He ought to. (2) Did you ever hear anybody in his right mind say, "the girls were caming"? (3) A gentleman always looks out for the lady's comfort first. (4) Never heard of the author you ask for.

Brown Eyed Twins, Macomb, Ills.—Yes, a young man may call again though not invited. (2) Ask him in after church, if not too late. (3) No, don't talk to young "gentlemen friends" over the telephone, except when necessary. (4) A man should not call oftener than once a week unless he is seriously inclined. ously inclined.

Sweet Briar, Agnew, Neb.—Queen Victoria's last name was generally supposed to be Wettin.

name was generally supposed to be Wettin.

N. S. D., Florala, Ala.—It is quite proper for a seventeen year old girl to go to a night meeting with her brother and a young man of twenty-five. It will be better to wait four years or three, at least, before marrying the twenty-five year old man; better for you and better for him.

Butter Cup, Wiggins, Miss.—Girls should not receive company before they are eighteen or nine-teen, and should not marry before twenty-one. "Sweet Sixteen" is silly. (2-9) Wait four or five years and I will answer these questions. In the mean time think about something else than "boys" and "hearts" and "love".

Three Friends, Washougai, Wash.—It is undigni-

Three Friends, Washougai, Wash.—It is undignified for a girl to take a man's hat from him and put it on herself. Most of the other questions you ask can be answered the same way. I don't know the poetry you quote, nor the author.

poetry you quote, nor the author.

E. P. C. Aurora, Neb.—Yes, you may change numbers to avoid being next to a man you do not like.

(2) I suppose boys and girls may go home from school together. (3) Girls should not paint, and only powder so far as with some simple thing that is cooling and clean. (4) The man may help the lady on or off with her rubbers. (5) Your first duty is to the man who took you to the entertainment.

Violet, Madison, Wis.—Unless you know the doctor very well, don't call on him unless accompanied by a chaperon. (2) The man should write first, though that is not necessary. (3) Wear something rather more pronounced than light blue. Pink might be becoming to the fair complexion, but hardly to the dark red hair. (4) The shyness you speak of can only be overcome by practice and experience. Forget yourself. There is no definite rule. You must do the best you can. (5) I see nothing wrong in "too fat". (6) Ask the town librarian for a list of girls' books.

Constant Reader, Swallows' Nook, Kans.—The

Constant Reader, Swallows' Nook, Kans.—The lady may offer her escort a boutonniere. (2) Ladies do not hold men's hats during the evening at the theatre. They hold their own, however, and not on their heads, either. As to helping a man with his overcoat that is entirely with the lady. Most men are able to put on their own overcoats.

Gray Eyes, Ocala, Va.—I know of no such places as you inquire for.

Iris, Stephens City, Va.—Write to Postmaster, Richmond, inclosing return postage, for address of painted china dealers. You will have to find your own editors to buy stories and sketches, etc. Nobody knows where they are.

Florence, Iowa Falls, Iowa.—The man should have no right to treat a lady so, but you deserve it. (2) Don't ask men to call till you know who they are. (3) Let the young man know what you don't like about him. Better now than after you have married him.

married him.

Dew Drop, Kedron, Minn.—You have a right to choose your own company. (2) You are most too young to be writing to a man, even your old school teacher. (3) Girls ought to know how to do as many useful things as possible. (4) Make fun of the sentimental youngster and let him get offended if he wants to. (5) The novels you mention are harmless, if not taken to excess.

Marion Madison Ind.—Revelty is so much now

Marion, Madison, Ind.—Royalty is so much per cent—ten usually—of the selling price to the author. (2) The publisher usually selects the artist.

thor. (2) The publisher usually selects the artist.
(3) Write on one side of the paper.
Clare and Ada, Edgeley, N. D.—One man is enough to write to. (2) She may go with him until the one comes whom she is going to marry. (3) Don't go wheeling after dark. (4) Dance with him as many times as you want to, but be prepared to hear people talk.

Ruth and Rolla, Ellington, Mo.—You ask too many questions.

many questions.

Hopeful, Hebron, Neb.—There is no way to get a book published except by submitting it to publishers. (2) The acceptance of a story by one paper blocks it from others, of course. My advice to you is to stop writing and put in your time reading standard prose and poetry. You need that more than what you ask for. Also learn to spell. Try the verses on your local newspaper.

Edyth, Farmington, Ills.—Quite proper to acknowledge receipt of commencement card, and no harm if a correspondence ensue. (2) Sixteen is rather too young for a tailor made suit.

Rosebud, Liberty, Ind.—Better not go "bugy ridin", but stay at home and learn to spell.

Jolly Chums, Sac City, Ia.—Yes, go home from church with the man who didn't take you there. (2) Your friend being sponsor for the stranger makes him all right. (3) Compliments on form and fit of dress had better be avoided.

Loydina, Frankfort, Pa.—Yes, but she should tell him to wait till she is twenty. (2) Ask her mother, that's all. (3) Pink is good enough. (4) The man should not walk between the ladies.

Opal, Cross Roads, W. Va.—Nineteen year old girls should not marry without parents' consent.
(2) One month is as good as another to marry in, and one day in the week as good as another, but I think Tuesdays in June seem to be the most popu-

C. H. and C. W., Trenton, Neb.—Wait a minute, children, until you are older.

Tottie, Middletown, N. Y.—Bright red writing paper in my opinion is not in good taste. (2) It is not customary to ask young men to drive with young women or to go to places with them, but it is often done.

often done.

Little Sallie, Lokota, N. D.—Agate is the birthstone of June. (2) Ask your physician about the bad breath. (3) Never marry a drunkard because you love him, nor a rich man because you do not. Die an old maid first. (3) Obey your parents.

L., Hebron, Minn.—It is illegal for cousins to marry. In other words you cannot marry your cousin. (2) Introduce by saying: "May I introduce (or present) Mr. So-and-so." (3) Thank you, Ishall be glad to go.

Now, my dears, your questions are answered or otherwise disposed of, and let us all try to be happy until we meet again. By, by. COUSIN MARION.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhea, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

HOW TO BUY.

In purchasing, the buyer should in all cases ascertain the character and general reputation of the merchant, and patronize those only whose reputation for general integrity has been acquired by a perfect knowledge of the character of the goods they sell and general fair dealing in selling them.

the character of the goods they sell and general fair dealing in selling them.

The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, O., (see advertisement on page 15 of this issue) are now the largest and richest importers of preparations for special diseases in the United States, and their large and successful business is solely due to honesty and fair dealing.

The financial and mercantile character of this firm has never been questioned.

THESE WARM DAYS

You are cooking with an Oil Stove. For the best results, most heat and no odor use Carbon wicks. Millions in use at hotels and restaurants. Any width from 11-2 to 5 inches, 10c. for a sample. Last all summer. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Gas was first used for street lighting in the United States in Baltimore.

Cures Goitre

Mrs. Lillian Brown, who was entirely cured Goltre after suffering for 22 years.

A remarkable discovery has been made that cures this dangerous and disfiguring disease without pain, operation, or inconvenience.

Dr. Haig sends a free trial package of his discovery so that patients may try and know positively that Goitre can be cured at home without pain, danger, operation or any inconvenience. Send your name and address to Dr. John P. Haig, 1988 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will forward the free trial package prepaid by mail. Write today.

HEALTH AND WE

BOOK

The seeming mysterious force which was originated into by Prof. H. C. Murphy, President of the American Institute Science and was named by him

MODERN MAGNETISM and now known throughout the entire world as MAGNETIC HEAL

ING, gives its students the power to control the body and mind of others; also the power to dispel disease as if by magic. It is the grandest pain reliever known to man; it is the only sure road to success financially, physically, socially and politically. With this won-derful power, health, fame and riches can be obtained; also the affections of those you love. You learn this wonderful science at home. The only education necessary is the knowledge to read. The mail course which is sent to all, makes you efficient in each branch of this grand science. Through the knowledge you gain you are able, without the use of drugs or the surgeon's knife, to

Cure Yourself

as well as those about you. There are many people, both men and women, who shrink from the embarrassment of making their diseases public, and on this account go through the worldsuffering tortures and pain, but through this method you are able to HEAL YOURSELF IN THE PRIVACY OF YOUR OWN HOME, and in a few days you are in the sunshine of health to the surprise of your acquaintances. Many a modest woman suffering untold agony from disease peculiar to her sex, has gone to a premature grave rather than subject herself to the embarrassment of an examination. The same can be said of men suffering from indiscretions that they were ashamed to confess. This grand method permits sufferers of both sexes to do away with this embarrassment, for by it they cure themselves without the assistance of anyone, of every disease and infirmity. THE BOOK OF HOPE, written by Prof. Murphy, in a plain and concise manner tells you exactly how you can gain this wonderful influence whereby you become proficient in curing disease and bad habits in yourself and in others; develop mental energy, gratify ambition and your every wish; also gives you the key to personal and social successes and teaches you the GRANDEST AND BEST PAYING PROFESSION OF THE AGE, as it is an acknowledged fact that there is no profession. RETIEMBER, this book costs you nothing, and it reveals wonderful secrets and makes the impossibilities of yesterday the realities of to-day.

ABSOLUTELY FREE Send your name and address and you will receive this grand book, which is beautifully illustrated labor has been spared. It has numerous and elegant illustrations, and is a token which neither expense or may be proud of. Remember, it costs you nothing, and with it you receive the Tagnetic Record, a 36-page illustrated magazine. Thousands who have become successful through this mail course, write similar letters to these:

Rev. S. P. Freyberger, Goshen, Ind., writes: "Your course will enable the student to practice the Art of Healing as soon as the course is completed. Having practiced Magnetic Healing to a year past, and having been very successful, I thank you most heartily for the knowledge received from a study of your mail course." Dr. E. Pritchard, Luling, Texas, writes: "would not take $500 for your course and do without it. I had catarrh of the head, and also constipation of several years standing, and have cured myself of both diseases. I have also cured every person I have treated." The field of Magnetic Healing is as broad as the world itself. It brings wealth, health, happiness and influence.

Write to-day and receive the Book of Hope and the Magnetic Record FREE.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE,

FREE TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS.

Dr. J. H. Dye has devoted his life to curing the ailments of women, and relieving especially the pains of child-birth. He has proved that it is not natural for women to suffer in giving birth to children, and will gladly send to all women a book which tells how to give birth to healthy children without pain. All women who wish to enjoy the blessing of motherhood will receive just the advice she needs to enable her to become a happy, healthy mother. This will cost absolutely nothing; your name and address sent to Dr. J. H. Dye, Lewis Block, Buffalo, N. Y., will bring it postpaid. Write at once.

CURE FREE,

TOTHERS Your children cured of incontinuous of urine. Sample Free. Dr. F. E. Nay Box 304, Bloomington, Ill.

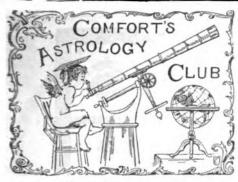

WE WILL SHIP A PIANO OR ORGAN ANYWHERE upon the distinct understand as represented AFTER 12 MONTHS USE WE WILL TAKE IT HACK and REFUND THE PURCHASE MONEY AND FREIGHT CHARGES both ways, together with unrest at the rate of 6 per cent. This unique method of selling Pianos and Organs has attracted world wide attention, it has bronglussaics from every part of the earth; over a quarter of a million satisfied purchasers prove the public appreciate the Cornish plan of business. We sell exclusively to the general public; all agents, middlemen's and dealers' profits are saved to the purchaser of the Cornish Plano and Organ; this means from 25 to 60 per cent.

THE CORNISH PIANOS & ORGANS ARE UNEQUALLED in tone and appearance; in fact there are no more beautiful instru-ments manufactured in this country; purchasers have the benefit of fitty years of practical experience in plano and organ build-ing. Every Plano is fitted with the new Cornish Musical Attachment; this can be had with the Cornish Plano only; it is our exclusive patent; every Cornish Organ is fitted with our Orchestral Action pronounced to be the finest combination reed action in the World.

orchestral Action pronounced to be the mest combinate reed action in the world.

FOUR MINIATURE PIANOS AND ENTIRELY NEW 1902 OATALOGUES FREE! A marvellously beautiful New Souvenir has just been issued by us that transcends any other catalogue ever designed. It must be seen to realize what a perfect production it is it is a verticable triumph of 20th Century printing in colors. All new styles accurately depicted-worth its weight in gold. So U V ENTIR EDITION, Just ready—get it now rosewood and mahogany, actual colors shown—the most costly advertising matter. On the control of the contr

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

HE New Moon this month occurs at about two minutes past five o'clock in the afternoon of the 15th day of July, when the 20th degree of the sign Sagittarius will be rising with Jupiter and Saturn just below the ascending horizon; the Sun, Moon, Mercury and Neptune will be in the west in the 7th house; Venus stands in the 8th; Mars has gone past the south meridian and is inthe 9th house, while Herschel is above the eastern horizon in the 12th house.

while Herschel is above the eastern horizon in the 12th house.

The figure for this lunation again repeats the promises of general benevolence to the people which were given by its predecessors. Jupiter, the great benific ruler of the ascending sign, being in the Ascendant nearly conjoined with Saturn dignified by sign and house, gives favorable indications of prosperity and advantage to the masses. The teachings are that the people shall be quiet, successful and fortunate, healthy in body, and have joy, honor and peace. Conditions indicate seasonable rains, though Mars gives more than usual hot temperatures with some heavy thunder and lightning. The elevation of Mars points to some antagonism or strife over church matters and something of a warlike aspect over our commercial relations. We are to look for something like a train robbery or thieving in our south-western territories or near the national borders in that direction. One disagreeable feature of the figure is the threat of increased fire losses in the country in July and August. Underwriters and insurance officers should look well to their transactions and all be vigilant against this destroyer of property. The lunation falling so close to the 8th cusp cautions our great men against excesses of feast or sport or they will go suddenly from among us. Digestive and apoplectic troubles are likely to swell the list of those who go to their last home in this lunation. Indulgencies in stimulants are much more likely than usual to be fatal in these passing weeks. We shall read of some scandalous development in the social world, probably in the nature of an elopement to foreign climes of some one prominent in official life. The lunation falling in a watery sign on the 8th is a caution to all enjoying sports in and upon the water to be guarded against accident.

Mars on the lith of the month enters the sign Libra, which is believed to rule China, and it will be reasonable to look for warlike activity among the Chinese or within the Chinese territory. Let us hope

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR JULY 1901.

JULY 1-Monday. Give preference to the forenoon for the most important transactions of the day, especially such as are connected with banks and monied institutions, judges, lawyers, capitalists, and persons connected with churches; be sure and give no cause for thine employer's dissatisfaction in the afternoon. While the forenoon is generally benevolent it is not recommended for the inauguration of any of the great enterprises in life; the afternoon is likely to bring disappointment and unsatisfactory results in matters then begun.

2—Tuesday. Push matters vigorously after nine o'clock in the morning; have surgical operations performed, engage in chemical experiments and in the prosecution of business dealings in cattle, metals, cutlery, and with persons in manufacturing enterprises and in mechanical trades.

mechanical trades.

3—Wedmesday. Be not in haste to begin thy labors of this day if engaged in the literary, scientific, or artistic pursuits, but as the forenoon advances increase all thine efforts with the moments. Improve the last half of the day for the ingenious and mechanical trades and avocations; pursue scientific studies and engage the mind in matters of machinery or construction.

4—Thursday. Independence Day. Push business vigorously on this day, notwithstanding it is a holiday seek favors and deal with railway officials and superintendents in corporate bodies; the time is not propitious, however, for buying goods for trade nor for entering upon any of the great undertakings in life.

5—Friday. A nunfavorable day for most undertak-propitious, however, for buying goods for trade nor for entering upon any of the great undertakings in life.

5—Friday. An unfavorable day for most undertakings and shoul! be employed rather for routine work and such as is of least importance. Stomach, head, and kidney troubles become more acute in this passing time, to avoid which will require more than the ordinary care and prudent habits. Persons born about the 4th of January or April, or the 9th of July or 17th of October, of past years should heed our warning for care as to diet and habits. Married ladies born on these days will need to be circumspect in deportment and exercise more than ordinary patience and forbearance with their husbands; and to some, at best, will come quarrels, disagreements, separation and even divorce or unusual misfortunes to or through their married partners and near male relatives in the coming weeks. Males born at such times should see to it that business ruptures and changes do not come from acts of theirs and should not at this time begin important undertakings but be satisfied with their present lot rather than seek now to improve it by new ventures.

6—Saturday. Arise early and push vigorously thy several purjuits; use the forenoon for buying goods for trade, seeking money accommodations and dealings with lawyers, clothiers and woolen merchants; do not expect favor from large corporations in business nor from national, state, or nunicipal authorities; the time is not favorable for any matrimonial engagement especially for those of the genile sex born about the 8th of March, 6th of June or September or the 9th of December, of past years.

7—Sunday. Excellent for mental efforts and relig-years.

7—Sunday. Excellent for mental efforts and religious zeal, though unless caution is exercised there will be observed too strong an inclination for aggressive uterances and disputes; let all have patience and he moderate in word and action under any species of excitement, especially in the noon and afternoon hours.

s—Monday. Those who speculate with their money on this day need not be surprised if disappointment comes; and general conditions bid thee pause before engaging in any matter of importance; avoid business dealings with banks and monied men, give thy landlord a wide berth and all matters pertaining to houses or lands are best avoided; bad stomach and kidney troubles and apoplectic annoyances are quickened at this time. Persons suffering from digestive troubles in this year will be wise during July to favor themselves in all the ways they can, especially by regular and prudent diet and temperate gratifications of appetite.

9—Tuesday. Great circumspection is advised in thine undertakings of this day; beware of speculations; do not buy goods in commerce nor expect favorable results from mental efforts; have particular care in all matters of literary character and be prudent and watchful in the use of the pen. Stress is again laid upon the suggestions given for the 5th instant to persons born about the days there noted.

10—Wednesday. This day is excellent for all general business, though the polite arts and elegant pursuits are not favored in the early part of the day; purchase goods for trade and deal with banks and the wealthy classes in the forenoon; during the afternoon give thine energies to business concerned with houses and lands; deal in such commodities as coal, iron, petroleum, wood, lumber, lead, wool and grain, and with discretion in mining and railroad stocks; make contracts for building and have transactions with persons generally in fiduciary capacities.

11—Thursday. Begin this day early and continue thine efforts of yesterday with increased vigor; let literary productions be launched during the forenoon hours and thou mayst have good assurance of success proportionate of course, with their quality; do important correspondence and appeal to the mind for forwarding thy ventures.

12—Friday. A good day for general business; let all engaged in the polite and elegant occupations specially improve the middle hours of this day; social and musical entertainments are encouraged for the afternoon and evening.

13—Saturday. Peculiarly favorable for commercial engagements; the mind will be active and the business judgment unusually actute; choose the time for dealing with clerks, accountants, teachers, mathematicians and the scientific classes generally.

14—Sunday. An unfavorable Sabbath day; mental productions are likely to be illogical and unsatisfactory, the utterances rash and imprudent, unless moderation and care is exercised; some bad fires are likely in the very early morning.

15—Monday. Engage in literary and scientific pursuits of magnitude during this day; commercial menshould take advantage of prevailing benevolent conditions, make contracts, hire help and push all general business to the utmost.

16-Tuesday. Employ every moment of this day for forwarding thy business ventures especially if concerned with manufactures, chemicals, drugs, or machinery; try chemical experiments and prosecute dealings in cattle, metals, cutlery, or explosives, also with those in the mechanical trades.

metals, cutlery, or explosives, also with those in the mechanical trades.

17—Wednesday. Give preference to the forenoon of this day for urging the elegant pursuits; deal in fancy goods, dress materials, jewelry, and all articles of apparel or adornment; and expect pleasures and success in dramatic and musical entertainments; do not be over generous in the afternoon in dispensing thy worldly means; being careful also about jumping too hastily to conclusions as to values of goods to be purchased; keep the temper.

18—Thursday. Give preference to the middle hours of this day for the most important ventures; buy sparingly of goods for trade; deal with persons engaged in banking institutions and with judges, clergymen, woolen manufacturers and clothiers; let the musician and artist urge their several callings.

19—Friday. A good day for making contracts concerning houses, lands, agricultural and mining productions and all kinds of dealings with farmers, builders, miners, contractors, and all engaged in the dirty occupations, and the laboring classes generally; use the afternoon for literary and scientific work and for dealing with teachers, printers, philosophers, mathematicians, secretaries, accountants, architects, orators and all ingenious and clever persons; seek no favor from officers of railways nor from any corporate body or institution.

20—Saturday. Apply for favor from persons in authority but have great care as the night approaches.

20-Saturday. Apply for favor from persons in authority but have great care as the night approaches, avoiding strife and controversy and being watchful against fires.

against ares.

21—Sunday. An unfavorable Sabbath day contributing to aggressive and inharmonious discourse and promotion of excitement and controversy; see that all precautions are observed here against fire as we are now passing through conditions when some serious losses are likely to result from the fiery element; beware of hasty conclusions and see that the tongue does not involve thee unpleasantly.

22-Monday. Improve this day to the utmost, giving preference if any, to the prosecution of business pertaining to the fine arts and the polite accomplishments; the day is peculiarly propitious for dealings in holiday wares, decorative goods and for the enjoyment of social and dramatic entertainments; make no contracts of consequence in the forenoon when dealings with persons in the literary pursuits are likely to prove unsatisfactory and unprofitable.

23—Tuesday. Seek no favor from thine employer in the morning but as the day advances give every energy to the prosecution of business, due caution being exercised against haste and precipitancy in thine affairs; buy goods for trade; deal with persons of wealth, make money collections, adjust accounts and press all honorable business.

able business.

24—Wednesday. One of the excellent days of the month upon which it would be well to begin affairs of importance concerning houses and lands and to deal with farmers, miners, plumbers, nurserymen, and cattle raisers; take the forenoon hours for beginning buildings and otherwise inaugurating works of construction; sign deeds; transact business with trustees, administrators, executors and probate officers; those in the literary callings are favored.

25—Thursday. The day is poor for musical and artistic matters and discourages the purchase of dress or fancy goods or decoration; the time is unfavorable for any matrimonial engagement and is unpromising for social entertainment; important matters are best postponed.

poned.

26—Friday. As the Sun leaves the eastern horizon let all honorable pursuits be pushed with constantly increasing vigor; the forenoon specially encourages mechanical and chemical pursuits, also all manufacturing enterprises; begin important ventures of this nature, institute legal proceedings, practice surgery, buy machinery, employ mechanics and deal in hardware, electrical goods and chemicals and with cutlers, tanners, tailors and all workers in metals or glass; the late afternoon and evening discourages dealings with very aged persons or officers of public organizations or great business corporations.

27—Saturday. An indifferent day: the afternoon

27—Saturday. An indifferent day; the afternoon hours are the most favorable.

28 Sunday. An especially fortunate Sabbath day abounding in benevolence and religious fervor; efforts of the clergy will be attended with more than ordinary success and church matters and officials are particularly favored.

favored.

29—Monday. A very evil day in which particularly matters of much importance are best deferred; see that the tongue or pen do no violence to good judgment on this day and above all make no purchases of stocks or in speculations of any kind; moral deformities are excited and crimes are increased and disclosed; quarrels, bad accidents and sudden deaths are induced; beware of litigations and contentions at this time for the day is one of strife and discord; use the pen very cautiously and be very careful if compelled to be about machinery or in the handling of vicious animals or in the use of fire-arms or explosives; these suggestions are peculiarly appropriate for persons born about the 3rd of January, April, July or October of past years.

30—Tuesday. Do not travel or change residence on 30-Tuesday. Do not travel or change residence on this day; public officials and railway employees will be short of patience in the late hours.

short of patience in the late hours.

31-Wednesday. Let there be no unpleasantness with thine employer or the superior in authority in the morning, but in other respects the day contributes energy and enterprise and invites activity in all the walks of life, especially for the machinist, engineer, mechanic, traveler, military man, and dealer in metals and cattle; in the afternoon thou canst with both profit and pleasure deal with eccentric characters, consult ancient authorities and have dealings concerning rare and antique articles.

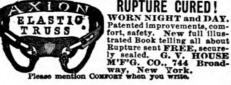

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

The first theatrical performance in Boston was given in 1750.

MAHIN GROWING RAPIDLY.

MAHIN GROWING RAPIDLY.

The 1901 Advertiser's Hand Book of the Mahin Advertising Company, of Chicago, is a compact book of 48 pages. It lists the leading publications of general circulation and also the daily newspapers of America and gives the size of page, advertising rates and discounts, polities or religion, date of issue and much other valuable information of every day use to the general advertiser. The Mahin Agency declines advertisements of questionable character. Its business increased over 50 per cent. the last year, necessitating branch offices at St. Louis, Kansas City and New York. A copy of the Hand Book and seven cards containing excellent maxims for displaying in every office or factory will be mailed upon receipt of 50 cents. Address Mahin Advertising Company, 201 Monroe St., Chicago.

RUPTURE CURED!

PERFECT MANHOOD

Prof. Jules Laborde's Marvelous French Preparation of "CALTHOS"

For Lost Manhood.

Full 5 Days' Treatment SENT FREE By Sealed Mail.

NO C.O.D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

Every person who is a sufferer from nervous diseases should write the Von Mohl Co., clinati, Ohio, at once, and accept their offer of a five days' trial treatment free of charge. This is no C. O. D. or DEPOSIT scheme but a liberal proposition made to unfortunate sufterers by this long-established concern, which is the largest importer of specifics for nervous and sexual diseases in the world.

The Von Mohl Co. has the sole American rights for Prof. Laborde's French preparation of "Calthos," the only remedy known to advanced medical science that will positively cure nervous debility. This remedy has for years been used as a specific in the French and German armies, and since its introduction into the United States has cured many thousands of sufferers, and the remarkable success of the remedy in Europe has been repeated in this country.

In order to place this wonderful treatment in the hands of every person who suffers the mental and physical anguish of sexual weakness, The Von Mohl Co., has decided tosenda free trial treatment to all who write at once. The remedy is sent by mall in a plain package, and there is no publicity in receiving itor taking it. Accompanying the medicine there is a full treatise in plain language for you to read. Take the medicine privately with perfect safety, and a sure cure is guaranteed.

Lost vitality creeps upon men unawares. Do not deceive yourself or remain in Ignorance while you are being dragged down by this insidious disease. No matter what the cause may be, whether early abuses, excesses or overwork and business cares, the results are the same—premature loss of strength and memory, emissions, impotency, varicocele and memory, emissions, impotency, varicocele and memory, emissions, impotency, varicocele and memory in the long of characteristics.

CASH BUYERS' UNION, (lnc.) Dept. 5 Q, 162 W. Van Buren St., CHICAGO.

-FORTUNE

s, business and financial success. Send your date of my great REVIEW ON ASTROLOGY. worn testimonials and a personal, typewritten, trial Horoscope of your all FIREER, PROF. H. EDISON, T, Binghamton, N. Y.

MAN WANTED in each county. Salary, horse and wagon, if competent, to sell teas, coffees, spices, etc. direct to housewives and stores, with or without valuable premiums to customers. West India Importing Co., 109 Greenwich Street, New York City.

WHISKEY Receipt to make it without a still 10c. Eric Novelty Co., Horrs, Ohio.

LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE!

Control whom you wish. Make others have and obey you.

Control whom you wish. Make other have and obey you.

Course disease. Makes fun by the hour. New and instantaneous method. Quick as a fissh. YOU can learn it. Buccess sure. Mammoth illustrated LESSON and full particulars FREE! Send address at once.

Frot. L. A. Harraden, JACKSON, RICH.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return.
A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic,
Trial box MAILED FREE. Address.
Dr.E.M.Botot, Box 978, Augusta, Me.

Beautiful

Women Made

by VESTRO. Developes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchless loveliness to Vestro. Harmless, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Pull particulars, photos, testimonials, etc. sealed for two cent stamp. Address. AURUM MEDICINE CO. Dept. A. N. 55 State St. Chicago.

CONSTIPATION, HEADACHE, and DYSPEPSIA absolutely cured. Instant relief, never returns. Acts like magic. A boon to sufferers. Trial Box Address C. J. MASON, Box 519, New York, N. Y.

STAR SHARPENING RIFLE

CUTS STEEL AS A DIAMOND CUTS CLASS.

Every Housekeeper Needs One. The Old Reliable "Star Sharpening Rifle" sharpens all

Table Cutlery, Scythes, Mowing Machines, Corn Cutters, Grain Cradles, Brush Hooks, Knives, etc. Shoemakers and Butchers use them. 200,000 now in use. They are practical and durable, do perfect work. The Old Reliable "Star Sharpening Rifle" is of usual style and size, 141-2 inches long, 13-8 inches wide, durable and strong, cuts steel as a Diamond cuts glass, and sells fast with agents at great profits; sample sent free if you enclose 18c. for a six months' subscription to Sunshine. Will send one dozen by express for $1.25, easily retails for 25c. each, more than one hundred per cent. Profit.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

EAGLE CLAW, A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF CAME. A wonderful and most ingenious

device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Ev-ery fish, muskrat, or squirrel which ery fish, muskrat, or squirrel which Lbites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. I is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 2, Bagle Claw-hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50.

Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

LESS Than Your DEALER PAYS

Home Scales

Best Quality LL Sheetings

Apron Ginghams

THE COSTLIEST BRANDS

cts.

Made especially for home uses, to weigh what you buy and sell. On any farm such a scale is a necessity.

It weighs anything from 4 ounces up to 240 pounds. The beam is polished brass; hardened steel bearings; large tin scoop; full sized platform. All finely finished, painted and decorated Warranted durable, accurate and reliable.

The scale costs the maker almost the price we ask. We box it and ship it and guarantee safe delivery. Shipping weight, 40 pounds. Freight rates quoted to any station on request. Order No. C 05...... Price $1.75

These sheetings are the Anderson, Hen-derson and Hightown brands—the very best sheetings on the market. Unbleached LL sheetings, weighing four yards to the pound, counting full 56 x 60 threads to the inch. The cleanest, best woven sheetings that are made. We could buy many brands of LL sheetings for less, but your dealer pays fully as much as we charge you for these.

Our price, for any quantity, 4½ cents per yard. Full pieces run about 55 yards.

Order No. Z 06.

These Checked Apron Ginghams are Amos-keag and Lancaster makes. Those are the best brands known. They cost your dealer more than any other brands on the market. Dealers sell them for 7,8 and even 10 cents per yard. Most dealers pay for them more than we charge you.

Your choice of these styles: Blue and white, brown and white, or green and white pin checks, small, medium

or large, even or broken checks. Black and white pin checks, or small, medium or large even checks. Pink and white, small or medium, even checks or

Our price for any quantity, 4% cents per yard. Full pieces run about 50 yards. Order No. Z 07.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., Michigan Avenue and Madison St., CHICAGO

We sell 70,000 articles at wholesale prices, by mail, as we do this. They include everything that you wear or use, and about everything you the postage alone costs 30 cents. We will send you this catalogue for 15 cents in stamps to pay half the postage, or we will ship one free when we fill your order if you request us to do so. It will save any ordinary family at least $100 per year. This is the largest mail order house in the world. Established 1872. We have 25 acres of floor space covered with merchandise; 2,000 employes, and two million customers. We quote lower prices, for values given, than any other house in existence.

Our Vice President.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HEODORE Roosevelt, whose name has long been so familiar to all citizens of the United States that United States that even the smallest boys tell of his deeds, and whose progress up Pennsylvania Avenue in the inaugural parade from the Capitol to the White House was one continuous ovation from the excited multitudes who crowded the pavements, filled doorsteps and even fringed the roofs of the buildings all along the way, is a striking example of rare good judgment, combined with an unusual ability to see the end from the beginning a strong will and a forestal character. an unusual ability to see the end from the beginning, a strong will and a forceful character. Rich, highly educated and exceedingly popular, he has filled many offices of many kinds within the past twenty years, and although it has frequently seemed to his friends that he was stepping backward instead of forward in his various moves on the chessboard of life, it has invariably proved that his move was a good one for all concerned. He has always shown himself the right man in the right place, and ever, when he has resigned one office in order that he might accept another he has left behind him multitudes of regrets for his vanished influence. multitudes of regrets for his vanished influence, assistance and personality. Wherever he goes he makes his presence felt, and invariably for the right. Even in the few days during which, after his inauguration as Vice President, he served as President of the Senate, he made it served as President of the Senate, he made it apparent that order is to reign in that body while he is at its head, and that applause from the galleries will not be tolerated there.

It is not the purpose of this article to give a resume of the past life of our popular Vice President, for there are few readers of this magazine who are not already familiar with his movements for the past fifteen or twenty years, but rather to give a slight pen picture of what his life will be for the coming four years.

what his life will be for the coming four years.

Theodore Roosevelt is now forty-two years of age, and, with one exception, that of John C. Breckenridge, who was thirty-six years old when he became Vice President, he is the youngest man ever called to fill that office. Generally speaking, the Vice Presidency is a very inactive position, and its occupant is seldom heard from in any way. Even as head of the Senate he has no vote unless it is rendered necessary to avoid a tie. He can make no speeches, and simply "sits up aloft" and wields the gavel. But it is impossible to conceive of Theodore Roosevelt as a passive member of any organization, and even though deber of any organization, and even though de-prived by his office of the privilege of speaking on the floor of the Senate, "it goes without saying" that he will assuredly find a way to make his presence and his character felt in

He has leased a home for himself and his family during his term of office in Washington, cept his large and valuable library. Uncle Sam furnishes him nothing, however, but his salary—not even a carriage—excepting, of course, the magnificently furnished room at the Capitol which is always at the disposal of the Vice President. This is the most luxuriously appointed office to be seen in Washington, not even excepting that of the President himself.

self.

Its floor is covered by two gorgeous royal Sennah rugs, which each cost the Government two hundred and twelve dollars. The two windows of the room are draped with curtains of Brussels point lace for which the Senate gave three hundred dollars. A six hundred dollar Grandfather clock in a tall mahogany case tells him the time; the sofa cost one hundred and thirty dollars and the portieres of silk velvet at the doorway are valued at one hundred and seventy dollars; but this room is all the perquisite which Uncle Sam thinks it necessary to bestow upon his Vice President.

dent.

To be sure, his duties are not onerous. Fully two-thirds of every year will be vacation to him, as his presence is only required in Wash-ington while Congress is in session, and even then he need only spend about two hours a day in the Senate chamber. He must be there to open each day's session, must remain while the mail is opened, must personally preside while bills are being introduced, reports are being read and petitions and memorials are being presented; but at the end of the "morning hour", or about two P. M., he may hand his gavel to a senator and betake himself wherever he may choose, until the time for adjournment for that day draws near. In the social scale the Vice President now

In the social scale the Vice President now ranks next to the President, and his wife stands next to Mrs. McKinley in the receiving party at all White House receptions. Formerly the members of the Cabinet and even some diplomats were allowed to take precedence of the Vice President and his wife at White House social functions, but Mr. McKinley, when he first entered the White House as its head, ruled that the place of the Vice President was next himself, and so it has remained, and rightly so, ever since.

wer since.

Mrs. Roosevelt will also have her weekly re ceptions during the winters. She is a cultivat ceptions during the winters. She is a cultivated, refined woman with a charming personality of her own, a strong character and an intense interest in all that affects her husband. She is an entertainer of rare tact and her respectively are affairs to be remembered. She is ceptions are affairs to be remembered. She is not a "club woman", but she is interested in all that tenus to uplift and broaden women's

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

one there remained for her to demonstrate her knowledge in geometry, algebra, elementary Greek, advanced Greek and advanced Latin. Miss Sullivan, her constant companion, friend, teacher and interpreter, understands neither Greek, Latin nor the higher mathematics, and Greek, Latin nor the higher mathematics, and so could not give her the slightest assistance in this examination. She had for a tutor while preparing for her college course, Mr. Merton S. Keith, under whose guidance she finished the work of preparation in three years instead of the four which were thought by her friends to be necessary for the purpose. She was resolved that the examination should be in all respects as rigidly conducted as if she were in possession of all her faculties, but for a time it seemed as if this would be impossible, owing to the difficulty in finding possible, owing to the difficulty in finding some one to copy the questions for her use in the Braille characters commonly used by the the Braille characters commonly used by the blind. At the last moment a gentleman was found who had the requisite knowledge both of the subjects treated of in the examination and of the Braille system of writing. He wrote out the examination questions for her, but when they were put into her hands on the morning of the examination it was discovered that the gentleman had used the American Braille system of writing, while Helen Keller's education has been entirely carried on by the English system, in which nearly all the books way does much effective opic lines. She is do der home life among ning. Of the children aged sixteen, is the velt's first wife; Teddy, of his father, and, like the proposed of the sixteen, is the velt's first wife; Teddy, of his father, and, like been possible to find one having also the revelt's first wife; Teddy, of his father, and, like been possible to find one having also the required knowledge of Greek, Latin and higher mathematics, so Miss Keller set herself was the proposed of the uniform the control of the work to pick out [or feel out] the questions in the unfamiliar writing, and to the range of the time was passing, or how much remained of that allotted to each subject. Utterly alone, in darkness and silence, she worked patiently on, doing her best in spite of all the handicaps which hedged het about, and came triumphantly out at the end of the two days' examination, successful in the way of a cquiring k nowledge. It is about for the two days' examination, successful in the way of a cquiring k nowledge of Greek, Latin and higher mathematics, so Miss Keller set herself was the proventy of the uniform the unfamiliar writing, and to her difficulties, her Swiss watch, made expressly for the blind, had been accidentally left at home, and she had no means of knowledge of Greek, Latin and higher mathematics, so Miss Keller set herself was the proventy and the unfamiliar writing, and to her difficulties, her Swiss watch, made expressly for the blind, had been accidentally left at home, and she had no means of knowling, as she went steadily on from question to great the expression of the unfamiliar writing, and to her difficulties, her Swiss watch, made expressly for the blind, had been accidentally expressed by the proving, as she went steadily on from question to the time was a she had no means of knowling, as she went steadily on from question to great the expression of the lime was a stead of the expression of the lime was a stead of the expression of the lime was a stead of the difficulties which seet in the furnished house of Bellamy Storer, Minister to Spain, for which he is to pay an annual rental of six thousand dollars. As his salary as Vice President is but eight thousand it will readily be perceived that he must be possessed of a large income aside from his salary. In passing it may be mentioned that in resigning the Governorship of New York to accept the Vice Presidency he relinquished a salary of ten thousand dollars and a large and luxuriously appointed Governor's mansion at Albany.

The Storer mansion is built of buff brick, has three stories and a basement, and contains about twenty rooms. It is luxuriously furnished and contains many souvenirs of Mr. Rosevelt brings with him nothing of household furnishing except his large and valuable library. Uncle Sam furnishes him nothing, however, but his diligently. Her greatest love is for English literature, and to the study of this she has devoted much of her time.

Notwithstanding her great love for study Hellen Keller is a thorough girl as well as student, very fond of girlish pleasures and lessons and lessons are the student interpretation. sports, and lessons are frequently interspersed by bicycle trips, horseback rides and carriage drives, rows and sails on the lake and rambles urives, rows and sails on the lake and ramoites in fields and woods; during all of which Miss Sullivan keeps her constantly alive to the scenes about her by talking into her hand of everything to be seen or heard as they pass along.

everything to be seen or heard as they pass along.

At the time of this writing it is not yet decided whether Miss Keller will enter college the coming fall or will continue for another year her quiet life at Wrentham.

How Helen Keller will pass through the four years of her college course; how she will acquaint herself with the matter of the lectures given to her classmates, and which constitute a large part of the instruction given to them; how she will gain a knowledge of the text books which she must use, not e of which are printed in the Braille writing, remains to be seen. But Helen Keller knows 10 such word as fail, and we may be sure that she will conquer all obstacles in her path, however great they may be, and go steadily on to the accomplishment of the work which she has set for herself.

Design Copyrighted 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have compiled with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal furors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be universed.

personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least four yearly subscribers (together with 25 cents to pay for each subscriber sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plaintly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remitance for new subscriptions, and addressed to Editor Nutbirell Story Club care of Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, ear, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 tronds.

4. No MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY

tain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. No MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer. The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

EFF Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR JULY.

Leslie Forde, First Prise. Decar S. Seaver, Second Prise Harriot Walton, Third Prize, Elisabeth Bean, Fourth Prise D. H. Talmadge, Fifth Prise.

Albert Edward's Incognito Day Off.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY LESLIE FORDE.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

UPITER! It's the Prince!" I sat back spellbound. What a strange encounter!

Since morning I had been whirling southward through the heart of Germany. At the intersection of the main line, the Holland special met us on time. Quite alone, carrying a small hand bag, attired like a Brummagen drummer, a stocky Englishman scanned the several compartments through the open doors, halting before mine. Seeing but a single passenger there he plunged in and sank down heavily opposite me, giving the guard a good tip. The latter saluted, slammed and locked the door against all comers. "Ha!" said I. "A bad hour or two with a mumpy, grumpy Yankee-hating Briton." settled back with the air of boredom.

But within a half hour I had reason to revise my prophecy. My traveling companion was neither mumpy, grumpy, nor a Yankee-hater. On the contrary, he began to evince a direct interest in me personally and in my country in general. Although smoking a blunt briarwood himself, he opened amenities with the best cigar I had ever discovered on the continent, and in the most affable English, tinctured with a slight accent, I thought, began to discuss American affairs with an intimacy of knowledge far superior to the conventional Briton who thinks that the Mississippi flows over Niagara Falls at Sacramento, and who evinces surprise that you have never met his dear cousin in Uruguay, which he seems to think a suburb of Chicago.

"And how far, may I ask, shall we have the pleasure of traveling together?" he asked at

When I told him that I was bound straight for dear old Venice, his face became a queer study. He asked me a thousand questions about the sea-girt city where I had spent so many delightful winters. At last he came to the point. Was there not a carnival on just at present-the marriage of the Bride of Venice to the sea-god of the Adriatic? Would not the king and queen be there, and the whole city in gala-dress? When I told him that it was to witness this fete that I was hurrying thither two months in advance of my usual journey,

"Really now, do you know, I think I wouldn't mind running down there myself for a day,"-but it was said in a manner which betrayed the fact that such and nothing else was the man's original intention, though why he wished to conceal it was not for me to divine. I told him modestly that my intimate knowledge of the city made me an ideal "guide, philosopher, and friend," if he chose to accept the courtesy, whereupon he thanked me and the compact was made.

The day was warm and the train stuffy and slow. The stranger closed his eyes during a lull in the converse; and though I had suspi-detective work on my own account. I had noticed that the traveler wore two rings on one hand, the jewel of one turned in so as to conceal it. In the half-doze the plump fingers rolled over on his knee, and leaning forward I plainly saw and recognized the royal signet. A few moments later, drawing forth a handkerchief and mopping his bald head, the traveler confirmed my suspicions by disclosing the royal coat of arms embroidered in exquisite miniature. So it was no doubtful imitation of the future sovereign Edward that sat before me. It was the real flesh and blood man. I felt a quick stir within me, moving down to the palaces to the sound of music and the dip of further window and gazing upon the landscape, thinking things.

Here was an episode! A prince of the blood of one of the greatest monarchies of all time, tired of the flatteries of sycophants, longs to get away for a week-end holiday to the carnival at Venice, appointing me his special courier. Did ever American or Briton either, for that matter, enjoy such a delicious compliment. It was now up to me, as the phrase goes, to play my points well. But the longer I thought, the more I was seized of a strong responsibility. What if something happened to His Highness while under my democratic tutelage? Venice during the carnival, when the city is full of royalty, is a rendezvous for every species of anarchist. What if in some lonely canal some villain should leap aboard and scuttle the gondola. One by one weird and terrible imaginings confronted me, then we reached a frontier town where I alighted for a little leg-stretching and a glass of Austrian wine. It refreshed me.

The day passed delightfully. The conversation ran the gamut of men and books, particularly relating to my own country, of which my companion never seemed to weary of discovering a new point of view. By the following morning we had reached trans-Alpine skies and were rolling toward the Adriatic swiftly. It was then that my companion made a strange request. He wished to arrive in Venice under the picturesque spell of the blue Venetian night, which would necessitate stopping off for a few hours and taking a later train, that we might enter the wonderful city while the carnival festivities were at their height. I was delighted to assent. It gave me time to plan things.

It was a quaint old village some five hours from Venice that offered us shelter and repose a picturesque hamlet set in the lower Alpine range where the perfect peace of nature soothed us tired railway prisoners charmingly. After a meal of game, black bread and new wine, of which my companion ate like a peasant at his first urban table d'hote, we started to wander through the fields, chatting like school chums the while, gathering queer wild flowers that grew in profusion over the grassy slopes. In a bed of wild pansies the distinguished traveler lay down at last and was soon fast asleep as a shepherd-boy. I then took occasion to steal back to the village where I sent a telegram to the Chief of Police of Venice, whom I knew

"Meet me at station, eight o'clock train," I advised him, "with two trusty aids. Secrecy. Great importance."

Then I returned to my royal charge, waking him, for the sun was already lowering. "One more bumper of the 'blushful Hippocrene,' sir," I admonished, "and we must away."

Half an hour after what my companion declared to be one of the rarest episodes of his life, we were rolling on toward Venice to enjoy some moments rarer still—but of a far different

As we leaped from the railway compartment at the station in Venice, I saw my old friend, Commandant Negri, Chief of the Police of Venice, waiting to greet me. I asked my fellow traveler to pass on through the station to the Grand Canal, and there await me while I attended to my luggage. I then fell back and seized the hand of the Chief.

"Did you note my traveling companion?" I asked in undertones calculated to impress.

"Ah, some great criminal whom you have been shadowing, I fancy," he answered with uplifted brows. "What is the reward? You clever Americans, you always find some way to steal another man's glory and spoil. Now, why hither at this gala-time to murder the king.

"Hush, I beg of you, Chief." I saw my opportunity to gain a big point by fanning his burning illusion. "If I attain the reward I shall give you half. Only, for every moment of the time we are here in Venice, Chief, one of your aides must shadow us, ready at any time to make the arrest when I call upon them. Is it agreed?"

"As you command, Signore. Only, remember, I must be taken care of this time. You remember the case of the great American defaulter for whose apprehension I was to receive ten thousand lire, but-

"No more of that now, I beg of you, Chief. I must see to my man that he does not suicide in the canal. Mark you, we are not to be lost sight of for one moment until-"

"Until requisition papers arrive, I suppose." "Ah, Chief, how do you manage to guess things so accurately? Well, Addio! I will communicate with you daily in secret."

"Va bene. I remember now. He did have a cions as to his identity, I now undertook a little he feared to be recognized. How long have "Trust me," said 1. "Whoever you are, I have

"All through Germany. But enough; remember, have us shadowed night and day, and -silence. Grazia! Good night!"

My royal charge was already wearing an anxious look when I reappeared, but with ample apologies I was soon seated beside him in the gondola and we were speeding leisurely on toward the Rialto and the piazza San Marco the center of the carnival attractions. Turning in the serpentine course I gave a backward look over the dark waters as we moved through the marble canyons of festooned and illuminated oars in the phosphor waves. There, close in our wake, were two men in a tiny gondola capable of the swiftness of an arrow and of creeping noiselessly through the tiniest crevices of this water-girt city from end to end. "Now for the first sensation!" I murmued almost

By the time we reached the Piazetta we were in fine spirits and unceasing in our exclamation of praise and delight. Stepping to the stone landing, my companion drew down his cap as if the glare of lights affected his eyes, taking my arm with comrade-like familiarity as we crushed our way through the gay ranks toward the balcony of the royal palace, where we knew that the king and queen were shortly to appea and receive the homage of the multitude.

But all eyes were now directed toward the balcony; and when the beautiful queen made her appearance, with his majesty in full military uniform following gallantly, the venerable walls of the pile-stilted city must have fairly tottered. But just as I was congratulating myself upon the entire safety and success of the queerest enterprise ever conceived in modern times, I perceived that my companion was rudely jostled, and something fell and rolled beneath his feet. What he thought it was, I cannot divine; but stooping, I saw him pick it up, slip it into his pocket carelessly, then proceed with his handclapping. Turning full about, I was amazed to see the two detectives of Chief Negri pressing upon us with most knowing expressions upon their swarthy countenances. I gave them a scowl of rebuff, seized the arm of my companion and drew him away. "There is trouble here," I said with something more than alarm. "Crowds make me nervous. Let us return to the gondola and take a spin Linoward-

"Well, since I have satisfied my desire, I yield," rejoined my willing charge. Back to the piazzeta we made our difficult way.

But there I felt a heavy touch on my shoulder. turned. One of the detectives spoke rather roughly:

"Now, Signore we must make the arrest now It is by order of the king. We have been watching. We know now who your mysterious companion is."

"No, not yet-not yet," I pleaded. "There will be a riot and bloodshed for all I know. Listen: we are going to take a turn toward the Lido. Follow fast and make the arrest quietly in the open."

The men in dark attire neither acquiesced nor repulsed me. They stood stock still. I hurried to my compeer of the journey and drew him into the gondola.

"Do you know what those detectives take you to be?"

"Detectives? Where?"

"What have you in your pocket? They saw you pick it up-"Ah, to be sure. I had quite forgotten."

He drew forth a curious oblong box and "Throw it into the water quick! Do you know what it is?" He lifted his calm eyes with "It is dynamite. You are mistaken for a nihilist. They are about to arrest you. Throw it, Plop! went the machine of murder from limp fingers into the water. Side by side we sank upon the cushions. "A Lido, a Lido!" I cried. Once well amidstream I turned. "Look!" said I, pointing through the semi-darkness.

"Do you see that man fishing for the bomb with a crabnet? He mistakes you for the leader of a band of Belgian nihilists who have come See! he is giving orders to his aides, and they are making haste to guard all the exits of the city. We are trapped. Even though they are blundering, it is not a pleasant prospect—this being locked up in a foul dungeon all night-

"Bless me! this will never do," exclaimed my companion, betraying his first sign of agitation. "Let us make for deep water and escape."

"Impossible, sir. With their fleet gondola they will be upon us presently. But tell me; why should you be so alarmed. It cannot be that you are indeed the man whom they sus-

"I-a nihilist-a dynamitard?" He gave a short quick laugh that was without mirth.

"Look!" I murmured. "They have captured their prize. Now they are leaping into their -" My comrade seized me by the wrist. "Order the gondolier into that dark passageway—quick!" he said.

"Stali, stali!" I called out to the man at the oar. The barque gave a sudden twist and passed under the Bridge of Sighs, penetrating suspicious look, that companion of yours, as if thence the narrower, blacker waterways.

promised and I shall keep my promise. Wa shall elude them. I know every crevice and cranny of old Venice, the greatest honeycomb of hiding places in the world."

"I have no doubt of that," replied my guest, "nevertheless I have private reasons why I should rather lose a thousand pounds stering than be arrested upon any pretext whaterer Later I may explain; but now—____

"Here we are at the little Campo San Lorenzo, Just as we make the turn, leap!" We both arose, and as the barque swerved slowly to the right around the corner, I hopped to the stage flagging, my companion following rather clumsily. Calling to the gondolier to await 16, I seized the sleeve of my guest and started through the winding ways into the very hear, of the intricate quarter, through long tunnels dripping arches and crumbling arcades, all dimly lighted with lanterns hung aloft in the darkest of the dark ages. At last we brought up quite breathless before one of these inde wine-shops that are frequented mostly by tag fishermen of the Adriatic—a grimy, gloom, forbidding little den where dark deeds and foul conspiracies seem to hang heavy in the very air. "Granita-due!" I called to the waiter as we seated ourselves in what I thought to be the safest retreat in a deserted place,

But soon I perceived that we were not alone there, for swarthy and spectral shapes took form on the void, then voices, at first log and guarded and then louder with confidence, assailed me.

"A couple of accursed Englishmen," I beard one guttural voice exclaim in Venetian dislect. "You need not fear; they speak no language but their own, the swine. They are out for lark while all the city is en fete. Who knows, now but that they are princes incognite and loaded with money. Iddio mio! one of them does look like Wales himself. I used to see him in Holland—as close as you and I are now. Per dio! I swear it is the great English Prince and no other. Do I ever forget a face? Madre total never! Venice is as full of incognito royalty never! Venice is as this of medgano remay today as a barcaman in liquor is full of a Diacolo. Say now, sons of dogs, suppose to two fine birds should wake up in the middle the Adriatic tomorrow morning, like the look d'Arcos, you remember. Wouldn't there tea d'Arcos, you remember. Wouldn't there here pretty soldo in it for us? Pah!"

Meanwhile the guest kept nibbling his granita, a Venetian ice of some d licary, and plying me with questions which went wide of their property.

their mark.
"See here," said I at length. "Look over my shoulder and note those scoundrelly baramen

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr.M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredoria, N.Y.

Rheumatism Cured, Free.

CONSTIPATION

25.00 common the bound of the outils.

Byweetheart has one of these outils presents one can give to a gentleman.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One six minutes. Address

THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Bex 1229, Augusta,

"What!" My companion drew back and faced me with a curious look.

"It is the truth. We are in the worst quarter of the city and quite deserted on account of the festa at San Marco. We must get out of here instanter. There is trouble brewing. Come!"

"And are there no police near?"

"None save those we wish to avoid in preference to a night in a dirty dungeon. We are bet ween two fires. Let us make tracks."

I threw a coin on the grimy table-top and started into the darkness. There I paused to look back.

"Yes, they mean business," I was forced to confess. "Hark! do you hear them? They are following. Now for a chase. This way-this way,-quick, quick!"

Making a sharp turn in the gloom, over a bridge we sped, down through a long colle and under an arcade leading to another bridge from whose summit I saw our gondolier in altercation with our former pursuers, the detectives. He was trying to tell them the direction of our vanishing. I felt the need of them now, for I had a strategy in view, with my knowledge of Venice and its intricate ways to bring it to is-

"S-s-st! Ecco mi!" I called softly. "Follow us, follow-quick!"

The two men in black heard and understood. Leaving the gondola to shift for itself they took up the chase, falling in behind us directly in front of the sea-pirates who were meantime doubtless fast gaining. Another turn brought us to a long arcade more like a submarine tunnel. It was lighted with a single lantern which I snatched from the wall and extin-

"This way!" I called to my panting companion, dragging him into the dense shadows where we both fell quite exhausted against the Soon they came, the detectives ahead, and instantly behind them their pursuers. There was no warning cry-only a quick spring in the darkness, an oath, two heavy falls upon the slippery flagstones, a groan, a struggle and the odor of some pungent anesthetic. In a moment all was still save the strained breathing of the outlaws who knew their trade well and were as strong as panthers. Then in the awful silence we heard a low command, and one by one the dark forms were carried to the end of the arcade and then dropped into a barca that was erunching against its moorings. Scarcely breathing for fear of our lives, we slunk back into the shadows knowing that a terrible deed had been accomplished right before our very eyes though we could not see. Then we heard the plash of oars and the song of the chief villain as he raised his voice in the weird minors of Tasso to disarm suspicion as they moved through the deserted canals at dead of night, the gutteral echoes rolling through the intricate crevices like the call of the Prince of Darkness:

"Padre, o buon padre, chi dal ciel rimiri, Egro e morto-

He stopped short at the word 'death', for as the barca swept under a lantern hung aloft, he dropped his oar and cried out, "Curse you, swine of a wry-neck mother! We have bagged the wrong game. These are not the principi Inglesi. Iddio! what a blunder. Let's make a landing and drop them. They look more like the watch-hounds of the police, curse them and you too, Piedro!-"

"Come; they have discovered their mistake," were my first words after this thrilling episode that left me perspiring cold and every fibre weak. "This way! We shall make directly for San Marco-

"No, no, no!" interposed my guest, restraining me with a clutch upon my shoulder as he followed unsteadily. "I want to get away from Venice directly-directly before anything more happens-before something occurs that detains me beyond my allotted time, to say nothing of other dangers. How best can we escape?"

Through colle and campo we were plunging like pursued fugitives from justice.

"There is no way," said I at length, "unless by Pavia, and that is a straight row over the lagoons for ten miles or more---'

"I don't care about distance so long as the and is gained, safely, surely. Can I depend on

"You have so far, sir, thanks to your courage. I think I may be trusted to the end." We had reached the open now, and passing along toward the Giardino Publico, took up with the first gondolier we found. Him with another to assist him, we bargained for to make this remarkable journey of flight at dead of night. A few moments later we were lying back upon the cushions, thankful and refreshed, gazing up at the brilliant stars set in the turquoise of heaven, silent and dreamful.

"Extraordinary-most extraordinary!" exclaimed my comrade of the journey at last, and a little later sank into a dull sleep, while I sat bolt upright and kept the long vigil.

It was quite daybreak when we alighted from the little cabin of the gondola and saw the ruby glory of the newborn day tipping the breakfast in a quaint little giardino near the station. We had finished our coffee and had reached our cigars when my taciturn fellow traveler said warmly:

"Do you know, I feel that I have made a friend of whom I shall ever be proud. You have kept your promise to me, and I have enjoyed the most unique experience of my life. But since we are to part in a few moments let me say this: I have a confession." He looked me straight in the eyes, and his own twinkled as he spoke. "Do you know that those scoundrels were right last night?" He saw my glance of interrogation. "They were right, the rascals. What memories villains have! I am Wales. Are you shocked?"

"Why should I be?" I rejoined coolly. "Far from it, your highness. It only reminds me of an episode at one of my favorite metropolitan clubs in New York. Once upon a time a rich Californian Hebrew, visiting New York, was given the privileges of the club. He was good company, with but one fault: he insisted upon trying to conceal his Hebrew-extraction. A certain jolly little humpback, a real wit, took a fancy to the man, showing him many courtesies. One night after a right royal spread and a box at the opera at the humpback's expense, the Californian said gravely: 'My dear fellow, you have been very kind to me and I am going to make a confession, if you will promise not to let it go any farther.' 'I promise,' said his host. 'Well, do you realize who I am?' said the guest. Then bending closer, he whispered, 'I am a Jew.' The host thanked him solemnly for the confidence, then said, 'Well, sir, since you have done me the honor to confide in me, I will sav that I too have a confession, and I beg you to keep it also an absolute secret.' 'I promise!' said the Hebrew. 'Listen now: do you know what I am?' said the host, as the other looked as if wondering whether he was a prince or a prison-bird, and he whispered, 'I'm a humpback!""

The prince's hearty laugh was cut short by the far shriek of the train-whistle. He arose, extending his hand.

"And since you have been so generous as to confide in me," I persisted, "I too have a confession to make, your highness. Do you in turn know who I am?" The prince paled a little. "Well, sir, I am an American detective sent out from Scotland Yard to intercept you somewhere in Germany and play Virgil to your Dante through Venice, give you as good a time as possible and see that no harm came to you. You had not been missed one hour from Homburg before London knew it, and off I was ordered to find you, instead of which you fortunately found me. Ah, the train is here. Bon voyage, your highness!"

"Most extraordinary!" murmured the heir to the British throne, not without a tinge of disappointment. "At any rate, you will send your card to me at Sandringham, when you return to London, won't you?"

The Bad Man of Red Gulch.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY OSCAR S. SEAVER.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

left the gold camp of Bent Pan squirmin g under the despotic rule of a genuine bad man, and returning a month later found it smiling, licking its chops and waiting for the next.

Bent Pan was located in Red Gulch in the Ruby mountains of Montana, which means entirely out of the world, but it supported a brace of saloons capable of supplying the needs of a much larger community. They were called Rawlson's and the Greasers, after their proprietors, and because of close competition or the natural instinct of men to split up into parties—it matters little—those two contending factions divided the camp to a man.

Rawlson's, which had as patrons the respectable peace-loving citizens, generally ran things. They settled claim rights, exacted penalties and meted out White Cap justice by surrounding the opposition at night, shooting out the lights and threatening the life of any man who did not acquiesce in their proposi-

Rawlson's however, was not an overwhelming majority in Bent Pan. Their strength lay in Rawlson himself, who was a strategist of no mean powers, while in the opposing faction, though plenty of men, there was no leader to organize against his rule. So drunk with power or more often with Rye, Rawlson's bullied the Greasers into a dangerous state of sullen hatred heedless of the fact that one man with a head could completely turn the tables. white campaniles and towers of far Pavia with Even Rawlson did not realize this until one blood-red flame. An hour later we sat at Bagley, a powerful, ugly, red-bearded ruffian eyed, red-headed leather poundin' whelp you came into camp and completely terrorized it.

"Sez he can lick his weight in wild cats," Rawlson confided to me, "and he's done it too. Throwed Simpson and Bill Horny over his head and has shot ther tincker in ther leg.'

Bagley lived up to his name of "Bad Man" from the first. Both saloons had slate and chalk at his disposal, playing for his undivided patronage until the bad man himself ended this sacrifice by bullying others into chalking up his drinks on their slates. He bullied, injured and cursed with unbiased attention to the end of being esteemed at the Greasers and hated at Rawlson's. Among the many causes of grievance, however, there was one instance where he went almost too far. Old man Moore, who took care of the change horses for the weekly stage and was blacksmith, had a daughter called Nina, who was far too comely a girl into his coffee pot. to spend her life in a lawless mining camp. She held the men at Rawlson's by their heartstrings and when the bad man had passed upon her qualities with unsparing vulgarity, as a possible wife for him, it almost led to an assassination.

But Rawlson discouraged haste. Old Moore he declared, must act first, and then, as the bad man was a leader at the Greasers, it would be too much like trusting to luck with a grizzly to meddle with him without strategy.

"So here we are," remarked Sandy Low in disgust, "just like a stump-tailed cow tryin' to switch a fly, irritated and waitin' for luck.' It was into this state of affairs that young

Terry Levelle, a tow headed, clean cut cowboy, unintentionally dropped. He rode down through the mountains from Butte City and told his story in a plausible, funny manner that gained lasting popularity for him at Rawlson's.

The home ranch was somewheres in the Bitter Root, where he and his father had stock. From thence young Terry had ridden with a year's pay burning a hole in the pocket of his ragged 'shaps,' bent upon seeing the races at Butte. His father had knowingly advised him to get a new outfit before partaking of the festivities at Butte, but Terry had fallen in with kindred spirits from the Madison Valley and just seed him, says ther little Codger. in a few days had only a few "bits" of his initial wealth. It was sufficient, however, to enter the cowboy race, which on the Fourth of July is an extra on the racing programme, and by hook and crook and a fast footed cow pony, he won the generous purse subscribed for the event. Then he struck into the hills and four days of mountaineering let him into Bent Pan.

He was two hundred miles off his trail however. To get back to the Bitter Root, he should have taken the easy trail leading south down the valley from Butte.

"Sez he's just prospectin' a bit," said Sandy Low, "but why didn't he buy a new outfit after winning the dust? Pardner, thet spidery cowboy shook Butte sudden-like and he ain't layin' out to explain."

This is the episode I missed.

"Ther next mornin' after you left," began Sandy Low, "Bill Summers, me and the Codger what's tincker hereabouts, settin' in front of Rawlson's, seed Terry saunterin' down by Moore's shack when sudden-like he pulls up, and most drops his jaw outen his head. We stretched a bit and seed a petticoat whiskin' into Moore's cabin, which explained ther trouble. It was ther gal Nina what Bagley was tryin' to court, and we had to laugh at ther prospects for Terry warn't bad lookin'.

"He came over to us and asked who she was. We tells him she's ther blacksmith's gal. He rolls a cigarette then gets up.

"'Whar yer goin?' pipes ther Codger, havin' a weakness for questions.

"'Cal'ate I'll have some shoes put on ther cayuse,' drawls Terry grinnin'.

"Well pardner that pony got a surprise in them shoes-never had any before-but ther cowboy got a bigger one when in talkin' he found Moore and his old man had been pardners back in ther fifties. Did Moore melt? It was drop that hat and sot awhile same as if he was holdin' him up with his gun. And say, Terry's

"What did the bad man do? Ther genuine exterminator what could lick his weight in pony most wore out them shoes after that wild cats with rattlers tucked into his boots? He didn't know how to take that spidery cowboy. His bullyin' ended in a joke every time of which ther bad man got ther butt end. But things couldn't last.

"One afternoon, 'bout two weeks after you left, Bill Summers, me and the Codger sittin' in front of Rawlson's seed Terry bolt out of Nina's cabin with a doughnut follerin' what took him just under his bandana. He came over to us a clawin' down his back and his face as red as my shirt.

"'Hello,' says ther Codger, 'Ain't seed yer since noon. Whar yer been"

"'Been? In heaven,' he tells ther Codger ruther joyful.

"Well it was hell comin' next for the bad man was just inside Rawlson's door. He looked mighty onpleasant, ther mangy red-bearded cuss, and when we got to clearin' our throats over ther spirits what Terry set up, he started to cuss ther whole of us.

"'And now,' says he to Terry, 'you green-git out of this gulch or I'll pot yer.'

"Then he roared, and 'bout that time Bill Summers and me felt a flea bitin' our right hip and took to scratchin' it.

"'Oh, go easy, you fat-faced prairie fire,' says Terry, careless like. 'You might stampede the whole bunch of us!'

"Now we expected shootin' but ther bad man rushed, and Terry went down. Bagley thought he'd finished him, but that spidery cowboy was doin' his own tumlin'. Up like a cat and got two whacks in on ther chin what put ther bad man to clawin' 'bout on ther floor.

"Done for? Crawled a minute, then got up and ripped things up generally, lookin' for Terry, who, of course, warn't there. Now we liked that spidery cowboy for lickin' ther bad man and we warn't goin' to see any mud get "Says Rawlson, after ther first explosion, You ain't goin' to hurt ther boy are you Bagley?'

"What?" vells ther bad man, and Rawlson slides over to ther cash box whar he kept his gun. 'I'm going to kill him; who'll stop me?'

"'No one,' says Rawlson toyin' with his gun, our proposition consarns what happens afterwards. And now you onery June bug, git out,' says he pointin' his gun. Then Bill Summers, me, ther Codger, Simpson, Horny and ther rest laughed at ther bad man who slunk down to ther Greasers a cussin us.

"That night we'd a wiped out ther Greasers before ther opposition could organize, which was Rawlson's strategy; but that night 'bout two hours after ther stage had pulled out for Madison, who should ride into camp but ther sheriff from Butte. Said he was trailin' a party what had got into trouble at ther races.

"'So!' says Rawlson, pushin' out a bottle uneasy like. Then he come to ther other end of ther bar to see what me and ther Codger wanted.

"'Terry and ther gal Nina pulled out on ther stage half a mile down gulch, and old man Moore helped 'em. I seed it, so help me,' says ther Codger.

"''Um, whar's Bagley?' says Rawlson.

"'Took Terry's horse and hiked after 'em. I

"'Two hours' start is hopeful,' says Rawlson. 'Foller him,' says he, p'intin' to ther sheriff, who was swaggering out. 'Strategy'll do it," says Rawlson, scratchin' his head.
'Ther Codger come back clean scared. At ther Greasers they told about Terry comin

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., $31 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

If you will drop us a postal we will send you specimen copies of COMPORT, subscription blanks and premium supplements with full information for easy club raising, whereby you may earn valuable, useful articles for every lay use. It's a snap to earn these presents. Learn about it.

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Circumstances over which they had no control forced the manufacturers of the high-grade "Faultless" bicycles out of business, thereby throwing their entire stock on the market to be sold to the highest bidder. At the sale we bought all of their famous "Faultless" bicycles (which retailed regularly for 86) at our own price, and now offer them for sale at about ONE-QUARTER THE REGULAR 440 PRICE; they are brand new, finely finished, up-to-date 190 bicycles, with a national reputation for excellence, Guaranteed one year.

WRITE TO-DAY for free special bleycle in indetail about the catalog and circulars telling in detail about this great sale and naming a price which will astonish you. Don't buy anywhere before you get our price.

JOHN M. SMYTH CO. Madison Street, CHICAGO

I WAS

I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally I cured myself by Galvanic Electricity. If you are deaf, or growing deaf, or have head-noises, don't waste time and money as I did. Write me and I will gladly send Write me and I will gladly send to the send was the work of the work of the waste time and money as I did. HEAD NOISES with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, COHOES, N. Y.

ACENTS WANTED

WORN NIGHT and DAY.
Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

stompin' clus by Nina's cabin. Case of love at first sight. Case of love at 20th Century MUSICAL WONDER.

Orchestra Brass Band ALL IN ONE. O CLOVER . O

down from Butte, had gone to show his pony and had found it gone. Then ther sheriff come and had found it gone. in lookin' serious like.

"'Did any one quit camp just as I come in? says he. "'Yep,' says Rawlson, just heard so. In a hurry, too.'

"'From Butte?' says ther sheriff.
"'Yep,' says Simpson. Then he tells about Terry. "'W hat brand was he ridin'?' asks ther sheriff.

"'Capital A in triangle,' says Rawlson. (That was Terry's horse.)
"'Looks?' says the sheriff, gettin' into his

"'Red-headed, smooth face when he came, but has growd a red scrubby beard since,' says Thankee, pardner,' says the sheriff and bolted. Then old man Moore riz up and give pertic-ulars.

"'Terry did some jockyin' in that race,' he. Square enough I figure, or he wouldn't have got ther purse. But one of the boys was sore and that night tried to shoot him. Shot sore and that night tried to shoot him. Shot his horse instead. One of ther Madison boys shot back ruther clus and while they were carryin' ther feller off, Terry ruther sick and anxious to quit them parts, swapped a dead horse for a live one and struck into ther hills. Now ther sheriff means that thar warn't no killin' and ther feller has made a howl for his horse.

"Well, we speculated on Terry's chances against ther bad man and ther sheriff for three days, and prospects were tough. Rawlson's was down in ther mouth and ther Greasers all was down in ther mouth and ther Greasers all oily smirks. But ther sheriff come back all right with two others, and between them, tied up on Terry's pony, was ther bad man.

"No; just scowlin'. He warn't cussin', pardner. He'd quit that game miles back.

"'Well, yer got him,' says Rawlson, 'what's the charge?'

"We sauntered round to hear.

"'Horse stealin',' sez ther sheriff, and tells 'bout ther trouble at Butte.

"We choked.

We choked.

"We choked.
"'How'd you git him?' says Rawlson.
"'Trailed him to Dillon and got ther sheriff to locate strangers. Found a young cowboy as innocent as you or me enjoyin' his honeymoon, but I told him ther brand I was after. 'I seed it this mornin',' says he. 'Yer did,' says I. 'Yes,' says he, lookin' over my shoulder, "and there's the man what rode it now." I turned and this party walks into my arms. Looks like a horse thief, don't he?"
"'It's a lie,' yells Bagley.

like a horse thief, don't he?"

"'It's a lie,' yells Bagley.

"'Shet up,' says ther sheriff. 'Had no trouble in takin' him, for that young cowboy had covered him and threatened to shoot if he moved a hair or said a word. Well, ther is need of him at Butte,' says ther sheriff, climbin' into his saddle. 'So, s'long boys.'

"Well, pardner, it was a hip hip hooray time that night at Rawlson's. It was luck to Nina and luck to Terry, to which old man Moore riz up returnin' compliments.

"But say, pardner, Rawlson is fer dicouragin' bad men in Red Gulch. Swears ther next stranger what comes into camp talkin' louder'n ordinary is goin' to git potted."

"When You're Up, You're Up."

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HARRIET WALTON.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

HE "fad" district was all astir with the arrival in their midst of an adept.

Now just what is meant by the "fad" district is very simply explained in the few words "Seekers after novelties."

There has always been a class of people the world over who are constantly running after something new in the way of psychical aid and spiritual enlightenment, and in Boston these people are just as numerous in proportion to the size of the city as though she were less conservative.

At the time of the writing of this story anything psycological was the thing and the mysterious and occult seemed at the same time mysterious and occult seemed at the same time to open and be wrapt up in this bit of humanity who called himself "Alheb—the adept."

Many and marvelous were the cures he was daily effecting and weird and uncanny the way in which he could unravel and explain family disturbances, while many a skeleton in the closet fell out with a crash under the penetrating glance of this wizard. But the strangest part was the manner in which he chose to convince his patrons of his occult powers.

vince his patrons of his occult powers.

As I entered his room for a sitting one day, lheb appeared standing in mid air the farthest corner of the apartment while al-most at the same moment he came bowing from behind me and apologized for having been from behind me and apologized for having been late to receive me, giving as an explanation that in his astral form he had been to India that day.

And the next second I found myself alone once more save for a rustling and scraping noise and the odor of a very strong perfume. These peculiar performances were frequently repeated on my visits and the fact that the room contained but the one door by which I entered made his sudden exits and appearances the more convincing that such a man could at entered made his sudden exits and appearances the more convincing that such a man could at least prophesy how stocks were going to turn and when to buy or sell. And this explains why I, a well respected citizen, was entrapped in one of the biggest swindling games that has even been known and allowed by necessity to go unpunished, while the cloud of mystery that has shadowed me for ten years has only now been cleared away.

One word to describe Alheb's quarters. It was in an apartment house in the Back Bay district which had just been completed. An incident of passing interest was the fact that the builder and owner sold it at a great sacridce immediately on its completion and went somewhere across the water and has never since been heard from.

The house was well filled and Albeb converted.

been heard from.

The house was well filled and Alheb occupied oot a suite but a single room on the first floor.
orobably intended originally for the janitor.
It is not known, however, quite what the building the sitting room full of worms and bugs, but er had in mind when he put in this separate room. However, Alheb occupied it and had it artistically furnished with oriental drapings, walls and ceiling covered with red burlap and the floors with most exquisite antique silken rugs.

It was noticeable on entering the apartment how very very small and how extremely low studded the room was; of course strangely appropriate for his eastern furnishings. I always noticed too, and once questioned the necessity of having double windows in such a small, well heated apartment, at which he replied off-hand that he paid enough rent to have windows six deep.

As I have said, my first excuse in consulting him was my wretched luck in speculating, and having heard of the wonderful horoscopes he had cast I was interested and curious as well.

had cast I was interested and curious as well, o see what he could do for me. Day after day went to Alheb's room and in a short time had I went to Alheb's room and in a short time had invested my money at his suggestions where it profited me much, and yet he never demanded more than a mere pittance for these valuable suggestions. This at first seemed to me strange but I finally concluded he was not the grasping foreigner I had pictured him, and after a while many a "sitting" would end with a nibble on some oriental dainty and a pipeful of such tobacco as only Barrie's "Arcadian Mixture" can compare. compare compare.

One afternoon as I was about to leave, Alheb said to me: "Of all Alheb's year tomorrow is my day. If I had $100,000 to invest I could double it in twenty minutes without moving from this chair."

from this chair."

This was more than I, in my weakness for gain could stand, and unhesitatingly I agreed on the morrow to bring to him $100,000 in cash if he would double it and divide the profit.

Accordingly the next day I arrived at his room with a portemonnaic filled with the $100,000. Fearing a possible fraud I employed three detectives to watch the outside of the house and see that no one entered or left during the following twenty minutes. Conscious that my money was well guarded I handed it to Alheb and sank onto the couch with a good cigar, about, as I fully believed, to witness the greatest conjurco on earth perform his master feat. Gradually, as he sat there staring at me I detected that same strong perfume and the same peculiar scraping noise of my first visits, and from then on I was lulled into a dreamy sleep.

Suddenly with a shiver I awoke and found myself lying on the bare floor of an unoccupied room. Where could I be! Just then the chimes on a neighboring steeple discordantly pealed out six o'clock, and slowly my situation recurred to me—my pocket book—Alheb—even his little room had all disappeared. I rushed madly to the windows (which I noted were no longer double), yes, the same scene lay without as I looked upon only a short time before, then to the door and out into the same corridor through which I had passed to enter Alheb's room. A scrap of paper fell from my vest as I hurried, and on it in Alheb's handwriting were these words: Suddenly with a shiver I awoke and found were these words:

were these words:

"When you're up, you're up, and when you're down; but when—" and here the scrap was torn and the remainder of the old saying I mumbled to myself, laughed nervously at the absurdity of it and threw it away. When I reached the street door there were my faithful men half asleep, vowing no one had entered or gone from the house.

I took them back into the room at once, that occupied by the adept, and they hastily ex-occupied by the adept, and they hastily examined all there was left, but a bare room affords so little to inspect that after going down one flight into the cellar and convincing them-selves there was nothing wrong there they went away thoroughly satisfied that there had been no such room, no such inmate and that I was demented, a fact I was scarcely able to dis-

This all happened years ago, but I never re-covered from being so duped and with all the confidence in the world I renewed my energies, amassed a fortune spurred on by the hope that some day, some how—I could get hold of the man who so tricked me, and if not the fortune have at least an explanation of the spiriting away of not only flesh and blood but the furnishings of an entire room, and here today furnishings of an entire room, and here today reading this it le book,—like a message from the dead comes this quotation "when you're up, you're up, and when you're down, you're down, but when you're only half way up, you're neither up nor down."

The same message Alheb left for me! Suddenly the meaning of the saying dawned upon me and seizing my hat I went to the house where I was well known, and with crow-bar and axe returned to the little room. It was a simple task, and beneath the apparently well and axe returned to the little room. It was a simple task, and beneath the apparently well laid floor appeared the vividly recalled red burlap which hung as wall paper and ceiling covering to Alheb's little room; tearing excitedly at this burlap I pulled it away and through a little opening I saw beneath me the missing room, just as it stood that afternoon so long ago when Alheb drugged me into that costly nap. costly nap.

Further investigating explained to me the ingenious mechanism of this curiously arranged elevator-like room within a room, which when lowered left a perfectly empty room behind whose floor was formed and supported by the frame work of this narrow, low room of Alheb's which fitted into a jog between the cellar and first floor, and was cleverly concealed by a unique arrangement of steam pipes over the covering boards.

The house has since been the source of much comment and revenue to the present owner who has visitors daily to see the mysterious room which is "neither up nor down."

That Milliner's Sign.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY ELIZABETH BEAN.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

IS just too much for me to bear, mother," exclaimed a pretty young woman angrily, pressing a handkerchief trimmed with cotton lace to her eyes. "It is bad enough not to have any place in the house where I can entertain company, this having a dressmaking sign stuck up on the front of the house with our name on it is worse still."

The neighbors were in the habit of saving that honors were even between the widow Johnson's daughters. One had inherited all the beauty in the family and the other all the common sense. Serena was the pretty daughter, and Emily, who ran a dressmaking and millinery shop, and made money in it, was the ter, and Emily, who ran a dressmaning and millinery shop, and made money in it, was the sensible one.

The expression of opinion took no account of Anna May, but that was not to be wondered at, because besides being younger and lame, she was "odd."

"Odd," in the neighbors' judgment meant that Anna May was fond of butterflies and "moth-millers," and that she delighted in harboring caterpillars until they wound themselves up into cocoons to be cherished until gorgeous winged creatures freed themselves from the stiff brown shell. The neighbors had no sympathy with such "crawling truck," and privately criticised the widow Johnson for indulging her lame girl's unaccountable fancies.

Mrs. Johnson lived in a village on the outskirts of the White Mountains, to whose hotels and boarding houses a considerable number of skirts of the White Mountains, to whose hotels and boarding houses a considerable number of summer boarders came each year. When her husband died she had found herself in possession of a good house, a small farm, and enough ready money so that with economy she need not worry about her own living and that of Anna May. Each of the two older daughters had received a few hundred dollars from her father's estate. Emily had promptly invested a good share of her capital in millinery goods, and had opened a shop in what had been the little-used "parlor" of her home. Serena was living on her money. She knew she was pretty, and she said to herself, "If I only dress well, and make a good appearance, I ought to be comfortabl/ married before my money is gone."

"Making a good appearance" was Serena's money is gone."

"Making a good appearance" was Serena's chief thought at present. She had assisted this operation to her own satisfaction by changing the spelling of her own first name to "Cyrenie," which she thought infinitely preferable to its original form. This innovation, by the way, was the result of a visit to the town of a troupe of "one-nighters," presenting, as the bills said, "the great French drama, Cyrano de Bergerac." That Cyrano was a man's name made no difference to Miss Johnson. She was able to rise superior to small considerations, she hoped. If she had not been she would not have had the pleasure of the acquaintance of Mr. Frederick superior to small considerations, she hoped. If she had not been she would not have had the pleasure of the acquaintance of Mr. Frederick DeMar Brown, a well dressed, and in Miss Johnson's own words "perfectly elegant young man," who was spending a portion of his summer vacation in Bethway.

When the hot weather filled the hotels and boarding houses of Bethway with summer boarders it was Serena's chief delight to go dressed in her prettiest summer gowns, and to manage to slip in among the out of town visitors and imagine that she was one of them. Sometimes she would spend a whole evening sitting on a hotel veranda, pretending that she was a boarder who preferred to watch the dancing in the parlor from the outside. Pleasant afternoons she devoted to reading novels on rustic seats in some back corner of hotel grounds to which she could go undetected. It was in some of these places that she made the acquaintance of Mr. Brown, just how, when and where she never chose to explain. Mr. Brown was "stopping at one of the hotels," he said, and Serena acknowledged the receipt of this information by telling him that she was "staying in town for a time." Which was "staying in town for a time." Which was "staying in town for a time." Which was quite true. She had stayed there, to be perfectly exact, for twenty-six years, seven months and twelve days.

A week of meetings and walks with Mr. Brown, who Serena did not deny to herself was by far "the most delightful person she had ever known," had developed the acquaintance to a point where she felt it incumbent upon her to invite the gentleman to call upon her if she invite the gentleman to call upon her, if she were to properly encourage his attentions. It was this which had elicited the exclamation to her mother. Before the season had opened Serena's sister had hired the village carpenter to make and nail beside the front door of their home a neatly painted sing:

> EMILY JOHNSON, MILLINER AND DRESSMAKER.

Serena asked herself how she could invite elegant Mr. Brown, who knew her as Miss Johnson, to her home to find that sign staring Collars and Cuffs.

Stylish, convenient, economical. Made of fine cloth, finished in pure starch, and exactly resemble fashionable linen goods.

Mo Laundry Work When soiled discard. Ten Collars or five pairs of Cuffs, 25cts. By mall, 30cts. Send octs. in stamps for sample collar of cuffs. Name size and style.

REVERSIBLE COLLAR CO., Dept. K, Boston, Mass RUBERTU BANTE TASSE WURLITZER BEATS THE WORLD

INSTRUMENTS, DRUMS, ETC.
Reduced Prices. Don't buy until you see new 80-pp. Cat. B. MAILED FREE.
The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.
245 E. Fourth Street, CINCINNATI, Q.

Brass Band

NO SPAVINS

The worst possible spavin can be cureding the finances. Curbs, splints and ringbone just as quick. Not painful and never has failed. Detailed information about the new method sent free to horse owners. Write today. Ask for pamphlet No. 5. FLEMING BROS., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, I of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure.

3 a Day Sure

BOYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 216.

WATCH AND CHAIN FRE

Fully Guaranteed 000000000 We send this Nickel-plated also a chain and charm, to last a chain and charmed a char

THE BLUINE MAN, Box 418, Concord
The Old Reliable firm who sell h and give valuable premiums.

A Ladies' Companion

won't take you long as consider this Chatelaise Bag is a necessity toyour person al belonging. Most every lady has essor more to wear sin different costumes, then are so many uses in such a bag one is hardly enough. You can nesuch a bag for shopping, calling or at the theatre, in thurch or on any hind of an occasion. Ladies dresses without pockets make it necessary to provide some place for handkerchief, and money, and these bags seem to hat fill such a requirement. They are worn hanging from the belt and with a white pocket handkerchief tucked daintilly into the outside pocket as in the control of the control of the outside pocket as shown in illustration they look very janny and stylish. We have only a few of these nice ones to give away made of soft, initiation sal leather and kid lined to protect the belt from wear in every particular just as illustrated. If you will send us club of only two trial subscribers to this magazine at its each per year we will send one bag as a free premium all charges paid; or send 25c, for one year's subscription of Address 1, and we were subscription of the contract of the contra disease you are in grave danger. You may die any minute-anywhere. Heart troubles dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once.

If you have heart

Sudden Death

Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side or more ready and breath fainting. pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

leart Disease

choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk, I twill cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. F. G. KINSMAN, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE.

GIFT FOR THE HOME. ART

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handlest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delightful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. We will send one sample All Wool Duster free to any person who will send twelve cents for a trial three months' subscription to our great family paper. The best offer ever made. Address. Adolben Momen

Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine

him in the face. Of course he would guess at once that it was her home and not her boarding house. Mr. Brown had told her that he was connected with one of the largest dry goods establishments in Boston. What would he think of her if he found that her sister was only a milliner and dressmaker?

Serena came home one evening desperate. It had taken all her tact to prevent Mr. Brown from attending her to her very door, and she had invited him to call upon her the next afternoon. The horrible sign confronted her. The house was dark except for a light left for her in the hall. The sign was small, and lightly nailed on. She took hold of it, gave a vicious pull, and found it in her hands. With the decision which in men makes generals vicious pull, and found it in her hands. With the decision which in men makes generals Serena walked across the yard and dropped the painted board into an old well in the corner of the garden.

In the morning the milliner and her mother lamented the loss of the sign. The neighbors said that without doubt a party of college students who were camping a mile outside the village had stolen it, and the next week's local paper had an editorial on "Vandalism," discreetly using no names, however, for fear of offending possible next door boarders. A new sign could not be made and painted inside of a week, though, and Mr. Brown made his call, and several more, before he was obliged to leave town, without ever suspecting that his hostess bore any relationship to the plain little milliner whose shop was in the same house. When he was gone, and the mail began to bring frequent letters from him in large square linen envelopes, Serena was radiant.

letters from him in large square linen envelopes, Serena was radiant.

One day, late in the summer, two women walking down the village street saw the little sign and spoke of it.

"Let's go in," said one, laughing.

"I expect it will be very funny," said the other,
as they went up the gravel walk to the door.
Serena, looking at the woman through a window, said to herself, "How plainly they are dressed." Her sister, when they were in the shop, recognizing the richness of material and quiet elegance of style of their garments, made mental notes for her own future benefit.

The visitors made some slight purchases as an excuse for coming in. When the owner of the shop had gone to wrap the bundles one of the women pointed to the bonnets and hats displayed in the cheap little show case, and said to the other:

"Ellen, do you see those? That is genius.

"Ellen, do you see those? That is genius. Cheap stuff and crude work, of course, but postive genius. Do you suppose she made them?" "I don't know," said the other woman. "Let's ask her."

"I don't know," said the other woman.

"Let's ask her."

The little milliner, blushing a bit with pleasure at the compliment, said the bonnets were of her own design and making.

"But where did you get your ideas? Whatever made you think of combining those shades?" one of the women continued, indicating a particular bonnet.

The milliner hesitated.

"Please don't think me impertinent," the visitor hastened to explain. "I'm sure I didn't mean to be. I am Mrs. —" giving a name which even the country woman recognized as that of the proprietor of the most stylish millinery establishment in Boston.

"Oh, it wasn't that," the owner of the shop exclaimed. "It was only that I was afraid you would think it so odd if I told you where I got the idea. I don't think I mind, though. Won't you please step this way?"

She led the visitors across a narrow hall into the sitting-room, from which Serena, who had heard them coming and was not dressed for callers, hastily retreated.

"Anna May," she said, "may we see your specimens?"

A girl who was bending over a box on the window sill, looked up shyly at the strangers.

A girl who was bending over a box on the A girl who was bending over a box on the window sill, looked up shyly at the strangers, and then with the help of a crutch went to a wooden cupboard and opening the door showed the whole interior covered with beautiful butterflies and moths. The milliner pointed to one superb moth, brown, gold and red.

"I got the idea of combining those shades from that moth," she said.

"Ellen," said one of the visitors, "did you ever?"

"No," said her companion, "I never did; but I hope I know enough to know a good thing when I see it."

when I see it."

The result of which was that Emily Johnson is now employed as a designer in the great Boston establishment, at a salary which Bethway people regard as fabulous. She still depends upon Anna May for ideas, paying her handsomely for them, and the neighbors have come to regard with due respect "oddities" which have such tangible results for good.

Serena? Oh. ves.

Serena? Oh, yes.

Emily had not been in Boston long before she wrote home one day, all unknowing how cruel her words were:

"When Serena comes down to visit me she will be surprised to find another acquaintance here. That Mr. Brown who used to come to call on her last summer tends the handkerchief counter in our store."

His Duty to The Flag.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY D. H. TALMADGE.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

RIVATE Donagan, with characteristic disregard for conventionality, was approaching his death without doctor to ease his physical pain or priest to calm his soul. He lay in his blankets, biting his blue lips with white teeth, and listening doggedly to the rain upon the tent above him, while his comrades talked in low tones and wagged their heads grimly. At a little distance stood the lieutenant, his eyes alternately resting upon the dog-tent where the sufferer lay and a light spot in the clouds of the western sky. The lieutenant was laboring with a sorely vexed spirit, as only men of refined sensibilities can labor when heart revolts against mind. His duty as specified by orders, required him to push on with his command; his duty as a sympathetic human being—which person military orders are not given to encouraging in times of war—held him to the dog-tent and Private Donagan. He thought over the situation very carefully, and finally, with the lines of indecision still deep upon his brow, but with moisture that was not rain in his eyes, he strode to the dog-tent and crawled in.

"Well, Donagan, how are you by this time?"
he asked, assuming a cheerfulness he was far he asked, assuming a cheerfulness he was far from feeling.

"Oi think Oi could be worse, sor, but not much. Iv'ry bloody thrid in me carciss be tinglin' loike toothache, and me hid—me hid—look out, sor! Oi be fearful 'tis goin' to bursht this minute! Crawl back, sor, back! 'Twill shpatter on yer clo'es!"

The lieutenant placed his hand gently upon the sufferer's forehead. "No danger of its bursting, Donagan, my man," he said kindly. "You have a touch of fever, that's all. If we had a doctor we should have you up in no time, but, having none, we have only to grit had a doctor we should have you up in no time, but, having none, we have only to grit our teeth and beat it off. That is the thing to do, Donagan. You are great at beating things off. Do you remember that morning at Iloilo when six of the Filipinos attacked you from a half-dozen directions? Do you remember it?"

Donagan smiled. "Yis," he said, "Oi remimbers it. Thim poor divils be did now—foive av thim on the faild and one av thim takin' an iligint bay'nut thrust home wid him in troiumph gint bay'nut thrust home wid him in troiumph to show the woife av his boosom. Yis, yis, Oi remimbers.

remimbers."
"You are a fighter, Donagan," continued the lieutenant, "and you must fight this sickness off. Go to sleep now, and you will be yourself again in the morning. Is there anything you want?"

Nothin' sor."

"Nothin' sor."

He turned his face away wearily, and the lieutenant joined the group outside the tent.

"Men," he said, "we must move in the morning. It is very important that we do so. If Donagan is not able to go with us, we shall be compelled to leave him, and one of you will have to stay. I am sorry. We are too few as it is, but we must make the best of things."

He walked slowly to his own tent, and the men looked at one another solemnly.

Private Jim Brown spoke first. "Donagan'll was the able to move in the mornin'." he said men looked at one another solemnly.

Private Jim Brown spoke first. "Donagan 'll not be able to move in the mornin'," he said with conviction, "and whoever stays with him 'll stand a mighty good show of gettin' chawed up by savages. It's nothin' short of providence that we ha'n't been run across by some of 'em before this. The poor feller ought to be took before this. The poor feller ought to be took to camp.

before this. The poor felier ought to be took to camp."

"O' course," said Private Smith, "he ought, but there's no way of takin' him. Besides, 'twould interfere with this game we're playin', whatever it is."

"That's so," said Brown with a sigh; "we're up against scout's luck—it's get through or die. It's a good old warmin' up the lieutenant 'll come in for if he don't carry out his orders. 'Wough!' the colonel 'll say, 'one of your men took sick, eh? Suddenly, eh? Had to stay with him, eh? Well, sir, you've simply raised hell with the American army, sir! What the double-dashed Filipino flag did you do it for?' I don't envy the lieutenant in case the old man gets after him. He's so tender-hearted he'li take it awful hard."

"Oh, I reckon we'll get through," said Smith.

"Oh, I reckon we'll get through," said Smith.
"Anyway, we've got to make the best of present circumstances, and there's no comfort in bad dreams. What's that?"
"It's Donagan," said Brown; "hush!"

"Two Donagan they called him
Whin the soldier shid his blood,
'Two Donagan they called him,
But his name wor railly Mud."
"He's in bad shape," whispered Brown. "The trouble's gone to his head, and he's spoutin' poetry."

The others shook their heads and gazed at the dog-tent without comment.

"He thought he wor a folghtin' man, But he sthruck a thing at lasht Thot broke his future inty bits, And his hince become his pasht.

And whin he found his hince wor gone, Wid all his moight and main He raised the divil wid his tint,— And wor laid out in the rain."

And wor laid out in the rain."

There was a ripping of canvas and Donagan's boot appeared through the top of the dog-tent. "What in Sam Hill!" Brown jumped forward. "Quick, boys! he's crazy! Come and lay down on him!" "Crazy nothin'!" Donagan's head was thrust suddenly through the aperture made by the boot. "Oi be falin' bitter, thot's all." The men hesitated, blank astonishment upon their faces. Donagan laughed, but it was not

The men hesitated, blank astonishment upon their faces. Donagan laughed, but it was not a pleasant laugh. His eyes were wild as a windy sunset, and his face was chalky white.

The lieutenant came up, running. "Donagan," he ordered sternly, "lie down at once. Brown, stay with him and keep him quiet."

Brown's great hairy hand descended softly upon Donagan's head, pushing it below the canvas. Then he crawled into the tent, and for a moment there was a sound of struggling. "He's all right now, sir," called Brown, gaspingly; "quiet as a a kitten." His voice fell to a tone of expostulation at close quarters, and the lieutenant, smiling slightly, turned away. "The poor fellow overheard the men talking," he told himself.

Darkness fell upon the earth, and simultaneously it fell upon the mind of Private Donagan.

Darkness fell upon the earth, and simultaneously it fell upon the mind of Private Donagan. And out of the darkness Private Donagan unrolled the scroll of his past life, Brown, sitting half upright beside him, listening.

"Whisht!" said Donagan. "Proy open the windy careful now. There! Me firsht. Throw a bit av loight on the floor, Bill, for Oi've no moind to be stippin' inty stail traps. Up shtairs now, and moind yez the floor's iggs. Ah-h! Look at thot now, Bill, look at thot! Watches, Bill, and a foine pocket-book as big as a ham—divil a thing in it but papers! Git inty the pants pockets, me b'y, whoile Oi runs over the bunch av shtuff. O moy, O moy! Here's a mor'gige give boi the widdy Flannagan on the shanty and the pig. And here's another boi which Johnny Muldoon—poor sick Johnny—'ll lose his cow. 'Tis lucky we chanced in this noight, Bill, for these things nades liftin'. Whisht! What's thot? Quick! Snaik, Bill, for yer loife!"

"He's evidently been in the burglary line," commented Brown to himself, peering through the semi-darkness at the sick man. "I wonder—"

"Down boi the soide av the babblin' brook, wid vez on me arm. Mary Ann."—Donagan's careful! A wit foot moight main congistion av yer little lungs, Mary Ann, and a burshtin' inty smithereens av me own fond heart. There! Now Oi have yez! 'Tis in the niddle av the ragin' shtrame yez be, and yez can naither go ahid or back till yez name the day. What's that? Not till yez pay off the mor'gige on the house av yer mither? Ah, Mary Ann Flannagan, yez be a good girl, but thot mor'gige'll niver house av yer mither? Ah, Mary Ann Flannagan, yez be a good girl, but thot mor'gige 'll niver come up aginst yez, for 'twor shtole from the old shkinfiint thot hild it. Hoinsty? An, yis; but till me, shwate, whoy honisty's required only av the poor. Oi—Oi—yis, Oi'll be takin' it back—don't be lookin' at me loike thot—don't, darlin'—don't!''

Then he cried out suddenly like a wild beast, so quickly did the moods of his delirium change. It required every ounce of the strength in Brown's great frame to hold him down.

down.

down.
"Arrist me, would yez! Curse yez! Do it thin! Come on, all av yez, wid yer little tin shtars and yer clubs! Oi be a howlin' divil! Whir-r-roo! Take thot and thot and thot! The gutters'll be runnin' knay-dape wid the blood av yez, and the shkins av yez 'll be shtritched on the cobbles before yez takes me in, yez damned.—"

in, yez damned---''
He sank back limp, still cursing feebly, and shtritched on the cobbles before yez takes me in, yez damned—"

He sank back limp, still cursing feebly, and the mood changed once again. He spoke quietly now, almost meekly.

"The oath av allegince to the shtars and shtroipes—God bliss thim! Give me the book thot Oi may put me hand upon it. Me country—Oi'll foight for her and foight hard; Oi'll doie for her and be glad. Ah, Mary Ann Flannagan, 'twor a cruel trick yez played on the man thot loved yez true! 'Twor not noice ov yez to give me up to the law for what Oi did for yez! Oi forgive, yez, darlin', but 'twor cruel, cruel! Oi be true ta yez yit, shwate. Sometoime—Oi dunno—Oi dunno—Yis, sor, Proivate Donagan av the fourty-fourth. Thank yez, sor. Oi always troies to do me duty to the flag. "Twor a good foight, yis, sor. Oi—"

Then in an instant he seemed to fall asleep, and Brown, wearied by the exertion, sank down beside him.

When Donagan opened his eyes again, the delirium had passed, and he lay for a time blinking at the stars through the rent in the canvas. Brown was snoring gently, one of his arms across Donagan's body. Donagan cautiously pushed it aside, and slowly, with infinite labor, worked his way out of the tent. "Oi musht do it," he told himself with a sorry wink, "for the sake av the flag. They musht move in the mornin'—the liftinant said so. Holy mither! Oi could not shtay in thot tint longer—'twor thot shtoiflin' hot. "Tis air Oi musht have and ixercoise, yis, yis."

He crawled slowly to the near-by stream, and remained for a time with his hands in the cool water. Then he bathed his throbbing, whirling head, and chuckled.

"Tis thot simple!" he thought. "O moy, O moy! There's Illiott on guard, and 'tis a pinny he can plug at a hundrid yards. 'Tis a bit av a rustlin' sound Oi'll be makin'. He shtops, and brings up his roifle. Thin Oi'll be roisin' up loike this. and duckin' agin. He's got me in his oye. Now 'tis once more Oi'll be liftin' me hid again, and thin—"

The rifle shot rang out sharply. Its echo had hardly died away before Brown was a

They found him there on the bank of the stream, his blood still flowing from a hole between the eyes. At daybreak the command moved on.

We extract the following from the Medical Reprints: The value of antikamnia tablets consists in their rapid effect in alleviating pain. Two five-grain tablets almost instantly relieve headaches or neuralgia. A dozen five-grain tablets should at all times be near at hand. Twenty-five cents will get a dozen from your denograt

THESE WARM DAYS

You are cooking with an Oil Stove. For the best results, most heat and no odor use Carbon wicks. Millions in use at hotels and restaurants. Any width from 11-2 to 5 inches, 10c. for a sample. Last all summer. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

LYON & HEALY'S BRASS BAND
OWN Make

INSTRUMENTS. Indorsed by the great Jules Levy as the best in the world. Big Catalog, 400 illustrations, FREE. Positively he lowest prices on Band Instruments,
Uniforms and Supplies of all kinds
Also contains Music and Instrutions for New Bands. Lyon & Healy, Manufacturers, 22 Adams st., Chieage.
(Lyon & Healy is the largest music house in the world—Editor.)

PRINTS YOUR NAME. POCKET STAMP. 15¢ NICREL PLATED THE MARKS STAMPS OF ALL KINDS, BURBER TYPE ETC. PERKINS RUBBER STAMP CO. F8, NEW HAVEN.CONN.

HERE IS HEALTH.

Dr. Slocum's New Discoveries Praised Everywhere.

Consumption, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Weak Lungs Cured by His Marvelous Treatment.

FREE TO YOU.

Dr. Slocum's success in curing consumption and all diseases of the throat, lungs and bron-chial tubes has been the subject of wide comchial tubes has been the subject of wide comment throughout the country.

That he has completely mastered the consumptive bacilli is generally admitted.

Hundreds of letters are being received daily from every State proving the great value of the Slocum system—testimony that comes from leading citizens in such a way as to leave no room for doubt.

Every reader of COMFORT who suffers owes a duty to health and posterity, the performance of which means a speedy trial of Dr. Slocum's four preparations, which are free on request.

Every weak and emaciated person needs the Slocum System to strengthen and produce flesh.

Every hollow-chested and weak-lunged sufeds it to fortify against the changeable Every one with catarrh, a stubborn cough or cold needs it to render the system proof against bacilli infection.

GROVE PARK, Alachua Co. OROVE PARK, Alachua Co., Fla.
Oct. 19, 1900.
DEAR SIR:—I received your letter, also the remedies that you sent at my request. The pain in my chest has vanished and I am feeling a great deal stronger than before. I shall recommend your remedies to all in my town who are suffering from consumption or any disorder of the throat, chest and lungs. Thanking you very kindly for what you have done for me, I remain,
Yours respectfully,

M. T. BOOKER.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM,

DEAR SIR:—My delay in reporting to you the effect of your wonderful remedies was prompted by the desire to ascertain whether the results would be permanent, and am now thoroughly convinced that your Remedies are all that you have claimed. My wife has been losing strength and flesh for about twelve months. She has taken your remedies and gained several pounds. I will gladly recommend your medicine to my friends. Please accept thanks for your kindness in sending the Remedies, and if I need any more of your medicine I will send to you for it.

Respectfully,

J. W. WHIDDON.

WRITE NOW.

If you want to get well quickly, write Dr. T. A. Slocum, 96 and 98 Pine Street, New York, giving your full address, and he will at once send you the full free course treatment fresh from his great laboratories. Remember, he charges you nothing for the treatment, and only asks your commendation to others after being cured. Please mention Comfort when writing the Doctor.

PAY $18 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send b. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kansas.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but It Will Coln Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Pollshing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this clesh, a brilliant lasting pollsh will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnian out the property of the control of

Heady, value, trees,

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, frot. house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both exces. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agents prices and a paid three months trial subscription to our charming family paper. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly assisted.

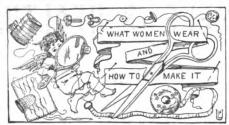

SUNSHINE, BOX 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Sent Free to Everybody!

The fashion in Hammocks is ever changing. This year we offer you something entirely different than the usual premium hammock, a fine quality, fancy pattern, fish-net cotton, same as is used by fishermen; something substanial and is tested to hold 300 pounds, dead weight, is 10 feet long, over 32 inches wide. Highly colored in red, black, rellow and white. Each Hammock has a pocket in the end of the net for a concealed stretcher, any narrow piece of strong wood can be inserted and will serve the purpose, giving the Hammock a fine finished and inviting appearance.

wonder—"
"Down bot the soide av the babblin' brook, wid yez on me arm, Mary Ann,"—Donagan's voice rose clear now and joyous—"be hivin' nothin' liss; for thim lips, me shwate, be the gates to happiniss, and the loight from thim oyes shows a hungry lad the way to it. Stip yer little foot careful, Mary Ann, for the shtones be uncertain as loife. Careful, darlin',

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

gown of black taffeta is a necessity in the wardrobe of every welldressed woman of today. It may be modeled after very simple lines, a prettily flaring skirt tucked and an eton also tucked or it may be elaa prettily flaring skirt tucked and an eton also tucked or it may be elaborately trimmed with black velvet ribbons, and certainly this mode of decoration places such a costume upon an economical basis. A beautiful gown of this sort is set in close clusters of tiny tucks with intredeux of black chantilly shaped in long ovals showing an underskirt of white silk. The bodice repeats the tucks and displays an elaborate front, very pouchy, of white chiffon beautifully embroidered and sewn with steel paillettage. A tiny touch of pale blue at the top of the stock, the wrists and at the belt give the necessary color. Very few gowns are now left to a preponderance of black effects, but are relieved by bits of color cleverly placed.

A novelty in dress trimming is the use of satin broche ribbon known as Dresden, the flowered circles cut out and applied to a narrow framing of taffeta, stitched, before applying to the cloth.

Some of the new hat shapes are supremely

the cloth.

Some of the new hat shapes are supremely ugly, and any girl must be more than pretty to wear them well. Fancy a medium sized sailor with a tam-o'-shanter crown quite as broad as the brim. Of course this leaves a groove between the brim and crown which is filled in with crushed tulle or folded silk, very soft in quality.

quality.

The "lace stitch" done in heavy twist is used in profusion on new gowns. A frock of white organdie dotted with raised black polka dots has a number of thin black lace bands set into the skirt, each band con-nected by this coarse lace stitch.

coarse lace stitch. The effect is wonderfully fetching.

If you wish to be entirely in the swim you must have your new shirt waists button down the back; they are not called shirt waists at all, but blouses, and are made up in dainty wash silks as well as thin cotton stuffs.

stuffs.

In Paris they are wearing skirts much wider and shorter than we are here and I suppose it is only a matter of a short time when we will be only a matter of a short time when we will be doing the same.

The high, stiff stock we have clung to so long is, I am sure, bound to give way little by little to the narrow, soft affairs of unstiffened lace or silk. These soft, unlined stocks are infinitely more dainty, and much more comfortable for warm weather wear.

Ribbons are so much used as dress garniture this season it surely will not be amiss to mention some of their beauties here. A ribbon of mousseline taffeta has a floral design in prettily contrasting colors in wreath effect, outlined by rows of machine stitching, providing a most tasteful and effective contrast. Very much to the fore are the ribbons in solid color with borders of gold or silver.

A dainty way of trimming a frock of muslin or leas with ribbon is to combine the head.

color desired, with broad white taffeta; the bows being of the white, with a small bow of the black in the center, and the black twisted loosely a round the around the bands of white

the very latest cry is the use of one single end of ribbon at the back, twisted loosely with the narrow velvet, and finished at the extreme end with a full bow.

Very few evenring coiffures are worn unadorned this season. Sometimes the decoration does not consist of more than a soft more than a soft rosette of ribbon or tulle placed be-much more pretentious mode is effected with the use of jeweled combs or barrettes. There are all styles and varieties of barrettes of course, but the very long, oblong shape leads in but the very long, oblong shape leads in modishness and it can be had in the most gracefully intertwined designs as well as the more simple double bar joined at either end. A striking example of this novelty is shown in silver gilt set so thickly with tiny rhinestones that nothing but an apparently unbroken ripple of dancing light is seen, and as they are exceedingly small and set flat, it is really impossible to detect any difference between these and the real jewels when once they are placed in the hair. Combs of genuine amber with waved tops of unusually lovely design are often ornamented with these same rhinestones set in silver, and show all the care and finish expended on much more expensive articles. The loveliest on much more expensive articles. The loveliest of amber combs are set with imitation turquoise of a lovely blue, while others show a combination of turquoise and rhinestones.

Jeweled hairpins are among the latest inspira-tions and are used singly or in pairs crossed at the back of the head, supposedly in order to keep stray hairs in place.

The fashion of wearing two or three tiny gold

The fashion of wearing two or three tiny gold neck chains at one time is novel, but very popular; each chain bearing a burden of some jewel or other, oftentimes quite inexpensive. Beautifully cut, real amethyst hearts are so cut that each side is equally effective and set at the top with a cluster of wee rhinestone leaves, daintily fashioned and set in silver-gilt. Neck chains of real gun metal set with large pearls, very genuine in appearance, are popular, and among the most fascinating bits of finery offered to women.

among the most fascinating bits of finery offered to women.

Bits of hand painting upon many of the new frocks make them so costly as to reduce the number of wearers very much to the minority.

An exquisite gown of transparent black voile made over black silk, a narrow skirt yoke of hand painted mousseline de soie, the design being a series of different colored roses, the yoke set in close shirrings drawing the colors so closely together that the effect is a beautiful blending of color.

Signers of the Declaration of Independence.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

F the fifty-six men who signed the Declaration of Inde-

Declaration of Independence eight were of foreign birth.

Matthew Thornton, James Smith and George Taylor were born inIreland, James Wilson and John Witherspoon in Scotland, Robert in Scotland, Robert Morris and Button Gwinnett in Eng-land, and Francis Lewis in South

Of the forty-eight who were American born, nine were born in each of the States of Massachus etts and Virginia. Five were born in Mary-land and four each was the number South Carolina, New Jer-Three were born in New from Pennsylvania, South Carolina, New Jersey and Connecticut. Three were born in New York and three in Delaware, while two came from Rhode Island and one from Maine.

Nearly every man of the number was highly educated and more than a score of them were graduates of the best colleges. Nearly every profession seems to have been represented among them, but nearly half the number were

In 1779, John Adams became vice-president of the United States, under Washington, and then became President in 1797.

Thomas Jefferson served as vice-president un-der Adams and then became the third President in 1801. By a strange coincidence of circumstance, these two men who had been so closely associated together during life, both died on July 4th, 1826, just fifty years from the day when they signed the Declaration of Independence.

Elbridge Gerry became vice-president under Madison, in 1813, and died while serving in that capacity.

Two of the signers of that wonderful document attained to the highest office in the gift

$ 8 35 BUYS BELLEVIEW SEWING MACHINE which is accurately described and finely illustrated in our FREE SEWING MACHINE CATALOG, together with our

MACHINE CATALOG, together with our

$40.00 DROP-HEAD FAULTLESS AT . . . $12.50
$50.00 BALL-BEARING NEW ERA AT . . . $14.55
$60.00 BALL-BEARING HAPPY HEARTH AT . . $18.75 and a big line of drop-head upright and drop-desk machines from $12.50 up. We are exclusive agents at our prices for the output of sewing machine factories with national reputations; sell direct to the consumer at actual cost of material and labor with but the manufacturer's small profit added. Ship anywhere direct from factory without one cent in advance, allow $0 days' trial and guarantee our machines for 20 years, 20,000 now in use—thousands of testimonials. Write to-day for Free Special Sewing Machine Catalog and post yourself on prices.

JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150 to 166 and 287 and 289 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, III of the people and three served in the next highest capicity, but almost every one reached to high official positions. The offices of Governor, Chief Justice, Foreign Minister, and other places of trust were bestowed on them, while nearly all of them were sent as delegates to the Continental Congress at various times. John Hancock was the president of that congress when he placed his name as the first signature on the Declaration of Independence.

Of these fifty-six men, Benjamin Franklin was the oldest, having been born in 1706, while Edward Rutledge was the youngest although he was but three months younger than Thomas Lynch, Jr.—the one being born in November and the other in August of 1749.

At the close of the year 1775, Thomas Lynch, Jr. started on a trip to the West Indies and the vessel in which he sailed was never heard from, making it a probability that he was the first one of the fifty-six to die. Charles Carrol outlived all the others and died on November 14, 1832. of the people and three served in the next high-

Men drafted the Declaration of Independence and men signed it, no woman's name appearing thereon, and yet it was a woman who had the courage to save the document, at the risk of her life. When the British soldiers were looting and burning things at the Capital on August 24, 1814, Dolly Madison remained in the White House as long as it was possible and having secured the valuable records, was just leaving the place when she thought of the Declaration of Independence which was carefully guarded in a case by itself, and so had been overlooked. Rushing back, in spite of all efforts to detain her, she smashed the glass of the case with her hand and snatching the priceless treasure succeeded in saving it.

Enterprise and money, in the hands of men, rebuilt the city, but no wealth and no power could have replaced that document which is dear to the heart of every loyal American.

One other item of interest lies in the fact that the first complete copy of the document was published in the German language, appearing in the STAATSBLATT on July 9, 1776, Henry Miller, who had been a printer for Benjamin Franklin being the publisher. Men drafted the Declaration of Independence

Something Worth Having for Advertisers.

Every advertiser knows of the Charles H. Fuller Advertising Agency, Chicago, and a very large number of the announcements appearing in this paper originate in this Agency's office. This Agency has just published a very handy book for use by general advertisers interested particularly in what are known as the mail-order mediums, called "Charles H. Fuller's Banner List." The book gives full particulars wished for by present or prospective advertisers of all the facts about each paper, the designation of which is shown by a reproduction of the title heading. Not only is the booklet a necessary fund of information in this line, but as a work of art it holds high place. The Fuller Agency will willingly send a copy to those placing advertising and we advise every advertiser to secure a copy for reference and use.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS

Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27 Salina, Kan

RLS BOYS friends, A beautiful R for welling only one box
GARFIELD GUM O

LADIES TO DO SEWING AT HOME paid; send stamped addressed envelope for sample an particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Phila, Pa

Married or Single: no matter where you live you can make money right in your own home and attend to housenold duties at the same time.

A successful woman has written a book of a pages, double column, with full instructions. pages, double column, with full instruction
Price, by mail, securely wrapped, 10 cent
Address STAYNER PUB. CO., PROVIDENCE, R. 1.

A Ripans Tabule, now and then, Will benefit the wisest men; And if dyspepsia is their woe

Continued, Ripans make it go.

WANTED.—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. Ois gives relief. 10 for 5 cents at drug stores. Ten sample and one thousand testimonials mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 11 Spruce St., New York.

Pocket Book and Card Case

In combination, an article every lady uses daily, a necessity for carrying change, bills and personal cards, It was constylish to carry a wallet for money and a case for cards, now the combination case is in use by every one. We have a few in real seal leather, with two compartments for loose change, closing with metal hinges and springs all highly nickel plated, also a number of compartments for cards and memorandums or anything similar you wish to carry about. The outside is finished in pebbled seal effect without ornament of any kind making a rich, stylish Pocket Book. Size is 4½ inches long and 3 inches deep. A wonderful bargain for $1.50 in any store, but we want our magazine read in every home and are giving these beautiful premiums free to our readers. For a club of only two trial yearly subscriptions to this magazine at 25c, each we here, open and closed; or, send 50c, for you the Pocket Book free. will send a Pocket Book just like illustrations shown here, open and closed; or, send 50c. for your own subscription for two years and we will give you the Pocket Book free.

Address FAMILY HERALD, Augusta, Maine.

PORTIERE OR DRAPERIES FOR A CLUB OF SIX.

Home, Sweet Home. Make It Beautiful and Attractive.

With all its charms and pleasure for us all.

Is lacking in essential beauty if there are no portieres at all.

Portieres used at doors or windows give your rooms such a dressy refined finished appearance. The effect is charming and your whole house is benefitted, even old furnishings or will paper are brightened up when these attractive curtains are hung. They give a cozy, warm appearance from the outside in winter and can be held back in summer or used to keep out the heat. Many people nowadays have old couches in good repair but needing new upholstery, so they go into a store and buy a Bagda couch cover paying $5.00 or more. These curtains will serve for couch, sofa or lounge covers and give a pleasing effect and make old furniture as good as new and much more convenient to dust or brush. In former times wealthy people built magnificent mansions and went abroad for the furnishings which were rich elegant and costly. Among the many things brought foul Russia and Turkey were rugs, couch covers and portieres, beautiful, soft, silk fabrics, with ornaments worked by hand, and it didn't take our ingenious Yankees long to discover methods of making these goods, so by combination of brain and capital we can today offer a pair of heavy Tapestry Curtains over yards long, 40 inches wide, reversible and both sides allike mercerized effect in red, green, light bine, green and brown, large enough for ordinary doors, windows or couches. Really much more beautiful than the words elearly describe, but we can positively guarantee satisfaction. Framium one curtain for $1.75; $3.35 for magazine a year and one pair of postpaid. Or for a club of 12 subscriptions at $26, each, $3.60, will send one pair. Or we will send magazine 5 months and one curtain for $1.75; $3.35 for magazine a year and one pair of Portieres. Send for canvassing outifit to With all its charms and pleasure for us all, Is lacking in essential beauty if there are no portieres at all

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscrib-ers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general neerest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain of the correct as the writers can make them, and may vary an length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only etters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six undred and fitty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prises will be paid monthly: lst. For the best original letter
2nd. " " second best original letter
3rd. " third " "
4th. " fourth " "
5th. " fifth " "

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply the all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least wo new Cousins into the Comport circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together ith 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this spartment.

These cash prizes will be given for subscriptions sent in Approximate will be given for subscriptions sent in Miner this Prize Offer.
All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of COMPORT, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Mrs. M. S. Barnes,

$3.00 W. Adelle Darby, 2.50 2.00 Plorence A. Neuman, George Jones 1.50 J. Mayne Baltimore, EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS: Fervid July is upon us again, and I venture to doubt whether any of the Cousins have he ambition to "Put a girdle about the earth In forty minutes."

Most of us feel more like asserting that "I know a bank where the wild thyme blows, Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows, Quite over-canopied with luscious woodbine With sweet musk-roses and with eglantine," and betaking ourselves thither with all expedition to hide ourselves from the heat.

Our first letter this month takes us into the coun try, as it should, and among the chrysalides.

e chrysalides.

UNT Minerva has asked me to tell the cousins something more about the order of insects called lepidoptera, to which belong the various families of butterflies and moths, and which, you may remember, pass through four stages of existence, the egg, the caterpillar, the chrysalis and the butterfly.

pillar, the chrysalis and the butterfly.

"One day, while gathering nasturtiums, I found clinging to a leaf near the ground a little object which looked more like a triumph of the jeweler's art than anything else. It seemed carved from the palest mother-ofpearl, and each little projection was tipped with pure gold.

"What a lovely, odd-looking ornament this would make." I exclaimed, and put it carefully away, thinking I would have it set in gold and wear it as a pin. Alas for my vanity and ignorance! When I took it out some time later its lovely sheen was gone, leaving it blackened and dull.

"It has decayed," I thought, and threw it away. Had I kept it a little longer I might have seen the shell open and some winged creature burst forth, for I learned later that these chrysalids lose their pearly tints and gilded spots just before the insect emerges.

"The duration of this chrysalis state depends pearly tints and glided spots just before the insect emerges.

"The duration of this chrysalis state depends upon the temperature of the surrounding air, lasting only eight or ten days in summer, while, if beginning in cooler weather it may be prolonged through the winter. The naturalist Reaumur kept one in an ice-house two years, and after being placed in a warmer temperature it matured and the butterfly appeared.

"The variety of chrysalis having gold markings is only one of many, yet it originated the name 'chrysalis' which is from a Greek word meaning 'gold."

chrysalis' which is from a Greek word meaning gold.

"This order of insects may pass the winter in any one of its four stages, some as eggs, some as caterpillars, others as chrysalids and still others as moths or butterflies, in either case inactive, hidden away in some sheltered place, emerging in spring to go on to full development.

"These insects have been cited as a beautiful illustration of immortality, the greedy caterpillar representing our earthly life with its low, base appetites, the chrysalis the stillness of death and the butterfly the resurrected soul soaring aloft in beauty and perfection."

MRS. M. S. BARNES, NASHVILLE, TENN.

As it is only a few months since I published a letter on the Washington and Lee university I cannot offer a prize for this one but it is so well written and contains so many items of interest that I cannot forbear printing it.

"Nestled among the rugged and picturesque ridges of the Allegheny on the west and the Blue Ridge to the eastward, lies the seat of one of the greatest of Southern Universities, Washington and Lee. This noted institution was chartered away back in 1782, and with the exception of a few years during the civil war, it has had an uninterrupted history of prosperity. It is indeed fortunate in its location—being surrounded by one of the most delightful sections of Virginia, as far as its scenery is concerned, in the famous Valley of Virginia which is recognized as the garden spot of the state. Near here are several points of interest—the Rockbridge Alum. Springs, the Goschen Pass, very pretty in the spring when completely covered with beautiful laurel, and the Natural Bridge, one of the most remarkable natural wonders of the world.

"The monument of Stonewall Jackson is found in the cemetery here in Lexington, and is annually visited by large numbers of tourists.

"Washington and Lee University is situated on a prominence in a beautiful campus of maple, locust, and oak trees, with private walks and beautiful drives. This is in the heart of the famous Virginia lawn of the blue grass country, and in the fall and spring the campus is magnificent. The large substantial buildings on 'College Hill' overlook the beautiful valley that spreads around.

"In the Lee Memorial Chapel is the mausoleum surmounted by a marble bust of Robert E. Lee. Beneath the chapel are the vaults of the famous Lee family and also the office of Gen. Lee, kept as he last left it—not a book moved, his chair beside his desk, and his pen and ink just as he left them In 1870."

Next we have a description of one of the indus-

Next we have a description of one of the industries of Georgia.

ries of Georgia.

"Perhaps some of Comport's many readers would like to see a picture and read a description of a raft of Georgia timber. This picture was taken when the raft was just finished, and before it started down the river to the market. Often the rafts are made more than one hundred feet long, but this one is not quite so long.

"The lumber is held together by logs or large pieces of timber passing across the raft, and fastened by pegs on each outside plank. On the front of the raft, where the small log is fastened to the large one by two pegs, an oar is to be built. This is to help guide the raft as it floats down the river. The long poles with hooks fastened to the end that the men are holding serve to help guide and to keep away any floating object from the raft. Quite often the timbers come apart in the river, and the raft hands use these hooks to bring the pieces together again.

"From two to six men usually take a raft down the river. They live on the raft day and night, and fare well too, for the rivers abound in fish, and game is found along the banks. A pile of sand is put on the timber, and upon this is made the fire for cooking.

"The raft travels from four to six miles an hour

RAFT OF GEORGIA LUMBER.

according to the swiftness of the current. Darien, an excellent harbor and lumber market at the mouth of the Altamaha river, is the market for these rafts. In this instance the raft is to be floated down the Oconee river to the Altamaha, then to the ocean. The Altamaha is formed by the union of the Ocmulgee and Oconee about one hundred miles from Darien.

"Until recently most of the timber carried from this section was hewn and rafted. Now, since railroads have been built, saw mills have been brought in, and the greater part of the timber is sawn before being shipped to western and eastern markets, though a great deal of rafting is still done.

"In spring, when the weather is cool and pleasant, it is an enjoyable outing to take a raft down the Altamaha, as this river affords splendid fishing and hunting."

W. Adelle Darby, Vidalia, Ga.

W. ADELLE DARBY, Vidalia, Ga. So far, our letters have taken us into a region where the heat is too great for comfort at this season of the year, but now we will go farther north and study a curious freak of nature.

and study a curious freak of nature.

"Milton is in Wayne County, eastern Indiana, and has a population of nearly one thousand. The town is built on the right bank of Whitewater river, whose laughing waters, like those of Tennyson's 'Brook,' ripple out

'From haunts of coot and hern, Then make a sudden sally To sparkle out among the fern, And bicker down a valley.'

Thus,

'With many a curve their banks they fret, By many a field and fallow, And many a fairy foreland set In willow-weed and mallow,'

By many a field and fallow,
And many a fairy foreland set
In willow-weed and mallow,' they, too, glide on to join another river.

"This pretty country town embosomed amidst magnificent, well-watered, well-timbered farms whose broad, cultivated acres produce abundant fields of waving grain and golden harvests, and whose smiling meadows, gemmed by wildflowers, and scented by clover-blooms, furnish rich pasturage, is often pronounced typical of a quaint old New England town.

"One and one-half miles west of Milton is a freak of nature, known as 'Shaky Hill.' From an elevation of fifty feet above the level, its summit looks down serenely upon a wooded landscape, and the dimpling waters of Simonds' creek flowing at its base. Its shape and construction resemble the work of the Mound-Builders.

"In an early day Wiley Reagan, a pioneer settler in the vicinity, built a log cabin on this hill. Soon after he moved into his new home a sudden convulsion, or heaving of the earth beneath, shook the house so perceptibly that the dishes rattled in the cupboard; a clothes line attached by one end to the house and to a stake sunk in a hollow beechstump at the other was seen to jerk as though by human agency. Upon one occasion wood-choppers were felling trees on the hill when they were startled by a trembling of the ground under them.
Looking up, they saw a log roll some distance down the slope without any visible cause. Another time an immense stone was moved several feet from its original place.

"Such are a few incidents in the history of 'Shaky Hill'. Every spring and fall, for many years, convulsions of a like character were experienced by Mr. Reagan and others. Also at these specified seasons, especially in dark, damp weather, a roaring sound could often be heard. At length, annoyed by the frequent occurrence of these strange disturbances, and tired of living over an earthquake, or volcano, as the case might be. Mr.
Reagan moved his house.

"Of late years these convulsions have not been so frequent or pronounced; s

Eva Johnson, of Carl Junction, Mo., writes me description of the state of Washington, which she she will try us again with something of her very own.

Thus far we have been considering the wonders of nature. Now let us give our attention for a time to the works of man.

"Those readers of 'Chats' who have been watching of bootstructed by barbed-wire intanglements under the mewspapers will no doubt remember how General Buller in attempting to ford the Tugel at Colenso was obstructed by barbed-wire intanglements under the water, and under a withering fire from well-aimed smokeless-powder rifies was forced to retrieve.

"I so enjoy reading the many letters in Comport than some and guns. Perhaps they will also remember that entanglements at Moder River alded materially in repulsing Methuen. In fact barbed-wire has been used-very successfully and the color of the fire and the color of the fire and the color of readers. The Hudson is a river of the River alded materially in repulsing Methuen. In fact barbed-wire has been used-very successfully and the color of the fire power. The fire and the color of the fire and the place himself? His description does not agree, in all respects, with my own knowledge of the place.

Now let us listen to a bit about the beautiful Hudson river.

"I so enjoy reading the many letters in Comport that entanglements at Moder of readers. The Hudson is a river of the fire and the nature of a hundred an hour in a crowd. We send the river of the color of readers. The Hudson is a river of the fire and the nature of the fire and the nature of the place.

Two sent for 25c., or five for 50c.

by the Boers throughout the war, to aid them in resisting the attacks of the British. It also acted as a great barrier against our United States soldiers in Cuba. Most readers will doubtless wonder how such a small obstruction as barbed-wire can successfully hurl back an army, but when an army marches up against a strong barbed wire fence, with no implements to cut the wire the soldiers are certainly in a serious predicament.

"Knowing that a barbed wire fence is coming to play a serious part in war, I am going to write something of the part it plays on the western stock ranch; barbed and woven wire fences bid fair to do away with all other kinds of fencing, being the easlest made, most substantial and most durable. Boazd and rail fences will rot, stone fences will crumble, but a fence of galvanized wire will not even rust. Of course the posts will finally rot and have to be replaced, but the wire will remain as good as new. No animal can break a substantial barbed wire fence. He injures himself more than the fence, if he tries it.

"Its construction is simple. Posts, the best being from the heart of white oak, are set sixteen feet apart to a depth of two and one-half feet. Digging the post holes is a difficult task if they are dug with bar and shovel, but if bored with the posthole augur, which requires wet ground, the labor is much lighter. After the posts are set and the dirt tamped firmly around them, the fence builders begin stringing the wire. One end is unwound and fastened to a post, a crowbar is pushed through the hole in the spool, a man takes each end of them, walk along and let the wire unwind. After the spool of wire is strung out they go back and one stretches the wire very tightly with a barbed-wire stretcher while the other fastens it to the posts with staples. Another spool is unwound, stretched tightly and nailed, and so on until the fence is the desired number of wires high.

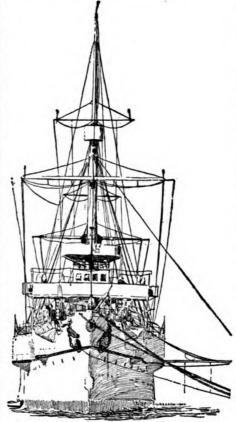

"One great objection to barbed-wire fences when first introduced was that they would kill or cripple too much stock, b

This letter also treats of the wonderful works of man.

"During the past decade the Imperial Empire of Japan has made rapid strides in the way of naval architecture. Since her war with China that power has greatly augmented her navy and a number of new and formidable war vessels have been constructed, equipped and placed in active commission. The Japanese cruiser, Chitose, recently constructed and equipped by the Union Iron Works Company, of San Francisco, is one of the most formidable war vessels of her class belonging to the Imperial Government.

"In the Japanese language the word Chitose signifies one thousand years". Just what application that meaning may bear for the new warship does not appear. The Chitose is four hundred and five feet in length, forty-nine feet beam, and about seventeen and one-half feet depth of hold. She is provided with two sets of four-cylinder, triple-expansion engines, operating twin screws. The vessel has been completely fitted out with silverware, a rich and beautiful china service, etc. The captain's cabin is elegantly finished in solid mahogany, and there are many unique carvings made to suit the requirements of the Japanese. The chrysanthemum, being Japan's national flower, appears in many of the carvings and other decorations. Great taste and skill have been exercised in making the furniture, every piece of which has been modeled from a special design, and formed to fit a certain place in the cabin. The ventilating and electric systems are as perfect as possible. The vessel is provided with steam steering gearing, handled by electricity, and the ammunition hoists are also moved by electricity, while a complete telephone system is in operation throughout the ship.

THE JAPANESE CRUISER, CHITOSE

"Every soul on board of the Chitose is a loyal son of the Mikado, and the vessel has her full complement of officers and men. The Japanese marines are all stoutly built and able-bodied fellows. Strict naval discipline is enforced, and officers and men are very attentive to their duties."

J. MAYNE BALTIMORE, Spokane, Oregon.

Another cousin from Rutland, Wisconsin, sends broad ocean. This grandest of rivers, the 'Rhine of America,' as it has been called, was discovered by an Englishman, Henry Hudson, who sailed from a Dutch port, in a Dutch vessel, and with a Dutch crew. It has been called the North river, In verse it is sometimes called the Shatimuck, and the Dutch gave it the name of Mauritius, but it finally became the Hudson, and still goes by that name.

finally became the Hudson, and sent good on name.

"To see the Hudson in all its glory one should take a day steamer for a sail upon its waters. West Point, the home of the United States Military academy, the renowned 'Highlands of the Hudson' and the Catskill Mountains are among the many beautiful views to be enjoyed from the deck of the steamer as we glide along."

ISABEL HISARD, COXSACKIE, N. Y.

ISABEL HISARD, COXSACKIE, N. Y.

And now here is a cousin from Roanoke, Illinois, who has an article which she thinks is just the thing for our page, but she wants me to accept it and promise to pay for it before I have seen it, and also wants me to state for what month I can use it. I couldn't do that, my dear, any more than you would be willing to promise to buy a new dress without knowing anything about its quality or color, or to what season it was suited. Send the article on and let me see what it is and then I will tell you what I can do with it.

We have recently had a letter upon oil and gas wells, but as this one tells us something of the discovery of natural gas in Indiana I think we shall find it interesting.

covery of natural gas in Indiana I think we shall find it interesting.

"Among the great resources which Mother Nature has hidden in the earth is natural gas which, when liberated by drilling wells, becomes perpetually flowing fountains of gas, and is used for power as well as for lighting purposes. This gas is invisible, but has an odor resembling that of petroleum. It was first discovered in Indiana by a man who was digging for water. He got down to a soft rock and struck seeping water, and as he wanted a basin to go below the stream and keep a surplus of water on hand he concluded to blast, and for this purpose he lowered a can of nitro-glycerine to the bottom of his well and dropped a go-devil upon it; the blast came, but after it, to his astonishment, came a frightful roaring sound issuing from the mouth of the hole, accompanied by a strong odor, although nothing could be seen. This continued day and night until the neighbors became a larmed and called for an investigation. Some one suggested that it might be gas and to prove it a lighted match was held over the drill. Instantly a towering flame shot up and continued to burn in spite of all efforts to extinguish it, for weeks and months. Finally a gas expert was summoned, and he, by introducing pipes containing valves into the drill below the surface of the earth, contrived to shut off the supply of gas from the flames, and so succeeded in extinguishing them and conducting the flow of gas into reservoirs that it might be utilized. It is needless to say that its owner soon became a rich man."

J. D. SALTS, JR., Bols D'Arc, Mo.

Joseph Bell, of Tipton, West Virginia, sends me a story of pioneer history of his state, for which I thank him, but cannot use it as it is not in line.

a story of pioneer history of his state, for which I thank him, but cannot use it as it is not in line with the contributions for this page.

There, for a hot month I think we have accomplished a good deal of reading and thinking, and it is quite time for us to say good by and scatter for another four weeks.

AUNT MINERVA.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Dr. D. A. Williams, East Hampton, Conn., says if any sufferer from a Kidney or Bladder Disease will write him, he will send them absolutely free by mail package of a medicine that will cure them after all else has failed.

THE LIGHTEST METAL

in the world is Aluminum. You have no idea how well it is adapted to every-day use unless you have one of our Frosted Silver Finish Aluminum Pencils, vest pocket size, patent lead protecting delivery when not in use, can be concealed and prevent lead from breaking. A business man's pencil, a ladies' pencil, or for school children there is no equal. To get our big catalogue of novelties into new hands we will send one for only 5c.

Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

Health for Mother and Child.

No woman need any longer dread the pains of child-birth. Dr. J. H. Dye, Box 137, Buffalo, N. Y., has devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. Send him your name and address and get his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to healthy children absolutely without pain.

FAMILY RECORDS. Marriage Certificates, Memorials, etc. Samples 12c. ea; 9 for $1.00. J. Lee, Omaha Bldg., Chicago, Ill. WE are giving away Life Size Dolls for a little work.
Address National Medicine Co., New Haven, Conn.

YOU HAVE ANY DISEASE, write W. O. Broaddus School of Healing, Terre Haute, Indiana. MOSQUITOES will not bite when you use our preparation. Clean, odorless, harmless. 12c. R. C. Whitston, Box 143, Mobile, Ala.

in a poke, but did you ever hear a Pig Sing? Well, this Musical Pig right from the Paris Exposition, is the latest and greatest wonder out. More fun with this cute little porker than anything ever invented. You simply blow him un like the neture here.

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other pa-per or magazine in America. Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and re always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered. POSTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on ur books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of sub-riptions.

our books unless you up.
seriptions.
COMFOIT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 8 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages.
When more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider it a gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building. New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building

Guaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND, COPIES, Each and Every Issue,

Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

Turn 1901 upside down and you have 1061, the year in which Edward the Confessor reigned in England. The Edward who reigns in 1901 can hardly merit the title but it is safe to surmise that the year might be upside down if this Edward should confess. The "Autos" and "Locos" and all other forms of horseless carriages were thought of before the steam locomotive was placed on iron rails. When MacAdam invented the excellent system of road making that we term "macadam," the suggestion was instantly made that steam should be applied to the movement of carriages over these hard roadbeds. The locomotive was invented but rails were put into immediate use. Had the inventors held to their first demand, automobiles and good roads would long ago have been common.

The Western lawmakers who tried to put a tax on bachelors were evidently not up in their little book of statistics. The population of America is about one-hundred and two millions and there are one million more men than women. If the first year's tax could be spent in moving the population so that the million excess could be sprinkled around places like Boston the necessity of legislation might cease. The poor bachelors should be canonized instead of taxed. Self sacrificing saints, unwilling to deprive others of the "felicity of unbounded domesticity."

The purchase of a great steamship line by an American capitalist has drawn public attention to one peculiarity of our navigation laws. The Leyland line consists of British built ships. Although they are now owned by an American they can not sail under the American flag. Only ships built in this country have that privilege. Aside from the commercial advantage, the American nation has a pride in the number of ships sailing under its flag. If they are owned in America why will not America own

The recent meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute of London furnished an ironical commenting on the old phrase that the mills of the gods grind slowly but they grind exceeding small. Less than two hundred years have passed since the time when the manufacture of even a nail was forbidden by England to the American Colonies. At this meeting Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Garret of Ohio told the Patitish ironwards in the Iron and Steel

The relation of Federal government to the states is an interesting as well as an intricate subject. The United States leaves to the states the power of fixing the legal qualifications of a voter. It makes but one demand which is that the states shall not abridge the suffrage on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. A state may fix any qualification as the price of the privilege of voting—that is any qualification that does not set aside this one requirement of the fifteenth amendment. The Southern states are rapidly assigned. British ironmen why it was that England had lost her supremacy in steel and iron. "Lack of progress in manufacturing methods" was the reason given. Then—they were advised to copy American methods.

July is not the proper month in which to discuss the "strenuous life." All the same the Fourth of this month develops each year along that line. The rebellious overgrown son who declared his independence of parental control in July, 1776, has become the thoughtful parent of colonies of his own in 1901. The Supreme Court has fixed the standing of the Philippines and Porto Rico and also declared the right of Congress to legislate for these colonies. This Fourth is a little different from all its predecessors. The study of the Declaration of Independence will freshen our memories as to what constitutes injustice to colonies.

victims of a prize of $10,000 "for the best appliance for saving life, in case of maritime disaster." The larger number of the devices offered in competition were designed to prevent collision. The twentieth century will show a small death rate through accidents at sea. The recent statistics would seem to show that the trolly cars are responsible for an undue proportion of accidental deaths. Accidents to these cars are becoming alarmingly frequent and public opinion is being roused as to some means of enforcing a larger degree of care and responsibility upon companies.

Our trains that move across the continent have long been regarded as models of luxury. Russia can out-distance us both as to luxury of train equipment and length of run. The journey from Moscow to Port Arthur, over the new Trans-Siberian railroad will require thirteen days. All the luxuries of the best modern hotels, from electric lights, hot water heating and porcelain bath tubs, to piano, library, etc., etc., are to be found upon this train. The compartments in the first-class carriages are tiny parlors complete from reading lamp to couches. This model of luxury is to sweep eastward over the awful plains that have been trodden by the weary feet of the political exiles. The contrast between one of the convict marches with all the heart-sickening misery of which Kennan and Tolstoi have told and the regal luxury of these new trains is essentially Russian.

One of the most important of the many conferences held at Buffalo was the tax conference. The history of nations proves that half the wars of the world have had their origin in the abuse of the power of taxation. It lies at the root of government. Our government has the power to tax directly but has never resorted to internal taxation except in times of war. The states come the closest to the people in the exercise of this power. The legislatures of the states are constantly experimenting with laws states are constantly experimenting with laws directed toward equalizing the burdens of taxation. A large number of states are instituting State Boards of Taxation whose duty is to examine and pass upon all appeals from the estimates of local assessors. The great questions of what property or wealth should be taxed are constantly being agitated. The discussion involves intricate financial questions and demands expert knowledge. It is conceeded that the owners of real estate, and especially the farmers, bear an unjust proportion of the taxes. Such conferences as that at Buffalo cannot fail to throw light upon the subject. In itself it is one of the most pressing problems of the day and the one that most directly concerns the welfare of the citizen. welfare of the citizen.

The question of the manner of electing United States Senators is one of the most important issues before the people. When the Constitution was framed, the state idea was still dominant in the minds of the people. The power, prestige and autonomy of the state were jealously guarded. The Senate was instituted as part of a compromise that gave the small states equal power with the large states. For that reason each state is entitled to two senators and these are elected not by the people directly but by the legislations of the states, thereby enforcing the idea that the state is the unit of representation in the senate. The troubles arising over the election of senators in Delaware, Pennsylvania and Montana have drawn attention to this subject and created a desire for a change in the method. The contest in South Carolina whose two senators have resigned their positions and appealed directly to the people for endorsement is but another illustration of the idea that the people directly should choose their senators. The powers and limitations of the state have been clearly defined by more than a century of constitutional interpretation. The senators can and will represent the state but each citizen should have the privilege that the citizens of South Carolina have had thrust upon them, they should vote directly for United States senators. In that case no states would be deprived of representations through the failure of the legislature to elect, nor would senators demand or pursue the unprecedented course that is agitating South Carolina.

qualification that does not set aside this one requirement of the fifteenth amendment. The Southern states are rapidly passing laws that fix an educational qualification for the suffrage. The states of Massachusetts and Connecticut have long had such a requirement. In itself it is a perfectly constitutional use of the state's power to fix the legal qualification of its voters. Some of the Southern states have, however, demanded that the educational qualification should extend to those whose ancestors could read and write previous to the Civil War. This disfranchises almost the entire colored population and reduces the voting population by over one half. It is for the Supreme Court to decide whether or no such demands are not a violation of the fifteenth amendment. The state of Maryland has recently passed a new suffrage law which is clearly constitutional. It requires the voter to place a cross opposite the name of the candidate he votes for and forbids the use of any party emblem on a ticket. This only demands an ability to read names and does not compare with the educational test sometimes given, requiring voters to read and explain a clause in the constitution. The point is raised that the representation of the states that are disfranchising voters should be lessened in the new apportionments of representatives. The question is of vital importance as no one can During the nineteenth century there were twenty-three great shipwrecks with a loss of 7,642 lives. The disaster to the Bourgogne resulted in an offer by the heirs of one of the Americans have fought, namely that taxation and representation go hand in hand, is in danger. The question is one of grave significance.

MUSICAL HANDBOOK FREE.

Any one thinking of buying a musical instru-ment can learn all about the different styles and prices, and how each instrument is made and also save a great deal of money by sending to Lyon & Healy, 91 Adams St., Chicago, for one of their Musical Handbooks (free).

GUITAR VIOLIN, MANDOLIN BANJO Self-Taught, Without Notes by Figure Music. Send for BIG Illustrated Catalog of Instructors and Instruments. E. C. HOWE, 1642 Masonic Temple, Chicago.

MORPHINE Easy, permanent home cure. Absolutely painless were despine, Opium, Laudanum and kindred drug häbis. Confidential Correspondence Invited. Trial Treatment FREE, Berlin Remedy Co., Suite K, 1123 Broadway, N.Y.

if you suffer from Epileptic Pits, Falling S or St. Vitus' Dance, or have childred that do so, my New Discovery will CUR that do so, my new Discovery will cure and all you are asked to do is to send and all you are asked to do is to send if FREE REFIEDIES and try them. They cured thousands where everything else Sent absolutely free with complete directlo press prepaid. Please give AGB and full at

DR. W. H. MAY, 94 Pine Street, New York City,

LORRIMER & CO. Dept 57 BALTIMORE, MD.

HARRICH REPORT OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

* FULL SIZE *

each of Promise. Cake walk Blake The. Boyhood's Recollection Grimm Flory

Elson

Rutledge Kei William

Cohe

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for twenty-five ts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000.000 copies sold!

LIST OF THE PIECES OFFER DAT THIS TIME.

No. Pland OR ORGAN.

101 Ancients Abroad, March—Two Step Cook 236 Across the Bridge LeBrus 181 Audi Lang Syne. Variations Durkee 187 Austrian Song. Op. 68, 1 Pacher 184 Beautiful Moonlight. Duet 215 Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive Anderson 179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands Streabbog 227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Straust 213 Black Hawk Waltzes Straust 213 Black Hawk Waltzes Straust 226 Blue Eyes 226

165 American Liberty March	236 Across the Bridge L
247 Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss	260 At Noontide
101 Auld I and Come Veniations Delice	27 AveMaria.FromCavalleriaRusticana k
187 Austrian Song. On 69.1	140 Beacon Light of Home Est
215 Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive . Anderson	238 Bells of Seville
179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands Streabbog	238 Bells of Seville
227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Strauss	282 Between Love and Duty
179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz, thands Streabbog 227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Strauss 213 Black Hawk Waltzes Walsh 257 Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans. Richards 221 Bluebird Echo Polka Morrison 199 Boston Commandery March Carter 109 Bridal March from Lohengrin Wanner 229 Bryan and Sewall March Noles 255 Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands, Mascagni 289 Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni 133 Cadences and Scales in all Keys Czerny 1 Catherine Waltzes Stroh 297 Chatelaine La Menuet Lange	226 Blue Eyes 246 Boyhood Days, Chorus 200 Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow 268 Bride Bells
221 Bluebird Echo Polka Morrison	200 Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow
199 Boston Commandery March Carter	268 Bride Bells
229 Bryan and Sewall March Noles	268 Bride Bells 276 Brown Eyed Bessie Lee. Chorus 192 Can You, Sweetheart, Keepa Secret? Est. 214 Childhood's Happy Hours 138 Christmas Carol.
255 Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands. Mascagni	214 Childhood's Happy Hours
289 Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni	138 Christmas Carol
Catherine Waltzes . Strok	190 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Sci
297 Chatelaine, La Menuet Lange	284 Come Back to Our Cottage . Esta 168 Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake walk
297 Chatelaine, La Meuuet Lange Zange Chatelaine, La Meuuet Lange Lange 145 Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step Missud 217 Cleveland's March Notes	• Q7 Cow Bells, The Boyhood's Recollection
217 Cleveland's March—Two Step Missud	294 Crown of Glory 286 Danube River 250 Darling I Shall Miss You 176 Darling Nellie Gray
217 Cleveland's March	250 Darling I Shall Miss You
269 Coppelia. Valse Lente Deibles	176 Darling Nellie Gray .
81 Coming from the Races Galop Wheeler 269 Coppella. Valse Lente Deibles 211 Corn Flower Waltzes Coote, Jr 71 Crystal Dew Waltz Durkee	244 De Banjo am de Instrument
235 Day Dawn Polka	302 Dear Little Heart 'Neath the Daisies R
163 Dewey's Grand Triumphal March . Marcel	304 Did You Ever Call Me Darling? 128 Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp. 290 Dream of Love 256 Dwelling with the Angels. Chorus.
287 Diamond Valley Waltz Morehouse	128 Don't drink, my Boy, tonight. Temp.
117 Echoing Trumpets March Notes	290 Dream of Love
299 Eastlake Waltz , Daggett 117 Echoing Trumpets March , Notes 303 Edelweiss . Hennes 121 Electric Light Galop . Durkee	50 Easter Eve. Sacred
	20 Ever Sweet is Thy Memory
	180 Far Away
155 Evergreen Waltz Stoddavd	182 Father is Drinking Again. Temperan
241 Fantastic Schottische Gabriel	152 Flag of Our Country. Patriotic
231 Faust. Selections Durkee	156 Flag, The. Quartette
29 Fatinitza Galop Ludwig 23 Faust. Selections Durkee 77 Fifth Nocturne Leybach	& Flossie. Waltz Song
233 Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz Lasaide
77 Fifth Nocturne . Leybach 233 Flirting in the Starlight, Waltz . Lasaide 239 Flower Song. Op. 39. Lange 283 Forestville Waltz . Zahn 277 Freischutz . Selections . Durkee	66 For You We are Praying at Home Esta
277 Freischutz. Selections Durkee	288 Gathered Roses
177 Frolic of the Frogs Watson	202 Give a Kiss to Me
177 Frolic of the Frogs	166 For You We are Praying at Home Life From our Home the Loved are Going 288 Gathered Roses 202 Give a Kiss to Me 178 God Bless My Kind Old Mother
147 Grand Commandery March—Two Step Missud	262 Greeting Duet Mend
281 Heel and Toe Polka Faust	150 Gypsy Countess. Duet
173 Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes Jewell	198 Heart of My Heart Ro 272 How can I Leave Thee. Duet . Gree
185 Heef and Toe Forka Faust 185 Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still Richards 173 Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes Jewell 139 Home, Sweet Home Transcription Slack 17 Impassioned Dream Waltzes Rosas 153 Jenny Lind polks Four bands Muller	184 1 Can't Forget the Happy Past 74 In Sweet September
153 Jenny Lind polka. Four hands	74 In Sweet September
157 Last Hope. Meditation . Gottschalk	248 In Shadowland
IOE Lean Vear Schottische Kahn	296 It Is a Legend Old Off
253 Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka. 159 Lee's (Geu'l) "On to Cuba "galop 249 Lohengrin. Selections. 141 Londoir March — Two Step 142 Londoir March — Witten	296 It Is a Legend Old
249 Lohengrin. Selections Durkee	242 Kathleen Mayourneen
141 Londoir March—Two Step . Missua 243 Love's Dreamland Waltzes . Roeder	196 Killarney
99 Maiden's Prayer, The 240 Martha Selections Johnson	130 Kiss that bound my Heart to thine.
99 Maiden 's Prayer, The Badarzewske 240 Martha Selections Johnson	130 Kiss that bound my Heart to thine 164 Larboard Watch. Duet 146 Listen to the Mocking Bird
207 May Breezes. Four hands Krug 263 May Day Schottische Keefer	146 Listen to the Mocking Bird Hau
225 McKinley and Hobart March . Turner	154 Little Voices at the Door
240 Martha Selections Johnson Krug 263 May Bree zes. Four hands Krug 263 May Day Schottische Z25 McKiniey and Hobart March Turner 55 Memorial Day March Hewitt 131 Monastery Bells. Nocturne Wely 61 Morning Star Waltz Zahn Liebich 125 My Old Kentucky Home. Variations Cook 305 Napoleon.	96 Lost Chord, The . St 234 Margaretta
61 Morning Star Waltz Zahn	112 Massa's Sleening in de Churchyard .
201 Music Box, The. Caprice Liebich	112 Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard 230 Memories of my Mother. Chorus 172 Mother's Welcome at the Door 222 Musical Dialogue. Duet
305 Napoleon	172 Mother's Welcome at the Door 222 Musical Dialogue. Duet He
87 National Anthems of Eight Great Nations	232 Must the Sweet Tie that binds . Esta
175 National Songs of America Blake 135 Nightingale's Trill, op. 81 Kullak
	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'Ho
271 Ocean Wayes Waltz Keefer	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'Ho
27 Ocean Waves Waltz Keefer	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'Ho 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, . Dia
171 Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations Durkee	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'H. 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swance Ribber)
171 Old Oaken Bucket, The. Variations Durkee	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'H 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Durkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka . Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz . Dinsmore 197 Oreyon, Ouen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Durkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka . Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz . Dinsmore 197 Oreyon, Ouen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 UM. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Bullad Re 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Durkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waitz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waitz Spencer 19 Over the Waves Waitz Gregoire 19 Over the Waves Waitz Rosas 79 Please Do Waitz 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 UM. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Bullad Re 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Durkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waitz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waitz Spencer 19 Over the Waves Waitz Gregoire 19 Over the Waves Waitz Rosas 79 Please Do Waitz 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe)	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 174 Parted from Our Dear Ones 1754 Por Girl didn't know. Comic. 174 Private Tommy Atkins
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waltz Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz Gregoire 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Durkee 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Mattei 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 168 Blake 143 Righmond March—two-step Missud	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl din't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request Socred.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waltz Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz Gregoire 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Durkee 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Mattei 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 168 Blake 143 Righmond March—two-step Missud	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Esta 160 Outcast, An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 174 Parted from Our Dear Ones 1754 Por Girl didn't know. Comic. 174 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 Or vetta Waitz 245 Overtia Waitz 30 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 319 Over the Waves Waitz 32 Over the Waves Waitz 33 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) 36 Psyche. Gavotte 36 Psyche. Gavotte 36 Red, White and Blue Forever. March Blake 36 Richmond March—two-step 37 Rustling Leaves. Idylle 38 January Witches March—Two-Step 38 January Witches March—Two-Step 38 January Witches March—Two-Step 38 January Witches March—Two-Step	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Dis 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Esta 160 Outcast, An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 174 Parted from Our Dear Ones 1754 Por Girl didn't know. Comic. 174 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waltz Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz Brance 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Burkee 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Mattei 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 143 Richmond March—two-step 145 Rustic Waltz Schumann 127 Rustling Leaves. Idylle Lange 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 189 Schupert's Serenade Transcription 11st	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 36 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 42 Rosemonde. 209 See Those Living Pictures. 274 Slull I Ever-See Mother: FaceAgain? Ad.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Burkee 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waitz Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waitz Rosas 79 Please Do Waitz 192 Over the Waves Waitz Rosas 79 Please Do Waitz 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Burkee 193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Burner Mattei 194 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 145 Richmond March—two-step Missud 245 Rustic Waitz Schumann 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 159 Sintil's (General) March 169 Sintil's (General) March 160 Sintil's (General) March	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 36 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 42 Rosemonde. 209 See Those Living Pictures. 274 Slull I Ever-See Mother: FaceAgain? Ad.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 Or Vetta Waitz 245 Overtia Waitz 30 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 219 Over the Waves Waitz 25 Expence 26 Psyche. Gavotte 26 Psyche. Gavotte 26 Psyche. Gavotte 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Durkee 28 Durkee 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 39 Peat and Peasant Overture (Suppe) 26 Psyche. Gavotte 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Durkee 29 Natic and Blue Forever. March 28 Richmond March—two-step 27 Rustling Leaves. Idyle 28 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 29 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 20 Missud 219 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 30 Missud 31 Silvery Waves. Variations 31 Silvery Waves. Variations 32 Missud 33 Sonvenir of the Ball Waitz 34 Sonvenir of the Ball Waitz 35 Sonvenir of the Ball Waitz 36 Cark	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 36 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 42 Rosemonde. 209 See Those Living Pictures. 274 Slull I Ever-See Mother: FaceAgain? Ad.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blace 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 Or Vetta Waitz 245 Overtia Waitz 30 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 219 Over the Waves Waitz 25 Expence 26 Psyche. Gavotte 26 Psyche. Gavotte 26 Psyche. Gavotte 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Durkee 28 Durkee 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 39 Peat and Peasant Overture (Suppe) 26 Psyche. Gavotte 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Durkee 29 Natic and Blue Forever. March 28 Richmond March—two-step 27 Rustling Leaves. Idyle 28 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 29 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 20 Missud 219 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 30 Missud 31 Silvery Waves. Variations 31 Silvery Waves. Variations 32 Missud 33 Sonvenir of the Ball Waitz 34 Sonvenir of the Ball Waitz 35 Sonvenir of the Ball Waitz 36 Cark	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad Re 258 Out on the Deep. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 174 Parted from Our Dear Ones. 175 Pervivate Tommy Atkins. 186 Request. Sacred. 278 Private Tommy Atkins. 186 Request. Sacred. 287 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 187 Rosemonde. 298 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 189 See Those Living Pictures. 214 Stall I EverSee Mother's FaceAgain? Add 494 Siles Sleeps among the Daisies. Div 194 Softly shine the Stars of Evening. 210 Son's Return, The. 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waltz. Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step 245 Orvetta Waltz. Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz. Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waltz. Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz. Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz. Rosas 192 Poet and P easant Overture (Suppe) 196 Fsyche. Gavotte 197 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 198 Faustic Waltz. Schumann 198 Schumann 197 Rustling Leaves. Idylle Lange 198 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 198 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 198 Sinth's (General) March Marth 198 Souvenlr of the Ball Waltz. Sumons 199 Spring Flowers Polka	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad Re 258 Out on the Deep. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 174 Parted from Our Dear Ones. 175 Pervivate Tommy Atkins. 186 Request. Sacred. 278 Private Tommy Atkins. 186 Request. Sacred. 287 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 187 Rosemonde. 298 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 189 See Those Living Pictures. 214 Stall I EverSee Mother's FaceAgain? Add 494 Siles Sleeps among the Daisies. Div 194 Softly shine the Stars of Evening. 210 Son's Return, The. 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waltz. Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step 245 Orvetta Waltz. Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz. Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waltz. Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz. Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz. Rosas 192 Poet and P easant Overture (Suppe) 196 Fsyche. Gavotte 197 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 198 Faustic Waltz. Schumann 198 Schumann 197 Rustling Leaves. Idylle Lange 198 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 198 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 198 Sinth's (General) March Marth 198 Souvenlr of the Ball Waltz. Sumons 199 Spring Flowers Polka	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'H. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad Re 258 Out on the Deep. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 174 Parted from Our Dear Ones. 175 Pervivate Tommy Atkins. 186 Request. Sacred. 278 Private Tommy Atkins. 186 Request. Sacred. 287 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 187 Rosemonde. 298 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 189 See Those Living Pictures. 214 Stall I EverSee Mother's FaceAgain? Add 494 Siles Sleeps among the Daisies. Div 194 Softly shine the Stars of Evening. 210 Son's Return, The. 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waltz. Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step 245 Orvetta Waltz. Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waltz. Gregoire 191 Over the Waves Waltz. Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz. Rosas 79 Please Do Waltz. Rosas 192 Poet and P easant Overture (Suppe) 196 Fsyche. Gavotte 197 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 198 Faustic Waltz. Schumann 198 Schumann 197 Rustling Leaves. Idylle Lange 198 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 198 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 198 Sinth's (General) March Marth 198 Souvenlr of the Ball Waltz. Sumons 199 Spring Flowers Polka	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 95 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 36 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 42 Rosemonde. 30 See Those Living Pictures. 424 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 94 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 104 Sile Sleeps among the Daisles. 105 Son's Return, The 120 Son's Return, The 120 Son's Return, The 120 Sorm at Sea. Descriptive 120 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 120 Summer Shower 120 Sweetest Song, The 121 Sweet Long Ago, The 122 Sweet Long Ago, The 133 The Word was Hone Waltzsong.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 265 Psyche. Gavotte 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 168 Richmond March—two-step . Missud 245 Rustic Waitz . Schumann 127 Rustling Leaves. Idylle . Lange 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz . Sumons 161 Silvery Waves. Variations . Martin 162 Sprit Lake Waitz . Sumons 163 Smith's (General) March . Martin 279 Stephanie Polka . Fahrbach 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 28 Strums . Racket	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 95 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 36 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 42 Rosemonde. 30 See Those Living Pictures. 424 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 94 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 104 Sile Sleeps among the Daisles. 105 Son's Return, The 120 Son's Return, The 120 Son's Return, The 120 Sorm at Sea. Descriptive 120 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 120 Summer Shower 120 Sweetest Song, The 121 Sweet Long Ago, The 122 Sweet Long Ago, The 133 The Word was Hone Waltzsong.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 265 Psyche. Gavotte 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 168 Richmond March—two-step . Missud 245 Rustic Waitz . Schumann 127 Rustling Leaves. Idylle . Lange 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz . Sumons 161 Silvery Waves. Variations . Martin 162 Sprit Lake Waitz . Sumons 163 Smith's (General) March . Martin 279 Stephanie Polka . Fahrbach 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 28 Strums . Racket	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful Bilad R 258 Out on the Deep 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins. 136 Request. Sacred. 278 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 142 Rosemonde. 280 See Those Living Pictures. 294 Shall I EverSee Mother's Face Again? 294 Softly shine the Stars of Evening. 210 Son's Return, The 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive. 218 Summer Shower 219 Sweetleng Ago, The 32 Sweet Long Ago, The 34 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds. 218 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds. 218 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds. 218 This ling of Home and Mother.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 265 Psyche. Gavotte 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 168 Richmond March—two-step . Missud 245 Rustic Waitz . Schumann 127 Rustling Leaves. Idylle . Lange 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz . Sumons 161 Silvery Waves. Variations . Martin 162 Sprit Lake Waitz . Sumons 163 Smith's (General) March . Martin 279 Stephanie Polka . Fahrbach 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 28 Strums . Racket	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Esta 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep 160 Outcast, An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 142 Rosemonde 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 143 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 214 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 210 Son's Return, The 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 218 Summer Shower 210 Sweetest Song, The 22 Sweet Long Ago, The 32 Sweet Long Ago, The 46 That Word was Hope. Waltz song 18 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 206 There's Sure to be a Way 158 Thinking of Home and Mother 292 Titania's Cradle
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 9 Our Little Agnes. Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waitz . Spencer 265 Psyche. Gavotte 167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March 168 Richmond March—two-step . Missud 245 Rustic Waitz . Schumann 127 Rustling Leaves. Idylle . Lange 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 149 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz . Sumons 161 Silvery Waves. Variations . Martin 162 Sprit Lake Waitz . Sumons 163 Smith's (General) March . Martin 279 Stephanie Polka . Fahrbach 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 278 Storm Mazurka . Keefer 28 Strums . Racket	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Esta 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep 160 Outcast, An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 142 Rosemonde 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 143 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 214 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 210 Son's Return, The 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 218 Summer Shower 210 Sweetest Song, The 22 Sweet Long Ago, The 32 Sweet Long Ago, The 46 That Word was Hope. Waltz song 18 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 206 There's Sure to be a Way 158 Thinking of Home and Mother 292 Titania's Cradle
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 Or the Wave Waitz 245 Overtia Waitz 25 Senecr 191 Over the Waves Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Senecr 192 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 28 Senecr 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 29 Senecr 29 Over the Waves Waitz 20 Senecr 20 Please Do Waitz 213 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) 265 Psyche. Gavotte 265 Psyche. Gavotte 266 Psyche. Gavotte 278 Richmond March—two-step 278 Richmond March—two-step 278 Rustic Waitz 278 Rustic Waitz 278 Rustic Waitz 279 Rustling Leaves. Idyle 289 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 291 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 292 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 293 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 295 Spring Flowers Polka 295 Spring Flowers Polka 297 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 297 Storm Azurka 298 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 298 Weet Long Ago. Transcription 298 Weet Long Ago. Transcription 298 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 298 Tronado Galop 209 Sweet Lones Song without words 201 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 202 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 203 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 203 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 209 Sweet Lones Song without words 201 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 203 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 201 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 203 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 203 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 203 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 203 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 204 Transcription 205 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 205 Spring Flowers Polka 207 Transcription 207 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 208 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 208 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 209 Sweet Long Ross without words 200 Sweet Long Ross without words 200 Sweet Ross without words 200 Sweet Ross without words 200 Sweet Ross without words 201 Trifet's Grand March 201 Trifet's	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Edd 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep 160 Outcast. An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 274 Rosemonde 28 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 142 Rosemonde 29 See Those Living Pictures 224 Shall I EverSee Mother's Face Again? 294 Sies Sleeps among the Daisies 214 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 210 Son's Return, The 210 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 218 Summer Shower 210 Sweetest Song, The 32 Sweet Long Ago, The 33 Summer Shower 34 Shall There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 36 There's Sure to be a Way 38 Thinking of Home and Mother 395 Tread a of thy he Angels are calling
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations Blake 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 Or Vetta Waitz 245 Overtia Waitz 25 Senecr 191 Over the Waves Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Senecr 192 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 29 Senecr 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 29 Senecr 29 Over the Waves Waitz 20 Senecr 29 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 213 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) 265 Psyche. Gavotte 266 Psyche. Gavotte 276 Rich White and Blue Forever. March Blake 245 Rustic Waitz 245 Rustic Waitz 245 Rustic Waitz 247 Rustling Leaves. Idylle 248 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 258 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 269 Suvenir of the Bail Waitz 279 Stowenir of the Bail Waitz 279 Stoyning Flowers Polka 279 Stoynenie Polka 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Stoynenie Polka 272 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 273 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 273 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 271 Venetian Waitz 272 Venetian Waitz 273 Venetian Waitz 275 Venetian Waitz 277 Venetian Ven	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep 160 Outcast, An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep 42 Rosemonde 80 See Those Living Pictures 24 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Add 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles 124 Softly shine the Stars of Evening 110 Son's Return, The 120 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 120 Storm at Sea. Descriptive 138 Summer Shower 118 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 140 That Word was Hope. Waltzsong 138 That Word was Hope. Waltzsong 148 Thinking of Home and Mother 159 Titalia's Cradle 16 Tis True Dear Heart We're Fading Etda 188 True to the Last 62 Your Mother's Love for You
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 On Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 245 Orvetta Waitz 25 Over the Waitz 26 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 30 Please Do Waitz 31 Over the Waves Waitz 41 Richmond March—two-step 42 Rustling Leaves. Idylle 42 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 43 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 43 Richmond March—two-step 44 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 45 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 46 Rustling Leaves. Variations 47 Stephanie Polka 48 Silvery Waves. Variations 48 Silvery Waves. Variations 49 Spirit Lake Waitz 49 Spirit Lake Waitz 47 Stephanie Polka 57 Storm Mazurka 58 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 50 Sutan's Band March 50 Sutan's Band March 51 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 51 Storm Mazurka 52 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 51 Tornado Galop 52 Watel 53 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 54 Juder the Double Eagle March 55 Venetian Waitz 50 Village Pa rade Quickstep 50 Village Pa r	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 242 Rosemonde. 242 Swaemonde. 243 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 244 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 245 Stull I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 258 Summer Shower. 268 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 279 Sweet Long Ago, The 280 Sweet Long Ago, The 292 Titania's Cradle. 281 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 284 Thinking of Home and Mother 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Trea da oftly lhe Angels are calling 287 The to the Last 287 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 281 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 281 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 282 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 282 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 283 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 284 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 287 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 On Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 245 Orvetta Waitz 25 Over the Waitz 26 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 30 Please Do Waitz 31 Over the Waves Waitz 41 Richmond March—two-step 42 Rustling Leaves. Idylle 42 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 43 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 43 Richmond March—two-step 44 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 45 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 46 Rustling Leaves. Variations 47 Stephanie Polka 48 Silvery Waves. Variations 48 Silvery Waves. Variations 49 Spirit Lake Waitz 49 Spirit Lake Waitz 47 Stephanie Polka 57 Storm Mazurka 58 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 50 Sutan's Band March 50 Sutan's Band March 51 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 51 Storm Mazurka 52 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 51 Tornado Galop 52 Watel 53 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 54 Juder the Double Eagle March 55 Venetian Waitz 50 Village Pa rade Quickstep 50 Village Pa r	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 242 Rosemonde. 242 Swaemonde. 243 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 244 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 245 Stull I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 258 Summer Shower. 268 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 279 Sweet Long Ago, The 280 Sweet Long Ago, The 292 Titania's Cradle. 281 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 284 Thinking of Home and Mother 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Trea da oftly lhe Angels are calling 287 The to the Last 287 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 281 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 281 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 282 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 282 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 283 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 284 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 287 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 213 On Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 Or the Wave Waitz. 245 Orvetta Waitz 25 Over the Waitz 26 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 30 Please Do Waitz 31 Over the Waves Waitz 41 Richmond March—two-step 42 Rustling Leaves. Idylle 42 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 43 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 43 Richmond March—two-step 44 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 45 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 46 Rustling Leaves. Variations 47 Stephanie Polka 48 Silvery Waves. Variations 48 Silvery Waves. Variations 49 Spirit Lake Waitz 49 Spirit Lake Waitz 47 Stephanie Polka 57 Storm Mazurka 58 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 59 Spirit Lake Waitz 50 Sutan's Band March 50 Sutan's Band March 51 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 51 Storm Mazurka 52 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 51 Tornado Galop 52 Watel 53 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 54 Juder the Double Eagle March 55 Venetian Waitz 50 Village Pa rade Quickstep 50 Village Pa r	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Billad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 242 Rosemonde. 242 Swaemonde. 243 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 244 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 245 Stull I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Ad 194 She Sleeps among the Daisles. 258 Summer Shower. 268 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 278 Summer Shower. 279 Sweet Long Ago, The 280 Sweet Long Ago, The 292 Titania's Cradle. 281 There's a Rainbow in the Clouds 284 Thinking of Home and Mother 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Trea da oftly lhe Angels are calling 287 The to the Last 287 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 281 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 281 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 282 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 282 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 283 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 284 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 285 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 286 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 287 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 288 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 289 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope. 280 Wartro's Bold was Hope.
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 On the Wave Waitz 245 Orvetta Waitz 25 Senecr 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Overtita Waitz 25 Senecr 19 Over the Waves Waitz 26 Senecr 19 Over the Waves Waitz 279 Please Do Waitz 28 Durkee 28 Psyche. Gavotte 28 Fsyche. Gavotte 29 Syche. Gavotte 245 Rustic Waitz 245 Rustic Waitz 245 Rustic Waitz 247 Rusting Leaves. Idyle 248 Richmond March—two-step 249 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 259 Spring Flowers Polka 269 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 279 Stephanie Polka 279 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 278 Storm Azurka 279 Storm Mazurka 279 Storm Azurka 279 Storm Azurka 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Storm Azurka 272 Triffet's Grand March. 273 Triffet's Grand March. 274 Storm Mazurka 275 Spring Flowers Polka 276 Storm The. Imitation of Nature 277 Storm Mazurka 278 Storm Mazurka 279 Storm Azurka 279 Storm Azurka 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Storm Mazurka 272 Triffet's Grand March, op. 182 273 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 274 Storm Salop 275 Visions of Light. Waitz 276 Village Parade Quickstep 277 Visions of Light. 277 Waits on Starkey 278 Storm Salop 279 Storm Salop 270 Sweet Long Rogo. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Storm Mazurka 272 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 273 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 274 Visions of Light. 275 Waits of Cock 276 Storm March 277 Waits on Storm March 277 Waits on Storm March 278 Storm Mazurka 279 Storm Mazurka 280 Wadeling March 279 Waits on Storm March 280 Wadelisson 281 Wacht Waitz 281 Washery 281 W	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 10 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain, 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Esta 290 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep 160 Outcast, An. Character Song 174 Parted from our Dear Ones 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 280 Sec Those Living Pictures. 291 Shall I EverSee Mother's Face Again? 292 As Sinall I EverSee Mother's Face Again? 293 Again I See Strain Shall Shall Shall Shall I See Strain Shall
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 On the Wave Waitz. 245 Orvetta Waitz 30 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 25 Over the Waves Waitz 26 Over the Waves Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 217 Please Do Waitz 218 Richmond March—two-step 219 The Waves Waitz 219 The Waits Schumann 219 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 219 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 210 Silvery Waves. Variations 211 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 212 Stephanie Polka 213 Formado Galop 213 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 214 Suitar's Band March. 215 Tornado Galop 216 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 217 Strifet's Grand March, op. 182 218 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 219 Venetian Waitz 210 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 2115 Tornado Galop 2120 Venetian Waitz 213 Waves of the Ocean March 214 Wade 215 Willage Pa rade Quickstep 216 Wedding March 217 Warbings at Eve 218 Waves of the Ocean March 219 Woodland Whispers Waltzes 219 Sephyr Waitz 210 Schward 220 Sweet Blake 221 Wedding March 222 Wedding March 23 Waves of the Ocean March 24 Meddelssohn 25 Wach Waitz 25 Wedding March 25 Woodland Whispers Waltzes 25 Salepy Waitz 25 Washers 26 Wedding March 26 Wedding March 27 Wedding March 28 Wares of the Ocean March 29 Wach Waitz 20 Schward 20 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 20 Wares of the Ocean March 21 Wedding March 22 Wedding March 23 Waves of the Ocean March 24 Mendelssohn 25 Wares of the Ocean March 25 Washings at Eve 26 Wedding March 27 Wedding March 28 Wares of the Ocean March 29 Wares of the Ocean March 29 Wares of the Ocean March 20 Wedding Ma	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 274 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Add 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 195 Son's Return, The 192 Sweet Long Ago, The 193 Sweet Long Ago, The 194 She Sieeps and Mother 195 Sweet Long Ago, The 195 Thinking of Home and Mother 196 Triania's Cradle 197 True to the Last 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 199 Triania's Cradle 198 True to the Last 199 True to the Last 199 Triania's Cradle 199 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 191 Triania's Cradle 192 Triania's Cradle 193 Trie to the Last 194 Triania's Cradle 195 Triania's Cradle 196 Triania's Cradle 197 Triania's Cradle 198 Triania's Cradle 198 Triania's Cradle 199 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz. 219 On the Wave Waitz. 245 Orvetta Waitz 30 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 25 Over the Waves Waitz 26 Over the Waves Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Our Little Agnes. Waitz 27 Please Do Waitz 28 Please Do Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 29 Please Do Waitz 20 Please Do Waitz 217 Please Do Waitz 218 Richmond March—two-step 219 The Waves Waitz 219 The Waits Schumann 219 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 219 Schubert's Serenade. Transcription 210 Silvery Waves. Variations 211 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 212 Stephanie Polka 213 Formado Galop 213 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 214 Suitar's Band March. 215 Tornado Galop 216 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 217 Strifet's Grand March, op. 182 218 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 219 Venetian Waitz 210 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 2115 Tornado Galop 2120 Venetian Waitz 213 Waves of the Ocean March 214 Wade 215 Willage Pa rade Quickstep 216 Wedding March 217 Warbings at Eve 218 Waves of the Ocean March 219 Woodland Whispers Waltzes 219 Sephyr Waitz 210 Schward 220 Sweet Blake 221 Wedding March 222 Wedding March 23 Waves of the Ocean March 24 Meddelssohn 25 Wach Waitz 25 Wedding March 25 Woodland Whispers Waltzes 25 Salepy Waitz 25 Washers 26 Wedding March 26 Wedding March 27 Wedding March 28 Wares of the Ocean March 29 Wach Waitz 20 Schward 20 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 20 Wares of the Ocean March 21 Wedding March 22 Wedding March 23 Waves of the Ocean March 24 Mendelssohn 25 Wares of the Ocean March 25 Washings at Eve 26 Wedding March 27 Wedding March 28 Wares of the Ocean March 29 Wares of the Ocean March 29 Wares of the Ocean March 20 Wedding Ma	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 274 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Add 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 195 Son's Return, The 192 Sweet Long Ago, The 193 Sweet Long Ago, The 194 She Sieeps and Mother 195 Sweet Long Ago, The 195 Thinking of Home and Mother 196 Triania's Cradle 197 True to the Last 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 199 Triania's Cradle 198 True to the Last 199 True to the Last 199 Triania's Cradle 199 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 191 Triania's Cradle 192 Triania's Cradle 193 Trie to the Last 194 Triania's Cradle 195 Triania's Cradle 196 Triania's Cradle 197 Triania's Cradle 198 Triania's Cradle 198 Triania's Cradle 199 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. Variations 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka 219 On the Wave Waitz 219 On the Wave Waitz 245 Orvetta Waitz 25 Senecr 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Overtita Waitz 25 Senecr 19 Over the Waves Waitz 26 Senecr 19 Over the Waves Waitz 279 Please Do Waitz 28 Durkee 28 Psyche. Gavotte 28 Fsyche. Gavotte 29 Syche. Gavotte 245 Rustic Waitz 245 Rustic Waitz 245 Rustic Waitz 247 Rusting Leaves. Idyle 248 Richmond March—two-step 249 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 259 Spring Flowers Polka 269 Souvenir of the Bail Waitz 279 Stephanie Polka 279 Storm, The. Imitation of Nature 278 Storm Azurka 279 Storm Mazurka 279 Storm Azurka 279 Storm Azurka 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Storm Azurka 272 Triffet's Grand March. 273 Triffet's Grand March. 274 Storm Mazurka 275 Spring Flowers Polka 276 Storm The. Imitation of Nature 277 Storm Mazurka 278 Storm Mazurka 279 Storm Azurka 279 Storm Azurka 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Storm Mazurka 272 Triffet's Grand March, op. 182 273 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 274 Storm Salop 275 Visions of Light. Waitz 276 Village Parade Quickstep 277 Visions of Light. 277 Waits on Starkey 278 Storm Salop 279 Storm Salop 270 Sweet Long Rogo. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 270 Sweet Long Ago. Transcription 271 Storm Mazurka 272 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 273 Twilight Echoes. Song without words 274 Visions of Light. 275 Waits of Cock 276 Storm March 277 Waits on Storm March 277 Waits on Storm March 278 Storm Mazurka 279 Storm Mazurka 280 Wadeling March 279 Waits on Storm March 280 Wadelisson 281 Wacht Waitz 281 Washery 281 W	76 My Home by the Old Mill O'M. 110 My Little Lost Irene 170 My Old Kentucky Home 216 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. Did 228 Old Folks at Home (Swanee Ribber) 102 Old Sexton. The 270 Old Village Church 104 On the Banks of the Beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful River Etta 90 On the Beach. Most beautiful Ballad R 258 Out on the Deep. 160 Outcast, An. Character Song. 174 Parted from our Dear Ones. 254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. 274 Private Tommy Atkins 136 Request. Sacred 208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep. 274 Shall I Ever See Mother's FaceAgain? Add 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 194 She Sieeps among the Daisles. Did 195 Son's Return, The 192 Sweet Long Ago, The 193 Sweet Long Ago, The 194 She Sieeps and Mother 195 Sweet Long Ago, The 195 Thinking of Home and Mother 196 Triania's Cradle 197 True to the Last 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 198 Thinking of Home and Mother 199 Triania's Cradle 198 True to the Last 199 True to the Last 199 Triania's Cradle 199 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 191 Triania's Cradle 192 Triania's Cradle 193 Trie to the Last 194 Triania's Cradle 195 Triania's Cradle 196 Triania's Cradle 197 Triania's Cradle 198 Triania's Cradle 198 Triania's Cradle 199 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle 190 Triania's Cradle

old
he Wild Waves Saying? Due Roses are Blooming Again
ter Days Have Gone
Wife, The. Comic ever Watching
mmer Roses Fade sheet music is only twenty-five the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the interest that the sent to any the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES. Any 10 for 25 cents.

Any 21 for 50 cents. Any 43 for $1.00. Any 100 for $2.25.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid

SPECIAL OFFER To secure new trial subscriptions or extend old subscriptions, you will send 15c, for 3 months extra subscription, we will send any ten pieces or to any subscriber who will select any twenty-one of the above pieces and set us 50c we will renew their subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delicered ablutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription to "Comfort" for one year and give the music delicered ablutely free. You can readily sell ten pieces of the music for 50c and thereby obtain your subscription and the other eleven pieces for nothing. Don't delay, but order today.

Address "CO UFORT Music Room," Augustn, Maine.

CHILDHOOD DAYS.

Copyright, ♥ %, by N. E. BYERS, 56 West 22d St., New York City.

F. H. GILSON COMPANY, MUSIC TYPOGRAPHERS, BOSTON, U. S. A.

A National Style in Music.

Many musicians complain because there is no distinctively national type of American music, and point out the marked distinctive character of the music written in other countries. What is needed in such cases is a little patience for it must be remembered that no nation can produce anything distinctively national until such

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

NE of the young Vanderbilts is having built a new automobile which will go ahead of everything the world has yet seen either in autos or bikes. It will have a speed of seventy-five miles per hour, and will cost 60,000 francs. It will have to have a wind guard, for no driver would be willing to face the wind at such a speed—that is a speed greater than that of an express train—without some adequate protection. The horse-power of the former Vanderbilt flyer is thirty-three, and its speed is fifty-five miles per hour. NE of the young Vanderbilts is having tion. The horse-power of the former Vanderbilt flyer is thirty-three, and its speed is fifty-five miles per hour.

Some people think an automobile expensive but when the cost of keeping a horse in the city is figured up, "the auto"—even at $1,000 is the cheaper in the long run. The expense of repairing is nothing compared to the expense of a horse, but do not think when you see your neighbor whirling down the street that he has no troubles of his own; but if he be level and clear headed he can readily overcome them. Electrical carriages are for the city, and may be best taken charge of by some company. Their batteries need constant care to see if the plates need renewing or the contacts need fixing.

The hydro-carbon explosion engine is very inexpensive to operate, but the Americans do not take kindly to it. The vibration, the noise and the odor are all distasteful. Yet this wagon will run further for a lower figure, start promptly and require less care than any other form. The noise, however, is especially objectionable to horses, and many owners do not like to operate it on that account.

And yet, when you buy an automobile, you are by no means, done with the expense of it.

like to operate it on that account.

And yet, when you buy an automobile, you are, by no means, done with the expense of it. The motor wagon, no matter of what description, must be handled with care. Each nut on the frame should be tried occasionally to see if it has started. If so it should be tightened, but should not be forced beyond an easy lock, as it may start the head off. The bolts holding the springs should not be forced too tight. The springs are constantly working, and if these the springs should not be forced too tight. The springs are constantly working, and if these bolts are forced home they will only squeeze the washers and loosen again. The wheels must be kept dry or the iron will rust under the nickle and trouble will result. A little kerosene occasionally will prevent rust. These wagons should not be closed in a small stable to steam and saturate the air and cause rust. Air the place well to take off the dampness contained in the air coming from the water and steam. Take off the wheels occasionally and wipe off the bearings and balls. Fill with vaseline and adjust carefully again. It will pay to do this once in every four hundred miles; oftener if you hear a click in the wheels, for then a ball is broken and needs replacing before it tears the bearings. The vaseline is not put in to lubricate the wheels; that is against the principle of the ball-bearing, for it must necessarily retard the wheels. It is put in to force out grit and dirt that may lodge there. It will keep a bearing from being ground by grit and dirt. grit and dirt.

FOR DIGNIFIED RIDERS.

grit and dirt.

It is always advisable to keep the tires pumped hard on the driving wheels, or the twist given them by the power applied will surely wear the tire against the steel rim and cause rim cuts. The nuts holding the tire place should always be tight, for if a tire slips it will wear out the more readily. The front wheels need not be too hard; they ride more easily if not hard; yet do not have them too soft, or the same trouble will result as with the soft, or the same trouble will result as with the Car tracks should be avoided. The makers Car tracks should be avoided. The makers claim that running over them does not injure the tire, but experience has been that they have a most unwholesome effect. The steering device must be kept in good condition. Not much trouble will be experienced from this, but the nuts and bolts should be inspected occasionally and the gear oiled. The equalizing gear is more or less exposed, but will not pick up much dirt on account of its location. It should be washed out with kerceppe and oiled. abound be washed out with kerosene and oiled when necessary. It will not need this treatment often. The brake operates on the circumference of the sprocket wheel. This is a most excellent device, but will occasionally get dry and clatter, much to the discomfort of horses.

Do not use the brake going backward, as it will bend if you do, and cause much annoyance by its ceaseless clatter. You can use your reversing lever and turn it half over if you must, but unless you are experimenting you will not be eaught in a position where you will have to use the brake for the backward motion. Put a little dry graphite on your brake shoe, so it will not clatter. Do not use enough to make it not clatter. Do not use enough to make it slip. If you should be coasting without steam and find your brake does not work, do not get excited. Reverse your engine slowly, and you will find an end to your trouble. The chain should be kept tight as a loose one will click at every change of speed, and will break on the slightest provocation if it does not jump the sprocket. If it sticks in the gearing, there is no danger of the wagon running away.

There is a lieutenant of the Brighton, Mass., police who uses a locomobile and keeps it in a house about fourteen feet square, at the rear of the lieutenant's lot, at the end of the driveway, with its hard pine floor about on a level with the ground. It is of wood, shingled, and its small sliding doors are as carefully made and hung as if they were for a carriage house of a millionaire. If you push them open, you will find the carriage jacked up on wooden crickets, so that the long-continued standing on one point of the pneumatic tires shall not flatten them. You note two windows letting in light and sunshine at the right of the carriage while on your left is a third window, giving the lieutenant what he wants, more light on the workbench which extends on the left side of the house from the front door to the wall of the four by five closets in the rear corner. A chestful of tools is under the bench, while shelves and boxes around and over it hold bolts and screws and various odds and ends which may come in handy some day. The closet is used for the carriage robes, caps and coats—though in one corner is a very important bit of furniture in the shape of a soft bed for McGinty, the great, good-natured, appreciative Maltese cat, which is the lieutenant's constant companion, as he works around the bench or the carriage. panion, as he works around the bench or the carriage.

Underneath the vehicle a large drip-pan

panion, as he works around the bench or the carriage.

Underneath the vehicle a large drip-pan catches the grease and gasolene that may come from the tank or engine while the carriage is idle; and a drain in the middle of the slightly sloping floor carries off what water there is to be got rid of when the carriage is being sponged off after a run. Six inches from the drain a small plug is set in the floor. Its use does not appear at first glance but it is a part of an ingenious scheme for "blowing off" the engine indoors without filling the little house with steam. If the lieutenant wishes to run the vehicle into the house before blowing off, he gets the carriage into its place, takes a five foot length of hose down from a hook over the bench, attaches one end to the valve on the carriage, sets the other securely into the plug in the floor, and "lets her go." The steam blows off into a pipe running under the floor from the plug to the outer side of the foundation sill, and is as completely outdoors as if the carriage had been left to blow off in the yard.

This is a distinct improvement over the method found necessary even in some automobile stations, where the repairer is obliged to lie flat on his back and work on the engine in that position as the carriage stands on the floor.

As the locomobile is a carriage which has to be started with an artificially heated torch, the lieutenant has put in a small kerosene heater, which stands on his work bench and not only gives heat enough to warm the house in winter, but also heats the torch in four or five minutes without requiring to be watched or manipulated. He keeps his supply of gasolene in cans placed in a wooden box or cupboard at the rear of the lot, outdoors, away from the buildings. The lieutenant has had his carriage only about a year, but has run it over two thousand miles.

Electric delivery wagons similar to those used by many dry goods and department stores in

Electric delivery wagons similar to those used by many dry goods and department stores in our cities, cost about $3,000, but are considered by the shrewd and enterprising merchant as more economical than horses and wagons considering the saving in feed, help-hire and

The auto and the locomobile are getting down to such low figures now, however, that it will not be long before the older bicycle enthusiasts will graduate entirely from the wheel to the "elephant on doughnuts" as the Irishman called it.

man called it.

In bicycles there are some novelties this year.
Mr. John C. Hehr of Brooklyn, N. J., has designed a wheel to fit cyclers who wish to keep a dignified position. It will, at least, be an effectual preventive of "scorching". We give an illustration. With this new vehicle there is no chain for connecting the sprocket wheels, but the power is transmitted to the driving wheel by means of a train of gears contained in the casing surrounding the crank axle. The steering is accomplished by means of a rack and pinion attached to the handle bar and steering post respectively, a turn of the handle bar a short distance in either direction handle bar a short distance in either direction rotating the post and pulling the steering wheel around by actuating the two rods which lead from the post to the steering head. The handle bar also serves as a rest for the back, and in case of an accident the rider would be thrown clear of the wheel, as there is nothing to obstruct his legs or body. The machine is also made in tricycle form, with a short shaft supporting two small wheels at the rear of the steering and driving wheel.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female diseases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucorrhoma, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

Paper is supposed to have been invented in China, about 170 B. C.

OUR TOP BUGGY AT $26.90 la fully de bed and 1
FREE YEHICLE AND HARNESS CATALOG which we will send from tains other GUARANTEED reliable top buggies at 25.06, 252.56, 264.06 laboratories of the send from the send f

but the manufacturer's small profit added, ship direct ut one cent in advance and guarantee our rigs for 2 year, o. We have factories in Iowa, Michigan, thie and Mis rom the point nearest your home so as to save you freight.

JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150-166 and 287-289 W. Madison St. CHICAGO

Eggs Laid by Reptiles.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

UITE an interesting collection of reptiles' eggs is preserved at the National Museum in Washington, though they are not placed on exhibition. Among them are some Among them are some alligators' eggs, as well as eggs laid by the American crocodile. There are true crocodiles in Florida, though only a very few in number, and they are distinguished from the comparative-by the shape of their from the comparatively-common alligator by the shape of their heads chiefly. But all alligators' eggs and crocodiles' eggs are pretty much alike, being about the size of a goose-egg and with a hard shell. Most people would mistake them for goose-eggs, though it might be a painful surprise to mother goose who should find herself the seeming parent of a brood of newly-hatched alligators.

Crocodiles, and alligators likewise, breed in Crocodiles, and alligators likewise, breed in spring, the female building on a sheltered bank a small mound composed of layers of mud and spring, the female building on a sheltered bank a small mound composed of layers of mud and grass, between the successive strata of which she deposits a series of layers of eggs, 100 or 200 in all. After a while the eggs are hatched by the sun, helped by the heat of the decomposing vegetable matter, and, as soon as they are hatched, the infant saurians scramble for the water, led by their mother, who shows much devotion toward them. The male, on the other hand, is said to eat his offspring when he gets a chance, and wading birds, such as herons, as well as fishes and turtles, eagerly gobble them. Recently, by the way, many alligators' eggs have been hatched artificially in Jacksonville, Fla., by placing them in boxes of sand and exposing the latter to the sun. Once out of their shells, the baby reptiles are promptly killed and stuffed for sale to tourists, or else are sold alive for 25 cents apiece.

Turtles' eggs, of course, vary in size with the dimensions of the animal, but by far the biggest known are those of the famous Galapagos land tortoise, now nearly extinct, some of them being as large as billiard-balls. It is said that balls. It is said that Bull Frake dogs the dogs which have run wild on the Gala-pagos Islands exhibit much patience in waiting for these eggs to hatch, thereupon devouring the young turtles. Land Tortorsa their eggs in holes, which they may or may not dig for the purpose. Water turtles, whether fresh or salt, crawl up on a bank, scoop a hole with their flippers, deposit their eggs in it, and cover them up again with sand.

Most snakes lay eggs, though a few bring forth their young alive. The eggs are deposited under leaves or rubbish usually. They have soft shells, covered with a parchment-like skin, like those of many water turtles, and, as might be expected, the largest egg is produced by the birgest waster which is the particular.

be expected, the largest egg is produced by the biggest snake, which is the python.

stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H.PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St. N.Y.

Farmers' Sons Wanted with knowleds fair education to work in an office; $45 a month with advancement; steady employment; must be honest and pliable. Branch offices of the association are being established in each state. Apply at once giving full particular, the Veterinary Science Association, London, Casala.

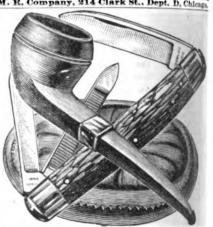

ADIES I Make Big Wages

AT HOME—

Art Home—

And you can readily do the same, for he and you can readily do the same, for he are you can readily do the same, for he are you repare time is valuable. This is no deeplie, and no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sed
2 c stamp. RRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box S. Benton Harber, Rid,

Magic Goldometer. For hunting minerals, Goldometer. State of the state FREE A beautiful gold ring for selling in Roman Gold Stick Pins at 10 cts. each Write for Pins and large premium link
M. R. Company, 214 Clark St., Dept. D, Chicaga

FRE

No Money Required. New Plan. Handsome Returns. Sell for us a small assorted lot of the Remedies which we send free on sale. We trust you Return us the money collected, $1.80. For your hosels work we will send all, Free, postpaid this high graduateful Smoking Set, consisting of one keen, highly tempered three blade knife, strongly riveted, brans bound, horm or stag handle, fine Freed, brans hound, horm or stag handle, fine Freed, brief, pipe, amber mouth-piece, nickl trimmed, our new style, perfect pouch or tobacco holder. Lays flat in pocket, keeping plug cut or fine tobacco free from and always freeh and moist. Will take you about half hour to sell the Wonderful Oxien Remedies. Greated handle sellers on earth. Don't delay, Order atoos. Remember, no money required. All first order from new places will receive an extra present in addition to the valuable Smoking Set. We also send our offer of a Mackintosh or Rain Coat stagitime. A Gold Mine for bright wideawake people. Delay does not make rich men. Address your letter. THE GIANT OXIE CO., Credit Department, Augusta, Maint.

THE EAGLE CLAW,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP
IN THE WORLD for CATCHING
FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF GAME.

A wonderful and most ingenious

A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best derive for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. I is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction. Ohio Farmer says: 'The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. I and small his and game. We have sold thousand monthly paper sir months did satisfaction.

PREMIUM OFFER. We will send a No. 1, Eagle Claw Hook and our splendid monthly paper sir months we will send the No. 2, Eagle Claw Hook and our paper on trial for only 30 cents; or, send us 50 cents and we will send the No. 2, Eagle Claw hook and our paper on trial six months. Price, per dozen, by express, No. 1, $2.25; No. 2, $3.50.

Address LANE & CO., Augusta.

WE GIVE THIS WATCH FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but they will as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarante we willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we have a subscription from the contraction of the

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HERE comes from E.
J. C. a suggestion for the laundering of summer gowns, which will be appreciated by all who love the dainty muslins and organdies and per-cales which are sold to us for wash goods and war-ranted to be "fast", but which often assume dull colors after two or three launderings launderings.
"There is no season of the launderings.

"There is no season of the year when one can be so beautifully dressed at such a reasonable cost as in summer. D a in ty organdies, Swiss novelties, lawns, dimities, printed Madras and ginghams may be had in lovely shades and designs.

Nothing is more suitable for warm weather, either for shirt waists to be worn with heavy linen or cloth skirts, or for whole dresses.

"The art of laundering such materials so they will look like new goods is not a difficult one to acquire, and as more care is needed than the average washerwoman is apt to bestow, it is better to do the work at home. Vigorous rubbing is not needed and will soon make them look old and faded. Put warm, soft water in a tub, add a tablespoonful of powdered borax to every bucketful, and rub enough soap in it to make a good suds. Wash the garments until clean without rubbing any soap directly upon them. Nothing is so good for cleaning such fabrics as borax, since it does not fade the delicate colors. Rinse in warm water. Prepare a thin boiled starch, dip the pieces in it and hang them up in the shade to dry. A brisk wind is liable to tear them, and long exposure to sunshine will fade them.

"Dampen and roll the garments two or three hours before ironing them. Embroidery should Shine will fade them.

"Dampen and roll the garments two or three hours before ironing them. Embroidery should be carefully straightened out and ironed on the wrong side. Keep a dish of clean cold water and a soft sponge or piece of linen near at hand so that any spots that are too dry may be dampened before ironing.

Some materials look better when

On the evening of the party every cake in the cook book turned out in honor of the occasion. There was bride cake in a charming white dress with veil and orange flowers. Pancake wore a number of wee cooking implements as a fringe to her gown. Drop cake wore a neck-lace of cough drops strung together to represent gems. Angel cake appeared to float into the rocom by means of her feathery tissue paper wings. Plum cake carried a plumb line. White Mountain cake wore, pinned to her gown, a book of views taken in the White Mountains. Cinnamon bun carried a box of cinnamon and a bath bun in her hands. Minute cake came with a large clock face drawn upon paper, covering the front of her bodice. Corn cake created a laugh by donning a hideous corn cure advertisement. A picture of the hen, the best layer on record, stood for Layer cake. A coffee pot in one hand and a cup in the other distinguished Coffee cake very ingeniously. One gentleman, who appeared ludicrously arrayed in a flannel nightcap, was discovered to be Flannel cake. And so the merry list went on.

No cake revealed its identity on first arriving, but was particularly asked to keep this secret. Every member of the company received pencil and paper, with a request to write down the names of the cakes he recognized. This merry guessing required fully two hours, during which ice cream in all popular flavors was passed upon a tray by a maid.

At the end of the allotted time each cake delivered up to the hostess a list of the other cakes present. These lists were carefully read and compared by the mistress of ceremonies.

There were two prizes. In the case of the lady's the reward took the form of a dainty cookbook containing recipes for cakes only. The lucky gentleman was given a handsome silver cake knife.

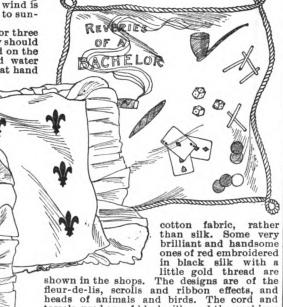

More ice cream and cake followed, after

More ice cream and cake followed, after which the hostess called upon her guests to pair off for a "cake walk."

Three times the paired couples circled the room, each couple endeavoring to outdo the other in ostentatious parade. Three judges appointed from the household circle watched the performance and decided the award of the prize a handsome fruit cake covered and decorated tinguish himself by receiving a prize was given, as a consolation, a gingerbread man with features formed of cloves and other spices.

Referring to our illustration of sofa pillows, those most in vogue now are made of heavy ironed on the wrong side, others need the smooth finish produced by ironing on the right side. If the irons are rough rub them with a piece of beeswax tied in a cloth."

LATE SOFA CUSHION DESIGNS.

Art linen is the very latest thing in wash shirt waists. Its quality, first of all, recommends it, the texture, soft and fine, yet with plenty of body to it, being admirable for the tailor-made waists. But it is the color to be found in the art linen fabric that most endears it to the shirt waist wearer. Such faded, farfound in the art linen fabric that most endears it to the shirt waist wearer. Such faded, faraway, old rose shades as it displays! Such dainty Wedgwood blues! Such lovely primrose buffs! Such warm, Pompeiian dark reds! They make the hues of the Madras, cheviots and linens that are not "art" seem crude indeed. Some literal minds may at first shrink from using for clothing the same material they would use for table and bureau covers, but anybody with an eye for color will fall right in line and have her new wash shirt waist made of art linen.

A flowered paper should never cover the walls of a room where many pictures are to be hung, nor should it be used in a long, narrow room unless it is relieved by a dark dado. These papers belong for the most part to bed rooms, where few pictures will go on the walls, and where the wall coverings are desired to contrib-ute a furnished effect without taking up room

d 134, his

In choosing these papers it is necessary to exercise great care, as patterns that seem exquisite in themselves are often unsatisfactory when transferred to the walls of the rooms for which they may be intended. At many decorators, nowadays, model rooms hung with papers of varied styles are to be seen. An inspection of them will soon show the effect produced by the different patterns.

duced by the different patterns.

The newest laundry bag is a handy receptacle and decidedly practical. In addition to the familiar drawing string at the top, which allows the bag to be opened to its full width or drawn tightly together, the bottom is left open and there is a deep flap straight across which is fastened with buttons and buttonholes. When it is desired to empty the bag the flap is unbuttoned and the articles drop out, thus avoiding the necessity for dragging them through the opening at the top. One bag of this type seen recently was of broad check pattern in heavy linen, green and gray in tone.

The latest novelty is a Cake Contest. The in-

The latest novelty is a Cake Contest. The invitations invited to an ice cream evening, and the postscript added a request which gave a whint of the fun to come. It said: "Please come representing some sort of cake."

on.

No cake revealed its identity on first arriving,

to keep this secret.

with chocolate icing.

Each member of the party who failed to dis-delicate shades.

Then the "Gibson" pillow is much seen. If one is able to copy Gibson's pictures in pen and ink onto a gray, tan or white linen, the effect is very good. The picture may be left in pen and ink, or may be outlined in fine black silk. These Gibson pillows are also shown in plain covers of dark strong tones, and are printed on in colors.

Feathers and down are expensive but if you delicate shades.

and are printed on in colors.

Feathers and down are expensive, but if you know a bank where the cat-tail grows you can have down pillows galore for the mere making. You must know that the fluff of the ripe cat-tail, which may be gathered in August, makes a pillow equalled only by down itself. So be provident this year, and if you live near a lake or pond, get a harvest of cat-tails for future use. You will find them the most inexpensive and satisfactory material you can employ for the purpose.

If it should be your fate to live in a section of the country where cat-tails do not grow, then substitute the silk from milkweed pods. Gather the pods in the fall of the year, hang them away in paper bags to dry, and they will burst open before the winter is over and can be made up into pillows in the early spring.

The Gentlewoman's Perfume SUPREME VIOLET MARK.

HE quintessence of freshly picked Russian violets. A single drop equals in fragrance a bunch of flowers. $1.00 per oz. of druggists (only) or by mail. A dainty sample for 6 cents to cover postage and packing. Mention this paper. A dainty sample for 5 cents to cover possage and packing Mention this paper.

THE STEARNS EXTRACT CO., Detroit, Mich.

CHINA DINNER SET FREE FOR SELLING 15 POUNDS QUEEN BAKING POWDER OF A POUND can of our inducements are enormous. To every purchaser of a pound can of our Queen Baking Powder, we give FREE a beautiful Royal Blue Pitcher and & claes according to the lady who sells 15 pound cans Queen Baking Powder we will make a present of a handsome 80-Piece Dinner Set, full size tableware, handsome present of a handsome 80-Piece Dinner Set, full size tableware, handsome short and gold traced. We also give Bleycles, Sewing Machines, Macking Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and Hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and Hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical
Instruments and Hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Musical Instruments and Hundreds of other value, Dress Skirts, Furniture, Dress Sk

Philanthropies of 1900.

HEN war, famine HEN war, famine and disaster have and disaster have a made up so large a part of the record of 1900, it is with more than ordinary pleasure that we learn of the philosthronics. the philanthropies which have been inaugurated and carried steadily forward during the year.

One of the most touching and beauti-is the "blind hour," in the Conressional library at Washington. There are n this magnificent library, quite a collection of books for the blind, and this department has of books for the blind, and this department has a fairly large number of patrons; but it is obviously impossible to supply these readers with current literature, or with any large number of standard works, owing to the great expense of making the books with raised letters. But it occurred to some one that the blind could be read to, and out of that thought grew the reading hour for the blind in the room set apart for their use. Prominent people have given their time gladly, authors, professional people, all respond readily to the invitation to read for an hour; and once a week, regularly, the blind come in increasing numbers, to hear read what they cannot read for themselves.

This charity might be extended to other cities, even those whose libraries held no regular department for the blind. The need of the reading hour would be the greater where there were no books for the blind.

Another beautiful philanthropy is the establishment of (Heldidt Henry).

were no books for the blind.

Another beautiful philanthropy is the establishment of "Holiday House" near Long Island Sound, by the Little Mothers' Aid Association, New York. A roomy old mansion with extensive grounds was secured and fitted up for the delight of the "little mothers" of the great city. These children, who are too young to earn money themselves, and are therefore left at home to care for the smaller children while their nearnts are away at work are through their parents are away at work, are, through the aid of the Association, given a day of perfect happiness and freedom at Holiday House. The happiness and freedom at Holiday House. The Association arranges for the care of the younger children and takes the little mother off for a day of the keenest delight. When possible the child is kept for several days, during which time she is taught useful lessons in cooking or sewing, made tempting by interspersed romps on the sandy beach, baths in the surf and the many delights of the spacious grounds surrounding the fine old mansion.

FREE Aluminum Thimble or Set Ring to introduce our catl. Send 2c. for postage. B. M. H., 13 N. 2d Str., St. Louis, Mo.

ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample mailed free to any sufferer. "Physician" Box 36, Augusta, Maine.

FREE Rogers Brothers, 1847 Silverware. Housekeepers and Agents send today for Free samples. LADIES HOME SPECIALTY CO., 521 Kirk Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

WOMEN WANTED Do Binding. $9.00 week. Steady sent prepaid. Send stamped addressed envelope for particulars. Universal Co., Dept. 29, Walnut Street, Phila., Pa.

CARRY Our Aluminum Lucky Pocket Piece. You will always have money. Aluminum surrounds a 1901 penny. Sample 10c. 3 for 25c. Jewelry catalogue Free. CURTIN JEWELRY CO., Attleboro, Mass.

LADIES to do piece work at their homes. We furnish all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly. Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canvassing. Send stamped envelope for reply. Miss Modelle Miller, New Carlisle. Ind. Please mention Comport when you write.

MAN WANTED in each county. Salary, horse and wagon, if competent, to sell teas, coffees, spices, etc.. direct to housewives and stores, with or without valuable premiums to customers. West India Importing Co., 443 Washington Street, New York City.

Our Grand OFFER

For the next ninety days we will send you a Beautiful New Pictures, each 16x22 inches in size and handsomely finished in thirteen different colors. The Guardian Angel, Christee at Guives, The Roel thirteen different colors. The Guardia Angel, Christon the Bushers of Ages. The Busher of Ages. The Rock of Ages. The First on the Bushers of these subjects, but none can compare seen made. They are well worth 50 cents each. WE ASK NO MONEY IN ADVANCE. Just sell them at 26c. each and return the money to us and we will send your choice of premiums from the large list we send with pictures. You can easily earn a ladies' or gents' watch, Gold-Ring, Silverware, Set of Dishes, etc., by giving us a few hours of your time, or you can earn eash commissions. This offer is made to calculate the contract of th M. E. MILLS, Dept. W, 6 Washington St., Chicago.

INDIVIDUAL TASTES

THEY ARE BEAUTIES. FREE! FREE! at many stores from $15.00 to $50.00 each, we are giving these Chairs away as Premiums for selling our Remedies.

LAGE CURTAINS FREE. trice Plasters at 25c. each, which we not give the two, they gather up nicely and straightforward offer each state will tell you that there is nothing which "dresses up" a room so much as a pair of lace curtains, in fact in many instances one pair would do for several windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home with. Every one of taste will tell you that there is nothing which "dresses up" a room so much as a pair of lace curtains. They show from the outside as well as from the inside. They are of the real Italian pattern and formerly sold as high as six or eight dollars a pair. They are delivered free to you, all the mand earn all about the Morris Chair inducement. It will surprise you in liberality. We do not give the $15.00 Chair for selling only $1.50 worth of goods as some firms profess to do, but we make you the most liberal, honest and straightforward offer ever put out. We are paying our agents over it wo dollars for selling only one dollar's worth of goods in order to get them advertised. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc., etc. Send for the six Plasters to-day, Address,

THE GIANT PLASTER CO., Box C Augusta, Maine.

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing.

FREE! ADJUSTABLE RECLINING CHAIR.

This Easy Chair is Full of Durability and Utility.

This Easy Chair is Full of Durability and Utility.

The style was invented in England many years ago by William Morris, the celebrated London artist. He built it from a knowledge of anatomy. He was also a famous designer of artist furniture. It is therefore called the Morris Chair. It is made of the finest Oak and so arranged by a simple device in the back that it can be adjusted to either a lounging or upright position. It is the most useful and popular Easy Chair on the market, either in Europe or America to-day. It is finely upholstered and tufted. Every one needs at least one of these Chairs in their home, no matter be it humble or great. They seem to just fit the tired body after a busy day's work, in fact it fits one's every mood. We have ordered many thousands of these Chairs direct from an immense furniture factory and although the Morris Chairs sell at many stores from $15.00 to $50.00 each, we are giving these Chairs away as Premiums for selling our Remedies.

ACF CHRTAINS FRFF. Sell only six Electric Plasters at 25c.

A NINE YEARS' TEST.

GALENA, ILLINOIS, Oct. 15th, 1900.

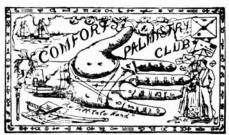

TO THE GIANT CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.

GENTLEMEN: Do you realize I have been selling your remedias for the past mine years? After acting thus as your action of the past mine years? After acting thus as your out that no business period it is not flattery when I say to you that no business period it is not flattery when I say to you that no business period it is not flattery when I say to you that no business period it is not flattery when I say to you with a nonesty and flattery support of the general period in the period with the period of the say of the period of the period you in bondessy and flattery when I say to you may not you in the period you will be period you will be period you are doing is the wish of Yours truly, FANNIE AUBUCHON.

A TEN YEARS' TEST.

THE GIANT CO.

MUNCIE, INDIANA, Oct. 10th, 1900.
GENTLEMEN: After ten years of successful work for you I can truthfully say that the years of successful work for you I greed during my long period more than done as you agreed during my long period more you famous Oxien Remedies. There has nothing taken away to me from getting my first box of Oxien. As for Premiums I have received so many and such nice once, too, that I cannot possibly enumerate them. They were all fine and perfectly satisfactory. I consider your firm one of the best in existence and although I have had many flattering offers to work for other concerns, I have always been true to The Giant Oxie Co., for they have been honest and faithful in carrying out their promises to me. Wishing you continued prosperity, I remain, Yours truly, EMMA E. BRANSON.

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comport PALMISTRY CLUB, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixetly, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with gumarabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-greased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this timpression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

FIND, in spite of all that I have said about the time it takes to reach my subscribers, that a good many write to ask why their impressions do not appear, without taking into consideration the time that must elapse between the receipt of the impressions at our business office, where they have to be checked up and the new names entered upon the list, before they can be forwarded to me, and the time of publication. Please remember that after the impressions come to me it is frequently necessary to let them lie over a month, and that after I have read them it is six weeks before they appear in printed form. Therefore, please do not take the trouble to write in about your impressions for at least four months after they are sent. "Cody" has doubtless noticed that his hands appeared in the May number and had already gone to press before he wrote his letter. "E. L." writes in a letter dated Feb. 21st, making inquiry about her impressions. If she will turn to the November number, 1900, she will find that her reading appeared there.

"L. C. B." has a hand which is very plainly marked the lines appearing to be very straight.

inquiry about her impressions. If she will turn to the November number, 1900, she will find that her reading appeared there.

"L. C. B." has a hand which is very plainly marked, the lines appearing to be very straight and there are very few fine lines which are apt to confuse and mislead. The principal lines stand out very strongly marked, although the life line is broken which would lead to a possible misconception on the part of the reader. An experienced reader would doubtless claim that the life would end at about forty. I should say, however, that the life line was strongly reinforced by another line coming in at the age of thirty and extending on until the four-score mark is reached. There is a break, of course, which if it appears in the left hand should be carefully guarded against but the reappearance of the line which begins on the inner side would indicate that the life goes on as a second life line and makes up for the break. There are two passionate attachments in this hand, one which appears at the age of twenty and another at the age of thirty-five. The latter one causes a great deal of worry and perhaps brings about a complete change in the manner of living. I should predict two marriages. The fate line is exceptionally good and as this is one of the most important lines in the hand, it can be trusted to tell the story. This would indicate the long life which is corroborated by the double life line. It would also indicate that the person will be very successful in life although somewhat dependent on the favor or in fluence of of others. The little triangle at the bottom of the fate line shows good powers of generalship and that the person will be very successful in life although somewhat dependent on the favor or in fluence of of others. The little triangle at the bottom of the solution of t is not more dis-tance between the beginning of the life line and the head line, as that would show the power to carry out good plans. Persever-ance is lacking in plans. Perseverance is lacking in this hand. I should say that the latter part of the life would be much more successful than the first part. There will be two marriages, but the subject will outlive both of them.

L. C. B.

I have so many inquiries about the meaning of the star that I am going to quote Professor Hargett's definitions which differ somewhat from Heron-Allen's and are quite worth considering. You will remember that I spoke of Professor Hargett's work in the last number. He says: "A star on the Mount of Jupiter shows an actively ambitious mind, one that desires to obtain position, or power, and distinction, also one who will likely attain a good and distinguished place among men on account of his or her desires, ambition, great energy, and persistent efforts. This is more clearly indicated if the hand, as a whole, bears out the assumption of the ambitious subject." Always on seeing the star in this place, look the hand over for its general qualities. If in connection with this star the fate line is long, clear, unbroken, extends to Saturn, and turns toward Jupiter to a noticeable degree, this increases the probabilities of the high honors desired by the subject.

This is still more flattering in its indications if the Sun line and head line are good, long, and well formed with a large mount of Venus, a good, well developed mount of Luna. This is indicative of an ambitious and good hand, one that will very likely succeed to a very satisfactory degree.

The star of Saturn or finger of Saturn indicates that the mind is active along morbid, unnatural lines or possibly that the mind is in an abnormal state. It is usually a sign of foreboding of some evil to the subject. It is especially bad, when the star on Saturn is connected with a hollow, flat, hard hand, or if the head and heart lines are out of their normal places. The star on the mount of the sun or the sun line, shows an active mind and one interested in literary pursuits. Such a person is fond of music, poetry and the drama, and possibly is active along one or more of these lines. This star is likely to bring honors thus indicated and is usually accompanied by lack of contentment, which in itself brings a continual striving for success, which is liable to be rewarded.

On Mercury the star means interest and abilrewarded.

On Mercury the star means interest and abil-

On Mercury the star means interest and ability in some of the sciences, especially medical science, chemistry, physiology, anatomy, electricity, botany, geology, and such like sciences. It also shows cunning and secretiveness.

The star on the Mount of Mars, on the head line, the liver line, or health line, or Luna, or any branch of the head line or liver line shows disease of the physical organization, nervous disease generally, nervous headache often, especially if it is connected with the liver and head lines.

A star on the head line or any branches of

A star on the head line or any branches of A star on the head line or any branches of the line shows nervous headaches, nervous attacks, especially if the stars rise to the number of two, three, or four in the location of Mars and the head lines and its tributaries. Often this shows besides nervous attacks and head troubles neuralgia in the system. This may attack the system in different places, in the back, head, shoulders, breast, or any of the muscles. muscles.

A star on the line of liver shows liver disorders, biliousness. If the sign above this line is very bad it shows kidney affection as well.

A star on the line of Luna, running toward the percussion, shows rheumatism, neuralgia, or a person who is liable to such diseases.

the percussion, shows rheumatism, neuralgia, or a person who is liable to such diseases.

A number of stars about the lines of liver and head and Mars shows a person who is liable to become nervously prostrated at times. This exceeding nervous affection and at times prostration, is often so intense that it is the occasion of people taking their own lives. It is enough to make them almost insane at times.

A brilliant and active star on the head line in any place shows a nervous and excited state of the mind, in the certain direction indicated by the star, which almost amounts to disease at times; the mind can hardly get rest from its activity, indicated by that star.

The star on Venus, if you should find a good one there, would show an excited state of the affections, which would not indicate satisfaction always, but very great activity. It might not be a very safe or healthy indication of the affections.

affections.

A star on the finger shows brilliancy of mind as on the mounts indicated, because the mind is excited and easily aroused on the subject shown to be interesting to the person having this star. A star on the finger does not show the mind to be so nervous as when it is on the palm.

For a star to indicate brilliancy of mind, the palm.

For a star to indicate brilliancy of mind, the hand must be a good one as a whole, a good head line, sun line good; it needs an intellectual form, fine, thin skin.

If "Specialist" will look again at her reading she will see that I do not say that she will marry or have an offer of marriage at exactly twenty. I have often explained in this department, that when I mention an age it may cover anywhere within five years of the time which I say. It is impossible to locate the exact year when these things will happen from the impressions which come to me. I still maintain, after a second reading of this hand, that she is liable to lose a lover or an old and very close friend at the age of anywhere from eighteen to twenty-five years. I can also see that she is a very ambitious person and that it will be well for her not to marry but to carry out all the plans which her ambition would suggest. She lays too much stress on the marriage lines under the little finger; as I have often pointed out, these amount to nothing unless they are corroborated by the lines on the fate and life lines. I would advise her not to decide fully in regard to those love affairs until after she is twenty-five.

Digitus

N the year 1611, two children of a spectacle-maker in Middleburg, in the Netherlands, while playing in their father's shop, having gotten possession of two lenses, happened accidentally to hold them up at a certain interval from each other, and looking through them at the weather vane on the top of the steeple, were surprised to see how near it appeared, and out of this little circumstance grew the telescope of Galileo. peared, and out of this li the telescope of Galileo.

BICYCLE builder of Philadelphia took BICYCLE builder of Philadelphia took his family, consisting of his wife and four children, whose ages ranged from eighteen months to seven years, on a novel vacation trip last summer. He had built a wheel weighing eighty-five pounds which would carry six people. On this the entire family was ranged, and their baggage was suspended from the gearing in convenient places. This consisted of several bundles, a tent, a repair kit, cooking utensils, and a bag containing food. They never attempted to cover more than twenty miles a day, and rested in their tent during the middle of every day.

SPECIAL SALE.

FOR This month only, we offer at a reduced price a quantity of elegant cloth bound books by such authors as Browning, Carlyle, Halevey, Bacon, Tennyson, Ruskin, Lamb and Arnold. These books are printed on good paper with clear type, and the best of ink. Are for library, school and home use being the best work of these writers. You cannot afford to be without these books at this unheard of low price. Hardly pays postage as each book weighs 12 ounces or over. If you send now we will send one only for 10c. and pay the postage; four for 32c. by express collect. If not satisfactory money refunded. Address, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

OINGO 7 15 23 19 14 20

3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000 WHICH WE ARE GIV ING AWAY for doing a little work for us. This you can do be leaved to the control of the TOU MAY SHARE IN THE DASA.

This you can do in less time one magazines into every home in the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF OUR MONEY, when the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF OUR MONEY, when the United States and Canada. WE DO NOT WANT ONE CENT OF OUR MONEY, when we have made out the names of these three clites, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to way you have made out the names of these three clites, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to way you have made out the names of these three clites, write them plainly on a postal card and send it to way you have made out the names of these three had names, but STICK TO IT AND TRY TO GET YOUR SHARE OF THE $1,000. A copy of this high-class ONE DOLLAR MAGAZINE WILL BE SENT FREE to everyone answering this advertisement. Do not delay. Send your answer in immediately. WE INTEXD TO GIVE AWAY YAST SUINS OF MONEY in the future, just as we have done in the past, to advertise our GRING MAGAZINE. We find it is the very best advertising we can get to give away LARGE SUINS OF MAGAZINE. We find it is the very best advertising we can get to give away LARGE SUINS OF MAGAZINE. We find it is the very best advertising we can get to give away LARGE FREE GOLD PRIZES: Mrs. J. M. Lachlin, 2nd St., Fittsburg, Pa., $130.00 in to control of the c Free Money Offer, it will be very foolish for you to pass it by. In all fairness give it some of your leisure time.

SUCCESS IS FOR ENERGETIC AND THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE, and the cause of FAILURE IS LACK OF INTEREST AND LAZINESS. So, dear reader, do not pass this advertisement without trying hard to make A SOLUTION OF THE THREE LINES OF FIGURES PRINTED A BOXEN. PRINTED ABOVE. We would suggest that you carefully read this offer several times before you give up the idea of solving the puzzle. The harder it seems the more patience and determination you should have. Corage and Determination Win Many of the PRIZES OF LIFE. Your share in OUR FREE MONEY DISTRIBUTION depends entirely upon your own energy and brains. Don't waste a moment in TRYING TO SOLVE THIS PERPLEXING PUZZLE. Many of the people we have recently sent large sums of money to in our Free Money Distributions write us kind and grateful eletters profusely thanking us for our prompt and honest dealings, and saying that if we had not so strongly urged them to try and win they would not have been successful and would not have been the happy recipients of a large sum of money for only after bours' effort. It always pays to give attention to our grand and liberal offers. OUR BIG CASH PRIZES have gladdened the hearts of many persons who needed the money. If you need money you will give attention to this special offer this yetry minute. If you can solve it, write us immediately. DON'T DEFAY. this special offer this very minute. If you can solve it, write us immediately. DON'T DELAY ddress ROBINSON PUBLISHING CO., 24 North William Street, New York City wide gold band. The six glasses to orrect style as to shape, are four inches high and we sare just suited to every family, particularly for the cold water at each meal. You cannot imagine a mour local dealer cannot sell you as st as good for sacked all as described above for only five new trial acked all as described above for only five new trial acked all as described above for only five new trial acked all as described above for only five new trial acked all as described above for only five new trial acked all as described above for only five new trial acked all as described above for only five new trial acked and the five new five and Summer drink season able set, or one more sati will be glad to send one 20 Clean Shirts IN ONE FOR 25c. THE ECONOMY SHIRT BOSOM PAD. No More Laundry Bills to Pay.

The Cut shows Pad in Position, with corners turned back to show a few of the twenty stylish

The newest and most startling novelty! Not only an endless source of fundamzement and mystery, but a useful, practical article, a money saver, and an actual boon to every man. Our Shirt Bosom Pad consists of ten reversible and etachable double bosoms in layers, each having a different design of bosoms and the shoulder. The pad is very light, cool and flexible, being less than one-sittenth of an inch thick, complete.

Change "Shirts" Anywhere in One Second.—To make "lighting changes" simply reach up underneath the vest, take the lower end of the cutside bosom between the thumb and finger, give a quick jerk downward, and yet stand revealed to the astonished beholders in a fresh, clean and entirely different side, simply reverse it, or change the soiled side to back of pad until all are reversed. Then you start with ten more fresh clean fronts. As they are interchangeable, any particular bosom desired can be worn convarial any time. The Pad can be worn complete, or one or more bosoms at a time.

DO NOT CONFOUND our Shirt Bosom Pad with the round or "me.

DO NOT CONFOUND our Shirt Bosom Pad with the round or "me.

DO NOT CONFOUND our Shirt Bosom Pad with the round or "me.

DO NOT CONFOUND our Shirt Bosom Pad with the round or many shirt, collar, tie or vest. They are regular bosoms, which had quite a sile perfectly round the neck band of the shirt clear to the shoulder, which makes it impossible to see that they are not regularly attached to the shirt. They fit anybody. You can wear them for a lifetime, and no one would entry that the many and in winter they act as perfect chest protectors.

FOR SUMMER OR WINTER. They are cool and comfortable, even in the hottest weather. Perspiration don't hurt them, and in winter they act as perfect chest protectors.

Shirts always get soiled and wear out first at the neck and bosom, and are often discarded while otherwise good. With our money-saving bosoms any old shirt can be worn, and looks nice as new. A fresh, clean shirt-front always gives one a genteel and neat appearance,

Every Pad Saves Its Purchaser $1.75. Here's How: Laundry Cost of Twenty Shirts (including wear and tear) - - - Cost of One Bosom Pad (equals twenty clean shirts) - - - -

SAVED WE GIVE YOU ONE FREE.

Send 25c. for trial six months' subscription to this paper and recire One Complete Set of 20 Bosoms as a free premium. Agents make One Complete Set of 20 Bosoms as a free premium. Agents make S1.50; 1-2 gross, $6.00; 1 gross, $10.50. These prices include all shipping charges and allow you enormous profits.

Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

HE salad recipes seem to be more popular with our readers than any others—at any rate, we others—at any rate, we are continually asked to give new ones, and thanked for "past favors"—so, as this the season for such dishes, we will give a few that will, we trust, give the readers some fresh ideas, particularly in garnishing.

The recipes for French and mayonnaise dressing have been given so and mayonnaise dressing have been given so often that we are sure all our readers must be one green mayonnaise, which differs slightly from the usual recipe.

SALAD CHIFFONADE.

A salad chiffonade is usually a salad of fine shredded materials of several salad plants.

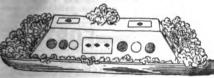

Cut peeled tomatoes in slices, and then in shreds. Cut a head of lettuce in shreds, the light and dark green leaves separately. Cut the whites of two hard boiled eggs in shreds. Dress each separately in French dressing. Arrange artistically according to color, on a large flat glass dish.

HINDOO SALAD. HINDOO SALAD.

Arrange 4 slices of tomato on a bed of shredded lettuce; on 2 of the slices pile shaved celery, on the remaining slices finely-cut water-cress. Garnish with small pieces of tomato and serve with a French dressing.

Arrange alternate slices of tomato and cucumber until 6 slices of tomato and cucumber until 6 slices of tomato and cucumber have been piled one on top of another; arrange on lettuce leaves, and garnish with strips of red and green peppers. Remove seeds from peppers and parboil 1 minute before using. Serve with French and mayonnaise dressing. with French and mayonnaise dressing.

MONTE CARLO SALAD. Remove pulp from grape-fruit, add an equal amount of finely-chopped celery, and apple cut in small pieces. Mix with mayonnaise, mask with mayonnaise and garnish with cooked carrot cut in shapes, and truffles. This is a very decorative salad, for serving at the table. It is named from the use of the similes of cards and chips. The mound is covered, after being shaped, with a thin layer of mayofinaise, put on with a knife, as one puts frosting on a cake. Then with a spoon, or a very fine pointed tip to the pastry bag outline cards with green mayonnaise—two on the top and one on each side—putting on diamonds or hearts cut from beets, to show the spots on the cards. Then from beets and white turnips cut dice to resemble poker chips, and stick onto the sides. Garnish around edge of serving dish with parsley.

MONTE CARLO SALAD.

FRENCH DRESSING.
Mix 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon paprica, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 4 tablespoons olive oil.

TOMATO AND LETTUCE SALAD.

Peel and chill tomatoes. Then cut each, from the top nearly to the bottom, in thin strips, so it may be easily eaten with a fork—which is a difficult thing to do when a tomato is served whole. Place the tomato so cut—but which keeps in good shape because cut only about two-thirds of the way down—on a bed of prisp lettuce leaves; pour over all a small amount of French dressing and serve individually.

romatoes stuffed with NUTS AND CELERY. Peel and chill tomatoes. Cut out a circular piece at stem end and scoop out the inside, leaving cups. Fill with broken nut meats and celery cut in small pieces, mixed with mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce.

COWSLIP AND CREAM CHEESE SALAD. CowsLip and cream cheese salad.

Cook cowslip leaves until tender in salted water. Chop fine, season with salt and paprica and press into a mound; set aside to chill; slice cold cream cheese and arrange around the mound of greens and serve with either French or mayonnaise dressing.

SHRIMP SALAD.

Pare cucumbers and cut them in halves lengthwise; remove the seeds and steam until tender; chill and arrange on lettuce leaves. Clean and marinate shrimp, mix with mayonnaise and place in the cucumber shells, placed in the center of a platter, with the lettuce and steamed seeds around the edge. Decorate with

GRAPE FRUIT AND PEPPER SALAD.

PEPPER AND GRAPE-FRUIT SALAD.

Remove the tops from 6 green peppers, take out seeds and refill with grape-fruit pulp, finely-cut celery and English walnut meats. Use 1-2 as much celery as grape-fruit, 3 halves of walnut meats and if liked 1-2 teaspoon finely-chopped green pepper to each serve. Arrange on chicory or lettuce leaves and serve with GREEN MAYONNAISE. Mix one teaspoon each of mustard, salt and powdered sugar, add a few grains cayenne, the yolks of 2 eggs and 1-2 teaspoon vinegar. Add very gradually 1-1-2 cups olive oil; as mixture thickens dilute with vinegar and lemon juice, adding in all 2 tablespoons. To 1-2 this amount add 1-4 cup heavy cream beaten stiff, and color green.

MARGUERITE SALAD.

Arrange cress on serving dish; in the centre arrange whites of hard boiled eggs cut in eights lengthwise, to look like the petals of a daisy, and sift the yolks into the centre. When ready to serve sprinkle with French dressing.

COUNTRY SALAD.

Cut cold boiled corned beef into thin strips and pile in center of serving dish. Put a row of sliced cold boiled potato around the mound. About this put a ring of celery cut fine; then cooked carrot and turnip cut in straws. Garnish with parsley and pickles cut in fan shapes. Serve with additional dressing.

PEACH SALAD.

Cut ripe peaches into quarters, after having removed skins. Cover with champagne, chill thoroughly and sprinkle with rose leaves. Serve at once.

The Commercial Value of "Waste"

O the majority of people it seldom occurs that there could be any possible value attached to the "rubbish" which collects in every house, aside perhaps from the paper rags which are sold for the munificent sum of one-half cent a pound. And yet it has been proved that this rubbish, if collected in sufficient quantities, will amount to enough to aid very materially in carrying on the charitable work of a city.

The plan has been tried in Odessa, Russia, and reported by the United States Consul from that place. According to his report the Countess Shuvalof, President of the Society for the Relief of the Odessa Poor, had printed and sent to every householder in the city a circular asking for contributions of all "unnecessary articles," these to comprise everything imagined and unimagined, from clothing and footwear, down to paper, corks, broken glass, cut-off cigar ends, and even empty cigarette boxes. In the vernacular of the day "any old thing," was asked for, with the assurance that it would be received with "most earnest gratitude."

All that was asked of those contributing was

All that was asked of those contributing was that they should save this rubbish, and col-lectors, dressed in uniform, would carry it away.

The society felt that in making this appeal they were not taxing the generosity of anybody, or trespassing upon anybody's needs, and yet by applying to every household for a contribution, they would raise a sufficient sum to aid materially in carrying on their work.

After the material was collected it was separated into various classes, and sold to firms who worked it over and used it in the manufacture of paper, glass, metals, etc.

EVERY LADY READ THIS.

I will send free a positive cure for all female diseases, irregularities, etc. A simple home treatment, a common sense remedy that never fails. FREE with valuable advice. Mrs. L. D. HUDNUT, South Bend, Ind.

Baptists came to this country first in the persons of Roger Williams and John Clark, in 1638, and the first Baptist Church was established in Rhode

"Be your own Astrologer" and consult the New Astrological Cards in any affair of life. See "ad" page 15.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

METAL MEDO MALEE MEIAL HERU KNIFE.

FREE
OFFER.

To quickly introduce our Healer of all Wounds, Oxien Arnica Court Plaster, we will send seven wallets Free. Each handy pocket wallet contains an assorted tof different colored court plaster and although a regular loc. store sale article you sell them for only 5c. those of Love." Send us the money after you sell the seven wallet style packages of court plaster, 35c. in all and we will send you a Hero Knife free, postpaid. These knives are as good as any 50c. knife you can get and are warranted 0. K. Girls Look if you prefer a smaller or Ladies Knife we will send one loss and of the Hero. Address Arnica Court Plaster Uo., nox 193, Augusta, Maine.

ASTONISHING BINDER TWINE OFFER.

If you need binder twine for this season's If you need binder twine for this season's crop, and want the highest grade binder twine made, either Standard, Sisal or Manila. and you want to receive an astonishingly low price offer, an extraordinary inducement for you to send to Chicago for your twine, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, and you will receive by return mail, postpaid, samples of the highest grade Standard, Sisal and Manila, together with a most extraordinary offer, including a special price that will mean a big saving to you.

AGENT'S CUTFIT FREE FIVE Articles express prepaid. For stirring batter, Itis batter, Itis useful as a skimmer and many other ways. We are largest mnfrs. of Aluminum, Granite and Tin Ware in U. S. Dept. X. HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, Buffalo, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Seattle, This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable,—Ed,

THE NEW DUST PAN.—Rapid seller. Exclusive territory. Write for large catalogue. over the fast sellers, and how to get Sample Outfit Free. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

HOME WORK 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. The World Co., Battle Creek, Mich. $300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c. R. MAXWELL, Box C, South Bend, Ind.

For locating gold and silver. Positively guaranteed. From $5 up. Catalogue and testimonials free. A. L. BRYANT, Box 10, R Dallas, Tex.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work, Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 610 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

"Goo Goo."

The popular "Goo Goo" Winking Eye is what you must wear on your coat or vest if you want to cut out all the other fellows and mash the pretty girls. You can engage in conversation and slyly turn back your coat lapel and wink your "Goo Goo" eye so easily you will win the girl and fool the other fellow or if a unny story that is old and stale or not friend is telling a funny story that is old and stale or not just true, you can bring your winking eye into play and turn him down without any hard feeling. The eye is strongly made of metal, the front is painted in natural life-like colors and the wink is produced by pulling an invisible string from behind and there is a long strong pin to fasten through your clothing. The whole thing is strong and durable and the most talked about novelty today. Every one is wild for one, every young man in the big cities has one and all the girls too. "Just because she made dem Goo Goo eyes" is why you should have one so send 10c. today for a special trial 3 months' subscription to this magazine and one Goo Goo Eye. A six months' subscription and 3 Eyes for 25c; I doz. for $1.00. Agents make big money. Address

A NOTTY WINK.

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine-

146 Novels and Stories FREE

Iost Practical and Most Helpful Household Publication in America , but Healthy and Wholesome Entertainment and Instruction for ion Harland says that The Housewife is the best paper of its g the past and present contributors to The Housewife may be

MARY E. WILKINS, ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS, MARIA PARLOA, MARIA DHARLAND, KATE UPSON CLARK, KATE UPSON CLARK, MARY C. HUNGERFORD, HARRIET PRESC'T SPOFFORD, AMANDA M. DOUGLAS, SALLY JOY WHITE, VIRGINIA F. TOWNSEND, CARRIE MAY ASHTON, MARY A. DENISON, HELEN M. WINSLOW, MARY F. BUTTS, ALICE CHITTENDEN,

ABBY MORTON DIAZ,
ELIZA R. PARKER,
MARGARET HOLMES BATES, ROSE HARTWICK THORPE.
CHRISTINE T. HERRICK,
ELAINE GOODALE EASTMAN.

READ THIS CREAT

146 NOVELS and Stories FREE!

Comprising the Greatest and Most Fascinating Collection of Charming Literature ever presented. Splendid Entertainment, sufficient to last a whole season, absolutely given away. Five dollars expended in buying books and magazines at the regular rates will not secure as many hours of enjoyment as we supply free.

A PARTIAL LIST OF THESE NOVELS AND STORIES FOLLOWS:

A PARTIAL LIST OF

A Man's Love,
By Bertha M. Clay.
Her Three Lovers,
By Amanda M. Douglas.

A Deed of Gift,
By Rett Winwood.

As it Fell Upon a Day,
By The Duchess,
A Laggard in Love,
By Horace Vickars Rees,
My Dear Friend Barbara,
By Mrs. F. H. Burnett.

A Wedding Under Difficulties,
By Frank Lee Benedict.
Why There Was No Marriage,
A Popular Author.
Brought Together,
By Elia Chever Thayer.
The Mystery of Jessy Page,
By Mirs. Henry Wood.
Out of the Night,
By Amanda M. Douglas.
The Rustic Jane,
By Marie Corelli.

Remember that this is on

More Than Coronets,
By a Popular Author.
The Stolen Jewels,
By By Popular Author.
The Stolen Jewels,
By By B. J. Farjeon.
A Teil Tale Window,
By Alice Maud Ewell.
Rose Lodge,
By Mrs. Henry Wood.
The Rival Cousins,
By Amanda M. Dougias.
A Buried Transgression,
By Sidney Daysion,
By Sidney Daysion,
By Sidney Daysion,
The Elder's Little Trick,
By Meyer F. Huntington.
Miss Senthrilla's Button Box,
By Annie Hamilton Donnell.
Granville's Thanksgiving
Little Jo's Legacy,
By Leonora Reck Ellis.
Lydia Blunt's Neighbors,
By Web Donnell.

Susan's Test, By Mrs. E. W. Demeritt.

Remember that this is only a partial list shown in order to give you an idea of the splendid novels and stories that you will receive.

On receipt of only Twenty-five Cents in silver or postage stamps, we will send The House-wife until January, 1902, and include FRLE and postpaid

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-SIX SPLENDID NOVELS, BY POPULAR AUTHORS.

This Collection of Novels and Stories comes in Quarto Volumes, well printed on fair quality of paper and Illustrated.

Twenty-Five Cents pays for The Housewife all the rest of this year and the Splendid Collection of Choice Reading Matter as above specified. Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded. Postage Stamps Taken. Address The Housewife, 52 to 58 Duane Street, N. Y., P. O. Box 1198.

EXTRA SPECIAL Order now and receive with the above, at no extra expense, Two Complete Works, in paper, by Mrs. Mary J. Holmes, Lena Rivers but you now get both of them free if you take advantage of our offer made above.

RICH ART TABLE Armenian Needlework Designs So Closely Followed as to Defy Detection. The most gifted race in the world with the needle are the Orientals. For centuries the rich and varied designs worked by their hands have been the admiration and delight of lovers of art. A few years ago an American was fortunate enough to invent machinery that would reproduce these rich designs of embossed embroidery and needlework, even to the delicate films of gold-thread work. Still more curious that they have the addition of "cheap labor" to Yankee machinery. In this way the most delicate Armenian and Turkish needlework is imitated so closely that none but the expert, on close examination, reveals the minor points of imitation.

An Art Table Cover Free. We wish to introduce Oxien Nazone Salve into thousands of new homes and to accomplish this intend to actually give away the expert, on close examination, reveals the minor points of imitation.

An Art Table Cover Free. We wish to introduce Oxien Nazone Salve into thousands of new homes and to accomplish this intend to actually give away these rich and ornamental Table Covers to our friends. We shall send a handsome cover, about two feet and a half square, of the richest and most pleasing designs, and being in appearance like the hand-made covers that Armenian experts sell for from $12 to 326 each, to one agent in each city or town who will sell for us only two boxes Nazone Salve at 25c. apiece. We send the goods on credit and trust to your honor in returning the moment your 50c. We pay postage on this Rich Present the moment your 50c. arrives. This is the greatest offer ever made, for, besides receiving this Becautiful Art Gift, which will give a whole room an air of luxury and refinement, you learn of other inducements that are rich with money profits and grand presents. Address THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 988, Augusta, Maine.

How many people, dear cousins, have said to you lately: "Is this hot enough for you?" And yet it has not been long since it was just as cold as it is now hot. Time flies, doesn't it? Wouldn't it be lovely if we could only hold it back a little? However, most of you are so young yet that you want it to be flying. Heigho, my dears, wait and you will see.

Now who is first come to be first served.

Sweet Brier, Idaho.—Ignore the young man who ignores you, of course. And also the young lady he goes with. (2) Girls of eighteen do have beaus, tho 'I think it is too young. (3) Girls of seventeen may go walking with bachelors if chaperoned. (4) It is not proper for a young man to help you up a hill by putting his arm around you, tho' he would likely tell you it was. (5) A young man should not kiss you good night unless engaged to you.

Ignoramus, Courtland, Minn.—I think a letter addressed to the soldier in care the War Department, Washington, D. C., would be the surest way to get him. The letter at San Francisco ought to be forwarded. (2) The only real place to get a graduating essay is out of your own head. All others are lies and cheats.

S. M., Knoblick, Mo.—Nothing nicer could be sent than a box of roses and it is very sweet of you to think of it. I think it is quite proper for the bride and groom to kiss each other.

Peach Blossom, Rochester, Pa.—Your love is apparently sincere, but it is best to check it. If the young man responds you will see it soon enough and clear enough. If he does not, for you to show yours will only make trouble for all of you, and no good. Try to think of some other young men.

no good. Try to think of some other young men. Thelma, Oxford, Kans.—If you are so homely that the young men will not notice you, make yourself attractive by cultivating your mind—judging from your note there is room for it.

Pansy, Sunnyside, Ills.—It is not so much that the man is divorced, as that you are but sixteen. Wait five years. There are worse men than divorced men. (2) A man of forty-five is old enough to tell a girl of fifteen that there is too wide a difference in their ages.

Blue Eyes. Allen's Springs. Ille.—Vour love guest.

Blue Eyes, Allen's Springs, Ills.—Your love questions are too hard for me.

tions are too hard for me.

Bly, Kirkland, Ark.—You might write to the traveling man if you know him to be a gentleman.

(2) Three months is hardly long enough to know a man to call him by his first name.

Butts, Yonkers, N. Y.—The man at thirty-five is not too old, but you at eighteen are. Wait till you are twenty, then it will be all right. If you love the man, and he is worthy, that is enough. (2) Put something bitter on your nails to remind you of your habit, and then exercise your power, and don't bite. (3) Of course you can board at the same place the man does, but people may make remarks.

Buttercup, Washteeno, Wash.—Yes, dear, try to make him a Christian, too, but don't think of marrying him for at least five years. Mind your parents.

Daisy, Olympia, N. C.—Don't encourage the ing him for at least five years. Mind your parents. Daisy, Olympia, N. C.—Don't encourage the young man if you do not love him. That is dishonest and dishonorable.

Pearl, Kennard, Ind.—Why does a school girl, like you are, talk to me about loving a young man to desperation and say: "I have went with him for over a year!" If your love is as poor as your grammar, I am sorry for the young man.

Rosebud, Bennett, Pa.—Pretzel comes originally from the Latin word bracelus, meaning a bracelet, referring to the form of the pretzel. (2) Your questions about love are too silly to be answered.

Blue Eves. Doalthen, Ala.—I do not want to shake

Blue Eyes, Doalthen, Ala.—I do not want to shake your faith in the young man who has been so kind and good, for he may really be sincere, but I hardly think his advice which permits so many familiarities is either safe or good. A certain latitude is allowed engaged couples, but a man to whom you are not engaged can hardly respect you if you permit him to kiss and caress you. "Hands off" is an excellent rule to observe.

Anyious Inquirer Guide N.C.—The only way to Anxious Inquirer, Guide, N. C.—The only way to find out where you can sell stories is to send them to the editors, with postage for return if not avail-

Nancy Hanks, Roscommen, Mich.—Don't worry about the young man until you are twenty-one years old. If he doesn't tell you in five years that he loves you, the chances are that he does not. If he does not, why should you want to love him?

Alice, Rock Falls, Ills.—It would be a wise thing for a girl to tell her mother everything "a fellow says while he is with her." (2) Of course it does a girl "any particular good" to graduate. It shows she has brains and application sufficient to have conquered the course, if nothing else. (3) Girls may go to a dance without male escort, if chaperoned.

Rose and Violet, Camas, Ore.—If at all, very, very Schoolgirl, Circleville, Ohio.—Doesn't anybody in Circleville, an Ohio town, know who are in Mr. McKinley's cabinet? Ask your Postmaster. If he can not tell you, he ought to be removed.

can not tell you, ne ought to be removed.

Golden Rod, Knox, Maine.—It is not good form to chew gum in company. (2) It is worse then rude for young ladies to flirt with men. (3) Unless the young man is engaged to the girl she has no more claim on him than the other girls of his acquaintance. (4) A home wedding is more private than a church wedding, but no more "refined," I should say.

say.

Lol, Buffalo, N. Y.—Goodness knows if you and your sweetheart quarrel now, what you will do when you are married. Better not marry. (2) How can a man dine with his fancee before he is engaged to her? Isn't your French rather defective?

May, Riverdale, Pa.—Serve it on the same plate with the cream, or in separate dishes as you please.

(2) Suggest an evening when you will be at home to receive the caller; that is the correct thing.

(3) Offer the young man such refreshments as are most convenient. Cake, fruit, lemonade, cider,—anything most, that is edible.

Winnie D., Joseph, Ore.—If your sister clings to the young man, and you love him better than life itself, I think you had better pack up and move down into Utah.

Gray Eyes, Nine Mile, Mont.—Act exactly as a lady should, and with your conscience clear, what people say will not amount to anything.

Mildred, Davenport, Iowa.—Certainly give him a birthday present, and give it to him without ask-

$500.00 IN CASH $1000.00 IN SPECIAL PREMIUMS

Given Free to Our Club-Raisers.

We offer the above amounts in CASH and SPECIAL PREMIUMS to all who will do a little work for us in their own neighborhoods during a part of their spare time. WE DO NOT REQUIRE ANY MONEY WHATEVER. All we ask is that you work for us, for which we will liberally reward you, besides allowing you a share in the special premiums named above. Here is the opportunity to secure the handsome sum of $200.00 IN CASH. Should you fail in doing so, you may get one of the HUNDRED-DOLLAR PREMIUMS, or one of the FIFTY-DOLLAR PREMIUMS. Failing to get either cash premium, there are still 187 OTHER CHANCES FOR YOU to get a nice premium. If you are a smart, active person it is possible for you to earn several fine premiums. Try it and see how easy it is.

THEY ARE! HERE

1 Special Cash Premium, - -- $200.00 2 Special Cash Premiums of $100.00 each, 200.00 2 Special Cash Premiums of 50.00 each, 100.00 20 Music-Boxes,

20 Dinner-Sets, 112 pieces, $12.00 each, 50 Tea-Sets, 56 pieces, -6.00 each, 50 Crystal Outfits, 35 pieces, 3.00 each, 12.00 each, 240.00 | 47 Gentlemen's Watches, -

Only think of it—192 valuable premiums, worth $1500.00! There is not a cheap one in the list, and all will be awarded without favor, to those entitled to them. We shall give them to those sending us the largest number of subscribers to The American Woman before January 1, 1902, in the order named above; $200.00 cash to the one sending the largest number of subscribers; $100.00 to each of the two persons sending us the next largest number, and so on through the list. Subscriptions may be sent in each week and credit will be given for them. Besides the opportunity offered you to earn one of these special premiums, WE PAY YOU LIBERALLY for every subscriber you send us; so even if you should not get one of these prizes, you actually earn more while working for us than you could at work at any other business. We have plainly stated what we have to offer you. Nothing has been overdrawn. We mean just what we say and every promise made will be kept to the letter. Remember, the opportunity is now yours to secure several hundred dollars without investing a cent. Full particulars will be sent to every one who applies, together with a FREE OUTFIT with which to go to work at once. Write to-day and be first in the field.

Address THE AMERICAN WOMAN, Augusta, Maine.

ing me what to give. Is it what I give him, or you, that will please him?

Frances, Norborne, Mo.—Can't you wait until your "best bow" gets well before having others paying attention to you? (2) The man is supposed to buy the furniture, but the woman does if she has the money. the money.

Fraulein, Austin, Texas.—If a gentleman is short enough to sit cross-legged in a church pew, I think he ought to be permitted to do so, though it isn't graceful or good form. (2) In case of a storm the young man might remain at the house all night.

Belle, Palace, Ky.—Yes, you may go to church with him, and leave the family at home. (2) You will find all the abbreviations in the back part of any dictionary. If you have none, buy one, at once. Knowledge, St. Joseph, Mo.—Your writing is very neat, but much too small. The big round hand is better.

Country Cousin, May Flower, Ont.—Pirst cousins' children are legally no relation to each other, it not being legal for cousins to marry. (2) Apply to the foreman of the printing office. Writers should apply to the editor.

Elva, Potrero, Cal.—"Thank you" is enough. (2) It depends on the man.

Sun and Moon, Cameron, Texas.—You are too young to be asking about the boys. Keep to your school books.

Bluebell, Charleston, Mo.—Choose the one you love best. (2) Stop at your mother-in-law's, of course. (3) Ask the caller to go to church with you and your mother.

Butler, Campton, Ky.—Call men "Mr." unless of long acquaintance. (2) Let him take care of his hat, or show him where to put it. (3) The man helps the lady put on her wrap. (4) Talking at the gate is permissible for a time. Ask the man in, if it is not late Trixy, Rush Run, Ohio.—You should not only be scolded, but well spanked.

Languish, Berlin, N. D.—Answer to Trixy above applies to you.

Sapphire, Johnstown, N. Y.—Only be at home to the callers when you want to see them. (2) Don't accept a man's attentions regularly unless you are in earnest.

Lilac, Galloway, Ark.—Moles need a physician's are. (2) Lemon juice is good for freckles.

May Apple, Lowell, Kans.—Treat him as if nothing had happened. (2) No. (3) There is no gaining him back again. Let him go. (4) One girl at a time is enough.

time is enough.

Wayne Adair, Greeley, Kans.—Let your parents read the letters you receive from the young men.

(2) A girl of sixteen should be old enough to try for a certificate, but she is most too young to teach.

(3) Let the man see you like him, but not too much.

(4) Though engaged you should be allowed to accept ordinary attentions from men, as your fiance does not live in your town.

Amanda, Altoona, Pa.—Go out with the man you like until the other takes the hint and stays away. June Bride, Nevada, Mo.—Marry him on six dol-lars a week, if you have money enough to support you both. (2) An engaged man should call oftener than once every day and twice Sunday, if he has nothing else to do. (3) Can't tell till later. (4) A good remedy to keep hands clean in winter or sum-mer is to wash them.

Evaline, Washburn, Wis.—Study your books, not your handsome young school teacher. You don't want to be silly, do you?

Curly Locks, Tallapoosa, Ga.—It would be all people knew of it

C. K. M., Tigerton, Wis.—A boy cousin might be kissed occasionally, only. (2) Silk gloves are preferable to kid in summer, and of light color.

C. E. A., St. Joe, Mich.—There are no such publishers that I ever knew. Beginners usually try their first efforts on their local newspapers.

Trip, Evansville, Ind.—Three or four months is long enough for an engagement. Lemon juice and glycerine is good for tan and freckles. A jealous young man is incurable. Let him alone.

Viola, Arvona, Va.—Look over the advertisements in Comfort and the ladies' magazines and you will probably find what you are looking for.

probably find what you are looking for.

There, dears, you have had your answers and most of the letters you have written this time are quite cheery and have put me in a real good humor with myself and the rest of the world. Now I shall say au revoir, and when I write again it will be in the dog days, and the hottest of the hot will be on us and over us. Keep cool is the best advice I can offer.

COUSIN MARION.

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

It is estimated that there are over a thousand religious beliefs.

PUT ME OFF AT BUFFALO!

If you are not going to the Pan American Exposi-tion this summer we will set you at work in a pay-ing cash business, only 30c. required for a start. If you are interested address

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample copy free on application.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio.

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home, ART INSTITUTE, Lima, Ohio. Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

Ct. Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every to-needed. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind. PLES CONSTIPATION, HEADAGHE, and DYSPESIA absolutely cured. Instant relief, never returns. Acts like magic. A boon to sufferers. Trial Box Mailed Free. Address C. J. MASON, Box 519, New York, N. Y.

FREE Sleeping Beauty DOLL, elegantly dressed, nearly two feet tall. Address, NOVELTY WORKS, Bridgewater, Conn.

Handsome Widow, worth $75,000 wants Address ERIE, 193 Washington St., Chicago.

REVEAL YOUR Is LOVE, MABELAGE, DYSINESS and BFECTLIFE COMPLETE WAS MABELAGE, DYSINESS and BFECTLIFE COMPLETE WAS MADELAGE, DYSINESS AND ASSOCIATION AND ADDRESS AND ASSOCIATION AND ADDRESS AND ASSOCIATION ASSOCIATION

CALIFORNIA'S OIL BOOM. No work and $25 a and get dividends of $25 per month. $50 gives you $250 per month. Send to-day. MT. HAMILTON LAND & OIL CO., Rea Bidg., San Jose, Cal.

GET MARRIED. 10,000 LADIES ARE.
Many very rich and beautiful. Send stamp for big sealed list, giving full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. STAR AGENCY, No. 415, Austin, III.

Control whom you wish. Make others lers and elegy on the control whom you wish. Make others lers and elegy of the control whom you wish. Make fun by the fore and instantaneous method. Quick as a fash. For the control wish and full particulars FREE | Send delives us on Prof. L. A. Harraden, JACKSOS, BICH.

Absolutely cured. Never to return.
A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic.
Trial box MAILED FREE. Address,
Dr.E.M.Botot,Box 978,August,A

$5 a DAY Selling Flavor Powders. Sample Free. C. S. HORNER CO., 1409 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

10,000 ARE VERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E Glosp.

MARRY 7000 ore very saxious for HUSBANDS and WIVES

MARRY 10,000 and very access MARRY PROTOS FARE STANDARD COR. CLUB., Sta. E., Chicago, III.

Get Married 8000 ladies want to marry.

Many rich. Send 2 cts. for photos and big sealed into with addresses and full description. Satisfaction guarateed. Union Corresponding Club, Box 608, Austin II.

CUTS STEEL AS A DIAMOND CUTS CLASS.

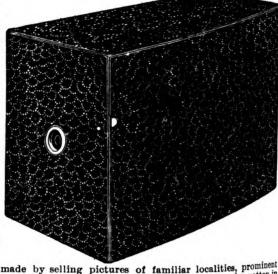

Every Housekeeper Needs One. The Old Reliable "Star Sharpening Rifle" sharpens all Table Cutlery, Scythes, Mowing Machines, Corn Cutters, Grain Cradles, Brush Hooks, Knives, etc. Shoemakers and Butchers use them. 200,000 now in use. They are practical and durable do perfect work. The Old Reliable "Star Sharpening Rifle" is of usual style and size, 14:1-2 inches long, 13-8 inches wide, durable and strong, cuts steel as a Diamond cuts glass, and sells fast with agents at great profits; sample sent free if you enclose 18c. for a six months' subscription to Sunsainse. Will send one dozen by express for $1.25, easily retails for 25c. each, more than one hundred percent profit.

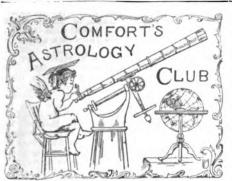

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

VACATION

Vacation time is here; you may go away on a visit to some familiar spot or some strange place; in either case without a camera you can not have the same pleasant remembrance of the trip unless you have a lot of snap shots of the scenes and doings of your abscence. Hardly any one thinks of going away unless they take a camera. It may be you think you cannot afford the cost of one. There are many good cameras on the market at low prices that will give as good results as machines costing $25.00 and more. A successful picture depends most on the skill of the taker and the art of taking a good can not have the same pleasant retaker and the art of taking a good picture is easily learned. After taking a good picture a good past-time is furnished in developing, taker and the art of the taking a good picture a good pasttime is furnished in developing, printing and mounting the picture. The idea of having a camera and complete outfit is in very popular favor and nowadays most every one has a camera of some kind. Lots of pocket money is made by selling pictures of familiar localities, prominent Even enough money can be gotten in this way to pay for all supplies used the following complete outfit: One tray for developing, one package power and the way to pay for all supplies used the following complete outfit. One the way to pay for all supplies used

the following complete outfit: One the way to make the way to pay for all supplies the one pay for all supplies the complete outfit of the way to pay for all supplies
the way to pay for all supplies
the one of familiar locations
the way to pay fo

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

HE Lunation or New Moon this month occurs at about twenty minutes past three o'clock in the morning of the lith of August, Washington Mean Time. A figure of the heavens erected for that time at the seat of government of the United States, shows the 28th degree of the sign Aries on the south meridian. Mercury is just below the horizon in the beginning of the sign Leo; the conjoined luminaries, Sun and Moon, are on the cusp of the eeer ond house or house of the nation's treasury; Yenus is in the 3th house about to pass the lower meridian; Herschel is in the 1st house about to pass the lower meridian; Herschel is in the 1st house about to pass the lower meridian; Herschel is in the 1st house about to pass the lower meridian; Herschel is in the 1st house and the only heavenly body above the horizon. There is little, if anything, disquieting in the promises of the figure and there are many benevolent testimonies, though of a somewhat minor character, which give us assurance of continued prosperity for our nation and the healthfulness and advantages of the figure is testimony of sympathy and agreement between our governing authorities and the governed—harmony between ruler and people. Mercury traveling at a rapid pace in the ascendant points to a successful advocacy of the rights of the common people and agreements between capital and labor such as increase the benefits and advantages of the people. Venus in the strength of the common people and agreements between capital and labor such as increase the benefits and advantages of the people. Venus in the rights of the common people and agreements between capital and labor such as increase the benefits and advantages of the people. Venus in the rights of the common people and agreements benefits and advantages of the people. Venus in the rights of the common people and agreements benefits and advantages of the people. Venus in the rights of the farming communities. Mars gives a vigorous and bountful yield of crops maturing in the passing weeks, and healthful conditions

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR AUGUST 1901.

AUGUST 1—Thursday. Hold fast to the pennies on this day, not venturing thy cash in any speculative enterprise; and make no contract concerning building or machinery. If this be the anniversary of thy birthday or if born about the first day of January, April, July, or October, of past years, see that no chances are taken of hurts or accidents from fire or animals and that perishable property is insured against loss from fire; be discreet in all business engagements and see that no litigation is begun at thy choosing.

2—Friday. Have care during the forenoon in all the elegant pursuits, especially if those pursuits are much concerned with the world of letters; literary efforts of a polite character are not as prolific of good as at most other times; during the middle and afternoon hours press all engagements pertaining to houses and lands or agricultural and mining products.

agricultural and mining products.

3-Naturday. Use this day vigorously for all commercial and mercantile contracts; press correspondence, execute writings, adjust accounts and employ the mind to its fullest extent with literary and intellectual matters; be careful of thy money engagements in the evening when thy purse will suffer needless depletion unless a healthy check is placed upon the inclinations.

4-Sunday. This day is depressing and more likely to be contentious as it advances; it offers little encouragement to the clergy and church matters are not favored.

5—Monday. Fairly good for the most of the affairs of life; though the afternoon should not be taken for any literary undertaking or travel; mental efforts are not productive of much good, and social engagements are more likely to be productive of mental disquietudes than satisfaction.

satisfaction.

6—Tuesday. One of the choice days of the month to be improved to its fullest extent for the inauguration of new and important undertakings and for the advancement of matters of a political character; press all engagements with governing bodies, such as municipal or state authorities or large organizations of men or corporate institutions; buy goods to sell again; conduct business pertaining to the fine arts and horticultural and decorative works; the evening is peculiarly good for social entertainments and temperate pleasure-seek-ing.

7—Wednesday. More caution should be exercised in the general affairs of life on this day, when new ventures should not be entered upon and the attention should rather be given to routine matters; do not bargain for real estate nor expect much progress in such things already in hand; sign no writings as surety and be prudent in expenditures.

and be prudent in expenditures.

8—Thursday. Push thy correspondence and all work pertaining to accounts in the commercial world; mathematical and scientific engagements are favored; social matters and the elegant pursuits are adversely affected for about forty-eight hours during which the fair sex should shun any matrimonial alliance; this is peculiarly true of the afternoon and evening of this day when elopements and hasty entanglements prove disastrous.

9—Friday. A vigorous and energetic day, full of hope and encouragement, especially for the classes of mankind engaged in the mechanical and manufacturing walks of life; deal in metals, chemicals, machinery, drugs, electrical goods, cutlery and hardware and urge thy ventures of such character.

any ventures of such character.

10—Saturday. Crowd all thy general business during the forencon, though do not make purchases for profit; the afternoon induces extravagance in dispensing thy means and threatens loss rather than financial gains.

Bin-Sunday. The mind turns too freely towards the pleasures of life and is likely to promote intemperate gratifications rather than religious discourse; quarrels and disagreements among lovers and the rupture of pleasant social relations will be marked during the passing hours; let all be prudent in associations and temperate in gratifications of all kinds.

12—Jiouday. Make no purchases of fancy goods in trade; expect to be baffled somewhat in thine engagements in the fine arts; have no dealings with banks or other classes of corporate bodies, and give preference to all kinds of literary work and the dealing with persons in literary callings; use the evening hours for mental ef-forts of consequence, especially such as concern inven-tions and ingenious undertakings; do correspondence and travel:

13-Tuesday. Seek favor at the hands of public authorities or in government matters; deal with the chemist and electrician, military commander, manufacturer, and railway official.

14-Wednesday. Continue thine efforts of yester-day. Seek advancement in the afternoon from thine em-ployer or thy superior in authority, when also make purchase of goods for trade, and seek money accom-modations.

15-Thursday. Make contracts during the forenoon and during the noon hours with reference to real estate and its improvements or the productions of mines and agriculture; shun association with the very aged in the evening.

16-Friday. Rise early and employ every moment of this day; deal particularly with persons employed in matters pertaining to amusements, wearing apparel and house furnishings or decorations; engage with thy tallor, dressmaker, or milliner and do all things requiring the exercise of special taste for best success; let the musician and artist improve the moments of this day to the utmost; buy fancy goods and fine wares. If this be the anniversary of thy birthday, the tender sentiments are likely to be pleasantly enlisted and agreeable advances in courtship or more enjoyable marital or social experiences come in these passing weeks.

17-Saturday. This day is exhaustive of the purse experiences come in these passing weeks.

17—Saturday. This day is exhaustive of the purse unless a healthy watchfulness is exercised; don't speculate nor risk thy means in new undertakings; particularly avoid any contract concerning lands or their products; do not expect any money favor or property advantage from any transaction in the evening with aged persons or those engaged in agricultural pursuits; do not deal in lumber, wood, petroleum, coal, or any other productlof mines.

18—Sunday. The mind is active though inclined to dwell upon the peculiar and eccentric in literary productions; extemporaneous discourse from the pulpit will be full of original thought and peculiarity of expression.

full of original thought and peculiarity of expression.

19—Monday. Seek favor from thy superior in the morning and crowd all honorable business that has been already established but do not make any beginnings in matters of unusual consequence; buy only sparingly to replenish thy stock in trade in the afternoon; seek money favors in the evening.

20—Tueaday. Actively pursue thy several avocations during all this day, giving preference, however, to the middle hours for dealings in real estate, boots and shoes, wood, lead, coal, and all classes of building materials; seek favors from thy landlord and persons in great mining enterprises.

21—Wednesday. Defer matters of much importance mining enterprises.

21—Wednesday. Defer matters of much importance on this day; do not sign writings or make engagements or contracts, particularly concerning money matters or corporate stocks; do not deal with printers, booksellers, stationers, or persons generally employed with the pen, nor seek to make collections on accounts or notes.

nor seek to make collections on accounts or notes.

22—Thursday. Improve this day for the elegant pursuits; attend to painting and all musical matters; purchase for use such articles as silks, fancy goods, and decorations; the day favors workers in wax, embroidery, milliners and dressmakers.

23—Friday. Generally a good day for the intellec-tual pursuits, for scientific and mathematical work but not for dealings with persons in public office or with large corporations; as the noon hours are passed let every energy be given to chemical work, manufacture and construction. and construction.

24—Saturday. Continue thine efforts of yesterday with increased vigor; the day is peculiarly fortunate for chemical experiments and for dealers in hardware, cutlery, firearms, metals, glassware, brass and iron work, and chemical and electrical apparatus, also for transactions with persons in the ingenious and mechanical trades.

cal trades.

ical trades.

25—Sumday. Unfavorable for church matters; the brain and nervous energies suffer considerable detriment and nervous diseases will be considerably quickened for a short time; pulpit discourses will not give satisfaction, as depression will characterize the natural condition of the human mind for a short season and persons in literary callings generally have adverse experiences.

26—Monday. Due regard being had for naturally hasty impulses, the day is fair only for general routine work. Do not make any purchases of fancy or decorative goods or artistic materials; extravagance will be likely to mark thy purchases; keep a bridle upon thy tongue; keep out of controversy and be deliberate and prudent in all acts.

27—Tuesday. Begin this day with the dawn for it is prudent in all acts.

27—Tuesday. Begin this day with the dawn for it is one of most excellent promise; bright and prosperous are the conditions for the merchant and traveler; the morning hours being among the very best for money dealings, the beginning of great and noble undertakings, for entering upon new business and for all classes of trade; also for engaging in literary pursuits and in all matters pertaining to books and writings, particularly if born about the 24th of April or 27th of August or October, of past years; do all important correspondence; let all engaged in the scientific pursuits be especially diligent at this time; prosecute mathematical studies, sign deeds, execute writings, and publish literary productions.

28—Wednesday. Give preference to this day for literary exertions; mathematical, chemical, and manufacturing engagements; though care will need to be exercised to avoid needless expenditure and losses in commercial trades.

commercial trades.

29—Thursday. Use the forenoon for pushing all business pertaining to banks and monied institutions as well as the manufacturing interests, but in the afternoon it will be wise to postpone all contracts and writings, correspondence, travel and all mental efforts; make no application for favor or advancement in thine employment on this day.

20-Friday. Generally fair for most of the second seco ment on this day.

30-Friday. Generally fair for most of the undertakings in life though less than usual encouragement is given for political matters or dealings with incorporated bodies which are best avoided.

31-Saturday. Beware of speculation on this day; make no purchases of stock for trade; let the fair sex shun the matrimonial noose at this time and lovers see to it that their pleasant relations are not ruptured by jealousies and selfishness; social matters are entirely out of joint and the elegant pursuits are suffering unusual detriment; do not woo or wed.

"Cut Me_BE YOUR OWN ASTROLOGER_Out!"

"Cut Me—BE YOUR OWN AS I KULUGER—Out!"

The "New Egyptian Astrological Cards" has become the "fad" for telling the Future, by the Stars, to 1 or 12 persons at once. Any one can learn to tell Fortunes, with these wonderful cards in a few minutes, and entertain themselves and friends, also make a living with them, if desired. They are just the thing for Evening Parties. They answer by planetary signs any question regarding Health, Love, Matrimony, Business, Speculations, Friends or Enemies, Disposition, Relations, Inheritance, Sickness, Journeys, etc.

Box containing 12 packs (with full instructions) representing the 12 signs of the Zodiac and the 12 months of the year, mailed to any address for 75 cents. Agents wanted in every city, town and village; little money will start you in business. Send for wholesale list Astrological Card Co., Broadway, cor. 37th St., New York City.

FREE RUPTURE CURE!

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

Mothers Your children cured of incontinence of urine. Sample Free. Dr. F. E. May, Box 304, Bloomington, Ill.

Dr. F. Wilhoft, Dept.4, Astor Place, New York

Women Made Beautiful by VESTRO. Developes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow places, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchies loveliness to vestro. Harmless, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photos, testimonials, etc., scaled for two cent stamp. Address AURUM MEDIOINE CO.
Dept. A. N. 55 State St., Chicago. A 6

SENT FREE TO WEAK MEN

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

W. S. Harter an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an overgenerous offer that comes in the shape of a proclamation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality treatment, and in every instance the same wonand its kindred ailments. His case was a most derful results were experienced as was in his pitiable one, by reason of continual drainage, his constitution was weakened to such a degree that it was impossible for him to perform his duties. He spent hundreds of dollars for remedies and to specialists, but could not regain his vitality or check the awful drainage. One day a brother lodge member called his attention to a remedy, for his affliction; he did so, and in one month's fine was entirely cured, his constitution rejuvenated and his vitality regained. Today he is a man in every sense which that word would imply. Mr. Harter is not what one would call an immensely rich man, but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he is now upon a brink of destruction, which mensely rich man but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he is now upon a brink of destruction, which is much worse than death. Any reader sending marvelous remedy in the hands of all those afflicted as his name and address to Mr. W. S. Harter, 232 Ash Street, Nevada, Mo., will receive withnowledge.

A Great Chance for Bright, Smart People.

How many times do you suppose during the year you have needed a pen and ink and have searched high and low when all you could find was a little old stubby pencil? When you wish to write a postal or letter you may be obliged to jump up and go into the next room after pen and ink or if in the street have to go in a man's store and borrow pen and ink to sign a check, deed, nortgage or any paper where law is the question. Why not be up to date and own one of the Celebrated Fountain Pens which are always ready at a moment's notice? They are conveniently carried in the pocket at all times, are ready at a second's notice, and safely hold about two weeks' supply of ink. Our Celebrated Fountain Pen is made of hard rubber with cap to prevent leaking and the latest principle of self-feeding. The price is always from $1.00 to $3.00 for first-class fountain pens but you can today have one without cost.

We are anxious to advertise our Celebrated Oxien Nazone Salve, the only perfect cure for Asthma, Hay Fever, Deafness, Catarrh of the Head, Eczema, Itching, Salt Rheum, Bites from Poisonous Insects, etc. We will send three large boxes to the address of any responsible person who will sell them for 25c. a box and return us the money, 75c. Upon receipt of the same we will forward absolutely free of cost one Celebrated Fountain Pen. This is a valuable proposition to any one who may be fortunate enough in reading this advertisement as all that is required is a few moments' work with honest intentions. Address your letters to

THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 967, Augusta, Maine.

A STYLISH TRAVELING

A bundle is awkward, a satchel is old-fashioned and either are very inconvenient to carry. Every one travels more or less and there is always need for a suitable carrying case. The children may be away from home attending school, if so they will need something to carry their clothes in and no young person likes to be carrying an old satchel that is worn and tasty looking when the others have a new and up-to-date case for their wardrobe.

We picture for you a case suited to every want of the traveler; if you are going for a long visit it will be found sufficiently large to accommodate your belongings; if you have only a few things to carry, straps are provided on the inside to hold the contents in one place; these straps are very convenient when ladies' dresses or men's clothes are packed as they keep everything from wrinkling.

Light Weight. When packed full the cases are very easily carried, as they are so constructed that the weight is equalized on the hand tase loaded full carries easier than the same weight in any other way.

Style and Finish. We have had several kinds of cases but have found the one we offer now is the better of any we ever had. It is made of a specially prepared waterproof Leatherin material, over a steel frame, strong copper-riveted, leather bound corners, all parts protected from injury, trimmings of best steel, including regular brass burnished spring catches with lock and key. Large soft leather are long, 1s inner with a control of the people of fashion and refinement, both men and women. It is two feet long, 1s inners wide and 5 inches deep.

OUR OFFER. We shall give these cases away on the club of only eight trial yearly subscribers to this magazine at 26c. each per year and we will send this handsome case by express carefully packed; or we will send the handsome case by express carefully packed; or we will send it with this magazine at 26c. each per year and we will send it with this magazine one year for only $2.26; usual store price $4.60.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

ALSO AN UMBRELLA.

The first Umbrella used in this country 216 not look much like the modern umbrella now in use. That was in 1775, but the hand of man has caused big changes since then. Today the usual umbrella has a strong, slender, steel rod, steel ribs, with natural wood handles, bent into different shapes to suit every fancy, with handsome trimmings of silver and nickel, and are full of style as a walking stick when not in use. Coverings: There are great varieties, from finest silk down to cheap cotton. Of the assortment, Gloria is the best. Gloria is a combination close weave silk and cotton, absolutely rain proof and not heavy when wet. Just such an umbrella as we describe above is one of our free premiums.

For a club of only 5 trial subscribers to this magazine at 25c. each per year. Or we will send this magazine one year and one Umbrella for $1.49. Address

The City of Seattle.

The Kind of a City the City is that is Farther In the Land.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

IVE years ago the mourners went about the streets of Seattle and the visitor could well imagine that he well imagine that he had arrived in a grave-yard. The place had come up on a boom and the boom had burst, leaving a town full of houses and no reason for them. This reason for them. This state of affairs had existed several years when a change came in the autumn of 1896 with the discovery of gold in the Klondike. That set the boom going once more and it has been increasing ever since. There were some rumors that it would collapse after the Klondike excitement had abated, but Klondike is still paying and in addition have come the discoveries at Cape Nome and other points in Alaska, until it may safely be said that Seattle has a gold foundation, and we all know how valuable and foundation, and we all know how valuable and lasting that is.

The town was founded in 1852, away out on lasting that is.

The town was founded in 1852, away out on Puget Sound, about as far away from the Capital of the country as it could well be, and in 1855 it had grown to be a city of one hundred and fifty people. It was named in honor of Seattle, or Sealth, as his real name was, a red man who was a good Indian before he died, which cannot be said of the majority of Siwashes now residing in that neighborhood. And here let me say that Siwash is not the name of an Indian tribe as eastern folks think, but is the Chinook word for Indians of all tribes. In 1865 the city contained about 1,000 people, ten years later there were 2,000, in 1885 there were 10,000, in 1895 the population had gone to 50,000, and in 1900 it was 80,671. In the latter '80s the city had a boom of such magnitude that her population from 1880 to 1890 showed an increase of 1,112 per cent.; then came the big fire which swept away fifteen million dollars worth of property, and after it came the panic of '93 which was the last blow, and Seattle went into mourning until the Klondike strike restored it to life and hope.

At present it is about the liveliest town on the map and prosperity is apparent everywhere. She needs it too, for in the first boom times enough country was laid off into town lots to make a city of a half million of people, and enough street car lines were built to reach all the territory within miles. Seattle street cars are some rougher to ride in than a jolt wagon, but they are faster than walking and drier when it rains, and it rains a good deal of the time. The car lines run about six miles north, are some rougher to ride in than a jolt wagon, but they are faster than walking and drier when it rains, and it rains a good deal of the time. The car lines run about six miles north, twelve or fourteen south, and three east, to Lake Washington, which is the fresh water front of the city, as Puget Sound is its salt water front. Town lots lie all along the car lines and naturally a great many of them are vacant, seeing that there are only 80,000 people to occupy space enough for 500,000. There is money in Seattle real estate, for land may be bought as low as $75 an acre on or near street car lines, which will be worth more than that per lot inside of two years. As a sample of growth in values I may cite the instance of one man, not yet move into it, a stranger just arrived insisted on giving him $5,500 for it, and got it. A great deal of money has been made in this house deal of money has been made in this house building business.

As Rome sat upon her seven hills and ruled the world, so Seattle stands on four and bosses the entire northwest. They are hills, too, and the way it takes your breath to walk up them or to come down them in a street car is a sensation you won't soon forget. The chief hill, As Rome sat upon her seven hills and ruled the world, so Seattle stands on four and bosses the entire northwest. They are hills, too, and the way it takes your breath to walk up them or to come down them in a street car is a sensation you won't soon forget. The chief hill, that is the centre one, rises about three hundred feet above the waters of Puget Sound, or Elliot Bay as it is called at this point, and it is toboggan all the way. When a street car goes up in a hurry all the passengers are piled in the rear of the car and when it goes down they are all shaken to the front. At least that is the way you feel and you cling to the sides or to any other support in reach. The terrorizing thing of all things though is to see a fire engine come down at full speed. A fire engine is a crazy enough looking thing tearing along the level, but when it comes down an incline of forty-five degrees it makes the gooseflesh rise all over you. But what views you get from these hills. Three blocks from the water front you begin to see over the tops of the houses on the streets below, and to the south rises Mt. Rainier, three miles into the air, white and misty and dreamy, like something out of the spirit land while far about you in a great circle of white the Cascade Range sweeps around the horizon, a frame of everlasting snow six, seven, eight, ten thousand feet high, about a wonderful picture of green earth and silver waters.

Everybody asks first about the climate, and it is a mighty hard thing for a real Scattleite to tell the truth about it. Generally speaking it is like the little girl who had a little curl that it is a mighty hard thing for a real Seattleite to tell the truth about it. Generally speaking it is like the little girl who had a little curl that hung right down on her forehead—when it is nice it is very nice indeed, but when it is bad it's disreputable, and that is all there is about it. The rainfall is not greater, if as great as in eastern cities, but it takes so long to get it, and there is a continuous drizzle for about six months of the year. But when the sun comes out and lights the glories of the Sound there is nothing on earth like it. It is never cold in winter or warm in summer, and although not exactly a bracing climate, it is one you will keep going in, and when night comes, how you will sleep, particularly in the wet season when the atmosphere seems made to weigh your eyelids down. Children seem to thrive in it, though they can't always get out to play, and the little ones do have the brightest eyes and the pinkest cheeks you ever did see. It is good for the women, too, but Seattle women are such an active, nervous, never resting lot, that they won't let themselves have the full benefit of it. Concerning this peculiar restlessness, I have never seen anything written, but I fancy that it is due to the fact that the majority of the women are not native born, and as yet they have not convinced themselves that they are permanently settled and they must keep on the go as visitors in any place always do. There are not as many handsome women as bright ones, and their taste in dress inclined to the quiet rather than otherwise. This may be due in some degree to the climate which is bad for gay attire during the greater part of the year. The men don't seem to care about clothes, and a silk hat on the street is almost enough to excite suspicion. A Seattle man is so busy booming his town and hustling for the almighty dollar that he hasn't time to bother with any more clothes than will suffice for the demands of ordinary respectability. How they do hustle, and how young they all look. The controlling spiri by and by.

Seattle's streets are a sight to behold. They extend out even unto the nethermost parts of the earth, and most of them are hard lines. extend out even unto the nethermost parts of the earth, and most of them are hard lines. The two business streets are paved with firebrick, some portions of the others are paved with wood and the balance are dirt roads. There are miles of wooden sidewalks and the crossings, off of the paved streets, ought to be manipulated under a ferry license. All of which is because Seattle is so new that it hasn't had time to make the walking good. Street names are lacking on corners, and houses are poorly numbered so that the stranger who tries to get around the residence portion of the town not only can't find what he is looking for, but presently can't find himself. Residences are of wood, and are tasteful in architecture with lawns that are green all the year around, and roses blooming at Christmas. There is but one detached brick residence in the city, and it cost $40,000, which is fifty per cent. less than some of the big frame palaces cost in boom times, most of which are now boarding houses. Speaking of boarding houses, they are full to overflowing, and everybody down town who has a room to spare has a stranger within his gates at a good deal more than enough to pay his taxes. Rooms rent from ten to twenty-five dollars a month and board is from five to seven dollars a week. Hotels are not the best in the open. Butcher shops have open fronts also, but they do not close at night, further than by large, open iron-work gates.

Though there are about seventy churches in Seattle, one never hears a church bell, because the churches don't have them. There is one I believe, but it is hidden away somewhere so believe, but it is hidden away somewhere so that its voice is almost lost. Vast amounts have not been spent on church architecture,

Sparking is also done by telephone and I have waited five minutes on more than one occasion for some young Romeo to break away from his Juliet and give me a chance—at mine, I was going to say, but will not.

Lake Washington lies back of the city a couple or three miles, and it is a grand body of fresh water from two to five miles wide and thirty-five long. Its shores are well adapted for resort and residential purposes. It is the fresh water front of the city, and when the canal connecting it with the Sound is completed it will be the finest fresh water harbor in the world. Lake Union lies between it and the Sound, and Seattle is the only city known that has a lake covering nine hundred acres within the city limits. All this water, and it is very deep water, gives Seattle shipping facilities second to none anywhere. From the water extend three lines of railway, the Northern Pacific the Great Northern, and the Seattle and International, giving direct communication with the North, South and East. Seattle does business, too, ships coming from all parts of the world, daily steamers to Alaskan ports, immense quantities of wheat. lumber, flcur and fish are constantly on the move, while the receipts of gold from Alaska are something to make one wonder. The U. S. Assay office was established in Seattle in June 1898, and in the first eighteen months eight thousand two hundred and odd miners had deposited their dust there in exchange for eighteen million dollars in the circulating medium. The greater part of the business done by the "States" with Alaska is done through Seattle, the merchants being especially equipped for supplying all kinds of materials for mining purposes. The outgoing rush in the Spring and the return in the Fall make those seasons particularly lively for the town. Mines of gold, silver, copper, iron, lead and coal are in the mountains near by, and speculation in mines is a great business. The capitalization of the mines in the state amounts to five thousand millions of dollars, which means that you ha three daily newspapers, one barely started, and two, the Post Intelligencer and The Times, morning and evening, having all they can do to keep up with advertisements and subscriptions. The Post Intelligencer, popularly known as the "P. I.," is the organ for the whole northwest. There are over forty other publications of various kinds. Dailies sell at a nickle apiece, and a nickle is the minimum coin in circulation. There are numerous beautiful parks in which almost tropical vegetation abounds, and the rront of the city, as Puget Sound is its salt water front. Town lots lie all along the earlines and naturally a great many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked and antivide in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked and antivide in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes, and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes and naturally agreat many of them are worked in the same of the big frame palaces cost in boom limes, most of which he had stakes. Room sent from the tot wenty for the palaces of seatile rate, in the research in the palaces of seatile rate, in the research in the palaces of seatile rate, in the research is anothed and the same of the palaces of seatile rate, in the research in the palaces of seatile rate, in the research in the palaces of seatile rate, in the same of the palaces of seatile rate, in the research in the palaces of seatile rate, in the research in the palaces of the palaces of day to Tacoma and piling up a record of over 70,000 miles a year, done in about 210,000 minutes, running time. Seattle has the bulk of the Alaska trade and there is a ship a day leaving for the North.

THE COUNTY COURT HOUSE.

More umbrellas are sold in Seattle in a year than in any city of its size on earth. The western oyster abounds and it looks like a chewed paper wad and tastes like a copper rivet. Apples are found on the fruit stands that will just about fit in a man's hat, and cucumbers in market that won't go in a bootleg. The luckiest woman in Seattle is a Yankee, who rented the old Rainier hotel at twenty-five dollars a month for five years as a kind of caretaker just before the Klondike revival. At last accounts she was clearing $1,000 months or here investment running.

twenty-five dollars a month for five years as kind of caretaker just before the Klondike revival. At last accounts she was clearing $1,500 a month on her investment running it as an apartment house. Taxes are only about two and a half per cent. on a two-thirds appraisement. The population includes all nationalities, and every state in the Union is represented with a particularly strong contingent from the South. The people are delightfully hospitable, and they think their town is simply the only place on earth fit to live in. It used to be that they always asked a man what his name was "back East," but they have grown beyond that now and there is a 400 as aristocratic and as conventional as anything Ward McAllister ever engineered to social prestige. Pink teas and studio receptions and cotillons and assembly balls and literary clubs and things like that are found all over and they compare favorably with the best in the land.

So much for the Seattle of today, and the half hasn't been told, but it is as nothing to what it will be a dozen years hence. The enthusiasm of the people, their enterprise and energy, their loyalty to and confidence in their city and their perfect belief in its future greatness, is invigorating to see and to hear and feel, and when even the casual observer realizes the wonderful possibilities everywhere manifest, he throws aside his prejudice, foreswears his unbelief and tossing his cap in air he hurrahs with the rest of them from Seattle. He just can't help it, and when he is in the East again he wonders what it is that he misses and he involuntarily stretches out his neck to get a breath of the air he had been lately breathing.

THE DAY'S CHIEF TOPIC.

Where and how to spend the summer is a question to be considered by nearly everybody. If you are not interested, you should be, and if you are, consider New England, with its great wealth of mountains, rivers, lakes, seashore and historic spots.

In the heart of the Appalachian Range, the secondary Range of America, which includes the famous White Mountains, are hundreds of places where one may go and enjoy dreds of places where one may go and enjoy the cool, quiet grandeur of the magnificent panoramic scenery, its grand precipitous rocks, its green fields and the beautiful silvery lakes sprinkled here and there like bits of broken mirror.

Think of the places where sports of all hints.

mirror.

Think of the places where sports of all kinds may be enjoyed, including the popular games of golf, polo and tennis.

Leave the mountains and turn to the beautiful lakes and streams, or to the vast, grand ocean which forms the eastern boundary of New England, here boating, fishing, yachting and bathing are participated in more than in any other part of the world.

New England lacks not historically, but can boast of containing many relics of the early pilgrim settlers, as well as of the Indian and Revolutionary periods.

A valuable book containing a list of hotels and boarding houses with their rates and accommodations, also maps, routes and rates of the Boston & Maine Railroad and connections will be sent free to any address on application to the Passenger Department of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, Mass.

AGENTS CREDIT, Perfumes, Flavors, etc. Big Profits. Expr. Pd. Terms free. Herbene Agency Co., Box 54, Station L. New York.

FREE Catalogue Millinery, Corsets, Shoes, Gloves, etc. Chicago Mail Order Millinery Co., Dept M, Chicago. FREE CATALOGUE No. 134 of Cloaks, Suits, etc. M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., Chicago.

FREE Handsome Catalogue. National Short & Garment Co., 136 Van Buren St., Chicago.

AGENTS MAKE $50 PER WEEK and expenses, Chicago, Chicago, Earn $8 BY DISTRIBUTING 100 SAMPLES OF WASHING FLUID IS THE COLORS N. Y.

Sell Your Real Estate. the U. S. and Canada. Send description and cash price. WINSLOW REALTY AND INVESTMENT CO., Sta. E., South Bend, Ind.

SEND NO MONEY with 20 YEAR GUARANTEE

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien
Palls, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life-giving wonders, we send two boxes absolutely free, all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c, per box, send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes 10 warranted quadruple plated silver; they are fluted 100 p and beautiful and useful ornaments; they are suitable for dining table use, or used as ide dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick section on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels, and special organs of either sex. All fills and special organs of either sex.

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M, Augusta, Maine.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher Incorporated.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of eash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least four yearly subscribers (together with 25 cents to pay for each subscriber so sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom deplume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remitance for new subscriptions, and addressed to Editron NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or fiction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY GIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETTORS SHOULD THEREPORE

tain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CHECUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE BETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

We premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

ET Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at Moerty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIME WINNERS FOR AUGUST.

Edward F. Watrous, First Prize. Howard M. Strong, Second Prize. Carolyn Halsted, Third Prize. Mary R. P. Hatch, Fourth Prize. Louise Snow, Fifth Prize.

The Boy Hero of Indian Key.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY EDWARD F. WATROUS.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher

URING the thirties, whenever there was a temporary lull in the long existing hostilities between the United States government and the Seminoles, many settlers from the North flocked into Florida. Among the number who went there in 1838 was Dr. Henry Perrine, a man of wide culture and scientific attainments, who had spent some years in Central America and had recently returned from Mexico where he had served as United States Consul. He had been deeply interested in the floriculture of those latitudes and was confident that under favorable circumstances many plants indigenous there, might be introduced successfully into our country.

For the purpose of a practical experiment Congress granted him a tract of land at the extremity of the Florida peninsula, to be converted into a botanical garden. This was to be his plantation; but as he had a family, consisting of wife, two daughters in early womanhood, and a son of eleven years, the question of a desirable location for a residence received his thoughtful consideration.

Many years ago this story of the home of the Perrines and the tragedy that severed its ties.this story of imminent peril and remarkable deliverance was pictured to the present writer with dramatic fervor and vivid coloring by one of the actors in the tragedy; although much of pathos and interest must be lost necessarily in its repetition, it shall be my endeavor "to tell the tale as 'twas told to me."

'After due deliberation it was decided that our home should be on Indian Key, one of the small, beautiful islands of the Florida Reef. containing less than ten acres and only a few miles south of the plantation, to and from which my father could go by sailboat. Its location was healthful, lying between the bay and the open sea, there was freedom from reptiles, luxuriance of vegetation, a lovely beach of coralline limestone, which with breezes from ocean and gulf made the water circled garden an ideal spot for a home. Several families were living there, making with their servants, a population of forty persons. In the number was a trader who had the only stock of goods south of Key West, seventy miles away; this proved a great attraction for the Indians who from time to time paddled over to the island to purchase necessary supplies.

"Our house, following the prevailing style, was raised upon piles and built over the water; it was reached by a bridge or footway, having occasional intervals between the boards to prevent the intrusion of disagreeable vermin, common to that latitude. In front, a landing or narrow wharf extended out about ten or a dozen feet. The entire foundation was enclosed with a palisade of small palmetto posts driven into the marl, against which rocks were massed to exclude the living creatures, but not interfering with the free flow of the water. This gave us a luxurious bath house, reached from the kitchen by a trap door and flight of steps. The oblong wharf was enclosed in a similar manne.. and used as a kraal for sea foods; this, most fortunately as it proved, was covered with thick planks laid upon stout beams.

"We were very happy in our island home and in contentment and fancied security the months rolled away until nearly two years had passed. Occasionally reports reached us of disturbances between the white settlers and the Indians, but nothing occurred to alarm us. The natives had often visited my father's plantation and on several occasions, as a physician, he had been of service to individuals and his relations with all were amicable.

"On the night of August 6, 1840, a band of Indians under the chief Chekika, left the main land in seventeen canoes, and reached Indian Key soon after midnight, landed in silence and crept softly toward the clustered houses. All of our family were sleeping except my father, who sat by the bedside of my sick sister. Suddenly there rose upon the quiet of the hour, the blood-curdling war-whoop of the Seminolesthe 'Yo-ho-e-he', a vow of eternal natical and vengeance. No time was to be lost; my father extinguished the light, raised my sister in his arms and hurried us all to the bath house. In vain we begged him to stay with us; cautioning us to remain perfectly quiet he left, saying:
"'No, I think that I can stop this devilish work, and the Indians will never harm their good friend, the white medicine man.'

"We heard the trap fall, a piece of carpet drawn over it, and my father's steps as he hastened to the roof, from whence he greeted the marauders in Spanish, then addressed Chekika, calling him by name, reminding him of their friendship and claiming his protection for his family. The chief replied slowly and with dignity:

"'We make war only upon men; we make no war nor draw the scalping knife upon women and children. Chekika never forgets a kind-

"After a brief consultation all moved away from our house and as we learned later, went directly to the trader's, whose unjust dealings possibly had instigated this visit, broke into the store, where they obtained an abundance of 'fire-water,' which prepared them for the cruelties that followed. Father looked in upon us for a moment, saying, 'I do not believe that we are in any danger; but remember, make no sound whatever occurs.'

"We could hear them at the other houses as the minutes dragged slowly by, and it must have been nearly two hours before that terrible war-cry again rent the air, as the Indians crazed by the liquor they had drunk, first circled around the house, then burst in the door and rushed madly up the stairs. Mingled with yells and curses we could distinguish the blows of their tomahawks and the fall of splintered wood, and knew that they had attacked the cupola where father had taken refuge. We heard his voice raised in entreaty and command, then a shot, and the exultant shouts told us too plainly what had happened.

"We were nearly paralyzed with fright and horror as we heard the Indians talking about. and searching for the 'white squaws.' huddled into the darkest corner and sat down in the water, in momentary expectation that our hiding place would be discovered. The dread moment seemed very near, when the seed chest was kicked aside, the trap quickly lifted and a dark face hideous in war paint thrust through the opening, peering into the gloom; so terrifying was this, that it seemed as if the beating of our hearts must betray us, and all gave a sigh of relief as the trap was again lowered. A number stood directly over our heads and discussed the question of our whereabouts, reaching the conclusion, 'The medicine man must have sent the women away in a boat while we were at the store.'

"This settled, in their drunken rage they began the work of pillage; they smashed the wincrockery, glassware, mirrors, everything breakable, with yells and curses accompanying each blow; they chopped the furniture into fragments and piled it in the centers of the cooms and out of the house. Having reserved all desirable plunder, they set the house on fire adding its flames to the holocaust raging around. In accordance with their usual tactics they danced and screamed around the flames until their attention was drawn elsewhere.

"Our house was lightly built and soon the floor above our heads began to burn; as some of the principal Indians were sitting on the wharf we dared not move, least their quick ears should detect the slightest sound. It was not long before the intense heat drove them away and as the situation was unbearable my brother and I by a desperate effort pushed aside two of

with our own apprehensions and grief at found clothing, merchandhe and other articles our awful bereavement combined to make us identified as part of the spoils from Indian Key, for a time insensible to physical suffering. At In the engagement our troops were victorious; length the smoke became so dense that we ten warriors were killed and thirty women and could not distinguish each others' faces. We were nearly suffocated and the planks covering our last refuge began to burn. Each moment added to our distress; we crowded to the outer edge of the enclosure and stood where the water reached our waists, we dashed water over each other and at last, dug up the wet marl and plastered it upon our heads, but in spite of all that we could do, our condition grew steadily worse.

"Henry was beside himself from the smoke, heat and pain, and regardless of our efforts to restrain him, broke away, exclaiming, 'I am going out; I might as well be scalped as roasted.' He worked out a stake, waded to the beach and stood upright on the white surface just as the sun rose bright and clear above the water. He was in full view of the Indians, but they were so engaged in sorting their plunder, rioting and feasting that the lad was unnoticed. Our own suspense was terrible, as certain death seemed to await him, when our own discovery would have been inevitable.

"Physical torture soon obliged us to take action and my mother dug away the sand from two posts and pulled them out, and just as the live coals fell upon our heads and shoulders, we stood outside the burning wharf, where to our joy and surprise was Henry with a boat. His first instant on the beach assured him that he was unseen and kindled afresh the desire to escape from our savage tormentors. Only two rods away was one of our boats, partially beached, having a pair of oars in the bottom. He dropped instantly, crawled to the boat, pushed it into the water, and concealed behind it drew it cautiously to the end of the wharf: the rising clouds of smoke effectually screened us, as in some unknown manner we scrambled into the boat, and while my mother held the fainting sister, Henry and I rowed for life and all that we held dear.

"Our progress seemed slow, but our young arms had strength given them for this bour of great need, and we pulled our little craft with its stricken load toward the open sea, without a thought that there was no harbor of refuge, but urged onward by the forlorn hope of escaping from horrors worse than death which threatened us.

"When the Indians caught sight of the departing boat they yelled and danced with rage, firing a number of shots, but we were beyond their reach. There was comfort in the knowledge that their canoes were on the landward side of the island, and it would be several moments before they could begin their pursuit of the frightened fugitives. I recall vividly the silence that fell upon us during those moments when so much was at stake. Not one word was spoken but my mother groaned in anguish when a war canoe rounded the island with eight braves disfigured with war paint, whose powerful strokes sent their light boat dancing over the waves, and how rowed as we saw them on our track!

"Our pursuers gained steadily in the unequal race, and we were almost despairing, when through the waving palms we caught a momentary glimpse of a flag; another instant and the 'Stars and Stripes' were in full view waving over a small schooner. With a promptness and decision marvelous in one so young, Henry stopped rowing, quickly tore his shirt from his back, tied it to his oar and raised it as high as possible in the air. The sharp report of a gun answered our signal, and the yells of fury from the discomfitted savages as they paddled rapidly towards the island, gave us double assurance of safety.

"A yawl boat promptly came to our rescue and in a few moments we were on board the schooner Medium, one of the revenue cutters, cruising about the Florida Reef for the protection of our maritime interests; the rising smoke had been seen at early dawn and all speed had been made toward it, but I shudder at the thought of 'what might have been', had the schooner reached the spot five minutes

"Our condition was pitiable; we were greatour clothing was torn, soaked and discolored; our hair was filled with the sand we had heap ed upon our beads, we were bruised and burned. but all was forgotten in joy and gratitude for our deliverance from the infinite peril of that night of terror.

"We received every possible attention from the officers of the Medium, and in due time were transferred to a United States transport, which carried us to St. Augustine. My father's untimely and dreadful death made a residence in Florida impossible; we came north, ever holding sacred the memory of the devoted husband and father, whose life, we believe was sacrificed in the hope of diverting attention from his loved ones."

.

with the yells of the drunken savages, which Everglades to Cheksika's Island, where they children made prisoners. Among the former was the implacable Chekika: he met his fate with indifference; proud and defiant, with his dying breath he essayed to give the war-cryd his people, "Yo-ho-e-ne", to express his up dying hatred of the entire white race.

In Pursuit of the Ideal.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HOWARD MARCUS STRONG

Copyright, 1901, by IV. H. Gannett. Publisher.

T was a Saturday altermoon of grand opera. From the expression on Frank. lin's face one would have imagined him deeply engrossed in the music. That was something of an art with Franklin; he could set his face at any degree of atten. tion and then wander away wheresoever his fancy might lead him.

Upon this particular occasion he was engrossed in the contemplation of the ideal. The contemplation had been in progress for many months—at a distance; but now, to his unspeakable joy, the object was scated at his side. Franklin feared lest he might wake at any moment and find it all a pleasant illusion, a fantasy conceived in his own mind by the power of music.

For once the Fates had smiled kindly upon the young man. The Ideal had found herself purseless before the box office, with a string of impatient humanity in the rear.

"If you will allow me—a pleasure I assure you—to obviate the triffing difficulty." With

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr.M.M.Fenner's Specific cures. By mail. Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

LYON & HEALY'S BRASS BAND

Uniforms and Suppl Also contains Musi-tions for New Bands Engagement 28 Adds

NO SPAVINS

The worst possible spavin can be cured in 45 minutes. Curbs, splints and ringbone just as quick. Not painful and never has failed. Detailed information about this new method sent free to horse owners. Write today. Ask for pamphlet No. 8. FLEMING BROS., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, phine, Oplum, Laudanum and kindred drug habits. Conje. Correspondence Invited. Trial Treatment F. Berlin Remedy Co., Suite K., 165 W. 34th Str.,

I WAS

I tried every known treatment and device without help. Finally oured myself by Galvanie Electricity. If you are dead, or growing dead, or have head-noises, door waste time and money as I did Write me and I will gladly see the AD NOISES with stamp. W. J. TINDALL, COROES, S. J.

WE GROW HAIR HEADS

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Bice, C. Main S. N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his method. Whether skeptical or not get this frand try the remarkable invention that curpain, danger, operation or detention from we to-day. Don't wait.

ic ending is of fund owever, that you nearly burst with hilarity, so fund of these Musica incoherent words Franklin bowed himself be- min," he said apologetically. "And by the way, man to match him as a wife," broke in Belle's fore the Ideal. She demurred.

"Make up your mind before the show's over," shouted one in the crowd. "I hate the thought of your missing it,"

Franklin urged. "You are very kind," she said. "I thank you."

A moment later they were sitting side by side, endeavoring to overcome an embarrassing Bilence.

Many times Franklin had pictured to himself just such an opportunity. Every look, word and gesture had been duly rehearsed. He would begin with some commonplace, and then by logical sequence drift into witty repartee, with finally a touch of sentiment and perhaps a veiled declaration of his unbounded admiration. But at the supreme moment his usually active mind was one appalling blank. When the curtain descended after the first act, the Ideal

"Isn't it beautiful?" she murmured dreamily. "Beautiful!" he echoed, but it was her profile he had in his mind.

turned to him with her face illumined:

142

TET 1

II.

I me

25,82

de Fi

DOES

actar.

Tofa

83 je:

a be

Finding his rapt gaze directed upon herself, the Ideal blushed slightly and hastened to consuit her programme. After a moment's pause she said with some severity:

"I hope you will not think that I make a practice of accepting favors from strange gentlemen?"

"It is hard for me to realize that I am a stranger," he replied. "You can't imagine how long I have known you by sight."

"No?" said the Ideal, smiling behind her fan. From the time of their entrance Franklin looked forward with dread to the close of the performance. It came all too soon.

"You will allow me to call a cab for you?" he said, as they were moving down the aisle. But the Ideal would do nothing of the kind. The distance was not immeasurable and she could walk. Bidding him a hurried good-by she hastened to join the throng in the street.

It was quite late when the Ideal finally reached home, and she found both the dinner and her father's temper ruined by the long wait. Being without guile she detailed her little adventure with perfect candor and many blushes.

"Great heavens!" stormed her father; "can't you be trusted to go to a matinee without a nurse, a chaperone and a private detective? How could you so far forget yourself to take up with a low-

"O, father," pleaded the Ideal, "he can't be

"Don't interrupt me. I know. Low down scum of the earth. To think of such im-

"He was not impudent," she protested. "In everything he showed himself a perfect gentleman. It was only when he saw my distress over the loss of my purse-

"Loss of your purse! The idea of any one losing their purse! What if I should try to do business that way-what would become of us, missy? When you hear of your father losing anything, just let him know and he'll make you a present of a lot with a house on it. What's the fellow's name? He shall have his money back with a piece of my mind."

"I forgot to ask him his name," said the Ideal.

"Where does he live?"

"Will you promise not to be rude to him?-I think at the Dudley Club."

Closing his ears to all appeals, the old gentleman flung out of the house and boarded an up town car. His humor was not improved by stumbling over the extended feet of a fellow passenger.

"If you'll have the decency to remove yourself from a portion of this conveyance!" he growled.

"Don't get excited," replied the young man addressed. "I'm not excited, you-puppy!"

"Don't call names."

"If I were to call you an-"

"If you do any more calling, sir, I may forget that you are an old man." "Old!"

"Fares," said the conductor.

"Old!" repeated the indignant passenger.

"Fares, please!"

As the old gentleman fumbled from one pocket to another, his face grew red and the perspiration stood out on his forehead.

"Singular," he muttered. "I've lost my pocketbook and haven't a cent with me. Conductor, you'll have to trust me until another time."

"I'm against trusts," sneered the conductor; "there's nothing in 'em for me."

"Don't you know me?" stormed the irritated gentleman. "I'm Wendell of the Atlas bank." "The last one," replied the conductor, "was president of a college. Will you pay or get off?" "The loss shall be mine, conductor," said the young man, and he proffered two fares.

"Sir." said Mr. Wendell, greatly mollified, "you have done me a service which-

"Which is number two," laughed the other "I once had the pleasure of pulling you out of the water at Nantasket; you had been carried out beyond your depth."

Mr. Wendell coughed and stroked his fluffy.

white side whiskers.

"I thought your face familiar-ah-Benja-

I promised you a place in the bank for that act."

"Say we both forgot," laughed Benjamin. "But it's never too late to right a wrong," Mr. Wendell insisted. "You shall have the first vacancy. It mustn't be said that I ever was ungrateful. What's your address?"

"The Dudley Club."

"That is fortunate!" exclaimed Mr. Wendell; for now you can help me out of another difficulty. First of all, can you loan me five dollars? I wish to repay a villain who today insulted my daughter with his attentions. All I know about him is, that he is a member of your club, is smooth-shaven and when last seen was wearing a blue suit and silk tie."

"Just a little indefinite," suggested Benjamin. "So far the description fits me as it might a dozen others."

"So it does," Mr. Wendell confessed; "still, I shall be able to pick out the brute at first sight. I have a sharp eye for such characters. I trust you will second me in my endeavor."

Benjamin assured him by word and loan that his sympathies were enlisted. A few squares farther on they left the car and entered the club-house. A moment later Mr. Wendell was trying to force a five dollar bill and a torrent of abuse upon a meek little man who sat in a dim corner of the room.

"Don't deny it," shouted Mr. Wendell; 'you're the man-just the kind of an animal that would thrust himself upon an unprotected female. Not a word! Be warned! Next time you may expect your full dues."

Disturbed by the loud tones, several of the members advanced to hear what the trouble might be.

"Sir," said a large, solemn-faced youth, who had been following the conversation with evident interest, "I have to confess my fault. It was I who secured a seat at the matinee for your daughter. I must apologize for making you my debtor."

"Well, well," gasped the banker, "is it possible! It seems that I have been a trifle hasty. Just a moment-I will repay you. Where iswhere did-" but the quiet little man had suddenly disappeared from his seat in the corner.

Mr. Wendell grew visibly agitated. "Benjamin," he said, "can you favor me with another five? This man must be repaid at once.' As before, Benjamin came to the rescue.

"Now, my boy," said Mr. Wendell, "let us away. Honor is satisfied and my daughter no longer under obligations to any man. You must come home with me now-no excuses. come along."

Benjamin complied. As they ascended the steps of the banker's residence, the door flew open and the Ideal stood before them.

"Mr. Benjamin," the old gentleman began ceremoniously.

"Benjamin Franklin," the young man interposed hastily. "You have doubtless heard of my illustrious namesake."

"Pardon me," said Mr. Wendell, "so it is. Daughter, I am singularly indebted to Mr. Franklin. Once he saved my life, and within the past hour he has rescued me from at least three very embarrassing situations. It was he who assisted me in discovering your friend of the theater."

"Why, papa," cried the Ideal, "do you not know that this is the gentleman himself?"

Mr. Wendell's face grew very red, and his white side-whiskers seemed to droop with mortification.

"Franklin," he said hoarsely, "we will forget all about this little affair; we will say nothing to anybody about-" with increased emphasis "nothing to anybody. This young man," he continued, turning to his daughter, "starts in at the bank tomorrow as my private secretary. Now, I will leave you to congratulate him."

The Fascination of Knowing Why.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY CAROLYN HALSTED.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

formal little ladies luncheon the other day given by the wife of a prominent New York doctor to make known to her most intimate friends the engagement of her elder daughter before that interesting fact should be announced formally, while felicitations and best wishes were being showered upon the pretty heroine of the occasion, the aunt of the happy man spoke up with:

T a delightfully in

"What I consider Belle is most to be congratulated upon is her sagacity in the choice of a husband. Tom is the best equipped young man to fill that position of any young man I know-

"And Belle is the best equipped young wo-aunt, not to be outdone in upholding the honor of her side of the connection, "especially if the homely old adage is to be believed that the truest way to a man's affections is through his stomach. I doubt if there is another girl in New York with Belle's record as a household economist, though others are beginning to follow her new departure, and by-and-by it will be decidedly the fashion to thoroughly understand the whole matter of food and food value, household sanitation and domestic economy."

"What have you been doing, Belle?" asked an old friend of her mother's, seated at the opposite end of the table, and who had just returned from a sojourn in England.

"Nothing so remarkable," answered that young lady smiling, "only since you have been abroad I have taken up the subject of what we should eat, including the chemical value of food, the nutrients of food and their uses in the body, the composition of food materials, the pecuniary economy of food and dietaries and dietary standards. Does not that all sound very learned? In plain English it resolves itself into the fact that I have been studying housekeeping and how not to have dyspepsia.'

"Bless my soul!" exclaimed her mother's friend, "what put that sage idea into your head? I thought you belonged to the dancing set."

"So I do, but there is really nothing incompatible in dancing and dietetics. You know we had suffered so much in the family from stomach trouble and its numerous complications-though father is a doctor and a very good one, too-that finally I came to the conclusion I would try some new solution of the health problem, for I had made up my mind that though medicine was very good in its way, it was not what we needed."

"But how did you think of learning cooking"? questioned another inquiring friend.

"I have not actually become a first-class cook," and the young lady smiled again, "so much as I have come to an understanding of the scientific side of the food question. I already knew enough physiology and hygiene from my school books to appreciate that every one ought to take different ingredients into the system, certain things to produce brawn and muscle, others for blood and brain, but I had not the dimmest idea what father and mother or Gertrude and I ought to eat for breakfast and dinner to supply us with those required ingredients. When I began seriously to realize the enormity of my ignorance of this most vital matter, it did not take me long to determine on a process of enlightenment.'

"What did you do?" asked two or three voices, as Belle finished. "Do not arouse our curiosity and then leave us in the dark."

"I made inquiries about instructions and found out that I could get just what I wanted in Philadelphia. So I packed my trunk and started for the Quaker City post haste, somewhat to the amusement of the family who were a little incredulous about my new project and the probability of my accomplishing any results. I at once applied to the scientific demonstrator of hygienic cookery, and made arrangements to attend the lectures of the expert dietetician and of the State chemist for Pennsylvania. I began work the very next day after my arrival, and you cannot imagine how much I enjoyed it all in spite of mother's and Gertrude's predictions to the contrary. It was great fun learning about the oldest and newest wrinkles in edibles-why fresh butter is so healthy and melted butter, owing to the chemical action, we should avoid as we would the measles; why by a good many individuals bananas must not be eaten raw nor tomatoes cooked, and a hundred other seemingly trifling but really immensely important items of daily living.

"It was jolly fun, too, going over to the Woman's Medical College, donning a big apron and experimenting in the laboratory, testing and proving all sorts of chemical theories. How hard I did work! Some days I started at eight o'clock in the morning. But it was all so fascinating, learning the mysteries of food from its chemical and physiological aspecthow to prepare a bill of fare for a person suffering from consumption or typhoid fever, nervous prostration or numerous other ills that flesh is heir to."

"Her father says she is his right hand man since she has taken to domestic science," put in Belle's mother, beaming upon her offspring with maternal pride. "He intrusts to her the diet of his patients, and she makes out each menu in quite a professional manner."

"She has become a food expert, too," added Gertrude with sisterly zeal, "and is appealed to by editors for opinions on gastronomy, by promoters of health food for recipes and testimonials, by educators and physicians, by heads of training schools and hospitals who want her to lecture and to bring her knowledge and experience before the public for its edification."

"Why, Belle, I did not know you were such a remarkable girl," declared her mother's old friend.

"And all because I have taken the trouble to find out what every woman should know as a matter of course," laughed Belle.

"It was droll, though," she went on, "when I first came home and took the culinary department into my own hands. Mother was bewildered and the cook in despair when I started out to do the marketing, made up a written bill of fare for each day, and gave orders just how the different articles were to be prepared. But the outcome was so glorious, everything was so good and every one felt so good after eating it, that the whole household succumbed to my progressive rule, even the cook, though she has long continued to bemoan the banishment of her pastry and favorite cakes, the only cake I heartily recommend being sponge cake, plain or with jelly, cream, or other toothsome and wholesome embellishments, because sponge cake is the only one made without melted butter."

"Besides," added her mother, "Belle's new acquirements have broadened so greatly her capacity for usefullness in the world. She has taken up work among the city's poor. She visits the mothers and wives, first attracting their attention to the subject of hygienic diet by demonstrating how they can save half the expense of living if they buy and prepare according to the simple rules of health and laws of nature. She explains the evils of intemperance and its most effective preventive, nourishing food."

"Women have been slow in advancing household matters," concluded Belle. "They have a way of clinging blindly to the domestic traditions of their grandmothers without investigating for themselves. Some of us are suffering now for the sins of those same dear, delightful grandmothers. I have proved that knowledge is power and pleasure, too. I used to despise the thought of cooking, now I revel in the construction of new food combinations to contain the exact constituents for health and development."

Have You Got

For Rheumatism, that horrible plague, I da harmless remedy, and in order that every reader may learn about it, I will gladly murial box and book on rheumatism free. Wout fail—it is a wonderful remedy which ha person to abandon crutch and cane. JOHN A. SMITH, 2203 Germania Building, tee, Wis-

RUPTURE CURED! Rupture sent FREE, securely scaled. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

KOIN MONEY. It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but I

Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Polishing Cloth, a wonderful prspared cloth that gives electric brighness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant lasting polish will be placed on Tableware, Gold, Silver, Nickel, Copper, Plated ware, Bicycles, Glass, etc. Bright, absolutely clean, and perfectly free from corrosive tarnish or dirt and will last. The Greatest Revolution in the Household. Takes the place of all Polishes, Powders, Fastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially will bot Injure the Most Dolleas Metal or Glass Tableware.

Will Not Injure the Most Dolleas Metal or Glass Tableware.

for agents' prices

The greatest introduction offer made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.

SUNSHINE, BOX 551, AUGUSTA, MAIN

WRITTEN FOR COMPORT BY MARY R. P. HATCH.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

HE was a strikinglooking girl. Every one in Bixby said whatastriking-looking girl Vic Hammond was. They called her Vic Hammond before she had been in Bixby a month. The young men said that she was a study in black and white, for she always dressed in those colors.

She was handsome. There was no denying it, although she was sallow and thin and her features were far from perfect. Her hair was so black that it looked blue at the roots, her eyes were big, bright, and full of mocking mirth, or they seemed so. Her lips were red as a cherry and beautifully curved, her form angular but graceful, her hands well formed and muscular, and with a habit of talking quite contrary-wise to what she was saying, so that people took to watching them after awhile to get at her real meaning. When, for instance, she was talking primly to Mrs. Boone, the great lady of the town, who, however, was a miracle of boredom, not to say vanity, her long, lithe fingers were a whole pantomime of fun; when Ben Boynton fell in love with her and told his friends he meant to marry her and settle down this time, she heard of it and talked to such purpose with those slim fingers that, despite the courtesy of her tongue he took his fascinations elsewhere. She was contrary in other things, too. She always did things out of season, one might almost say, out of fashion, only Vic Hammond made a fashion things out of season, one might almost say, out of fashion, only Vic Hammond made a fashion the moment she adopted it. She always dressed in black and white, but on her tall, dark, daring person it might as well have been a vivid scarlet for the impression it made. Sometimes it was a plain black, perfectly fitting dress, buttoned up behind because others wore theirs fastened in front, and with it she would wear plain white linen collars and cuffs; but then no one else was wearing collars and cuffs. Again, when high neck wear was the style she took to wearing her dress cut low with a velvet ribbon about her neck. It wasn't becoming but there was a distinction about it that the other girls with prettier necks could never attain. She rode a wheel when no other girl in Bixby had thought of doing such a dreadful thing, and when wheels became common she rode horseback, cajoling the farm lad where she boarded to catch a half-broken colt for her and riding it like a centaur in less than a week.

By this time the school directors looked troubled, but said she came well recommended and that she kept the best school Bixby had ever had. The young ladies hated and admired her, the young men talked disparagingly of her to them but were at her beck and call any time that she signified her august pleasure for them to approach. The young minister fell under her spell after a time and then there was a pproach. The young minister fell under spell after a time and then there was a to approach.

her spell after a time and then there was a scandal.

Vic didn't know it, or if she did, she didn't care, but Mrs. Howard Payne had selected him for her Marcia the very moment he came to Bixby pulpit, and Mrs. Boone was known to have invited him to her house and left her niece Annie to entertain him, besides sending Annie over to consult with him about the hymns. She sang soprano in church and Marcia sang alto. Vic sang either or both, at her own good will, but she sang it from the congregation, as she had not been considered a proper person for the choir. The young minister considered her voice glorious and said so, thus scoring another black mark against her when there were plenty before.

"If it were not for her sister," people said, and then straightway the image of a small, quiet, pretty woman who kept house for Vic, would silence murmurs for the time. Yes, this sister covered Vic's multitude of sins as with a pure white mantle. She was so gentle, so quiet, so meek under Vic's dictatorial manner that everybody spoke well of the inoffensive little woman from the outset. "Vic could not be altogether bad with such a sister," they said.

If Vic was contrary, Emma was always ready to agree with one even to the point of saying it was a pleasant day to an inadvertent remark, even though it might be pouring at the moment. Then, too, she made excuses for Vic's manner. "She doesn't mean half she says. Vic always is her own worst enemy," and speeches like these which showed Emma's forgiving spirit, for it was evident that Vic nagged her sister constantly, even following her about to interfere with her movements.

"She can't come into my part of the house," said Mrs. Storer, where the sisters had rooms, that Vic is airtite teter had a come in the can't come into my part of the house," said Mrs. Storer, where the sisters had rooms, that Vic is airtite teter had a come in the can't come into my part of the house," Vic didn't know it, or if she did, she didn't ged her sister constantly, even following her about to interfere with her movements.

"She can't come into my part of the house," said Mrs. Storer, where the sisters had rooms, "but Vic is right after her and Emma follows her back as scat as she can be."

Yes, clearly, Emma had much to bear. As time went on and the sisters had been in Bixby nearly a year, there were hints of Vie's frequenting strange places for a young lady and a teacher. She was seen there late at night with Emma, who it was said followed her and brought her home. After a time reports grew and darkened until the townspeople believed Vic not only drank but did worse. Emma grew paler and more haggard while Vic taught her school and become more audacious each day. She scolded her sister one moment and would cry over her the next, or so Mrs. Storer said, and she added the comment that she didn't see how Emma could live, and that somebody ought to interfere. But somehow, interference didn't seem easy under the battery of ference didn't seem easy under the battery of Vic's black eyes.

About this time, the young minister stopped calling on Vic, and the druggist's clerk hinted to his young lady something about morphine. She was not to tell, but in a week everybody in Bixby knew the druggist's clerk had said that Vic Hammond was a morphine fiend. That accounted for her fierce ways and queer looks and her treatment of her sister. Next, Mrs. Storer whispered to one of her cronies about articles of finery disappearing and as mysteriously returning. In a week's time she was quite bold in declaring that since Vic came to her house, not a drop of liquor could she keep, only she hadn't dared mention it before.

Everybody "dared" by this time and the dreadful things that were said of Vic Hammond were many and varied. Strangely enough, they all seemed to have a foundation in truth. If this were so, Miss Hammond was not a suitable person to guide the youth of Bixby, and so Mr. Carter was deputed to call by the school board and tell her that her services would be dispensed with. She met him like a duchess and received her dismissal like a queen, but she made one remark which surprised him. It was this, "I did not expect to stay so long. I seldom do."

"That stamps her," he told his colleagues when he returned to them. "The man that recommended her ought to be prosecuted," he declared vigorously, as he mopped the perspiration from his face. It was a day in July and the interview with Miss Hammond had not been of the soothing order.

That night Vic fell ill, and at midnight Emma was brought in from the street where she had been knocked down and run over by a cart. She did not live but a few minutes and it was all over before Mrs. Storer had sufficiently recovered her senses to go to Vic with the dreadful news, which, in view of Vic's illness, she felt required some consideration. She accordingly sent for her next door neighbor and together they went to Vic's room and told her.

"Thank God," said Vic, sitting up in bed, her black hair flying do dead?"

"Yes," they whispered, starting back in affright. What manner of demon was this, to speak so of a sister, an only sister? They thought they knew her but this disclosure was more than their ordinary every-day minds could master.

"I don't believe you. I will go and see for syself," she said, deliberately climbing out of myself, bed. She was surely ill and maybe wandering in her mind for she staggered as she tried to walk. The women started to help her but she waved them off and like a beautiful demon she stalked into her sister's room, while the women followed her as if dazed.

There she lay the pretty rate golden heired sne waved them off and like a beautiful demon she stalked into her sister's room, while the women followed her as if dazed.

There she lay, the pretty, pale, golden haired child, who in life came scarcely up to her sister's shoulder. Her injuries were internal and she lay there cold, placid, with a smile on her lips as she had so often smiled. Vic seemed to have spent her wild savagery in her own room, for now she took up the tiny, snowy hand and kissed it. Then she parted the golden hair on the white temple and kissed her there.

"Poor little sister! Was I naughty to you sometimes, dear? Sister didn't want to be. Yes, she is dead, quite dead," she said, looking at the two women. "I am glad. I have never been glad before, at any rate not in a long time. I can rest now," and she went to her chamber, lay down in her bed and crossed her arms on her breast. "You may leave me now," she said to the women, and they went their way, too dumbfounded for words. They could only look into each other's eyes and gasp, "Who would have thought it? She might have murdered us all in our beds."

"I've read of such folks but I never expected to see one," said Mrs. Storer.

In the morning, Vic was raging in a high fever. "She is dead and now I can die. I am so glad for I'm tired of living. I wanted to die but I couldn't until she did. You know how that was," she said to the doctor.

"Yes, I know," he said, soothingly.

"You are a bright man and you can see now that I have got a chance to die. We were alone, Em and I. Mother left her to me. I had to live. Poor Em! she looked like an angel, didn't she?"

"She did, indeed."

"Well, she wasn't quite. What have I been eaving dector?" retained and carded and carded

"She did, indeed." "Well, she wasn't quite. What have I been saying, doctor?" she asked suddenly, with "Well, she wasn't quite. What have I been saying, doctor?" she asked suddenly, with sane, questioning gaze.

"Nothing of any consequence."

"O, I'm so tired, I want to die. Don't you think you could let me die if I paid you well?"

"I want you to live, Miss Hammond. You have a splendid vitality and are so young."

"Young! Why, I am a thousand years old. I've lived through eternities of suffering. I shall die tonight, doctor, and don't you forget it," she said with her old reckless manner, intensified by delirium.

The night wore away with doctor and nurse to watch. Toward daybreak she whispered, with a faint, wan smile, "I knew best. God is going to let me die. Poor Em!" and she breathed her last, while the watchers stood agape with the tragedy of it all.

Both dead! both fair, beautiful sisters, but a few hours before so full of youthful life!

News was sent to Rev. Stanwood Hastings who had recommended Vic as an able teacher.

"She was a noble woman," he said as he stood looking down upon the pallid face in the coffin where Vic lay.

"You mean her sister, this one," said Mrs. Storer, indicating by a wave of her hand the smaller coffined form beside her. A qualm of disgust crossed Mr. Hastings' face but it was quickly banished.

"Poor soul! she could not help it, perhaps, quickly banished.

"Poor soul! she could not help it, perhaps, but she killed her sister. Is it possible," he exclaimed, seeing the surprised faces about him, "that you did not know Emma Hammond as she was?"

"We thought Without With the seeing the surprised faces about him, "that you did not know Emma Hammond as the was?"

as she was?"

"We thought Victoria was the one, not Emma," said Mrs. Storer after a time the light slowly breaking on her mind.

"Emma Hammond from her childhood was an inexpressible care, a torture to her sister. She watched over her night and day, returned the articles she stole, brought her home from beer saloons, followed her into the street and least the from consuming mornhine as much kept her from consuming morphine as much as possible. Victoria was a fine teacher but she could never stay in one place long for Emma behaved so badly that they had to leave. You must have been strangely blind in Bixby."

"Well, they are both gone and I am glad that they are in God's hands. Vic suffered tortures daily but was strangely proud. Nobody knew it. Her parents were known to me. The mother was a lovely woman, the father what Emma

95 BUYS DROP-HEAD "CLAYTON"

SEND NO MONEY

l floral Marquetry work, and with JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150 to 156 and 28 line iniaid on front of table. JOHN M. SMYTH CO. 150 to 156 and 28 West Madison Please mention Comport when you write.

was. She inherited his vices. Perhaps the blame was not hers but his alone. God knows, God will judge."

The Boiled Codfish.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY LOUISE SNOW.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

ORTUNE Fairfax had but just dropped the plump codfish into the big cauldron hanging on the stout iron crane within the stone fireplace, where she was preparing the hearty evening meal for the family.

" Haste thee, daughter, with that new root vegetable-its name doth ever elude my lips!" hurriedly spoke her mother.

"Po-ta-to, thus, mother," enunciated Fortune slowly and laughing. "Make it into syllables and-

"Plunge in the pudding whilst the water seethes fiercely, Fortune. Didst sprinkle it freely with the dried plums thy brothers love so well?" commanded and questioned Mistress Fairfax, interrupting her daughter, and ignoring further notice of the vegetable's troublesome name.

But as she stepped swiftly to and fro at the spinning wheel, drawing fine the soft lengths of white fleece, she muttered low to herself, 'A barbarous name, a truly savage—."

of white fleece, she muttered low to herself, "A barbarous name, a truly savage—"
The heavy oaken house door that had been left unbarred swung quickly in on its hinges, and a tall Indian followed by two others strode with light footstep to the fireside.
With no further salutation than a hoarse "Ugh!" the foremost of the unannounced and unceremonious visitors thrust his brawny arm down into the kettle and drew up the scalding codfish, then abruptly made for the door with it, the two other Indians stolidly following.
"Not so fast, Master Redskin! Yield thy unlawful plunder. Nay? But thou shalt!"
And while she spoke Fortune nimbly snatched away the steaming codfish, and slapped the thief squarely in the face with the back of it, then deftly soused it in a bucket of clear water, and wiping it with a fresh towel, she calmly replaced it in the kettle.

The purloiner after another discomfitted "Ugh!" passed on with his companions out at the door and disappeared.
"Fortune, child! Whatever hast thou done?" exclaimed her mother in affright. "Oh, child, thou'st fearfully angered the Red men, and thou well knowest what that augurs! And what will thy father say?"
"I wot not but that my father will be well pleased, when he comes home, hungry and tired

"I wot not but that my father will be well pleased, when he comes home, hungry and tired Address,

WOMEN WANTED Do Binding. $9.00 weel work. Material furnished sent prepaid. Send stamped addressed envelope for ticulars. Universal Co., Dept. 29, Walnut Street, Phil

BICYCLES BELOW COST

We ship anywhere on 10 days trial without a cent in advance,

EARN A BIGYOLE distributing catalogs for us. You can make money as our agent.
Write at once for our Bargain
List and Special Offer.
MEAD GYOLE GO. Dept. 17 F, Chicago.

20th Century MUSICAL WONDER Complete fully a mile and dist gans can be detached from the Phone they will last a ! can thus play in several different keys by only having We want to get these wonders before the people at one free to any one who will forward 50c.

Special Doz. rates numished.

If you have heart

Sudden Deat

disease you are in grave danger. You may die any minute-anywhere. Heart trouble any may die any minute—anywhere. Heart trounies, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once. Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from going unstairs, walking etc. tanderness numbuses of going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other access. from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk, It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

GIFT FOR THE HOME ART AN

after his long day of toil, rather than that it should have been devoured by yon lazy thief. I could not bide that my father and my brothers should go lacking their needful food, and this the last fish left in the tub!"

Brave Fortune spoke sturdily in the glow and excitement of the moment, yet afterward her heart misgave her, when she remembered that her father had distinctly charged all the family not to in any way give the savages cause for offence, as he was most anxious to keep the peace with them if it were possible.

And she had forgotten it all, and was the first one to create a disturbance! While to what direful consequences might her careless thoughtlessness may hap lead?

The blazing logs in the great fireplace lighted up the spacious living room, finding bright reflections in the shining silver cups and tankards on the square oaken table spread with its spotless cloth and made ready for the evening meal; while around the table were set the high-backed chairs, awaiting the home coming of the hardy pioneer and his six stalwart sons from their labor at clearing the wild forest land for cultivation.

Supper was all ready to serve and Fortune went to the door and looked down the pathway leading to the wood, hoping to see her father and brothers coming on their homeward way.

Yes, there they came, in "Indian file," each

Yes, there they came, in "Indian file," each his woodsman's ax swung across his with his woodsman's ax swung across his shoulder.

A goodly sight, truly! So seemed to think Mistress Fairfax, who had but just finished her "stint" at the wheel, and was looking over her daughter's shoulder, with her hand shading her eyes from the last bright rays of the setting her eyes from the last bright rays of the setting sun.

But she did not hide the smile relaxing the firm curve of her lip, and the line of anxious care that had been brooding over her face since the visit of the Indians was smoothed away.

"Good e'en, good e'en!" were the hearty greetings, as the family all met again, which meant much in those uncertain days.

One of the brothers broke off a cluster of the bright seed balls from the rose tree standing near the door stone, as they passed it, and tucked it into the glossy knot of hair coiled high on his sister's pretty head.

When they were all seated at the table and the sincere words of grace were said, Fortune gravely asked:

"How likest thy codfish, father? Dost find it to thy taste?"

"Aye, 'tis so, daughter, that do I, and was but just commenting with myself on the unusual savoriness of the dish."

"And thou hast remembered the sage in truth, this once, Fortune!" declared her brother Harold, who liked to tease her.

"It lacketh not further spicing than that yet, forsooth, to its seasoning!" was Fortune's laughing reply to his good-natured raillery.

"And, moreover, it came nigh to going without any spicing whatever, save mayhap that of hunger!" added Mistress Fairfax, in troubled tones.

Master Fairfax looked up quickly at his wife,

Master Fairfax looked up quickly at his wife, alarmed at her words and their tone, and asked:
"What mean you, wife? Has there been trouble?"
Then Fortune had to tell all shout the adven-

Then Fortune had to tell all about the adven-Then Fortune had to tell all about the adventure with the nimble thief, and which she related simply and discreetly, yet withal so roguishly and drolly that, notwithstanding their anxiety her father and brothers could not but laugh, and that right merrily.

"He went away wroth, saidst thou, Fortune?" asked her father.

"Aye, that did he, fiercely angered! I thought to have seen the savage turn on the saucy maid and deal her a most direful blow!" answered Mistress Fairfax, pale at the remembrance of it.

"I feared him not, a thief is ever a coward!" declared Fortune contemptuously.

"I feared him not, a thief is ever a coward!" declared Fortune contemptuously.
"Tis true too often, yet beware, Fortune," her father gravely replied, "as I aforetime warned you, against angering the Red men. They look upon us, and not wholly without reason, as intruders on their native soil and rights. But no great harm hath been done, since the savages went away sullen."

Relieved of the lurking fear she had vainly tried to ignore, Fortune's naturally gay spirits rose again, and she rallied her brothers on their unlimited fondness for plums to their pudding.

"How findest thou the pudding, Gregory? Are the plums plenteously sufficient this time, Alfred? I feared me, verily, to have seen you lawless savages make off with the whole winter's store, whiles I encountered for the codfish."

fish."

"In truth, the pudding is right edible, sister. See ye not the proof thereof in our eating of it?" gaily replied the hungry youths, between good mouthfuls.

As the family sat about the fire, listening to the tales told by Goodman Fairfax of the Mother country and the dear old home across the water, Fortune suddenly ceased the rapid click of her knitting needles, and glanced quickly toward the uncurtained window.

But not quick enough, Fortune, to note the dark eye peering in on you all, with anything but a friendly look, although you did hear the subdued rustle of a softly moccasined footstep.

"What didst hear, sister?" asked her brother Ralph, who had observed her quick glance toward the window.

"The rose tree brushing 'gainst the window ward the window.

"The rose tree brushing 'gainst the window pane, methinks," calmly answered Fortune, quietly going on with her work.

At breakfast next morning, Mistress Fairfax said to her husband, "Go not to the wood today, father, but find work near home, for I fear me those savages mean us mischief!"

"Nay, nay, mother, have no fear, we're safe yet, so long as the Redskins are surly," her husband answered cheerily. "Besides Fortune yet, so long as the Redskins are surly," ner husband answered cheerily. "Besides, Fortune is a host in herself, and will protect you. Guard our supper well, daughter," he added

"Aye, aye, sister, you well know how famished we all shall be, so save us our supper!" shouted back to her her brothers.
"That will I, have no fear!" Fortune gaily

"That will I, have no fear!" Fortune gaily sang out in return.

But a little while after, as she was taking the heaped up ladlefuls of sweet fresh butter from the big churn, there came a tap at the house door, and when she opened it, in marched, in solemn file, the same three Indians who had the day before presented themselves there.

They went first to the fire and silently warmed their chilled hands before its genial blaze, then very politely they asked Mistress Fairfax for something to eat.

After partaking of the food given them, with profuse expressions of gratitude for it, and regret at what had happened the previous day, and with proffered words of friendship and

WE TRUST YOU

Oak Chairs, Smyrna Rugs, Silver Sets, Tea Sets, and One Hundred Other Premiums

Freight Prepaid to You

Oak Chair

This chair is of solid oak (not stained) with a highly polished antique finish, handsomely carved and turned, and an embossed leather (cobbler's) seat. It is large and very strong; will last a lite-time, and is well worth $5 of any-body's money. Order one quick and let us prove our statement. FREE for selling one dozen Hold Fast Skirt Supporters.

More than 55,000 ladies have earned premiums worth $170,000.00.

27-Piece Silver Set

This set, consisting of 6 knives, 6 forks, 6 table-spoons, 6 teaspoons, butter knife, sugar shell and pickle fork, is packed in a tasty velvet covered cabinet, satin lined, and makes a beautiful display in a china closet or sideboard. Our reputation for good premiums only is behind the quality of the plating. The design is the very latest copy of solid silver. This set will make a very nice present for your lady. FREE for selling one dozen Hold Fast Skirt Supporters.

plating. The design is solid silver. This set wil for your lady. FREE for Fast Skirt Supporters.

good will toward their white brother, and to all his family, they took their leave.

"Well, it doth rest my mind, and right glad am I to see the Red men so civil, and thus friendly, for I have been in fear of great peril all the morn!" spoke Fortune's mother, with a deep sigh of relief.

But Fortune answered only, "Truly, mother!" Again an abundant supper welcomed the hungry laborers, on their return home to the comfortable log cabin near to the primeval wilderness.

wilderness.

Father and sons had apparently forgotten all about the yesterday's episode, in doing full justice to the good meal prepared for them, until Fortune quietly remarked, "The Red men were here again today, father, and they were wondrous polite, too, and kindly disposed toward their white friends."

"Eh! What say you, daughter? That the savages were civil and gracious? In truth and indeed then, now are matters become serious and alarming!" ejaculated Master Fairfax.

"My sons, this very night, nay, this very in-

"My sons, this very night, nay, this very instant must we gather together our cattle and household goods, and at once start for good

For the story here related is a true one, told the writer by a direct descendant of the family, the name here changed, standing prominent in our country's early history.

HE National Museum has lately received from California the entire Hudson col-lection of Indian Basket work. This is the finest collection in existence and can wilderness.

NO MONEY REQUIRED

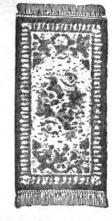

These handsome and useful premiums given Absolutely Free to you for introducing to your friends our great "Hold Fast" Waist and Skirt Supporter, which is the only automatic supporter yet invented. Requires no sewing on of hooks, buttons or anything else. All that is necessary is to put the Supporter on and it "does the rest." It is what everybody is looking for. Every lady and girl in the land needs one. Every Supporter sold brings two more customers. They only cost 35 cents, so are within the reach of everybody. We do not ask you to invest one cent of your money. If you would like to get one or more of our handsome premiums for using a few moments of your time in our interest, all that is necessary to do is to write, saying you would like to earn a premium. We will then send you, charges paid, the Supporters. When you have sold them you send us the money and obtain your premium which we send to you freight charges prepaid anywhere in the United States. So, from first to last, you do not invest a penny of your own money. You take no risk. We trust you with our goods and take back what you can't sell. We have premiums for selling one-half dozen up to one gross. We send a large premium list with first lot, containing 100 offers, all useful as well as ornamental, and we wish you especially to note that when you have earned the premium it is sent to you freshaid, if you live in the U. S., so you are actually out only your time. Such an offer has never been made before. Better write us today, and be the first to show the great invention in your town. Address this way:

The Colver Co.

Dept. A, 815 Schiller Bldg.

NOTE. If you would like to see our Supporter before ordering a quantity, we will send you one, postage paid, on receipt of 35 cents in stamps.

Your credit is good with us, we trust you.

Smyrna Rug

Our rug is 2 ft. 6 in. wide, 5 ft. long, fringed ends, both sides alike. They are genuine Smyrnas, which is a guaranty of the fastness of the colors and the beauty of design. Order one and you will want more. FREE for selling one dozen Hold Fast Skirt Supporters.

Over 1,000,000 ladies now wear the Hold Fast Skirt Supporter.

LARGE CATALOGUE OF PREMIUMS MAILED WITH EVERY ORDER

32-Piece Tea Set

Consists of 6 plates, 6 cups, 6 saucers, teapet and lid, sugar and lid, 2 bread plates, 6 sauce dishes, cream pitcher, slop bowl; total, 32 pieces. Handsomely decorated as shown above. The value of this offer is apparent to all well posted merchants and makes it unnecessary for us to say anything further, except that: FREE for selling two dozen Hold Fast Skirt Supporters.

A Patient Burden Bearer.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE little burro of the Rocky Mountain is, in his normal state, one of the gentlest and most patient of ani-mals and one capable of enduring a great degree of hardship.

The visitor to the mining districts of the mountains will be sure to meet with many of the mining districts of the mountains will be sure to meet with many of the mining districts of the mountains will be sure to meet with many of the mountain the mo trails carrying loads far exceeding their own weight. Indeed it is surprising to see the loads under which they walk along over the most dangerous of trails. They are very sure-footed and never make a false step. No domestic animal of the mountains is more useful than household goods, and at once start for good Fort Plymouth, and give to all our friends and neighbors warning as we go!"

So they did. And next morning's sun shone down on the deserted homestead, now only a smoldering ruin, like many others, though they and their friends all escaped their savage enemies.

And one of those stout old high backed chairs, that were set around the big table in that pioneer home, and which came to this Now World in the good ship Mayflower, is yet stanch and strong.

For the story here related is a true one, told slowly and patiently ascending a steep pass with a parlor organ on its back and a number of smaller articles beneath the organ. Many of the nomadic miners and "prospectors" transport their entire worldly possessions, their picks, shovels, bedding, sheet iron stove, clothing, wheelbarrow and all their other mining implements from place to place on the backs of their burros.

One will often meet a train of seventy-five or the finest collection in existence and can never be duplicated, as basket making is already dying out among the Indians. This collection numbered about two hundred and fifty pieces, at least half of which would be worth from $100 to $250 apiece in the market. Many of the specimens are sacrificial baskets, which require from one to three years to make and are seldom for sale, as they are generally burned upon the death of their owners. a hundred of them coming down the trails forming a veritable freight train in charge of two or three drivers. Sometimes the pass is so narrow that the little creatures must walk in single file. Their gait is slow and plodding and they are not to be urged nor coaxed into a more rapid gait under any circumstances. They can get along with almost no other food than an occasional tuft of brown grass in the lower altitudes, and they will nibble daintily at the sage brush as if they found it both palatable and nourishing.

One may see a great many donkeys in the West Indies where they carry incredibly bulky and heavy loads. A resident of the island of Jamaica told the writer that he once saw a big, robust negro going to market with a tiny donkey loaded so heavily that it could hardly stagger along. Many pounds were added to the burden of the little beast by its owner who had perched his own bulk on top of the load destined for the market.

The gentleman said that he stopped and told the negro that the little animal was too heavily loaded and that the burden should be lightened.

"Yes, sah; dat's so, sah," said the negro with the ready and cheerful acquiescence of his kind. "Pil mek de load lighter, sah."

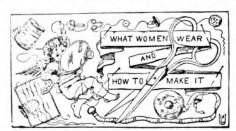

He jumped off the donkey and, taking a large and heavy cask filled with some kind of a liquid from the donkey's back, transferred it to his own woolly head and then calmly reseated himself on the top of the load saying as he did so:

"There, massa! I reckon dat will lighten de This is a fair illustration of the intelligence

This is a fair illustration of the intelligence of the rank and file of the negroes of Jamaica. The little burro is so patient, so gentle, so industrious and bears his hard lot in life so meekly that he deserves better treatment than he usually receives at the hands of his owner.

The kaleidoscope was invented by Sir David Brewster, of Edinburg, about 1817.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE smartest women are wearing long coats of linen, though a particularly good model is a three-quarters length and will be invaluable for driving or traveling, when a light wrap is necessary. A piping of black satteen serves as a finish, while a heavy stitching borders it all around. The full, over-lapping collar is of the coachman's order, with a new touch given by the turned-back edges of the upper collar in pointed tabs, each caught with a large smoked pearl button. The half-fitted front is ornamented by two or three tabs, which button back on themselves when the coat is is left open, and fasten wosite side, if it is to be worn ton back on themselves when the coat is is left open, and fasten across to the opposite side, if it is to be worn closed. There are plain coat sleeves, and a half-fitted back belted in with a belt of black satteen, stitched, which passes through the opened side seams and fastens underneath in front. Then for those of more severe tastes are the long, plain coats, with loose back and front, raglan sleeves and strapped seams, making a yoke effect, and the small turn-over coat collar. This may truly be said to be a linen season, so given over are all up-to-date women to the wearing of this serviceable fabric. To be sure there are smart gowns of the coarser linens made up in tailor fashion for morning wear, and some very fetching rigs with a circular flounced skirt and soft blouse bodice, buttoned at the back, and sometimes supplied with three box-pleats running up and down the back and front.

Gowns like this the shops are displaying all ready the shops are displaying all ready for immediate wear at $5 and upward. Colored linens in grays, blues, and reds, are certainly very much in favor and are wonderfully smart when fully smart when trimmed with bias bands of white satteen, embroidery, or any of the heavy laces made up for the purpose. Grass linen of great fineness, embroidered in all-over designs of scrolls in warm all-over designs of scrolls in warm Persian colors, is exceedingly beautiful. Heavy twine-colored cluny insertion, elaborately with linens, the bright gleam of gold being most effective with the dull color as a background. Coarse grass linen makes up beautifully for cool little gowns, which are frequently trimmed with stitched bands of taffeta in the same shade in graduating rows on the skirt and bodice with often a chemisette of white tucked lawn as a relief. These bands of stitched taffeta in all colors can be bought ready made and are very easily adjusted and certainly do impart a wonderful air of finish. Satin folds, so difficult to make properly, may also be bought in this way and are also very easy of adjustment. Embroideries mark the smartness of linen gowns and are as often in silk as cotton. White linens embroidered with variegated colors, red, blue, orange, etc., upon the collars, cuffs and belts, are immensely smart. All sorts of coarse, showy needlework is applied to the linen gowns with fine effect and mark them at once quite at the head of this season's most pleasing gowns. Long, unlined sleeves are again the mode for demi-toilettes. These are made long over the hands and are as a rule generally becoming. Very pretty is a tulle sleeve shirred closely to the arm, with rows of bebe ribbon velvet set between each row and fastened in a tiny bow at the back of

All sorts of sheer, soft fabrics are in demand, and veilings, especially the old-fashioned nun's fashioned nun's veiling, are having a reign because of their adaptability to the prevailing modes. Pongee is revived and is a delicious summer material. a delicious summer material.

They are trimmed elaborately with guipure lace of the same color and are usually tucked galore.
On most of the la ce trimmed gowns an elegant effect is gained by cutting away the material beneath the lace. These gowns not only look cool, but are so. Even when silk linings are employed the are employed the space beneath the lace is clouded with thin white net or chiffon.

The application The application of cretonne in all its florid colorings to gowns of linen in the natural tints is among the latest and all the short Eton and bolero jackets still maintain their hold upon general favor.

A Wholesome Bakery.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE biggest bakery in the world is in Mil-waukee where the finest beer comes from. Not that the two have any particu-lar connection, but the fact remains. An idea of the size of the place may be gained idea of the size of the place may be gained from the fact that the bread pan, as the housewife knows it, is so large that it will hold 1200 pounds of dough. The bread is set to rise in seven hugh steel troughs, each holding 800 to 1000 loaves, while the two ovens in which the transform at ion from dough to palat-

1000 loaves, while the two ovens in which the twansform ation from dough to palatable to be a capacity of one barrel of flour, and is worked by machinery that causes the stiff brushes to revolve and press the flour through the extremely fine meshes, whence it passes down a pipe to the mixing machine, which stands on the first floor, directly below the sieve. This mixer is a big, square, boxlike affair of steel, the interior of which consists of a system of steel rods that revolve at the rate of 55 revolutions a minute. Into this mixer the flour passes, an attached scale measuring accurately the number of pounds; then the milk and water are added, with the yeast and shortening, all exactly measured and weighed. The power is then thrown on, and the big box begins to turn and tumble over and over with terrific force, and steel rods inside whirling around and mixing the mass of flour and water and lard into a smooth mass.

A great deal of heat is generated in this machine, and to overcome this a flue connects with the outside air, and a powerful fan blows a blast of pure air through a fine sieve into the mixer. From 20 to 30 minutes are required to complete the mixing, and then one of the big steel troughs is wheeled up to the mixer, and then smooth dough is put into it, and then it is taken away to rise, or, as the baker says, "to ripen." This process requires from five to seven hours, according to the kind of bread that is made, the Vienna bread requiring the longer time.

When the proper stage is reached, the baker gives it a second kneading, and after a second trising it is wheeled over to the long mixing board, and there the bakers, in their immaculate white linen clothes and white caps, weigh it out and mould it into loaves which are placed in wooden trays, covered with white linen cloths and allowed to rise once more.

The Vienna and the rye loaves are dusted are placed in wooden trays, covered with white linen cloths and allowed to rise once more. The Vienna and the rye loaves are dusted on the bottom with corn meal and placed on the bottom with corn meal and placed directly on the long peels, which, by the way, look like great pudding sticks, and the peels are thrust into the oven and then withdrawn, leaving the loaves to bake directly on the hot bricks of the oven. The other kinds of bread are put in pans and then placed in the oven by means of the peels. The heat required in the ovens is from 440 to 450 degrees and is kept accurately gauged. An even distribution of the means of the peets. The heat required in the ovens is from 40 to 450 degrees and is kept accurately gauged. An even distribution of the heat is obtained by means of 22 flues in each oven. It takes from 20 to 30 minutes for a baking, and then the loaves are drawn out by means of the peels and placed in big wooden trays and placed on ventilated shelves until they cool off thoroughly.

There is in the building a little laboratory in which the yeast and milk are tested before using. Every man who has anything to do with the making of the bread is required before he goes on duty to take a shower bath in a large bath room in the building and to put on entirely clean clothing. In this way the minimum of danger through germs or dirt infection is gained. Throughout the whole structure the floors are of hard wood, kept scrupulously clean, and every utensil used is thoroughly and frequently cleansed, while the head baker himself is a chemist.

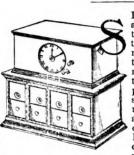

During the coming century, we shall doubtelf is a chemist.

During the coming century, we shall doubtless see more and more of these great co-operative establishments—but at present this—to use a slang phrase—takes the cake.

An Automatic Doctor.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ICK people are very apt to forget to take their medicines on time, particularly at time, particularly at night, and even the trained nurse can-not always be sure to wake up at the proper intervals, if she happens to be much fatigued, to administer the pill or curative draught. Hence the value of a

Hence the value of a contrivance newly patented, which furnishes the reminder and proffers the medicament at the same time, automatically. It rings an alarm when the proper minute arrives, and simultaneously an indicator points to the thing that is to be swallowed.

The arrangement consists of a tiny chest of drawers, which may be placed on a table by the sick-bed, the alarm mechanism being a simple clockwork device attached, with a dial in front. Ordinarily a patient is required to take more clockwork device attached, with a dial in front. Ordinarily a patient is required to take more than one medicine, and the physician gives orders as to the hours at which each one is to be swallowed. Hence the necessity for a plurality of drawers, each one of which is intended to contain a single kind of remedy. Each drawer has on its front an indicator, which is connected with the alarm and with the clock-dial already referred to.

has on its front an indicator, which is connected with the alarm and with the clock-dial already referred to.

Be it supposed that the patient is required to take a pill at nine P. M. When the hands of the clock-dial point to that hour, a bell rings, and simultaneously the indicator on Drawer A points upward. The sleepy nurse, roused to attention, opens that drawer and, taking from it the pill, administers it to the sick person. At eleven o'clock there is another ring, and the indicator shows that Drawer B is the proper one to open. Drawer B contains a little bottle of spirits of nitre, a dose of which is bestowed upon the invalid. May be at one A. M. a third medicine is ordered, which is found in Drawer C; and so on. There are half a dozen drawers to provide for all possible contingencies.

One obvious advantage of this apparatus is that the tired nurse, who in most cases is a member of the family, has a chance to get some sleep between whiles, without running any risk of omitting loses ordered by the doctor. Furthermore, there is no chance of mistake in the kind of medicine given, inasmuch as the instrument is wound up and the series of remedies arranged before the night begins. If a medicine is to be taken every hour, the drawer containing it will show its sign, with the accompanying alarm, at intervals of sixty minutes for a dozen hours.

Teeth and Temperament.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

T has been found T has been found that a particular form of tooth belongs in man to each of the four temperaments. The lymphatic is represented by short and broad teeth, the nervous by long and narrow teeth, the bilious by teeth square ious by teeth square across the edges and corrugated in a peculiar way near the tops and the sanguine by perfectly shaped and symand the sanguine by perfectly shaped and symmetrical teeth.

This matter has been studied out by Dr. W. W. Evans, President of the dental college in Washington, who says that character can be read with accuracy by the teeth. Of course, no such thing as an unmixed temperament is to be found in any human being. There is always a combination, such as nervo-bilious, bilio-sanguine, or what not, and these crosses are indicated in the chewing apparatus. A person with short and broad teeth may be recognized at once as markedly lymphatic—that is to say, inclined to laziness and discouragement. Four out of five suicides are lymphatic.

On the other hand, the nervo-bilious form of teeth indicates plenty of will power and a highly developed mental organization. Adam and Eve, Dr. Evans says, must have had the purely sanguine temperament, which goes with the best possible physical development, and the molars and incisors which they used in eating the forbidden apple must have been of symmetry to correspond.

It is commonly said that man's canine teeth the forbidden apple must have been of symmetry to correspond.

It is commonly said that man's canine teeth prove him to be by nature a carnivorous animal, but this notion is very far from being correct. There are many purely vegetable-eating beasts that have well-developed canines, and of these an example is furnished by the monkeys. Monkeys' canines are much more developed than those of man, but they are exclusively fruit-eaters, using their canines only for fighting. Man himself was originally frugivorous, presumably.

that outlined the root. Absence of an eye-tooth is plainly indicated even in youth by a line extending from the wing of the nose to the engle of the mouth. The late Mr. John C. Ropes, of Boston, owned the finest existing collection of antique busts and pictures of Julius Cassar, and the point of evidence which he regarded as most satisfactory in the identification of some of the disputed likenesses of the great military leader was a deep line on one side of the face, evidently marking the absence of a tooth.

The right to vote comes from the State, and is a

THEY ALL AGREE TO IT.

THEY ALL AGREE TO IT.

He who takes himself to the shores of Northern New England for a season of rest and recreation, finds many peculiar characteristics unknown to other sections of the country. The climate is ever delightful, the recreations of great variety and the scenic display of a magnificence beyond description. The visitor is delighted with the seclusion which penetrates the region, and a most remarkable feature of the New England Coast resorts is that its patronage includes tourists from every state and country as well as from every walk in life. The hotels are without exception commodious and finely appointed hostelries and nothing remains undone that will add to the comfort of the summer sojourner.

The Boston & Maine Railroad reaches every part of Northern New England and the train facilities it offers to all points includes fast and frequent trains equipped with modern Pullman cars. If you are interested in this region send a two-cent stamp to General Passenger Department (7), Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for book on coast resorts.

Sea water is said to contain a small quantity of every known element.

THE LIGHTEST METAL
in the world is Aluminum. You have no idea how well it is adapted to every-day use unless you have one of our Frosted Silver Finish Aluminum Pencils, vest pocket size, patent lead protecting delivery when not in use, can be concealed and prevent lead from breaking. A business man's pencil, a ladies' pencil, or for school children there is no equal. To get our big catalogue of novelties into new hands we will send one for only bc.
Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine,

CURES
Female Trouble, Prolapsus, Internal Pains, Backache,
Infammations Weak
Luncs, Headache, Nervousness, Constipution and other files. No internal attachment; no medicine; no beavy expense; no publicity; nothing objectionable; worn with or without corset; perfectly comfortable.
Invaluable to the Invaluable to the Rexburg, Idaho. J m a living, walking advertisement of Brace. It cured me when all el-ts were falling womb, backache and ess. MRS. D. W

Write today for particulars and Illustr FREE in plain sealed envelope. Addres The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27 Salina, Kans

30 DAYS TRIAL FREE

NEW CURE CONSUMPTION. FOR

SCIENCE WINS.

Mr. J. H. Bailey, Centerville, Miss., writes:

Mr. J. H. Bailey, Centerville, Miss., writes:

"GAINED 30 POUNDS."

"For four years I suffered from weak lungs, which developed signs of consumption. I grew rapidly worse from night sweats and gave up all hope after four physicians failed. I was reduced to a skeleton. Finally, hearing so much about Dr. Sloceun's wonderful discovering so much about Dr. Sloceun's wonderful discovering so much about Dr. Sloceun's wonderful discovering to see I mproved, and in two months was cared. I gained 30 pounds. I want to urge every consumplies to take this marvelous treatment, which cannot fail."

This is, but a gample of the thought of testi-

This is but a sample of the thousands of testimonials sent the famous physician. If you suffer from pulmonary troubles, don't delay and endanger your life when Slocum can save you. He will kill the germ-destroying bacili, heal the raw mucous surfaces, tone the nervous system and build solid healthy flesh.

A Full Free Treatment Sent Free. This offer should be taken advantage of at or by all who suffer from Consumption, Weak Lungs, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, Wasting Away and all Pulmonary Troubles.

WRITE NOW.

If you want to get well quickly write Dr. T. A. Slocum, 96 and 98 Pine Street, New York, giving your full address, and he will at once send you the full free course treatment fresh from his great laboratories. Remember he charges your nothing for the treatment, and only asks your commendation to others after being cured. Please presumably.

The loss of a tooth adds a wrinkle to the face, owing to the shrinking away of the prominence mention Comport when writing the Doctor.

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M., Augusta, Maine.

A GENEROUS OFFER

George B. Wright Discovers a Cure for Lost Manhood and Sends It Free to Every Sufferer Who Will Write for it.

Gratitude is one of the noblest impulses of the human heart and in few instances has this fine quality been so conspicuously exemplified as in the case of George B. Wright of Marshall.

Mr. Wright is a merchant and well known citizen of Marshall, Mich., who was permanently cured of lost manhood and nervous debility after declining health for years. He now devotes his life to helping other men who suffer as he once suffered. Mr. Wright offers to send the medical prescription that effected a cure in his case to every reader of Comfort who is suffering to-day as he suffered. All who will drop him a letter asking for a copy of the prescription will receive it by return mail free

The following editorial by A. N. Tally, M. D., regarding Mr. Wright's prescription for lost manhood appeared in the December issue of the United States Health Reports, published at Washington, D. C.

We, as the highest American authority on all matters of health, sanitation and hygiene, are constantly receiving letters of inquiry about a reliable cure for lost strength in men.

Therefore we have ordered an investigation to be made into the subject and our medical to be made into the subject and our medical staff found there were many so-called cures on the market, but that many were worthless and some actually harmful. Therefore when we came upon the prescription furnished free by George B. Wright, a merchant of Marshall, Mich., we instituted a most thorough laboratory examination and found that its wonderful efficacy depended upon its being exactly compounded according to proper chemical requirements, in order to establish the proper chemical actions and reactions in the human system, and that it should especially, and above all, contain each and every ingredient named in the prescription, otherwise it would be quite in the prescription, otherwise it would be quite inactive and worthless.

Properly mixed and containing everything

Properly mixed and containing everything called for in the prescription, its effect upon the nerve centers is truly wonderful and its nerve tonic properties easily surpassed all ordinary methods of medication.

Among the benefactors of the race may be mentioned the said George B. Wright, inasmuch that he gives this grand discovery free to all who write for it.

Taken according to directions it builds up the weak and restores to full size and vigor the

Taken according to directions it builds up the weak and restores to full size and vigor the nerve muscles. It brings hope and cheer and litts up the discouraged man so that he once more enjoys the beauties of nature and the pleasures of life. Failure in business and love surely falls upon him who is weakened physically and mentally, and this sad condition is at once relieved and a new man made of him who uses this prescription.

Therefore, upon the highly favorable report of our medical staff we extend to George B. Wright's prescription for lost manhood the full editorial and official indorsement of the United States health reports. As certain as wound editorial and official indorsement of the United States health reports. As certain as wound leaves a scar, and as sure as effect follows cause, do men live to repent their follies and indisteretions in weakness and suffering. The tortured sufferer may bear no telltale marks of ruin upon his face to betray his lost manhood. He goes to his grave a human wreck, and never tells of his sufferings for fear of shame. Such mental anguish at times drives him to the verge of desperation, and he is easy prey for those vultures in human form-quack doctors-who hold out alluring hopes of cure only to disappoint, and after robbing him of his money, plunge him into absolute despair.

No one can appreciate the horrors of lost manhood except he who has suffered them. No one can help such sufferers except he who knows a cure and has himself been restored to full manhood. A notable cure of lost manhood in an extreme case was effected in the person of days on the George B. Wright, a music dealer and well known citizen of Marshall, Mich. Mr. Wright for years suffered the agony of lost vital power. He saw his physical power go from him as the result of insidious disease, until he was reduced to a condition of senility, and the best doctors in the country gave him up to die.

Like marry others, he tried the various remedies offered by specialists for the treatment of weaknesses peculiar to men, and it was this limit our ence that drove him to a little study and research for his own benefit.

He asserts that his ten years' suffering, both mentally and physically, was turned to unbounded joy in a single night through a rare combination of medicines that literally made him young again. It is the prescription of this discovery that his enthusiasm leads him to offer free to any man, young or old, who feels that his animation or the fire of ambition has left him and needs something that will brace him up and enable him to be prepared for any undertaking which may present itself.

There is no question but what in his individual case the results were just as described, and it seems quite probable that any man who believes himself to be weak may profit by sending for this free prescription. Many people wonder how he can afford to send this prescription free, but it costs him little to do so and he feels a philanthropic interest in giving weak men an opportunity to cure themselves.

A request to G. B. Wright, music dealer, Box No. 957 Marshall, Mich., for his free prescription, will be promptly and privately complied with by return mail.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN

HERE is a great interest, of course, in the Bicycle Meet in Buffalo this month. The Berlin events occurring in July and the Pan-American races in August, you the Pan-American races in August, you can see that foreign cracks will have ample opportunity to get over here for competition. All the best will come. They will include Jaap Eden of Hol.and; Jacqueline, the French champion; Momo, the Italian champion; Ellegard, the Dane; French Taylor, and other leaders. The paced championships will be decided here, as well as the sprints, and spectators at the Buffalo races will witness some grand combats awheel behind the motors which are so restricted under the new rules that advantage will be with the rider best qualified by natural ability. There is every indication that the quarter-mile board track will be a record breaking affair. The exposition race meet will extend over a fortnight, as already has been stated in Comfort. The first week will be devoted to amateur contests and preliminary heats for the amateur championships. The second week will see the professionals and amateurs together in a grand windup.

The national board of control of the National Cycling Association, has several very good ideas for the betterment of racing and the production of better contests in the direction it has begun on the grand circuit meets, which this year is made a greater feature than ever. In these meets the promoters are forced to include three professional events, one a championship, another a class race and the third a handicap. In the championship, no man is almandicap. The national board of control of the National In these meets the promoters are forced to include three professional events, one a championship, another a class race and the third a handicap. In the championship, no man is allowed to start unless he has a class record of 2m. 10s., which fact alone keeps the thirdraters out of the running. Not more than four men are allowed to compete in any one trial heat, two of whom must qualify for the semi-finals. In this heat the pacing is decided by lot, each man pacing a portion of the distance.

Two men ride in each semi-final, in which the pace is set by singles for three quarters of the distance. Then second or third round of semi-finals are ridden so as to reduce the field down to two men for the final. In the final heat there is no pace-making, the two qualifiers riding and fighting the race as they please.

The class race is of such a limit as to prevent the 2m. 10s. men from competing in the same, while the handicap brings all the men together. In this latter event all entries must be made at least two weeks prior to the date of the race, and the dividing of the heats will be done by the members of the board in charge of the district in which the meet is to be held.

Mrs. Espy, known as Etta Morse Hudders by her readers, recently spoke of "cycling as an enjoyable and health-giving exercise and recreation for women."

When requested to give some suggestions from her own cycling experiences, she said: "An ideal party, in my estimation, consists of two men and two women. Under exceptional circumstances a mixed party of eight members might be desirable but the chances are in favor of the lesser number.

"Congeniality and a close cycling kinship of ideas is the cornerstone of a pleasurable cycling tour. If we don't know a man until we live with him, we don't know a cyclist until we ride with him; therefore in organizing a tourist party, it is a wise preamble to adopt that 'only those whose cycling propensities are well known shall be included."

"If a scorcher steals in unawares, let him go his way; if a laggard ha

"Some lug-gage must be taken if the party is to be several road. Everything but absolute necessities excluded. little we need when is a mistake to carry much on the handle bars. The best plan yet de-vised for carrying luggage is a trian gular fibre case fitted into the dia m o n d frame. One d such case will carry the luggage of two per-sons besides

BICYCLE ROAD IN THE ALPS other accessories. The case is not in the way of the rider, and does not add in any appreciable way to the weight of the wheel or the work of propulsion. A woman's wheel is not adapted for baggage. A very small package is in the way of the rider, and an incomplete. The moral is ob-A very small package is in the way of the rider and an incumbrance. The moral is ob-

"If, at the end of the trip, a change of apparel is desired, it is an easy matter to express a satchel to the destination, but don't make the mistake of scattering your wardrobe at points en route. It will never be where you want it at the time you need it. Again, if the County Commissioners undertake to repair the roads without notifying you, a detour might be necessary which would leave your effects beyond your jurisdiction. The secret of successful touring awheel is to be able to live independently of everything but your present environments. The cyclist must be able to do all the adapting; the roads will not change nor the ently of everything but your present environments. The cyclist must be able to do all the adapting; the roads will not change, nor the wind, nor the weather, and he or she must travel prepared for immediate contingencies. Such riders enjoy all the beauties of the trip and are little troubled by temporary reverses.

"A woman is more hampered than her male companion, both in her mount and clothing; it is therefore necessary for her to dress as comfortably as possible. This outfit meets ordinary requirements: Union undergarments, which should be of light wool, silk, or linen mesh, according to the habit of the rider, but never of cotton material. A corset waist may be necessary to some; heavy stockings of the shade of the costume; low shoes with low heels and toes that are not pointed; knickerbockers of percaline, the shade of the cycling skirt; a shirt waist of tan pongee silk is the most comfortable and will not show soil or dust; a turn down rubber collar of medium height is cooler than linen and can be cleaned whenever necessary; several washable ties can be carried and take but little space. The skirt should be comdown rubber collar of medium height is cooler than linen and can be cleaned whenever necessary; several washable ties can be carried and take but little space. The skirt should be comfortably short and of heavy enough material so that it will not balloon or blow up; in color tans or grays are the most serviceable. The jacket should be neat fitting and with no waste material in the makeup; the Eton style is preferable. A felt hat, broad brimmed enough to shade the eyes, is the most sensible headgear."

In no other country of the Continent of Europe has the automobile and bicycle sport made such strides as in France. In that country roads are as a rule exceeding fine, and always kept in perfect condition. This is especially the case in Southern France, and particularly in the maritime Alpine districts. No other part of France is more favored by cyclists and motorists than the beautiful and unique country around Nice, Monte Carlo, Mentone and Cannes. Nice is the city of flowers, festivities, music, theaters and joy; it is the headquarters of one of the richest French sporting clubs, the "Touring Club." The club has spent thousands of dollars for the improvement of the roads in the "Alpes Maritimes." One of the most remarkable roads designed and built by this club is represented in the accompanying cut. The road leads from Mentone to Sospel, and traverses near the Italian frontier, the notably picturesque Alpine Pass of Braus. Soon after leaving the Pass the road descends toward Sospel, and here it was wherethe Touring Club built the wonderful windings shown in the illustration.

One of the best known inventors in the bicycle field said the other day "There will never be any successor to the bicycle, because there can never be a less amount of material put together with greater skill that will appear.

one of the best known inventors in the bicycle field said the other day "There will never be any successor to the bicycle, because there can never be a less amount of material put together with greater skill that will answer the purpose of human locomotion with greater pleasure and ease or at less original cost and current expense to the rider. To consider its lightness, its delicate appearance of beauty, strength and endurance, the price at which it is sold, the uses it serves and the pleasure and health it gives the rider, it must unhesitatingly be pronounced the consummate achievement of be pronounced the consummate achievement of our mechanical development and the most beneficent contribution that invention has made to civilization. It is so unique and superlatively perfect that it has no rival and can have no successor."

Thousands of riders who have deveted con-

Thousands of riders who have devoted considerable time to other sport during the last three years have become in a measure tired of > fancies, and are return-ing to wheeling. The use of the bicycle as a conven-ience is not ience is not only de-monstrated by the use to which it is put daily by hunis shown by the way in which golf-ers and ten-Minie rifles were invented by M. Minie, of Vincennes, in 1833.

Yellow fever first made its appearance in the United States at Philadelphia in 1699.

Recent Patents.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

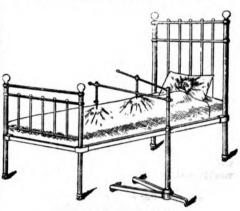

ERVOUS people are ERVOUS people are apt to be more or less annoyed by their bed-clothes, which have a way of sticking to one, while often their weight is trouble-some. In order to do away with this discomfort, a Chicago man, Chas. M. Brennan, has just patented; an apparatus for susan apparatus for suspending the drapery of the couch in such manner that it does not come into contact a manner that it does not come into contact with the individual therein reposing. The contrivance has the form of a stand, to be placed by the bed, having arms that extend over the latter in such a way as to grasp the clothes at two or more points and lift them to any requisite height. A few inches, of course, are all that is needed. Thus the sleeper may turn over and toss about as much as he likes without feeling the disagreeable contact of sheet or blanket.

of sheet or blanket.

Another notable invention is credited to Luke Rawlings, of Dallas, Iowa. It is intended to take the place of the basket or other receptacle commonly carried by cotton pickers in the fields. Of course it is an inconvenience to be obliged to lug a basket, about, also making tacle commonly carried by cotton pickers in the fields. Of course it is an inconvenience to be obliged to lug a basket about, also making the process of picking more slow, and this patentee proposes to equip each negro at harvest time with a species of coat which is in reality a pair of huge bags. The affair, being hung over the shoulders, is no trouble to carry, and the wearer puts the fresh picked cotton into the bags by the same action as that used by a man who places something in the inside pocket of his coat to right or left. When the bags are full they are unbuttoned at the bottom, thus dumping their contents into a larger receptadumping their contents into a larger recepta-cle.

SUSPENDED BEDCLOTHES.

Joseph Conley, of Mound City, Mo., has de-vised a species of overcont that is convertible into a hammock when desired. For a soldier's use it is particularly adapted, inasmuch as the cape and skirts may be transformed into a knapsack at a moment's notice. When the hammock is wanted the wearer of the coat has only to detach the cape from the latter and fast-en it to the lower edge of the skirt. The col-only to detach the cape from the latter and fasten it to the lower edge of the skirt. The collar of the coat and the collar of the cape are each of them provided with a strong ring, and these rings serve for suspending the hammock between two properly driven stakes.

People at sea are often worried about their valuables, and a long-felt want will be met by an invention newly patented by George F. Abraham, of Baltimore. It is a sea safe and life buoy combined, and one of its peculiarities is a series of external ribs, each of which is an air chamber. There is a door in the side of the

COMBINATION COAT AND HAMMOCK.

by the use to which it is put daily by h undreds of thousands in annihilating distance in the transaction of business, but also in the way it is used as a means of conveyance by lovers of other sports than wheeling carrying them to and from the scenes of their activities. This is shown by he wants.

BICYCLE builder of Philadelphia took his family, consisting of his wife and four children, whose ages ranged from eighteen months to seven years, on a novel vacation trip last summer. He had built a wheel weighing eighty-five pounds which would carry six people. On this the entire family was ranged, and their baggage was suspended from the gearing in convenient places. This consisted of several bundles, a tent. a repair kit, cooking utensils, and a bag containing food. They never attempted to cover more than twenty miles a day, and rested in their tent during the middle of every day.

Comfort.

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER. TERMS: 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

CRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and use dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered, and use to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us. OF OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure offering change in address, be sure unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of subsequences as unless you do.

r was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages, e than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider m the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building. New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building

Guaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES, Each and Every Issue,

Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

The free rural mail deliveries are in full operation this month. Many thousands of people will get COMFORT nearer to their homes than ever before in their lives.

The "silly season" for the foreign newspapers is due. A missing word contest was one hot weather development that obtained great favor when imported to this country. As it is "all the world" stands gaping to know "what next"?

Canada is being explored this year by the curious "Pan-American". As the only monarchial disposed land in the "Pan" it enjoys a sad distinction. The annexationists can cross the line and look matters over this year at ex-

Scientists have lately been experimenting to prove that certain insects like the beetle, caterpillar, bees and even toads are fair barometers. They have watched these insects grow grave or gay as the weather was good or ill. It is quite unnecessary to make such a demonstration to the sufferer from rheumatism or neuralgia. These people have believed for some time that coming events in weather cast their shadows before-that life was a better barometer than chemicals.

The agitations in Philadelphia over the trolley franchise may suggest to state legislatures some needed reforms in the laws regulating such matters. The franchise should be granted to the company who will give the lowest fare and the longest ride for a single fare. It is all very well to offer millions to a city for the right to operate cars but this only lessens the rate of taxation and the taxes are levied upon the richer class of citizens. It is this class who probably use the transit mediums least and can best afford to pay high fares. The enormous development of the trolley lines furnishes a new problem both in laws regulating them and on the money side.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals must look with approval upon the little sunshades and sunbonnets that horses wear this summer. The ordinary kind-hearted person is divided between approbation and amusement. There is an absurd contrast between the airy little sun parasol perched upon the top of the head and the long serious jowl of the horse. The bonnets are almost entirely ned to the serious respectable animal who belong in the working classes. These pace slowly along with a steady matter of fact acceptance of life's burdens while above this serious face is the frivolous little bright colored parasol.

We are commencing to realize that for a few months in the year America has a tropical climate. The Panama hats and shirt waists of the men encroach upon woman's domain in two directions. People who live in the tropics get only a slight degree more heat than the average city man and yet the difference in dress between an American and the white men in India is too great to wonder about. The last two summers have witnessed a radical change in the dress of men. The attempt to rival a woman's millinery bill has made the Panama hat a topic for even more discussion than the shirt waist. The average price is about ten dollars but one hundred dollars is sometimes whispered as an extravagant possibility. Woman gave up sole right and title to the shirt waist rather reluctantly but 'Et-tu-Bruteism" that the expensive Panamas have brought.

August almost seems a synonym for vacation. It certainly seems to spell heat and discomfort. There are many reasons why a vacation may bring more enjoyment at some other time. It is well known that the person who is occupied has less time for mental flurry over the state of the thermometer than the idle rerson who can measure his discomfort by degrees. If it is as hot as our tropical climate will allow, one is bound to be uncomfortable whether "taking a vacation" or working. There must be change of scene as the first factor in rest and there must be physical comfort as the second factor. The result is enjoyment. Extreme heat and physical comfort can not go together so that the second factor of the vacation is often a zero. Many people would gain more real rest by postponing vacations until the autumn or even the winter. Then the change of scene could be gained and all the enjoyment possible derived from it.

The National Health League is one of the many new altruistic movements. They believe that the best results will be obtained only when trained and scientific investigation is pursued as to the means of preserving health. They would establish health colleges all over the land where the main force of study shall be laid on the maintenance of health. All this is significant of the great interest taken in the general subject of health. One millionaire gives libraries to the people while another founds a college for the careful study of disease. The "sound mind in a sound body" may be realized through the result of these two benefactions. Part of the money that is to produce more careful study of disease might be given to the work of the Health League. The Chinese have been enforcing the fundamental idea of the Health League for they pay the physician while they are well and cease payments as soon as they become ill. Such a course here might succeed in establishing the conditions that the Health League advocate.

The question of old age pensions is being seriously treated by many of the most advanced thinkers of the age. New Zealand is the leader in all advanced ideas of government and the plan has proven successful there. The French government has just adopted the plan of pensioning people over sixty-five years of age. The details of the plan have not been fully worked out. The method of collecting the money and the proper distribution of it present serious economic problems. Thoughtlessly administered, the plan might work infinite harm in encouraging careless expenditure and lack of careful forethought. Joseph Chamberlain has proposed such pension measures on the part of the English government. Large railroad corporations in this country have voluntarily put in force old age pensions. Andrew Carnegie has perfected such a scheme among his employees. The act on the part of the French government is pronounced as great a departure in economic history as the French Revolution was in political history. Old age should be a time of peace, not of worry over the actual means of livelihood.

The pessimist often asks if the world grows any better as the centuries pass. It must be admitted that it grows kinder. There is a sensitiveness to the happiness or suffering of our fellow-beings that was not known over a hundred years ago. The man of millions was unknown then but the cities are full of them today and the posspapers of provide the manner. hundred years ago. The man of millions was unknown then but the cities are full of them today and the newspapers chronicle the manner in which the millions are spent for the good of humanity. One of the latest methods of philanthropy has been the establishment of floating hotels. A New York man has chartered three large ships. He proposes to extend the benefit of his scheme to the inhabitants of the city where he made his money. A ship load of women and children are to be taken out, given a good dinner on board and a cool night's rest. One of the ships is to sail every night as business houses close, to give a good dinner on board and to return to the dock in time for the next day's work. Another feature of the scheme is to take families to some point like Newport or Atlantic City for a Sunday. The plan will give a pleasant outing and change to hundreds who otherwise would find no opportunity to leave the city. It is practical and philanthropical. So many of the plans of wealthy philanthropists aim to satisfy the spiritual and esthetic needs of less favored mortals that a practical planning for physical rest and pleasure seems almost an innovation. It is a wise one. The tired body cramps the mind and soul. Rest and recreation seems entirely physical but they react upon the higher faculties in the strongest manner. er faculties in the strongest manner.

"Conservation" and "precedent" seem to be terms that may become obsolete in the sense of a political break. Our car of progress is rushing so fast that tradition falls before it as did ing so fast that tradition falls before it as did the victims before the car of the old pagan god. We are assured that new conditions demand new measures and that the precedents established in the early days when the land of Washington was bounded by the Mississippi and the ocean will not apply to a nation that has expanded beyond that "pent up Utica." There is a growing agitation of a third term for the presidency. The two term limit is of course wholly a matter of precedent. The Constitution does not limit the number of terms a president may serve. Mexico has given us an example of a republic in name and a constitutional monarchy in fact. Washington prevented the possible monarchial tendency by refusing a third term. This has been as strong a law as a third term. This has been as strong a law as precedent could establish. When the discus-sion over a third term for General Grant was at its height Congress passed a resolution: "Resolved, that in the opinion of this house, the precedent established by Washington and other presidents in retiring from the Presidential office after their second term, has become by miverage consumptions of severage of the second servers. universal concurrence a system of government. she has welcomed the chance at reprisal and land that any departure from the time honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions." There may be many sound arguments of the practical value of three terms but the American practical value of three terms but the American people are hardly ready for new century interpretation of the traditions of government. A third term proposition would arouse all the conservatism of the nation in opposition.

MUSICAL HANDBOOK FREE.

Any one thinking of buying a musical instru-ment can learn all about the different styles and prices, and how each instrument is made and also save a great deal of money by sending to Lyon & Healy, 91 Adams St., Chicago, for one of their Musical Handbooks (free).

If you suffer from Epileptic Fits, Falling Sickness or St. Vitus' Dance, or have children or friends that do so, my New Discovery will CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for my FREE REFIEDIES and try them. They have cured thousands where everything else falled. Sent absolutely free with complete directions, express prepaid. Please give AGE and full address. DR. W. H. MAY, 94 Pine Street, New York City.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism. * COOD PAPER * * FULL SIZE *

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for thirty cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are household words a over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000,000 copies sold colored titles — and is in every way first-class, at LIST OF THE PIECES O NO. PIANO OR ORGAN. 313 Aida Transcription Falk	of worthy of your home. 8,000,000 copies sold?

No. PIANO OR ORGAN.	No. VC7CE AND PIANO OR ORGAN.
No. PIANO OR ORGAN. 313 Aida Transcription Falk 317 Ail for Thee Waltzes Waldteufel 165 American Liberty March Cook 101 Ancients Abroad, March—Two Step Cook 319 Angel's Dream, Op. 36. Lange 247 Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss 181 Auld Lang Syne. Variations Durkee 187 Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1 Pacher Pacher 215 Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive Anderson 179 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Streads 227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Streads	236 Across the Bridge 316 Are you lonely now my darling? Cho. Rulledge 260 At Noontide Hill 27 Avenuria Fran Cavalleria Rusticana Macconi
101 Ancients Abroad, March—Two Step Cook	27 AveMaria, From Cavalleria Rusticana Mascagni
247 Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss	140 Beacon Light of Home Estabrooke 134 Beautiful Moonlight. Duet Glover 238 Bells of Seville
187 Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1 Pacher	162 Ben Bolt, of "Trilby " fame Kneass
179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands Streabbog	162 Ben Bolt. of '' Trilby '' fame
213 Black Hawk Waltzes	200 Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow Carcu
221 Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans. Richards 221 Bluebird Echo Polka. Morrison	268 Bride Bells
199 Boston Commandery March Carter 109 Bridal March from Lohengrin Wagner	192 CanYou, Sweetheart, Keepa Secret? Estabrooke 214 Childhood's Happy Hours . Dinsmore
229 Bryan and Sewall March	138 Christmas Carol Turner 190 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schumann
179 Beauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hands Streubbog 227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Strauss 213 Black Hawk Waltzes Walsh 257 Blue Bells of Scotland. Trans. Richards 221 Bluebird Echo Polka Morrison 199 Boston Commandery March Carter 109 Bridal March from Lollengrin Wagner 321 Brunette Waltz Brayan and Sewall March Noles 307 Cavalry Parade Polka Sampson Mascagni 255 Cavaleria Rusticana. Four hands. 289 Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni 133 Cadences and Scales in all Keys Czerny 297 Chatelaine, La Menuet Lange	134 Beautiful Moonlight. Duet Glover 135 Bells of Seville 162 Ben Rolt. of 'Trilby 'fame Kaeus 126 Bite Eyes Elson 126 Boylood Days. Chorus Elson 1270 Bridge, The. Words by Longfellow Carcu 126 Bride Bells 1276 Brown Eyed Bessie Lee. Chorus Arbuckle 192 Can You, Sweetheart, Keepa Secret? Estabrooke 192 Can You, Sweetheart, Keepa Secret? Estabrooke 193 Christmas Carol 138 Christmas Carol 139 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schuman 139 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schuman 130 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schuman 130 Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Schuman 131 Coon Breach of Promise. Cake walk Blake 132 Cow Bells. The. Boylood's Recollection Grumm 134 Crown of Glory Four
289 Cavaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo Mascagni 133 Cadences and Scales in all Keys . Czerny	92 Cow Bells. The. Boyhood's Recollection Grimm 294 Crown of Glory Tours
237 Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands Behr	250 Darling I Shall Miss You Cohen
145 Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step Missud 217 Clevoland's March Noles 81 Coming from the Races Galop Wheeler 269 Coppelia, Valse Lente Debbes 211 Corn Flower Waltzes Coote. Jr 71 Crystal Dew Waltz Durkee 235 Day Dawn Polka Cook Marcel 287 Diamond Valley Waltz Morehouse 299 Eastlake Waltz Morehouse 129 Electric Light Galop Durkee 303 Edelweiss Hennis Hennis Hennis Marcel 280 Eastlake Waltz Morehouse M	250 Darling I Shall Miss You
81 Coming from the Races Galop Wheeler 269 Coppelia. Valse Lente Deibles	70 Dear Heart. We're Growing Old . Estabrooke 302 Dear Little Heart 'Neath the Daisies Rutledge
211 Corn Flower Waltzes Coote, Jr 71 Crystal Dew Waltz Durkee	302 Dear Little Heart 'Neath the Daisies Rutledge 304 Did You Ever Call Me Darling?
235 Day Dawn Polka	290 Dream of Love
287 Diamond Valley Waltz Morehouse	290 Dream of Love Elson 2 Curschmans 256 Dwelling with the Angels Chorus Turner 50 Easter Eve. Sacred Gound
117 Echoing Trumpets March Notes	220 Ever Sweet is Thy Memory Hosfeld
121 Electric Light Galop Durkee	318 Falling Star Pinsuti 180 Far Away 182 Father is Drinking Again. Temperance
155 Evergreen Waltz Stoddavd 241 Fantastic Schottische	152 Flag of Our Country. Patriotic Mathiet
29 Fatinitza Galop . Ludwig 23 Faust. Selections . Durkee	180 Far Away 182 Father is Drinking Again. Temperance 152 Flag of Our Country. Patriotic Mathiet 156 Flag The Quartette For 144 Flirting in the Starlight Delanc 28 Flossie. Waltz Song Cohen 28 For a Dream's Sake Cone
155 Evergreen Waltz	138 For a Dream's Sake . Coven
77 Fifth Nocturne . Leybach 233 Flitting in the Starlight. Waltz . Lasaide 239 Flower Song. Op. 39. Lange 283 Forestville Waltz . Zahn 277 Freischutz. Selections . Durkce 177 Frolic of the Frogs . Walson 183 Golden Rain. Nocturne . Cloy 147 Grand Commandery March—Two Step Missud 281 Heel and Toe Polka . Faust	138 For a Dream's Sake 66 For You We are Praying at Home 166 From our Home the Loved are Going 179 Percentage 189 Gathered Roses 189 Property
277 Freischutz. Selections . Durkee
183 Golden Rain. Nocturne	202 Give a Kiss to Me 178 God Bless My Kind Old Mother
281 Heel and Toe Polka Faust	104 Golden Moon 107
173 Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes Jewell	272 How can I Leave Thee. Duet . Greenwood
139 Home, Sweet Home. Transcription . Stack 153 Jenny Lind polka Four hands Muller	184 1 Can't Forget the Happy Past Skelly 248 In Shadowland
195 Leap Year Schottische Kahn	296 It Is a Legend Old Offenback
253 Le Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka Behr 159 Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop Durkee	184 1 Can't Forget the Happy Past Skelly 248 In Shadowland Pinsui 266 In Summer Time Marsiala 296 It Is a Legend Old Offenback 188 In the Starlight Duet Glore 28 Juanita Bailad May 242 Kathleen Mayourneen Crouch 196 Killarney Baile 252 Baile 264 Baile 265 Baile 265 Baile 266 Baile 266 Baile 266 Baile 267 Baile 268 Baile 268 Baile 268 Baile 269 Baile 260 Baile 261 Baile 262 Baile 263 Baile 264 Baile 265 Baile 266 Baile 267 Baile 268 Baile 268 Baile 268 Baile 268 Baile 269 Baile 260 Bail
183 Golden Rain. Nocturne Cloy	196 Killarney
243 Love's Dreamland Waltzes Roeder 99 Maiden 's Prayer, The Badarzewske	196 Killarney Baile 132 Kiss me, but don't say goodbye Rulledge 130 Kiss that bound my Heart to thine Keil 164 Larboard Watch. Duet Williams 164 Larboard Sullivan Sullivan
240 Martha Selections Johnson 207 May Bre ezes. Four hands Krug	164
263 May Day Schottische	48 Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet . Estabroole
55 Memorial Day March	48 Little Roy Blue. Solo or Duet . Estabroote 154 Little Voices at the Door
6! Morning Star Waltz Zahn 201 Music Box, The. Caprice Liebich	308 Mamie
305 Napoleon	234 Margaretta . Bale 112 Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard . Keefer 230 Memories of my Mother . Chorus
305 Napoleon. Parlou 87 National Anthems of Eight Great Nations 175 National Songs of America. Blake	112 Massa's Sleeping in de Churchyard Aeric 230 Memories of my Mother. Chorus Allen 172 Mother's Welcome at the Door 222 Mustical Dialogue. Duet Stabrooke 232 Must the Sweet Tie that binds Estabrooke 76 My Home by the Old Mill Offilollors 10 My Little Lost Irene Dank
135 Nightingale's Trill, op. 81 Kullak 271 Ocean Wayes Waltz	76 My Home by the Old Mil 1 C'llalloras
123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription . Blake	110 My Little Lost Irene . Danks
273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka . Strauss	216 Oh. Sing Again that Gentle Strain Diasmore 228 Old Folks at Home (Swapee Ribber) Foster
87 National Anthems of Eight Great Nations 175 National Songs of America Blake 135 Nightingale's Trill, op. 81 Kullak 271 Ocean Waves Waltz 123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription 171 Old Ocken Bucket. The. Variations 273 One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz Binsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 101 Over the Waves Waltz Rosas	270 Old Village Church
191 Over the Waves Waltz . Rosas 79 Piease Do Waltz	258 Out on the Deep Lohr
193 Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppe) Brunner Mattei	160 Outcast, An. Character Song Fritz 174 Parted from our Dear Ones . Keller
167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March Blake 143 Richmond March—two-step Missud	306 Peace to Thy Spirit. Duet Verdi 314 Peal of the Village Bell. Chorus
245 Rustic Waltz	254 Picture of My Mother, The 148 Poor Girl didn't know. Comic. Cooke Cooke
149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step 189 Schubert's Serenade, Transcription List	274 Private Tommy Atkins
309 Shepherd Boy. Idylle	208 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep Knight Lagrange Chaminade Chaminade
169 Smith's (General) March Martin	80 See Those Living Pictures
95 Spirit Lake Waltz Simons	194 She Sleeps among the Daisies . Dinsmore 124 Softly shine the Stars of Evening Dinsmore
Stanbania Polka Fahrbach	210 Son's Return, The
73 Storm Mazurka Keefer	278 Summer Shower Marzials
200 Sweet Long Ago Transcription Diaxe	206 There's Sure to be a Way . Delano
115 Tornado Galop 103 Trifet's Grand March, op. 182 Wede	292 Titania's Cradle . Lehmann
113 Under the Double Eagle March Wagner	38 True to the Last
7 Visions of Light. Waltz . Allen	252 Warrior Bold Waves Saying? Duet Glover
203 Warblings at Eve
261 Wedding March . Mendelssohn
301 Yacht Waltz	300 Yellow Roses
105 Zephyr Waltz . Bragg	322 Zelma Lee. Chorus
UUN I FUKGE cents; that for this you	to pay for this sheet music is only thirty u get ten pieces, not one; that it is sent to any the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments	that the instrumental pieces give the bass as mall as malader that this sheet music is sone!	to any published. Also don't forget to make the vocal pieces have full plane accompanients; that the instrumental pieces give the wall as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES.

Any 10 for 30 cents. Any 21 for 60 cents Any 40 for $1.00. Any 100 for $2.50.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepai

Good Only Until Sept. 10.

Owing to change of law, making an increase in postal rates, an SPECIAL OFFER advance in price of this Music will take place Sept. 10th. Until then we will supply as above. After that the price will be much higher. Don't fail to order at once as this is positively the last chance to secure good full size Music so low-

If you will induce your friends to subscribe to COMFORT we will give you Music Free for your trouble. Send 15c. and one name for a 6 months' subscription and we will mail you any six pieces of music you may select, or get one new yearly subscriber for 25c. and we will send you any 10 pieces in the list postpaid.

Address COMFORT, Music Dept., Augusta. Maine.

PREMIUM OFFER.

Y SHRINERS

The Need of More Education in

The mistake made by writers in the daily ess are to a musician often of an amusing aracter and form one of the strongest possicharacter and form one of the strongest possible arguments for more general education in music and in musical terms by the general public. Even the best informed people in other matters are strangely ignorant of the most common things in the musical art. Many persons who would blush to confess their ignorance of the meaning of the Magna Charta, or the date of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, or facts in physiology and chemistry as sciences, will make mistakes about the art of music which are almost painful in ignorance and absurdities, the existence of which are entirely unknown to the writer or speaker of them.

of them.

The reporters on the press work are generally exceedingly careful to verify and make exact statements when writing of other sciences; but when recording musical matters no gibberish or ignorance is too coarse to be written of this beautiful art, and under the cover of a lot of wrongly applied technical terms what is supposed to be expert criticism is written for the press. It would seem that the writers thought their readers to be even more ignorant than themselves and that by a liberal sprinkling of musical terms of more or less value, they could impress the reader with the idea that they really had grand knowledge of the art itself.

These thoughts come to COMFORT by looking over an old paper and the eye being attracted by an account of the home-coming of Admiral Dewey, a couple of years ago. The article is a striking example of the nonsense which is commonly written anent musical events of any kind, and is chiefly noticeable as being the Associated Press dispatch which was sent to all the daily papers throughout the country and writers in the metropolis was respe Here is what he wrote in one part

"As the Olympia came abreast of the Chicago the guard presented arms, the drums gave four ruffles, the trumpets four flourishes, and the band played "Home, Sweet Home," dwelling with swelling cadenza upon the minor bars. The officers at the waist raised their gold-bound beavers and the sailors cheered, etc."

It is almost kindness to say that from the musical standpoint the above is nonsense and almost idiotic. Let us look it over together and see if this is not so. In the first place "Home, Sweet Home" is written in the major key, and there are no minor bars in it. Then we have something about the cadenza. Any we have something about the cadenza. Any musical student will tell at a glance that there is no cadenza in the song. Even if there were, a child in music would know that it would be played by itself and not as an accompaniment to what the writer is pleased to call "minor bars." In fact, it seems most evident that in his desire to make a pretty sentence the writer simply sacrificed facts to pleasing sound, whether his writing made any sense or not.

It would have been as proper to have written that "Admiral Dewey stood gracefully upon his left head and his ears twinkled mischievously." Any reader would at once recognize the nonsense of such an expression and a writer guilty of such nonsense would lose his place, but about music it seems as if anything could be said with impunity, no matter how little sense there may be in the formation.

COMFORT has written the above because it believes the time has come to call attention to

The study of music, once constudied the art. fined to the favored few, is now almost as common as the public school system itself. The growing generation generally have from a rudimentary to a good education in music and know precisely what musical terms mean and how they should be used.

It is to be hoped that the day is soon at hand that will have attained the point that people will consider it essential to a liberal education to have a fair knowledge of the technical and scientific part of music. A point where one would be as ashamed to admit that he or she knew pothing of music as the same person. knew nothing of music, as the same person would be now to admit he or she knew nothing of history.

How to Save Your Money.

The postal authorities of the country have recently made a rule which puts a new classification of postage rates upon sheet music sent by the publishers. The new rate is considera-bly higher than what has been paid heretofore. Like all such taxes the advance indirectly comes from the purchasers' pocket, in that prices have to be raised to meet the new expense. Under the generous music offer made by Comfort for months past, great quantities of sheet music has been sent to subscribers at of sheet music has been sent to subscribers at practically cost of manufacture. The price was also based on the present postal rates which are to be changed at an early date. After the new rate is put in force to meet expenses it will be necessary to add enough to the price to meet the new postage, as we cannot afford to send this music at actual loss, as would be the case were we to continue present prices. Therefore we give notice that in a very short time we shall raise the price made in the offer; so that every one interested in music should take advantage of the present offer while it is still available. Remember that there will be a sharp advance in a short time, but if you write at once the offer will still hold good as you find it in another column. You can save money by stocking up with a lot of this music before the higher prices come in. Be sure to write at once as we cannot tell how soon we shall have to add the new postage rates to the present prices, but we cannot extend time beyond September 10th.

This Refers to You.

Goethe said that a man should read a little Goethe said that a man should read a little poetry, see a fine picture and hear a piece of good music every day of his life to cultivate the sense of beauty that God has planted in every human soul. No excuse can be given that a piece of good music cannot be had for every day in the year. Rich and poor alike can take advantage of COMFORT'S music offer on another page, which gives you the best sheet music at practically cost of postage and mailing.

With the growth of musical culture in America the people demand a better class of music. The day is not far distant when we shall have music as distinctively American as there is now German or Italian.

The higher rate of postage on music will make the price in our offer a little higher soon; but the cost of sheet music, even with that disadvantage, will cost you less by a large sum than if you purchase at stores.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

VERY housewife en-joys a delicate odor in her house, particular-ly in the chambers. This is an easy matter, This is an easy matter, for whether one lives in the country or the city, rose leaves and spices are always obtainable. We give a very good recipe for the proportions of each to be used in a potpourri, and the method of preservation.

method of preservation.

Have the leaves partly dried, using rose leaves, violets, orange blossoms, verbena and sweet marjoram. Anything, in fact, that gives a pleasant odor. Put blossoms and leaves into a jar having a close-fitting cover, in layers, alternately, with a sprinkling of salt. Use about one ounce salt to the pound. Leave in a cool, dark place for a month, stirring every day. Then add spices—cinnamon, cloves, orris root and dried orange and lemon peel. For each quart of dry material have ready a cup of alcohol. Put the materials into rose jars in layers, sprinkling each layer with alcohol. Cover and let stand, undisturbed, for a month, when it will be fully preserved, with a fragrant, spicy odor that will remain in good condition for years.

We give a suggestion for a novel punch bowl spicy odor that will remain in good condition for years.

We give a suggestion for a novel punch bowl which will appeal to those who are looking for table decorations a little out of the ordinary.

Get a block of clear ice that will fit into a large dripping pan. The pan should have a hole in it, to which a tube has been soldered. This tube conducts the drippings to a pan under the table on which it rests.

With an ice pick and hot flat irons a hollow of right size may be shaped, and into this is poured the poured the punch, which is kept de-lightfully cool in its frigid bed. The pan should be decorated with ferns and flowers, so it will not be seen. If used on a dining table, an extra leaf of cheap wood should be obtained, and a hole made through which the tube can pass to a

LEMON, POTATO AND RADISH GARNISHES. an under he table, which should, of course, be emptied

A temperance drink that resembles cham-A temperance drink that resembles champagne is compounded as follows: Take a good sized lemon, an ounce of ginger root, a pound and a half of white sugar, one ounce of tartaric acid, one gill of yeast, and two and a half gallons of water. Bruise the ginger, slice the lemon, pour boiling water over them, and when it has cooled to lukewarmness add the yeast and let it stand in the sun all day. In the evening put it into bottles and cork tight. It may be used in a couple of days.

it into bottles and cork tight. It may be used in a couple of days.

We have been requested to give a recipe for Pumpernickle, which is made as follows:

Make a batter at night of one cup each of milk that has been heated to the scalding point and boiling water, two level teaspoons lard, one-third teaspoon sugar, one and one-half level teaspoons salt, one yeast cake dissolved in one-fourth cup warm water, and three cups of flour. In two or three hours the batter will be light; then stir in one tablespoon of caraway seed and rye meal until stiff enough to knead; let rise over night. Knead and shape into a round loaf: when risen to twice its original round loaf; when risen to twice its original size bake one hour.

we have illustrated a few garnishes, this month, to show what can be done in that line with care and an eye to general attractiveness. We simply give the garnishes themselves. Of course each garnish is used according to the food served. Parsley is in universal use as a garnish, and is also used in connection with lemon, tomato and radishes—slices of lemon, with a star cut from a slice of pickled beet is a pretty garnish for fish, with touches of parsley at either end of the platter. Butterflies, as shown in the illustration are cut from lemon,—also the baskets, in which is usually served tartar sauce for smelts or scallops. Radishes are cut so that the thin strips roll back and look like a rose bud. These should be placed in ice water for two or three hours before using, after being cut, as is curled celery. Potato in ice water for two or three hours before using, after being cut, as is curled celery. Potato straws, or julienne potato, makes a pretty garnish around the edge of a large platter on which a whole fish is served. Pyramids are made of small potato balls with a sprig of parsley on top. These should be served on a platter by themselves, or individually, so that there would be no danger of breaking the pyramid. pyramid.

Eggs are used for garnishes, particularly with salads. Hard boiled, with the whites cut in rings and the yolks put through the ricer, or with the whites cut in long petals and arranged like a daisy, and the yolks used for the whipped cream is used largely for desserts. It may be colored, after being whipped, with a few drops of coloring liquid used for cooking purposes and so add materially to the appearance of even a dish of sliced fruit, or a plain

Every one is troubled more or less with having the cream sour, in the very hot months. What to do with sour cream is a problem to some, so we give a few recipes wherein it may be used with good effect.

SOUR CREAM BISCUITS.

SOUR CREAM BISCUITS.

One cup flour, measured before sifting. One-half cup sour cream; one-fourth cup sweet milk; one level teaspoon baking powder; one-half teaspoon soda; one-third teaspoon salt. Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt into a mixing bowl. Add cream in which the soda has been dissolved, and then the milk. Mix smooth and roll out, using as little flour as possible. Roll one inch thick, cut out and bake about ten minutes in a hot oven.

SOUR CREAM GINGERBREAD.

SOUR CREAM GINGERBREAD.

Three-fourths cup sour cream; one-half cup molasses; one-half cup granulated sugar; two cups flour; two eggs; heaping teaspoon soda; one tablespoon ginger; dessert spoonful cinnamon. Beat together the eggs, sugar and molasses. Add half the cream and dissolve the soda in the remainder, after which beat all lightly together. Sift in the flour, ginger and cinnamon and stir until smooth. Bake about half an hour in a moderate oven.

SOUR CREAM SPICE CAKE.

Beat the yolks of two eggs and one whole egg, add three-fourths cup white sugar and then three-fourths cup sour cream in which one-half teaspoon soda has been dissolved. Sift into the mixture two cups flour and one teaspoon baking powder. Add one teaspoon each of clove, cinnamon and mace. Stir until smooth and bake in three layers in a moderately hot oven.

FILLING.

Add to the whites of two eggs one-quarter cup of sweet cream or rich milk, and stir into the mixture confectioner's sugar, until an icing has been obtained of such consistency that a little spread upon the cake and scored with a knife-blade will leave a perfectly defined parting. Flavor with vanilla and spread between layers and upon top of cake when cold. Score top fresting with knife-blade, marking pieces of the proper size for serving.

The recipe given above makes a lost cake of the proper size for serving.

The recipe given above makes a loaf cake, omitting the spices and adding either a cup of seeded raisins, or broken pecan meats, which should be thrown loosely into the sifted flour, and the batter then thoroughly beaten before it is disposed in the pans. It will make two brick-shaped loaves, which, when cold, should be spread with confectioner's icing. Allow a cupful of confectioner's sugar to each loaf, adding hot water, a little at a time, until the icing will spread nicely.

SOUR CREAM NUT CAKE.

SOUR CREAM NUT CAKE.

Two eggs; granulated sugar; onesugar; one-half cup of rich sour cream; two cups of flour measured before sifting; one-half tea-spoonful of bakin g-powder; a pinch of salt.

Beat the eggs till whites and yolks are well blended, and add sugar. Dissolve the soda in cream, stirring it then into the eggs and sugar. Sift into the mixture the flour, baking-powder and salt, and beat well together. Bake in three layer cake tins. FILLING.

One cup of pecan or walnut meats run through meat-chopper, or crushed with rolling-pin on bread-board; one small egg; three-fourths cup of confectioner's sugar; one-half cup of sour cream; a few drops of vanilla.

Beat the egg well, white and yolk together; add the sugar and nut meats, and last of all the cream and vanilla, stirring it then only enough to mix all together. Spread between the layers and over the top of cake when cold.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female dis-eases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucor-rhoea, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

$20 A WEEK And Expenses for men and women with rig to introduce our Poultry Remedy. Excelsior Mfg. Co., Parsons, Kans LADIES to do piece work at their homes. We furnish all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly. Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

Shaving Set packed in a case eight laches long, six inches which you are to soll and research and the money ($1.50) to us and the will send you, all charges paid, the elegant consists of lacked and five inches high. The combination consists of lacked and five inches high. The combination consists of lacked lacked and five inches high. Reversible, Canvass-back, Nickle-hung, Ebonized handle Razor Strop, value $1.00; I Real China Shaving Mug; I Cake Star Shaving Soap; I Best Bristle, large handle Lather Brush; I Cake Perfumed Sump Magnesia; I Stick rich perfumed Commette, making a grand $5.00 combination. Every man should have an outfit in the house for emergency use. Every Woman should see to it that either her Father, her Husband, her Brother or her Sweetheart has one of these outfits. They make the best Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in six minutes. Address

THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Ber 1229, Augusta, Maine, Science and the Baby.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HIS is the age of the scientifically reared infant, and many a baby is carried successfully through the critical period nowadays which under conditions that existed only a few years ago would have succumbed. Milk is now "modi fied" in a c-cordance with doctors' prescriptions to suit the requirements of any child, the various combinations of sugar, fat, and proteids (cheese-stuff) running up actually HIS is the age of the ous combinations of sugar, fat, and proteids (chee se-st uff) running up actually into the tens of thousands, and each one representing a special arrangement of percentages of those ingredients. In every instance the effort is to alter the cow's milk in such a way as to imitate mother's milk, but one youngster is apt to digest to advantage more sugar or less fat than another, and such points as these have to be carefully studied by the family physician.

It is easy enough to modify cow's milk in such a manner as to counterfeit mother's milk with absolute accuracy—to reproduce it so perfectly, in fact, that no ehemical analysis will show any difference. Nevertheless, it is admitted that the imitation is not quiet the same thing as the original, not equal to it in point of healthfulness and digestibility. Only mother's milk is an ideal food for the baby; no matter how the milk of the cow is altered, it is still cow's milk, and the proteids do not behave so well as those of mother's milk when taken into the infantile stomach.

Establishments that make a business of modifying milk keep notes of every day's feeding for every infant served. Thus, years afterward, when Baby A has grown up and is preparing for college, the physician can turn to the records and find out exactly what the child was fed on. If Baby A has turned out an exceptionally fine and healthy boy, the information may be of value for use in other cases. On the other hand, if he has proved puny, the doctor, observing the fact, may say to himself, "What did I feed that youngster on?" A ready reference tells him, and may suggest to him an avoidance of that particular prescription.

The modifying of milk consists in changing the proportions of the three principal constituents—sugar, fat, and proteids. It signifies taking the milk to pieces and rearranging those ingredients in the percentages required to suit any case. The fat is separated by letting the cream rise and skimming it off, the fluid left taking the milk to pieces and rearranging those ingredients in the percentages required to suit any case. The fat is separated by letting the cream rise and skimming it off, the fluid left behind containing no fat, but only sugar and cheese-stuff. An excess of albumen, which is a part of the cheese-stuff (proteids) is got rid of with the aid of heat, being precipitated and strained away, while the percentage of sugar is lessened by dilution. In such ways, using both chemical and mechanical means milks of infinite variety are obtained. As may well be imagined, they are of the utmost value in the feeding of invalids. feeding of invalids.

N 1834 there were no orphanages in England. In that year Mr. Muller began his work of looking up and caring for orphan children, and from that time until 1897 nine thousand eight hundred and forty-four orphans had been sheltered in his homes and passed from them to other homes provided by his care. These children are never lost sight of by him and his helpers, but are watched and guarded as long as they need such watched and guarded as long as they need such

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

CURED BY A MIGHTY POWER

All Chronic Diseases Cured By a Syste Treatment Originated By Dr. J. 7 Peebles, The Grand Old Man of Battle Creek.

of Battle Creek.

Dr. Peebles, the grand old man of Battle Creek, in whose brain originated psychic treatment, has so perfected his method that it has revolutionized the old healing, and it can almost be said that there are no begaless or incurable diseases. This system of treatment has brought thousands back to health after they had been pronounced hopelessly ill by the very best local paying the many thousands who have had a chance to watch the mean relighbor, friend or relative pronounced at death; door by the local doctor, brought back to perfect manhood and womanhood by this eminent doctor and his manner.

DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

sociates. These wonderful cures are brought about through a system of treatment originated by Dr. Peeble himself, which is a combination of mild magnetic reaching combination known. This method has been so priced by the doctor and his associates that anyone may set in the privacy of their own home without detention hom business or the knowledge of anyone. Mrs. J. W. Andrson, of St. Johns, Wash., suffered for years with pain the ovaries and uterine weakness; she was entirily cap by this treatment. Mrs. C. Harris, of Mariorville, Pt. says she cannot express too much gratitude for the results received from Dr. Peebles' treatment for falling the womb and general exhaustion. George H. Weeks, of Cleveland, Ohio, sends heartfelt thanks for restoration to health after suffering from nervous prostration and insomnia for years; he says he now enjoys excelled to health after suffering from nervous prostration and insomnia for years; and the provided the word of the provided with the same of the provided with the suffering from health and restful sleep every night. G. D. Young a Winner, Orc., says: "I bore about my body the picen spectacle of disease and death stared me in the fact now thank heaven I am a well man, and I owe this grait tended of asthma, dropsy, heart trouble and female subtants." Mrs. Bell B. Bond, of Dunkirk, N. Y., who we used of asthma, dropsy, heart trouble and female subtants." Mrs. Bell B. Bond, of Dunkirk, N. Y., who we have been told there is no help for you, there still hope. Hundreds of women suffering from irregularity peculiar to their sex, have been cured by Dr. Peebles' treatment to all her sick friends and rebutives—in fact to all suffering humanity. No matter that the disease, or how despondent you may feeb because peaked by Dr. Peebles' treatment to all her sick friends and rebutives—in fact to all suffering humanity and the disease, or how despondent you may feeb because peaked to their sex, have been cured by Dr. Peebles' methods after being told there was no help for

TWO RINGS FREE!

Sell 20 Mineral Lamp Wicks at 5 cents each; no Trimming, Smoke or Smell. We Trust Yeu 30 days; when sold send money and we send 2 Rings or ch from big list premiums. HIMERAL WICK CO., Providence.

Sent Free to Everybody!

The fashion in Hammocks is ever changing. This year we offer you something entirely different than premium hammock, a fine quality, fancy pattern, fish-net cotton, same as is used by fishermen; something tial and is tested to hold 300 pounds, dead weight, is 10 feet long, over 32 inches wide. Highly colored in yellow and white. Each Hammock has a pocket in the end of the net for a cone aled stretcher, any narrow of strong wood can be inserted and will serve the purpose, giving the Hammock a fine finished and integrating.

of strong wood can be inserted and will serve the purpose, giving the Hammock a fine finished and invitation.

For hot summer days you can have nothing that will afford more pleasure than a quiet hour in a hammock is some shady nook. Now to every one who will get up a club of 3 subscribers for this paper at the special trial price, the special price of the special Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maint

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publi-ation of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscrib-ers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's own name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prises will be paid monthly: For the best original letter
" " second best original letter
" third " "
" fourth " " "
" fifth " " "

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least two new Cousins into the COMPORT circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together with 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

runent.

premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in this Price Offer.

l communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, of Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

A. Tiffany,	$3.00
Sara P. Grogan,	2.50
Charlie F. McGee,	2.00
Mrs. J. O. Adams,	1.50
Arthur E. McPherson.	1.00

EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS: Old Samuel Johnson advises us to-Catch, then, oh catch the transient hour; Improve each moment as it flies! Life's a short summer, man a flower; He dies-alas! how soon he dies!"

while Shakespeare tells us that-"Thy eternal summer shall not fade," and so, having set you to thinking, Aunt Minerva will proceed to open her monthly budget of letters. Our first letter this month, on Venice, is very interesting and I am sorry that its length obliges me to somewhat abridge it in giving it to my read-

"The little station, where you step from the rave-washed steps into a gondola and are taken to our hotel. The gondolier at once becomes your cities," as Longfellow calls it, at ers, but I must introduce "The White Swan of CHARACTERISTIC CANAL.

ery good friend, a part of your daily life, your very good friend, a part of your daily life, your shadow, your counselor and guide, and you usually find him an excellent fellow. The gondolas multiply as you float down the lagoon, and every gondola and every gondolier at a distance looks exactly like every other. It is quite probable that the hotel which you have chosen was formerly a palace, and many of the rooms are still kept up in their glory and rich decorations. It is wonderful how these people restore and renew the old, keeping it always in harmony with the new; for electric lights, steam heat, hydraulic lifts and American speaking porters are usually to be found in all these old palace-hotels.

"To the tourist Venice is a vast museum, with its harmonies of marble and mosaics, softened and mellowed by the ever dazzling silver presence of the sea. As you float down the stream, listening to the soft music from the various gondolas about you, the gondolier points with pride to this high, narrow stone building, with its projecting balconies 'hanging over the water, saying 'This was the home of Desdemona,' and farther on 'Robert Browning died here,' and 'in that palace Lord Byron lived and wrote, and 'here Wagner and George Elliot lived,' and so on as we pass. Suddenly, as the gondoliers' cry, carried over the water, arouses you from your reveries.

"The city has as many changing sights as the sea.

you from your reveries.
"The city has as many changing sights as the sea,

catch sights of the misery down the slimy water catch sights of the misery down the slimy water steps.

"The voice of the gondolier seems to be he sound of Venice, for there are no animals to be seen and there is no rumbling of wheels or sound of hoofs; only the sound of music and the voice of the gondolier over the still water.

"I might spend many pages in describing to you the palace of the Doges, the Bridge of Sighs, and the Square of San Marco, with its celebrated pigeons circling about, but you know it all and I forbear. The cathedrals are rich in pictures and masterpieces. It is here that we find, in the city of his adoption, the best of Titian's works, also those of Tintoretto, the Veronese and Bellini. You pause at the monuments to Titian and Canova, and marvel that time has dealt so lightly with these beautiful works of arts.

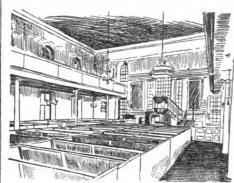

marvel that time has dealt so lightly with these beautiful works of arts.

"You cross the Rialto bridge, built by Antonio De Ponta in 1588, and the brilliancy of the shops allures you, and the Venetian Glass Works brings you back to the achievements of the present. You linger at the wide mouth of the Grand Canal, and dream you are floating to the gate of the Ducal palace, and you go back again to St. Mark's and find each day a fresh beauty. Painters say that it is a 'Treasury of bits in its gray bloom of honorable age.'"

A. TIFFANY, Atlantic, Iowa

A. TIFFANY, Atlantic, Iowa. We are all fond of foreign travel, but at the end of our trips we gladly return to our "ain countree," and feel, deep down in our hearts, that "there is no place like home," and so I know you will welcome the following letter on dear little old Christ Church in Alexandria, Va. I can assure you, from my own personal knowledge, that it is every word true.

"In Alexandria, Va., there is still to be seen the church in which George Washington worshipped, preserved in all its original simplicity and beauty.

INTERIOR OF CHRIST CHURCH

The tablets on either side of the pulpit, one containing the Lord's prayer and the creed, the other the ten commandments, remain the same; also the pulpit, chair, communion table and the baptismal font; while the chandelier presented to the church by Washington still hangs from the center of the ceiling.

by washington still nangs from the center of the ceiling.

"The pew in which he sat has never been altered. On its door is his plate, engraved 'George Washington.' This spot is regarded with reverence and adoration by the entire congregation and city, as well as by the sight-seers to Washington, D. C., who never fail to include this picturesque old church in their visit. The pews were all originally built like this one—square, with seats around three sides, enclosed by a wall so high that one sitting within the pew can scarcely see the heads of those sitting without; but in 1816, owing to the increased membership of the church, it became necessary to change the form of the pews to single ones, all facing the pulpit.

change the form of the pews to single ones, all racing the pulpit.

"Across the aisle from Washington's pew, in the center of the church, is the one occupied, during his life, by Robert E. Lee, the grand and heroic leader of the Rebel war, which, with his plate upon its door, shares the attention paid to Washington's pew. In the vestry room are numerous relies used in Washington's time, such as the old Bible, contribution box. etc.

used in washington's time, such as contribution box, etc.

"It is said that George Washington drove to this church every Sunday in the old family coach which is on exhibition in the carriage house at Mt ernon.

"Lawrence Washington, like his illustrious an

"Lawrence Washington, like his illustrious ancestor, is now a faithful attendant upon the services in this church, and when asked if he had any children the sexton replied, 'he only fetches eleven.' So it appears this great name is not soon to die out, and if Lawrence is not the Father of his Country, he is the father of quite a flourishing family. "This church was built in 1767. The ceiling is low and the windows high from the floor and small. The pews, gallery and ceiling are painted white. But for the sweet-toned organ with its well-trained choir perched up in the organ loft, there is no modern invasion.

"Surrounding this quaint old brick church, reaching to its very vine clad walls, is an old fashioned 'grave yard,' studded with tombstones, upon which are written many curious epitaphs dating from 1767 to the beginning of the nineteenth century. This is one: 'Rebecca comfort of John Harper,' which seems a more respectful way of speaking of a man's wife, than calling her a 'relict,' which is done in these modern times.

EXTERIOR OF CHRIST CHURCH, ALEXANDRIA.

Here is another:

'Afflictions sore long time he bore,
Physicians was in vain;
Till God was pleased death should him seize
And ease him of his pain.'

This one, dated 1799, strikes every one with peculiar warning:

'All you that come my grave to see
Prepare yourselves to follow me.
Repent and turn to God in time
You may be taken in your prime.'

SARA P. GROGAN, Washington, D. C.

Our next letter is quite a novelty in these pages,

Our next letter is quite a novelty in these pages as you will realize as you read it.

Ichabod! the glory has departed from my people.

"No longer can the dusky brave smoke his pipe in the cool shade of the forest, or loll at ease on the grassy bank of some pellucid stream, while his patient squaw toils, sweats and drudges in the truck-patch in order to provide a support for him and the pappooses. His squaw now apes the manners and customs of her pale-face sisters, and insists that her liege lord and master shall supply the wigwam with food and other necessaries.

"The consequences may be imagined but not described. The Indian brave is fast losing his falcon bearing, and his eagle-eye is growing dim and lusterless, and the sunshine has gone out of his life forever. He imagines that the wise and learned men of the long ago, who have been capering in the war dances of 'The Happy Huntinggrounds' for thousands and thousands of moons, look down with scorn upon him, and the iron enters his soul and he refuses to be comforted.

"This portion of the territory, however, is settled almost entirely by full-bloods, and civilization has not wholly subdued us. We still preserve many of the manners and customs of our forefathers intact: still our 'Feast of the Green Corn' is sacred to us, and our eagle-tail and stomp dances kept up. We invoke the assistance of the Great Spirit at our fish poisonings, and believe He looks down, well pleased, upon his Red children during the annual camp-meeting.

"Your nephew in Red,Oochalatah,or, as the white people call me,"

CHARLIE F. McGee, Bragg, Ind. Ter.

We all love to read of daring deeds, and courage in the cause of a suffering fellow-being is worthy of

We all love to read of daring deeds, and courage in the cause of a suffering fellow-being is worthy of all admiration,

all admiration,

"In these brilliant days of our Republic, when the nation's grateful admiration for the noble Dewey, the hero of Manila, has been everywhere, poured forth, the mind naturally reverts to other acts of heroism, parallel in courageous intent if not in actual result. Among these stands conspicuous, the brave action of Commodore Ingraham, U. S. N., whose prompt determination in behalf of Hoszta, the Hungarian exile, in 1853, won him unbounded admiration both at home and abroad, while it greatly increased the respect of foreign nations for the flag of our country.

"Let us recall the facts. Martin Hoszta, a native of Hungary, while struggling with fellow patriots in the unsuccessful effort to free his country from the Austrian yoke, was compelled to flee, and, escaping to America, became in time a naturalized citizen of the United States. Years later, in 1853, Hoszta returned to the Old World to engage in business at Smyrna, on the Mediterranean, deeming his American papers sufficiently protective. He was recognized, however, and seized by order of the Austrian Consul General, and as a rebel refugee was imprisoned on an Austrian war vessel, of which there were at the time two in the harbor of Smyrna.

"Notwithstanding the odds against him, Commo-ugee was imprisoned on an Austrian war vessel, of which there were at the time two in the harbor of Smyrna.

"Notwithstanding the odds against him, Commodore Ingraham demanded the immediate release of Koszta, as an American citizen, and upon the refusal of the Austrian, Ingraham notified him that the American sloop, St. Louis, would immediately be cleared for action, and the Austrians fired upon if within a certain time, Hoszta was not delivered up. Thus warned, the Austrians yielded, and the Hungarian was given in charge of the French Consul, to be held by a neutral power until the difficulty between Austria and the United States could be settled. This being finally accomplished, Hoszta returned to his adopted home.

"For his gallant conduct in thus maintaining the honor of his country Commodore Ingraham received from the U.S. Government a handsome gold medal, and from the citizens of New York a smaller medal; the Germans presented him with a sword; from France came a handsome chronometer; from Italy an elegant brace of pistols; and from some unknown admirer a silver goblet—well deserved marks of the world's appreciation of a hero. Some of these valued gifts were lost during the Civil War, but others are still held as precious relics by the descendants of the gallant Commodore in his native city of Charleston, South Carollina.

Mrs. J. O. Adams. Beaufort, S. C.

MRS. J. O. ADAMS. Beaufort, S. C. There is one thing of which we poor mortals ever tire, and that is of beholding the wonders of nature; and here is a descripton of a marvellous spring which I know you will all find enjoyable. "One of the most wonderful springs of water in ne whole United States is that which gushes out of a cliff of rock in the very middle of Huntsville, Ala. It is said that many years ago, long before white men came to this country, a tribe of Indians who had been driven out from their own country in the west, wandered eastward, looking for a place where they could live. Finally, after many weeks of wandering, they came to this spring and the chief, thrusting his spear down into the soil, cried —'Ah-la-bah-m!' which meant, in their tongue, 'Here we rest'.' It has also been said that this same spring is the one of which Ponce de Leon had heard as a fountain of perpetual youth.

HUNTSVILLE SPRING.

"The first white man who came here found a spring gushing out at the base of a cliff fifty feet high. It flows twenty-five million gallons of water every twenty four hours, and it is water which is beautifully sweet and pure. The outlet of the spring has now been dammed up and the water is used for the domestic and fire purposes of the city. A building has been erected in which a powerful steam pump forces the water wherever needed. The city was offered $250,000 not long ago for this water pump forces the water wherever needed. The city was offered $250,000 not long ago for this water privilege, but very wisely refused it.

"At the place where the spring gushes from the rock a fountain has been arranged so that the water rises in a beautiful cluster of jets among the trees of a little park. Just on the rock above is the building used by the National bank of the city, a bank which was founded long before the war. Its vaults are constructed in the solid rock above the spring, and are planned so ingeniously that it is difficult to tell where the rock leaves off and the difficult to tell where the rock leaves off and the bank buildings begin.

A BAPTIZING AT HUNTSVILLE SPRING

"In spite of all the water which is needed for the use of the city the spring is so large that a small river of surplus water flows from it. Just below the pumping station this spreads out into a shallow, broad pond into which the people drive their horses and mules to drink, and to which, on Sundays, the colored people come for their great 'baptizin'' ceremonies, one of which is shown in the picture which accompanies this article.

ARTHUR E. MCPHERSON, Huntsville, Ala.

I have received from a cousin in Coxsackie, N.

I have received from a cousin in Coxsackie, N. Y., a letter upon West Point and its surroundings which I am sorry not to be able to use, but for which I thank the writer.

Here is still another letter on a curious spring.

which I thank the writer.

Here is still another letter on a curious spring.

"Waconda, or Great Spirit Spring, is located on a bend of the river in the valley of the Soleman, in Mitchell county, Kansas, and is one of the most remarkable mineral springs in the world. It was once a favorite haunt of the Indians, one of their great trails passing directly by it, and it is said that they first learned of its existence by the fall of a meteorite which buried itself in the earth of the prairie close to the mound. They cast many strange offerings into the spring, considering it sacred and a manifestation of the Great Spirit's healing powers. When the spring was cleaned out numbers of these relics, such as arrows, spears, flint-lock muskets, bead necklaces, and other varieties of ornaments, were found in it. General Fremont is supposed to have visited the spring on one of his exploring expeditions, as one of his lieutenants is buried at Clifton, near by, and a monument erected over his grave.

"The mound which contains the spring is nearly circular, and is composed of a hard, grayish rock, quite unlike any other known rock. It is about thirty feet in height, one side sloping so that carriages can be driven up the incline, while the other sides are precipitous cliffs. A rocky basin, fitty feet in diameter, contains the spring. This has been surrounded by a stone coping surmounted by an iron fence. The bed of the spring is of fine, black sand, the depth of which has never been ascertained, so deep is it. The water has a peculiar saline taste, although as clear as crystal.

"It is believed to have great medicinal value, and a sanitarium has been erected near by for the accommodation of guests and invalids.

"A curious fact about this spring is that after the earthquake at Charleston, S. C., the water sank about three feet and did not recover its ordinary level for several months.

ELLA TATUM, Barnard, Kansas.

And now our summer of 1901 is near its end. I hope it has been a pleasant one for you all, and that its good effects and happy memories will go with you through all the coming winter.

AUNT MINERVA.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE, $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to

Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

AGENTS MAKE $50 PER WEEK and expenses. WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home. FREE CATALOGUE No. 134 of Cloaks, Suits, etc. M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., Chicago. FREE Aluminum Thimble or Set Ring to introduce our catl. Send 2c. for postage. B. M. H., 13 N. 2d Str., St. Louis, Mo. $300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c.

R. MAXWELL, Box C, South Bend, Ind. WE are giving away Life Size Dolls for a little work.
Address National Medicine Co., New Haven, Conn. F YOU HAVE ANY DISEASE, write W. O. Broaddus School of Healing, Terra Haute, Ind.

DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every ioneded. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

SILVERWARE. Send Postal for samples. LADIES HOME SPECIALTY CO., 521 KIRK BUILDING, SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Rods For locating gold and silver. Positively guaranteed. From $5 up. Catalogue and testimonials free. A. L. BRYANT, Box 10, R Dallas, Tex. WE PAY $20 A WEEK and EXPENSES to men with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kansas.

WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work. Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 610 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

Spanish Needles, Rods, Goldometors for locat-Our instruments are the best. Catalogue 2 cents. B. G. Stauffer, Dept. C, Harrisburg, Pa.

CHILD LOST for 18 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and where parents lived by ZEMINDAR, Great Hindu Seer, who foretells correctly all Private Affairs. Health. Business. Send stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga,N.Y.

GIVE THIS WATCH WE FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 20 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you a nice chain. Address

Don Miff.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

ERHAPS you never knew Don Miff. Per-haps, indeed, you never even heard or read of even heard or read of him. It is possible, but most deplorable, that such might be your misfortune, for to know Don Miff was, as it has been with more famous folks, "a liberal education" in itself. And now alas! Don Miff is dead—and you can know him only by tradition, and by history—two wonder ful sources through which you know such other celebrit ie s as C inderella, Mother Goose, and Napoleon.

and Napoleon.

Don Miff was not, as you might infer from his name, a Spanish grandee. He was only a little yellow dog, yet so wonderful were his hind, so winning were qualities of heart and mind, so winning were his ways, so happy, prosperous and brilliant was his career, that he has been, like many a lord and lady of high renown, sung in verse and told in story, by some of the most noted writers of the day—he has been "snap-shotted" writers of the day—he has been "snap-shotted" by dozens of eminent amateur photographers and even painted in oils and drawn in pastels by artists known on both sides of the sea. And now, after these and other honors have been heaped upon him, only memories of him are left to make these relics dear.

Don Miff belonged to a little scribbling woman to whom he was brought one day in the breast pocket of a great big man's coat. Of course the first thing to do was to give him a name—and as his new mistress and her friends were always eager for a new sensation, it was decided to have a christening party. Just at were always eager for a new sensation, it was decided to have a christening party. Just at that time everybody was smiling and crying on every page over that beautiful novel of southern life called "Don Miff". It was written by Virginius Dabney, "a gentleman and a scholar" in the fullest sense of both words He now alas! as well as the little yellow dog, has gone beyond our praise and plaudits to the Great Reward. "Don Miff" was the hero of this delightful novel—but that was not his real name Reward. "Don Miff" was the hero of this delightful novel—but that was not his real name—it was only its mispronunciation by a little child who loved him of the very plain and prosaic patronym "John Smith". As the little yellow puppy's mistress was a child of the Sunny South, she decided at once to name him for the book—and so in the presence of fifty friends one beautiful day in June, the little dog was christened in champagne and started on his career to fame and fortune. If they say of children that they are born with a silver spoon in their mouths, it might truly be said of him that he was born with the juiciest of marrow bones in his. He had for his god-father a member of the Vanderbilt family and his god-mother one of the most beautiful and brilliant women in America, the Marchioness Lanza, who in addition to being so lovely, is noted as the author of half a dozen most successful novels.

who in addition to being so lovely, is noted as the author of half a dozen most successful novels.

Very early in his career, Don Miff exhibited a most overweening delight in finery. He dearly loved to be "dressed up" and his foolish and frivolous little mistress indulged this weakness. If he had not been at heart a really manly little fellow, no doubt he would have developed into that extraordinary creature—a dude dog! But he never did. He retained all his life a fondness for dress and in his wardrobe he had such luxuries as two fur coats for winter. One was of sealskin the other of astrachan. He had also a broadcloth "tailor-made" topcoat—of the finest imported English Melton, fashioned for him by one of the real "queens of Society" in New York and embroidered with his monogram in forget-me-nots. He always wore a little harness and he had a great number of these—all of the finest leather with mountings in gold, silver and other fine metals. One of the severest punishments that could be inflicted on Don Miff was to take off his harness in the day time. He knew that without it he could not go out, and he had all of the pampered child of luxury's customary craving to run in the street. To his harness he always wore attached a big bunch of violets, winter and summer. This was one of his amiable "fads" and so well was it known among his ter and summer. This was one of his amiable "fads" and so well was it known among his own and his mistress' friends that he received as many flowers during the season as does a society debutante or a popular prima donna.

At Christmas, he always hung up his stocking or rather that of his mistress and it was almg or rather that of his mistress and it was always filled. One happy year he got 23 presents, including diamond buckles, gold and silver bells, dozens of yards of ribbon for bows, a string of gold beads and even some frills of real point lace to wear around his neck.

Don Miff was quite a traveled dog. As he was all the family his mistress had, she naturally wanted him with her all the time and everywhere. We all know it is declared that "willful where. We all know it is declared that "willful woman will have her way"—and she did in this. She wheeded out of railroad presidents and other high officials passes for this little yellow dog on nearly every railway in America—and there he would sit in the parlor cars with great distinction, often behaving with more dignity and discretion than other gentlemen of whom more has been expected. He was very fond of driving—and he used often to sit in grand carriages beside some of the most famous people in the world. He has driven in Central Park with the wife of a President and two of his best friends were sons of other President.

long and ancient lineage, and fell in love with a big, common watchdog—just a sort of day-laborer among dogs—a scarred and weather-beaten old mastiff that would not fetch fifteen cents if sold at auction. But like many another of the people, many another common day-laborer, he had a noble heart and a fine nature. And when little Don Miff first opened his eyes on this bitter-sweet world, he looked just his father in miniature, and as he grew it was found that he had inherited all the fidelity, the courage and poblepess that made his father. the courage and nobleness that made his father known all along the river side, as well as the aristocratic tendencies and elegant tastes of his lady mother. And as he grew in years all these traits developed and so endeared him to these traits developed and so endeared him to his friends that it was often said of him "that none knew him but to love him," and he was never spoiled by all the flattery and attention he received. He had a scrap book in which were pasted all the different articles and pictures that had been printed of him—indeed our most popular actors might have envied his "press notices," while the collection of autograph letters which he received from worldwide celebrities is indisputably the finest ever wide celebrities is indisputably the finest ever any dog owned, and would fetch a very fine price if ever offered for sale.

any dog owned, and would fetch a very fine price if ever offered for sale.

For twelve gay, sunshiny years this little yellow dog ambled happily along through life, giving a great deal of amusement and entertainment to his presumable "betters". He even distinguished himself as an actor, appearing once with great success, in a play performed for the benefit of the Christmas tree given each year by the New York World to the poor children of that city. Some of the newspapers said he was the "star" of the cast—and it was indeed most laughable to see the very evident pride and pleasure with which he heard, and seemed to acknowledge, too, the applause of the crowded theater.

One night—Don Miff's last night—his mistress gave a little dinner to three of her chosen, choicest friends. After the dinner was finished and the four sat about the round, flower-decked table sipping their coffee, one of the gentlemen pulled up beside his own a chair for Don Miff, who immediately leaped upon it. He stood there, looking expectantly at his mistress, who spoke an affectionate word or two, at which, forgetting his usually irreproachable table manners, the little yellow dog sprang upon the table itself and gently, gingerly picking his way among the delicate cups and fragrant flowers, ran direct to her and actually hugged her around the neck. A burst of laughter greeted the action and then ensued a scene, the memory of which will forever linger in four minds and hearts, although the chief actor was but a dog! For an hour at least did the little fellow, by his antics, his caresses, his quaint, almost human actions and his drolleries, keep these formered the entert and the start and the search and the start by his antics, his careases, his quaint, almost human actions and his drolleries, keep these four worldly-wise, almost cynical people in a whirlwind of amusement. To each he showed some especial mark of favor, and so evident was his desire to please that all four afterwards species of it as his unquestionable intention to was his desire to please that all four afterwards spoke of it as his unquestionable intention to "leave a good impression."

He must have felt, poor, fond, faithful little dog, a premonition of his impending end, for before twelve hours had passed, he lay stiff and stark in death—dead by the hand of one whom he dearly loved and who loved him in return! Early the next morning this friend came to take him for a walk, but before they started the true, staunch little heart of Don Miff went wrong; and when the doctor came he could say only, "No hope—and he suffers." Then Don Miff's friend killed him to cure! As his hand threw over Don Miff's head a cloth saturated with chloroform, the fond, faithful little fellow kissed the hand that killed him. And although its owner is a man, big and strong as a giant, "he wept—and would not be comforted."

ed."

When the little dog was dead, he was covered with his favorite violets and hundreds of petals of American Beauty roses, and then was cremated. His ashes are now in a beautiful gold locket, on which are inscribed these words: "In Memory of Don Miff. Peace to his ashes."

Dozens of letters and telegrams of condolence came to his sorrowing mistress when the various New York papers told the whole world of Don Miff's death—and with them came offers of other dogs—all kinds of dogs from just plain dog to Great Danes or French bull dogs at $1000 apiece—but she only wept and shook her head apiece—but she only wept and shook her head and answered, as Hamlet did: "Alas! we'll never look upon his like again!"

The Landslide at Amalfi.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

hotel and has since been used for that purpose. Near by is a smaller hotel, built in a hollow in the hillside close by the famous Grotto of San Francisco, where the monks had a series of devotional stations.

On the twenty-second of December last, devastation and destruction visited this quiet town and the hillside above it. Early in the morning the tourists in the two hotels were roused by strange rumblings and snappings. Many in alarm left the hotels and the authorities, being notified, attempted to allay disaster. Men from the quarries hastened in to the town to tell of ominous cracks in the rock of the to tell of ominous cracks in the rock of the headland, near the sea. The peasants hastened from the hillside as the alarm spread and danger seemed imminent. Loose stones rolled down the mountain side, and then with a crash and in a cloud of dust and dirt, a huge mass of rock broke away from its foundations and, ploughing its way down the mountain side, completely covered the Caterina Hotel and carried away one wing of the Capuccini. Then it fell with a tremendous roar into the sea, sinking several vessels in the harbor, and causing the wayes to rise and flow over the land. ing the waves to rise and flow over the land, even to the Square of Amalfi. So great was the force of the shock that it was felt for miles around and was thought to be an earthquake; and indeed, the reverberations and vibrations which followed the fall of this tremendous which followed the fall of this tremendous mass (measuring thirty thousand cubic meters) was not unlike an earthquake, and its effect was probably far worse. The little peasant villages on the mountain sides were destroyed and completely obliterated. Marry of the men and women working in the fields were struck down and their bodies, horribly mutilated, were rolled down the slope into the sea.

Consternation filled the inhabitants of Amalfi and assistance was summoned from all sides, but it will be many months before the debris can be removed from the houses and indeed many foresee a black future for the little debris can be removed from the houses and in-deed many foresee a black future for the little town. The shape of the mountain is entirely changed as is also the coast line. A great blot lies there to disfigure the marvelous beauty of the landscape and to suggest the horror of that terrible day. The cause of the disaster cannot be, with any degree of certainty, as-certained. All along the coast the promon-tories are very precipitous and ten years ago a landslide occurred during the building of the provincial road, and although the great chasm was afterward filled in the foundations of the Capuccini promontory were severely shaken Capuccini promontory were severely shaken and at last have succumbed to the strain and the cliff has fallen into the sea carrying death and at last have succumbed to the strain and the cliff has fallen into the sea carrying death and misery in its train.

Since the sixth century Amalfi has been famous. In those early days her trade was important and rivaled that of Pisa and Naples. She became an independent state, ruled by a "doge" and not wanting in men of letters and in works of art. In the 13th century her misfortunes began, when the sea began to undermine the lower part of the town and a disastrous inundation destroyed much property. Now the townspeople live a quiet homekeeping life, manufacturing soap and paper and entertaining tourists who are attracted in great numbers by the magnificence of the scenery.

Amalfi is proud of several things, first perhaps, of her Cathedral, and next of her townsman Florvia Gioja who is said to be the inventor of the compass, and further they claim that he invented it in his native town of Amalfi. The Cattedrale S. Andre or Cathedral of Saint Andrew was built in the 11th century. Today we find it much the same as in those days save that the portal of alternate black and white stone has been rebuilt to make it more secure. The bronze doors of this Cathedral are a valuable relic of the days in which the edifice was built. They were made by Byzantine masters,

The bronze doors of this Cathedral are a valuable relic of the days in which the edifice was built. They were made by Byzantine masters, eight centuries ago, and bear Latin inscriptions in silver letters. The church contains several ancient pieces of sculpture and mosaics of great value. But the center of interest to the tourist is the Crypt into which one may descend by a flight of steps and then, oh wonder of wonders! one may gaze upon a holy relic. It is no less than the remains of the apostle Andrew, brought here from Constantinople in the 13th century. From this holy relic is said to exude an oily substance which has most marvellous power and pilgrims travel from afar to kneel in this holy crypt. this holy crypt.

this holy crypt.

On the mountain sides are groves of orange and lemon; from the shore stretches the blue sea reflecting in its clear, calm depths the wonders of those lofty heights above. Such was Amalfi before its terrible catastrophe. What it shall be time alone can tell. To those who love the quiet town by the sea and whose eye knew well the beautiful contour of the headlands and promontories Amalfi is Amalfi no more.

W. R. Whitehead, M. D., of Denver, Col., tells us that he used antikamnia tablets for years, and with the most satisfactory results, in cases of neuralgic headache, associated or not with disordered menstruation. He prescribes two five-grain tablets every two or three hours for adults.—The Chicago Medical Clinic.

Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to introduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane

THE NEW DUST PAN.—Rapid seller.
Exclusive territory. Write for large catalogue. 50 other fast sellers, and how to get Sample Outfit Free.
RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

one afflicted with FAILING EYI BLINDNESS OR CATARATS, can manently cured at home by mi cines and without the use of the 13,000 cases of eye diseases cu year by Dr. Coffee's wonderfer tion treatment.

Dr. W. O. COFFEE, 843 Good Bidg., Des Moines, L.

AGENT'S OUTFIT FREE.

HOME MANUFACTURING

Farmers' Sons Wanted with kno

S 3 a Day Sure and use your address and we will also you have to make to add to be a described to the state of the state o of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure.

Write at once, BOYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box216, Detroit, Mish.

Sell Your Real Estate

IES I Make Big Wages

—AT HOW

Hall Chemical Co., ST. LOUIS, MO. Dept R.

CERTAIN GURE in 15 to 30 Days

No cure no cost.

Our Grand OFFER

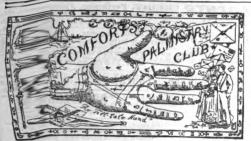

of these subjects, but none They are well worth 50 cents MONEY IN ADVANCE.

with pictures. You can easily earn a ladies or genty Watch, Gold-Ring, Silverware, Set of Dishes, etc., by giving us a few hours of your time, or you can earn cash commissions. This offer is made to quickly advertise our house. You should be the one to take advantage of it. You will find us absolutely honest and reliable.

M. E. MILLES, Dept. W. 6 Washington St. Calcage.

Is A Most Marvelous Invention. Its

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comfort Palmistry Club, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily coaleed with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side experiences one on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Reep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixativ, which can be be aght at a drug store or an art store or made with gumarable and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impression shelf of the spray this over the impression shelf of the sender of the sender of the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well—reased, palm downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to break the plaster, dist as exceedingly difficult to break the plaster, well be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to break the plaster, well be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not or provide the same successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into be waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several con this after impressions are sent.

INGULARLY I have two hands to read that are both of the Venus type this month. The Venus hand, as we call it, either has a large mount of Venus or is large at the base of the thumb. People in professional life usually have the Mount of Venus strongly developed, especially musicians and preachers. When it is broad and full it shows great affection, kindness, animation and energy. It is usually accompanied by a great fondness of the opposite sex with a good natured disposition and strong passions.

with a good natured disposition and strong assions.

When it is combined with a Mars hand (that is, besides being full on the Mount of Venus is also full between the fourth finger and the wrist and possibly between the fore finger and the thumb, it shows a person who is quarrelsone, violent, unjust and cruel. If such a person be an artist he will paint war scenes. If he be a public speaker, preacher or lawyer, will be fond of controversy and argument. Dersons having such hands are properly decaded and well balanced they will be good cople, but if such hands are accompanied by the bad signs their owners will not only be alsagreeable but apt to be a criminal. The yenus and Mars hand when properly combinged is excellent and will make a good lawyer, an ulacturer, politician or an aggressive parson.

"A. B. C." has an excellent hand which become either to an artist or a musician or pos-

A. B. C." has an excellent hand which belongs either to an artist or a musician or possibly to one having gifts for both. The life line indicates a long and untroubled life, while the fate line is excellent, showing almost steady good duck from childhood to old age. This person will marry young and make a good marriage, financially. She will be loving, kind and tender, sympathetic in all her husband's activities although a little inclined to be flirty. However, as she is extremely sensitive to what people say of her and as she is always right in her intentions, her husband may safely trust her and, in fact, she will have very little to disturb the even tenor of her ways throughout her life.

The hand of "X" is a Venus hand also, but is decidedly different in type. The mount is much cross-barred and there are signs that this person will be dissipated, vain, flirtatious and will carry the art of flirtation into licention sness.

When this person is old it is likely that this Mount will become flat. He will be ungrate. will be ungrate-ful for all which is done for him and will never marry being of too selfish a nature and too great a coquette. He will be haunt-

"A. R. C."

有其代表的 可以 题 以 是 以 是 的 医 的 有 的 看 的 看

great deal and there will be some disagreeable if not fatal accident indicated by the islands on the Mount of the Moon. The health will not be very strong and this person should be very abtemious if he would preserve life.

I have had a number of inquiries about the shape of the fingers and finger nails. There existed formerly an ancient art of divination termed Onychomancy, or Divination by the Finger Nails. Into the study of this art much of charlatanry, superstition, ignorance and fraud of the soi-disant sorcerers of the early and Middle ages necessarily was infused, and the rites whereby auguries were drawn from rings suspended on the finger nails, or from the figures formed by the reflection of the sun's rays falling upon the finger nails of a child which had been previously polished with oil, are too absurd to receive a moment's consideration when pursuing investigations, the aim of which is the discovery of truth. The finger nails follow of course to a very great extent the shape of the tips of the fingers. Still, very considerable, indication of character may be found in the aspect of the finger nails, which,

of Cheirosophy, are as follows:
If the nails are short, broad rather than long, with the skin growing far up them, the subject will be pugnacious, critical in disposition, fond of domination and control in matters relating to himself and to him surposed in the them. of domination and control in matters relating to himself and to his surroundings; in fact, he will be imbued with a spirit of meddlesomeness. His establishment will be minutely ordered, and regularly conducted. With spatulate fingers and a short thumb this subject will be constantly tidying things away, arranging and dusting his rooms for himself, and organizing the disposition of his property.

A quarrelsome woman has short nails with a small heart line and a straight head line inclining to turn up towards the little finger. She will also have a flat Mount of Mercury filled with little lines and a high Mount of Moon and of Mars with large finger joints.

It is not to be taken for granted, however, that a person with short nails is necessarily

It is not to be taken for granted, however, that a person with short nails is necessarily pugnacious or over critical. Short nails denote a quick intellect with a clear, sharp-sighted brain. If they are accompanied by a good head line, they indicate executive ability and with a good sun line they show a good talent for mimicry and badinage. Short nailed people make the best newspaper writers and are apt to make good actors. If they are white, with a tendency to pinkness and transparency, the nails indicate delicacy, tact and good taste. Some of the old authorities claim that very dark colored nails indicate a brutish, treacherous disposition.

dark colored nails indicate a brutish, treacherous disposition.

I am often asked what is meant by spots on the nails. I do not myself place much dependence on these things. Heron Allen, however has this to say:

White marks upon the thumb rail denote affection, which is generally reciprocated. Rays of white on the same nail show a useless and ill-directed attachment, whilst black grots.

and ill-directed attachment, whilst black spots denote faults (or even crimes) resulting from

A white mark on the nail of the first, or fore-finger, foreshadows a gain, and a black mark a loss. On the nail of the second finger the white mark tells of a voyage, and a black one of impending destruction. On the third finger nail a white mark denotes honor and wealth, and a black mark infamy and base-ness. White marks on the little finger nail de-notes a faith in science and commercial gain. These are the dicta of traditional Onychomacy. Sir Thomas Browne, in his "Pseudoxia Epidemica" speaks as follows concerning the indications of the finger nails: "That temper a ment aldignotions and conjecture of prevalent humors may be collected from spots in the nails we are not averse to concede; but yet not ready to admit sundry divinations yulgarly raised upon them, nor do we observe 'Pseudoxia Epibut yet not ready to admit sundry divinations vulgarly raised upon them, nor do we observe it verified in others what Cardan discovered as a property in himself to have found therein some signs of most events that ever happen to him. Or that there is much considerable in that doctoring of Chiryomancy, that spots in the tops of the nails do signify things past; in the middle things present; and at the bottom things to come. That white specks pressage our felicity, blue ones our misfortunes. That those in the nails of the thumb have signification of honor; those in the forefinger of riches; and so respectively in other fingers, as Tricassus so respectively in other fingers, as Tricassus hath taken up, and Picciolus well rejecteth."

"To have yellow speckles in the nails of one's hands," says Melton, "is a greate signe of death."

Digitus

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Dr. D. A. Williams, East Hampton, Conn., says if any sufferer from a Kidney or Bladder Disease will write him, he will send them ab-solutely free by mail package of a medicine that will cure them after all else has failed.

FREE! Fun and Money. FREE! DROP A PENNY IN THE SLOT.

will send one weigher and to you free for your service. Or will sell two for 25c.; 6 for 60c.; 1 doz., $1.00 post or express paid. Address.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

DINNER SET FREE

lined. We also give Curtains, Couches, Rockers, Parlor Tables, Sewing Machines, Parlor Lamps, Musical Instruments of all kinds and many other premiums for selling Salvona Soaps and Perfumes. We allow you 15 days to deliver goods and collect for them. We give cash commissions if desired. No money required. We prepay all freight charges. Illustrated catalogue free. Write to day. Salvona Soap Co., Dept. F, St. Louis, Mo.

Oliver Wendell Holmes' definition of an afternoon tea was wittily given in four words: "Giggle, gabble, gobble, git."

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION, BUFFALO. May 1 to November 1, 1901.

"Picturesque Pan-American Route to Buffalo" is a beautifully illustrated and comprehensive publication issued by the "Grand Trunk Railway System," giving accurate information of the Exhibition with plan of the grounds, also map giving complete information of Buffalo, and will be sent free on receipt of two cents postage. cents postage.

cents postage.

Those planning a trip to Buffalo and Pan-American Exposition this year should make arrangements to take in one of the popular side trips offered by the Grand Trunk Railway to the most beautiful and healthful summer resorts, situated in the "Highlands of Ontario," located 1000 feet above sea level, a few hours' run from Buffalo. Good hotel accommodations, magnificent scenery, perfect immunity, from run from Buffalo. Good hotel accommodations, magnificent scenery, perfect immunity from Hay Fever, a place where Health and Pleasure go hand in hand. The Highlands of Ontario include the following well-known and popular districts: "Muskoka Lake," "Lake of Bays," "Magnetawan River," "30,000 Islands of the Georgian Bay," "Kawartha Lakes" and the region around "Lake Simcoe and Couchiching." Illustrated descriptive publications, maps and all information can be had free by applying to D. O. Pease, District Passenger Agent, Bonaventine Station, Montreal, if you will mention Comfort as where you saw this notice.

Top Buggy $26.90

Fully described and illustrated in our FREE VEHICLE CATALOG together with other Top Buggies at $15.00, Phetons at $62.00, Road Wagons at $32.85 and a complete of the outperfeath of the actual cost of material and labor with but the manufactor of well known factories, sell our vehicles to the commence of well known factories, sell our prices for the outperfeath of well known factories, sell our labor with but the manufactor of well known factories, sell our prices for the outperfeath of well known factories, sell our labor with but the manufactor of well known factories, sell our wance and guarantee our rigs fully; 75,000 now in use.

WRITE TODAY FOR FREE VEHICLE CATALOG DIO to 166 and 287-289 West Madison St., CHICACO Please mention COMFORT when you writes.

fore you advance a cent. PAY EXPRESS ONLY

TIME, MONEY.

TIME, MONEY.

TROUBLE, DELAY

TR

LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE!

$1000in GOLD 23 25 15 18 23 1 19 8 9 14 7 20 15 3 7 15

Each one of the above three lines of figures spells the name of a great city in the United State d new puzzle and can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of letters. brand new purtle and can be solved with a fittle study, as follows: A great city in the United States. This is a stand we have used figures in spelling the cities instead of eletters. Letter is number; it form in the apphalet, if you CAN SPELL OUT THESE THERE CITIES and the property of the company of the 3, etc., throughout the entire alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE THREE CITIES YOU MAY SHARE IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF $1,000 WHICH WE ARE GIVSTORY for doing a little work for us. This you can do in less than one hour of war time. This you can do in less than one hour of war time.

Long Live OXIEN, the King of Remedies that Killed it.

No more infernal tortures, no more roastings of the flesh with red hot irons, no more lightning shocks from the electric battery or dosings with dangerous drugs.

RHEUMATISM HAS BEEN CONQUER-

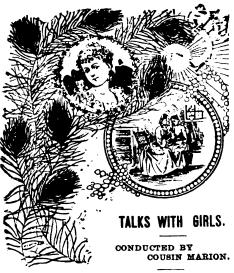

ED by Oxien the triumph of medicine, the Godsend of the age. Absolute cures are now certain, and Oxien is making them every day. In this connection this amazing rheumatism remedy in the United States and Canada. None but those who will give us that they either suffer from rheumatism, or are afraid of it through hereditary tendencies will be considered en rheumatism, or are afraid of it through nervousal.

WE HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed want a box free send at once, yes to-day. Write plainly as our clerks are badly rushed.

THE GIANT OXIE CO., Box 1120, Augusta, Maine.

The last month of Summer, my dears, and I

The last month of Summer, my dears, and I am pretty sure you are looking forward gratefully to the cooler days of Autumn. Doesn't the time fly? Only the other day, it seems, that we hailed the coming of Summer in the month of roses, and now we are close to the season of the fading flowers. Heigho, if we could only stop it. However, there is work to do, not whining over what cannot be helped.

The first is Billie D. of Providence. R. I. with several questions. (1) The young man should not call you by your first name under any circumstances if you do not want him to. Politely request him not to do it. (2) It is very gracious of a lady to ask men to call. (3) There is no significance in the man's wearing the girl's ring unless the two understand it as signifying something.

Mabel and Gretchen, Butler, Pa.—There are dozens of games that may be played at parties where there are boys. Indeed, all parlor games except "kissing games" are quite permissible. (2) There is no definite length of time that the engagement ring should be worn, but it should not be worn too long. Very long engagements are all right, but they should not be announced by ring or otherwise. (2) Don't go to the store to talk to a young man except on business. (4) Opera is not intended for boys and girls. That is to say "the opera." Hayside Twins, Maple Grove, Minn.—It is not right for a teacher to flirt with his pupils. What Hayside Twins, Maple Grove, Minn.—It is not right for a teacher to flirt with his pupils. What is more, it is wrong. (2) Have you never heard the old adage: "If you expect to rate as gentlemen you must not expectorate in the presence of ladies?" However, it is not quite so bad as that. (3) In my opinion it is absolutely wrong to play baseball on Sunday, but a good many million of people do not think as I do. I think I am safe though in saying that not a great many ladies go to see Sunday games of ball.

Willia. Rinley. Miss.—Nobody my day with the popular was a sunday will be supplied to the sunday games of ball.

willia, Ripley, Miss.—Nobody, my dear, has ever yet found out just why "young gentlemen love young ladies". The Lord only knows: He made them that way. (2) Don't have your picture taken with a man except in a picnic group or something of that sort. (3) Ask him to call; it promotes good feeling. (4) High collars are still popular.

feeling. (4) High collars are still popular.

Thelma, Caro, Mich.—Quite proper to give the young man a birthday present. (2) Why should you let him wear your ring? (3) Better go to a regular glove cleaner with white gloves. (4) Dancing in moderation is all right. (5) No.

Brown Eyes, Chicago, Ill.—Yes. (2) Let him know they are not agreeable. (3) Depends upon how well he is known. (4) Suit yourself about that. (5) Don't think of him at all. (6) Give it up. (7) Let him go to the other girl. P. S. You ask too many questions.

Topsy, Leoti, Kan.—You had a personal right, I think, to destroy the photograph of yourself belonging to some one else, but hardly a legal right. Whatever the photograph looked like, it was the property of the other person.

Maryolaine, Jackson, Mich.—I think you would not run a great risk in marrying the young man.

Teacher, Bridgeport, Tenn.—Ask the publisher of the algebra. Inclose postage for reply.

of the algebra. Inclose postage for reply.

Triplet, Clarendon, Tenn.—Unless there is special occasion for it, men do not now offer their arms to ladies with whom they walk. (2) Fifteen year old girls should wear their hair as most becomes them. (8) Simply accept his company and thank him. (4) Cut the acquaintance of the "two-faced girl". (5) Socially, girls of fifteen are not recognized except as children. They don't go calling and they don't have cards.

Mand Hutts Greenwille.

Maud Hutts, Grocerville, Fla.—I have not space to tell you what you ask about the Flag. Ask your teacher to tell you who Betsy Ross was.

Mignonette, Jackson, Mich.—Don't love the man sufficiently well to overlook his faults, but love him in spite of his faults.

him in spite of his faults.

Sunflower, Friend, Kan.—When you gave him the mitten," you should have given him back all the presents he gave you.

C. and L., Clearfield, Pa.—If you are tall and do not weigh over 170 you had better be careful how you attempt to reduce your weight. Consult a physician. (2) The man may ask the girl's age, but she doesn't have to answer. (3) Do not speak or write to men whom you do not know, of course.

Attentive Reader, Max. S. C.—See answer (2) to Triplet, above. (2) Let the young man walk to the church door with you, even if he did not come the rest of the way.

rest of the way.

rest of the way.

Alberta and Jacqulina, Sprague, Wash.—Drop the young men rather than the church. But can't you have religion and "mental science" at the same time? (2) A nice girl should feel offended at such remarks from a man waltzing with her. (3) Sciffing with a young man is quite unladylike. (4) name of common sense do you love a man who tells you he doesn't care for you, and treats you like a rag? Have some spirit about you and throw him over the fence.

him over the fence.

Sue. Kilgore, Ky.—"Et omnes amant" is not French, but Latin. Et means "and," omnes means "all," and amant means "they love." (2) That you love dancing and flirtation and music is no sign why you should not become a good trained nurse, but do not undertake it until you know what is before you, because it is very hard work. There are training schools for nurses in every large city. Ask your doctor about the Cincinnati schools, or write to Superintendent City Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio, inclosing postage. (3) Why did you write to the boys?

Gypsy, Lyons, Ind.—A women of the state of the stat

Gypsy. Lyons, Ind.—A woman of twenty-one who does not know which one of three men she loves. doesn't love any of them, and oughtn't to be any-body's wife.

DOMY'S WITE.

Unsigned, Trout Lake, Texas.—If I could answer satisfactorily, as you ask me to do, all your health questions, I would be the richest woman in the United States and a lot of doctors would be out of a job a job.

Etheland, Meadville, Pa — Dear me, dear me, you couldn't suffer more than you are suffering even if you married the worst kind of a man. Since the one your parents object to is all right except his poverty, marry him, and be happy. The parents will get over it.

Undecided, Constableville, N. Y.—That work is best for you for which you are best fitted by education, temperament and physical strength to undertake. Choose the one that seems to be most attractive to you.

ers, Alton, Pa.—Let the brotherly love continue, within bounds. And do not encourage it.

Babes, Kenoma, Mo .- Ask half as many questions There, my dears, we have come to the end of our August talk, and I feel as if I had been sitting in the midst of a company of you and we had been having just the loveliest time. May the good Lord keep you till we come together again. By by.

Cousin Marion.

Santa Catalina.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

N all its 1000 miles of sea coast, California of-fers no more attractive sport to anglers as well as for mere seekers after beautiful scenery than Santa Catalina Island. This gem of the Pacific is situated about 20 miles off the coast, near miles off the coast, near Los Angeles. Its climate is like the California climate in general, delightful in the extreme. The weather is quite mild even during the winter months, and the island is a favorite resort for tourists. The scenery is beautiful scenery is beautiful— semi-tropical trees, mountain and ravine combine with ocean to make the island an ideal place. The forests are stocked with game, while in the waters around the island is to be had some of the

be had some of the finest game fishing in the country.

The black sea bass as it is called is not unlike the ordinary fresh-water variety in appearance, though there is a decided difference in size, as the Californian sea-bass has been known to attain a length of seven feet, and a weight of five hundred pounds. Yet these monsters have frequently been taken with rod and reel, provided the fisherman has enough skill and patience. Frequently, however it happens that the angler finds one of these big fellows more than a match for his tackle, and is obliged to resort to the surer but perhaps not so picture. to resort to the surer but perhaps not so picturesque hand line.

Another fish that furnishes great sport is the

Another fish that furnishes great sport is the yellowtail, a beautiful specimen with its back a rich shade of blue, shading to a silvery white on the under parts, and the fins and tail the golden yellow color that gives the fish its name. The yellow tail is very gamy and quite large—it having been known to reach a weight of eighty pounds, though this is unusual, from thirty to sixty pounds weight being considered a large fish, while most anglers find that a ten pound yellow tail can keep him extremely busy for quite a while.

The banacuda is another game fish that gives the anglers a good deal of sport, while small

The banacuda is another game non that gives the anglers a good deal of sport, while small rock bass, bonits, and white fish all help to keep him in good spirits. But perhaps the king of all game fish is the tuna, which attains a weight of two-hundred and fifty pounds. It surpasses even the Flordia tarpon, in the surpasses even the Flordia tarpon, in the strength of its rushes—and leaps sometimes ten or twelve feet out of the water when hooked. It has even been known to leap clear over the boat in one of its rushes. The presence of the tuna is known by the appearance of schools of little fish jumping out of the water to escape their pursuer. A few tuna are taken on hand their pursuer. A few tuna are taken on hand lines, but it is said to be impossible to capture one with rod and reel. The experiment has been tried times without number but always to the discomfiture of the angler and the triumph of King Tuna.

America's Greatest Humorist.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE return of Mark Twain to Mark Twain to his native land after an absence of a number of years has occasioned much dinner giving and banqueting complimentary to this genial humorist. He has been wined and dined until he has been aland dined until he has been al-most compelled to plead mercy for his digestive organs.

The career of

The career of S a m u e l L. Clemens, "Mark Twain," has been that of a poor boy in a little Missouri town rising by his own efforts to the distinction of being one of the most distinguished and one of the wealthiest literary men of the day. It is true that Mark Twain is not as rich as he once was, but he is rich enough to have refused an offer of fifty thousand dollars for one hundred lectures. He has paid eighty thousand dollars of the fifty thousand dollars for one hundred lectures. He has paid eighty thousand dollars of the debts of honor he felt that he ought to pay when the firm of C. L. Webster and Co., of which he was a member, failed.

Samuel L. Clemens was born in the little town of Florida, Missouri, on the thirtieth day of November in the year 1835 so that he is now sixty-five years of age. When young Clemens was but eighteen years of age he was apprenticed to a printer and he worked at the case in different parts of the west and east. In 1855 he took a trip down the Mississippi and became so fascinated with river steamboat life that he learned to be a pilot and he followed this calling for a short time. Then he caught the mining fever and went out to Nevada where he later embarked in journalism as the editor of The later embarked in journalism as the editor of The that he was editor of the Enterprise. It was during the three years that he was editor of the Enterprise that he began to use the pen name of "Mark Twain." The significance of the name may not be generally known. It is the cry used on a river steamer when the lookout throws the lead and finds the depth of the water to be just two fathoms. When this happens the lookout two fathoms. When this happens the lookout calls "mark twain," which means "at the mark of two fathoms." Mr. Clemens heard this cry a good many times on the Mississippi River steamers and it suggested the nom de plume by which he is better know than by his own name. After leaving Nevada Mark Twain went to California and became a reporter in San Francisco and he afterward worked in the gold diggings in Calaveras. He spent several months gings in Calaveras. He spent several months on the Sandwich Islands in the year 1866, and on his return he began to lecture. Two years later he went with a party of friends up the Mediterranean to Egypt and Palestine, the outcome being that rollicking book, "Innocents Abroad." After editing a paper in Butfalo for awhile he married and made his permanent home in Hartford. He became a member of the firm of C. L. Webster & Co., publishers, and for a time the firm was most prosperous; then it met with reverses and went under, carrying the greater part of Mark Twain's handsome fortune with it. Then Mr. Clemens set himself the task of paying the creditors every dollar due them. It is said that he has done this, having earned the money by writing and lecturing.

Speaking of this matter Mark Twain said: "I am not a business man, and honor is a harder master than the law. It cannot compromise for less than one hundred cents on the dollar, and its debts never outlaw. I had a two-thirds in the wealth of the same was the said that the same control of the same was the same on the Sandwich Islands in the year 1866, and for less than one hundred cents on the dollar, and its debts never outlaw. I had a two-thirds interest in the publishing firm, whose capital I furnished. If the firm had prospered I should have expected to have collected two-thirds of the profits. As it is, I expect to pay all the debts." This lofty sense of honor has endeared Mark Twain more than ever to his countrymen. It has taken him nine years to pay this indebtedness. He has spent the winter in New York and will now go to his old home in Hartford, where he will work or play as he pleases. He has certainly earned the right to have his choice in regard to the matter. choice in regard to the matter.

Have You Hay-Fever or Asthma?

Medical Science at last reports a positive cure Congo River, West Africa. Its cures are really marvelous. Hon. L. G. Clute, of Greeley, Iowa, testifies that for three years he had to sleep propped up in a chair in Hay-fever season, being unable to lie down night or day. The Kola Plant cured him at once. Rev. J. L. Combs of Martinsburg, W. Va., writes that it cured him of Asthma of fifty years standing. To make the matter sure, these and hundreds of other cures are sworn to before a notary public. So great is their faith in its wonderful curative powers, the Kola Importing Co., of 1164 Broadway, New York, to make it known, are sending out large cases of the Kola Compound free to all sufferers from Hay-fever or Asthma. All they ask in return is that when cured yourself you will tell your neighbors about it. Send your name and address on a postal card, and they will send you alarge case by mail free. It costs you nothing, and you should surely try it.

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy-Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H.PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

FAMILY RECORDS. Marriage Certificates, Memorials, etc. Samples 12c. ex; 9 for $1.60. J. Lee, Omaha Bldg., Chicago, III. FREE Catalogue Millinery, Corsets, Shoes, Gloves, etc. Chicago Mail Order Millinery Co., Dept M, Chicago. C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio. FREE & Garment Co., 136 Van Buren St., Chicago.

FITS Epilepsy; the only sure treatment and quick cure:
free to poor. Write Dr. Kruse Co., St. Louis, Mo.

TAPE-WORM DORELT-D-U, 187 TATE BT., CHICAGO, MARRY 7 The MESSINGER, Sta. D, CHICAGO, ILL.
The MESSINGER, Sta. D, CHICAGO, ILL.

WIVES

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

Marriage Eastern Agency 54, Bridgeport, Ct.

REVEAL YOUR IS LOVE, MARRIAGE, BUSINESS and SPECU.
LATINA, When to MARKE and whom You like COM DIETE PORIENTS. AUX VERBLU NATE production of the company of MARRY 10,000 are very analous to MARRY BEAUTH STANDARD COR. CLUB, Sta. E. Chicago, Ill.

or Asthma and Hay-fever in the wonderful Kola Plant, a new botanical discovery found on the Congo River, West Africa. Its cures are really by VESTEO. Bevelopes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow pieces, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchies toveliness to Vestro. Harmless, permanent. HeVKE FAILS. Every lady should have this unrivalled developer. Adds charm and sitraction to plainest women Full particulars, photos, testimonials, etc., sealed for two const stamp. Address. for two cent stamp. Address AURUM MEDICINE CO. Dept. A. N. 55 State St., Chicago.

Beautiful

Women Made

AGENTS CREDIT. Perfumes, Maron, etc. Big Prosis. Bxpr. Pd. Terms free Herbene Agency Co., Box 54, Station L. New York.

Home Work 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind. Earn $8 BY PLATTAL BYTHING 100 SAMPLES IN SCOTT, COHOLES, BY CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample

10,000 ARE VERY ASXIOUS TO GET MARRIED pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station & Colony.

PILES CONSTIPATION, HEADACHE, and DYSPERM absolutely cured. Instant rolls, never returns.
Acts like magic. A bounders. Trial see Mailed From. Address C. J. MASON, Box 518, New York, M. Y.

LADIES 51.50 a day; four months work sent paid; send stamped addressed envelope for sample apparticulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Phila. h.

HOME WORK FOR MEN AND WOMEN; E to B weekly, working evenings; someto copy letters; inclose stamp; work mailed on application. EAGLE MANUFACTURING CO., Toledo, Olido.

GUITAR VIOLIN, MANDOLIN BANJO

Self-Taught, Without Notes by Figure Music. Send for BIG Illustrated Catalog of Instructors alterment. E. C. HOWE, 1642 Massonic Temple, Chicago E. C. HOWE, 1642 Massonic Temple, Chicago E. C. HOWE, 1642 Massonic Temple, Chicago Instructors of Warter of Wa

Attractive Widow, good, honest hubbat Address ERIE, 193 Washington St., Chicago, III.

MAN WANTED in each county. Balary, hore said coffees, spices, etc. direct to housewives and stores, with convention or without valuable premiums to customers. West light importing Co., 443 Washington Street, New York City.

GET MARRIED. 10,000 LADIES ARE Many very rich and beautiful. Send stamp for big selad list, giving full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. STAR AGENCY, No. 415, Auslin, III.

Get Married Soul ladies want to narry photos and big sealed two with addresses and full description. Satisfaction gamateed. Union Corresponding Club. Box 608, Austin, in rectiforscope of their life, past, present and future. I conveyly instruction and in the receivable and in the convey in the con

"Goo Goo."

The popular "Goo Goo" Wining Eye is what you must var ay your coat or vest if you wast and out all the other fellows at rash the pretty girls. You can atpea conversation and slyly tur tack your coat lapel and wink your Goo" eye so easily you will win he girl and fool the other fellow off a friend is telling a funny story that is old and stale or sky just true, you can bring your winking eye intopis and turn him down without any hard feeling. The eye strongly made of metal, the front is painted in name life-like colors and the wink is produced by pulling an invasible string from behind and there is a long strong pin to fasten through your clothing. The whole thing is strong and durable and the most talked about novelty today. Every one is wild for one, every young main in the big cities has one and all the girls too. "Just because she made dem Goo Goo eyes" is why you should have one so send 12c. today for a special sample. 6 for 56c.; 1 doz., $1.00. Agents' make big money. Address SUNSHINE, Dept. C, Augusts.

at many stores from $15.00 to $50.00 each, we are fine that you way as Premiums for selling our Remedies.

LAGE CURTAINS FREE, the Plasters of $20.00 each, which was trust you with and we will send you a pair, of these elegan trust you with and we will send you a pair, of these elegan Nottinghams Lace Curtains, each Critain is nine as to long so you get six vards of Curtains in the pair, and as they are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet with feet of the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the two, they gather up nicely sad are four feet wide for the windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows, and just what any one needs to adorn the home windows and just what any one nee

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing.

A NINE YEARS' TEST.

GALENA, ILLINOIS, Oct. 15th, 1880.

TO THE GIANT CO., AUGUSTA. MAINE.

GENTLEMEN: Do you realize I have been selling your remedies for the past nine years? After acting thus as your agent for this long period it is not flattery when I say to you that no business house exists that can surplays your own in honesty and fair dealings—ven more, generosity to its patrons. Not one jar or the slightest cause for complaint is aurely evidence beyond question in my nine years' dealings with you. May you live long to enjoy the good you are doing is the wish of Your truly, FANNIE AUGUCHON.

A TEN YEARS' TEST. medica. There has nonnear me from getting my first box of Oxien. we received so many and such nice ones low unto possibly enumerate them. They were all due and the such as th

THE GIANT CO. MUNICI, INDIAN, Oct. M.
GENTLEMEN: After ten years of successful wor can trustfully say that you have smore it and of agreed during my long period of selling you have mere the selling you have mere the selling you have mere the selling you have been to me from cretting my first loss of selling you have received so many mand such nice ones, have received so many mand such nice ones.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

HE great source of light and life touches the first point of Libra "crossing the line" into southern declination at about one minute past one o'clock in the afternoon of September 23rd, 1901, Washington Mean Time. At that moment the Autumn quarter commences.

that moment the Autumn quarter commences.

In the figure of the heavens erected for that time, the last degrees of Sagittarius will be on the Ascending horizon and the 20th degree of Libra will be on the meridian. Jupiter, the greater benefic, rules the Mideaven and each of the benefics are in the angles which they thus rule and are in benevolent aspect with each other—a remarkable testimony of harmony between the people and the governing authorities of the country. The sun is past the meridian in the 9th house; Mercury is on the south meridian itself; Venus is in the 10th; Mars is on the 11th cusp; Herschel is in the 12th; Jupiter and Saturn are in the ascendant; the moon is close to the 2nd cusp, and Neptune is about to set in the West.

The promises of the figure continue to be good for the progress and welfare of the people and the country as a nation. In fact, nearly every figure for months has repeated the indications of our success and progress among the governments of the world. This figure has Mercury powerfully located on the midheaven, which points to some great discovery in our scientific world, or some wonderful intellectual or literary achievement during the autumn months. The books tell us that in such cases "Merchants and scribes, scholars and ingenious men are honored by the King."

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR SEPTEMBER 1901.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR SEPTEMBER 1901.

SEPTEMBER 1-Sunday. A fair Sabbath day though mental productions are likely to be erratic anunsatisfactory; the forenoon is the best part of the day.

unsatisfactory; the forenoon is the best part of the day.

2-Monday. Be careful in speech and correspondence in the forenoon hours and "make haste very slowly" in buying goods or forming judgments, for rashness will now work injury; the afternoon has the choicest conditions of the day and should be given preference for making beginnings and for money transactions of all kinds; when also thy purchases in business should be made and transactions pertaining to houses, lands, mines, wells, and all classes of excavations should be urged.

Self, and all continue the self-state and the desired as a self-state of yesterday with increased vigor; let literary productions of minor character be launched during the forenon; urge correspondence, sign deeds and writings, and make agreements about improvement of real estate and the production of minerals, metals, etc.; deal with printers, mathematicians, scientists, inventors, and all in the literary callings.

4-Wednesday. Give preference to this day for transactions pertaining to the elegant pursuits, polite literature, artistic labors and musical productions; though architectural work and decorative matters concerning real estate and building is best deferred a white.

cerning real estate and building is best deferred a while.

5—Thursday. Choose not this day for beginning any important undertaking, for no matter how favorable the promises they prove delusive and are likely to result very disastrously. If this be the anniversary of thy birthday or if born about the 5th of March, June, or December of past years, both health and finances will need to be watched vigilantly for a season and thou shouldst not be surprised if baffled in business matters in many strange and unexpected ways. Marriageable ladies born about the date indicated had better be slow to accept the matrimonial profer made at this time, and married ladies so born should do nothing to invite strange matriments intellectudes with or through their life partners, or if the family relations; lovers will need to be careful that engagements are not broken during these passing days.

6-Friday. Look out for the pennies on this day lest they take to themselves wings and fly away, without benefit or advantage to thyself; don't sign any writings obligating thyself financially, nor buy any goods for trade or profit; shun business communications with large corporations and with public officials nor seek any favor from thine employer or persons having authority or being in command.

T—Saturday. The early morning is the least favorable part of this day when no transactions concerned with buildings, excavations, or embankments should be had; do not deal in lumber, wood, coal, petroleum, or building materials of any kind; as the forencon advances, however, give every energy to thy business and seek favor from thy superior.

from thy superior.

S.—Sunday. An excellent day for improvement of the mind and for proper appreciation of the merits of literary and scientific productions; the mind, however, inclines rather more towards the sombre and reflective and the contemplation of the grand and sublime in nature and art than towards the flowery and ornate.

9—Monday. Avoid contentions and disputes during the morning for they will be easily provoked; have no surgical operation performed nor engage in experiments with explosives or dangerous chemicals; as the day ad-vances let all energies be given to the prosecution of gen-eral business.

10—Tuesday. The elegant pursuits are more favored on this day and engagements in that direction are encouraged; art productions, musical and dramatic merchandise, dry and fancy goods and articles of adornment are best dealt in, and sales are likely to be more profitable than purchases; have no dealings with farmers, miners, builders, plumbers, or millwrights; money transactions are best deferred until the morrow.

tions are best deferred until the morrow.

11—Wednesday. One of the best days of the month which REGULUS recommends to his friends for the inauguration of the more important ventures of the passing time; have transactions relative to banking and money affairs, machinery and manufacturing materials, mason-ry, plumbing, building, agricultural and mining products and generally crowding all thine affairs; do not waste a moment of the choice influences that now prevail.

moment of the choice influences that now prevail.

12—Thursday. This day is less to be depended upon for any important move. Have no dealings with government officials or persons in charge of great public works. Do not make any beginning in great ventures nor seek advancement in thy several avocations; railroad officials and employees will be short of patience and there is likely to be serious disagreement of master and servant in railroad matters.

railroad matters.

13-Friday. An unfavorable day for the literary pursuits and when all business should be transacted with caution; thou wilt be wise to watch thine expenditures, avoid important contracts, and defer correspondence; those employed with the pen should act with great circumspection; errors of account are more than usually liable to be made in mercantile matters; be sure not to bind thyself as surety on this day unless willing to pay the bond.

the bond.

14—Saturday. Avoid thy landlord in the morning nor have any dealings with contractors, miners, farmers, and persons engaged in the laborious and dirty avocations; the day improves as it advances and encourages the pursuit of general business; deal with inventors, scientists, antiquarians and persons noted for eccentricity of habit or dress; travel and remove in the afternoon.

15—Sunday. Were this other than the Sabbath day our friends would be urged to improve every moment in matters of art and music; the power of execution will be increased and the mind stimulated in such directions. The musical portion of religious services will be inspiring and effective.

16-Monday. Another of the cheering days of the month and REGULUS commends it to his friends for urging their most important ventures; buy goods for trade, deal with bankers, judges, and monied men generally in the forenoon; use the afternoon for dealing with real estate men, plasterers, plumbers, gardeners, nurserymen, farmers, miners, and building contractors; put a bridle on the tongue in the evening and avoid haste in all engagements in those hours.

gagements in those hours.

17—Tuesday. Sign no contract pertaining to lands or their improvement; make no engagement in the literary world, nor deal with booksellers, printers, pressyniters or other persons employed with the pen; persons in the literary callings in life have more balling experiences than usual just at this time, especially if born about the 1st of January, 29th of March, 2nd of July or 3rd of October of past years; nor should they be discouraged if they do not make their usual progress, or if they are defeated or disappointed in their expectations.

18—Wednesday. Use the forenoon for seeking favor or advancement from thine employer or from persons in superior positions of control; use the day vigorously for all general business.

19—Thursday. Begin this day early and urge all for all general business.

19—Thursday. Begin this day early and urge all business diligently. REGULUS particularly urges his friends in the intellectual pursuits to press their efforts in forwarding their several ventures; commercial men are favored at this time; make contracts, change residence, and let the mind be employed to the fullest extent; deal with printers, stationers, booksellers and councillors; apply for patents, register trade marks, and obtain copyrights.

20—Friday. A day contributing energy and inviting activity in nearly all the walks in life and especially those concerned with things that serve to please and gratify mankind.

gratify mankind.

21—Saturday. Give preference to the forenoon of this day for thy most vigorous efforts in business; purchase articles of dress or of a decorative nature, also musical and dramatic goods; deal with banks and persons of wealth, also persons of refinement and high social standing; as the evening approaches be not surprised to find thine efforts productive of less good if thou art not haffled altogether in forwarding thine undertakings; make no bargain for houses or land or its products in the late afternoon.

22—Sunday. A very fair Sabbath day, though more

22—Sunday. A very fair Sabbath day, though more conducive to mental excitement and voluble and aggressive utterances than to logical discussion and legitimate conclusions.

23—Monday. Make personal applications to public officials and persons in authority for favor or advantage during the middle hours of the day and crowd all honorable undertakings to the utmost in the last two-thirds of the day.

the day.

24—Tuesday. Make no purchases of ornamental or fancy wares in the early part of this day but use the forenoon for crowding the general affairs of life; as the noon is passed put on the "cap of caution"; be not over-sensitive to rebuke from thine employer; be deliberate in judgment and see that no harm comes to thy interests through haste of speech or act; keep out of all disputes and be temperate in all things.

25—Wednesday. Another one of the bright days for all classes of commercial and mercantile transactions; for seeking loans or money accommodations; for all the literary undertakings and for most vigorous mental effective or the day.

26—Thursday. Continue thine efforts of yesterday without abatement until the early afternoon; make engagements with architects and all persons in the polite and artistic callings in life; expect no favor from rail-road employees in the afternoon but give all thine energies to business so far as it is possible in the late hours of the day.

27—Friday. Be in no baste to begin musical or artistic matters in the morning hours; choose not this day for thy wedding day, nor expect much profit or advantage from the elegant avocations or dealings with the fair sex; apoplectic and heart troubles are increased at this time; let surfeits, highly seasoned foods and exciting drinks be avoided; religious and ecclesiastical matters suffer detriment.

riment.

28—Saturday. Deal not in real estate nor replenish thy stock in trade of woolens; the day is unpromising; discouraging for the purse and embarrassing to the progress of enterprise. REGULUS advises all who claim this as a birthday anniversary or who were born about the 25th of March, or 26th of June or December of past years, to exercise more than ordinary care in matters of finance, avoiding the loss of surplus capital by not risking it at this time in new ventures. Be satisfied with moderate gains in established business, rather than taking new risks.

risks.

29—Sunday. The day does not promise well for mental exertion, or enjoyment of literary work, but otherwise is fair in promise.

30—Monday. Be up with the sun and urge business every moment of the day until the late afternoon; buy goods to sell again and deal with banks and the wealthy classes; push all real estate matters such as improvements, building, repairs, furnishing, renting and buying; the latter part of the day is unfavorable for the elegant avocations and dramatic, musical, and social engagements prove less profitable and satisfactory than usual.

The Pacific Cable.

WRITTEN FOR COMPORT.

INCE the laying of the Atlantic cable the idea of a trans-Pacific cable has been often discussed and plans have been laid before Congress and private companies have become interested in the project from time to But it was not until the islands in the time. But it was not until the islands in the far Pacific came within the jurisduction of the United States that a great need for a Pacific cable was felt. It is now costing our government not less than $400,000 a year for cable communication to Manila and each message travels about 14,000 miles or nearly three fifths of the distance around the world. From our coast a message must go to Ireland, thence to England, from there across to France and overland to the Mediterranean, then by cable to northern Africa and by land and cable to Suez, through the Red Sea and Indian Ocean to India, Cochin China and Hong Kong, and thence to Manila. In its travels the message must be repeated some fifteen times thus making errors very probable and secrecy imposing errors very probable and secrecy impossible. Thus it will easily be seen that the ing errors very probable and secrecy impossible. Thus it will easily be seen that the United States government would be the better protected and would be financially favored by cable extending directly from our own shores to those of our possessions in the east. And there is little doubt but that the present year will see the commencement of the undertaking. Already a British enterprise of this kind is on foot and Canada and Australia are pledged to help the home government in the carrying out of the project. The route of this cable will be from Vancouver, south-west to the Fanning Islands, thence to Norfolk Island and Australia and New Zealand (see map).

Now as to the route of our American transpacific cable, there are several propositions.

Now as to the route of our American trans-Pacific cable, there are several propositions. It seems rather strange to the casual observer that a cable by way of Alaska and the Aleutian Islands should have been proposed, but the fact is that that route would be no longer than a direct line across the Pacific. It would be along the shore where the cable could be laid in shoal wat a making the risk of breaking far less but it would necessitate about fifteen staless but it would neccessitate about fifteen sta-tions and much of the line would have to be built or laid on territory belonging to foreign powers, which is a great disadvantage in times of war.

The President, in his message on this subject, recommended that a cable be built "wholly under control of the United States" and for this reason the southern route is the one which will doubtless be accepted.

Before any route can be decided upon it is of great importance that careful surveys be made of the bottom of the sea, the islands along the way and any obstacles which would hinder construction. This work has already been partly done by the U. S. S. "Nero". The report of this work is exceedingly interesting. The route surveyed is from San Francisco to Hawaii, thence by Midway Islands and Guam to Manila. The survey has found that near Midway Islands is an extradinary submarine mountain rising from a depth of 2,200 fathoms to within 82 fathoms of the surface. Again near Guam is one of the deepest parts of the ocean yet sounded, where the sea floor sinks to a depth of over 4,000 fathoms. It is very important that all such elevations and depressions should be found before the laying of the cable is begun, for the cable must be carried around them and not over or through them. It is where the cable is bent over an elevation that it becomes weak and breaks, and the most level part of the sea floor is, for this reason, chosen.

The great length of each span of cable makes breakages very probable, and it will doubtless be decided to lay two parallel lines of cable so that if accident should happen to one the other could be used. It is also proposed to build a line from Hawaii to Fanning Island thus connecting with the British lines to Vancouver and Australia and Australia necting with the British lines to Vancouver and Australia.

The probable cost of laying a trans Pacific cable will be about $2,000.000 and the question is, shall the government bear this expense and own the cable, or shall a private company be formed, subsidized by the government. If the government undertakes it, the expense to those who will use the line will be less, as the government could better afford to wait some years for returns than could a private company. There is much expense, also, in maintaining and repairing the cable; a cable ship must be maintained which shall be always somewhere along the route of the cable, to repair in the shortest possible time any break, and in the Pacific it will probably be thought best to have more than one, owing to the long distances. And owing to the same conditions a very heavy cable must be used. The cable itself is of copper wire, wound with other wire to give it strength and covered with gutta percha. Often the whole is smeared with pitch to protect if from certain sea animals that attack it for the gutta percha.

certain sea animals that attack it for the gutta percha.

There is now no longer any doubt of our need for a cable across the Pacific and it is the opinion of the statesmen of our country that the work should not be longer delayed. Within three years we shall be able to communicate with the Philippine Islands over rivers which belong to American citizens and which pass through lands of our own. The completion of this new cable will complete the circuit of electric messages around the world and bring the "new east" into close relation with the "new west."

EVERY LADY READ THIS.

I will send free a positive cure for all female diseases, irregularities, etc. A simple home treatment, a common sense remedy that never fails. FREE with valuable advice. Mrs. L. D. HUDNUT, South Bend, Ind.

The first theatrical company that came to America was from England in 1752.

THESE WARM DAYS

You are cooking with an Oil Stove. For the best results, most heat and no odor use Carbon wicks. Millions in use at hotels and restaurants. Any width from 11-2 to 5 inches, 10c. for a sample. Last all summer. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

WOMEN WHO DREAD MOTHERHOOD!

Information How They May Give Birth Happy, Healthy Children Absolutely Without Pain—Sent Free.

No woman need any longer dread the pains of child-birth; or remain childless. Dr. J. H. Dye has devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. He has proved that all pain at child-birth may be entirely banished, and he will gladly tell you how it may be done absolutely free of charge. Send your name and address to Dr. J. H. Dye, Box 137, Buffalo, N. Y., and he will send you, postpaid, his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to happy, healthy children, absolutely without pain; also how to cure sterility. Do not delay but write today. write today.

SENT FREE WEAK MEN

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

W. S. Harter, an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an over-generous offer that comes in the shape of a procla-mation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality and its kindred ailments. His case was a most pitiable one, nightly emissions so draining and his constitution was weakened to such a degree that it was impossible for him to perform his duties. He spent hundreds of dollars for remedies and to specialists, but could not regain his vitality or check the awful nightly emissions. One day a brother lodge member called his attention to a remedy, in fact, implored Mr. Harter to take the remedy for his affliction; he did so, and in one month's time was entirely cured, his constitution rejuvenated and his vitality regained. To-day he is a man in every sense which that word would imply. Mr. Harter is not what one would call an immensely rich man, but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he intends making his life's labor that of putting this remedy in the hands of all those afflicted as he was. Mr. Harter being a very conscientious man, thought perhaps the remedy may not prove in every case so wonderfully beneficial as it did in his. For this reason he gave fifty sufferers the treatment, and in every instance the same wonderful results were experienced as was in his case; so he now says he will send every sufferer of this death-dealing disease, Lost Manhood, and its kindred ailments, absolutely free the means which directed him to health and contentment. Any reader sending name and address to Mr. W. S. Harter, 232 Ash Street, Nevada, Mo., will receive without delay, and free of charge, this wonderful knowledge.

Mothers Your children cured of incontinence of urine. Sample Free. Dr. F. E. May, Box 304, Bloomington, III.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return.
A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic,
Trial box MAILED FREE. Address.
Dr.E.M.Botot,Box 978,Augusta,Me.

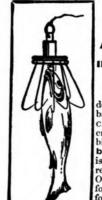

FREE Oxien Arnica Court Plaster, we will send seven wallets Prece, Each handle OFFER.

OFFER.

Octor are a seven wallets Prece, Each handle of different colored court plaster and although a regular colored court plaster and although a regular area of the preceding the

10c. store sale article you sell them for only occase. Every person will buy a package as it "HEALS AL, WOUNDS SAYE THOSE OF LOVE." Send us the money after you sell the seven wallet style packages of court plaster, 35c. in all and we will send you a Hero Knife free, postpaid. These knives are as good as any 50c. knife you can get and are warranted O. K. Girls Look if you prefer a smaller or Ladies Knife we will send one-lossed of the livro Address Arnica Court Flaster Co., Box 793, Augusta, Maino.

-THE EAGLE CLAW, ·

A WONDERFUL INVENTION. BEST TRAP IN THE WORLD for CATCHING FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF CAME. A wonderful and most ingenious device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. 1 is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite. No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

and small han and game. We have a special year's subscription at SPECIAL OFFER. If you will send the name and address of a friend for a special year's subscription at Claw to you as a free gift. Or you may send us a club of two trial yearly subscriptions at 26c, each per year and we will send our magazine one year to each subscriber and one No. 2 Claw to you as a free gift.

Address LANE & CO., Augusta. Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE furnishings of the chambers in a house give a fairly good in-sight into the characsight into the character of the housewife, and the way a bed is made and dressed tell you instantly whether she is orderly and careful and gives great attention to details, or whether she simply sees that the bed is made and that the room has a fairly orderly appearfairly orderly appearance. In the living rooms of a well-regulated home there should not be too much primness. The rooms should be brushed and dusted and put in order at least once a day, but stiffness and an air of too much order takes away the home feeling which should pervade the general living rooms of every home. But in the chambers it is best to preserve strict order, as an idea of disorder or confusion in a chamber takes away the restful feeling which should fall upon one on entering.

As the bed is the most conspicuous article of furniture, it should be given special attention in decoration, due care being given to the fact that careless guests may throw a suit case or dusty wraps on it, upon entering, for which reason materials that will launder well and easily should be chosen.

For beds in constant use, where the spread is removed every night, there is nothing so

For beds in constant use, where the spread is removed every night, there is nothing so serviceable as a heavy white fringed spread, large enough so that the fringe will come to the floor on both sides and at the foot, forming a valance. With a spread of this kind (which costs $3.50 and is easily laundered) use one of the papier mache bolsters, which are light and easy to handle. This should be covered with cambric of the color used in decorating the room, and then with white dotted muslin, gathered in at the ends, with a bow of ribbon. There should be a band of the ribbon around the center, with a big bow on top. This dresses do for stiff, hard hair that is growing gray is constant brushing. In the fall of the year, when the proper shedding of old hair can be expected, and again in the early spring, when the young growth comes on, a soft, light brush is the only kind to use. By this arrangement the bristles run through the hair without tearing or breaking the strands as they go, and yet they carry away all the loose lying dandruff on the surface of the scalp and all the dust that hangs in the tangled mesh of locks.

Brushing done in this way can't hurt the most sensitive scalp, while if the process is carefully gone through once a day the head can be kept so clean that it actually won't need washing more than once in two or three washing more than once in two or three

If one is delicately cleanly and ambitious to If one is delicately cleanly and ambitious to possess fine, luxuriant, sweet-smelling hair one should never fail to brush her scalp and then her length of locks every night before retiring. After the dusty day her hair and head are as full of dust as an old unbeaten carpet, and every bit of deposit can be removed by going over her tresses and her scalp with clean, white brushes and then braiding the locks in two loose tails down the back; she will not only feel cleaner but sleep the better for the operation.

Gasoline or naphtha are the proper cleansers

Gasoline or naphtha are the proper cleansers for hair brushes. After they have been plunged in a bowl of either liquid and rubbed quickly, one against the other, they should be set in the open air to dry, and thus in ten minutes will be ready for use again.

A head to be kept clean requires that the brushes be cleaned as often as three times a week; and now for washing the head itself. Shampoo it in tepid water and pure castile soap once in six months, not oftener, and at the season when trees and hedges are cut back clip off a quarter inch at the ends of the strands. That is quite enough pruning. After a shampoo the a quarter inch at the ends of the strands. That is quite enough pruning. After a shampoo the hair is terribly dry and stiff and then rub in a little of that precious brilliantine that a French chemist makes from the oil that Nature supplies in the sheep's fleece.

It is very pure, nourishing, and very lightly perfumed and looks like a jelly and costs a lot, but it brings the roughness out of hair unfailingly. After this treatment brush the head properly every night, and then once in six ingly. After this treatment brush the head properly every night, and then once in six weeks, if one has been traveling or the weather is pretty hot, give the head a secondary cleaning. It is not a bit less thorough than the soap and water treatment, but it is far less heroic and one should alternate between a cleaning with wheat flour and one with naphtha.

If one objects to naphtha, which is dangerous, one can just as effectively but more slowly purify her hair by shaking into it a handful of wheat flour and then dividing the locks into sections brush out the white dust. Doing this three or four times produces a pan-

Doing this three or four times produces a pan-ful of refuse that by its color and consistency very clearly proves that the head has been rid of an amazing accumulation.

As a rule, hair that is turning gray and falling can, in a man or woman under 50, be checked in its evil courses by keeping it very clean, using a soft brush lightly, and by aid of one finger mas-sage. The charm of massage is that it not massage is that it not only brings out a new growth, but brings it out even darker than the natural color of the old hair. Any patient and sufficiently a m bitious individual can help their hair by massaging it night and morning and massaging it correctly. There is a general and erronecus im-

BED THROW OF SWISS MUSLIN.

the bed as much as is practicable in a chamber which has constant use. It is a good idea to spread a clean sheet across the foot of the bed, after the spread is adjusted, and there the tendency to lay garments on the bed may be indulged in, and the spread still be kept fresh, for the sheet gets the most of the rab and a fresh one can be put on often.

For the guest rooms, the usual style of bed cover is a piece of the material of exact size of the top of the bed, with a full ruffle on both sides and the foot, reaching to within an inch of the floor. A few years ago French striped percale in white with flowers on it was generally used, but now the thinner materials seem to be the favorites. One of white open work embroidered muslin made up over light blue, with bolster to match is very dainty, and looks as well after several washings as when new. Of course the lining and outside are made separately. A more delicate one is made of point de'sprit with lace edge around the ruffle. separately. A more delicate one is made of point de'sprit with lace edge around the ruffle. This one is made long enough to throw up over the bolster, instead of going underneath it. Those most in use now are of plain white or dotted Swiss muslin. The dotted ones are usually made up quite plain, as the dots are decoration enough. Where the breadths come, on top of the bed, an insertion is used, run through with satin ribbon. The plain muslin are made up usually with the hem of the valance nemstitched, and sprays or vines of flowers appliqued on. These flowers are cut from cretonne of the best quality, and are basted on in the manner desired and then buttonholed. A particularly pretty one for a violet tonholed. A particularly pretry one for a violet room has large pansies applied in graceful wreaths, on both bed and boister. Other flowers used are roses and daisies. In the latter case, the daisies are usually embroidered in ribbon work, as the flower is small and petals delicate.

One of our readers asks for information regarding care of the hair,—and while this is not strictly within the province of this department, it may be welcome to other readers as

To begin with, don't wash the hair too often. Twice a year is often enough for a soap and water shampoo, as water takes out the natural oil of the hair and brings on early grayness.

The tendency of dry hair is to grow coarse, and therefore a constant use of artificial oils is necessary after every washing. The thing to pression that to rub the scalp is to massage it and so serious an error is this that if a perfect-ly healthy heavily thatched head is rubbed faithfully and persistently, all the hair will drop out.

To massage rightly and effectively, place one finger with a firm but not severe pressure on any spot and with it push the loose scalp under it with a regular rotary motion. After a few seconds move the finger along to another point and repeat this process, but never permit the finger end to slide upon or rub the scalp's surface. It seems a tedious method for inducing hair to grow, but for all its slowness it is sure, as no other process is, whether by application of patent liquids or not.

ERMANY is following the example set by England and America, and employ-ing women in its government positions. They act as clerks and directors in small They act as clerks and directors in small post-offices, and more recently have been employed as assistants in railway and telephone offices. In Norway, women have been for some time employed as Government telegraph operators and as station agents. In this latter capacity they not only attend to the train dispatching and to waiting upon travelers, but they manage the baggage as well

HEN the Duke of Clarence, afterward William IV., went down to Portsmouth to inspect the British seventy-four, the guide allotted to him was a battered old lieutenant with one eye, who lacking "a friend" at court, had served years without promotion. As the veteran removed his hat to salute his royal visitor, the latter remarked his baldness, and said jestingly, "I see my friend, you have not spared your hair in your country's service." "Why, your Royal Highness," answered the old "salt", "so many young fellows have stepped over my head that it's a wonder that I have any hair left." A few days after the "old salt" was surprised to receive his appointment as captain.

Coffee and Cocoa.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

O a certain extent cof-fee was used as a medi-cine in earlier times, but its use as a beverage quickly followed its introduction, in every case, and in many cases its use was carried to excess.

The Syrian govern-ment passed laws to check its use, classing check its use, classing it as an intoxicating drink, but the action was probably taken because the use of coffee as a beverage led to festivities which were not in accord with Mahommedan discipline. The ministers waged fierce warfare against its use ministers waged heree warfare against its use in Turkey, because the coffee-houses were crowded, while the mosques were deserted. An attempt was made to have the mufti close the houses, but it about as successful as attempting to close the saloons of today, and the next resort was to levy a heavy tax on the sale of the beverage.

sale of the beverage.

The Moslem religion prohibits the use of wines, or spirituous liquors of any kind, but its followers are the most inveterate coffee-drinkers of the whole world, and at one time the Turk who failed to provide coffee for his wife was held to have given good legal cause for a divorce.

History shows that coffee was used in Arabia Felix at a very early period, though it was unknown to Europeans until introduced by Ranwolfius, in 1573. About twenty years later, Alpinus gave the first scientific description of the pinus gave the first scientific description of the nature and properties of the plant.

Some coffee berries, procured at Mocha, were carried to Batavia and planted. In 1690, Governor Wilson sent a specimen to Amsterdam, where it was successfully cultivated and plants supplied to a great part of Europe and the East Indies. In 1714, a plant was presented to Louis XIV. of France by the Magistrate of Amsterdam. This was planted at Marley, under the care of a famous gardener, who, later on, gave a plant to a young officer in the French navy, who carried it to Martinique, and this plant was the beginning of the extensive coffee plantations of the French West Indies, Mexico and South America.

The coffee plant is an evergreen tree, growing about twelve feet high, as a rule, though occa-

about twelve feet high, as a rule, though occasionally one will reach a height of twenty feet, and it is quite generally conceded that all coffee plants are of one specie, though changes of soil, climate and methods of culture produce seemingly different and distinct varieties.

seemingly different and distinct varieties.

In some places the trees will mature and be at their best in three years, and often begin bearing when but two years old.

The work of securing the coffee crop is very great, for when the trees are in full bearing a man must work faithfully to pick three bushels of berries per day. A bushel of berries will yield about ten pounds of merchantable coffee, but it will take the product of five good trees, for more trees yield less than two pounds than over that amount.

over that amount.

One method of curing the berries for market One method of curing the berries for market is to spread them in layers five or six inches deep, and leave them exposed to the sun. The pulp which surrounds the berries will ferment in a couple of days, after which timethe berries are left for about three weeks, to get thoroughly dry before running them through a mill to separate the husks from the seeds. Another method is to put the berries through a mill made for the purpose, as soon as they are gathered. This mill crushes the pulp and washes it away. The berries are then dried for about two weeks, and then put through a mill as in the first method.

It is a universally admitted fact that cocoa is as in the first method.

It is a universally admitted fact that cocoa is a healthier drink than coffee, and its use is becoming more common every year. The term cocoa is a perverted form of Cacao, the plant which produces it being the Thoebroma Cacao, which furnishes both the so-called cocoa, and the chocolate of commerce. Dinnaeus knew the plant, and valued it so highly that he gave it the name, which is derived from the two words, theos, meaning a god and, broma, a food, which being freely translated forms the name commonly used in his day—Food of the gods.

When Cortez invaded Mexico, in 1519, he found the natives using the product of the trees as both food and drink, and also using the seeds of the fruit as currency in all sorts of brees as both food and drink, and also using the seeds of the fruit as currency in all sorts of business transactions.

The first known mention made of its use in England was in 1657, fully one hundred and thirty years after it was commonly used in Spain, while the first offered for sale in the thirty years after to was considered to sale in the United States, so far as known, was advertised by Amos Trask, at Danvers, Mass., 1771.

In these earlier times, people bought the dry berries, as imported, and took them to local mills for grinding, as the farmers of to-day take their wheat and other grains.

The tree, which is a native of the West Indies and Central and South Americas, grows to be and Central and South Americas, grows to be about sixteen feet in height and presents a very peculiar appearance, from the fact that the fruit pods, which are irregular in shape, and average a foot in length by six inches in circumference, grow directly off the old wood, and look like immense warts, on the trunk and

The fruit pods are smooth, with a fleshy rind about half an inch in thickness. Enclosed in about half an inch in thickness. Enclosed in this rind is a white substance of butter-like consistency, which separates from the rind when ripe. There are two tests which will dewhen ripe. There are two tests which will decide whether fruit is ripe or not. The first is the color, which should be a rich yellowish red, and the other is the noise made by the seds, which will rattle loudly if the pod is seeds, which will rattle loudly if the pod is shaken.

When the fruit is ripe, it is gathered and split open to remove the seeds, which will average seventy-five to the pod, and are as large as almonds. The seeds are sweated for two days, and then dried in the sun for two weeks before being packed for shipment.

To prepare for use, the seeds are roasted before grinding. When rather coarsely ground it is ordinary cocoa; if finely pulverized and part of the fat, or oil, removed, the resulting product is our breakfast cocoa.

When the seeds are so finely pulverized that the product is a plastic mass, from which no fat is removed, it is plain, or bitter, checolate, and this is mixed with sugar and flavors to make the sweet chocolate of commerce.

The fruit requires about four months for development, but like many tropical fruits, the tree will show blossoms, and fruit in all stags of development, at all seasons of the year, though the greatest crops seem to be ready for gathering in June and December.

UMINOUS paint is used on trains in Belgium to illuminate the carriages that are not supplied with lamps while they are passing through tunnels in the difference. The upper part of the interior of the car is covered, and emits enough light to make reading a possibility.

RICK are now being burnt by electricity, which promises to revolutionize the industry by greatly reducing the labor and cost. The wet clay is put into a covered iron mould which holds 1000 bricks, a strong current of electricity is turned on and in a short time the bricks are dried burnt, and all ready for sale. and burnt, and all ready for sale.

APER bottles, for ship use particularly, have been invented by a German paper maker. The bottles are made of a composition and are water tight. They may be handled roughly without the least danger, and the pitching and tossing of a great ocean liner would not injure them in the least.

TO BUFFALO IT IS.

Barnum's great circus was called the greatest show on earth, and even with its carefully worked out details it is not comparable to the Pan-American Exposition which is now show.

Pan-American Exposition which is now showing at Buffalo.

The buildings are beautiful to behold the electric effects nothing short of marvelous, the exhibits of a character interesting and instructive, the grounds truly a bewildering paradise, the midway, without exception, the most complete ever opened for public visitation, and all this in one of the finest cities in the country.

The Boston & Maine R. R. will carry you to Buffalo from any New England point, over a variety of routes either one of which is picturesque and worth traversing. The car service is complete and the equipment of Pullman parlor and sleeping cars is of a high standard of excellence. The trains are fast ones and the rates low enough to attract every tourist. If you are going to do the Pan-American, send your are going to do the Pan-American, send your address to General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine R. R., Boston, for the fortypage Exposition Book.

WURLITZER BEATS THE WORLD Brass Band

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. 245 E. Fourth Street, CINCINNATI, O.

PNEUMATIC RAPID-FIRE

FREE FOR A A New Style All Steel Combination Rifle for Birds or Came

Rifle for Birds or Came using shot that can be obtained anywhere at a trifling expense, also shoot darts making it desirable for outdoor target practice or parlor amusement or it can be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and enterbacked to be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and enterbacked to be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and enterbacked to be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and enterbacked and the possession of one of our accurate shooting air rifles makes a boy manly and affords him an excellent means of successfully competing with his chums for marksmann's honors as well as teaching him the use of a rifle. Remember this is a combination gun, so your boy should have one be he old or young. If he is sick in the house he can shoot darts and keep out of mischief or go into the woods for game and get robust and healthy besides.

SPECIAL. Send at once for sample copies of our big monthly and subscription blanks and caryass among the neighbors. For a club of four yearly subscribers at the popular price of 25c, each, $1.00 in all, we will send on the subscribers are as a present, all charges paid, guaranteeing absolute satisfaction, or we will one fifth as above for $1.17. Address

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Remember the above is a real gun, nearly three feet long. It looks like a gun and shoots like a gun.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cash prizes for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such writers only as have complied with all these requirements will receive consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters cannot be anywered it will be useless for anyone to seek further information or personal favors by addiressing the editor, as such letters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least four yearly subscribers (together with 25 cents to pay for each subscribers sent) may compete for the prizes.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one side of the paper only, enclosed in the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to EDITOR NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or action—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. NO MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. Prom $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

The Tublishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

The Tublishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR SEPTEMBER. Rodney James, First Prize E. M. Hamilton, Second Prize. Lilian Wright, Third Prize. Col. Prentiss Ingraham, Fourth Prize. Frank A. Sweet, Fifth Prize.

A Raglan Expedient.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY RODNEY JAMES.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

ROKE, by Jupiter! Clean, dead ausgespeilt, and three hundred miles from home! Whew! what a lark!"

Tumbling from the Southern express upon the pavements of Washington, Jarleigh stood blear-eyed and wondering, drawing out the bottoms of his empty trouser pockets and staring at the newborn day that tipped the far dome of the national capitol with enchanted glow. But the beauties of the executive city had few charms for Jarleigh. He was desperately retrospective. Let me see; what happened? Oh, yes: he had been commissioned by the managing editor of the "Park Row Buzzard" to hustle down to old Virginia and land a great "story" about the new discoveries that threw light upon obscure points in the diplomatic affairs of the late Rebellion. And he had landed too, with all the feet of a centipede, and telegraphed the facts on ahead while he remained to become a guest of the Kawn-poke Club of Richmond for dinner. Cæsar! but when those Southern Majahs and Kunnels get a New York newspaper man in their clutches, what with their luscious mint juleps-innocent to the taste yet dynamite in cumulative deadliness-their oysters a la Virginia, and the gods wot not else, escape alive is nothing short of a miracle. Yet Jarleigh had escaped, albeit with little else besides skin and bones, and had managed to get as far on toward home as Washington, with throbbing temples and a growing goneness underneath his long sweeping Raglan which reached quite to his ankles and gave him a false, if impressive rotundity. Well, there was no use standing there and staring into space until mistaken for a lunatic with the heaven-sent of "removing" the chief executive and so landed behind bars, so Jarleigh started out for a season of cogitation up Pennsylvania Ave-

But the longer Jarleigh walked the more desperate loomed up the predicament before him. Hunger and thirst increased his illusion of calamity and took away his courage, else on sheer bluff he would have bearded a telegraph office and wired on ahead for funds with which to reach home. And yet, what would the managing editor say to that? Jarleigh would never hear the last of it, for had he not been amply supplied at the head office before the start? Again, he might saunter into the Washington branch office of the "Buzzard," introduce himself and get relief, and yet by the morrow the facts would get back to the head office, and the laugh, which the Simon-pure newspaperman dreads worse than flaying, would be his certain due. At any rate, it might cheer him to know that his "beat" was in the morning "Buzzard' which had arrived in Washington at daybreak and walking boldly into a hotel, he asked the loan of a damp copy to search it. Yes, there it was-hurrah! right on the first page-leader of the day's revelations. Jarleigh felt himself have a ten-dollar pair sent to you, but I beg in the growing taller and the sluggish blood quickened with a new intoxicant. He thanked the newsman, tipped his hat grandly and walked out with the air of a newly-arrived Congressman who had come to purge the national capital at one audacious onslaught. On the street corner he bought two mealy bananas with a postage stamp, the dago taking pity on him perforce, and after a cup of water at the nearby fount, Jarleigh pursued his way.

The way was long and tedious, and it was almost nightfall of that fateful day ere Jarleigh realized that his problem was yet unsolved. Wandering broke in a strange city is hard enough by day, but with the coming of darkness terrors increase and miseries are intensified. Jarleigh was in the vicinity of the Treasury Building when faintness from hunger and weariness came over him, driving him to desperate expedients. He crossed the wide avenue and plunged into a narrower street, passing a great plate glass window which reflected his full figure. Like most men in whom a tinge of vanity remains through every vicissitude. Jarleigh slowed his pace and contemplated himself critically in the reflection; then an inspiration struck him. There were just three things visible to Jarleigh, besides face and hands, and these were top hat, a little battered and dusty, the long Raglan and his shoes. Victory! He would act at once.

How he did it or where, let no man question. There are dark hallways and obscure nooks in many Washington alleys, and with semi-darkness as a shield, it is possible to divest one's self of one's pantaloons, button up the Ragian, and with the trousers hung gaily over the left arm, saunter out in search of a fond relation euphoneously known as your father's brother. The particular Uncle that Jarleigh found hesitated about taking the risk at all, but finally allowed two dollars, which was a mountain of money to the pawnee at that frightful pass. Jarleigh took oysters and toast standing up at a nearby counter, perforce, and then returned to the swagger hotel where he had read his article in the "Buzzard" that morning, calling for a room and paying for it on the spot with his last cent. Retiring early, the weary stranger was soon in soundest slumber.

It was about six o'clock when a violent ring of the bell called a servant to Jarleigh's room. The door was unlocked and beyond, the window leading to the fire-escape was seen to be half raised and a shred of suspender hung over

"Where is the proprietor? Call the proprietor!" roared Jarleigh. "Quick, quick!"

"Dat's a lunatic foh suah!" gasped the darkey, standing for a moment in staring amazement at the man seated in bed, gesticulating wildly, hair on end and eves blazing, and off the menial started in search of the proprietor.

A portly gentleman soon appeared in the doorway. He found his guest mumbling distractedly.

"Are you the proprietor?"

"I am, sir."

"Well, for heaven's sake what sort of a hotel do you keep here anyhow? Am I in a hostelry for gentleman or is this a den of thieves? Tell me that, sir! I demand to know-I demand it, sir!"

The proprietor closed the door behind him. Not so loud, I beg of you," he pleaded paling. 'What is the matter, sir? I sincerely hope nothing has happened-

"Nothing happened? Do you mean to say that it is nothing to go to bed like a peaceful God-fearing citizen after having paid for your room in advance, and to wake up in the morning to find yourself trouserless, sir-pantaloonless and all your money, including watch and chain, keys and valuable memoranda gone, sir -vanished, flickered, 'lifted' in the silent hours of the night? Again I say, sir, what sort of a hotel 1. this you keep anyway?-

"Sh-h-h! I entreat you," interposed the gasping proprietor, his eyes bulging, his rotund torso waddling over toward the window and picking up the telltale shred of suspender. "I declare, sir, such a thing as this has never happened in my house before. I am desperately sorry-"

"Sorry be confounded! My name is Jarleigh, of the 'New York Buzzard,' sir, as you can discover by telegraphing on to Park Row and asking for information. I have seven congressmen and four senators to interview before four o'clock this afternoon, and I will cut a pretty figure skiting through the lobby of the capitol with my shins clothed in your 'desperate sorrow.' Drat your sorrow, sir; think of

"Not so loud, I beg of you," pleaded the proprietor. "People all about you are still asleep-"

"What do I care? All they will have to do is to read the 'New York Buzzard' tomorrow morning and they will know all about it-"

"Oh, I sincerely trust that you will not feel called upon to go to any such extremes, for really, my dear sir, this would ruin me, ruin me. Don't think of such a thing. This can all be arranged amicably, I assure you. It is most unfortunate, but I assure you that you shall not be the loser. Come down to breakfast with me-"

"What! Without my-"

"Oh, I shall send instantly to the tailor's and meantime, make no more fuss, for the reputation of my house is second to none in all Washington, sir, and the very mention of thievesbless me sir! it is positively unspeakable." He approached the bedside, his eyes appealing. 'You will be reasonable, will you not?" He extended his hand, which Jarleigh took reluctantly, still grinding his teeth and snorting in his effort to calm down.

"I'll try," he murmured at last. "Hurry up with that tailor though. This is my busy day." The proprietor bowed obsequiously, then left to summon the man of the goose and vardstick. Twenty minutes later Jarleigh was seated at the proprietor's table in the big diningroom below, a big bouquet of rare flowers between him and that functionary, strawberries and cream and hothouse grapes on either hand, with fragrant Mocha borne in on silver. The proprietor was still conciliatory, in deadly terror of that article in the "New York Buzzard."

"Suppose we call it a round hundred dollars, Mr. Jarleigh, and never mind the trousers. Really the episode was most unfortunate, but you certainly do not wish me to lose too heavi-The guest elevated his chin like majesty granting a culprit temporary reprieve. He appeared to be almost appeased. "Is it agreed then? I will bring you the cash immediately sir, but I must exact of you a written pledge that you will not allow a word of this to appear in print. Certainly you will grant me this courtesy."

"Um-well, I suppose under the circumstances, seeing that you are desirous of settling matters so amicably-"

"Certainly, sir. William, bring Mr. Jarleigh a better cigar than that—one of those Habana Perfectos that Senator Billyuns swears by. Excuse me, I will bring you the cash and the document for you to sign." And the proprietor sped away.

Jarleigh was blowing smoke rings into the air and contemplating his audacious shape in the far mirror when in came the darkey who first encountered him in bed that morning. He glanced furtively about for an instant, then sidled up toward the table. "Excuse me Mistah Jarleigh," he said with a hideous smile, rubbing his hands together and rolling his ivory eyes set in ebony, "I have somethin' to ax y'."

"Well?" grunted Jarleigh, resenting the intrusion.

"Ah've somefing to sell y'."

"Don't want to buy anything. Go away please."

"Yaas y' do, Mistah Jarleigh, yaas y' do. It's bettah for you to buy it from me den dat I should gib it to Mistah Jones, the proprietah, Ah's suah of dat."

The guest scowled up at his tormentor. 'What have you got so valuable, eh?"

"It's a pawn-ticket for a paih ob trousahs, Mistah Jarleigh."

The guest felt something turn upside down inside of him. He turned his haggard eyes toward the door and saw far beyond the advancing figure with a bunch of bankbills in one hand, a document in the other, drying the latter with a sweeping motion. "Well how much do you want for it?" he choked trying to remain composed.

"Dunno, Mistah Jarleigh," said the other. "Guess it ought to be worth fifty dollahs, don't you think so?" There was a malicious gleam in his torturous eyes., The guest clenched his fists under the damask. He could have strangled the man where he stood, but alas, here came Jones, the proprietor. There was a moment's hesitancy during which hideous interval Jarleigh saw the vision of his game disclosed, himself landed behind bars and an article in the morning's papers not the least of the order which he had threatened. "Meet me outside the north door in twenty minutes, sharp," he cried out hoarsely. "Now get out o' here quick or I'll brain you!"

Negotiations were quickly consummated, and the parting came in the best of grace. As Jarleigh stepped from the north door, wondering how to manage the most difficult proposition yet presented to him, he ran headlong into a taller and broader man than himself and rebounded like a rubber manikin. Their eyes met and the other grabbed him. "Jarleigh, by Jove!" he said.

"Peters, as I live!" exclaimed the other. "Just the man of all men I want to see. No, don't move. I'm in a predicament. In the first place, Peters, old boy, let me have twenty dollars to take the next train back to New York." The money came forth without hesitation. "Now listen!" And he poured forth his miseries. In the midst of it the darkey was seen on the sidewalk scanning the street anxiously. "There he is now, Peters. Scare him with your fire-badge, blackmail and all that sort of thing. Hurry or you'll lose him and

The brother reporter sauntered forth from ambush and approached the negro. "Looking for Mr. Jarleigh, eh?"

"Dat I was, sah."

I'll lose the train."

"Well, he is about to take the train for New York. I want to see you at the station house. I believe the specific charge is blackmail, and the penalty is three years in the penitentiary."

The porter turned a leaden hue and his chin dropped as he caught the flash of the firebadge.

"'Fore de Lawd, sir---"

"Never mind. Where is that pawn-ticket quick!" A trembling hand produced it. Peters seized it and grew thoughtful. "Look here," he said. "I don't think you mean to turn criminal. Suppose I let this thing drop. Will you keep your mouth shut about it?"

"'Fore de Lawd, dat I will, make no mistake!"

"See that you do or there'll be trouble."

Peters turned and caught a glimpse of his comrade's Raglan flying across the square in the direction of the station where the train was already starting. He waved toward him the vellow slip with an assuring sign, then gave the darkey a cigar and allayed his terrors. 'Remember, not a word!" he admonished and sauntered away. Later in the day he framed that pawn-ticket and hung it on the walls of the branch office of the "New York Buzzard," where it hangs to this day to tempt Peters, now manager of the branch, to retail again and again the story of Jarleigh's predicament. It is only fair to the latter gentleman to state that on the following day the proprietor of the Washington hotel received a letter containing a hundred dollar bill and the price of a pair of trousers, together with a curt note shrouded in anonymity, which read, "This is conscience money. Take it, be grateful and ask no questions." And so far as known no questions were ever asked.

My Astral Body.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY ERSKINE M. HAMILTON.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

AM a lawyer with an office in the city of New York, and if I gave my real name it would create a decided sensation. Therefore, I will appear as plain "David Morris" in this parrative.

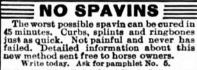

In the summer of 1897 I was on my way home from the Hot Springs of Arkansas, where I had gone to secure rest and health. The wear and tear of a large legal practice, and especially a case of international importance before the Supreme Court at Washington, had told on me fearfully and I was on the verge of nervous prostration. My trip to the Springs had not helped me much and I was far from well. In the car in which I was riding I noticed, not far from me, a tall, keen-eyed gentleman of about sixty years, who seemed to be scrutinizing me very

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr.M.M.Fenner's Specific cures.By mail.Send for Circular,Fredonia.N.Y.

Have You Got

For Rheumatism, that horrible plague, I discovered a harmless remedy, and in order that every suffering reader may learn about it, I will gladly mail him a trial box and book on rheumatism free. Write without fail—it is a wonderful remedy which has enabled many a person to abandon crutch and cane. Address JOHN A. SMITH, 22% Germania Building, Milwaukee, Wis.

RUPTURE CURE!

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, C. Main St., Adams, N. Y. and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

$5.00 SHAVING SET FREE

or preven...

Ind cure f.

Lame Bac

La Gripp

Cough

Cough

Colds, Pne

monin, Rhe

matis m,

etc., and will

you six of our

Plasters which are to sell an turn the mo

($£1.50) to us

we will send

all charges

17

Lump Magnesia: I Stick rich perfumed Coss $5.00 combination. Every man should house for emergency's use. Every Wor that eliher her Father, her Husband. Swectheart has one of these outils.

Don't wait but send to-day for Plasters. One agent sold the six in es. Address THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 1229, Augusta, Maine.

closely. I remember he came on at Philadelphia, but why he took such interest in me I knew not. Presently he came over and stood before me. His brilliant black eyes gave me a weird feeling as he looked at me for a moment. Then he said:

"You are ill, and your visit to the Springs has only benefited you temporarily. If you wish health-aye, if you wish to retain life-call and see me when you get back to New York."

He gave me a card and returned to his seat, and from that time on paid no further attention to me. I looked at the card-"John Jarvis, M. D. 37 - Street, New York."

"Probably some quack who has noticed my illness, and is in search of business," I murmured. "But how did he know of my visit to the Hot Springs?"

I wondered at this as I placed the card in my pocket, but forgot the matter presently. After I reached New York I vibrated between home and office for several weeks as my health would permit, but my condition did not improve, and I was gradually losing strength. Medical skill did not seem to reach my case, and I grew gloomy and despondent. One morning I came across the card of Dr. Jarvis.

"Well," I remarked to my wife, somewhat bitterly, "as I have tried the best physicians in the city without benefit, it will do no harm to try him. He can but kill me."

That afternoon I called at No. 37 -It was a retired place, and the office was in the second-story front of a tall, brick building. Dr. Jarvis was alone as I entered, and greeted me with that strange penetrating gaze I had noticed on the train.

"I knew you would come," he said quietly. "In my judgment you would not have lived had you not. If you will place yourself under my treatment you will surely recover and be in better physical condition than you have been for years.'

"That is certainly a flattering prospect," I remarked, with a tinge of incredulity.

"But," continued the doctor, apparently not noticing my lack of faith, "I will treat you on one condition. You must obey my instructions implicitly and without question. I will be candid with you, Mr. Morris. My treatment is out of the ordinary. I am a native of India. My mother was a descendant of an ancient priestly order, whose wondrous knowledge of the occult and the deep mysteries of the universe have been handed down from generation to generation, for thousands of years. Modern science, in the startling discoveries of the present day, think these things are new. But they are not. For centuries they have been known and used in secret by my ancestors, in the temples of India. Bah! Modern science knows nothing as yet! But it is on the eve of the miraculous. Miracles are but the combination of nature's forces in accordance with law, and back in those old temples of India miracles were surely performed. Yes, Mr. Morris, they were miracles, and would be so pronounced had they been done in public. That priestly order knew secrets of the material and spiritual world of which modern thought has no conception."

As he spoke Dr. Jarvis' eyes kindled with enthusiasm, and his tall frame trembled with a strange excitement. Indeed, although I am not inclined to be superstitious, I was somewhat afraid of him. He noticed it.

"You need have no fear, Mr. Morris. I shall not harm you. That strange knowledge of my ancestors I now possess, and when I saw you on the train I knew what your trouble was and where you had been to relieve it. And, allow me to say that under ordinary medical care you cannot recover. You will be a dead man within a year unless I help you. With this statement will you consent to my treatment?"

"I will," I answered promptly. In some way, I knew not how, I felt he was speaking the "Very well. Now, Mr. Morris, you have an intimate friend, one John Varney, a wealthy real estate dealer. Mr. Varney is not in good health, and is one of my patients. He has complied with my conditions, but it is necessary I should have your co-operation-that is, that I should treat you both at the same time.

He moved to an inner room and I followed. It was an ordinary apartment, handsomely furnished, but contained no wonderful appliances such as I expected to find. I was surprised at this, as I supposed the room fitted up in oriental style, and amply supplied with mysterious apparatus. And then, too, where was my friend, Varney? We were to be treated together, I had been told and I looked to see him in the inner room.

"Why, where is Mr. Varney?" I enquired.

"He has been here and the treatment he received will take effect at the same time with your own."

The doctor bade me be seated in a large reclining chair.

"It is due you, Mr. Morris, that I should explain one thing more," he continued. "A human being is made up of three existences. First is the natural body of flesh and blood, and inside of that is what we term an astral body-which is exactly like the material one in looks, only it is immaterial and indestructible. And within the astral body is the spirit or soul. Now by the knowledge I possess I shall trans-

"All advertise watches, but no one makes watches in America but the "Dueber-Hampden Com-Some make Watch Movements, some make Watch Cases; no one can guarantee a watch who makes onehalf of it only."

* * Accurate=to=the=Second * *

DUEBER-HAMPDEN WATCHES

The Dueber-Hampden Highest Grade American Watches

Are "Lever Set" and Cannot "Set" in the Pocket.

Look for these "Trade Marks" on the Works:

"SPECIAL RAILWAY" 23 Jewels. "SPECIAL RAILWAY" 21 Jewels. "JOHN HANCOCK" 21 Jewels. "NEW RAILWAY" 17 Jewels.

Look for the Name "Dueber" in Case.

THE DUEBER-HAMPDEN WATCH WORKS, CANTON, OHIO.

$

Our "Guide to Watch Buyers" sent Free.

"The 400" THE BEST LADIES' AMERICAN WATCH, Made Only by this Company.

Mr. Varney, and his astral body will be transferred to you in the same way, and-

"But," I interrupted, "what good will it do me to get into Jack Varney's body?"

"The result will be this: You are accustomed to your own physical body and its peculiar disease. It is the same with Mr. Varney. Now the change of bodies, for a time, will bring a new mind in control of each, and the psychological influence will be so entirely different that no disease can remain. Each physical body will yield to this new mind controllment, and health will be completely restored. This treatment I shall maintain for a week precisely, and at the end of that time you will each resume your former condition. And let me say once more, your life depends on the experiment. Do you still consent?"

"If Jack Varney can stand it, I can," I answered, desperately. "Go on with your astral-body treatment."

Without a word Dr. Jarvis unlocked a small safe which stood near, and from it produced a curious, triangular-shaped box. Opening this saw it contained a number of minute vials. A strange, far-away expression came to the doctor's eyes as he looked at them, and for fully five minutes he stood silent, apparently oblivious of my presence. Then carefully selecting one of the vials, he allowed a drop to fall into a glass partially filled with water. This he bade me drink. I cannot describe the sensation it gave me. It seemed to me my whole being was torn asunder. I knew I was dying, but I could not speak. Then I floated out on the great sea of eternity and became uncon-

It was with a confused feeling that I opened my eyes again. I was in a handsomely furnished office, seated at a table with a pen in my hand. What had happened and where was I? The place had a familiar look, and as my mind became clearer I recognized it. I was in the office of John Varney, and alone. I looked at the mirror over the mantel opposite, and the sight nearly paralyzed me. The reflection was not my own, but Varney's. I understood it all in an instant. The large, handsome figure in the office chair was that of my friend, but I inhabited it, and as for Varney-Well, if his portly astral body was squeezed into my small, presently, and sat down in front of me. When some property Jack had for sale. While strollspare form, he must be extremely uncomforta- he saw me he enquired how his foreclosure case ing about I saw a large man, not far from me, ble. I laughed long and loud as I thought of was progressing in court. In my ill-humor I and the sight of him alarmed me, especially as it. I looked at the pen in my hand and at the half-written letter on the table. Jack must have been writing when overtaken by the change, and I began to read:

"MY DEAR MISS WOOD.

I received your note this morning, and I am glad you enjoy the flowers I sent you. I was sure their beauty and fragrance would please you. By the way, there is to be a charming little opera at one of the theaters tomorrow evening, and if you—"

That ended the letter. Jack Varney was gone and I was in his place. My friend was a bachelor, but I knew he was quite attentive to a certain aristocratic young lady-a Miss Elsie Wood-but how far the matter had progressed I knew not. What should I do about it? I was Jack Varney to all intents and purposes for a week, and I must act out my part. A spirit of mischief seized me and I finished the letter, and to my surprise the handwriting was

"are willing, I will call for you. After the show we will indulge in the usual ice-cream and fervent osculation on the way home. With a thousand kisses, I am Your loving JACK.

I had just placed the missive in an envelope, fer your astral body to the physical body of when the mail-carrier came and took it away. Then I started to get up from the chair.

"Great Scott, and Holy Moses!" I exclaimed, as a sharp twinge of pain seized me in the left leg, causing me to sit down again. "Why that's rheumatism, and I never had it before in

I recollected then that rheumatism was Jack's particular "thorn in the flesh," and I wondered how he was getting along with my peculiar ailments. For nearly an hour I waited, when sight during that period. Then we separated. suddenly the door burst open, and Jack came tearing in-that is, my body with Jack in it. He was evidently irritated, and also excited.

"Hello, Morris, you are here? Well, if I haven't had a time. Your confounded carcass was so full of nervousness that I could hardly keep still after leaving the doctor's office. If I had known how bad off you were I wouldn't have traded-even for a week. By the way," glancing at the table, "where is that letter?"

"I finished it for you, and sent it to Miss Wood."

"The thunder you did! What did you write?"

have a kissing-match on the way home, and I would treat her to ice-cream."

For a moment Jack was speechless.

"Great Heavens!" he groaned. "Look here, Morris, if I had my body for two minutes I'd break every bone you've got. Why, Miss Wood is one of the most cultured, sensitive ladies in New York, and proud as Lucifer. Kissing and ice-cream, indeed! You couldn't touch her with a ten-foot pole. What will she think?"

"Oh, I will make it all right when I see her." I replied, soothingly. "I have had lots of experience."

"I am afraid your experience won't amount to much in this case," said Jack, somewhat mollified, and beginning to laugh. "However, you will have to get me out of the scrape. And, come to think, I may have got you into one on my way here." "In what way?"

"In this: Your body, in its present condition, is so nervous and fidgety that it made me cross the moment I got into it. I came here on the street-car, and all the way I was almost irresponsible. An old gentleman came on, gone to a lonely part of the city to look at forgot myself, and told him I had no recollection of him, and never heard he had a case in court. This seemed to nettle him, and he remarked, sarcastically, that he had paid me a retainer of five hundred dollars, and perhaps I could not remember that? By this time I was wild with pain, and I told him to go to Hades; that I never saw him before, and he never paid me a cent in his life. He said no more after that, but got off the car in high dudgeon."

"You certainly have made mischief," I answered, shocked at the statement. "Why, that man is the millionaire, General Van Dyke, and his practice, alone, is worth three thousand dollars a year to me. I suppose, now, he will employ another lawyer."

"Well," pursued Jack, sinking back in a chair with a regretful sigh, "I am sorry for what has happened. We are both in for trouble for a week, that's sure. We may, or may not, recover our health, but I am afraid we will lose reputation and fortune in the meanwhile. I wish we hadn't made the exchange, but we can't help it now."

"No; but we must arrange to avoid trouble

"I will take charge of your office, and you of mine, and we will confer often, and whenever it is necessary. Of course there will be awkward situations for each of us, but that cannot be prevented."

Jack agreed to this, and for nearly an hour we discussed plans of procedure. I had him write a letter to my wife, saying important business had called me out of town for a week, and also insisted he should keep out of her

I managed the real-estate business the following day without any serious mishap, while Jack informed me by telephone that he was doing splendidly as a lawyer. He said he had given my clients common-sense advice-something they were not used to-and had taken in a goodly amount of fees. In the evening, arrayed in Jack's best clothes, I called for Miss Wood. I was not acquainted with her, but had learned where she lived. In response to my ring a servant ushered me into a parlor, and presently a tall, dignified, young lady came in.

"I received your note, Mr. Varney," she said haughtily, "and, to say the least, I was surpris-"I said I would call for her, and we would ed at its contents. At what time, sir, have I given encouragement for such familiarity?"

"Why-I beg pardon, Miss Wood," I stammered, "but I never saw you before-that is-

"Never saw me before?"

"No-I don't mean that. That is-please hear me, Miss Wood. I mean"-

"You need not explain, Mr. Varney. You are not in a condition to know what you mean. I can enlighten you, however. You were intoxicated when you wrote that note, and you are intoxicated now. Oblige me by leaving the house, sir."

There was nothing to do but to obey, and this I did immediately. But before the door closed I saw the proud head buried in a handkerchief, and knew she was sobbing violently. Greatly disturbed, I at once hunted up Jack, and told him the whole story. Naturally he took it to heart, and blamed me somewhat, but after we had spent the evening at the club he felt better, and forgave me.

I had an experience the next day that, I must say, afforded me unalloyed pleasure. I had a rough bru fellow, for whom I had done some legal business, but he had refused to pay me, and had threatened me, also, with bodily injury. How should I escape him? I was in a tremor of fear, when a sudden thought came to me. I recollected it was Jack Varney's powerful body I was in, and I knew Jack was an expert boxer. My terror fled at once, and a savage joy seized me. I strode forward, laid my hand on the fellow's shoulder, and whirled him around.

"Your name is McGraw?" I asked.

"It is," he answered, sullenly.

"Well, then, Mr. McGraw, you refused to pay your lawyer, Mr. Morris, fifty dollars you honestly owed him, and also abused him shamefully, knowing he was a small, weak man. You are a cowardly cur, McGraw. Now I am a friend of Mr. Morris', and I want you to pay me that fifty dollars here and now, or take a whipping."

The man was evidently frightened, but he began to bluster, and made a motion to strike me. Instantly my right arm shot out from the shoulder, and Mr. McGraw stretched his length on and misunderstanding in the future," I said. the ground. As he arose I knocked him down again. This time I stood over him, and threatened him with dire vengeance if he did not yield. Thoroughly cowed he began to whimper.

"I've got the money, an' I'll pay ye, if ye'll let me up. But if I ever come across that Morris"—

Morris"—
"Now listen, McGraw," I interrupted, as I placed the money in my pocket, "if you ever speak to, or meddle with Mr. Morris again, I will hunt you up and pound you to a jelly. Will you promise?"
"That I will. I'll keep clear of ye both after this," answered the subdued McGraw, as he hastened away.

"That I will. I'll keep clear of ye both after this," answered the subdued McGraw, as he hastened away.

Fortunately no one saw us, so I avoided unpleasant explanation. This adventure gave me a new idea, and, I regret to say, made me very pugnacious. A little power is a bad thing with some men, and it was with me. During the week I looked up several of my enemies, and left them with blackened eyes and other marks of my disapproval. I was fined once for assault, but paid it cheerfully. Indeed, I was almost willing to keep my astral body where it was, but Jack would not consent, even if it could be done; he also expressed a fear that I was bringing his character into disrepute. One thing we noticed, however, as the days passed. We both were rapidly recovering our health. The rheumatism had left me, and Jack said he was entirely free from the nervous trouble.

One morning, as I was seated in Jack's office, the door suddenly opened, and my wife came in. I was so delighted to see her that I sprang forward, and kissed her before I thought.

"Why Mr. Varney," she exclaimed indignantly. "Such conduct is outrageous."

"It is, indeed, Mrs. Morris," I answered, recovering myself, "but in the dim light I thought you were my sister. I earnestly beg your pardon for the mistake."

"Oh, that was it. Well, mistakes will happen. I have called, Mr. Varney, to ask whether you have seen my husband lately?"

"I see him almost every day," I replied, but instantly regretted the remark.

My wife seemed very much disturbed.

"That confirms my suspicions," she said sorrowfully. "I received a note from him a few days ago, saying he would be out of the city for a week, and since then I have been told by several of his friends that they had met him, and he had acted strangely, and did not seem to know them. I went to his office, and was informed by his clerks he had been there every day, but his conduct was unusual, and he was not himself. And yesterday I saw him, as he was getting on a street-car. I spoke to him, but he answered gruffly th

"But why did he not come home? and why should he forget his former friends and clients?"

I could not explain this, and after a few re-I could not explain this, and after a few remarks my wife went sadly away, leaving me in a gloomy frame of mind. The affair was becoming too serious. Jack and I might have restored health but lose character and friends as a result. Where would it end? The question was answered two days later by an unexpected climax. A boy came in hurriedly with

"Dear Morris:

Come over to Judge Graff's rooms.

Thunder is to pay. Your wife has me up for being insane. Don't stop for anything, but for heaven's sake come at once.

Jack."

For a moment I was dumbfounded. I saw it For a moment I was dumbfounded. I saw it all at a glance. Jack was not well acquainted with my wife, and probably had met her several times without knowing who she was. And then, too, being ignorant of my business, and not knowing many of my clients and friends, he had, apparently, acted strangely at times. No wonder they thought him insane. It might come my turn next, and both of us be placed in the insane asylum. I groaned as I thought of it.

of it.

I lost no time in going to Judge Graff's court. My wife was there, and also a number of my clients, as witnesses. Dr. Sprague, my family physician, had been called in as an expert. In the midst of the group was Jack, very angry and excited, who was telling his incredulous listeners a wonderful story about astrabodies, and claiming that he was Jack Varney. Of course no one believed him. He saw me as I came in. I came in.
"Come here, Morris," he shouted, "and tell

"Come here, Morris," he shouted, "and tell these confounded idiots the straight of this business. I just told them we traded astral bodies, and that's all there is to it. But this learned donkey, Dr. Sprague, doesn't know an astral-body from a side of sole-leather. He says he never saw one."

"This is a very common delusion," said the doctor, addressing the court. "Many of the insane imagine themselves to be other persons. I have a patient, now, who believes herself to be the celebrated Queen Mary, of old English times."

asylum.

I at once sought my wife and Dr. Sprague, and in a private interview related my wonderful experience. My wife was convinced, but the doctor would not believe a word of it. Finally, I invited him to go with me to Dr. Jarvis the next day, which he did, and the two medical gentlemen had a long discussion. Indeed, Dr. Sprague was so impressed that he declared he was going to try the astral-body treatment for his own ailments.

But why prolong this story? In due time Jack and I resumed our normal condition, and occupied our individual bodies again. The medical journals got hold of the matter in some way, and, without mentioning our names, gave Dr. Jarvis such a puff that he was the talk of the city. Thousands of the best people in New York visited him, and went about, afterward with other peoples against bodies and no ward, with other people's astral bodies, and no end of confusion resulted. But one treatment was enough for us. We had splendid health, and soon regained our reputation. A few months later I received the following:

Dear Morris:

"Dear Morris:

Miss Wood and I are to be married next Thursday morning at Grace Church. So get your astral body and material body together, and come. Bring your wife with you.

Yours, as ever.

McKeough.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY LILIAN WRIGHT. Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

The "Coomin' Back" of Kathleen

URING the closing months of the year of Grace 1900, Blankton had been treated to a genuine ghost seen by hundreds of her most reliable citizens, -Blankton the far famed Queen Cityher crest surmounted by magnificent buildings, her feet laved in the broad lake, the bright water way between the busy city and the blue mountains beyond,—Blankton, a center of culture and enlightenment.

A few years ago some wealthy manufacturers in Massachusetts, attracted by Dr. Hale's tribute to Blankton as a model city, built an immense cotton mill a mile or two below the city on a broad plain having on every side fine views of city, lake and mountain. The good wages and pleasant surroundings have made its future in every way a success, attracting an abundance of help of the better class.

About three years ago a slip of a girl fresh from the Green Isle, with that marvelous complexion that seems the birthright of some of plexion that seems the birthright of some of Erin's poorest daughters, intercepted the Superintendent one morning with "Ef ye plaze sur, axin yer parding, but its wurrk I must be havin'; ye'll giv it to me shure?" and looking into the girl's liquid blue eyes, noting the tangled mass of blue-black hair half covered by a gay plaid shawl, the Superintendent, contrary to all precedents, yielded to the entreaties of the pleading voice and then and there hired Kathleen McKeough, whose aptness and industry made her progress so rapid that in a few weeks she was running a set of looms, and the Superintendent began to feel justified in following an impulse.

Then came an unasked-for vacation, and just Then came an unasked-for vacation, and just as she was given up for lost Kathleen returned haggard and beautiful, and penitent for having gone off on a spree. "Och! wisha, wisha, that me mither's bairn should gang wi the evil spirits" was her lament, so the Superintendent sent a note to the overseer and Kathleen was given her looms again.

spirits' was her lament, so the Supermental sent a note to the overseer and Kathleen was given her looms again.

Her humble manner disarmed her fellow-workers' criticisms and her remarkable skill as a weaver inspired a species of awe. No loom ever ran at such a high rate of speed as hers. The shuttles flew like things bewitched, yet there was never a flaw in the web. Often and often during her three years' stay the overseer, attracted by the peculiar sibilant sound of Kathleen's looms would go to check the terrible velocity, but watching the lithe, swaying figure and the flying shuttles there seemed to be some subtle power in the girl that kept the complicated machine in abeyance, that kept every part true when every other loom in the mill would be heated run at half that speed, so the reproof was always unspoken.

would be heated run at half that speed, so the reproof was always unspoken.

In a few weeks Kathleen's looms were unaccountably idle a few days, then she came back with the old story of the pixies call, and—well with mutual apologies the Superintendent and overseer gave the girl another trial. Their respective wives took great interest in the shapely, gentle, docile creature who was most tractable in their reformatory hands. A few weeks later came a day of such terrific speed to her looms the women were afraid to work near her, and an hour before closing the timekeeper heard a stealthy, catlike sound and his quick raised eyes met the gaze of a hunted wild animal. When he collected his shattered senses he was all alone, just outside he saw Kathleen flymal. When he collected his shattered senses he was all alone, just outside he saw Kathleen flying down the walk. Then her looms were idle a few days when she came back with the old story—and the old result. Before many months the Superintendent and overseer ceased apologizing to each other for their lax discipline, and their wives and the good women of St. Paul's were unremitting in their endeavors to help her, but no permanent reform rewarded

"This is a very common delusion," said the doctor, addressing the court. "Many of the insane imagine themselves to be other persons. I have a patient, now, who believes herself to be the celebrated Queen Mary, of old English times."

"I'd like to be Queen Mary for about two hours," interrupted Jack, "I would supply all the martyrs out of this crowd, and pay for the kindling-wood of the auto da fe, beside."

I did my utmost to convince the judge of the real facts of the case, and requested the matter be postponed until the following day, when the week would be out. But the judge only smiled indulgently. He evidently thought I was talking for my friend's benefit, and did not believe my own statements. And so, in spite of my protestation, my body with poor Jack in it, was pronounced insane, and hurried off to the asylum.

I at once sought my wife and Dr. Sprague.

"How many times have you told me that in the past three years?" asked the Superintendent. "Twinty if wanst. But I mane it now." Ab-h-h ye must thry me wanst more. I haven't a dollar, me landlady won't kape me afther the mornin!"

"Here's some money my wife will lend you; pay your board and go to her or to the Adams mission." "Niver," was the firm reply "giv me the

"Niver," was the firm reply "giv me the whirlin' spindles, me spirits hungry furthim." Then the Superintendent showed her a paper signed by every woman on the pay roll declaring they would leave if Kathleen was taken back again. The wan face grew more haggard as she heard the paper read, but at last with rallying courage she asked for night work—that was equally impossible for only men were employed.

employed.

Finally, realizing the mill was closed against her forever, in a fury of rage she broke out in a torrent of wild North-Ireland speech. Again the Superintendent besought her to go to his wife or the Mission but the defiant answer was "Giv me looms or its to Baththery street I'll be goin' for shure.

"Giv me looms or its to Baththery street I'll be goin' for shure."
"Don't go to Battery street Kathleen," cried the Superintendent and this time she heard the angel in the man and paused irresolutely with her hand on the door and a look in her eyes the Superintendent will never forget; she said impressively: "It's comin' back to me looms at sivin tonight I am an' niver will I miss me job this year this day"—and the door closed. West of the mill are the railway tracks. The Central Vermont Vestibuled "Flyer" from Montreal to New York pulls out of Blankton at 6.15 p.m. and before the mill is reached has begun the famous fifteen miles in thirteen minutes. The Superintendent of the cotton mill is one of those methodical souls who works till the task is completed, and this hush spring evening at 6.52 was turning the key in his desk when Kathleen's voice shrieked. "Oh! Holy Mary save me," and her agonized face appeared before him an instant and faded with groans, clanging bells and shrieking whistle from the locomotive, then sudden silence, and he rushed out in the dusk to where the engine stood, a great palpitating monster with extinguished lights. The engineer turned lence, and he rushed out in the dusk to where the engine stood, a great palpitating monster with extinguished lights. The engineer turned on the lights and together they beheld on the cowcatcher a form mangled beyond recognition, just below the headlight; wrapped in masses of the blackest hair was a scarless head, and Kathleen's wonderful eyes looked into theirs with speechless appeal.

Strong arms carried the lifeless body to the mill, toward which the erring feet had turned through the springtime mud. Generous purses provided for the burial from the Cathedral, on whose altar lay the sacred links from the chains that once fettered St. Peter, tapers were lighted, flowers scattered and masses chanted just as the Romish heart of Kathleen McKeough would best have liked.

ed, flowers scattered and masses chanted just as the Romish heart of Kathleen McKeough would best have liked.

The night of the burial the "Flyer" struck an obstruction on the tracks opposite the cotton mills at 6:52, and the bell clanged, the whistle shrieked and lights went out as Kathleen's face appeared and her voice was heard by both engineer and fireman. Re-lighting and hastily dismounting they found absolutely nothing on the track or engine, and looking sheepishly at each other said nothing.

At seven o'clock that night while on his rounds, the night watchman heard a set of looms running in No. 3, but supposing the repairer was testing them did not look in. Hearing the looms each half hour as he passed, at nine unlocked the door and beheld Kathleen McKeough running her looms with the oldtime celerity. Scarcely believing his senses he called two other watchmen who at once recognized her. Next day they went to the parish priest, who assured them she was laid in consecrated ground facing the coming Archangel.

Assured that all was well with her unquiet soul they were unprepared to find her at work again that night. But there she was, and there she has been steadily at work each night for many months, taking only fifteen minutes rest for lunch as she used to do in life. All the old watchmen and many new watchmen have seen and heard her at work all the long night till five in the morning, when she takes out her web, folds and carries it with her the forbidden way across the tracks in the gray light of dawn, vanishing in light.

As soon as this was known, Blankton people seented the facts as an old wives' tale but the top vanishing in light.

As soon as this was known, Blankton people scouted the facts as an old wives' tale, but the most incredulous scoff no more after going to most incredulous scoff no more after going to the weaving room—and no longer explain the phenomenon.

All summer long the down "Flyer" was jolted, juggled, shrieked and stopped with lights out, at the place where Kathleen was killed, and always her voice is heard and her face is seen by the engineer, who is unable to put on steam enough to run past the fatal spot. Extra track walkers and new engineers were powerless to prevent the occurrence. At last in sheer desperation the time table was revised and the time of leaving changed one hour. First the track walkers, then the curious who took the trouble to go there, saw and heard another train pass at 6:52. Saw and heard Kathleen's screams, the locomotive with extinguished lights, all as really happened that fatal ed lights, all as really happened that fatal night.

In spite of reason, steady nerves and heredi-In spite of reason, steady nerves and nereditary common sense, all who have looked into the matter are forced to admit that thus far Kathleen McKeough has kept her promise: "It's coomin' back to me loom at sivin tonight I am, an' niver wanst will I miss me job this year the day."

We have never found a more prompt nor We have never found a more prompt nor effective remedy for neuralgic pains than five-grain antikamnia tablets, and to those who are subject to such pains, we recommend that they keep a supply of tablets on hand, as one dose, two tablets, given in the beginning of the attack, usually makes it unnecessary to administer the second dose.—Southwestern Medical Journal.

THREE DOLLARS a day sure. Without a doubt a great opportunity. For particulars see last page of this paper.

D., subject to examination, this celebrated high-grade, high-arm, highly polished 5-drawer drophead oak cabinet "CARLAND" sewing machine, guaranteed for 20 years. If found perfectly satisfactory and the greatest bargain you can get for the money, pay the station agent

OUR SPECIAL $ 12 * 5 AND FREIGHT OFFER PRICE Complete set of attachments free. 5-Drawer Drophead "La Reine" $15.95 5-Drawer Drophead "Newport" 16.95 Hiustrated Catalogue Free on application. THE LOUIS E. VEHON CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

ACENTS 200 TO $500

MAKE FROM 3200 TO $500

MAKE FROM 3200 TO $500

MAKE FROM 3200 TO $500

MAKE FROM 3200

MA

GUITAR VIOLIN, MANDOLIN BANJO Seif-Taught, Without Notes by Figure Music. Send for BIG Illustrated Catalog of Instructors and Instruments, E. C. HOWE, 1642 Masonic Temple, Chicago.

ORPHINE Free Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium Palnies, Derranent Palnies, Derranent Palnies, Derranent Palnies, Derranent Demoné Cure, Contain Bt. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

LET US START YOU! 點條다

Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating.
At home or unveiling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's MACHINES. Thates watches, dowlry Tableware, Sigveies, and at metal goods. No Experience. Heavy plate. New methods. We do plating, manufacture outfling all siles. Guaranteed. Only outfle complete, all tools, lathes, material, etc., ready for work. We teach you, furnish secrets, formulas FREE Write today. Famphier, samples, etc. free. Write today. Famphier, samples, etc. free.

No DAYS FREE TRIAL We ship our wheels anywhere on approval inthout a cent deposit and allow 10 days free trial. You take absolutely no risk in ordering from us.

1901 MODELS $10 to $18
best makes 994:00 MODELS $7 to $12
high grade
1000 SECOND HAND WHEELS, all makes and models, good as new,
$8 to $8. Great factory cleaning sale at half factory cost. thalf factory cost.

AGENTS WANTED in every own. We furnish wheel and catalogs

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but It

MEAD CYCLE CO. Dept. 17 F. Chicago.

Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Pollshing Cloth, a wonderful prepared cloth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brillant issting polish this cloth, a brillant issting polish this cloth, a brillant issting polish the cloth, a brillant issting polish the placed on Tableware, and the placed on Tableware. Flated warrs Bright absolutely clean, ass., etc., Bright, absolutely clean, and etc., and will last. The Great, ass., the Great, ass., ass.,

Ready, quites, them, and the Century.

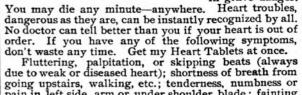

A Bargain Offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell these toloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both axess. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth full size, sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agent's prices. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfied.

SUNSHINE, BOX 551, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

If you have heart

disease you are in grave danger.

Sudden Dea

pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

Heart Disease

choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs) neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk. It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. F. G. KINSMAN, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher

ERO was his name though it was a misnomer, for he was by no means cruel by nature.

If there was anyone whom Nero disliked. after a certain tragic happening in his life, it was a tramp, for he was wont to growl and show his teeth at sight of one of these itinerant vagabonds.

This was to be wondered at as he had first been seen in the village of S-as the canine comrade of a band of tramps; but whether willingly in their company, or by force of circumstances beyond his control, the human contingent vouchsafed no information to the curiously inclined.

Continuing on their way with Nero in their midst, a noble brute among ignoble men, the tramps passed a handsome house two miles from the village of S-, situated upon the river bank and dangerously near a fall, over which the stream tumbled with deafening roar.

Suddenly the tramps halted in dismay as they beheld a tiny row-boat floating down the stream and containing two occupants, a little boy of nine and a girl of seven years.

They had lost an oar and with the one remaining could not get back to the shore and it was drifting toward the falls, its speed increas-ing as it approached the foaming, roaring wa-

The tramps stood motionless, either in awe at the danger the children were in or indifferent to their fate. Perhaps their antipathy to water prevented an attempt at rescue, be their reward what it might.

reward what it might.

It was true that a suggestion was made that some one plunge into the river and catch the floating boat, swiftly gliding to destruction; but the very idea of getting wet was received with a shudden but the very idea of getting wet was received with a shudder.

But one of the fraternity was an exception—the great Newfoundland dog the tramps had called Nero. He saw the danger the children were in and at once plunged to the rescue.

In vain did the tramps shout to him to return, for boldly he kept on, reached the boat, seized the rope hanging over the bow and turned toward the shore.

Could he save the children, or would be go

Could he save the children, or would he go over the falls with them? For a moment it seemed that he would fail in his noble effort, but then it was seen that the boat gained headway toward the shore and just in time, for had it gone further down the stream the attempt at rescue would have been in vain.

It was a desperate struggle as it was; but aid

It was a desperate struggle as it was; but aid came in the person of a horseman who dashed into the stream, seized the boat and dragged it ashore, where, before he could clasp his rescued children in his arms, they had sprung out and were both hugging their dog rescuer as though he had been a human being.

"Whose splendid dog is this?" asked the gentleman as he bent over the panting animal.

"He is our dog, Mister, and we told him to do it—he's our Mascot," said one of the tramps, while the others nodded an acquiescence.

"I should have thought that one of you at least would have attempted what he accomplished; but I will not quarrel with you, as your dog saved my children from certain death, and I will pay you your price for him."

"That dog haint fer sale at no price, for he's our Mascot."

"I will give you a hundred dollars for him."

"Two hundred?"

 \mathbf{E}

"No."
"Three hundred?"
"He haint fer sale at no price."
Entreaty was in vain for the tramps started on their way, though the gentleman said as a last offer to tempt them:
"See here, men, this bag contains five hundred dollars, funds I hold of the Red Cross Society of which I am Treasurer. I was going to put it in the Bank, but it is too late now to deposit it today, and as it stands I will give it to you and make up the sum which was raised for a special object out of my own funds."

Even this generous offer was refused and the faithful dog, while the two children wept bit-terly at their father's unsuccessful efforts to purchase Nero.

purchase Nero.
That night the handsome home of Mr. Louis Dewhurst, the Treasurer of the Red Cross Society, was entered and robbed.
Among other things stolen was the bag of money the Tramps had refused, and though the robbers had been fired upon by Mr. Dewhurst they had escaped with their booty, and when the day dawned no trace of them could be found, for it was not noticed until later that one of for it was not noticed until later that one of the rowboats belonging to the place missing.

The next night Mr. Dewhurst was aroused by the loud barking of a dog, and going to the piazza there he found Nero, wet and muddy, while before him lay the bag containing the Red Cross money the tramps had refused to take in payment for their dog.

The bag was wet, but it had not been opened, for the money was all there.

The strange actions of the dog, his apparent desire to have Mr. Dewhurst accompany him, at last decided that gentleman as to what he would do, so he called up the servants, lanterns were procured and the party followed Nero.

were procured and the party followed Nero.

He led the way to the river and while he plunged in to swim across, Mr. Dewhurst and his men got into a boat to follow, it then being noticed that one of the pleasure skiffs was to an old deserted house. He barked loudly as to an old deserted house. He barked loudly as he approached and the glimmer of the lanterns caused a stampede of the tramps—all save one. That one was lying upon the floor, dying from a bullet wound received the night before when robbing the Dewhurst home.

Going to the man, the dog licked his hands affectionstely, while with an effort came the affectionately, while with an effort came the You can't punish me now, for I'll soon pass away and my dog will be the only one to mourn for me." "I leave him to you, sir, for I know that you and your children will be good to him. I love him dearly, for I raised him from a purpy and when I went to the bad two years ago, he followed my evil fortunes.

"He stole thet beg of money from us, to take ago, he followed my evil fortunes.

"He stole that bag of money from us to take back to you, and the rest of the booty is here, for my pals fled without it.

"Who I am matters not—I am—only a tramp."

A doctor was sent for by Mr. Dewhurst, also a constable, but the tramp died before their arrival. He was buried in the village grave yard the next day, Nero being the only mourn-yard the next day, Nero being the only mourner for the unknown tramp.

From his master's grave to the Dewhurst home went Nero, to become a welcome and honored guest. When the next meeting of the Red Cross Society was held, the story of his almost human deeds was told, along with his devotion to his master in his life of crime. By a unanimous vote of the Society, it was decided that a dog that had done for them what Nero had, was worthy of being made an honorary member, and accordingly his name was changed to "Hero", and he was presented with a handsome silver-mounted collar, upon which in enamel was the emblem of the Red Cross.

The Zaildar of Rach'na.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

ACH'NA is the name of the doab lying between the rivers Ra'vi and Chinab, and at the time of our writing, Bu'ra was zaildar of the cluster of little villages scattered among the banana fields at the south end of the doab.

Now Bu'ra was nothing if not a hater of the conquering race; and again, he was nothing if not a dissembler. He was chief among cowards, and that was well, for it prolonged life; and he believed implicitly in his own courage, and that was well, too, for it was a bulwark to his complacency. But the curious part in his complexity of character was a quick and sympathetic recognition of the heroic in others. and that was not well, for it sometimes worked against his interest or his hate.

Over on the bank of the Ra'vi was Pan'kla, where a pier was built out to deep water, the only one among the villages on that side; and across on the Chinab, at Na'ya, was another pier, the only one on the Chinab side of the doab. Twelve cos—that is to say, about twenty miles—above Na'ya, was a missionary settlement; and twenty cos below Pan'kla was a seaport where trading vessels occasionally stop-ped. Thus, incoming and outgoing mission-aries found the Rach'na a convenient way of aries found the Rach'na a convenient way of shortening a tedious journey; and though there was occasionally a mysterious accident or disappearance, the travelers congratulated themselves on having such an agreeable and sincere friend as Bu'ra the zaildar.

So when rumors of an uprising among the Hindoos grew rife, which speedily became more than rumors and more than local in character, these missionaries looked to the Rach'na as a sure way of escape or place of refuze; and sure way of escape or place of refuge; and when Bu'ra of his own accord went among when Bu'ra of his own accord went among them, conciliatory, effusive, magnanimous, promising all they asked and more even than they had imagined, they cast fear and apprehension to the winds, and remained until all apparent possibility of escape was gone. Then one day they slipped across the dangerous intervening territory to Na'ya, expecting to cross the doab in the security of Bu'ra's friendship and to be furnished with a strong escort by him for the journey from Pan'kha to the seaport.

by him for the journey from Pan'kha to the seaport.

Sawar was lam'bardar of Na'ya, and can best be described by the word crafty; but like his master, the zaildar, his face was benevolent, with round, cordial, innocent eyes. Only sometimes, when he was alone, the corners of his mouth which had been taught to curve upward, would straighten obliquely toward his ears; and at such times his eyes would narrow and glitter, like a serpent disturbed or a panther that had gone long without food. But such revelations were only for his solitude, when his thoughts turned frankly inward; when they probed outward, craftily, his face did as it had been taught, and was the face of a good man. On the other hand the lam'bardar of Pan'kha was just what he looked, a bullet-headed, straightforward villain, as scornful of mercy as he was incapable of showing it. But in public service both Tez of Pan'kha and Sawar of Na'ya had but one mind, and that was the mind of had but one mind, and that was the mind of their master, the zaildar.

On the surface it seemed remarkable that the missionaries could pass through the dangerous territory to the security of Rach'na, for stealthy forms glided from shadow to shadow and murderous regulared at them from overver correct. derous eyes glared at them from every covert along the journey. But pass through they did, without molestation or even intimation of danger; and Bu'ra met them with cordial congrathis men got into a boat to follow, it then being noticed that one of the pleasure skiffs was missing.

Lending on the other shore, the dog led the way through a thick woodland until he came

"The sahibs and mem-sahibs will stop at Na'ya to rest over night," smiled the zaildar, after the salutations were over. "That will be Na'ya to rest over night," smiled the zaildar, after the salutations were over. "That will be best, then they will be strong to accompany my young men to Pan'kha and on to the great water. I myself bu'ra, with the head men of my villages, will go to the limit of Rach'na for their further security. The Sahibs are my masters, and my poor life is but a small offering for their safety." their safety.

If any misgiving had been felt, this and the fact that they passed through the night in safety and were entertained with a royal repast in the morning, would have dispelled it; but in point of fact, no one had entertained suspicion. Bu'ra was a true friend and ally. His face even more than his words, proclaimed

Half way across Rach'na was a narrow defile

Half way across Rach'na was a narrow defile between overhanging cliffs. Here travelers were obliged to go in single file and pick their way very slowly and carefully. It was a place for accident or ambush, to be avoided on a dark night, or at any time were it not that Rach'na was a friendly territory.

As the party entered the defile, it lengthened out, the scouts in advance with Teg, the sahibs and mem-sahibs in the centre under the beaming guardianship of Bu'ro, while the rear was brought up by Sawar and his men. Teg looked stolidly villainous, but his eyes were gleaming; Sewar was the caricature of his master, benign, suave, soft-voiced, but alert.

As they advanced, Bu'ra's swift eyes investigated the brows of the cliffs, the jagged rocks among which they were threading their way, personal ornaments and baggage of the travelers; but more than all, the faces of the sahibs and mem-sahibs. If there was any one thing in the world which the benevolent zaildar loved above spoils, it was to see faces blanch and forms quiver and voices cry out in agony of utter terror. Not even spectacles of heroism, of stoical endurance, could give him such exquisite pleasure as this.

of utter terror. Not even speciacles of heroism, of stoical endurance, could give him such exquisite pleasure as this.
"If the sahibs will now look," his suave voice was saying as they apppoached the narrowest part of the defile, "they will see things upon which travelers rarely gaze but once. Sahibs are fond of strange and terrifying sights, and this will be sufficient for a life-time. See?"

See?"
All craned forward eagerly, as one by one they rounded an angle in the defile; and then, one by one, as the dread spectacle burst upon them, they swayed back with an indrawn gasp of comprehending horror. The cliffs were lined with savage faces, other savage faces were peering at them from behind boulders; the scouts had stopped and turned towards them. Teg ferocious and eager, and his wild horde beginning to brandish their clubs; Sawar was pushing forward remorselessly; and right there in their midst was Bu'ra smiling, deprecating, snave, but with an intangible something in his expression which they had not seen before, something terrible. something terrible.

They understood in a flash; and after that one gasp of horror the dread left their faces, and they looked at each other calmly, almost triumphantly. They were without weapons,—without knowledge of weapons,—but it was instructed by the state of the stat just as well; weapons would have been worse than useless there. Bu'ra watched them smilingly, gloatingly, Bu'ra watched them smilingly, gloatingly, then wonderingly. Why did they not wring their hands and shriek and plead for mercy. That was the usual way. But perhaps they were too paralyzed with fear to even cry out. Yes, that was it, surely.

"It is a fine sight, sahibs," he breathed softly, "one it is not easy to forget. And it has all been arranged for the sahib's benefit. Bu'ra is lavish in behalf of his guests."
"Yes, I see, I am very sorry, Bu'ra—for you." There was no fear in the leader's voice, only regret; and as Bu'ra's keen eyes searched the calm face and clear gaze, he read more of compassion than anger.

passion than anger.

"Sahibs," he began brusquely, but the leader had raised his hand, and at the signal the sanad raised his hand, and at the signal the sa-hibs and mem-sahibs dropped upon their knees. Bu'ra's eyes began to gleam. Now the Kira'ni were going to cry to their God for suc-cor, and that would be almost as pleasant as to hear them cry to him. And indeed it would not be long now before they would be groveling about his feet.

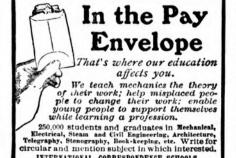

But no! Instead of supplication, their voices

But no! Instead of supplication, their voices rose in a clear, joyous paean of victory, swelling out into the remote parts of the defile, and up, up to the brows of the cliffs, where the dark-faced, flerce-eyed men lowered their spears and clubs to listen.

Bu'ra watched with sharp, scrutinizing eyes, at first expectantly, then with chagrin written on his face, then curiously. When the travelers rose, the intangible something which had been terrible was gone from his face, leaving it again suave, benevolent, frank.

He was smiling now. He had not heard frenzied supplications and cries of agony, as he had hoped; but a spectacle that was almost equally pleasing appealed to the other side of his nature. He saw sahibs and mem-sahibs facing death without a tremor or change of color; and the sight made his eyes widen, and brought his fingers to his lips in quick signalbrought his fingers to his lips in quick signal-

Sawar heard the clear, resonant whistle without a change of countenance, but to the fierce eyes of Teg came a moment of disappointment; then his face became passive. Down the defile and along the brows of the cliffs the fierce-eyed men lowered spears and clubs. They, too, knew their master. The signal ordered protection. Henceforward the travelers were to

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS,

NEW SLOCUM CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

SCIENCE WINS.

Mr. J. H. Bailey, Centerville, Miss., writes: "GAINED 30 POUNDS."

"GAINED 30 POUNDS."

"For four years I suffered from weak lungs, which developed signs of consumption. I grew rapidly worse from night sweats and gave up all hope after four physicians failed, I was reduced to a skeleton. Pinally, hearing so much about Dr. Slocum's wonderful discoveries I sent for a free course of treatment. Shortly after beginning its use I improved, and in two months was cured. I gained 30 pounds. I want to urge every consumptive to take this marvelous treatment, which cannot fail."

This is but a sample of the thousands of testimonials sent the famous physician. If you suffer from pulmonary troubles, don't delay and endanger your life when Slocum can save you.

He will kill the germ-destroying bacilli, heal the raw mucous surfaces, tone the nervous system and build solid healthy fiesh.

A full free treatment will be sent free.

This offer should be taken advantage of at once by all who suffer from Consumption, Weak Lungs, Bronchitis, Catarrh,

Asthma, Wasting Away and All Pulmonary Troubles.

FREE SAMPLES.

If you want to get well quickly, write to DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 96 AND 98 PINE ST., NEW YORK, giving your full postoffice and express address, and he will at once send you the full free course treatment direct from his great laboratories. Please mention COMFORT when writing the doctor.

LYON & HEALY'S BRASS BAND

INSTRUMENTS. Indorsed by the great Jules Levy as the best in the world. Big Catalog, 400 illustrations, FREE. Positively the lowest prices on Band Instruments, Uniforms and Supplies of all kinds. Also contains Music and Instructions for New Bands, Eyes & Healy, Manufacturers, 23 & dams st., Chicago.

(Lyon & Healy is the largest music house in the world—Editor.)

TAMME

Farmers' Sons Wanted—with knowledge of farm stock and fair education to work in an office; $46 a month with advancement; steady employment; must be honest and reliable, Branch office, or the association are being established in each state, Apply at once, giving full particulars. The Veterinary Science Ass'n, London, Canada.

NESS AND HEAD NOISES
Cured by Electricity. No Drugs.
6 months' trial FREE!
W. J. TINDALL, B. 10, Cohoes, N. Y.

CONSTIPATION

MORPHIE Easy, permanent home cure. Absolutely painless New German disphine, Opium, Laudanum and kindred drug habits. Confidential Correspondence Invited. Trial Treatment FREE, Berlin Remedy Co., Suite K, 165 W, 34th Str., N.Y.

RUPTURE CURED! NOTIONE UNREU!
WORN NIGHT and DAY.
Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE.
M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.
Ironr when you write.

$570 Greatest Offer Ever Made

Genuine American Model Full.
JEWELED, adjusted patent regulator, stem wind and stem set watch Ladies or Gentes size. Beautifully engraved, lik Gold plate hunting case, with guarantee for 20 YEARS, Sent by express
C.O.D. with privilege to examine thoroughly before paying one cent, if found best value ever given pay express agent our siecdal price $5.70 and express charges. Handsome chain and charm sent with order we enamel your full name on face of the watch (rec. Address
Z MFG. CO., Dept. E. 130-114 Dearborn St. CHICAGO.

HOLZ MFG. CO., Dept.E, 130-134 Dearborn St, CHICAGO.
Please mention COMFORT when you write.

FREE! Fun and Money. FREE! DROP A PENNY IN THE SLOT.

Golden Moments is a bright, home monthly that has so over 22 years and is only 25c, per year. It is entertaining and instructive reading matter that is suitable for the whole family it is missible for the family it is miss answer is plainly revealed so there can be no possible mistake and the Inuigh is always hillarious the machine acts so quickly and tells the weight so cutely. They are very strongly and neatly made of hard rubber composition and agents can sell thousands hesidess carning hundreds of pennies every day showing them off in a crowd or at home. After a person has been weighed he or she invariably wants to buy a maniha to work it on their friends.

Special Offer. Secure one new trial 6 mos. Lie. subscriber to our monthly and we will send one weighter to y-u free for your service; or for a new yearly subscriber and Ze. will send you two machines for your effort. 6 sold for Oc.; 1 dozen $1.90, post or express noil Auliers.

GOLDEN MOMENTS, Dept. V, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

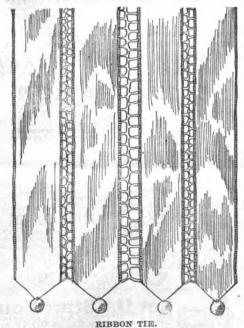

HE following letter comes to us from Capt. E. A. Wilson, Wash-ington, D. C.

E. A. Wilson, Washington, D. C.

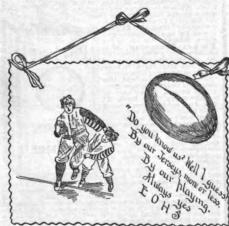

To The Editor.—Loving as I do the beautiful I want to tell your readers about two charming ever green vines which grow here in our city to perfection, adorning our palatial homes and cottages with a covering of living green. I refer to the "running winter ivy" and the "winter honeysuckle," the latter being covered in summer with variegated blossoms of delicious fragrance, and if vine is trained up and fastened, will climb fifteen to twenty feet, making a most charming fence covering, veranda or trellis shade; as an ornament and covering for the graves of our loved ones there is nothing more fitting.

The "running winter ivy" is a wonderful climber, needing no fastening, and a few roots or cuttings placed at the side of your house will soon grow and spread to cover its sides completely. As an absorbent of dampness or moisture from the outer walls of your houses it has great value, as well as being beautifully shady and ornamental. Both are impervious to frost and cold and retain their green foliage all winter long. Both are hardy and will stand sending long distances by mail, or otherwise. Several varieties of these vines are growing here, some of which lose their foliage in winter but the kinds mentioned are green the year round. These vines will take root during spring, summer or late fall. As a winter indoor ornament either of these vines may be grown in a vase or brackets each side of the window, forming a beautiful arch, and may be trained as a friese encircling your room."

With Christmas in the near future, a few suggestions for gifts that can be easily and inexpensively made will be acceptable to most of the readers of this column. The writer received a gift of a dainty tie, recently, which we illustrate herewith, and describe as follows: Four strips of inch wide blue satin ribbon, each one and one-half yards long. They are fastened together with a fancy open-work stitch made of heavy white silk. The ends of the ribbon are finished with a point, and each point has a pearl bead to finish it off. This tie goes twice around the neck, leaving ends long enough to tie in a four-in-hand knot, if desired, or, if fastened in front with a fancy brooch the ends will fall nearly to the waist. The ends may be finished with small silk tassels, if desired, which makes the tie longer.

The match-scratcher shown in the illustration is a suitable gift for a college friend. The foundation is a piece of cardboard eight and one-half inches long and five and one-half wide; to this paste a piece of watercolor paper nine inches long by seven inches wide, so that it extends over the edge evenly all around. On the paper paint in watercolors two members of a foot ball team, in their suits, scrambling for the ball. Also, in the colors of the team (class or college) paint in large letters the "yell." In the upper left hand corner paste a football made of sand paper, slightly colored and lined, on which to scratch the matches. Fasten to the wall by means of a long loop of ribbon of Another idea for a match scratcher is simply a block on which two inch ribbon is rolled. Paste sand paper on each end. Cover the block with red ribbon. Put a bow of ribbon of the same shade but narrower on one side and long loops to hang it by. This may be hung to the gas fixture or put on the mantel. If fresh ribbon is put on occasionally it will always be a dainty and useful ornament.

MATCH SCRATCHER.

Another illustration shows a nice little affair for holding matches. Purchase a tiny tumbler; it will cost from three to five cents. Cover enough small rings with pink silk to make two rows round the glass. To these rings sew ribbon to hang the holder by. Use different colors to cover the rings; filled with candies these make a pretty trimming for the Christmas tree, and when put to proper use they will be found serviceable.

The calendar shown in the illustration has the honor of being designed by one of our Content readers.

they will be found serviceable.

The calendar shown in the illustration has the honor of being designed by one of our Comfort readers, Miss Lizzie L. Martin of Minneapolis. The foundation is of gray poster board, seven inches long and five wide. In the lower right hand corner fasten a small calendar pad. This may be purchased at any art store. From the book called "They Say" by Charles Getchell, select a saying suitable to the character of the one for whom the gift is intended, and letter it on the left hand is ide in white. Now select pictures to illustrate the sayings (they may be cut from papers, magazines, or if you are so gifted, painted in watercolor,) and paste this artistically on the card. The main charm of this little affair lies in the fitness of the saying. At the top cut slits in the card and run holly colored ribbon through and tie in a bow, leaving a loop to hang it by. The one shown herewith was presented to a lady whose son is a physician of note of whom she is justly proud. "They Say that some women never tire of talking about their doctor and their grandchildren."

A constant reader has sent us the following suggestion for an evening entertainment,

A constant reader has sent us the following suggestion for an evening entertainment, which cannot fail to appeal to some of our social friends who are ever on the lookout for something out of the ordinary for the entertainment of their friends.

The men are set to do tasks that repully are tainment of their friends.

The men are set to do tasks that usually are done by women, and vice versa, and prizes are awarded to those who make the most points. Men are detailed to thread needles, five minutes being the limit in each case. At the end of this time the gentleman who has threaded the largest number of needles is said to have won in this particular contest. He receives a point towards the final prize.

The work of the ladies in umbrella rolling is examined and pronounced upon by the men.

point towards the final prize.

The work of the ladies in umbrella rolling is examined and pronounced upon by the men. The lucky woman whose rolling is considered superior to that of her associates receives a point towards the ladies' prize to be awarded at the close of the festivities.

Driving nails and making button-holes should be the next number on the program, the nails to be driven by the women, while the men devote themselves to button-hole making. Each lady is given a strip of soft wood, a dozen nails and a hammer, the men receiving strips of linen with buttonholes cut in them, needles and thread. A lively feature it proves to be. Points towards the finals are bestowed here as in the preceding contest. The awarding of these points is followed at once by a brisk round in which the gentlemen trim straw bonnets with flowers and ribbon, and the ladies puzzle over lengthy examples in commercial arithmetic. The results of these tasks are judged by a committee formed of persons of the opposite sex, the two most successful players receiving as before a point towards the prize.

The next feature is, if possible, even more

The next feature is, if possible, even more absurd and fun provoking than those which went before, for here both divisions of the company are given pencils and paper, the gentlemen being asked to write directions for making fancy dishes, such as angel cake, sweetbread patties and chicken croquettes while the ladies are called upon to say how they would go about investing in stocks.

THE COMFORT CALENDAR.

At the end of this supreme test points are collected and counted. The lady holding most of these receives a book upon "The Ascent of Woman," while the male prizewinner should receive a work basket stocked with the implements of domestic work, his future competition. ments of domestic work, his future occupation.

EPILEPSY AND FITS CURED.

Dr. W. H. May, the eminent specialist on epilepsy, fits and falling sickness, has been attracting considerable attention of late by effecting many wonderful cures in these ailments. The many hundreds of testimonials received by the doctor during the current year bear striking testimony to the efficacy of his treatment. FREE SAM-PLES. Every suffering reader of this paper can have a free treatment by sending name and post office and express address to the Dr. May Laboratories, 94 Pine Street, New York City.

n a living, walking advertisement of the Natural Brace. It cured me when all else failed. My ts were falling womb, backache and general female sss. MRS. D. W. CHARLES."

The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27 Salina, Kansas.

We will send to one in each county our new invented self-supported Truss, free of any charge, and cur-your rupture in three months. The only painless, post-tive and permanent ELECTRIC RUPTURE CURE in the world. Perlman Drug Co., 12 Lees Bidg., Chicago

LADIES WANTED to work on Sofa Pillows. Materis furnished. Steady work guarantee experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope : Miss S. McGee, Needle Work Dept., Ideal Co., Chicago, II

FREE DOLL offer to girls. A big and lovely beauty, 1 1/2 feet tall. No money wanted. FIRESIDE JOURNAL, Bridgewater, Com

LADIES TO DO SEWING AT HOME, paid; send stamped addressed envelope for sample and particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Phila., Pa

WE PAY $20 A WEEK and EXPENSES to m with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Setamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kanse

CALIFORNIA'S OIL BOOM. No work and $25 month. Invest $ and get dividends of $25 per month. $50 gives you $29 per month. Send to-day. MT. HAMILTON LAND & OIL CO., Rea Bidg., San Jose, Cal.

BIC easily made by ladies or gentlemen ing our specialties. Used in every hold. No trouble to make sales. Guickly used up. Customers will write for free catalogue and sample. THE IRON CPHARMACAL CO., 801 North Ave., Allegheny, these two solid gold laid rings. Will wear a lifetime by required till tablets are sold. We take backall not COMFORT MEDICINE CO., Providence, R. I.

TWO RINGS

30 GOOD STORIES FREE,

Here are the titles of 30 Interesting, Original Clean and Upto-date Stories, mostly by new writers, but very clever one. We intended originally to sell the collection for 25 cents but changed our plan, and you can get them all for only three? cent stamps. Here are the titles:

A Burled Trangression By Sidney Dayre
That Meddlesome Aunt Maria By Hene F. Huntington
The Elder's Little Trick
By Mary C. Huntington
Miss Senthrilla's Button Box
By Annie H. Donnell
The Proudest Man in Boston
By Emma Howard Wright
By Josiah Allen's Wife
That Old Tea Pot
By Sidney Dayre
A Bit of Conjugal Infidelity
By Clara Augusta.
The Week before the Wedding
By Robert C. V. Myers
A Girl's Vanity
By Lillia Shaw Husted
Susan's Test
By Mrs. E. W. Demerit.
By Mrs. E. W. Demerit.

$1.50 DRESS GOODS OFFER Norton fast black, mercerized crepon dress goods, 40 inches wide, will be furnished. $1.50 FOR A BIG 6-YARD DRESS PATTERN, or at 25 cents for $1.50. $1.50 FOR A BIG 6-YARD DRESS PATTERN, or at 25 cents for $1.50. years and the second per yard in any quantity we will furnish this hand me imported black mercerized crepon dress goods, our new Fall and Winter fab-ic, as the equal of any fancy black dress goods you can buy frethome at 50 to SEND US $1.50 for a 6-yard dress cents per yard. Send buy $1.50 for a self-yard dress wish, cut this ad out (No.87 M) and send to us and we will send the with the understanding, that if not found perfectly satisfactors. return the goods to us at our expense, and we will immediately return your men.

THIS IS A BENUINE NORTOM FAST BLACK MERGERIZED GRPOM ORESS GOODS.
Inches wide, a new up-to-date fabric for dresses for all classes and all age a good year around weight, especially suitable for fall and winter. A firm classes can guarantee for service, woven with a very handsome raised crepon effect in beat we can guarantee for service, woven with a very handsome raised crepon effect in beat any quantity. It is the GREATERST VALUE EVER OFFERED IN BLACK BRESS GOODS.

il new patterns. They are goods we bought direct from one of the state of the price is less than dealers can buy in any quantity. It is the GRATEST VALUE EVEN OFFERN Price is less than dealers can buy in any quantity. It is the GRATEST VALUE EVEN OFFERN Price is less than 63.00 to 65.00, do not fail to cut this sadson, such a dress pattern as you coul ere at less than 63.00 to 65.00, do not fail to cut this ad, out and send to us with $1.50 and we see pattern to you by return express, your money to be refunded if the goods are not perfectly corness charges on one dress pattern will average from 25 to 30 cents. If you order two or more corness charges on one dress pattern will average from 10 to 15 cents, according the quantity orders he disposed of. THERE WILL MEVER BE SUCH AN OFFE the express charges on each pattern will be reduced from 10 to 15 sents, according the quantity ordered. DO NOT DELAY. ORDER TODAY. The stock will soon be disposed of. THERE WILL NEVER BE SUCH AN OFFER MADE AGAIN Address all orders SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago, III.

patchwork may be put together to get the best effect, how to a lt illustrates over one hundred and fifty BROIDERY, comprising the Outline and Kensing Ribbon Work, Plush or Tufted Stitch, etc. It

ONE Sen 25c. TWO Sen FOUR Send us the name of only one new trial yearly subscriber to "COMFOR 25c. and we will send you a complete package as above free for your effort.

Send 35c. and names of two yearly subscribers and 15c. additional, 65c. is and we will send you three package. Serve postpaid.

Send $1.00 for a club of four yearly subscribers and we will send five sember, each package postpaid free.

Remember, each package contains one big lot (over 100 pieces) Sik Remants, our myed satin pieces, 5 Skeins Embrodiery silk; large piece of elegant plush, and great each book.

Address COMFORT, Silk Room 4, Augusta, Maine SAMPLES FREE Write to us, mentioning send free a sample of the fine black casalmere and our book of 50 cloth samples of made-to-order Suits and Overcoats at actonishingly low prices; or send $1.00 deposit, giving height, weight, chest, waits and crotch meas-

MORRIS

OCTAVE PIANO AT $88.75

ADDRESS ALL LETTERS RELATIVE TO THE GOODS DESCRIBED BELOW TO

JOHN M. SMYTH COMPANY

150-166 and 287-289 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL

BLACK DRESS PATTERN $1.99

SEND 50 CENTS DEPOSIT

SAMPLES FREE Write to us toning this p

$100

and we will send free a sample of the $1.99 dress our full Fall and Winter line of other dress goods.

SINGLE BARREL SHOTGUN $435

r nitro or black powder, solid frame, able lock, all parts accurately fitted.
inch barrels, weight about 7 lbs.
Guaranteed a

SEND $1.00 DEPOSIT and we will send the gun C. O.

SEND FOR OUR FREE GUN CATALOG containing

A PROFIT TO STOREKEEPERS?

It s no longer necessary; it's wasteful, and whenever you do so you are simply paying out money that you should keep in your own pocket.

SEAL PLUSH CAPE...$4.95

of everything new in fail and winter Capes, Jack.eta, Suita, Skirta and Furs is now ready. ITS MACHINE, $9.95 SEND $1.00 DEPOSIT

BUGGY $26.90

book a wo Is worth n SS ALL LETTERS RELATIVE TO THE GOODS DESCRIBED ABOVE TO M. SMYTH COMPANY 150-166 and 287-289 W. MADISON STREET

CONDUCTED BY DIGITUS.

CONDITIONS.

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comport Palmistrey Clus, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank gaper over a candle or similar flame, until they are heavily costed with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downward, one on each sheet of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Reep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to dissure the impression. Have ready some firatif, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with yum arabic and water in an atomizer. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a larve shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with firatif.

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

HAVE so many questions about lines and mounts this month that I am going to de-vote this article to answering questions.

The hand is essentially the organ of the mind, the medium of its expression, and the instrument whereby its promptings are carried into execution We first see the hand," says Sir Charles Bell, "ministering to man's necessities and sustaining the life of the individual; in a second stage of his progress, we see it adapted to the wants of society, when man becomes a laborer and an artificer; in a man becomes a laborer and an artificer; in a state still more advanced, science is brought in aid of mechanical ingenuity, and the elements which seem adverse to the progress of society become the means conducing to it. The seas, which at first set limits to nations, and grouped mankind into families, are now the means by which they are associated. Philosophical chemistry has associated the elements to man's use; and all tend to the final accomplishments of the great objects to which everything, from the beginning, has pointed—the multiplication and distribution of mankind, and the enlargement of the sources of man's comfort and enjoyment, the relief from too incessant toil, and the consequent improvement of the higher faculties of his nature." Is it unreasonable to pay particular attention to the instrument by which all these things are accomplished, and to have been watching the Palmistry department; in the last one you speak of Cheiro's reference to the Bible, and the book of Job. Now, either Cheiro is ignorant of the Bible and the book of Job sepecially, and believes what some one has told him, or else he is a willful fabricator, for that expression 'God set signs and seals on men's palms that they might be read by all men,' is not in the Book of Job or the Bible. I saw that printed here in Los Angeles by a palmist in an advertisement sometime ago so I went and got the Bible and read the Book of Job through but could not find it, so when the last COMFORT came, I saw the same; thinking I might have overlooked it, when I read it before, I read it through again, and have just finished.

Job through but could not find it, so when the last Comfort came, I saw the same; thinking I might have overlooked it, when I read it before, I read it through again, and have just finished it, and that quotation is not in it, now how dishonest that is; so many people will read that and take it for granted that it is true, when there is not a word of truth in it. I think palmistry can stand without being bolstered up on falsehoods. I wish you would let me hear your opinion of this through the palmistry columns. I do not think you would willfuly mislead any one for you seem to be honest."

Now let us see what Cheiro actually does say about this. Here it is: In view of the opposition of the church it is interesting to notice the many important phrases in the Bible in which hands are mentioned. There are many authorities who affirm that among the arts learned by the Jews while in Egypt was this study of the hand; but the most important verse used in support of this is the seventh of the thirty-seventh chapter of Job. "He sealeth up the hand of every man that all men may know his work." In the original Hebrew it appears to have a very different meaning from that given to it by the English version. One translation of it runs, "God placed signs or seals in the hands of men, that all men might know their works." This verse, about the middle of the sixteenth century, caused some very great discussions among theologians and commentators. Among them we find that many advocated the cheiromantic aspect that the lines of the hand are "the markings of God, that all men might know their work." Among them we find that many advocated the cheiromantic aspect that the lines of the hand are "the markings of God, that all men might know their work." Among there were the these men could not have lived in a more antagonistic age in which to propagate their views. The translation of the Bible into English at a time when the opposition to palmistry, sorcery, and witcheraft was at its height, is very probably the cause of the wording of

XXXVI, 18.)

"And receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand?" (Rev. XIV., 9.)

is hand?" (Rev. XIV., 9.)
But of all the many allusions to the subject, the verse in Job is certainly the most impor-tant, and one which, as I have shown, has called the support of even Theologians. So that seems to throw the necessary light on the subject and prove that Cheiro knew what he was talking about.

"Aimee" speaks "Aimee" speaks of her fate line as rising in the center of her hand and running downward toward the wrist. She reads this sign just contrary. The fate line rises at the bottom of contrary. The fate line rises at the bottom of the hand and runs upward and should be so read. This one rising in a triangle is a sign of success and shows that the subject will be of a scientific turn of mind in whatever she under-

"M. L. J." also speaks of lines rising on the "M. L. J." also speaks of the firms of Mount of Jupiter and running down beside the life line. This is to be read exactly opposite the life line. This is to be read exactly opposite the life line. This is to be it. It rises beside the If line. This is to be read exactly opposite from the way she takes it. It rises beside the from the way she takes it.

hand, whether square, spatulate, or conic. For instance, such a line on the square would indicate success in business or science; on the spatulate, in invention or discovery, and on the conic it would foretell success in money matters, reached by the impulsive action of such a nature, as in sudden speculation or enterprise.

An island on the line of life means an illness or loss of health while the island lasts, but a clearly formed island at the commencement of clearly formed island at the commencement of the line of life denotes some mystery connected with the subject's birth.

The line running through a square, indicates preservation from death, from bad health when it surrounds an island, from sudden death when the life-line running through is broken, and from accident when a little line cutting the life line rises from the Plain of Mars.

A square, whenever found on the line of life.

life line rises from the Plain of Mars.

A square, whenever found on the line of life, is a mark of preservation.

Of the great attendant line found parallel to and within the line of life, otherwise called the line of Mars, I shall speak later. This attendant line, the line of Mars, which rises on the Mount of Mars, must not be confounded with those springing from the line of life itself, nor with those that rise upon the Mount of Venus. The most simple rule to bear in mind is, that all even, well-formed lines following the line of life indicate favorable influences over the life, but that all those rising in the opposite direction and cutting the life-line show worries and obstacles caused by the opposition and interference of others. Where these lines end and how they terminate is, therefore, an important how they terminate is, therefore, an important point in this study.

When they cut the lines of life only, they denote the interference of relatives—generally denote the interference of relatives—generally in homelife.

When they cross the life-line and attack the line of fate, they denote people who will oppose us in business or worldly interests, and where they cut the fate line the point of junction gives the date.

When they reach the line of head, they indicate persons who will influence our thoughts and interfere with our ideas.

When they reach and cut the line of heart, t the line they denote interference in our closest af-fections, and here the date of such interference is given where the line cuts the life-line, and where it touches the line of heart.

When they cut and break the line of sun, they denote that others will interfere and spoil our position in life, and that the mischief will be caused by scandal or disgrace at the point or innerten. junction.

When the line crosses the hand and touches the line of marriage, it signifies divorce, and will occur to the person on whose hand it ap-

When this crossing-line has in itself a mark like an island or any approach to it, it denotes that the person who will cause the trouble has had either scandal or some such trouble in connection with his or her own life.

When, on the contrary, the ray lines run parallel as it were to attend the life-line, they denote the most important influences of our boys, if faint, girls; and if they are short or indistinct the children are either dead or not yet born. Several vertical lines on the percussion, crossed by a line which starts from a star upon the mount, betrays sterility, whilst a marriage line, ending abruptly in a star, Indicates a marriage or liaison of short duration, terminated by death.

House Cooling. WRITTEN FOR COMPORT.

T is beyond a doubt that before very long the dwellings of well-to-do people will be cooled artificially in summer, and this will be considered as much a matter of course as the heating of them in winter. From the present-day point of view it will be no more of a marvel than our modern methods of warming methods of warming houses would seem to persons who lived much less than a century ago, when furnaces were unknown, and bedrooms were usually left unmodified as to temperature, no matter how bitter the weather might be rooms were usually left unmodified as to temperature, no matter how bitter the weather might be.

The records of the Patent Office at Washington show that many inventors have been trying recently to find a solution of the problem of house cooling, but up to now no thoroughly practical and satisfactory idea seems to have been found. Possibly the houses of the future may be supplied with cold air from central stations, or with ammonia gas, just as nowadays companies in New York and some other large cities furnish steam heat. It might even be possible, though the notion has a suggestion of absurdity about it, to draw cool and pure air from far aloft on mountain heights and transmit it by pipe-line to near-by centers of population. To fetch sea air from the seaccast in this way, if the latter were not far distant, might be practicable perhaps.

Most of the patented contrivances for the cooling of dwellings suggest the utilization for that purpose of the pipes which in winter are employed for heating—an idea which certainly possesses the merit of economy. Thus the steem pipes averaged in calle which a next employed for heating—an idea which certainly possesses the merit of economy. Thus the steam pipes, arranged in coils, might be used in hot weather to hold chilling ammonia gas. At the Capitol in Washington, the hall of the House of Representatives is warmed in winter by air which is passed around and between coils of steam pipes, and it has been proposed to cool the chamber in summer by simply substituting ammonia gas for the steam. It does to cool the chamber in summer by simply substituting ammonia gas for the steam. It does not appear that any great difficulty would be involved in carrying out such a plan.

Quite possibly liquid air may furnish the eventual solution of this problem, inasmuch as it is not at all expensive, and is capable of supplying any quantity of cold that may be required. By liberating it slowly, with the help of an automatic governor, it might be made to keep a room, or even a house, at precisely a cerkeep a room, or even a house, at precisely a cer-tain temperature all summer long, so that the inmates of the dwelling would never suffer from the heat while indoors, no matter how severe it was outside.

HE Order of the Garter was founded by Edward III., in 1344. The emblem of the Order is a garter, formerly of light blue silk, with the motto embroidered in rubies, pearls and diamonds, but it is now of dark blue velvet about an inch wide, with the motto in gold. It is worn on the left leg, just below the knee,—but when the sovereign is a woman she wears it on her left arm just below the elbow.

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and binds it complete.

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.

Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

TERMS: 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE. SCRIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and ways dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered. STAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us. ANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on ooks unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of sub-nons.

MFORT was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis byge paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages, n more than 12 pages are now given the subscriber can consider jift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine, as second-class mail matter.

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building. New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building

Quaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND, COPIES. Each and Every Issue, Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

Billy Baxter once remarked that every girl who wore a sailor hat did not own a yacht. In the same way every one who is interested in the great yacht race of this month may not understand one technical point in regard to yachting. But the American who lives so far inland that he never smells salt air knows that America does not wish to be defeated in sport or business. We have the cup and we want to keep it, so that the whole nation are vachtsmen until we know where the cup is to winter.

The sharp criticism of Admiral Schley in McClay's History of the Navy seems likely to result in a Congressional inquiry into the charges. If the matter is settled with the same speed as the question of who planned the Chattanooga campaign there is little danger of hard feeling from the result. The decision has just been made in the Civil War dispute and General Rosecrans is declared the originator of the plan of campaign. This generation has forgotten the details and hardly knows what the decision means.

September means the end of vacation to the thousands of children who are fortunate enough to leave the cities for the country during July and August. A still more fortunate class can prolong their outing until October. The teachers can best judge of the question proposed by two eminent scholars. One of them affirmed, "Knowledge is the product of leisure," while the other said, "Knowledge is the product of work." It is no doubt true that the clear eyed, brown faced little folk that the school bell calls in seem to have forgotten all they knew in June. Summer has, however, taught them a wisdom never learned in books.

It is a question whether the persistent daily newspaper reader is after all a well-informed person. There is a growing idea that mental dissipation may be found in the daily paper, but the accurate knowledge of current events is obtained elsewhere at a less expenditure of energy. The weekly and monthly readers of the current questions of the day grow in power. Magazines filling this field have a constantly increasing subscription list. Many a farmer depending upon his local paper for information of the great movements of the world has a clearer idea of them than the one retained by the eager reader of the daily press. e city newspaper is largely The immediate environment concentrates energy and attention to the detriment of interest and knowledge of world affairs. The dweller in the country looks beyond his own circle for interest and so is often possessed of more general information than the city reader.

The people who have taken so energetically to automobiling as a means of amusement are really behind the times. Ballooning is the amusement of the moment in Europe. The "fad" was originated during the Paris Exposition when a series of long distance balloon races was entered on. Many of the balloonists were members of the French aristocracy. The excitement of the long, swift flight through the air, with the landing in strange countries, suggested a new amusement. The passengers began to study the science that controlled the movement of these air ships. The element of danger has been almost wholly eliminated by the modern balloonists, but the element of novelty is there. Some of the women of the Austrian royal family recently took a short balloon trip. We may expect to lers upon farms may find the American four hundred "dropping in to tea" in a literal fashion. The amusement is due here about next summer.

The foreign affairs of the United States are having one direct effect in colleges. The study of the languages that will be of immediate and practical business value is markedly increasing. Spanish is now taught in many high schools and in most colleges. A chair has recently been endowed in Columbia for the study of the Chinese language. The language is so difficult to acquire that even the wealth and antiquity of Chinese literature has not tempted Americans to make a study of it. A knowledge of Chinese is likely to prove of commercial advantage in the near future. The highest honor of Vanderbilt University is the medal in oratory. This year it was awarded to a Chinaman, Charles Yun Marshall of Soo Chow. His oration was entitled, "Miracles of the Twentieth Century." He predicted that China would take her place among the greatest nations. One of the defects in the education of business men is the inability to speak or write the language of the nations with which we have the possibility of trade. It will be interesting to observe the practical result of the new interest in the Spanish and Chinese languages.

The Washington Memorial Institution formally commences its great work this autumn. The request of Washington that a great university be founded at Washington with the money that he left for its endowment has long been a subject of discussion. The great universities of the nation with their magnificent endowments left no field unoccupied. At the same time, the great scientific work undertaken by the different government bureaus with their three millions annual appropriation seemed to demand that it be accessible to the general student. This has been accomplished by the Washington Memorial Institution which was incorporated in May 1901 and formally organized in June. Daniel Gilmore, ex-president of Johns Hopkins University, has been given the directorship of the work. The detailed policy of the institution is not yet completed but it will place at the disposal of students from any part of the United States the entire results of government work and research along the lines of science, economics, history, etc. Students will be able to study here for degrees in any of our great universities. It follows Washington's idea in the most practical manner, and when its purpose is understood it will prove the greatest educational institution of the cen-

The cotton growers of the South and the wheat growers of the West hardly realize the importance to them of a dam that has recently been completed in that mysterious "Upper Egypt". The Nile valley is the most fertile section of the globe but its productiveness has entirely depended upon the annual over flow of the Nile. The ancient Egyptians used to worship the river and make it offerings that it might overflow its banks and insure a good worship the river and make it offerings that it might overflow its banks and insure a good season. Modern engineering compels this ancient god to obey its commands. One dam has already been constructed across the middle Nile so that lower Egypt has been irrigated and its productiveness been correspondingly increased. Now a second dam has been completed and a third is in process of construction. By means of these an immense area will become permanently instead of irregularly productive. By means of these an immense area will become permanently instead of irregularly productive. Sugarcane can be profitably grown in the irrigated territory. Already Egypt produces one-tenth of the world's supply of cotton. It is believed that these staples, corn, sugar-cane and wheat can be supplied to England at a less price than America can fix. The commercial results rank the enterprise with the Trans-Siberian railroad and the Nicaragua canal.

The wild rush for homes in the territory opened last month emphasizes the fact that this is almost the last opportunity to obtain a home upon government land. Canada is now the only country in the world offering free land to home seekers. The vast public domains of the United States have been occupied and the opening of any new tract is a rush and a grab. Last year twelve thousand home seekers from the United States crossed the line into Canada while fifty thousand people entered her ports from abroad. All of these settlers go to the northwest. The Canadian government is planning a new canal to cross from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. It is believed that ships may be laden with the grain from the great may be laten with the grain from the great Northwest and sent directly to Europe. The mad rush for homes in Oklahoma emphasizes a point of weakness that we shall have to meet in the future, that is the immigration of the farmer element who seek cheap land or free homes. Canada offers them an inviting opportunity and its government uses all its power to provide markets for the products of its settlers. Our commercial and manufacturing interests need no government aid to maintain supremacy they have obtained over other nations. We have dangerous rivals in our agriculture and our most threatening one is just culture and our most threatening one is just

The amusements of our untitled aristocracy are largely copied from those of Europe. The automobiles were firmly established in France before the present enthusiasm was aroused in the United States. The development of the sport showed the same dangerous tendency that it does in the United States. The high rate of speed maintained on country roads is a menge to life. In France the matter was regule rate of speed maintained on country roads is a menace to life. In France the matter was regulated by a national law but in this country it must be looked after by separate village and city laws. The result is that no law is enforced and the "autos" whiz past, frightening horses and monopolizing roads. The summer record for accidents from this cause is lengthy. If compiled in one list it would arouse public attention. We hardly realize that a new and rapid means of locomotion is becoming so see the sport imported to America. The dwel- rapid means of locomotion is becoming generally used that it should be regulated to a generally used that it should be regulated to a proper regard for the general welfare, but such is the case. When the new storage battery which Edison has lately invented is applied to all movable vehicles we shall have a complete revolution in the present methods of transportation. Uniform laws governing the speed of vehicles will be as necessary as safety regulations on steam railroads. Edison's invention can be applied to anything from a play to a can be applied to anything from a plow to a freight car. The states should make general laws that will govern the features in the new transportations that are threatening to safety.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE. 32.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Wilson's Ear Drums Common Sense LGI UIUIIN restore the hearing even after medical skill fails. They fit in the cars, are invisible, safe and confortable. Physicians recommend them. Thousands attest their value. There are many imitators—the WILSON is the original and genuine. Write for book, PRER. Wilson Ear Drum Co., 314 Trust Bidg., Louisville, Ky.

$688 PROFIT first month by one agent; article Patented; beware imitations. Special proposition and exclusive control to first applicant. Bry Powder Fire Extinguisher, 154 E. 22rd St., N. Y. City.

GIRLS BOYS WRITE for GRAND CATALON.

GIRLS BOYS WRITE for GRAND CATALON.

GARPTELD Springs.

Friends. A beautiful Rilling way Pure Puries down to Friends. A beautiful Rilling way Pure Puries down to

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 1147677 Moore Reports

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 1147677 Moore Reports

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 1147677 Moore Reports

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 1147677 MOORE AUGUST

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 1147677 MOORE AUGUST

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 1147677 MOORE AUGUST

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 114767 MOORE AUGUST

GARPTELD GUM 600, JR 11476 MOO

B SHOWN THE RESERVE OF THE RESERVE O This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

* FULL SIZE *

* COOD PAPER *

L IVIO	010	- 1
* LARGE TYPE *	WAS REPORTED TO	* UNABRIDGED *
WE have made arrangements with one of the	e largest music hou	ses of Boston to furnish our
WE have made arrangements with one of the readers with ten pieces, full size, complete. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. over the continent. None but high-priced copyriprinted on regular sheet-music paper, from new colored titles—and is in every way first-class, at LIST OF THE PIECES ON. NO. PIAND OR ORGAN. Falk	The composers' nan	nes are housenold words all printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new	plates made from l	arge, clear type — including
LIST OF THE PIECES O	FFERED AT T	HIS TIME.
No. PIANO OR ORGAN. 313 Aida Transcription	No. VC7CE AN	D PIANO OR ORGAN,
313 Aida Transcription Waldtengel 317 All for Thee Waltzes Waldtengel 165 American Liberty March Cook 101 Ancients Abroad, March—Two Step 201 Angel's Dream. Op. 36. Lange 247 Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss 181 Auld Lang Syne. Variations Durkee 187 Austrian Song. Op. 69, 1 Pacher 215 Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive Anderson 179 Beautiful Biue Danube Waltzes Strauss 277 Beautiful Biue Danube Waltzes Strauss	316 Are you lonely I	ow my darling? Cho. Rutledge
319 Angel's Dream. Op. 36 Lange
247 Artist's Life Waltzes Strauss 181 Auld Lang Syne. Variations . Durkee	140 Beacon Light of 134 Beautiful Moo 238 Bells of Seville	of Home Estabrooke alight. Duet Glover H. Jude
215 Battle of Waterloo. Descriptive . Anderson	238 Bells of Seville 162 Ben Bolt, of ' 282 Between Love	Trilby "fame Kneass and Duty Dryden Elson
227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Strauss	226 Blue Lyes . 246 Boyhood Days	Chorus Frits
213 Black Hawk Waltzes	200 Bridge, The. 268 Bride Bells .	Chorus Elson Words by Longfellow Carew Rocckel
199 Boston Commandery March	192 CanYou. Sweet	neart. Keepa Secret? Estabrooke
321 Brunette Waltz	214 Childhood's Ha 138 Christmas Car 190 Come When th	ppy Hours . Dinsmore ol Turner e Soft Twilight Falls Schumann
307 Cavalry Parade Polka Sampson	284 Come Back to	Our Cottage . Estabrooke of Promise. Cake walk Blake
227 Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes Strauss 213 Black Hawk Waltzes Walsh 257 Blue Bells of Scotland Trans. Richards 21 Bluebird Echo Polka Morrison 199 Boston Commandery March Carter 109 Bridal March from Lolengrin Wagner 321 Brunette Waltz Bragg 229 Bryan and Sewall March Noies 307 Cavalry Parade Polka Sampson 255 Cavaleria Rusticana Four hands Mascagni 289 Cavaleria Rusticana Intermezzo Mascagni 133 Cadences and Scales in all Keys Czerny	92 Cow Bells. The.	Boyhood's Recollection Grimm
297 Chatelaine, La Meuuet Lange 237 Cherokee Roses Waltz. 4 hands Behr 145 Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step Missua	286 Danube River 250 Darling I Shall	Miss You Aide Cohen Gray Hanby
145 Clayton (Adjutant) March—Two Step Missud 217 Cleveland's March	176 Darling Nellie	Gray . Hanby B Instrument . Rutledge
81 Coming from the Races Galon Wheeler	70 Dear Heart, W	e Instrument . Rutledge e're Growing Old . Estabrooke rt 'Neath the Daisies Rutledge all Me Darling? . Vane
211 Corn Flower Waltzes Coote, Jr
100 Damenta Consul Tulumanhal March	290 Dream of Love 310 Dream of Sprin 256 Dwelling with	g. A. Op. 1, 2 . Curschmann he Angels. Chorus. Turner cred Gound
237 Diamond Valley Waltz	50 Easter Eve. Sa 220 Ever Sweet is 2	cred Gouned
303 Edelweiss	318 Falling Star 180 Far Away	Cred Gounod
153 Dewrys Grand Fridings Market Morkhouse 237 Diamond Valley Waltz	180 Far Away 182 Father is Drini	cing Again. Temperance mitry. Patriotic Mathiot retette Fox starlight Delano Song Cohen Sake Covern
155 Evergreen Waltz Stoddard 241 Fantastic Schottische Gabriel 291 Fatinitza Galop Ludwig	152 Flag of Our Cou 156 Flag. The. Qua 144 Flirting in the	rtette Fox
	8 Flossie. Walt:	Song Cohen Couch
233 Flirting in the Starlight. Waltz Lasaide 239 Flower Song. Op. 39 Lange	66 For You We are	e Praying at Home Estabrooke the Loved are Going Percy Pinsuti
283 Forestville Waltz Zahn	and Class Wise to	Peren
177 Frolic of the Frogs Watson 183 Golden Rain. Nocturne	178 God Bless My J	Kind Old Mother Jewell
28 Heel and Toe Polka . Faust	262 Greeting Duet	B. Duet Glover
185 Her Bright Smile Hannts Me Still . Richards	272 How can I Leav	e Thee. Duet . Greenwood
135 Her Bright Smile Ilaunts Me Still . Richards 173 Hobson of the Merrimac Waltzes . Jewell 139 Home, Sweet Home. Transcription . Slack 153 Jenny Lind polka Four hands . Muller 157 Last Hope. Meditation . Gottschalk 195 Leap Year Schottische . Kahn 253 Le Fetit Bal. Polka Mazurka . Behr 159 Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba "galop Durkee 141 London March - Two Step . Missua 243 Love's Dreamland Waltzes . Badarzesske 99 Maiden's Priver, The . Badarzesske 240 Martha Selections . Johnson . Johnson	248 In Shadowland
195 Leap Year Schottische Kahn	266 In Summer Tim 296 It Is a Legend C	ld Offenbach
159 Lee's (Gen'l) "On to Cuba" galop Durkee	188 In the Starligh 28 Juanita. Ball 242 Kathleen Mayo	d . May
141 London March - Two Step Missua 243 Love's Dreamland Waltzes Roeder	196 Killarney . 132 Kiss me, but de	on't say goodbye . Rutledge d my Heart to thine . Ketl
99 Maiden's Prayer, The Badarzewske 240 Martha Selections . Johnson	130 Kiss that boun	d my Heart to thine Keil
207 May Breezes Four hands Krug	312 Let me dream a	h. Duet . Williams gain . Sullivan locking Bird . Hauthorne
225 McKinley and Hobart March Turner 55 Memorial Day March Hewitt	154 Little Poy Blu	the Door Danks
131 Monastery Bells, Nocturne, Wely	308 Mamie	Daly
125 My Old Kentucky Home Variations Cook	234 Margaretta . 112 Massa's Sleep	ng in de Churchyard . Keefer y Mother . Chorus . Allen
305 Napoleon. Parlou 87 National Anthems of Eight Great Nations 175 National Songs of America. Blake	1/2 Mother 8 Welc	office at the Door
305 Napoleon. 87 National Anthems of Eight Great Nations 175 National Songs of America Blake 135 Nightingale's Trill, op. 81 Kullak 271 Ocean Waves Waltz 123 Old Folks at Home. Transcription Blake	232 Must the Swee	Tie that binds . Estabrooke
171 Old Oaken Bucket. The. variations Durkee	76 My Home by the 110 My Little Lost 170 My Old Kentuc	Irene . Danks
273 One Heart. One Soul. Mazurka . Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz	216 Oh. Sing Again 228 Old Folks at H	ome (Swange Ribber) Foster
273 One Heart. One Soul. Mazurka Strauss 219 On the Wave Waltz Dinsmore 197 Oregon, Queen of the Sea. Two-step Robinson 245 Orvetta Waltz Spencer 191 Over the Waves Waltz Rosas
To Place Do Waltz Durkee	258 Out on the Deach.	D Lohr
265 Psyche. Gavotte Mattei	174 Parted from or	r Dear Ones .
167 Red, White and Blue Forever. March Blake	306 Peace to Thy S	oirit. Duet
245 Rustic Waltz Schumann 127 Rustling Leaves Idylle Lange 149 Salem Witches March—Two-Step Missud	254 Picture of My 148 Poor Girl didn 274 Private Tommy	t know. Comic. Coole
Salein Witches March—Iwo-step		ed Grainger
161 Silvery Waves. Variations Wyman		Champade
295 Souvenir of the Ball Waltz	224 Shall I EverSee	ng Pictures
259 Spring Flowers Polka 279 Stephanie Polka Devrient Fahrbach	194 She Sleeps am 124 Softly shine th 210 Son's Return,	e Stars of Evening Dinsmore Fretz
73 Storm Mazurka	120 Storm at Sea. 278 Summer Show
	On Sweet Long Ac	o The Estaurova
115 Tornado Galop Arouckie	158 Thinking of Ho 292 Titania's Cradl	Lehmann Turner
	38 True to the La	st Adams
113 Under the Double Eagle March . Wagner 205 Village Parade Quickstep Allen 7 Visions of Light. Waltz	252 Warrior Bold 84 What are the W 58 When the Ros	ild Wares Caring? Duet Glore
203 Warblings at Eve	86 When Winter I	Days Have Gone . Trayre
261 Wedding March 251 Winsome Grace. A perfect gem Hove 119 Woodland Whispers Waltzes . Stanley Drysmore	212 Why am I ever	Watching de Lasaide
Brang	200 Telma Los Ch	Estabrooke
DON'T FORGET that the price you have	to pay for this she	et music is only thirty-five
DON'T FORGET that the price you have address, postpaid; that all the little details are up the year, placed, have all place accompanients	to the standard, in	cluding colored titles; that

That the price you have to pay for this sheet music is only thirty-five address, postpaid; that all the little details are up to the standard, including colored titles; that the vocal pieces have full piano accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer.

PRICE OF APOLY.

Any 10 for 35 cents. Any 20 for 60 cents. Any 40 for $1.10. Any 100 for $3.00.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will be sent direct from Boston, postage prepaid

SPECIAL PREMIUM OFFER

Owing to change of law, making a further increase in postal rates, soon an advance in price of this Music may take place. Until then we will supply as above. After that the price may be much higher. Don't fail to order at once as this is positively the last chance to secure good full size Music so low. If you will induce your friends to subscribe to COMFORT we will give you Music Free for your trouble. Send 15c. and one name for a 6 months' subscription to our great monthly, Comfort, and we will mail you any six pieces of music you may select, or get one new yearly subscriber for 25c. and we will send you any 10 pieces in the list postpaid.

Address COMFORT, Music Dept. 8, Augusta. Maine.

'TWIXT THE SHADOW AND THE SHINING.

WORDS AND MUSIC BY HELEN MARR CAMPBELL.

Scotch Pipe Players.

The state of the s

CONTRACT OF STREET AND ASSESSMENT OF THE

A sight quite frequent in Canada but very seldom in the United States is that of a band of Scotch Bag-Pipers. Probably no other country in the world possesses a people so clannish, so tenacious to customs as Scotland and wherever the Scotch people go one will find a strict adherence to local customs which are handed down from generation to generation and are quickly recognized by those familiar with them. They are a people full of peculiar superstitions to which they cling as tenaciously as they do to their other customs.

A large number of people on the Canada side of the line are of Scotch descent and many of the military regiments are equipped with full band of Scotch Pipers. These musicians dress in the Scotch highland costume with Scotch caps, short jackets, kilts and from the shoulder the scarf of tartan plaid; half-hose with heavy shoes complete this costume so that the appearance of the Highlander to the uninitiated is that of bare-legged men with short petticoats, but as a whole the costume is strikingly picturesque and entirely distinctive.

peculiar and is accompanied by a droning noise. Its very peculiarity makes it unlike any other form of instrumental music and as the airs played are very lively there is an inspiration in it that is hard to explain. No other form of music has ever made the Scotch people in all parts of the world perform such heroic deeds of valor or led them to victory or defeat, where the very stubbornness of the victory made it overwhelming, as has this same bag-pipe.

Wherever the music of the bag-pipe is heard the Scotch will be in evidence and many a one will break into tears at the sound of the beloved Pipe in some distant country where their music reminds them so strongly of their rugged native mountains.

These people take great pride in their skill and by long practice can play for hours at a time. They also cultivate the art of dancing and have many difficult and intricate figures which they weave into reels and strathspuis. A great many Cana lian organizations in visiting the United States carry Pipers with them and wherever they appear they create a great deal of interest and are considered a very attractive novelty.

The bag-pipes as all know are played by a bag of wind through three pipes which are gaily decorated with ribbons. The music is Popular Music for All.

The success which has attended Comfort in its effort to introduce popular music of a high class at moderate rates has been very pleasant and the success which has attended this effort has of itself been a reward. It was believed at the beginning that the price on sheet music as sold at the stores was far beyond what it should be and that the high price was made because the sale of this music was so small that it made high prices necessary.

In making up an edition of these pieces the price was placed at the most moderate figure and the experiment proved a great success and of such popularity that the great metropolitan and Sunday papers have followed in the line established by Comfort of giving music in the same way. Every music lover will find an offer on another page of COMFORT which is striking of itself as it offers a long list of the highest class music at a cost practically the same as the mailing expense. If you care for music, look over the list and follow the terms of the offer and you will be pleased with it and feel you have obtained full value for the little money expended. We have hundreds of testimonials constantly coming to us from patrons all over the United States who have accepted the terms of this offer and have repeatedly of the offer and you will be pleased with it and come to us, also expressed their delight with the music and have turned their friends into this same channel that they might likewise obtain some of this music, and we trust you will read the offer and make at least one trial order and see what it means.

Manitoba Lake, which lies northwest of Fort Garry, and has given a title to the province formed out of the Red River region, derives its name from a small island from which, in the stillness of the night, issues a mysterious voice. On no account will the Ojibways approach or land on this island, supposing it to be the home of Manitoba—the "Speaking God." The cause of this curious sound is the beating of the waves on the "shingle" or large pebbles lining the shore. Along the northern coast of the island there is a long low cliff of fine-grained, compact limestone, which under the stroke of the hammer, clinks like steel. The waves beating on the shore at the foot of the cliff cause the fallen fragments to rub against each other, and to give out a sound resembling the sound of distant church bells.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publication of matter in this department.

cation of matter in this department.

Contributors must without exception be regular subscribers to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's even name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on one side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10. The following cash prizes will be paid monthly:

For the best original letter
" " second best original letter
" " third " " "
" fourth " " "
" fifth " " "

Sth. " "fifth " 1.00

Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply with all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least two new Cousins into the Comport circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together with 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of Comport, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

Chight I health water
Belle T. Osborne,	$3.00
Alice Edson,	2.50
Mamie B. Sandridge,	2.00
Lilian A. White,	1.50
Mrs. K. E. Harris,	1.00

EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS: The long, beautiful summer is coming to a close, and with it one of the most peaceful, uneventful summers known to our country. Not an evil of any magnitude has come to us-no wars or rumors of wars, no great loss and no great convulsion of nature. To be sure, we had an unprecedently warm "wave" in July, and there were many deaths in consequence of the extreme heat, but even that was not suffi-ciently severe to be reckoned as a national calamity, and so we can without hesitation thank our Heavenly Father for the lovely summer which is past, and gather strength from its pleasures for the duties or troubles which may be at hand.

As I write this it is the morning of the Fourth of July, and the boys are making the air outside my window blue with smoke and resonant with the din of their patriotism, and my mind goes back to the time, one hundred and twenty-five years ago, to "the day we celebrate", when a few acres of corn were all our country had to show of this necessary grain, and the following letter, giving an idea of the extent to which it is now utilized, shows us once more how rapidly we have advanced in power and strength in a short time. May our gratitude to the Hand which has led us, our patriotism and our endeavors to improve both ourselves and our beloved

Hand which has led us, our patriotism and our endeavors to improve both ourselves and our beloved country never grow less.

WONDER if any of the readers of Comport have ever visited a canning establishment? While traveling through the corn belt in south-western lowa, it was my good fortune to be called to the little town of Atlantic, about half-way distant between Des Moines and Omaha. It is, even now, only a dot on those broad western prairies, containing about five thousand inhabitants, yet it holds one of the largest corn canning establishments in the world. Already the corn of the coming season on two thousand acres of land has been contracted for from the farmers within the near vicinity. "Riding through this vast acreage of corn, and be seen. It reminds one of a vast expanse of water as the great stalks and leaves, gently undulating in the breeze, thow their different shades of green; or iater, when in full yellow tassel, it has to the nature-lover's eye, as well as to the ambitious money seaker, the same fascination.

"From the time when the first load of corn is brought to the factory until the close the work goes on in full blast; night and day factory and employees being pushed to their utmost. Of course so much machinery is now used that labor is much reduced, but about three hundred hands are employed for the season. Last year 4,700,000 cans of corn were canned here, making an average of 134,-000 cans per day in the season of five weeks, which they claim is the largest output ever made by any factory in the United States. The sweet corn crop usually equals about six tons to the acre, and setory owners provide for such a large crop by making it dependable upon their pleasure whether they will take corn to the excess of four tons an acre. The average payment to the farmers last year was $18.00 per acre.

"During the season of five weeks, 4,700,000 cans were used for corn and 465,000 for peas. The cannery is a place well worth a visit, ast its very interesting to watch the work from the husking of the

Whether Christian Scientists or not the follow ing description of the beautiful rooms furnished by the children for the pleasure of Mrs. Eddy will be enjoyed by my readers, for we all like to hear of

"It is possible that among the readers of this column there are some who are interested in Christian Science. To those who are, perhaps a description of 'Mother's Room' in the church recently built in Boston, Mass., by the Christian Scientists in this part of the country will be enjoyed.

"This room, or suite, is in the church building, and is the gift of the children of the society, who call themselves the 'Busy Bees'. It is for the use of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, when she is in town. The entire suite is beautifully finished in white and gold with mosaic floors, and the main room has an onyx fireplace with mantel. There is a couch, four beautiful easy chairs, a writing cabinet and onyx table with beautiful lamp in the main room, also an eider down rug, which is made from the skins of a hundred eider ducks. An onyx bee hive is in one of the window seats, and in it are the names of the hundreds of children who contributed to the furnishing of the suite. There are three stained glass windows in the room, and one side is entirely occupied by an oil painting showing the old haircloth rocking chair in which Mrs. Eddy sat while writing her book, 'Science and Health.'

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST CHURCH, BOSTON

"The two small rooms opening from the main room are the toilet and dressing rooms, which are beautifully fitted up, the dressing room having a full length mirror, chiffonier and wardrobe; and the toilet room having all the appointments made from marble, with gold plated faucets and trimmings."

ALICE EDSON, BOSTON, Mass.

Here is a letter which may give some of you "the shivers" to read, and cause you to be thankful that you were not there "to see".

shivers" to read, and cause you to be thankful that you were not there "to see".

"I want to tell you of such a thrilling adventure I had not many years ago, while visiting one of Missouri's remarkable features known as the Rattlesnake Den. This den is situated in southeastern Missouri, on the banks of a muddy, sluggish stream which has been aptly named Blackwater.

"In order to reach the mouth of the cave our party had to climb almost perpendicaiarly to the top of a cliff some ninety or one hundred feet above the railroad track. How gladly we held to the few stunted shrubs that adorned our trail! For the hillside was one mass of loose rocks which were constantly slipping from under foot and tending to allow us a slide to the iron rails below, or probably on into the mud-stream just below the rails. Before starting up the ascent we were assured we had made no mistake in the location, both by the odor that arose and the presence of so many dead snakes killed by our predecessors. When we reached the door of the cave, which was simply an immense hole in the side of the hill, we were somewhat disappointed, for instead of being frightened we were charmed with the beauty of the scene before us. The long glittering stalactites seemed to be reaching down from the low, massive ceiling and bidding their neighbors the stalagmites listen to the murmur of a little stream whose crystal drops formed a striking contrast to the filth of the stream below. "I am sure our guide enjoyed our disappointment, for he allowed us to stand in wonder several minutes, then, calling attention to a large hole in the side of the cave, bade us notice in there closely. To our thorough consternation we beheld the long glistening bodies of snakes after snakes, some lying on the ridges of rocks, some moving slowly along the sides and ceiling, others curied up about the floor and on the tops and around the bottoms of the stalagmites. After once fully realizing our stuation a panic immediately ensued, and though we were aware of the danger in going d

The following description of the inside of a mine may be commonplace to a westerner, but to

MAMIE B. SANDRIDGE, Nelson, Mo.

The following description of the inside of a mine may be commonplace to a westerner, but to the eastern cousins, most of them, the inside of a mine of any kind is an unknown world.

"Two years ago our family moved to the little town of Gowen, Choctaw Nation, Indian Territory, where my brother is a miner. We were seven miles from depot or railway, although a switch came to our camp to remove the cars of gold ore. The houses are painted red, and have neither stables, fences are never built because people seldom remain more than six months in one house, and the only decent drinking water to be had comes from a mountain spring miles away, and is hauled to town twice a day and sold to people at ten cents for a small keg. The supply is, of course, limited, and is soon sold, and later applicants to the water man can get none, his motto being 'First come first served.'

"During our stay at this place we planned a trip into the mine to see my brother at his work. We started about eight in the evening, as he was then on the night shift, We procured several miner's lamps, which the miners constantly carry fastened to the tops of their caps. These resemble a child's tin teapot, and are filled with lard oil. They hold so little that it is necessary to refill them several times during the twelve hours which constitute the day's work of a miner.

"When we arrived at the top of the 'slope' we lighted our lamps and went down on the tram car used for drawing up the ore. We went through doors and let heavy canvas curtains fall behind us as we passed on. Heavy supports of lumber which were sometimes not more than three or four feet above the ground, and men and mules alike are obliged to get through as best they can. The scaffolding overhead, or rather the earth above it, and the water sometimes gets so bad underfoot that it must be pumped out.

"At last we came to the chamber where my brother was at work, and there he sat on his little platform digging out the rock, while another man shoveled away

Health, Vigor, Strength,

FOR ALL WHO DESIRE IT.

Dr. J. M. Peebles, the grand old man of Battle Creek, Mich., originator of

DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

has so perfected his method that it has revolutionized the Art of Healing, and it can almost be said there are no hopeless or incurable diseases.

Mrs. J. W. Henderson of St. Johns, Wash, who suffered for years with pains in the ovaries and uterine weakness, was entirely cured by the Peebles' treatment. Mrs. C. Harris, Marionville, Pa., says she cannot express too much gratitude for the results received through Dr. Peebles' treatment. She suffered for years from falling of the womb. L. A. Lord, Ellsworth, Wis., was permanently cured of dyspepsia and nervousness. Geo. H. Weeks, of 53 Minerva Street, Cleveland, Ohio, sends heartfelt thanks for restoration of health after suffering with nervous prostration and insomnia; says he now enjoys restfulness and sleeps sound every night. G. D. Young, of Winner, Ore., says: "I bore about my body the piteous spectacle of disease, and death stared me in the face. I now thank heaven Law a well man and Leward Law and Leward Law and Law and Leward Law and La body the piteous spectacle of disease, and death stared me in the face. I now thank heaven I am a well man, and I owe this great victory over disease to Dr. Peebles and his corps of assistants." It is agrand science combined with Magnetic Medicines prepared in his own laboratory, which heals and cures when all else fails. If you are unfamiliar with this treatment, which is annually curing thousands of those pronounced incurable, do not fail to send at once for full information concerning this grand treatment. It is concerning this grand treatment. It is absolutely free and the information gained will be worth much to you. If you are sick and discouraged, do not fail to have the doctors diagnose your case and tell you your exact condition. Just write them a plain, truthful letter about your case; they will confidentially consider the same, send you at once a complete diagnosis of your condition, and also literature on this grand system of treatment, together with Dr.

Peebles' essay, "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease." All this is sent ABSOLUT

DR. PEEBLES' INSTITUTE

Department J, Battle Creek, Mich.

If you suffer from Epileptic Fits, Falling Sickness or St. Vitus' Dance, or have children or friends that do so, my New Discovery will CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for my FREE REMEDIES and try them. They have cured thousands where everything else falled. Sent absolutely free with complete directions, express prepaid. Please give AGE and full address.

DR. W. H. MAY, Street, New York City.

CAPT. COLLINGS

FREE BY MAIL trial of his wonderful treatment that cured him and has cured hundreds of others. Do not delay, but write to day. Capt. Collings had a with rupture and will gladly end a free trial. WRITE HIM.

AT HOME—AT HOME—AT HOME—Workis pleasant and will easily pay $18 weekly. I have often made $5 a day. Even your spare time is valuable. This is no deception, I want no money and will gladly send full particulars to all sending 2c stamp. MRS. A. H. WIGGINS, Box 8, Benton Harbor, Mich.

LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE! shom you wish. Make others love and obey you, seases. Make's fun by the hour. New and in our method. Quick as a flash. YOU can learn eas sure. Mammoth illustrated LESSON particular ESSEL Sand address at once and full particulars FREE! Send address at once.

Prof. L. A. Harraden, - JACKSON, MICH.

THE NEW DUST PAN.—Rapid seller. clusive territory. Write for large catalogue. 50 ter fast sellers, and how to get Sample Outfit Free. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., C St., Bath, N. Y.

AGENTS CREDIT, Perfumes, Flavors, etc. Big Profits. Expr. Pd. Terms free. Herbene Agency Co., Box 54, Station L. New York.

LADIES to do piece work at their homes. We furnish all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly. Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago.

A MAUSER RIFLE FREE. A glorious opportunity will be given one man in each town to get a captured Spanish Rifle, refinished like new, absolutely Free. Address at once, Kirtland Bros. & Co., 298 Broadway, New York.

GET MARRIED. 10,000 LADIES ARE ANXIOUS TO MARRY. Many very rich and beautiful. Send stamp for big seals list, giving full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. STAR AGENCY, No. 415, Austin, III.

ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample malled free on my sufferer. "Physician" Bor 36, Augusta, Maine. Sell Your Real Estate.
We want good City and Farm property in all parts of the U. S. and Canada. Send description and cash price.
WINSLOW REALTY AND INVESTMENT CO., Sta. E., South Bend, Ind.

10,000 ARE YERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED plotures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E Chiege.

REVEAL YOUR ILLOWS, MARKAGE, RUNNING and DEED LIFE COMPLETE FORTUNATA & UNFORTUNATA and sixen. The LIFE COMPLETE FORTUNATA & UNFORTUNATA public, Jilla grows that I will no receipt a 'llo with your age and used to you make a complete control of the complete of the comple

$50 A Month distributing samples. Enclose stamp.
Inter'l Dis. Bureau, 8 Gold St., New York. Handsome American Lady, independently rich, want Address ERIE, 193 Washington St., Chicago, Ill Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich $100 to $1000 Free. Write for particulars at once.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio WE are giving away Life Size Dolls for a little work Address National Medicine Co., New Haven, Cons

$300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c R. MAXWELL, Box C, South Bend, Ind WED BOOK WANT TO MAPRE WISELY WALTER MEDONNELL, CZ, Chicage, HE.

YOU HAVE ANY DISEASE, write W. O. Broaddus School of Healing, Terra Haute, Ind. MARRY Any Man willing to MARRY a PLAIN Lody, worth $167,000 Washest who will Give Her Husband $5,500,00 Clash on Welding Department of the CLIMAX Office, CHICAGO.

KOME WORK 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp, The World Co., Battle Creek, Mich. PHOTO OF YOUR FUTURE HUSBAND OR WIFE FREE POSTAGE to CLIMAX CO., 8 C ST., CHICAGO in a poke, but did you ever hear a Pig Sing? Wel, this Musical Pig right from the Paris Exposition, is the latest and gressest wonder out. More from with this cute little porker than anything ever invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here invented. You simply blow him up and the Exposition this season and they are now all the rage in New York. Don't fail to get one in you want some fun. They are strongly made of a thin rubber substance so you can carry them in your vest pocket and said show of monkeys. Just get one and try it. Agents can self them at the rate of a hundred an hour in a crowd. If you will send us one new subscription at the special price of 26c for a whole year, we will send our magazine each mention and send two Pigs to you as a premium. Or if you will send one 6 months' trial subscription for 15c. we will send one Pigs. 5 Pigs sold for 50c; 1 doz., $1.00, Address COMFORT, Box 770, Augusta, Maine.

NOT A PIG

A GENEROUS OFFER

feorge B. Wright Discovers a Cure for Lost Manhood and Sends It Free to Every Sufferer Who Will Write for it.

Gratitude is one of the noblest impulses of the human heart and in few instances has this fine quality been so conspicuously exemplified as in the case of George B. Wright of Marshall.

Mr. Wright is a merchant and well known citizen of Marshall, Mich., who was permanently cured of lost manhood and nervous debility after declining health for years. He now devotes his life to helping other men who suffer as he once suffered. Mr. Wright offers to send the medical prescription that effected a cure in his case to every reader of Comfort who is suffering to-day as he suffered. All who will drop him a letter asking for a copy of the prescription will receive it by return mail free of the United States Health Reports, published at Washington, D. C.

The following editorial by A. N. Tally, M. D., regarding Mr. Wright's prescription for lost manhood appeared in the December issue of the United States Health Reports, published at Washington, D. C.

We, as the highest American authority on all matters of health, sanitation and hygiene, are constantly receiving letters of inquiry about a reliable cure for lost strength in men.

Therefore we have ordered an investigation to be made into the subject and our medical staff found there were many so-called cures on the market, but that many were worthless and some actually harmful. Therefore when we came upon the prescription furnished free by George B. Wright, a merchant of Marshall, Mich., we instituted a most thorough laboratory examination and found that its wonderful efficacy depended upon its being exactly compounded according to proper chemical requirements, in order to establish the proper chemical actions and reactions in the human system, and that it should especially, and above all, contain each and every ingredient named in the prescription, otherwise it would be quite inactive and worthless.

Properly mixed and containing everything called for in the prescription, its effect upon the nerve centers is truly wonderful and its nerve tonic properties easily surpassed all ordinary methods of medication.

Among the benefactors of the race may be mentioned the said George B. Wright, inasmuch that he gives this grand discovery free to all who write for it.

Taken according to directions it builds up the weak and restores to full size and vigor the nerve muscles. It brings hope and cheer and lifts up the discouraged man so that he once more enjoys the beauties of nature and the pleasures of life. Failure in business and love wurely falls upon him who is weakened physically and mentally, and this sad condition is at once relieved and a new man made of him who uses this prescription.

Therefore, upon the highly favorable report of our medical staff we extend to George B. Wright's prescription for lost manhood the full editorial and official indorsement of the United States health reports. As certain as wound leaves a scar, and as sure as effec ruin upon his face to betray his lost manhood. He goes to his grave a human wreck, and never tells of his sufferings for fear of shame. Such mental anguish at times drives him to the verge of desperation, and he is easy prey for those vultures in human form—quack docthose vultures in human form-quack doctors-who hold out alluring hopes of cure only to disappoint, and after robbing him of his money, plunge him into absolute despair.

No one can appreciate the horrors of lost manhood except he who has suffered them. No one can help such sufferers except he who knows a cure and has himself been restored to full manhood. A notable cure of lost manhood in an extreme case was effected in the person of George B. Wright, a music dealer and well known citizen of Marshall, Mich. Mr. Wright for years suffered the agony of lost vital power. He saw his physical power go from him as the result of insidious disease, until he was reduced to a condition of senility, and the best doctors in the country gave him up to die.

Like many others, he tried the various remedies offered by specialists for the treatment of weaknesses peculiar to men, and it was this that any one who can ride an ordinary wheel can manage an Auto-Bi, and with half an experience that drove him to a little study and research for his own benefit.

He asserts that his ten years' suffering, both mentally and physically, was turned to unbounded joy in a single night through a rare combination of medicines that literally made him young again. It is the prescription of this discovery that his enthusiasm leads him to offer free to any man, young or old, who feels that his animation or the fire of ambition has left him and needs something that will brace him up and enable him to be prepared for any undertaking which may present itself.

There is no question but what in his individual case the results were just as described, and it seems quite probable that any man who believes himself to be weak may profit by sending for this free prescription. Many people wonder how he can afford to send this prescription free, but it costs him little to do so and he feels a philanthropic interest in giving weak men an opportunity to cure themselves.

A request to G. B. Wright, music dealer, Box No. 967 Marshall, Mich., for his free prescription, will be promptly and privately complied with by return mail.

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

HERE are several things at the Pan American Exposition which is now drawing crowds to Buffalo—that should be seen by all wheelmen. One of these is an "Auto-Bi" made by the E. R. Thomas Motor Co. in Buffalo itself.

The Thomas Auto-Bi is a motor bicycle brought to a high state of perfection, and it will rank as one of the 20th century wonders as soon as its many charming possibilities become known, for it invites economy, pleasure, and utility to an extent not hitherto accomplished. It entirely dissipates the popular conception that a motor bicycle is a heavy dangerous locomotive to be ridden only on the track by dare-devils who invite death every time they mount the "infernal" machine. As a matter of fact it is just opposite. It is nothing but an ordinary bicycle made stronger to meet the new conditions, with a little motor weighing about twenty pounds, the whole weighing seventy-five pounds.

The weight of the motor is near the head on the lower tube and rests principally on the front wheel. Experience has proved this to be the proper place. If the weight were too high, it would be top-heavy. If too low, gravitation would interfere with turning corners. If too far back, the front weight would be too light for steadiness or vibration, and cause skidding, in addition to other discomforts. As a matter of fact the Auto-Bi is much steadier and is equally as safe in snow, ice or slippery streets as any bicycle.

The Auto-Bi requires far less attention than any other automobile. The hievele has been equally as safe in snow, ice or slippery streets as any bicycle.

The Auto-Bi requires far less attention than any other automobile. The bicycle has been brought to the highest state of perfection and requires the minimum of attention. The motor is strong in every detail and there is nothing to get out of order except with severe misuse and neglect. One twentieth of the attention required by a horse and buggy will keep the bicycle and motor in the highest state of efficiency, and render a service many times greater and quicker.

er and quicker.

The speed is almost intuitively controlled by the rider through the rear brake, though the throttle may be, and even should be, used in long tours in order to save fuel. It can be ridden at varying speed from three to twenty-five miles per hour.

There are four ways of quickly stopping the Auto-Bi: First by slightly turning the left-hand bar grip; second, by pulling a brass plug; third, by slightly turning a lever. Any of these will stop the engine. Fourth, by the coaster brake, which, with the full power on, with a slight with a slight pressure, will reduce the speed of the Auto-Bi to a snail's pace, with the engine run-ning, or the engine may be brought to a full stop.

The most bicycle.
The Auto-Bimotor

ooks more

looks more like a toy than the powerful little engine that it is. Its weight is 22 lbs., being slightly increased to insure strength and mechanical efficiency. Possessing the finest tools, fixtures and machinery especially constructed for the purpose, the same degree of fine and accurate construction that characterizes the highest grade bicycle is assured. Every part is thoroughly tested and gauged, and each motor, under the supervision of experts, is required to prove the highest efficiency before shipment. Expensive tool steel is used in many parts that are usually made from castings; connecting rods are made from forgings; and all boarings are of lumen and phosphor bronze. Crank boxes are dust and oil proof and practically air tight, made unusually strong and accurate to permanently endure the strain of the motor. It is claimed that any one who can ride an ordinary wheel me we will visit the scene of a regular, oldcan manage an Auto-Bi, and with half an hour's experience the rider will enjoy thorough nour's experience the rider will enjoy thorough ease and confidence.

There is also an "Auto-tri" which is the same principle applied to the tricycle. The makers claim that the gasoline supply of the Auto-tri is one gallon in the supply tank and three quarts in the carburator and that an experienced rider can cover one thousand miles with one gallon of gasoline and the supply can be renewed at any country store.

So far, motor machines are limited to a speed of about twenty-five miles an hour. There is a great deal of misconception among riders concerning the speed to be obtained from motor bicycles and what is desirable. There are no two wheeled machines made for single riders that can go forty miles an hour, and they are not to be desired. A cycle capable of that speed could not go much below twenty miles an hour at its minimum pace, according to the present method of constructing motors. Moreover, they would be too heavy and cumbersome for popular use, for high power in motors cannot be had except at the price of greater weight. There is a machine that is said to have gone at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, and it runs at a ten mile pace when slowed down. Ma-chines that can be run from seven to seventeen miles an hour with a capacity of increasing to twenty or twenty-five for the maximum will be apt to satisfy the majority of riders, and the present prospect is that this is about all they will be able to get. Wheelmen who think that it would be nice to travel at twenty-five miles an hour on the road should seek a chance to try it on the track by obtaining permission to ride on one seat of the big pacing machines behind an experienced steersman.

A man recently wrote to a manufacturer: "I hind an experienced steersman.

A man recently wrote to a manufacturer: "I want a motor bicycle to go from forty to forty-five miles an hour." The manufacturer comments: "Whew! I wonder if that man knows how fast he would be traveling if he could get what he asked for and used it? I wrote and advised him to take a few lessons in going forty miles an hour on the cowcatcher of a locomotive. Then he would know what it was to rush through the air at that pace on a heavy wheeled coach on tracks, but he would still have no conception of what it would be to go as fast on a bicycle over a road. It would be impossible."

A Colorado man is said to have invented an

A Colorado man is said to have invented an automobile for the use of farmers. It is a machine which may be operated by gasoline or electricity, and it is adapted to ploughing, seeding, cultivating or harvesting. The engine or motor is on the forward or drive wheels, which are joined by a long reach to the smaller rear wheels, over which the seat of the driver is placed. A large tranverse bar crosses the reach bar at the center, and to this tranverse bar the plough, cultivator or other appliance for farm work may be atttached. The entire power of the engine may be applied to one wheel to get it out of a hole or rut.

A writer in the St. Nicholas magazine a few months ago gives an account of a home-made A Colorado man is said to have invented an

A writer in the St. Nicholas magazine a few months ago gives an account of a home-made bicycle lamp, invented by a fourteen-year-old boy on Shelter Island: For the body of the lamp he used a baking-powder can. Through the bottom of the can he cut a hole, into which he slipped the oil-can, made by fitting an old lozenge-bottle into a wedge-shaped piece of wood. The hole being smaller than the plug prevented it from falling through. The wick, made of several pieces of string held together by bending a small strip of tin around them, is wedged in the neck of the bottle. When it charred off, it became necessary to turn up the wick with a pin. In the top of the can he cut a hole for ventilation, and one in the front to answer the purpose of a lens, and also a small one in each side for side-lights. Over the opening used for the lens he glued with flour paste a piece of red muslin. This done, the lamp was completed and soon wired to the front of the wheel.

Perhaps some of our "Comfort boys" can profit by this suggestion and rejoice also in a lamp of their own manufacture.

Here are some pertinent hints for bicyclers:

Doyou

Doyou k now the number of your wheel on the maker's list? it stamped somewhere on the ma-chine. In case the machine should be stolen, the might serve an important purpose in leading to its indent ific a-tion.

"I wasted time," said time," said Richard II., lection" of good times long since passed and gone.

"If Aunt Minerva and the cousins will come with me we will visit the scene of a regular, oldfashioned Ohio apple-butter boiling. Some fine morning in late September or in October the farmer, with his boys and girls, his hired help and sometimes the good wite also, goes into the large apple orchard, where not only are the trees loaded with fruit—red, golden and striped—but the ground beneath is strewn with windfalls.
"The unsound apples are put into a wagon to be made into cider, the better ones being kept out to thicken the apple butter. The cider apples are hauled to town to a steam ciderpress, which has taken the place of the crude, old-fashioned, horsepower press. While the cider is being made the

Employment That Pays

is offered to Women, Men, grown Girls and Boys in the vicinity of their homes by our Subscription Department. We give liberal compensation; the most generous terms ever offered. Frompt reply secures a desirable and permanent position as our special authorized representative, with exclusive rights. Previous experience desirable, but not necess ry. FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY, for years a leader among the best 10 cent illustrated magazines for the home, is stronger, brighter, better than ever. Articles, Stories by famous writers; illustrations by well known artists. Outfit free to persons accepted as agents. Write us a postal today and name two references. This is an opportunity too good to neglect.

FRANK LESLIE PUBLISHING HOUSE, (Founded in 1855)

141-147 Fifth Avenue, New York.

apples which were laid aside for butter are being pared and quartered. Sometimes this is done at night when all hands, and perhaps some of the neighbors, turn out and indulge in an appleparing heach bee.

"Usually the apple butter boiling does not begin Early in "Usually the apple butter boiling does not begin until the day following the cidermaking. Early in the morning the huge copper kettle is put on, a fire started under it, and it is filled with cider to be boiled down. When sufficiently boiled this is taken out and the kettle partly filled with fresh cider. As soon as this boils the apples are put in, in batches, until they are all in. When they begin to cook up the long wooden stirrer is brought into use, and from now on the apple butter must be stirred constantly, lest it scorch to the kettle. As the mass cooks the cider which had previously been boiled is put in, a part at a time, until all has been used. The whole is boiled until perfectly smooth, and strong enough to keep. It is then flavored and poured into stone jars, to become a part of the housewife's stores for the winter. "Such scenes are always jolly times for the boys and girls on the farm. The ride to and through the orchard, and back again, on the load of apples, has its own peculiar joy for them. Then the cider drinking! What country boy has not known the delicious pleasure of drinking cider through a straw!

THE RIDE FROM THE APPLE ORCHARD.

"But apple butter making, like many another old-time custom, is going out of date. Still, there are yet some people here who came, originally, from 'the East', who always make it a part of their autumn work to lay in a supply of the good, old-fashioned apple butter."

LILIAN A. WHITE, Columbus, Kansas.

And now we must bring this session to an end and adjourn until the first of October, so goodnight and good fortune to you all.

AUNT MINERVA.

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home. CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample copy free on application.

AGENTS MAKE $50 PER WEEK and expenses.

FITS Epilepsy; the only sure treatment and quick cure; free to poor. Write Dr. Kruse Co., St. Louis, Mo. $2.00 A DAY earned at home writing. Send stamp. Art College, La Porte, Ind.

Earn $8 WASHING PLUING 100 SAMPLES OF DETECTIVE Shrewd, reliable man wanted in every ioneeded. American Detective Ass'n, Indianapolis, Ind.

SEND IOC. QUICK and receive sample worth 15c., state also agent's outfit. Agents make to the daily. A. D. S. N. Co., Box C. McClure, Pa.

BULBS for Fall Planting direct from the growers.

Catalogue free. Hulsebosch Bros., Englewood, N.J.

BEST PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. C. P. CORY & CO., 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

WOMEN WANTED DO Binding. $9.00 week. Steady work. Material furnished free and sent prepaid. Send stamped addressed envelope for par-ticulars. Universal Co., Dept. 29, Walnut Street, Phila. Pa.

Spanish Needles, Rods, Goldometors for locations of the Court instruments are the best. Catalogue 2 cents. B. G. Stauffer, Dept. C. Harrisburg, Pa.

SEND NO MONEY. with a handsome elseribed above absolutely Free, together with a handsome silver plated table set. Our object is to make ourselves and our Herba Pills known in your neighborhood. They are a sure cure for Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, etc. We are reliable and guarantee the Silverware that we give you; and the Sewing Machine to be exactly as we claim. Why buy a Sewing Machine when you can get one free? Send us your name at once, also P. O. address and nearest express office. We pay all express and packing charges You have no other expense. we pay all express and packing charges You have no pense.

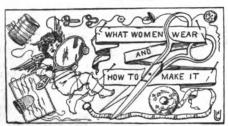

HERBA CURA DRUG CO.,

98 Maiden Lane, New York.

MAGIC FURIUNE

questions are quickly questions are quickly questions are quickly questions. Its replies to Love, Business and Town of the Course of the Cours

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

NE of the novelties of the season is the Louis XIII habit, and worn with either plain cloth skirts of the same color, or very elaborate ones of net or lace, it is quite the latest cry. A delightful little habit of this sort is made of mauve taffeta with a ruche to edge the revers and deep cuffs, while a full jabot of lace and paste buttons on velvet straps make an effective ensemble. The skirt worn with it is of mauve cloth, and the little toque (the newest thing in millinery) is innocent of any trimming save for a single long plume of white.

Another smart coat of this sort is built of pale tan cloth, the revers and cuffs being of embroidered white glace silk. The high collar seems to have entirely disappeared and in its place we see the shawl collar.

Boas of tulle, with long ends hanging down to the feet, are most becoming to the face and figure, and every woman should possess one. Those of white are especially dainty and becoming.

As to the hats, choose the shape that suits NE of the novelties of coming.

As to the hats, choose the shape that suits you best, for they are all very low and broad, and trimmed with lace and many plumes, or stiff wings. Black hats have white ostrich feathers. Hats of fawn shades are galore with very natural looking fruits with quantities of very natural looking fruits with quantities of very natural looking fruits with quantities of green leaves.

The ribbon blouse is a unique creation, fashioned from chine ribbon, bearing a blurred pattern of autumn foliage. The full front is composed of cream guipure, with broad bands of folded ribbon descending from the shoulder and arranged in two choux just below the bust, the ends finally narrowing into a waist belt. Equally uncommon is a model revealing a round bolero effect in shot maize broche, richly embroidered with a white silk cord let into a loose vest of cream net edged with guipure lace, the neck and long sleeves being transparent.

Another blouse of finely tucked black chiffon is made with a square yoke of openwork, bor-

Another blouse of finely tucked black chinon is made with a square yoke of openwork, bordered by medallion-shaped motifs, in raised silk cord, and fastening a little at one side, with minute bows of black velvet baby ribbon studded with small diamond buttons. The same style of blouse in white is also very effective.

Another confection of satin foulard displays

Another confection of satin foulard displays a design of many blended pastel shades—ecru lace forms the transparent yoke, with sailor collar and revers, while white accordion-pleated chiffon is responsible for the vest, the belt being broad and pointed in front. Deserving of mention are the sleeves which have small puffs at the shoulders and large ones exactly below the elbow, finally terminating in tight cuffs of ecru lace and chiffon.

As to quills and feathers, their like was never seen, nor even dreamed of before. One quill there is exceptionally broad that is thought to adapt itself with particular amiability to the wide, soft turban toque, with its deep, upturned brim. This black quill used for its distinctive decoration is mostly black, flecked with white spots, while a more ornamental quality consists of the close quill feather on one side, a stem and soft film on the other worked over with jet paillettes. On one of the more elaborate of these turbans, one having the brim raised higher on the left side than the right and circled or cleft with a broad jet quill, together with two large choux, resulting in a head covering of quite a fetching nature, a thing altogether distinguished and apart from the tight uncompromising round turban, the latter invariably carrying a fine assumption of modesty.

The rain-proof wrap is the special care of the up-to-date shops nowadays. At the present moment they are being built of silk or covert coating, the style of shape ranging from the straight or semi-sacque fitting to the close fitting style. The collar may be of velvet if desired. The range of waterproof fabrics in which the coat may be carried out is quite immense and the tones in these silks and covert coatings and tweeds are simply perfect. The covert coatings especially in their soft pleasant neutrals, something between fawn and gray, were most attractive. A three quarters loose coat is such an attractive, natty thing with silk facing and big pearl buttons.

A charmingly smart blouse is composed of yellow surah silk, each side of the front ornamented with bands of tucked blue glace, while this is supplemented by revers of embroidery displaying clusters of forget-me-nots. The inner vest consists of glace silk adorned with many rows of herring-bone. A charming blouse of linen for morning wear is creamy in color and has stripes of white embroidered covert coating, the style of shape ranging from muslin over pale blue batiste running down the front and sleeves, a plain white muslin collar being turned over a cravat of pale blue

EVERY LADY READ THIS.

I will send free a positive cure for all female diseases, irregularities, etc. A simple home treatment, a common sense remedy that never fails. FREE with valuable advice. Mrs. L. D. HUDNUT, South Bend, Ind.

You can easily make three dollars a day working for us. Do not miss this chance of making good money. See the back page of this paper.

FREE & Garment Co., 136 Van Buren St., Chicago. WANTED AGENTS in every county to sell "Family Memorials;" good profits and steady work.
Address, CAMPBELL & CO., 610 Plum St., Elgin, Ill.

Pall By Delay is Dangerous Out The CORRECTNESS OF THE PHILIPSBORN STREE DACKETS, CAPES, SUITS, FURS, ETC. M. PHILIPSBORN, 141 State St., CHICAGO.

stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H.PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

GENERAL MANAGER MNFG. DEPT., 919, STAR BLDG., CHICAGO, ILL. PNEUMATIC RAPID-FIRE RIFLE.

working for good money.

There is no smoke, odor or dust from this gun, it is endorsed by army officers as the best mechanical rifle eventional Shoe it., Chicago.

ell "Family teady work.

Eligin, III.

Want ONE OF THESE 1901 BIGYGLES

An honest advertisement. We are determined to introduce the wonderful Icura Headache Tablets into every home, and in order to do so we need good agents and are willing to pay also Icur.

A New Style All Steel Combine Rifle for Birds or Came using shot that can be obtained anywhere at a trifling expense, also darks making it desirable for outdoor target practice or parlor amusement of be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and taining form of evening amusement for the boys and girls as well as deaching him the use of duced and the possession of one of our accurate shooting air rifles makes a boy manly and affords him an expense of the woods for game and get robust and healthy besides.

SPECIAL. Send at once for sample copies of our big monthly and subscription blanks and canvass is of these King Pneumatic Rifles free as a present, all charges paid, guaranteeing absolute satisfaction, or we send one rifle as above for $1.17. Address OMFORT, Angusta, Main Remember the above is a real gun, nearly three feet long. It looks like a gun and shoots like a gun.

Want ONE OF THESE 1901 BIGYGLES

An honest advertisement. We are determined to introduce the wonderful Icura Headache Tablets into every home, and in order to do so we need good agents and are willing to pay them handsomely. You can get a 1901 Model Bicycle, with Lan.

We have a reputation for honest dealing, and the person who sells six boxes of Icure Vision also Icure Readache.

Specific for Birds or Canter Readache and are willing to pay them handsomely. You can get a 1901 Model Bicycle, with Lan.

We have a reputation for honest dealing, and the person who sells six boxes of Icure Vision also Icure Readache. CLUB OF A New Style All Steel Combination Rifle for Birds or Came

Save from $100 to $200

We make the WING PIANO and sell it ourselves. It goes direct from our factory to your home. We do not employ any agents or salesmen. When you buy the WING PIANO you pay the actual cost of construction and our small wholeof planos yearly. Most retail stores sell no more than twelve to twenty planos yearly, and must charge from $100 to $200 profit on each. You can calculate this yourself.

Sent on Trial. We Pay No Money in Advance. Freight.

We will send any WING PIANO to any part of the United States on trial. We pay freight in advance and do not ask for any advance payment or ceposit. If the piano is not satisfactory after twenty days' trial in your home, we take it back entirely at our expense. You pay us nothing unless you keep the piano. There is absolutely no risk or expense to you.

20000

It is Easy to Deal with Us Our many styles give a greater variety of planos to select from than is found in any retail store. The large lithographs in our catalogue show you these styles in the different woods, making it easy for you to select. Our correspondence department answers any questions you may ask, and gives all information promptly. You will find it more convenient as well as more economical to buy a piano from us than to buy from your local dealer. Sold on Easy Payments.

The Instrumental Attachment imitates perfectly the tones of the mandolin, guitar, struments, with and without piano accompaniment, can be played just as perfectly by a single player on the piano as though rendered by a parlor orchestra. The original instrumental attachment has been patented by us, and it cannot be had in any other piano, although there are several imitations of it.

All Wing Pianos have seven and one-third octaves, double lever grand repeating action, grand overstrung bass, with three strings to each note in the middle and treble registers; the scale is the same as in grand power of tone; the cases are double veneered inside and outside, and finished in Circassian walnut, dark rich mahogany, genuine quartered oak, and ebonized. The keys are of the finest grade of polished ivory and ebony.

SPECIAL FEATURES.—Built up wrest plank construction, dove-tailed top and bottom frame case construction, full length, extra heavy metal plate, metal depression bar, metal key bed support, improved noiseless direct motion pedal action, non-twisting hammer shanks, imported wrought-iron tuning pins, copper covered bass strings, improved practice attachment, full length duet music desk, instrumental attachment.

In 33 Years Over 31,000 Pianos We refer to over 31,000 every part of the United States. WING PIANOS are guaranteed for twelve years against any defect in tone, action, vorkmanship or material.

WING & SON, 319-321 East 12th St.,

New York 1868-33d YEAR-1901

A Book of Information about pianos, containing 116 large pages, sent free on request. Every one who intends to purchase a piano should have it. Write for it to-day.

ELECTRIC BELT

TOS ELECTRIC BELT FREE FOU

ircumstances ask for or accept any money for it either now or in the future. This is a guarantee it THE BEST ELECTRIC BELT MADE. All forms of weaks

BE A STRONG, VICOROUS MAN AMONG MEN.

THIS GRAND FREE OFFER IS MADE TO YOU ONLY AND IT HOLDS GOOD FOR A FEW DAYS ONLY, SO WRITE TO-DAY.

rual. Urinary, Kidney or Liver Diseases, such as impotency, varicocele, spermatorrhœa, etc., YIELD AT ONCE TO ITS ACIC INFLUENCE. We give away only a limited number of these belts. IT WILL CURE YOU then your friends will have an under the sales we make our profit. Write to-day in confidence, telling all about your case and the Belt will be tyou absolutely free at once. Address PHYSICIANS' INSTITUTE, 2124 Masonic Temple. Chicago. III.

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

ECIPES for invalids and sick people have been requested by one of our constant readers. and we are very glad to devote part of our space this month to this sub-ject. We are in doubt as to whether the re-quest was intended to be for recipes to the conbe for recipes to tempt the appetite of chronic invalids and convalesinvalids and convales-cents,—or whether re-cipes for making the things that very sick people are allowed to take were desired. So we will first give re-cipes for making the latter.

BARLEY WATER.

Pick over three tablespoons barley and soak in four cups cold water over night. Boil slow-ly for an hour and a half; strain, season with salt, sugar and lemon juice. Reheat and serve.

TOAST WATER.

Cut bread in quarter inch pieces,—put in a pan and dry thoroughly in a slow oven until brown. Break in pieces, add an equal measure of boiling water and let stand one hour. Strain through cheese cloth and season with salt. Serve hot or cold.

GRAPE JUICE.

Wash and pick over one-half cup of Concord grapes. Add one cup cold water and cook an hour in a double boiler. Add one-half cup sugar and cook twenty minutes. Strain and

IRISH MOSS LEMONADE.

Pick over and soak one-fourth cup Irish moss in cold water to cover. Remove moss, add two cups cold water and cook twenty minutes in double boiler. Strain, and to one-half cup liquid add the juice of one lemon and sugar.

KOUMISS.

Heat one quart milk until nukewarm; add one and one-half tablespoons sugar and one-third yeast cake dissolved in one tablespoon warm water. Fill beer bottles within an inch and a half of the top; cork and invert. Let stand six hours at a temperature of eighty degrees F. Chill and serve next day.

Beat one egg slightly; add a little salt, one tablespoon sugar, two tablespoons wine or one of brandy. Mix thoroughly, add milk and strain. Wine may be omitted and a slight grating of nutmeg used.

WINE WHEY.
Scald one cup milk, add one cup sherry or port wine and let stand five minutes. Strain

BOTTLED BEEF TEA.

Wipe one pound steak from top of round. Remove all fat and cut in small pieces. Place in preserve jar and cover. Place in a trivet in kettle and surround with cold water. Allow the water to heat, slowly, care being taken not to have it reach a temperature higher than one-hundred and thirty degrees F. Let stand two hours; strain and press the meat to obtain all the juices. Salt to taste.

BOUILLON CUP.

Mix one tablespoon flour with one-fourth cup milk; scald one and three-fourths cups milk in double boiler, add flour paste and cook thirty minutes. Season with salt.

INDIAN GRUEL.

Mix two tablespoons meal, one tablespoon flour and one-half teaspoon salt; add cold water to make a thin paste. Add to three cups boiling water and boil gently one hour. Dilute

CLAM WATER. Wash eighteen clams, cook in covered kettle with three tablespoons water, until shells open. Remove clams, strain liquor through double cheese cloth. Serve hot or as a frappe.

RENNET CUSTARD.

Heat one cup of milk until lukewarm, add two tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon sherry wine; when sugar is dissolved add one teaspoonful liquid rennet. Turn into mould and let stand in a cool place until firm. Serve with sugar and crears.

BROILED BIRDS.

Butter a sheet of letter paper; place a boned bird on lower half of sheet, fold upper half over bird, bringing edges of paper together. Begin at edges and fold over lower side and ends of paper three times. Place in a wire broiler for ten minutes over a slow fire, being careful that paper does not catch on fire. Remove from case, place on slice of toast, season with salt, pepper and butter. A breast of chicken or a lamb chop may be cooked in the same way.

We have been asked to give some new recipes

We have been asked to give some new recipes

for ices.

NOUGAT ICE CREAM.

Make a custard of the yolks of 5 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt and 3 cups milk. Cool and add 11-2 cups heavy cream beaten until stiff, and the whites of 5 eggs also beaten stiff. Then add one-third cup each of pistachio, filbert, English walnut and almond nut meats finely chopped, and 1 tablespoon vanilla and 1 teaspoon almond extract. Freeze, using 3 parts crushed ice to 1 part rock salt.

POMONA FRAPPE.

POMONA FRAPPE.

Boil 2 cups sugar and 4 cups water 20 minutes.

Add 1 quart sweet cider, 1 pint orange juice and from 1-4 to 1-2 cup lemon juice. Cool, strain and freeze to a mush. Serve in frappe orlasses.

glasses.

GRAPE FRUIT PUNCH.

Boil 4 cups water and 2 1-3 cups sugar 20 minutes. Add 11-2 cups grape-fruit juice, 1-4 cup lemon juice and 1-3 cup brandy. Freeze and serve in glasses or sections of grape-fruit.

and serve in glasses or sections of grape-fruit.

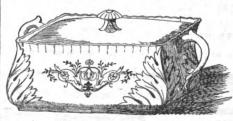

FROZEN FIG PUDDING.

Scald 1 quart milk, add 1-2 cup caramelized sugar; as soon as sugar is dissolved make a custard, adding the yolks of 2 eggs, 1 1-4 cups sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Strain, cool and add 1 pound chopped figs and 1 cup curacoa. Freeze, pack in a mould, set in salt and ice, and let stand 2 hours. Remove from mould and garnish with stuffed figs, whipped cream and candied pineapple.

PUNCH.

PUNCH.

Make a syrup by boiling two cups of water and one cup of sugar fifteen minutes; add one can grated pineapple, juice of three lemons, one and one-third cups orange juice, one cup tea infusion, one-third cup rum, one-fourth cup curacoa and fruit red to color. Freeze to a mush and serve in frappe glasses.

CHINA CRACKER JAR.

CAN YOU use three dollars a day? Of course you can. Every person can. See back page of this paper.

WURLITZER BEATS THE WORLD Brass Band INSTRUMENTS, DRUMS, ETC Reduced Prices. Don't bny until you see new 80-pp. Cat. B. MAILED FREE. Pp. Cat. B. MAILER FRANCE

TRUE HAIR GROWER

A Remarkable Bemedy which cures old standing cases of Baldness. Restores gray hair to its natural color without dyeing, stops hair falling, eradicates dandruff, cures weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scan-ty partings and all scalp humors, from whatever

FREE. The price of Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Free Train and Scalp Soap, 25c. per bar, but we send A FREE TRIAL of these grand treatments together with testimonials and full particulars how to cure all hair and scalp troubles, and restore gray hair to its natural color without dyeing, on receipt of 5c. to cover cost of postage. Write to-day. Address in full. cost of postage. Write to-day. Address in full.

LOTTIMER & CO., DEPT. Baltimore, Md. N. Paca St.

Department 57 Free Trial Coupon

This coupon and be entities you to one bottle of Lorrimer's Excelsior Mair Forcer and one bar of Skin and Sealp Soap, free by mail, prepaid to any address. Write very distinctly to avoid delay.

LORRIMER & CO.

$3.75 BUYS A $35 WATCH THIS IS A GENUINE GOLD-FILLED WATCH in appearance, superbly engraved, double appearance, superbly chigh and set, hunting case, stem wind and set, HIGH-GRADE RUBY JEWELED WORKS 25 YEARS. Cut this out send it to us and we will send you the WATCH AND CHAIN & GHARM C. O. D. $3.75 and express charges for examination. If as represented, pay our special price $3.75 and exp. charges and it is yours. Mention if you desire Ladies' or Gent's Size.

CALUMET WATCH CO., Dept. 5, Chicag

runkard us your name and address with 4c to cover cost of postage, packing, ad you a package of our "Bilent Cure" in a plain package with

MILO DRUG CO., Dept 19. St. Louis, Mo. ACENT'S OUTFIT FREE-Five Articles, express prepaid. Wonder Egg Beater and Oream Whip, will beat eggs in \(\frac{1}{2} \) minute, whip cream in \(\frac{3}{2} \) minutes. Sinplest and best egg beater made. We are the largest manufacturers of Aluminum, Granite and Tin Ware Novelties in the U. S. Dept. X. HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, or NewYork, Buffalo, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Seattle. This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable.

have you read the ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO.'S notice to Agents on last page. You can't afford to miss it. It is the greatest offer to Agents ever made by any firm on earth.

LADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canfor reply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind. Please mention COMPORT when you write.

Rods For locating gold and silver. Positively guaranteed. From $5 up. Catalogue and testimonials free. A. L. BRYANT, Box 10, R Dallas, Tex.

THE YANKEE FIRE KINDLER BUILDS 100 FIRES WITH 3 CENTS WORTH OF COAL OIL, NO KINDLINGS
WARRANTED OF THE WORTH OF COAL OIL, NO KINDLINGS
WARRANTED OF THE WORTH OF W.G. Wiseman, Edgewood, Texas, agent for Van Zandt Coorder was for 600, making 1800 Kindlers altogether sold ieses Kindlers, from a dozen to as high as 20 and 30 a day. rites: "Ship another 100 by express. Am sold out." We will open yet but they are being taken fast. To anyone hones naif poand, length 15 inches) prepaid with terms, on recalredly taken. Address plainly, VANKEE KIN

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE

To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life-giving wonders, we send two boxes absolutely free, all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box, send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver; they are fluted top and beautiful and useful ornaments; they are suitable for dining table use, or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxien Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels, and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as if by magic if you use these Pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money-making agency proposition, where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar investment. Address, To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M, Augusta, Maine.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.

5 E Fourth Street, CINCINNATE, O. IIIA

FOR A FEW HOURS' WORK SELLING QUEEN BAKING POWDER OUT inducements are enormous. To every purchaser of a latest cut glass pattern (like picture). To the lady who sells 15 pound cans Queen Baking powder we give FREE a beautiful Pictore and 6 glasses to misch, and the present of the lady who sells 15 pound cans Queen Baking powder we give FREE a beautiful Pictore and 6 glasses to misch and present of the lady who sells 15 pound cans Queen Baking groceries. We also give cash commission. Write to-deliver the goods and collect for them and present of the lady who sells 15 pound cans Queen Baking groceries. We also give cash commission. Write to-deliver the goods and collect for them and present of the growth of the so simple that it is next to impossible for the gant age to ut of order, to misfire or to shoot loose or shaly. Has the latest automatic safety device and slide, is positive in its action; the cocking less of price. Every part of this gun is inderent in its action, it is considered in its action, it is considered in its action. It is one of the strongest, best shooting guns made. The stocks are full pistol grip, handsomely decorated with fancy rubber butt plates, handsome checker of the strongest, best shooting decorated with fancy rubber butt plates, handsome checker of the strongest, best shooting the cocking and the strongest of the strongest, best shooting the strongest of the strongest, best shooting the strongest of the strongest of the strongest, best shooting the strongest of the strongest, best shooting the strongest of the strongest o

How do you do, dear Cousins? You are no longer Summer Girls, but with September must give up all the frivolling of the summer time, and think about the work there is to do and other things than trying to have a good time and keep cool. I hope you have enjoyed the Summer days and are ready for the autumn which is just as good a season to be useful in as any other. Now let us begin work.

The first one on the September list is Tanglefoot of Wallace, Neb. who says she has taught school two "tearms" and wants to know whether she should "go without" a 17 year old boy she is in love with to continue teaching her third term. It seems to me she might let him go long enough to learn how to spell, and also to learn that she should speak of herself as "I", not "i".

Twin Sisters, Paha, Wash.—If you only have "six fellows" between you, hadn't you better wait till you get a dozen, and put it to a vote which you should choose?

Lillian, Cromwell, Ia.—An evening caller should leave at least two hours and a half before 1 A. M. (2) It is proper enough for the bride to assist the groom in buying his wedding clothes, but wouldn't you hate to marry a man who would accept a charity like that? Better chase him off with a broomstick.

Babe, White Bird, Ida.—Girls of seventeen have beaus, but they should not. (2) Girls of thirteen and fourteen should not go to dances.

Golden Hair, Payson, Ills.—The best way to avoid annoyance by the young man is not to ride four in a buggy. (2) If you have no understanding, he has a right to go to see another girl every other Sunday night.

Mollie, Creston, Wash.—Better consult a physician about your face. Dandruff is a difficult matter. It is said a remedy is to rub the scalp with castile soap, caster oil, sweet almond and tannin. Lemon juice is also said to be good rubbed on the scalp but kept away from the hair. (2) Ladies don't throw dice in stores. (3) Ask your doctor about the pain in the side.

Dewdrop, San Bernadino, Cal.—The really right kind of a young man will not ask you to disobey your mother, no matter how much he likes you. As to the smoking, do not inquire into motives; it is enough if he has stopped.

Bird Eye, Jamestown, Pa.—If the young man loves you he will let you know it, and if he does not, nothing on earth can make him. Don't worry about not having a sweetheart; you'll get one soon enough.

enough.

Delilah, Stockport, Pa.—No, don't kiss "a very friendly gentleman" good by even if you are going abroad. (2) The jaws of the "boy who wishes to recline" on your shoulders should be slapped. (3) Don't marry the man you care nothing about; all his money can't buy happiness.

Will-o'-the-wisp, Stockport Station, N. Y.—It is not proper for a girl to be engaged to two men at once under any circumstances. (2) It is not necessary for the girl to applogize to the young man when her father breaks an umbrella over his head. She should present her father with a new umbrella. Michigan Girl, Mich.—There is no set form for Michigan Girl, Mich.—There is no set form for declining or accepting oral invitations; say whatever may seem pleasantest; she should thank the man for any courtesy, and she should ask him to call; the gentleman usually precedes the lady whether an usher leads the way or not, but either is good form; it is better to rise when introduced.

Brownie, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—Possibly if one of the men should ask your father if you could go out with him, it might have some effect. Some fathers have peenliar notions that they are loath to give up. (2) If you and the young man have quarrels, why not let him go, now that he has been away so long? Do you want to live a quarrelsome married life?

Rose Bud, Stronach, Mich.—If a girl of twenty really loves a man of forty-two, and he is a nice man, she will be pretty safe in marrying him. Anyway, it is safer than to marry one of twenty-eight, that she doesn't love.

Subscriber, Shelby, Mo.—Mr. Carnegie, Pittsburg; Dr. Pearson, Chicago. Don't know the other.

Opal, Norborne, Mo.—Write to one of the Correspondence Schools advertised in Comfort. Stenography is very hard, both to learn and to work at. Book-keeping has too many doing it. What do you think of photography? It is woman's work. (2) Any music house in St. Louis will answer your question.

Pet and Puss, Roscommon, Mich.—No. (2) Be very chary in giving your photographs to young men. (3) Yes. (4) Tell the man plainly, if he won't take a hint. (5) Give back the ring if the engagement is broken. (6) Once a week is enough for a man to call unless engaged, or he is a friend who can drop in any time.

annoyance by the young man is not to ride four in a buggy. (2) If you have no understanding, he has a right to go to see another girl every other Sunday night.

Dolly, Lewis, Cal.—See advertising columns of Comfort for addresses of dealers in postage stamps.

COMFORT for addresses of dealers in postage stamps.

Hazel, Rough House, Kans—A young man will try harder to get near a girl who is "distant," than one who is not. (2) The best way to treat a jealous long as the child gets what it needs.

Salome, Baton Rouge.—Engaged couples usually kiss each other, but since you have refused for sixteen months, I think I would make him wait until you are married. Make up for it then, and he will think you are the finest woman living.

Brown Eyes, Devil's Lake, N. D.—Don't stay too long at your fiance's home. A day or two is enough. (2) You might go boating with another man if your fiance has no objections.

There, dears, all the questions that are worth answering are answered, and let us all hope they will be of service to you, for I try to make them so. Though I may be a little sharp at times, I mean it only for your good. Now by by, all of you.

COUSIN MARION.

MUSICAL HANDBOOK FREE.

Any one thinking of buying a musical instru-ment can learn all about the different styles and prices, and how each instrument is made and also save a great deal of money by sending to Lyon & Healy, 91 Adams St., Chicago, for one of their Musical Handbooks (free).

THE LIGHTEST METAL

in the world is Aluminum. You have no idea how well it is adapted to every-day use unless you have one of our Frosted Silver Finish Aluminum Pencils, vest pocket size, patent lead protecting delivery when not in use, can be concealed and prevent lead from breaking. A business man's pencil, aladies' pencil, or for school children there is no equal. To get our big catalogue of novelties into new hands we will send one for only 5c.

Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

We will pay any honest man $85 per month and all traveling expenses to take orders for the greatest portrait concern in the United States. Your salary will be guaranted and position permanent. Address World's Art Exchange, Dept. A 8, Chicago, Ill.

Family Record. A beautiful picture, rich gold. Tremendous seller. Agents delighted. Sample free for 12c. to pay postage and advtg; 9 for $1.00 postpaid. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Rag Dolls To any little girl who will send us 10c. together with the names and addresses of (3) little friends, we will send post-we will send, post-paid, one of our Cry Baby Dolls. ART FABRIC MILLS, Dept. T, 40 White St., New York.

In looking through the 72-page catalogue of The Dueber-Hampden Watch Co., of Canton, Ohio, whose large advertisement you will notice on page 3, we find more than 287 beautiful half-tone illustrations of elegant watches of all sorts and sizes, and you will notice that this firm is the only one in America who make a complete watch.

You may have had a poor watch but now complete watch.

You may have had a poor watch but now want AN EXTRA GOOD ONE AT A LOW PRICE, if so DON'T FAIL TO SEND for their illustrated booklet, "GUIDE TO WATCH BUYERS," it will give you an idea of the many different styles and prices. It will be sent by The Dueber-Hampden Watch Works, Canton, Ohio, FREE to any address. Kindly mention "Comfort" when you write.

FREE! FREE! FREE! Beauties A Pair of Lace Curtains.

Adjustable Reclining Chair. It is made of the finest Oak as arranged by a simple device in the that it can be adjusted to either a le ing or upright position. It is the useful and popular Easy Chair o market. They seem to just it tired body after a busy day's in fact it fits one's every We are giving these Chairs aw Premiums for selling our Rem

Lace Curtains Free. Sell only six Electric Plasters at 25c. each, which we trust you with and we will send you a pair of these elegant Northingham Lace Curtains, each Curtain is nine feet on the see elegant Northingham Lace Curtains, each Curtain is nine feet lead to the see elegant Northingham Lace Curtains, each Curtain is nine feet with the seed of Curtains in the pair, and as they are flush and upon eneed to dorn the very broad windows; in fact in many instances one pair would do for several words and the seed of taste will tell you that there is curtains. The finest effects are room so much as a part energy me of taste will tell you that there is curtains. The finest effects are well as from the inside. They are of the real Italian pattern and formerly sold as high as six or eight dollars a pair. They are delivered free to you, all charges paid. Don't fail to send for the six Plasters to-day, as soon as you sell them and send us the $1.50 you get the Curtains and learn all about the Morris of goods as some firms profess to do, but we make you the most ilberal, honest and straightforward offer ever put out. We applying our agents over two dollars for selling only one dollars's worth of goods in order to get them advertised. We want to prove there is a sure prevention and cure for Lame Back, Rheumatism, La Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Preumonia, Malaria, etc., etc. Send for the six Plasters to-day. Address The Ginnt Plaster Co., Box C, Augusta, Malne,

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new AH Wool Puster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handlest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delighiful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell. A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. If you will secure a special four months' subscriber to our family paper and send 12c. for same, we will send our magazine to the name you furnish and send you one Wool Duster for your effort. The best offer ever made.

Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

man is to have nothing apper and send the for father or the mother spank the erring child, so more who is not. (2) The best way to treat a jets who is "distant," than I can be made to make the mother spank the erring child, so more who is not. (2) The best way to treat a jets way to treat a jets of the many of the ma

DUR NEW 1901 MODEL OHIO

has every modern improvement, all the up to date points of every high grade sewing machine made.

Has the newest style five-drawer cabinet, made of solid oak, beautifully finished and highly poished. One illustration shows the machine closed, head dropped from sight, to be used as a center table, stand or desk; the other opened, with full length table and head ready for sewing. It comes with four side drawers and one center drawer, the latest 1901 model skeleton frame; one of the most massive, most complete and expensive sewing machine cabinets made, carved, paneled, embossed and beautifully finished throughout; fine nickel drawer pulls, rests on four casters, HAS A SAXON ANDUSTABLE TREADLE, AND THE BEST FULL

BLACK ENAMELED IRON STAND MADE.

OUR $8.95 five-Drawers, DROP HEAD, HIGH
ANGUNET STAND MADE.

OUR $8.95 five-Drawers, DROP HEAD, HIGH
ANGUNET STAND MADE.

OUR $8.95 five-Drawers, DROP HEAD, HIGH Class materials, only skilled mechanics are employed, and every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and every machine put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and
every machine is put out under the manufacturer's and every machine is put ou

ACCESSORIES FURNISHED AT SAGE
TO THE WILLIAM OF THE WAY TO A CONTROLLED TO THE WAY TO THE WORLD OF THE SENSIAL STREET TO THE WAY TO THE WORLD OF THE SENSIAL STREET TO THE WAY TO THE WORLD OF THE SENSIAL STREET TO THE WORLD OF

No. 84M ORDER BY NUMBER

DON'T DELAY

98

OUR $8.95 OHIO MACHINE is the very latest style, the new improved model for 1901, high grade in every piece and part. It combines the good points of all other high grade sewing machines, with the defects of none; one of the lightest running in

No. 84M Order by Number
all parts self compensating,
all parts self compensating, all parts interchangeable, as sewing machine that will last a lifetime.

This illustration gives you an idea of the appearance of our special $8.95 \cdot Drawer Drop Head Cabinet OHIO Sewing Machine closed, to be used as a writing desk, center table or stand. The head drops completely from sight, table folds up, and being highly polished and finished antique eak, very elaborately decorated, you have really a beautiful piece of furniture.

The illustrations and descriptions can give you but a very faint idea of the handsome machine the OHIO is, of the WONDERFIL VALUE WE ARE OFFERING AT $8.95. You must see it, examine it, use it, and compare it with other machines to really appreciate the value we are offering.

ALMOST EVERYBODY KNOWS US, reliable. We have

OUR FREE TO EXAMINE OFFER, our three months' free trial our established reputation, make you perfectly safe in sending supermeters.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

which occurs at about three minutes past eight o'clock in the morning of the 12th of October, this year, falls upon the cusp of the 12th house of a figure erected for the time at Washington, the seat of government. At that time Mercury, Mars and Venus will be in the Ascendant and Herschel, Saturn and Jupiter will be in cendant and Herschel, Saturn and the 2nd house of the figure.

Mars will be the ruler of the scheme and being strong in his location and conjoined with Venus, gives indication of success and unusual gain to the mechanical and manufacturing classes among our people and good fortune and credit to our army and navy. It would seem to indicate advantage to the laboring classes at the expense of capitalists, as a successful result of some strike, also an unusual advantage to those employed in the manufacture of wearing apparel or to decorative workers. Men will be remarkably ingenious and skillful in execution, striking out many novelties and inventing new methods in their labors. There will be more than usual misty weather and seasonable rains and a healthy air generally.

There will be a partial eclipse of the Moon in the forenoon of the 27th of the month, though it is not visible in Washington, our seat of government. Its beginning will be visible generally throughout the eastern portion of Europe, in Asia, the Pacific Ocean, and Alaska, and the end will be visible generally throughout Europe, the eastern portion of Africa, in Asia and the Pacific Ocean.

We are told by the books that the greatest effects of Eclipses are seen in the portions of the earth where visible and that an eclipse of the Moon in Taurus is evil to the great cattle in the countries where the eclipse is seen, producing more than the usual injury or destruction to cattle, whether from disease or bad storms. The figure for the Eclipse shows the two benefics, Jupiter and Venus, just about to rise in the east while Mars and Herschel, nearly conjoined, will be in the 12th house, the Moon is just inside the 5th house favorably aspected by the majority of the planets. Both these figures continue the good promises for the welfare and prosperity of our Nation and people.

Mars ruler of the 12th house in the figure for the eclipse, being also in that house, with other testimonies, threatens some bad break or uprising among prisoners or the outbreak of s

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR OCTOBER 1901.

OCTOBER. I-Tuesday. The morning is very unfavorable for most undertakings, prompting rest rather than exertion and urging unusual caution in all acts; the avoidance of disputes or controversies and as much as possible, all danger of accidents and hurts; see that the body is not needlessly exposed to danger; let the tongue be kept well under control; as the day advances, however, application for favor from public officers and persons of prominence in the literary world will be more than ordinarily successful; have transactions with printers, publishers, booksellers, stationers, mathematicians and all ingenious persons.

2-Wednesday. Continue to act upon the sugmathematicians and all ingenious persons.

2-Wednesday. Continue to act upon the suggestions of yesterday, specially pressing thine efforts to accomplish thine ends with thy superior in authority or with officers of government, during the forenoon; the afternoon forbids success in such things and cautions thee against entering upon any new undertwing that here suddenly offers itself; have nothing to do with patents, trade-marks, copy-rights, nor with the organization of bodies of men into unions or corporations.

3-Thursday. Give attention to conducting the routine affairs of life rather than starting out in new lines or ventures. Press the details of all established business and prepare for more vigorous action when conditions serve more favorably for beginnings.

4-Friday. This day is discouraging for the purse outsiness and prepare for more vigorous action when conditions serve more favorably for beginnings.

4—Friday. This day is discouraging for the purse and embarrassing to the progress of enterprise; conditions are quite threatening and money transactions have limited chances of success; inducements may be held out for speculation but REGULUS advises his friends to beware of temptation. REGULUS particularly charges those who claim this as the anniversary of their birthday or who were born about the 1st days of January or April or the 3rd day of July, of past years, to exercise more than ordinary care in matters of both health and finance for a season; let them particularly favor the digestive organs by avoiding indulgencies in stimulating foods or drinks that are difficult of digestion; let them give no cause for business ruptures nor allow discouraging prospects to dishearten them, but doing the best they can, be content though they do not seem to accomplish so much or prosper as they would wish. The fair sex claiming these birthdays are likely to have quite a degree of disquiet under passing influences on account of male relatives or friends; estrangements in parental and conjugal relations are among the common effects of these conditions and patience and forbearance are recommended.

5—Saturday. This day is particularly propitious for 5—Saturday. This day is particularly propitious for music and art and for the pursuit of the elegant occupations; dealers in fancy goods, embroideries, milliners and jewelers should urge their business vigorously on this day; deal with surgeons, chemists, druggists, bakers, brewers, tanners, glass manufacturers, workers in metal and all in the mechanical trades.

in mental efforts.

7—Monday. Have dealings with public officers in the early hours when also attend to business with corporations and partnerships; look out for the purse in the middle of the day, being slow to make purchases of artistic goods unless absolutely necessary; musical and dramatical entertainments are not encouraged for the evening, and social engagements are more likely to be turbulent or full of controversy than to be pleasant and agreeable.

agreeable.

8-Tuesday. Be not hasty in action or rash of speech in the morning, when also avoid all differences with thy neighbors; as the day advances, let every moment be fully employed for urging thine important ventures to the utmost; have money transactions of consequence and deal with persons of wealth and position; make contracts; sign deeds, leases, and all other writings pertaining to houses, lands, mines, and agricultural and mining products; adjust accounts with banks, make collections, and attend to literary enterprises.

9-Wednesday. Deal with printers, publishers and attend to literary enterprises.

9-Wednesday. Deal with printers, publishers, press-writers and all persons employed as managers of affairs of others, as trustees, counsellors, and super-intendents; execute writings pertaining to real estate and mining properties; make deeds, wills, bonds and contracts of all kinds concerning books and other literary productions; let the mind be fully employed, adjust accounts and do important correspondence; let judges weigh testimony and decide questions of magnitude and importance.

10—Thursday. This day invites the commencement of undertakings of importance in the fine arts and dealings in fancy and decorative goods; it is favorable for the marriage contract, promising happiness in the marriage relation now established unless the nativity happens to be very unfortunate in this particular.

11-Friday. Make no investment of thy means dur-ing this day for any speculative purpose and be watchful of the purse generally; do not bargain for houses or lands or the products of the earth, such as grains, vege-tables, lumber or ores, nor have any transactions with banks, judges, lawyers, building contractors, or mining authorities.

12—Saturday. Use the morning hours in preference to other parts of the day; deal with government officials, politicians, and persons in authority generally; make engagements with railroad men, superintendents of public works and all ingenious persons or inventors.

13 Sunday. An unusually benevolent Sabbath day, inviting communion with the poet and musician and divine; church matters are favored generally.

14-Monday. Begin this day with its first moments and pursue vigorously all avocations pertaining to landed property or improvements; let those engaged in the literary pursuits seize this time for the inauguration of their principal efforts; let the forenoon be employed especially for prosecuting all literary labors and for the consideration of matters of great importance depending upon extra judgment and sound sense for their success; travel, engage servants, do correspondence, and be active and diligent in all commercial matters.

and diligent in all commercial matters.

15—Tuesday. Musical and artistic pursuits and the elegant occupations generally suffer peculiar annoyances and embarrassments during this day and the gentle sex appear at a disadvantage or suffer in greater proportion than usual. Special caution is urged during the passing days for persons born about the 5th of January, 6th of June, 7th of July or 8th of December, of past years, that they shall be strictly temperate in habit, avoiding too free living, dissipation, indulgences in follies, extravagance in expenditures either through vanity, boasting, false pride, or for self-gratifications.

16—Wednesday. Let the musician artist and all in false pride, or for self-gratifications.

16—Wednesday. Let the musician, artist and all in the nicer avocations of life begin this day with its earliest moments and labor assiduously, dealing also in articles of dress, adornment or decoration, taking principal steps in all business of these classes as early in the morning and forenoon as possible; avoid the aged in the evening.

17—Thursday. Push nearly all pursuits vigorously during this day; seek favor at the hands of public officers or those in authority and make engagements in the fine arts; purchase wearing apparel and articles that furnish gratification and pleasures to mankind.

18—Friday. Give preference to the late hours for the 18—Friday. Give preference to the late hours for the most important engagements of the day; the middle hours are more baffling, especially in all literary undertakings; the evening is really the best for seeking money favors and dealings with the wealthy.

favors and dealings with the wealthy.

19—Saturday. The forenoon of this day gives rise to baffling conditions not promotive of success in any important venture; it discourages dealings with real estate men, contractors and builders, farmers, miners, coal and lumber dealers, and men in the woolen trade; the afternoon and evening are best especially for the literary pursuits; do correspondence and make other appeals to the mind which will be active and responsive to thy satisfaction.

faction.

20-Sunday. There is but little promise of assistance to the clergy or those connected with church matters on this day; conflicts of interests or authority among churchmen are easily excited under existing conditions.

churchmen are easily excited under existing conditions.

21—Monday. Improve the early forenoon for dealing in metals, machinery and cutlery, also for the pursuit of the mechanical trades and inventions; the day is a superior one and very important engagements may be entered into concerning the manufacture of all classes of artistic and decorative wares; it specially favors the artist, musician, and all who produce the gratifications of mankind; woo and win thy lady-love and seek enjoyment from all classes of entertainment and social engagements.

22—Tuesday. Use the pen very cautiously in the forencon hours when no dealings should be had concerning houses, mining, printing or publishing; heware of signing any writing binding thyself financially; postpone correspondence of moment and be prudent in all money transactions.

transactions.

23-Wednesday. The early and late parts of the day are the best; seek favor from thine employer in the morning and crowd all business with vigor in the early forenoon; put on the cautious cap as noon is approached and passed, avoiding haste or excitement in business dealings and see that no dispute is permitted to mar the harmony of the day; buy goods for trade in the afternoon, when also deal in real estate, boots and shoes, wool, lead, coal, and all kinds of buildirg materials; seek money accommodations from aged persons of wealth in the afternoon.

24-Thursday. Strange interruptions affect the seek money accommodations from aged persons of wealth in the afternoon.

24—Thursday. Strange interruptions affect the transactions of the early morning when affairs may promise well, but appearances are likely to prove deceitful; as the forenoon advances, however, let every energy be given to business; prosecute mathematical and scientific studies; deal with the intellectual classes, booksellers, publishers, printers, judges and lawyers; travel and change residences and effect commercial contracts of consequence. Unusual progress is made in such matters and benfits of magnitude are likely to be now coming from them, particularly to persons born about the 11th of January or March or the 13th of July or September, of past years; but the contrary is likely to persons born about the 9th of February, 10th of May, or 13th of August, of past years, as they are likely to be having temporary mental anxieties, controversies or trouble with the correspondence or accounts.

25—Friday. The day is unfavorable and little if any prosperity is likely to attend important undertakings now begun; avoid landlords and make no contracts with the laboring classes or with persons in real estate business of building enterprises; don't sign money obligations nor purchase goods for trade; the mechanical trades are more favored and those engaged in such walks in life are urged to give all their energies to their work on this day.

26-Saturday. Let those engaged in the polite arts improve every moment of this forenoon, urging and realizing from their several pursuits; purchase all articles of dress, decoration, musical merchandise, dramatic appurtenances, artists' materials, etc; have care in the afternoon against rashness and precipitancy in business affairs and control impulses to dispute; the evening and night hours contribute violent features that may result in fires or explosions; so let all have care in this respect.

27—Sunday. Partial Eclipse of the Moon. Depressing conditions result in the forenoon, but as the day advances it becomes propitious for religious exercises and favorable for church finances.

28 Monday. This day bids thee decline to put thy name to writings; make no contracts; postpone correspondence and have as few dealings as possible with literary characters or in the literary or educational matters of life; make no bargains for houses or lands and do not part with thy funds for needless gratifications; mercantile contracts should be only cautiously and conservatively entered into.

29—Tuesday. Begin this day early and labor diligently, for as it advances benevolent conditions decrease until the evening when begins an adverse range of influences contributive to violent hurts, fires and inflammation; beware of entering upon any matrimonial contract at this time least "repentance at leisure" be the fruit of thy venture.

music and art and for the pursuit of the elegant occupations; dealers in fancy goods, embroideries, milliners and jewelers should urge their business vigorously on this day; deal with surgeons, chemists, druggists, bakers, brewers, tanners, glass manufacturers, workers in metal and all in the mechanical trades.

6-Sunday. Conditions at this time conduce to nervous excitement and restlessness and do not invite patient hearing of pulpit discourse or promote continuity in mental efforts.

7-Monday. Have dealings with public officers in the early hours when also attend to business with corporations and partnerships; look out for the purse in the middle of the day, being slow to make purchases of artistic goods unless absolutely necessary; musical and dramatical entertainments are not encouraged for the evening, and social engagements are more likely to be evening, and social engagements are more likely to be and unicative to individual and unicative to protecting is promoted.

30-Wednesday. Be slow to anger during the morning hours which are decidedly evil and trade in artistic goods or the elegant things in life is best deferred. Recultus especially advises the fair not to let wealth tempt them in these passing days to wed where there is much disparity of years; for disappointment and unhappiness will surely fall to their lot, particularly if the aniversary of their birthday falls upon either the middle of the day, being slow to make purchases of artistic goods or the elegant things in life is best deferred. Recultus especially advises the fair not to let wealth tempt them in these passing days to wed where there is much disparity of years; for disappointment and unhappiness will surely fall to their lot, particularly if the aniversary of their birthday falls to their lot, particularly if the aniversary of their birthday falls to their lot, particularly if the aniversary of their birthday falls to their lot, particularly if the aniversary of their birthday fall to their lot, particularly if the aniversary of their

31—Thursday. During the middle hours of the day applications to employers and persons in authority, for preferment or advantages, are likely to meet with favorable consideration; but watch thy purse and beware of suretyship or lending thy credit.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female dis-eases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucor-rhœa, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 106, Kokomo, Ind.

AGENTS CAN easily make three dollars a day sure. A chance of a lifetime. See back page of this paper.

Health for Mother and Child.

No woman need any longer dread the pains of child-birth. Dr. J. H. Dye, Box 137, Buffalo, N. Y., has devoted his life to relieving the sorrows of women. Send him your name and address and get his wonderful book which tells how to give birth to healthy children absolutely without pain.

MARRY 10,000 MANY RICH. MARRY PROTOS PERE MARRY STANDARD COR. CLUE, Sta. B., Chleago, III.

SENT FREE TO WEAK MEN

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

W. S. Harter, an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an overgenerous offer that comes in the shape of a proclamation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality and its kindred ailments. His case was a most pitiable one, by reason of continual drainage, his constitution was weakened to such a degree that it was impossible for him to perform his duties. He spent hundreds of dollars for remedies and to specialists, but could not regain his vitality or check the awful drainage. One day a brother lodge member called his attention to a remedy, in fact, implored Mr. Harter to take the remedy for his affliction; he did so, and in one month's time was entirely cured, his constitution rejuvenated and his vitality regained. To-day he is a man in every sense which that word would imply. Mr. Harter is not what one would call an immensely rich man, but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he intends making his life's labor that of putting this remedy in the hands of all those afflicted as he was. Mr. Harter

YOUR FORTUNE TOLD

To introduce my unerring Astrological Systype-written Astrological Reading or Horoscope type-written Astrological Reading or Horoscope birth, sex and 2c return postage. My Readings persons the first your life if you will send me your date of heroscope life, and you will not regret it if you write to me. Write at once. All letters held confidential. PROF. H. EDISON, T. BINGHARTON, N. Y. THEY CALL ME THE WONDERFUL ASTROLOGER.

HILD LOST for 18 years. Stolen from the cradle. She was told who and where parents lived correctly all Private Affairs. Health Business, and stamp for particulars. Box C,245, Saratoga, N. Y.

ASTROLOGY REVEAL YOUR LIFE

Send 10c. with birth date to Rocky Mountains Famous Astrologer, Dr. Burch, 603 Exchange Bldg., Denver, Colo. Mothers Your children cured of incontinence of urine. Sample Free. Dr. F. E. May, Box 804, Bloomington, Ill.

Get Married

Send 2 tes, for big list of ladies and gents, with full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. Union CORRESPONDING CLUB, No.608

AUSTIN, ILLS,

description and the country of the c

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return. A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic. Trial box MAILED FREE. Address, Dr.E.M.Botot,Box 978,Augusta,Mo.

Women Made Beautiful

by VESTRO. Developes the bust 6 inches, fills all hollow picces, adds grace, curve and beauty to the neck; softens and clears the skin. Beautiful women everywhere owe their superb figure and matchiess loveliness to Vestro. Harmless, permanent. NEVER FAILS. Everylady should have this univalled developer. Adds charm and attraction to plainest women. Full particulars, photos, testimonials, etc., sealed for two cent stamp. Address of

A NOTTY WINK.

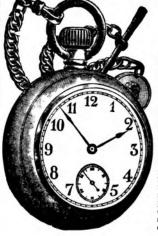

and turn him down without any hard feeling. The eye is strongly made of metal, the front is painted in natural life-like colors and the wink is produced by pulling an invisible string from behind and there is a long attong nin to featen through string from behind and there is a long strong pin to fasten through your clothing. The whole thing is strong and durable and the most talked about novelty today. Every one is wild for one, every young man in the big cities has one and all the girls too. "Just because she made dem Goo Goo eyes" is why you should have one so send 12c. today for a special sample. 6 for 50c.; 1 doz., $1.00. Agents' make big money. Address SUNSHINE, Dept. C, Augusta, Maine.

WE GIVE THIS WATCH FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do k for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 25 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you a nied chain. Address

NOTICE TO AGENTS

A Profitable Business

FOR MEN AND WOMEN WHO ARE

\mathbf{WORK} . WILLING $3.00 A DAY SURE.

DEAR READER:

If you are out of work, or are not satisfied with your present business and would like to make more money, it will be to your interest to read this notice. We do not offer you a chance to make a fortune without work, but we do offer you an opportunity to make money much faster than you can make it at any other kind of work. The country is flooded with circulars offering chances to make money at the rate of from twenty to fifty dollars a day; such offers are not business-like, and all agents who amount to anything are disgusted with such circulars, and most of them are thrown aside without being read. If you are looking for an opportunity to make twenty to fifty dollars a day, you might as well throw this notice aside also; but if you would like to engage in a good paying business, you will do well to read this notice through carefully. Then you can use your own judgment as to whether our offer is a reasonable one or not.

We guarantee that anyone who is willing to work can make from $3 to $5 a day at this business. We admit that $3 to $5 a day is not much of an inducement when compared to the statements made by some firms, who offer all the way from $20 to $50 a day for selling various articles. We do not make you such glowing promises, but what we do offer you has the advantage of being true. We might offer agents a sure chance of making from $20 to $50 a day, but the chances are that anyone who would believe such unreasonable nonsense would not know enough to earn his board at any kind of business. That is not the kind of agents we are in quest of; we want reliable agents with common sense, who are willing to work for good pay, and not those who are looking for an opportunity to make a fortune without work. We believe the only way to get such agents and keep them, is to furnish them with a good thing to sell, a real genuine bargain, and then to tell them the exact truth about the business. We have a large number of agents at work, and we know for a certainty what working agents can make. We genuine bargain, and then to tell them the exact truth about the business. We have a large number of agents at work, and we know for a certainty what working agents can make. We know that $3 a day is the very lowest; most of our agents are averaging $4 and $5 a day, and often some of them make a good deal more than that. We have several agents who are clearing from $7 to $10 a day. But these are great workers operating in the best territory, and, of course, everyone cannot do as well, but it is easy for anyone to make, at the very least, $3 a day above all expenses: any territory. We haven't a single working agent who is clearing, on an average, less than $3 a day. Now, be sure that you understand us: We don't say that lazy, shiftless agents will make $3 a day, for they can't do it at this or any other business, but what we do say is that agents who are willing to work, not too hard, but the same as they would expect to work at any other business, can easily clear $3 a day above all expenses, in any territory, and if they have good territory to work in they can make anywhere from $5 to $7, and even $10 a day. If you want a good chance to work and get good pay for it, you will find it to your interest to read this notice through carefully.

The articles which we have for you to sell are a line of forks, spoons, etc., made of a new metal called "Brazil Silver." We will describe this new line of goods the best we can, then you can judge for yourself whether we are offering you a good chance to make money or not.

BRAZIL SILVER.

Warranted for Twenty-five Years.

Brazil Silver is believed to be the very best metal in existence for the manufacture of forks and spoons; it has all the lustre and brilliancy of burnished coin silver, and is much harder and more durable, in fact, it is impossible to wear it out. It is absolutely indestructible. The goods made of this metal are the same all the way through, there being no plating to wear off they will remain as good as new for any length of time. For all practical purposes in the manufacture of table ware this Brazil Silver is superior to coin silver. It is as lustrous and as pure as coin silver, and being much harder it will wear even longer than silver; in fact it is absolutely impossible to wear it out. It will wear forever. As there is no plating to wear off, the metal being the same all the way through, it stands to reason that you can't wear it out. Our confidence in the metal is so great that we guarantee it to wear twenty-five years. We give a guarantee signed by the company warranting the goods to wear and to give perfect satisfaction for twenty-five years. We are an old, strong and thoroughly established firm with ample we are an old, strong and thotographic capital to carry on our business and make our guaranty as good as the Bank of England. In selling these goods an agent can recommend them with the greatest of confidence, for they are just as represented, absolutely indestructible. And, furthermore, our guarantee warranting the goods to give satisfaction for twenty-five years, clears the agent from all responsibility in the matter; for if any article fails to give perfect satisfaction, no matter how long it has been in use, we hold ourselves ready to refund the money paid for the article. These goods are the same metal all the way through; they will never wear out. They always wear white and bright. We give a guarantee signed by the company, warranting every piece of Brazil Silver to wear twenty-five years. You can sell these goods to your best friends with perfect confidence, for every sale is as much a benefit to your customer as to yourself.

Working with goods that are warranted to wear and give satisfaction for so long a time as twenty-five years, and by a Company, too, whose capital is sufficiently large to make their guarantee good for almost any amount, is an advantage which no other firm is prepared to offer. If you want to make money fast now is the time to do it. If you think that five-dollar bills are good things to have, now is the time to get them. Never in the history of the agency business have agents had as good a chance to make money rapidly, and it is reasonably sure that they will never have another chance like it.

It is easy to make from $3 to $5 a day at this business. to refund the money paid for the article. These goods are the

It is easy to make from $3 to $5 a day at this business.

All Marked with Initial Letters, Without any Extra Cost.

Among all classes there has always been a strong desire to have their table ware marked with their initial letter, but on account of the heavy expense of having it marked only a very few have been able to afford it. Heretofore the cost of artistically marking table ware has been even greater than the cost of the goods; now, by our new methods, we are able to offer these elegant Brazil Silver goods, all marked with any initial letter desired in the very highest style of the art, without any extra cost for marking. These Brazil Silver goods, even if unmarked, would be the greatest bargain ever offered the public in table ware, but with the additional and highly desirable feature of being all marked with beautiful and artistic initial letters, these goods are not only great bargains in table ware, but are the greatest bargains of any kind that have ever been offered to the public through agents or in any other way.

The people are always ready enough to buy what they want when it is presented to them in the form of a genuine bargain. Well, here is absolutely the greatest bargain every offered, and the agent who works with it will find that what he has is earnestly desired at nearly every house he visits; it is easy to get orders when you can offer great bargains, that the people really want and can afford.

It is easy to make from $3 to $5 a day at this business.

Table and Dessert Knives.

Our knives are made of the finest tempered cutlery steel and are triple plate, in other words every dozen knives is plated with 12 dwt. of pure silver and hand burnished. Our knives are of the highest grade, fully equal to Rogers' or any knives made. These knives will not wear as long as Brazil Silver goods, but they will wear as long as any knives made. We guarantee them to wear ten years in constant use. If not in constant use they will wear proportionately longer. We give a guarantee, signed by the Company, warranting the knives to wear and to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser for ten years. As knives are usually used in families they will wear much longer, anywhere from fifteen to twenty years. They are fully equal to Rogers' knives and only cost about two-thirds as much. It may seem strange to some that we can sell so staple an article as silver plated knives at such reduced prices, but we are doing it. It is our way of giving the public good, solid value for their money. We are saving our customers about one-third of the price at which the same grade of knives are sold at the stores and jewelers. Any one who will take the trouble to compare our knives and prices with triple plate 12 dwt. knives sold at the stores and jewelers, will be convinced of the truth of our statements. We are making a profit, of course, but our unequal facilities and immense trade make it possible for us to undersell all competitors, and our customers are getting the benefit of the lowest prices known in the silverware trade. We are not only selling at greatly reduced prices, but we also guarantee every article to be exactly as represented and to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser, or money refunded.

The First Thing to Do. 12 dwt. of pure silver and hand burnished. Our knives are of the

The First Thing to Do.

If you decide to accept the agency, the first thing to do is to send to us for the agent's case of samples, which is the most complete and perfect case of samples that has ever been pre-pared for the convenience of agents. Our complete and perfect case of samples is not to be compared with anything that has ever been sent to agents before. It contains the very best and most salable articles in the world. There is nothing in the market that agents can sell as fast and sell as easily and make as much money out of, as they can the goods contained in this as much money out of, as they can the goods contained in this splendid case of samples, and everything is arranged and explained so that any agent can't fail to understand just how to go to work to make a great success of the business. As soon as you receive the case of samples you are ready for business. And if you are willing to work you are just as sure to make from $3$ to $5$ a day as the sun is to rise. Take the case of samples and canvass your territory according to the directions sent with the samples, until you have taken orders for the amount of goods you are prepared to send for. Then order the goods from us and fill your orders, and so continue.

The Magnificent Case of Samples Which We Furnish to Agents.

The case of samples which we furnish to agents contains the following articles. One Sample Table Knife, retail price, $2.10 per set 35 cents each of six One Sample Dessert Knife, retail price, $1.95 per set of six One Sample Table Fork, retail price, $1.95 per set 32 1-2 cents each 32 1-2 cents each One Sample Table Spoon, retail price, $1.95 per set One Sample Dessert Fork, retail price, $1.80 per set of six 32 1-2 cents each 30 cents each One Sample Dessert Spoon, retail price, $180 per One Sample Dessert Spoon, retail price, 31 os of six
One Sample Tea Spoon, retail price, 35 cents each set of six
One Sugar Shell
One Butter Knife
One Satt or Pepper Shaker
Total retail value of Samples
We also send you with the case of samples a large and very beautiful catalogue, illustrating a full line of plated ware, such as Casters, Pickle Cruets, Butter Dishes. Tea Sets, Napkin Rings, etc., etc., etc.

Reckoning the above samples at our lowest retail prices they 30 cents each Reckle Cruets, Butter Dishes. Tea Sets, Napkin Rings, etc., etc., etc.

Reckoning the above samples at our lowest retail prices they amount to $2.831-3. We furnish them to agents nicely put up in an elegant sample case or roll, for only $1.00, which is $1.831-3 less than they amount to at our regular retail prices. This is less than one-half of the retail value of the samples, and much less than they cost us. The sample case or roll, which the samples are put up in costs us nearly as much as we require you to send for the samples, case and all.

Wholesale Prices.

Wholesale or agents' prices and all necessary information for carrying on the business will be furnished with the Outfit. Remember we make everything plain to you about wholesale prices, methods, etc., when we send you

VERY IMPORTANT.

The business we are offering is straightforward and honest in everyway, shape and manner. Our goods are in every respect, just as we represent them to be. The Outfit we furnish our agents is exactly as we represent it, and is always sent the same day the order is received, just as agreed. We have tried to state these facts so they could and would be believed and still we are constantly receiving letters from parties who would like to engage in the business and would do so if they felt sure we were telling the truth and would do as we agree. Many of these doubters have been cheated and are not alto-gether to blame for doubting; the most of them say they think we are honest, they say we talk honest, but as they have already been swindled they don't feel like risking even one dollar and so, although our business is in every respect just as represented, and we always do just as we promise, we lose the services of a great many agents and they lose the benefit they might derive from the business because they are afraid we may not be telling the truth. Now, to overcome this spirit of doubt, we have decided to send Samples to all who wish us to do so. C. O. D., with privilege of examination at the express office. It costs us from twenty-five to forty cents more to send the samples this way, as we have to pay that amount for return charges on the money, but we are willing to do it and so prove to all that are interested that the Outfit and our goods are just what we claim. If after reading this notice you think you would like to give the business a trial but wish to see the Sample Case be-fore you pay the one dollar cut out the following printed form, fill it out and send it to us and we will send the Outfit to your express office prepaid, and give the express agent instructions to let you thoroughly examine the Outfit, then, if you are tions to let you thoroughly examine the Outnit, then, if you are satisfied that we have told the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and are also satisfied that you can make money selling our goods, you can pay the express agent one dollar and take the Outfit. If you are not satisfied, you can refuse to take it and the agent will return it to us. No other firm has ever made such an offer. We have adopted this plan in order to convince the most skeptical and to secure the services of all the good working agents in the United States.

(CUT OUT THE FOLLOWING FORM.) Form to be Signed by those who wish us to send the Outfit C. O. D. with Privilege of Examination.

ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., DETROIT, MICH .:

GENTLEMEN—Send the Outfit by Express, C. O. D., with privilege of examination. If I find the Outfit just as you say, I will pay the one dollar required and give the business a fair trial, but if I am not satisfied that the Outfit is as good as you recommend it to be, I shall refuse to receive it. Now, remember, the understanding is that I am not to take the Outfit unless I, myself, am satisfied that it is all right. It must all depend on my own judgment. If I am satisfied, I will take the Outfit; if I am not satisfied, I shall not take it and shall not pay the one dollar If you want to send the Outfit with this understanding, send it along C. O. D., with privilege of expendences. amination.

Name..... Postoffice..... County...... State.....

Express Station.....

This cut shows the Sample Case or Roll, and how the samples appear put up ready for business. The Roll is made of highly finished waterproof canvas, and lined with soft flannel goods. finished waterproof canvas, and lined with soft flannel goods. The samples are held in place by strong straps. The whole rolls up and fastens with a leather strap which is firmly fastened to the back of the Roll. This is the most practical arrangement for carrying the samples that could be thought of. When rolled up the Case is compact and easy to carry. When open the samples show to the best possible advantage, making a good impression at first sight. This Sample Roll gives a business-like appearance; it is substantial and handsome, and invariably gives the impression that there is something valuable inside. All are anxious to see what it is you are carrying around with such care. This is of importance as it secures attention and interest at the start. There is nothing like having your samples put up in a business-like shape; it gives a favorable impression from the start, which is half the battle. It is the same in all matters. A store that looks like business attracts customers; while, from a shanty store, you would not, as a rule, expect the best things. The fact is, in the agency business, as in every other business, you must have things fixed up just right if you expect to succeed. Our Brazil Silver Goods are the best that have ever been offered for the price, or anywhere near it. The new feature of being marked with beautiful and artistic initial letters, free of cost, is the greatest popular hit of the times; and the Sample Roll is arranged so as to show the goods off to the best possible advantage. Furthermore, we carefully teach every agent just how to take advantage of all these splendid qualities and popular features. Is it any wonder that our agents succeed better than those who are working for other firms?

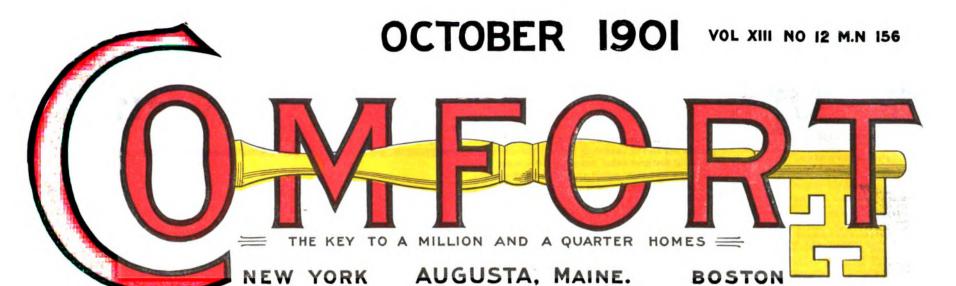

We Prepay all Express Charges on Everything. We pay the charges on the Outfit and on all goods ordered. Remember, we pay all express charges. The samples are held in place by strong straps. The whole

ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., DETROIT. MICH. Box 5300.

HON. HAZEN S. PINGREE, flichigan's Famous Governor, says we are worthy of your confidence.

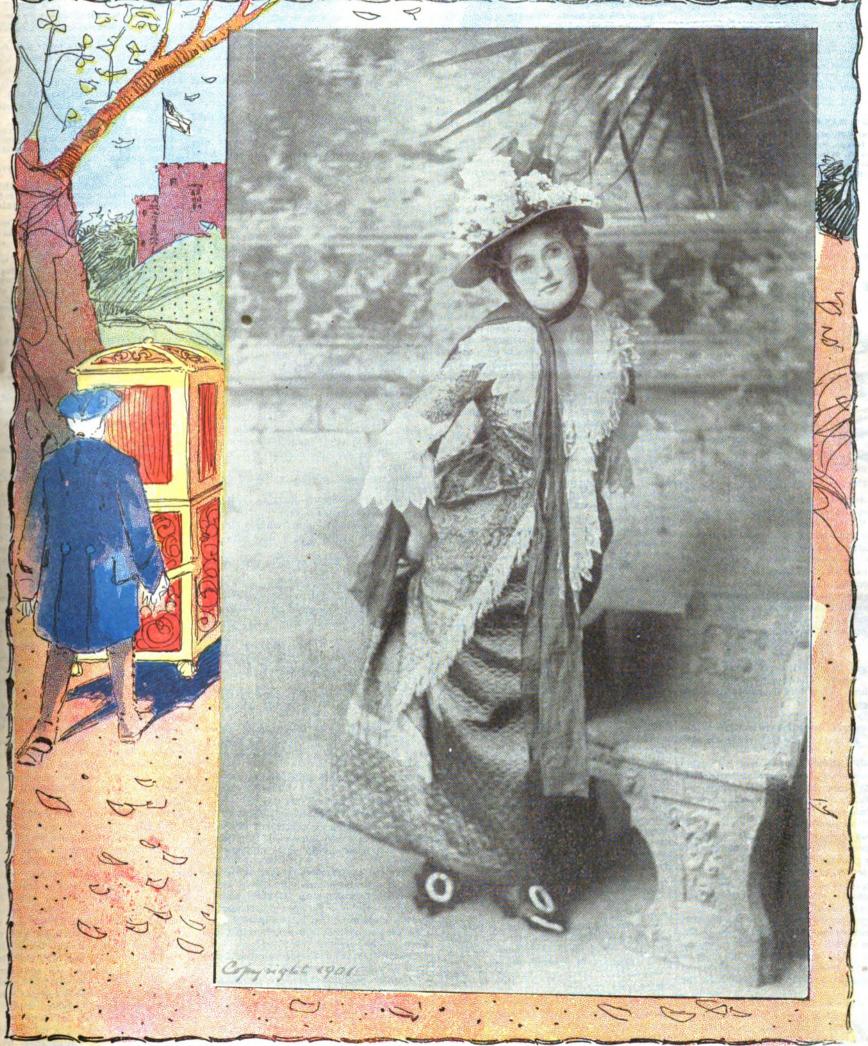

To Whom IT May Concern: In answer to all inquiries I have received concerning the standing of the Royal Manufacturing Company of Detroit, Mich., I have invariably replied that the Company is in every pay worthy of the confidence of all. In regard to its financial standing and the trustworthiness of the gentlemen connected with it the reading public may rely upon them implicitly.

HAZEN S. PINGREE.

AUGUSTA, MAINE.
Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.
Incorporated.

BOSTON

Design Copyrighted 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

PRIZE STORIES.

The following conditions govern the awarding of cush rites for Nutshell Stories, and the manuscripts of such river only as have compiled with all these requirements will tenere consideration.

All the necessary particulars being here clearly set forth, will be useless for anyone to seek further information or ersunal favors by addressing the editor, as such letters canot be answered.

it will be useless for augone to seek further information or personnal favors by addressing the editor, as such telters cannot be answered.

1. Only persons who are regular paid up yearly subscribers to "Comfort" and who send with every manuscript at least four yearly subscribers (together with 25 eents to pay for each subscriber so senty may compete for the prives.

2. All contributions must have the number of words they contain plainly noted thereon in addition to the writer's full name and address with nom de plume if desired; must be written on one subscriptions, end independent of the same envelope as the letter and remittance for new subscriptions, and addressed to Editor NUTSHELL STORY CLUB care of COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

3. All stories must be strictly original with the contributors, and must not have appeared in print before. Competitors may write upon any subject, whether based upon fact, fancy or inction—of adventure, love, war, peace; of city or country life, or of experiences on land or sea—but no story must contain more than 2,000 or less than 1,000 words.

4. No MANUSCRIPT WILL BE RETURNED UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES AND COMPETITORS SHOULD THEREFORE RETAIN A COPY OF WHAT THEY SEND.

5. From $5 to $20 will be paid for stories, and remittances will be sent by check as soon as awards have been made. No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in under this Short Story Prize Offer.

The Publishers of "Comfort" reserve the right to purchase at their established rates any stories submitted under the foregoing offer, which failed to secure a prize.

EF Writers who hear nothing of their manuscript may at the end of 90 days after submitting them to "Comfort" feel at liberty to offer their stories for sale elsewhere.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR OCTOBER. Howard M. Strong, First Prize. C. E. Barns, Second Prize. Helen M. Winslow, Third Prize. Katherine Stagg, Fourth Prize. F. E. Burnham, Fifth Prize.

By Word of Mouth.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HOWARD M. STRONG

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

ONEY," wheezed old man Beamy, "is a nevil an' a curse even unto the third an' fourth generation." A toothless grin divided his evaporated features and his wicked little eyes swam about gleefully in their watery sockets.

"Alfy-your nephew-has not as yet-" the attorney paused and bit his nails thoughtfully. "Nor won't be," said the old man, apparently addressing the key-hole of the diningroom door. "You don't ketch me cursin' my nevvy with a bank account."

From behind the dining-room door there came the sound of angry mutterings. As these grew more pronounced the old man's meager frame shook with silent laughter.

"Turrible," he groaned, "to have to listen to such language as that. I'd be ashamed to look a commandment in the face after listenin' to them words of Alfy's."

"Why not leave all your property in trust?" suggested the attorney, suddenly. "Then Alfy-

"I'll leave it in trust all right," was the ready response. "Every dollar goes to found a nimbecile asylum. Then Alfy'll come into his own sure enough."

"But Alfy-

"Will you shut your mouth! Write it innimbecile asylum-of every thing I die possessed."

Consumed with indignation over his uncle's unkinlike conduct, and yearning to throttle Peel for his meek surrender of so promising a cause. Alfy, unable to longer remain a passive listener, flung open the door.

"FOOL!" he shouted.

"What was my last word, nevvy?" his uncle asked earnestly. "Peel here seems to have lost holt of my remarks."

"Imbecile!" screamed Alfy.

"Wrong, wrong," the old man corrected; "you've missed a word, nevvy, and it's the first one ever I knowed of.'

"I'll pay you for that," said the nephew. reaching out his long arms toward where Mr. Beamy was seated. "I'll shake that smartness out of you. I'll—" striding across the room he caught up the frail old man and held him at arm's length, as if about to dash him to the

A quick step sounded upon the walk, and in at the open window came a shower of handbills. Alfv's tense grasp relaxed, and the old man was dropped back into his chair.

"For a minute I had a notion to kill you. Alfy said vindictively; "and you too-" turning to the attorney; but that personage had already sought safety in flight.

Stooping mechanically, Alfy picked up one of the printed slips. He read it slowly.

GRAND PERFORMANCE! TREJAN'S TROOP of ENGLISH ENTERTAINERS THIS NIGHT ONLY AT THE TOWN HALL.

"You might open your heart once," he sneered, turning to his uncle; "and-" his glance fell on the shapeless heap in the chairthe livid features-the hanging jaw-dead, all but the eyes; they rolled and leaped and cursed the terrified nephew with a thousand maledictions.

Admission 25 cents.

Unable to remain in the accusing presence. Alfy shouted for the housekeeper and rushed out into the street. By a singular stroke of fortune he encountered the doctor a short distance from the house, and this good samaritan he dispatched to the assistance of his uncle. Then hunting up Peel, he proceeded to unburden himself.

"It couldn't be worse for you, Alfy," was Peel's soothing assurance.

"But he hasn't signed the will yet," protested Alfy. "It must come to me now as next of kin."

Peel shook his head. "That was just a new draft your uncle was having made. The only difference is that the original will leaves all to Missions. Your're not in it, Alfy, in any way, shape or form. Have a cigar."

Alfy accepted the cheap stogy and bit off the end savagely. Several times he opened his lips to speak, but in each instance chewed off another section of the cigar and remained silent. It was a decided relief to Peel when the doctor finally entered.

"Bad," said the physician, in reply to an unspoken inquiry. "He is paralyzed—can't speak, feel or move; but he can hear and see all right. I'll stake my reputation on that."

"Sad!" groaned Peel. "What, going Alfy?" It is remotely possible that Alfy possessed a conscience; and this possibility combined with a superstitious fear of the haunting eyes will doubtless explain why he avoided the home of his uncle during the remainder of the day. In the evening he resorted to the town hall, and apparently slept through the entire performance.

According to all reports the show was poor enough; but for some reason Alfv chose to linger in the hall after the other spectators had straggled out. Later on he departed by way of the stage door and in company with the star performer. What Alfy was confiding in a low whisper seemed to amuse this gentleman greatly.

"O, you'll do!" he said heartily, slapping Alfy on the back. "You're a man after my own heart. Shake!"

About midnight the pair routed Peel out of bed, and Alfy introduced his companion as Prof. Vocosto, an old friend of the family.

"We're going to see Uncle," Alfy explained glibly. "He thought everything of Vocosto, and the surprise of an unexpected meeting may-well, persons often recover their speech again under such circumstances. If such a thing should occur, it wouldn't be a bad idea to have a lawyer and a few witnesses standing around, now would it?"

Peel, being a lawyer, was unwilling to express his opinion off hand, for fear it might prove to be worth something. Nevertheless he hastened to cover his shivering frame with a few needful garments.

"All ready," he announced when his celluloid collar was safely anchored and his shiny black bow snapped back into place. "But be it understood, gentlemen, that I attend in a professional capacity only."

It was the doctor who met them at the door of the Beamy residence, and here Alfy once more delivered himself of the story of the long absent friend-with variations.

The doctor shook his head wearily and assured them that it could do no good.

"Of course," he said, as Alfy grew insistent, "I cannot prevent your going in and seeing him, if you are determined to do so."

That was sufficient encouragement for the professor. He laid aside his hat, gloves and cane, and called for a drink of water. In a moment Alfy appeared, bearing before him a wash-pitcher filled to the brim, and from this unwieldy vessel the professor moistened his lips deliberately.

"Shall we enter now?" he asked, turning to the little group.

"Yes, now," said Alfy, and immediately fell

One after another the four men entered the bed-chamber of the stricken man. In his hand Alfy still carried the water-pitcher, and in the other a square yard of handkerchief.

"Great idea," murmured the professor. "Save them all, my boy."

"All of which he dies possessed," Alfy whispered back hoarsely, having caught neither the drift nor the sarcasm of the remark. "To his loving nephew-"

"Mr. Beamy!" cried the professor, "Don't you know me-Vocosto?" He stood at the foot of the bed, his arms tragically outstretched.

The old man's eyes turned from the doctor to Peel—then to his nephew—and at last came to Won't You Write a Postal to Get Well?

Send me no money, but simply write me a ness—and most sickness is—I will warrant postal if you are not well. Pay when you get my Restorative to cure you.

I will send you a book that tells how a lifetime of study has enabled me to strengthen the inside nerves. Those are the nerves that operate the stomach, kidneys, heart, womanly organism, etc. Weakness of these organs means weakness of those nerves. Nerve strength alone makes any organ do its duty.

I will send you, too, an order on your nearest druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Use it for a month, and if it succeeds, pay him $5.50 for it. If not, I will pay him myself.

No matter how difficult your case; no matter what you have tried. If my book shows you that your trouble is nerve weak-rest on the professor. Several moments passed in unbroken silence. It was a trying situation; even Alfy forgot to weep.

"This is worse than useless," the doctor said at length; but the professor stilled him with a sweeping gesture.

An indistinct mumbling came from the head among the pillows. The professor bent quickly forward, a movement which brought him directly in front of the night-lamp, and threw a deep shadow across the bed.

"Doctor, he speaks," said Peel, trembling

"Witness-" the voice came faintly, as from a grave, cold and hollow-" I, John Beamysound mind-feeble body-do give and bequeath-all of which-I die-possessed-to-" The pause seemed endless. Alfy gasped for reath and pressed nearer the bed. "-to my-" resumed the almost inaudible voice "-dear friend-H. Vocosto-amen." The doctor sprang forward to administer stimulants. The professor straightened up and cleared his throat. Peel was scratching away with his pencil on the fly-leaf of an old note-book. It was fully five minutes before Alfy comprehended just what had happened. When the bitter truth finally worked its way to his point of comprehension, he threw off all restraint and rushed wildly at the professor.

"A lie!" he shrieked, "my uncle-"Will soon be no more," said the doctor, solemnly. "Gentlemen, respect death."

"Come away, Alfy," the professor said soothingly. "Your affliction is great; but be a man and try to bear it."

"Bear nothing!" cried Alfy "What did you mean by it-say!"

"Grief has temporarily unseated his reason," the professor confided to Peel.

"O, my reason's all right," whined Alfy. "If your reason is half as good it may save you a "Poor fellow! come outside; the fresh air will do you good."

When they were at a safe distance from the house, Alfy broke out with a torrent of abuse. "You've played it pretty low," he stormed. "Sir," replied the professor, "I do not under-

"O cut that out; I want to know why you didn't proceed according to agreement?" "Really, Alfy, your condition is pitiful; you

"Undone and overdown-brown! But I'll Broadway so long and never heard the story of spoil your game. I'll give the whole thing dead away." The professor grew conciliatory. "That," he declared, "would be cutting off someone's nose with a vengeance. Suppose we comprom-

"How much?" Alfy asked eagerly. "I'm no hog."

"I'll take you. In the mean time-"

When the conspirators re-entered the sickroom, Mr. Beamy's eyes were closed and the professor advanced on tip-toe and Alfy followed a few paces behind, his handkerchief ready for immediate action. "Dead?" said the professor, pointing dramatically at the figure in the bed.

"Dead?" came a faint echo from that identical location. "A vital spark!" exclaimed the professor uneasily. "A vile shark," mocked the voice among the pillows.

"Nix on that," whispered Alfy, and clapped a bony hand over the professor's mouth. "You'll behind steel doors. There was no help for it, do it once too often."

Alfy's fingers, "not me."

"O gee!" chuckled the ghastly echo, "O gee!"

I fail sometimes, but not often. My records show that 39 out of 40 who get those six bottles pay, and pay gladly. I have learned that most people are honest with a physician who cures them. That is all I ask. If I fail I don't expect a penny from you.

Mine is the only way to restore vital nerve power. Other treatments brings but fleeting results at best. If you want to get well, let me send you an order for the medicine. If it cures pay $5.50. I leave the decision to you.

you want, and address

Alfy's point of endurance was now passed. He struck the professor a vicious blow on the mouth, and the next instant received better than he had sent. Out into the hall and down the stairs the two men fought and cursed. A heavy crash and the sound of shattered glass announced their exit below.

Up stairs, huddled in the middle of his great four-poster, old man Beamy was shaking with wheazy laughter. The doctor protested, but wheazy laughter. The doctor protested, but still he laughed.

"Got to" he croaked. "Alfy cryin !—friend Vocosto!—good joke."

"You could understand everything, could you?" the doctor questioned. "It is remarkable; and your sudden recovery is almost without precedent."

"Three strokes," said the old man. "Two more—much fun as this—won't mind. Tirst will stands—Peel. Ain't got—red cent to my name—'nother joke."

The sun was shining in at the windows of the Beamy residence when Peel departed. At the foot of the stairs he picked up a bit of paste-board, which lay among bits of glass and broken furniture. After a hasty glance he pinned it to the casing of the door, where it could not fail to catch the doctor's eye.

PROF. VOCOSTO

PROF. VOCOSTO
PHENOMENAL VENTRILOQUIST with TREJAN'S TROOP.

As the Major Told it.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY C. E. BARNS.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

HAT chap? Don't you know Johnnie Farrell? Why, I thought everybody on Broadway knew Johnnie. Luckiest chap in town, Fell right into it -'bout a million, I believe-but it didn't spoil him a little bit. Uncle in the Klondyke? Bah! Nothing so unromantic. you frequented the old New York hotel Bibles, and the great Longstreet will contest? Waiter, another deni-tasse and two Perfectos, quick!

"It runs back to the time that the old hostelry was torn down to make room for the twenty-story skyscraper that stands there now. The famous old rendescous, as you know, was the virtual northern headquarters of the confederacy during the war. Jove! but its cracked old seams and crevices could have "Keep on looking disappointed," advised the told a mighty tale of intrigue, secret compacts professor; "it is our trump card. But remem- and mysteries of the great struggle that will ber to keep quiet and let me do all of the talk- remain riddles forever. It was packed with queer old furniture of the olden time, mammoth fireplaces and mahogany lounges suggestive of ease and a confidential chat over the doctor stood whispering to Peel, who had fragrant juleps and the clay pipe. For thirty ceased to scribble in the open note-book. The years after the war it was frequented by "Majahs" and "Kunnels" all the way from Chickamauga to Tallahasse and the whole breadth of the Mason and Dixon line. Well, when the word was passed around that a syndicate had bought the old confederate landmark on Broadway, a joint howl went up that shook Manhattan island and put Jeremiah out of the lamentation business. There was some talk of saving the old relic by purchase, but ground there is worth its surface covered an inch thick with virgin gold, while sentiment, though it may run deeper, is not hoarded and the famous landmark went the way of old "Not me," the professor protested between junk. I shall never forget the auction. Old graybeards came sniffling among the massive furniture, patting them like faithful servants with whom they had to part, and the Hebrew gentleman who refused to run up the price because certain southern celebrities had once occupied them were all but mobbed. Then came the last night of all.

"It was a wonderful gathering and took place in the great ballroom-bleak, bare, lighted with a hundred candles stuck in bottles and what-not, for not only was almost everything disbursed, but the gas had been turned off. There was a mammoth fire in the great open fireplace, however, and it threw crimson gleams abroad over the faces of at least fifty frequenters of the old haunt, and not a man there but a veteran. Oh, yes, there was one-Johnnie Farrell, the last lessee of the house, barely twenty-seven years old, but a prime favorite with the old heads, I can tell you. It was Johnnie who ransacked cellar and attic for enough seats to accommodate the crowd, who bought the candles and lighted them, built the fire, furnished long clay pipes and brewed a famous southern punch whose secret was imparted by a dying Confederate general a year before. And such a punch! Do you know, with every sip you could smell the wild-flowers of Alabama, see broad fields of waving cotton and hear the slave-songs of our childhood days -but I am wandering. Excuse these tears. The memory of that punch-

"Well, Majah Daggett sang a southern ditty, Kunnel Sommers made a glorious speech, then came bowl after bowl, and speech after speech, interspersed with choruses that shook the riven old walls and reverberated through the ghosthaunted chambers like a call to the dead. Ah, it was a glorious farewell, and at the close Majah Daggett said, "Johnnie, before we rise up and call you blessed for this parting festivity, I want to know if you haven't some souvenirs of the old pile that we may carry away with us to cherish forever. Anything will do, only let it be part and parcel of the old dear spot identified with the illustrious who have gone before. Have you anything Johnnie?" The good host pondered, then shook his head. "Everything is gone," he said, "everything. There is nothing but laths and mortar left and that won't stay long. Hold on! In the cupboard back of the old safe there is a stack of old Bibles-a hundred of them, one for each room in the house. They were given to the hotel by a southern lady forty years ago, and some of them look worn through. Of course it was useless to put Bibles up at auction in this wicked town-

"Oh, suttinly, suttinly," said the Colonel. "But they are just the thing for souvenirs. Bring them on, old boy, bring them on."

"And it came to pass that within five minutes every old Majah and Kunnel in the crew was sitting there in the dying firelight hugging a worn black Bible to his heart and singing 'Auld Lang Syne' with the tears rolling down his cheeks, and then the guests parted and lost themselves in the sleet of a March night, each with his treasure under his arm and much sober meditation upon "Sic transit gloria," et cetera. But little did they dream of the strange sequel of the Bible episode.

"Read of farewell banquet in New York Hotel and distribution of Bibles. For God's sake keep trace of every one of them till I arrive. Anna Longstreet.

"Johnnie was sitting in the deserted office at the time, waiting to resign his trust and the keys to the agents of the Syndicate, and wondering whither he was to turn, for to tell the truth it had been a hard winter for Johnnie, and he was just about evens-up. He was seated by the grate-fire, a row of candles on the marble mantel above him, when just as the bells of St. Paul's tolled out the hour of nine there came a timid knock at the door and a tall woman heavily veiled, entered, snow-clad like a wraith of elder days. Johnnie stared at the apparition, but as she disclosed her pallid countenance, the man's heart leaped with pity, for sorrow and suffering were in every line, making her ten years older than she really was, for she was still young enough to excite more than common commiseration. Without speaking she advanced and sank by the fire, staring at it like one too overcome to speak.

nas been a long journey as she took from the hand of her host a glass of good cheer, the last drainings of the very last bottle of port, 'and I do not know but that I came on a fool's errand. But I saw the notice in the paper, and when I read of the New York Hotel my heart gave a flutter. Then as I went on I became inspired and flew like mad to the telegraph office. The Bibles-the Bibles! Have you track of all of them, sir?'

"Johnnie sat spellbound. What sort of a madwoman had he encountered here? He soothed her as best he could. 'I know all who were here last night,' he said. 'I think I can trace them. But explain yourself, madame, I beg of "The woman clenched her thin hands over her bosom and lifted her eyes to heaven. 'It is my last hope-my very last. Listen! It is the simple truth. It will not take but a moment.' She nerved herself as for some terrible ordeal. 'Five years ago last December I married Winston Longstreet, the son a Baltimore millionaire. To tell the truth, it was a runaway marriage, for we knew that it was our only chance, since I was-well, I was a seamstress, daughter of respectable but very poor people in an obscure quarter of the town. We met and gown that was a perfect poem. She wore a loved, Winston and I, and -well, we were huge bunch of orchids at her corsage, her young and rash; we eloped and came to New York. We arrived at seven o'clock in the evening and came directly here. After a light supper we went out in search of a minister, and were directed around the corner to the Church of the Strangers. There we met good Doctor Deems, God rest his soul! who made us one, two members of his household being witnesses. Back we came two of the happiest creatures on earth, and were assigned to Room 67 on the second floor overlooking Waverley place. I was brought up a very devout girl, never retiring without my chapter of the Bible and prayer. That night my husband reached do.vn one of those black Bibles and read the fourteenth chapter of John-ab, how I remember it! His voice was like music, and I worshipped him with the adoration of the maiden heart in its first secure sense of possession. Well, do you know, at the close of the reading, I distinctly remember of placing my marriage certificate at that very page for safe-keeping, and then we knelt and prayed out our hearts' gratitude and hope. The next morning when we awoke we found the sun streaming into the chamber, and as the hour was late and we were to take a steamer for Liverpool at eleven, there was barely time to make preparations, get breakfast and be off. It was not until we reached the other side of the ocean that I searched in vain for the marriage certificateindeed, I never thought that I should have use for it. We went to London, thence to Paris. My husband was never strong, and a cold contracted one night at the opera resulted in fever. Within a year after my marriage I was a widow and a mother, and then came the news of the Senior Longstreet's death in Baltimore. In all haste, with the little money I had left, I hurried home with my infant son.'

"The reception I received shocked me. Not only did the Longstreets bar me from their home, repudiating me and my child, but my own mother received me coldly. Then to save my child more than myself from the finger of scorn, I began ransacking my brain for a clew to the missing marriage certificate. Dr. Deems in the meantime was dead. The witnesses were dispersed. The contest over the will of the elder Longstreet, more to establish my son's claims than my own, went against me. I was on the verge of insanity from despair until -until I saw that newspaper note, and then I remembered. Oh, sir, I beg of you, if you have a sister whom you love, if you have a mother whom you revere, in the name of heaven!-She could not proceed, but bent down sobbing.

"Johnnie arose and brushed a tear from his cheek, for the Irish lad's heart is as tender as it is full of courage. 'Well, it may take a little time,' he said, 'but I promise you I shall go the rounds and search every Bible, though I fear with so much use in all these years

"'Ah, don't say that! My life-my child's life and hope and honor depend upon it. Go, try, for the love of heaven, try!'

"The host turned away. By the way, we might first go through these that are left, he said, making his way back through the shadows toward the old safe and throwing wide the double door of the cupboard behind it. A moment later he emerged from the darkness bearing an armful of the abandoned relics. 'Cheer up, little woman!' he said. 'There's a big contract ahead,' and he dropped the worn books at the stranger's feet. Down upon the bare floor the woman sank, seizing these ancient volumes as one drowning clutches a lifeline. Johnnie left her there, retreating for more books. Twice he made trips in silence, then at the third loading he heard a piercing shrick and a heavy fall behind him. The man's blood froze in his bosom, and drooping his armful of books which roared through the empty halls after the shrill echoes of the woman's wail, he ran back to the office. There lay the woman before the firelight in a dead faint, her thin hands clenching a yellow sheet of paper and a Bible at her side flung open at the fourteenth chapter of John.

"Isn't it strange how some things start, and how a little accident will turn the tide of a man's fortunes? Do you know what that boy did? He put his watch and Sunday suit in pawn to pay that little woman's way back to Baltimore, and within two weeks he followed himself on borrowed capital. He found exactly what he expected. The people who had scorned the widow now fawned at her very feet. Lawyers flocked around her like Klondykers over a 'pocket' of virgin ore, and the Longstreet will case was reopened on the new evidence. It was the easiest battle on record, and not only saved the honor of the house, God be thanked for that! but it landed the little widow just seven hundred thousand dollars in cash and gilt-edge securities. We saw something of it in the papers, of course, but we were little prepared for an invitation to dine which every Majah and Kunnel of that memorable farewell night received six months later-at the Waldorf-Astoria, b'gad! and with Johnnie Farrell. 'The audacity of him!' exclaimed Majah Daggett. 'Must have captured a fat fee,' mused Kunnel Sommers. But they all came to the feast, mark you that, and Johnnie made the punch. But what do you think! In the very crisis of the feast, who should come in but a sweet-faced little woman in a Parisian countenance was radiant with welcoming delight, and she was leading a little tot of a boy with beautiful wide patrician eyes like a young emperor. 'Gentlemen,' said Johnnie in the hush, rising to his feet and lifting his crystal glass of the sparkling, 'I have the honor to present you to-my wife!' I say, the fire engines thought it was an earthquake.

"Think of that now! What luck some people stumble right into without knowing! But I'll take that back. Evidently Johnnie knew, eh? He's just back from London where he has been engineering a Syndicate. Great head, Johnnie! Shall I introduce you?"

Joshua's Change of Heart.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY HELEN M. WINSLOW.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

WAS never more surprised in all my life than I was last summer one day when Joshua announced that he was going to sell the farm.

"Why, Josh Winter!" I cried. "What under the sun you going to do that for? This old farm where your father lived before you? Where you was born and where we've lived ever since we was married?"

"Wal," he answered uneasily. "I can't help it. Things ain't jest as they was. Times is hard on farms, now."

"Any harder than they be off of 'm?" I inquired; but all I could say was like the wind blowin', jest as it alwuz is when a woman untakes to argue with her pardner after he's got his mind firmly sot; and so I stopped.

I felt bad enough I can tell you; for this was the house where I came as a bride and where my little ones was born; it was where I had closed some little eyes for the last time and where my grown up girl had been married before she went off to start a home for herself. All these things had made the old place grow dearer to me every year, and now to sell it! Why, it was worse than cuttin' eye-teeth. But I said no more, even when Joshua come home from the village and said:

"Wal, Philura, I've done it."

"What? Not sold the farm?" I said with a sinkin' at my stomach, for I didn't know what bad luck might be on us.

"Wal, jest the same as," he said. "I've put it in the hands of Glib and Co. to sell and they say it won't be no time at all afore it goes, an for a good price too."

I couldn't seem to make up my mind what had turned him ag'in the old place so; I remembered how he had got fooled about the last hoss he had swopped, but he ought to be used to "give an' take" in trade before this time o' life. I recalled how he had cashed a note for some smart Alec from the city the past winter and lost fifty dollars by the transaction; I remember how he had sent fifty cents in answer to an advertisement "How to keep your well from freezing in the coldest nights," and had got a printed slip in return that read "Take it into the kitchen nights." I recollected that a few springs ago he had sent off a quarter in answer to another advertisement 'How to successfully kill potato-bugs" and had received a printed set of directions of how to catch the bugs and smash 'em between two pieces of board; but none of these seemed to me good and sufficient reasons for selling the farm.

I went out for a walk that afternoon after I got the dinner dishes washed and put away. I went up over the pasture hill and looked over the hundred and fifty acres that lay spread out before me, fifty of 'em in one medder-lot without a stump or stone and I recollected that we had been fairly prospered. crops had been poor some years, why, hay was heavy and sugarin' good; or if the hay-crop was light the oat-fields and corn had balanced off or we had sold off a good stock of young critters; so s't I couldn't see any good reason for bein' discouraged; things generally evened up about right. And we are middlin' forehanded today. But I held my tongue and didn't worry over what the real estate man said; advertisin' ain't sellin' a farm.

The next Sunday when we come home from meetin' I was astonished, after we had eat our dinner, to see my pardner pull out a Sunday paper from Boston and go to readin' the advertisement pages. He had picked it up at the post-office and I knew it; but I did not cast it up at him now, the number of times I had heard him scold about Sunday papers and call em contraptions of the evil one, (in which I agree). I only watched him out'n the tail of my eye and so ag'in through the week at odd times when he'd got that paper out to study it. And for several weeks that went on, he abringin' Sunday papers home and spending hours over the pages of "houses to let and for sale" and more specially "Farm for sale."

Finally one Monday morning he came into the milk-room kind o' sheepish-like,

"Philury, here's an advertisement I wish you'd look up. It's been in two weeks now an' I'm goin' to try and make a trade."

I took the paper and read: "For sale. The dandiest farm in Vermont, Podunk county." (We live in Podunk county.) Good for gentleman's summer home or all the year round. In the midst of the most famous Green Mountain scenery, a beautiful farm of a hundred and fifty acres with sugar-bush, meadows, woodlot, and the best pasturage in the state. Present owner keeps only seven cows but might have fifteen or even twenty and make money. House is a large, ancestral mansion, roomy, with four fireplaces, piazza, blinds and everything to make life happy. Sold only because the present occupants are unable to appreciate a good thing or to take care of it. A farmer who understands his business can easily get rich here in ten years and have the pleasure of living in Paradise in the meantime. Terms easy, or would exchange for a smaller or less desirable property."

"That reads well," I begun cautiously.

"Huh! I should say it did," said my pardner. 'Notice it said 'would exchange' " he went on. 'Well, you go up and see old Glib this afternoon (we want some provender anyway;) and see if we can't swap off our old place."

"Have you any idea where it is?" I asked him. You see it says Podunk county."

"No," he answered, "Unless it's Colonel Watkin's place over in Freedom, or mebbe Squire Williams' farm over in Granfield. They are both gittin' too old to farm it. Anyhow go 'n see old Glib."

So I harnessed up that afternoon and went. Now, it happened that Cassius C. Glib did not know me by sight, as he never went to meetin' an' I aint in the habit of settin' round the hotel an' post office, where he spends most of the time. So when I went up to his office, on the second floor over the town clerk, he didn't know me from Adam,-or Eve.

"O, yes," he answered when I showed him the advertisement, "I put that in myself. I should like to show you the place first rate, madam. I will drive you out there now, if you can spare the time. Or, mebbe as long as you're here with your team-"

He didn't go on, but I said yes, I'd furnish Cured Papa of Drinking.

a Terrible Drunkard by Mixing a Remedy in His Coffee and Food Curing Him Without His Help or Knowledge.

How Mamma Cured Our Papa who was

A TRIAL PACKAGE FREE TO ALL.

It takes a woman to overcome obstacles. Mrs. Chas. W. Harry, 522 E. 4th St., Newport, Ky., and her children had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering, misery and privations due to papa's drinking habits.

LITTLE SWEETHEARTS.

Learning there was a cure for grunder which she could give her husband secretly she decided to try it. She mixed it in his food and coffee and as the remedy is odorless and tasteless he never knew what it was that so quickly relieved the craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up in flesh, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly and they now have a happy home. Mr. Harry was told about his wife's experiment and he gives her the credit of having restored him to his senses. It is certainly a remarkable remedy, cures a man without his a remarkable remedy, cures a man without his effort, does him no harm and causes him no suffer-effort, does him no harm and causes him no suffering whatever.

Dr. Haines the discoverer, will send a sample of this grand remedy free to all who will write for it. Enough of this remedy is mailed free to show how it is used in tea, coffee or food and that it will cure the dreaded habit quietly and permanently. Send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Haines, 1515 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will mail a free sample of the remedy to you, securely sealed in a plain wrapper, also full directions how to use it, books and testimonials from hundreds who have been cured, and everything needed to aid you in saving those near and dear to you from a life of degradation and ultimate poverty and disgrace.

Send for free trial to-day. It will brighten the AGENTS MAKE MONEY HADDLING OUR RELIABLE LAMPS. Brighter than electricity, cheaper than kerosene. Thousands of testimonials from provements. Permitted by Ins. Co's. Large est factory in U.S. 41 styles for indoor and outdoors. Lowest prices. Retail & up. Sample lamp half price. Exclusive territory to individuals or merchants illustrated catalogue free.

STANDARD GAS LAMP CO., 118-120 Michigan St., Chicago.

team; I only wanted to see the place and to team; I only wanted to see the place and to talk over an exchange.

"Oh, certain," the man responded in a way that made me reflect how appropriately he was named. "I've no doubt you can make some kind of a trade. The old man wants to sell the worst way, though for the life of me I don't see why. He's really got one of the best farms in the state and has made money there right along year after year."

"I believe you said in the advertisement," I

"I believe you said in the advertisement," I put in, "that he and his wife was gettin' into their dotage."

"Wal, yes," was the answer. "Not that you'll consider them so very old when you see them. But I consider that a fool is in his dotage at any age."

"Then you think this man is a fool?" I asked, with a little suspicion that I had felt all along growing big.

"Haint a doubt of it," was the reply. "Why, if I had that nice old place I wouldn't part with it for three times the money that dummed old feller asks for it."

As we drove along the familiar old road, I

As we drove along the familiar old road, I

As we drove along the familiar old road, I asked him some questions about the place and the old couple that lived on it.

"I dunno anything about the old woman," he said. "But she can't be any great shakes for brains to let him sell the farm?" he went on. "You know some women are that lazy they'd give away their souls before they'd exert themselves enough to save 'em. I presume she's jest as big a fool as he, an' only thinks about gettin' off the old place and takin' it easy somewhere."

I suggested that mebbe her advice wasn't asked: pardners are uncertain at best: but he

I suggested that mebbe her advice wasn't asked: pardners are uncertain at best; but he paid no attention to me and went on.

"Well there ain't no fool like an old fool," he said at last. "There, ain't that a pretty farm?" he asked as we came along side of our own medder-lot. "See this ere medder? Ain't a stump nor stone on it. Ten thousand dollars is cheap for a place with so good buildin's and the land in such shape: but you can get it for thirty-five hundred."

thirty-five hundred."

I smiled and said I wanted to see the house. So we drove on

When we entered the yard there was no one

When we entered the yard there was no one in sight.

"Old man's over 'n the medder hayin' most likely; this farm's noted for its hay," he explained. Then he jumped out and begun to thump on the side door with his whip-handle. I let him thump knowin' pretty well the 'old woman' wouldn't come to the door.

"Never mind." He said after a while as he pushed open the front door. "The old woman don't seem to be here. Fact is, I haint seen the house myself. Now'd be a good time to see it," and he walked along into my setting-room and lit a cigar. This was a little more than I could stand. I was about to speak when we heard a load of hay goin' into the barn and at the same instant the door opened into the kitchen and in walked Joshua Winter.

"O here you are," exclaimed old Glib. "I've brought you a customer."

You ought to have seen my lawful pardner then. You could have knocked him over with a feather.

"Philpry!" he gasped out.

You ought to have seen my lawful pardner then. You could have knocked him over with a feather.

"Philury!" he gasped out.

"You know her?" asked the agent; and then he too turned all sorts of colors and looked as if he was going to faint. Next he begun to grow mad. He started to swear, but I broke in:

"Now, now, stop that, both ye." I said in as mild axents as I could for laughing. "I hope both on ye hev got a lesson that you'll remember a while. You, Mr. Glib, might learn to speak decent about your customers as well as to 'em, an' make sure of your game afore you stab it," but he had started for the village on foot.

"You, Joshua," I begun, "might learn"— But Joshua was half way to the barn. And that was the last I ever heard of selling the farm. Seems as if, sence that advertisement showed him the truth, nobody ever appreciated a good thing as well as he does our old home.

Melancholy Muggins.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY KATHERINE STAGG

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

AVE you got an extra pillow old boy?"

"Dog gone, Harry! A pillow! You'll be askin' for a lace hankercher next."

"Quit yer foolin', an' answer me. How do you know but I may have a lace handkercher 'mongst my soovenirs; you may recollect 1've been and in society. so to speak,-" and

Harry tossed his blonde head in most superior fashion; but that didn't quite settle the question for lanky Joe spat thrice and then drawled "ya-as, yer stayed quite a spell; 'an the boy's often wondered if 'twar at yer own expense or if the state war a footin' yer bills." This sort of thing was considered quite brilliant repartee in the select circles of "Blue Shirt", a wretched disappointed little western town that had tried to be a mining town, a railway centre, and a mineral spring resort,each in vain. It had even tried to make a record as the fiercest and most "wide open" place of the vicinity, but it was no use. Fame and illfame alike always passed just within a few miles, and "Blue Shirt" held a very similar position to an old maid wall flower at a party. But like all underdone little places it was rich in naturally eccentric character. The life in cities acts on people like a magical machine that shaves off corners and original pattern as it were until the great monotony of type is made that we see so pitifully alike, as it hurries up town, down town, and across town in an habitual anxious hurry and worry.

virtue of a trick or two he had learned on his famous Eastern trip, Harry was looked upon as the dandy of the place; and it was whispered that a claw hammer coat lay con- that inner light, and if the voice I heard in this she's blind."

"Gee whittaker! 'en alone?"

"Plumb alone!"

"Dang my buttons, but yer better see to it that she don't go foolin' roun' none tomorrow when the fire drill is goin' on. What is she doin' here anyhow?"—suspiciously.

"Naw;—she's a lookin' fer a party named Thornton, an' talks like she'll foller up the pedigree of all hereabouts 'fore she'll quit searchin'."

"I aint never heard, the name round here—" pedigree of all hereabouts fore shell quite searchin'."

"I aint never heard the name round here—hev you?"

"I don't recollect it jes' now, but in the hotel business yer runs up agin so many folks that git to 'sociating every name with something pecoolar to the person;—like Perkins with the striped pants, 'en Brown with his big bottle of spavin' cure; en thars the Littles, you know 'em, Jake en Abe. We always call em Big Little en Crosseyed Little; en then thars Henderson,—I'd never hardly think o' his name 'til I saw his red head comin' in."

"Well, here's the pillow, an' don't you forgit to warn the gal 'bout tomorrow. Oh, sa-ay! You might leave her in charge o' Muggins—he lowed today he didn't think shucks o' no fire drill."

Harry chuckled and answered "Thet so? He he lowed today he didn't think shucks o' no fire drill."

Harry chuckled and answered "Thet so? He told me this morning to put his bottle 'o rum one side so's the boys couldn't get it, en I expect nothing else but he'll be sittin' there all day playin' thet doggone game of dominoes with the dummy hand, an'cussin' and swearin' as usual if the dummy hand beats him. He don't seem to take interest in nothin' else;—en it do look curious like."

"Do you think that Muggins may be done a murder an' he's tryin' to forgit his nat'ral social feelin's, so to speak?"

"Naw! Jis murder wouldn't make a man act like thet," Joe looked very wise. "Naw, it must a' been somethin' a good deal more serious, I believe!"

The next day the long looked for fire drill took place, and the little old town prinked up and did her best to look spry and enterprising. Lively it certainly was—by noon there were more than a dozen men shouting drunk; by four o'clock the dozen had increased to at least one hundred; by sundown there were not enough sober ones left to count the victims of King Alcohol; and by midnight the whole place was bediam itself. A few of the rougher women joined in this mode of celebration, and it is related that one man going home wearily before he had entirely lost control of his own it is related that one man going home wearily before he had entirely lost control of his own equilibrium, had found the town butcher and his wife lying full length in a deep ditch, but side by side and passing and repassing a fat black flask as if their connubial happiness and content were an example to all mankind. The better class of women, however, stayed close in their homes and listened, listened listened! Some prayed; but with many their very thoughts were dumb. There was a sort of grim satire in the fact that no real fire in the town bad ever stirred such terror in the minds town had ever stirred such terror in the minds of its women as the fear of unknown deeds this night would see accomplished. The fire in might would see accomplished. The fire in "Blue Shirt" was not of the kind where fire engines are useful.

Milly Lawson, the blind guest of the rough railroad hotel, had been served with her meals in her room very much to her astonishment; but that was the only way that had suggested itself to Harry to protect her from the scenes downstairs.

downstairs.

Muggins was playing the game from which he had taken his name a little after midnight when Harry turned quickly from the bar and slammed the door between that noisy smoke slammed the door between that noisy smoke thickened atmosphere and the little back room where Muggins usually sat. In the other door way leading from the hall stood a slight figure bending slightly forward with hands clasped in almost painful intensity.

Muggins looked up for a second and said, "I'm blamed glad you closed that door; can't yer clear them cattle out o' the bar? They are gettin' too gol-darned full fer even a fool to see any fun in 'em any longer."

At the sound of his voice, a convulsive tremor ran through Milly's frame and she pushed forward into the room. At sight of her Mugforward into the room. At sight of her Mug-gins smothered an unholy expression and flung all his dominoes topsy turvy on the table, the noise drowning his almost unconscious words. In a low and sweet but painfully anx-ious voice Milly asked:

"Landlord, are you there?" Harry answered at once, "Yes, young lady, right here."

"Who was that I heard talking to you in this oom a few minutes ago?"

Harry was so astonished that in spite of Muggins' furious efforts at sign language, he replied:

"Why, that war Muggins!"

"But what other name has he? I would give the world to know." Harry was almost choked by a heavy hand on his collar, and paper was thrust before him on which was written "ask her 'why'." The question was put and she came forward eagerly almost touching Muggins as she passed

"Oh, because his voice was the voice of one "Oh, because his voice was the voice of one who was once very dear to me; one whom I have not met in six years; and even now, if I should find him, I will never see for I became blind just after the last time he ever came to visit me." Harry looked uneasily at Muggins but he shook his head. Poor Milly continued. "Oh, gentlemen, please forgive me and understand. My story is too long to tell, but we who are blind have certain intuitions that we can't explain: I have come here guided only by cealed at the bottom of his trunk—still this was not seriously believed by the majority.

"Come now, hand out yer pillow if you've got one; yer know tomorrow is the day we christen our first fire engine, 'en the hotel is full to bustin' and"—with great emphasis—the big guns, eh? 'En yur too soft to sleep on a plank;" deep contempt was in Joe's voice but Harry indignantly replied:

"Me? I could sleep standin' up agin' anything short of a hot wire fence. No, its fer a woman who happened to drop here by way of the railroad just when this fire engine jamboree is coming off 'en I want the pillow fer her."

"That alters the case; I'll even go so fur as to say that if thar is a lady in this pillow case that I'll ante the pillow, add a clean pillow case, and hope that the lady on the pillow case will take care of herself and keep away young fellers wot seem mighty anxious 'bout this pillow case." Having perpetrated this outrageous pun old Joe hated to stop and would have doubtless kept on playing with the words like a cat with a mouse had not Harry interrupted. "Look here, Joe, I feel more pertikler than usual in makin' the gal comfortable,—fer she's blind."

"Gee whittaker! 'en alone?"

room tonight is indeed the voice of John then I beg of him in the name of the past to speak to me." A terrible struggle seemed to be going on in the soul of Muggins—his face was ghastly with the effort to control himself. Milly fumbled a little at her breast to speak to me." A terrible struggle seemed to be going on in the soul of Muggins—his face was ghastly with the effort to control himself. Milly fumbled a little at her breast to speak to me." A terrible struggle seemed to be going on in the soul of Muggins—his face was ghastly with the effort to control himself. Milly fumbled a little at her breast to speak to me." A terrible struggle seemed to be going on in the soul of Muggins—his face and the begoing on in the soul of Muggins—his face and the begoing on in the soul of Muggins—his face and the begoing on in the soul of Muggins—h cealed at the bottom of his trunk—still this was not seriously believed by the majority.
"Come now, hand out yer pillow if you've got one; yer know tomorrow is the day we seemed to be going on in the soul of Muggins—

now--"oh, John, don't try to deny yourself to me. For six years I have carried this letter not knowing what was in it, trying to guess the dear words I could not see; and yet—they said such cruel things that I dared not let other eyes than yours read it for me."

A sudden great relief dawned in Muggins' face and with one leap he caught girl, letter and all in his sturdy arms. "Milly, Milly; my Milly! and you never read my letter. I understand now! Yes, girl, I was in trouble, and in that letter I told you how to help me out; certain delicate business of my firm that I would trust to no one else. When the help did not come, I thought you had turned against me; and they told me infernal lies, too, and I had no chance of finding out the truth for I was sent to—to jail! I am a jail-bird, Milly!" And he tried to unloosen her clinging arms. But she only nestled closer and whispered:

"Your jail time is past, dear, but mine will never be over until I open my eyes in the world beyond. And, oh, John, I want a good kind dear jailer while I'm here—"

"Milly, don't! Would to God I were half good enough—"

"You are good enough to take care of me,

"Milly, don't! Would to God I were half good enough—"
"You are good enough to take care of me, and—and to read my letters!"
But that seemed to Harry sacred work, the reading of this much-belated love letter. He sneaked around by the hall and into the bar quite unmissed by Muggins and Milly. With a look of surprised importance as if he had been assisting at some weird rendezvous, he quickly cleared the place of the besotted left-overs of the wholesale spree; and, pouring out a generous drink for himself he bowed gravely toward the inner room, and said impressively:

the inner room, and said impressively:
"Wa'al, here's to 'em! I've allus heerd thet spooks and spirits in general gits oncommon active when thar's plenty o' booze about. En if thet was the cause o' bringin' that gal here tonight—she seemed to feel some queer inflooince—I'm blamed ef it wasn't worth while fer the hull town ter git drunk.'

Thos. Hunt Stucky, M. D., Louisville, Ky., says: When we take into consideration the many kinds of headaches and look back upon their treatment for the past twenty years, one fact becomes evident and that is that anti-kamnia tablets have in a great measure displaced all other remedies in treating these troubles.—Western Medical Journal.

Six Steel Pens Free.

Millions of people use steel pens and we have bought an immense lot which we want to in-troduce into new families. Will send six of different kinds, fine, coarse and medium, to all who send two cents for mailing expenses. Lane & Co., Augusta, Maine.

If you suffer from Epileptic Fits, Falling Sickness or St. Vitus' Dance, or have children or friends that do so, my New Discovery will CURE them, and all you are asked to do is to send for my FREE REMEDIES and try them. They have cured thousands where everything else failed. Sent absolutely free with complete directions, express prepaid. Please give AGE and full address.

DR. W. H. MAY, Street. New York City. 94 Pine Street,

How to Quit Tobacco.

A TRIAL PACKAGE FREE.

A new remedy has been discovered that is odorless and tasteless can be mixed with coffee or food and when taken into the system a man cannot use tobacco in any form. It will cure even the confirmed cigarette fiend and is a God-send to mothers who have growing boys addicted to the smoking of cigarettes. A free trial package of the remedy will be mailed prepaid upon application to Rogers Drug & Chemical Co., 2367 Fifth and Race Sts., Cincinnait, Ohio. This will enable any woman to drive foul tobacco smoke and dirty spittoons from the home.

Agents, Secure Your Territory and our liberal terms, enabling you to earn $25 $75 a week taking orders for

"SUN" INCANDESCENT CASOLINE LAMPS.

Each burner yields 100 candle power of brilliant light.
Cheaper and better than kerosene. Used in hours, stores, halls, churches, etc. Conforms to insurance underwriters' rules. Write today. Sun Vapor Light Co. (licensee of the ground patent for vapor lamps), Box 504, Canton, Ohio.

Sa Day Sure how for make 82 a day absolutely sure; we the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will show you the following the first sure; we the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will ot $3 for every day's work absolutely sure. Write at once. BOYAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 464, Detroit, Rich.

FREE AL RUPTURED,

$3.95 BUYS A LADIES' REG-

$3.95 BUYS A LADIES' REGPROOF SKIRT AND CAPE SEND NO MONEY cutthis ad out, mention No. 1961M, state under the left, weight, number of inches around body at bust and waist, also length of skirt in front from waist to bottom of skirt, and we will send you our new perfect fitting waterproof skirt and cape, by express C. O. D., subject to examination. You CAN EXAMINE and try it on at your express office and if found the most stylish waterproof suit you ever saw, the equal of anything you could have made at $10.00 to $15.00, superior to waterproof suits that sell gencrally at $10.00 to $12.00, then pay the express agent our $3.95 and express special offer price $3.95 and express special offer price of the state stoll genmust accompany your order, with the under yetching chas it will be interested to the state color wanted. The CAPE is lined with extra quality of ound perfectly satisfactory, all and MORE THAN WE CLAIM FOR IT.

THIS SUII glish Water-proof Mackintosh Cloth, and comes in tan or handsome black brocade as desired. Be care to state color wanted. THE CAPE is lined with extra quality of water-proof lining, double breasted, wide facing, full wauteau back, velvet collar, pearl buttons, inlaid epaulets in back.
THE SKIRT, latest style, adjustable at waist, plaid lining; sizes to fit a waist from 20 to 33 inches. Buttoned on the cide, buttons concealed by deep fly. Can be worn in place of or over an ordinary skirt. A very fashionable suit for rainy, sloppy and nasty weather $8.95 DOES NOT BEGIN TO COVER THE FIRST COST OF THE MATERIAL.
We have 800 of these suits to close

Address, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO.

If you have heart

Sudden Death

disease you are in grave danger. You may die any minute—anywhere. Heart troubles,

You may die any minute—anywhere. Heart troubles, dangerous as they are, can be instantly recognized by all. No doctor can tell better than you if your heart is out of order. If you have any of the following symptoms, don't waste any time. Get my Heart Tablets at once.

Fluttering, palpitation, or skipping beats (always due to weak or diseased heart); shortness of breath from going upstairs, walking, etc.; tenderness, numbness or pain in left side, arm or under shoulder blade; fainting spells dizziness hungry or weak spells; spots before the spells, dizziness, hungry or weak spells; spots before the eyes; sudden starting in sleep, dreaming, nightmare;

deart Disease

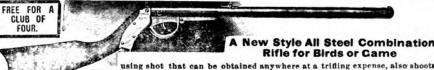

choking sensation in throat; oppressed feeling in chest; cold hands and feet; painful to lie on left side; dropsy; swelling of the feet or ankles (one of the surest signs); neuralgia around the heart; sudden deaths rarely result from other causes.

They will restore you to health and strength as they have hundreds of other men and women.

FREE To prove how absolutely I believe in them, to prove that they will do exactly what I say, I will send a box free to any name and address sent me. One trial will do more to convince you than any amount of talk. It will cost you nothing, and may save your life. Send for a trial box and enclose stamp for postage.

DR. F. G. KINSMAN, Box 962 AUGUSTA, MAINE.

RAPID-FIRE

A New Style All Steel Combination Rifle for Birds or Came

using shot that can be obtained anywhere at a trifling expense, also shoots darts making it desirable for outdoor target practice or parlor amusement or it can be used in any part of the house with perfect safety, making a practical and entertaining form of evening amusement for the boys and girls as well as older folks. There is no smoke, odor or dust from this gun, it is endorsed by army officers as the best mechanical rifle ever produced and the possession of one of our accurate shooting air rifles makes a boy manly and affords him an excellent means of successfully competing with his chums for marksman's honors as well as teaching him the use of a rifle. Remember this is a combination gun, so your boy should have one be he old or young. If he is sick in the house he can shoot darts and keep out of mischief or go into the woods for game and get robust and healthy besides.

SPECIAL. Send at once for sample copies of our big monthly and subscription blanks and canvass among the neighbors. For a club of four yearly subscribers at the popular price of 25c. each, $1.00 in all, we will send one of these King Pneumatic Rifles as a present, all charges paid, guaranteeing absolute satisfaction, or we will send one rifle as above for $1.17. Address

COMFORT, Augusta, Mainc.

Remember the above is a real gun, nearly three feet long. It looks like a gun and shoots like a gun.

Taps.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT BY F. E. BURNHAM.

Copyright, 1901, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher.

OMEWHERE along the dusty roads of Cuba the regiment picked up Nuenzes, a dark-skinned little Cuban boy. For a month he marched with the soldiers and shared their lot, smiling where the soldiers swore, and content to follow the regiment to the ends of the earth. The time that he was with the regiment was short, but during those days he endeared himself to every man, and there were few dry eyes when it was learned that "Taps," as he was called, owing to his fondness for that military farewell, was no more, and that shortly would taps be sounded above lds little, emaciated body.

Those were trying days for the Northern soldier, unaccustomed as he was to the fierce, tropical sun, and many of the boys dropped by the roadside to rest for a few moments, hurrying along shortly to catch up with the regiment. It was at such times that "Taps" endeared himself to the soldiers, dropping behind with the exhausted comrade and making himself generally useful by pouring from ing himself generally useful by pouring from his rusty canteen, which one of the boys had given him, a generous drink of water, loosening the shirt-front, the while fanning vigorously with a curious little fan which he had woven from native grasses and leaves.

One morning a soldier fainted, and as the regiment passed on, "Taps" kneeled beside the prostrate form. As the men marched by they little thought that it was to be the last time that they would witness that little act of this unrecognized soldier of the Red Cross, but it was, for there is always a last time, and the

was, for there is always a last time, and the men learned the truth within twenty-four

An hour passed and the fallen comrade failed An nour passet and the initer confrade laned to overtake his company, and a mounted surgeon was sent to look after the man. Two hours later he returned—alone; said that there was no trace of the soldier and "Tape", save the telltale marks of a scuffle in the deep dust of the road.

The road.

The regiment marched on, but the surgeon's report cast a shadow which checked merriment and jest for the remainder of the day. With "Taps" absent, it seemed almost as though they had lost their flag, or their though they had lost their flag, or their colonel.

That night the soldiers pitched camp on a rising piece of ground twenty miles from the point where "Taps" was last seen. Sentries were posted and presently all was quiet for the night, no sound being heard save the frogs and night-birds and the deep breathing of hundreds of footsore soldiers.

Suddenly one of the sentries was heard to challenge an advancing figure. Either the intruder failed to hear, or understand the challenge, for he pressed on through the thicket. There was a flash and report, and a dull thud told that the sentinel's aim had been true. A moment later an agonized cry brought officers and men from their quarters even more quickly than the report of the rifle alone. They found the sentinel kneeling by the side of an unconscious little form, and by the light of a match they learned that "Taps" had returned—returned to be shot.

The boy thrust his hand mechanically into his pocket and drew out a bit of paper. He was unconscious, but the mind was active in a measure, and as he held it out in his trembling hand, he looked appealingly from one to another, striving the while to speak.

The Colonel seized the paper and read for an instant and his face paled perceptibly.

"Taps and I are prisoners," read the note, "but hope to see him free by dusk. There is a large

"Taps and I are prisoners," read the note, "but hope to see him free by dusk. There is a large force of Spaniards following you, intent upon striking a blow by daybreak. Be ready for them. Johnson."

Steps were taken at once to give the enemy a warm reception and shortly before sunrise the Spaniards made an attack only to be repulsed and driven back in disorder. It was they who were surprised, not the Americans as they had

As the rifle shots died away in the distance and the boys in blue returned to camp, "Taps" opened his eyes in a questioning sort of way, and placing his right hand before his mouth much as the bugler would have done, painfully moved his fingers up and down, the lips moved convulsively as though trying to utter a word. There was a moment of silence and then the tongue was loosed.

"Play taps," he said, and there was something so strangely pathetic about it that those who heard found a great lump rising in their throats. the rifle shots died away

very white and tears were blinding his eyes, but somehow he managed to play the pathetic little melody as he had never played it before, and as the tones floated over across the neighboring river the hills of Cuba echoed and recechoed, and as the last faint answer came back "Taps" passed away. It was a scene never to be forgotten, and of those gathered about there was not one with dry eyes; they all cried and they were not ashamed of it, either.

A lonely little grave was dug there on the hillside overlooking the river and as the little hero was tenderly placed therein, taps was sounded again. Shortly was the regiment on the march again, but the memory of that morning's sad scenes remained with the men for hours and days. It was one of life's tragedies that time cannot readily efface.

dies that time cannot readily efface.

WRITTEN FOR COMPORT.

ASSAR has celebrated Founder's Day and Philalethean since its earliest annals, and to the Vassar girl no other occasions arouse quite so much anticipation and enjoyment. Philaletheis is the oldest of the College societies, founded less than three months after the estabmonths after the establishment of the seat of learning in 1865, and Philalethean Day, coming the first week in December, is its birthday festival, kept with formality and gay merry-making. The committee is busy for days beforehand, and the corridors and reception rooms are bright with decorations and Vassar's colors, pink and gray, when the guests assemble at night and proceed to the chapel where the exercises occur, the society's president, a prominent senior, cur, the society's president, a prominent senior, making the address of welcome, followed by some distinguished man, the speaker of the evening. At the close comes supper, with music and dancing in the long dancing hall of the main building. The next day continues the festivities, the girls giving teas and chaf-ing dish parties, or Mrs. Kendrick, the lady principal, a reception, and the Glee Club a con-cert.

On Founder's day, falling upon April 29, the date when Matthew Vassar was born, the pro-gramme is much the same as on "Phil," as the gramme is much the same as on whith, as the girls call it in college parlance. There is a crush of friends and statives, the young hostesess are charming in their dainty gowns, and to the outsider the romance of college life is revealed.

Field Day in the spring shows the prowess of the college athletes who do not pretend to rival their muscular colleagues at Harvard or Yale in making or breaking records, but they show how physical training can promote systematic development of limbs and muscles, making the movements graceful and their bearing erect. Very agile are the young collegians as they enter with spirit the long list of events—hurdle races, 100 yard dash, running high jump, fence vault and a dozen more. "The Circle," Vassar's athletic field, is alive with friends and undergraduates, no men being allowed upon the scene, who field, is alive with friends and undergraduates, no men being allowed upon the scene, who cheer and sing and wave college or class colors, as the plucky winners take their laurels.

Basket-ball Day at Smith College is one of the greatest of athletic events in feminine college circles, also the "gym" is packed with faculty, a few fortunate visitors, and students who take possession of the gallery, freshmen and juniors on one side, sophomore and seniors on the other, armed with banners, pennants and gay streamers which they flourish with wildest enthusiasm, as the teams make good plays. The game is called for half past three o'clock, but nearly two hours before the long lines begin to form outside the two doors of the gymnasium waiting for them to open, as there are no reserved seats. As soon as the jolly crowd has made its way to the gallery, the winging begins the verses written by the singing begins, the verses written by mem-bers of the two younger classes set to popular airs, such as:

"We're here to beat you,
But not to cheat you,
We'll play a game that's truly fair
Yet of us you'd beat beware,
For you'll rue it
If you don't do it
For we're the class of old Smith College."

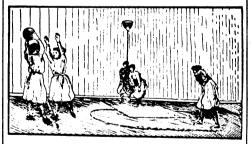

Or to the tune of "Pop Goes the Weasel" ran 1903 song:

"To the center flies the ball. How they jump to grasp it! Over now to Nineteen-Two Near to the Basket."

As President Seelye comes in, diplomatically wearing the colors of both contending classes, they greet him with: "Here's to you, President

"Here's to you, our warmest friend And we sing before this care forsaken company We sing before we part."

As each member of the faculty appears he or she is hailed with some appropriate musical lines and much clapping of hands. Then the

BASKET-BALL.

and placing his right hand before his mouth much as the bugler would have done, painfully moved his fingers up and down, the lips moved convulsively as though trying to utter a word. There was a moment of silence and then the tongue was loosed.

"Play taps," he said, and there was something so strangely pathetic about it that those who heard found a great lump rising in their throats.

There was a call for Holden, the bugler, and a moment later he appeared with his horn. Then, while the boys in blue gathered about the tent where the little sufferer was lying. Holden raised the bugle to his lips. He was very white and tears were blinding his eyes, but somehow he managed to play the pathetic little melody as he had never played it before, in May prove quieter anniversaries when the students go off on long tramps or drive to pic-nic on neighboring Mount Tom, Nanotuck or Sugar Loaf and return at night tired but happy.

Mount Holyoke College has a Mountain Day, too, when the whole household spends the hours adrift in the pretty country surrounding South Hadley, often forming parties to climb Mount Holyoke and visit the Notch on the road to Amherst College. The botany and geology students study specimens and formations, coming home laden with red leaves and berries and garlands of fluffy clematis which serve to decorate their rooms. serve to decorate their rooms.

The championship tennis tournament brings

Famous Days Kept by College Girls. GUARD ACAINST LUNG DANGERS

Consumption, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, Throat and Lung Troubles Permanently Cured.

FULL FREE COURSE OF TREATMENT TO OUR READERS.

Are your lungs weak? Do you cough? Do you have pains in the chest? Do you spit up phlegm? Is your throat sore and inflamed? Does your head ache? Is your appetite bad? Do you have night sweats?

Are you losing flesh? Are you pale, thin and weak? Do you have ringing in ears? Do you have hot or cold flashes? Is there dropping in throat?

Is the nose dry and stuffy? Have you a coated tongue?

These are symptoms which indicate that you have the germs of that devastating disease—Consumption—the disease that has carried off more victims than all others combined. These are symptoms which call for quick and successful treatment. Consumption does not steal in upon you in a night, but begins its work long before the truth is

While Dr. Slocum's famous treatment will cure Consumption in any stage, yet the time to use it is when the first danger appears—NOW, if you realize you have any of the symptoms here enumcrated.

Since Dr. Slocum gave his priceless treatment to the world tens of thousands have been restored to perfect health.

If you are not robust and well—if you have consumption's premonitory symptoms, you should act without a moment's delay.

The aliments of women and delicate children are also speedily relieved and cured.

FREE TREATMENT

to all sufferers who write. Simply send your express and post office addresses to

DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 98 Pine Street, New York, stating that you read the offer in Comfort, and he will promptly send a full course FREE treatment fresh from his laboratories.

-This splendid free offer to our readers is genuine, and we hope every sufferer will the friends of Bryn Mawr College out from Philadelphia in the fall to watch the fine work done by the four classes, but the out door basket ball contest in the spring is the notable occasion when all the college world troops out to the broad athletic field and exhibits a surto the broad athletic field and exhibits asurprising amount of interest. Songs and cries rend the air, class colors wave, and every one is as jolly and happy as possible. Ice cream, lemonade and other goodies are disposed of by energetic under-graduates for the benefit of the Athletic Association. A handsome silver cup is the trophy fought for; any class winning ft three times in succession becomes its permanent owner.

owner.

The Woman's College of Baltimore opens its athletic season in the fall with the tennis battle between picked players from the freshman and sophomore classes. This always proves a memorable day, the seniors acting as allies of the sophomores, the juniors aiding and abetting the newest class. But the two days of special note are College Day and Alto Dale Day, one happening on November seventeenth, and enjoyed by guests as well as students, the other the last day of May or first of June when professors and students only go out to President Goucher's country home, "Alto Dale," beyond Baltimore, for the most ideal day of the college year. In the afternoon they depart in chartered year. In the afternoon they depart in chartered cars to sup and pass the evening in gaiety and good cheer. The beautiful grounds are hung with Chinese lanterns and lighted by great torches of pitch and pine.

Tree Day and Float Day rank as Wellesley's occasions for excellence the former an exclusions.

Tree Day and Float Day rank as Wellesley's occasions for excellence, the former an exclusive affair to which no outsider is supposed to be admitted, the latter a public water pageant, friends from far and near coming to view the picturesque aquatic fete. Both occur in June. Tree Day about the first week, the three lower classes dressed in fancy costume, the seniors maintaining the college dignity in cap and gown. Literary exercises, singing and dancing form the programme, all on the broad campus, the gay, fantastic procession winding in and out across its velvety turf.

On "Float" the crews from the four classes give an exhibition in skill and good form, the young oarsmen making a fine showing in the long shells and rowing like crack sportsmen with long even stroke. When they have gone through their evolutions they form the traditional star in the center of Lake Waban and sing their college and boating songs, while colored lights flash out from the shore, and myriad Japanese lanterns, and the thousands of spectators cheer with great show of enthusiasm.

spectators cheer with great show of enthusiasm.

St. Vitus Dance. One bottle Dr.M.M.Fenner's Specific cures.By mail.Send for Circular, Fredonia, N.Y.

EVERYBODY WEARS COLLAR BUTTONS, Send us only 5c. and we send you Six Gold Plated lever collar buttons, either for Gentlemen or Ladies. This can only be done to introduce our great catalogue of Novelties. 5 cents for 6. Write to-day to Comport, Augusta, Maine.

Young Men

In spare time and at small expense, for salaried positions in this paying profession, and help you to advance.

Courses in Engineering Themselved in Engineering Courses in Engineering Course stating subject.

International Corres. Schools, Box 1190, Scranton, Pa.

Wileon's Ear Drums

restore the hearing even after medical skill fails. They fit in the ears, are invisible, safe and com fortable. Physicians recommend them. Thousands attest their value. There are many imitators—the WILSON is the original and genuine. Write for book, FREE. Wilson Ear Drum Co., 314 Trust Bidg., Lociaville, Ky.

Lore Verses, 18 Complete Stories, 50 Series Cards. Silk Prince, etc., all lineta.
TUTTLE BROS. CO., BOX 8, TOTOKET, CONN.

easily made by ladies or gentlemen selling our specialties. Used in every household. No trouble to make sales. Gouda quickly used up. Customers will buy write for free catalogue and sample. THE IRON CITY PHARMACAL CO., 801 North Ave., Allegheny, Pa.

RUPTURE CURED! RUPTURE UREU!

WORN NIGHT and DAY.

Patented improvements, comfort, safety. New full illustrated Book telling all about Rupture sent FREE, securely sealed. G. V. HOUSE M'F'G. CO., 744 Broadway, New York.

Please mention Comfort when you write.

We Teach You FREE Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating, At home or traveling, using and acting Prof. Gray's Mackinos. Plates Watche, Jowelly, 18hip of the Ware, Bicycles, and all metal roads. No Bryperfence. Heavy plate. Motern methods. So toys. We do plating, make outflus, all sizes. Compises, cill tools, lather, materials, etc., rad of the complex of the complex plate, make a widpping process, or the complex professor. The Royal, saw dipping process, p. GRAY & CO., Plating Works. CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Please mention Convort when you write

Bluys A WATERPROOF

$5.00 BUYS A WATERPROOF

$5.00 MACKINTOSH

OR RAINCOAT. SEND NO MONEY.

The control of the or blue English Cashmere cloth, lined with extra quality plaid lining. Waterproofed by the celebrated Sciking and comes complete with a removable cape, as illustrated, and same and comes complete with a removable cape, as illustrated, and same and the same and the same and the same and the same and sa

A Gold Lined Silver Dish FREE

To introduce our famous little Giamt Oxiem Pills, giving all the chance to derive the wonderful benefits from these new life-giving wonderful benefits from these new life-giving wonders, we send two boxes absolutely free, all charges paid. You sell the Pills for 25c. per box, send us the money within 20 days, 50c. in all, and we give you as a premium this wonderful Gold Lined Silver Dish free. These dishes are warranted quadruple plated silver; they are futted top and beautiful and useful ornaments; they are suitable for dining table use, or used as side dish for bon bons they are elegant and will last for years. Send your name and address at once so your friends can derive the great benefits coming from the use of Oxiem Pills and you get the profits as the dish can be sold in a minute for 75c. These Pills are noted for their quick action on Liver, Stomach, Heart, Bowels, and special organs of either sex. All ills vanish as if by magic if you use these Pills. Send quick so as to be sure of a dish before they all go, and get full particulars of our great money-making agency proposition, where you get hundreds of dollars from a one dollar iswestment. Address, To introduce our famous little Giant Oxien

THE GIANT OXIE PILL DEPT. M. Augusta, Maine.

Ancient Playing Cards.

HE origin of playing cards is shrouded in mystery. Where and by whom they were first invented it is impossible to state. They are supposed to have been brought to Europe from the Orient. An Italian record speaks of them as having come from the Saracens, who in turn were thought to have learned of them from the inhabitants of Hindustan. Some facsimiles of these the Saracens, who in turn were thought to have learned of them from the inhabitants of Hindustan. Some facsimiles of these early Hindustan cards have been preserved, and are spoken of in an early record as being engraved on plates of ivory.

Playing cards are known to have been made in China from engraved blocks before they were known of in Europe. In other records their introduction into Europe has been attributed to the Moors, to the eastern Jews who traded on the shores of the Mediterranean, and to eastern gypsies, who made their appearance in Germany.

The earliest mention of playing cards in Europe is in a decree published in 1240, in which their use was prohibited by the clergy, though it is not sure that this game of "king and queen" mentioned was a real game of cards. In 1291 in Germany the Emperor Rudolph is described as amusing himself by playing cards. In the middle of the 15th century, cards are mentioned by a Dominican friar as having been introduced into Germany in 1300, and he moreover describes the game as "right deceitful."

In 1441 the senate of Venice issued a decree in which the business of making playing cards is described as falling into disuse on account of foreign competitors, and forbidding the importation of them. An old chronicle describes some playing cards made in Venice at about the time of this decree as printed on thick paper and elaborately gilded and decorated. Evidently the Venetian cards were much more expensive than those of German make, and it is known that at this time the town of Ulm in Germany had a large trade in cards with towns on the Mediterranean and Adriatic.

Records in regard to this subject are very meagre, and all the information has been gathered by authorities from casual references in old manuscripts. Cards may have been made in the first particular in the subject are the particular in the subject are the particular in the subject are the particular in the particular in meagre, and all the information has been gathered by authorities from casual references in old manuscripts. Cards may have been made in other European countries as early as they were in Italy and Germany, but of this we have no certain information. They were in common use in many parts of Europe at the beginning of the 15th century. In the British Museum is preserved a set of forty-eight playing cards, which were found printed on six sheets of paper, eight cards to a sheet, in the inner lining of an old book-cover which was made by some unknown printer before the year 1500. They are probably the oldest pack of cards in existence. Printed on cheap coarse paper, and rudely colored with a stencil in dull green and red, they were probably made to sell cheap to the common people, a fact still further shown by the rudeness of the engraver's work. (See illustration.)

by the rudeness of the engraver's work. (See illustration.)

In a French romance written in 1328 there is a bit of poetry attending to the folly of games of dice, checkers and cards. Other writers claim 1350 and 1376 as the date of their introduction into France, but there is not much evidence confirming their statements. The first reliable mention of playing cards in France is found in an old account book of the year 1392 kept by the treasurer of Charles VI. in which fifty-six sols, or about $30, are paid for three packs of cards "gilded, colored and ornamented with various designs," for the amusement of the king.

Charles VI. had had his mind affected by sunstroke and these cards were provided to Charles VI. had had his mind affected by sunstroke and these cards were provided to amuse him. In the National Library at Paris, seventeen of these cards are preserved but some authorities claim that the workmanship indicates a later date. Here also are preserved the relics of another pack of cards which were probably made during the reign of Charles VII. They are especially interesting. One of the queens is a representation of Marie of Anjou, while one of the kings is represented as a hairy savage, and is a reminder of a terrible accident that occurred during the reign of Charles VI. in 1392.

in 1392.

A masquerade had been arranged in honor of the king, at which Charles VI. and five of his courtiers appeared as savages. They were dressed in tight-fitting suits of linen, covered with pitch and tow, and linked together with chains they danced in the ball-room. The Duke of Orleans, wishing to discover the identity of one of the maskers, held a torch too near and immediately his costume was a blaze. The king was rescued, but four of his companions were burned to death.

However and wherever cards were invented

ions were burned to death.

However and wherever cards were invented they at once became extremely popular with all classes of society. The Duke of Milan, we are told, was accustomed to play with cards elaborately painted on ivory by renowned artists. Flemish nobles tempted fortune with cards accust on silver plates, while the comcards engraved on silver plates, while the common people of France and Spain, Italy and Germany, were all diverting themselves with greasy packs of cards printed or stencilled on greasy packs of cards printed or stendined on coarse paper.

The evil results of the game were at once noticed by the rulers and the church officers. In 1404 the clergy were forbidden to play cards. In 1323 St. Bernard preached against card games from the steps of St. Peter's church, and with such good effect that his hearers ran to their homes, and bringing forth all the cards, dice, and other gambling games that they owned, burned them in the public square. We are told that a maker of cards went to the saint in tears and said:

that a maker of and said:

"Father, I am a card-maker, and know no other trade. You have forbidden me to make cards and consequently have condemned me to cards and consequently have condemned me to die of starvation."

To this St. Bernard replied: "If you know how to paint, paint this image," showing him the figure of Christ with the monogram I. H. S. in a haio of glory. This the card-maker did, virtue had proper reward, and he became very wealthy, for religious prints were at that time bought as eagerly as playing cards.

Other monks and priests preached against playing cards but without other than temporary result, for by the end of the fifteenth century they were more popular than ever. The moralists then tried instead of abolishing the game to make it a means of instruction instead of a mere amusement. In an Italian stead of a mere amusement. In an Italian library is preserved a pack of fifty engraved cards which bear the date 1485. It is divided into five suits of ten cards each. The first epresents the various conditions of men from the pope to the beggar, the second suit con- enterprise.

tains the nine muses, with Apollo added to tains the nine muses, with Apollo added to make up the proper number, the third illustrates the different branches of learning from grammar to theology, the fourth cardinal virtues such as justice and prudence; and the fifth the heavenly bodies.

Another pack of cards was made up to convey solemn religious truths in the form of a game of life and death, though we have no description of how this game was played. In the latter part of the fifteenth century, cards were made in Italy with figures representing the four great monarchies of the ancient world. Marks on these cards indicated the four classes of society; hearts for the clergy, spades (from the Italian word spada, a sword) for the nobles, the Italian word spada, a sword) for the nobles, clubs for the peasants; and diamonds for the burghers or citizens.

PLAYING CARDS OF 15th CENTURY.

A German professor in 1507 undertook to make use of playing cards for teaching high scholastic science and published a book explaining his game. The cards were piled with mysterious symbols intended as keys to the entire art of reasoning. German artists undertook to improve and modify the designs on playing cards, but though they produced handsome engravings they never became popular as the old designs. None of the innovations in cards, either in designs or ways of playing were popular. People then, as now played for amusement and not for instruction. The cards have come down to us practically played for amusement and not for instruction. The cards have come down to us practically unchanged. Even the stiff conventional forms of drawing are still preferred by players.

Although playing-cards led to gambling, their general use was not an unmixed evil at the time of their introduction. They were a means of education to the common people at a means of education to the common people at a time when education was sorely needed. The average man of the Dark Ages could not have been persuaded to learn his letters, but was attracted by cards, and took the trouble to learn the games. In playing his mind was trained to a use of its reasoning faculties, and there must have been something of respect for written or printed symbols. This would naturally lead to a desire to know something of books, and in this way playing cards helped materially to awaken an interest in literature, which had lain dormant for 600 years.

Americans and Stratford-on-Avon.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

UR indolent and elderly landlady at Warwick said that she lived in Stratford-on-Avon until she was twenty-nine years old. So we asked her if she thought—as many do—that Bacon wrote Shakespeare's plays. She said she didn't know and she didn't care. Nobody in Stratford minded an ything about anything about Shakespeare anyway until the Americans began to come across and make such a fuss

"Aouw," she would say, "but you don't want to bathe in 'ot water in 'ot weather, do you?"

The high shouldered and sniffy indifference to Shakespeare displayed by our Warwick landlady was in marked contrast to the feelings of the little woman in Stratford with whom we took lodgings a few days later. Had we breathed one word against the source of her inspiration—and income—I think she would have put us out of the house, bags and bag-gage, or rather, lugs and luggage, for no one has baggage in England.

We had not been long in Stratford before we declared the Warwick landlady to be right in one particular. However much the English love and reverence the memory of their great countryman, the Americans assuredly have done their part to make, as she said, a fuss over him.

Everywhere the traveler sees evidence of American talent, American money, American

Will Cure Your Rheumatism No Pay Until You Know It

After 2,000 experiments, I have learned how to cure rheumatism. Not to turn bony joints into flesh again; that is impossible. But I can cure the disease always, at any stage, and

I ask for no money. Simply write me a postal and I will send you an order on your nearest druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure, for every druggist keeps it. Use it for a month and if it does what I claim, pay your druggist $5.50 for it. If it doesn't I will pay him myself.

I have no samples. Any medicine that can affect Rheumatism with but a few doses must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs. It is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

Long ago our own Washington Irving wrote about Shakespeare and Stratford while sitting in the parlor of the Red Horse inn. His description has never be surpassed by later writers. The room where he wielded his pen is kept in the same order as on that night when he sat enthroned in the arm-chair with the is kept in the same order as on that night when he sat enthroned in the arm-chair with the poker for a sceptre. Since then, thousands of Americans have registered at the hotel and in the visitors' book at the church of Holy Trinity. They keep a separate book for Americans at the church and the verger knows where your name belongs as soon as you appear in the doorway. All vergers are equally wise. There is no need to wait for the tell-tale accent. They recognize the general air of our countrymen as far as their eye can reach.

More than one-fourth of the number of pilprims to Stratford are Americans and they have

More than one-fourth of the number of pilgrims to Stratford are Americans and they have made many substantial gifts to the town. One of these is the beautiful water fountain and clock tower shown in our initial illustration, erected in the jubilee reign of the late Queen Victoria. It is fifty feet high and has English and American emblems grouped together on the stone carvings. Shakespeare himself furnished the particularly appropriate inscriptions. One reads:
"Honest water which ne'er left man i' the mire."

"Honest water which ne'er left man i' the mire." Another is:

"In her day every man shall eat in safety "In her day every man shall eat in safety Under his own vine, what he plants; and sing The merry songs of peace to all his neighbors. God shall be truly known; and those about her From her shall read the perfect ways of honour And by those claim their greatness, not by blood."

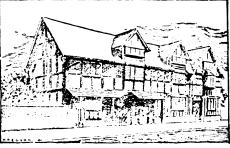

This is a very graceful quotation in reference to the fiftieth anniversary of the late Queen's reign. Many good things already have come to pass as it is written, but we still wait to hear the merry songs of peace among our neighbors—and ourselves.

-and ourselves.

In the church of Holy Trinity there are two stained glass windows given by Americans. The light from one falls over the grave where the epitaph reads:

"Good frende for Jesus sake forbeare
To digg the dust enclosed heare;
Bleste be ye man yt spares these stones
And curst be he yt moves my bones."

The bust of Shakespeare is placed in the wall above grave and epitaph. The face seems as free from furrowed thought lines as the head is destitute of hair—on top. Down in the Memorial library among the curios we saw a smooth, round, bald-headed egg. It was painted with the portrait of Shakespeare. On it was written: "An eggsact likeness the most eggscellent in eggsistence." And so it is.

BIRTHPLACE OF SHAKESPEARE.

Since the death of Shakespeare, one change over him.

If you could have seen that landlady you would not think for a moment that she knew—or cared, either. Such a Dickensy old woman in an evil looking black wig with an evil looking black cat on her knee! Our life with her was one grand fight for hot water and clean towels.

eggscellent in eggsistence. And so the since the death of Shakespeare, one change after another has taken place in his portraits, the growth of hair and thought lines being especially noticeable. The bust in the niche, like the egg in the library, gives the impression of a happy-go-lucky Will, not the scholarly, elegant looking gentleman sometimes seen in the pictures of today.

The practical interest taken in the birthplace of Shakespeare by that energetic American, P. T. Barnum, resulted in lasting benefit to the English people. The great showman proposed to buy the Shakespeare house and set it up in America. Our English cousins at once bought America. Our English cousins at once bought the place themselves, and gave it to their na-

If it had been taken to this country every nail and splinter would have been lugged away by relic hunters—so they tell us. Perhaps they are right. Certainly they have to keep a sharp lookout as it is. A very bare little place after all, with not so many mementoes as one would expect. The back garden was delightful; filled with pansies and wild thyme and the other flowers and shrubs that the great dramatist

My remedy does that, even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. No matter how impossible this seems to you, I know it and I take the risk. I have cured tens of thousands of cases in this way, and my records show that 39 out of 40 who get those six bottles pay, and pay gladly. I have learned that people in general are honest with a physician who cures them. That is all I ask. If I fail I don't expect a penny from you.

Simply write me a postal. Let me send you an order for the medicine. Take it for a month, for it won't hurt you, anyway. If it cures, pay $5.50. I leave that entirely to you. I will mail you a book that tells how I do it. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 304, Racine, Wis.

the prettiest of views is the church of Holy Trinity, with the river Avon flowing by. The spire rises above the trees whose branches dip spire rises above the trees whose branches dip into the water over the low stone wall. The sheep graze in the meadow opposite and the cows wander down to the water's edge to drink. Rest and quiet and peace are here—a typical English landscape.

HE first fire-engine we know anything about was mentioned about 150 B. C., in an ancient manuscript. The early Romans appear to have organized quite a fire-brigade to which they devoted considerable attention. In England, during the latter part of the sixteenth century, large brass syringes holding several quarts of water each, were used in fighting fire. As it required three men to work one of these and as they had to be refilled every few minutes, they must have been of doubtful value in case of fire.

Our soo-page book, "How to Cure Stammering," sent Free to any address. Enclose 6 cents to pay posting THE LEWIS SCHOOL, 20 Adelaide St., Detroit, Mich

NESS AND HEAD NOISE Cured by Electricity. No Druga 6 months trial FREE! W. J. TINDALL, B. 10, Cohoes, N. Y.

Family Record. A beautiful picture, rich gold. Tremendous seller. Agents delighted. Sample free for 12c. to pay postage and advig; 9 for $1.00 postpaid. J. LEE, Omaha Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Sell Your Real Estate.
We want good City and Farm property in all parts of We want good City and Farm property in all parts of the U.S. and Canada. Send description and cash price. WINSLOW REALTY AND INVESTMENT CO., Sta. E., South Bend, Ind.

FREE RUPTURE CURE

If ruptured write to Dr. W. S. Rice, 1019 Main St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send free a trial of his wonderful method. Whether skeptical or not get this free method and try the remarkable invention that cures without pain, danger, operation or detention from work. Write to-day. Don't wait.

TWO RINGS

these two solid gold laid rings. Will wear a lifetime ey required till tablets are sold. We take back all not COMFORT MEDICINE CO., Providence, R. I. $3.75 BUYS A $35 WATCH and shandsome 'Gold' watch chain & charm
HIS IS A GROUNE GOLD-FILLES WATCH in appearance, superbly engraved, double hunting case, stem wind and stem set.
HIGH-GRADE RUBY JEWELES WAREhunting case, stem wind and stem set. HIGH-GRADE RUBY JEWELED WORKS which is absolutely guaranteed for which is absolutely guaranteed for which is absolutely guaranteed. Let YEARS.

Send this to us and we will send this WATCH A" 8010" CHAIR A CHARM (0.0.53.76 and express charges for caminations for charge & it is yours. Write if you near a Ladies' or Gents' standard of the CALUMET WATCH CO., Dept. 41, Chicago with pansies and wild thyme and the other flowers and shrubs that the great dramatist wrote about and knew.

On High street there is a fine-timbered building with a carved front, from an architectural point of view far more worthy of importation than is Shakespeare's birthplace. We did better than take the house. We took the man. It is called the Harvard house and was built by the grandfather of the one who came to this country, in her earlier days, and founded our first college—John Harvard.

Stratford is a lovely old town and would well repay a visit, without its associations. One of

SEAL PLUSH CAPE...$4.95

LUSH the he world. It is inches long, ide stylish arge storm large store all trimmer all mround with black sliky thibet fur, lined with fine mercerized silk heavily

Latest Model

1902

BLACK DRESS PATTERN $1.99

send FREE A SAMPLE OF THE $1.99 DRESS PATTERN and a big line of other samples of dress goods for Autumn and Winter, or SEND 50 CENTS deposit tern C. O. D. Send the $1.99 description of the samples of t

SEND NO NONEY but men paper and we will send our FREE SEWING MACHINE CATA. LOG containing other machines at 29.95 up, or SEND US $1.00 de post and we will send this high-arm, ro or black powder, solid frame, lock, all parts accurately fitted. 12 gauge only, barrels, weight about 7 lbs. Guaranteed a

TALOG containing other single barrel shotguns at 8.45 p; double barrel shotguns at 8.5 up, and everything in disease, reviews and amanufacturers prices, or

POUND "FAULTLESS" OAK HEATER $9.05 STANDS STANDS STANDS STANDS STANDS STANDS STANDS STANDS STANDS

WE GUARANTEE "FAULTLESS"

OAK Heater $545 Heater $685 50 Inches High

"FAULTLESS" "FAULTLESS" "FAULTLESS" OAK Heater $810 OAK Heater 52 Inches High 54 Inches High

COMPARE THE WEIGHT, HEIGHT AND PRICE "Faultless" PARE THE WEIGHT, HEIGHT AND PRICE of our "Heaters with heaters soin by nani order, supply houses and exclusive stove and hardware dealers at prices similar to ours, and see the difference in our favor.

THIS IS IMPORTANT for weight denotes the in our favor.

Height adds to its attractiveness, therefore it is to your interest to get the heaviest and highest heater for your money that you can.

WE SELL 5 SIZES of Heaters as enumerated above, all made and finders and the sished like the illustration, with fire resisting castings of special mixed pig iron, solid one-piece air tight sunk bottom ash pit, large ash pan, ash-pit door, attright screw draft, heavy corrugated east fron fire-pot, large handsome fire-pot ring cemented and bolted to top and fire-pot, large handsome fire-pot ring cemented and bolted to top and fire-pot, large handsome fire-pot ring cemented and satings, fitted with nickeled wing top ring, nickel door latch, hinge pins and knobs, 3 nickeled foot rails, nickeled register in ash-pit door, nickeled name plate and handsome symp tops, check damper in pipe collar and feed door, and shake and draw center grate for coal and wood. Gur Oak Heaters burn wood, hard or soft coal, cobs, coke, chips, or anything combustible, consume little fuel and throws out much heat.

$5.45 TO $10.60 is our price for the heaters, according to size, consume little fuel and throws out much heat.

$5.45 TO $10.60 is our price for the heaters, according to size, consume little fuel and throws out much heat.

$5.45 TO $10.60 on the property of the heaters, and customers must be at the expense for cleaning and polished ead grade covered with moulding, sand and cinders, and customers must be at the expense for cleaning and polished before shipment.

OUR "FAULTLESS" HEATER AT $9.05 few erecommend and the content and the conte

SEND NO MONEY

SEND NO MONEY

Dut mention this paper and we will send you our Big Free Special Stove Catalog.

Send No. Complete Line of Heating Stoves from $1.50 up, cook stoves from $7.50 up, kanges from $1.50 up, and Base Burners from $11.50 up, or SEND US $1.00 departments whether the $5.50 up, the superior of Heating Stoves from $2.50 up, kanges from $1.50 up, and Base Burners from $11.50 up, or SEND US $1.00 departments whether the $5.50 up, the superior of Heating Stoves from $2.50 up, kanges from $1.50 up, and Base Burners from $11.50 up, or SEND US $1.00 departments on the superior of Heating Stoves from $1.50 up, the superior of Heating Stoves from $1.50 up, and Base Burners from $11.50 up, or SEND US $1.00 up and Base Burners from $1.50 up and Base Burners f

WRITE TO-DAY FOR FREE SPECIAL STOVE CATALOGUE.

ADDRESS ALL LETTERS RELATIVE TO THE GOODS AND CATALOGS DESCRIBED ABOVE TO

HN M. SMYTH CO. 150-166 AND CHICAGO

The Greatest Church in America.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

E read how, back in the days when Rome was mistress of the world, the early Christians often worshiped of necessity in the Catacombs and in college that their in cellars, that their lives might not be paid as a penalty for their faith.

It will be news to many people in the United States to know that there is a place in this country, twenty centuries after Rome, where religious services are held every Sunday in a subter-ranean room whose low arched ceiling and walls of massive masonry resemble nothing so much as one of those old-time hiding places.

This underground church, though, is not designed as a place of concealment. It is the crypt—all that is finished yet—of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York City, which, when it is completed, will be far and away the greatest church on the Eastern Continent.

tinent.

It has long been said that America has no cathedrals which begin to compare with those of Europe, and the charge is true. America has been too young a country. We have lived in too great haste. A really great cathedral cannot be built in a year. Although modern engineering might lay one on another the stones which compose the wall, it seems to me as if there must go into the building a feeling of reverence which can only come with time. The Episcopal Church proposes to build such a cathedral in New York. The work has been going on for four or five years, and the foundafeet in width across the transepts. The greatest church in New York, up to this time, the superbly beautiful Catholic Cathedral on Fifth church in New York, up to this time, the superbly beautiful Catholic Cathedral on Fifth Avenue, is less than half that size. The great central spire of the Cathedral will rise to a height of 445 feet. One Bunker Hill Monument could be set on top of another, and yet the pinnacle of the spire would overtop them. The grandeur of the completed structure will be greatly enhanced from its lofty site on that rocky ridge in the upper part of New York which separates the Harlem river from the Hudson. The site itself is visible from almost any part of the city. Imagine the effect of a church almost five hundred feet high in such a location. Its nearest neighbor is the beautiful building of St. Luke's Hospital. At only a little distance, on the other side, are the Grant Tomb and the magnificent dome-surmounted library of Columbia University.

All that has been completed of the work as yet is the foundation for the great central tower, one of the enormous central arches, and a portion of the foundations for the choir. Although it would look to the chance observer as if the site itself was solid rock, the weight of the walls of the structure will be so tremendous that it was necessary to go down in some places as far as seventy feet into the rock before a foundation was secured which was absolutely that it was necessary to go down in some places as far as seventy feet into the rock before a foundation was secured which was absolutely satisfactory. The one arch which has been completed is 145 feet high. It is the biggest arch in the United States. Three others of equal arch in the United States. Three others of equal size will be built, forming with this a square. From the top of each of these, three smaller arches will spring, and on them the huge central spire will rest. The one arch now standing is wonderfully impressive, especially if one sees it from the city, late in the afternoon, outlined against a glowing western sky. All the stone work so far has been of massive gray grante but when the building is come.

gray granite, but when the building is com-pleted all of the stone work which shows now will be hidden. The interior of the building is to be lined with a light brown sandstone, rich in color and admitting of elaborate carving. The stone with which the exterior of the building will be covered has not yet been decided a cathedral in New York. The work has been going on for four or five years, and the foundations are not all laid yet. It will be four or five years more before the first part of the building proper to be completed—the choir—will be so far advanced that services can be held in it. The time when the building of the great nave will be begun is not yet even predicted.

When the Cathedral of St. John the Divine is completed, it will be 520 feet long. Measure the length of a city block, or of the public square in a country town, and see what this means. St. Paul's, in London, is only five feet different in length from this. It will be 290

A contract was made with him to do the work and all through the summer when the Spanish War was being waged this man was at work on this ceiling, having for his helpers a company of Cubans whom he had brought to this country for that purpose because they understood the work.

Three services are held in the crypt each Sunday. Those in the morning and in the afternoon are the regular cathedral services. At 11 o'clock in the forenoon the Church of the Archangel holds service there. I have frequently attended the services. Underground as it is, few churches are so imposing. The crypt seats 440 persons. It has a superb pipe organ. The rough gray stone walls are hidden in some places by almost priceless tapestries brought from the Barerini Palace, in Italy.

CATHEDRAL OF ST. JOHN THE DIVINE.

ALL-WOOL SUIT $5.95 MAN'S SUIT made from rich Black All-weel Cassimere, woven by America's best woolen mile from fine picked wool yarn, dyed by the mile from fine picked not tade, famous for its perfect weave and beautiful finish.

BRASS .. BEDSTEAD SEND NO MONEY but me and we will send you our FE CIAL CATALOG OF BRA IKON BEDS, mattresses at or SEND 50 CENTS and w

MORRIS CHAIR 54

Gatalog Free ed, give size and width, and we will send you a pair of shoes by express C. O. D., subject to examination, you to the express agent $2.50, and express charges after you them exactly as represented and described, otherwise we refund your 50c. Write JOHN M. SMYTH CO., Chie today for catalog or shoes.

REFERENCE: Any man, woman or child in something of the feeling that St. John the Divine is to be not New York's alone, but the nation's—this woman is not even a resident of New York, but of Chicago.

The price paid for the chapel was $50,000. Not all of it can be accommodated in the crypt at present, but when the foundations of the choir are completed, what is now the east end of the crypt is extended to the limit of the choir, and ample room will be afforded for all the material, each fragment of which is almost a jewel in itself.

The altar, a part of the original chapel—is of mosaic work in light colored stones set with gold. The material is cut and set in small square pieces, and there are 150,000 of these pieces in all. Just in the middle of the front of the altar is an elaborate circle, about eighteen inches in diameter. There are between 4,000 and 5,000 pieces in this one circle, and it took one man six weeks to make it. The background of arches behind this altar is of similar mosaics, but of darker stone. The design shows two peacocks upholding a crown.

The arches are upheld and flanked by twelve columns, set with the same dark mosaics, in cruciform design. There are 200,000 pieces of stone in the pillars. The reading desk and the baptismal font are of light stone and gold. Wherever gold is used it is set between two little squares of glass, to preserve it from the atmosphere. Set in this way it will never tar-

Wherever gold is used it is set between two little squares of glass, to preserve it from the atmosphere. Set in this way it will never tarnish. Three hanging lamps of indescribable richness and beauty are suspended where their rays are shed down on to the altar.

The part of the cathedral which is called the choir is shaped like a horseshoe. When this is complete it will seat 4,000 or 5,000 worshipers. The capacity of the whole cathedral, when completed, has never been estimated, so far as Laye learned. Around the choir and opening I have learned. Around the choir and opening from it, are to be built seven chapels, small in comparison with the rest of the building, but each one as large as a small church. It is said that services in seven different languages are to be held in them. The first of these to be completed will be the central one. This is to be called the Belmont Chapel, because a large sum of money has been given by a member of the famous New York family of that name to build this as a memorial.

build this as a memorial.

Too few people who go to New York City visit the cathedral of St. John the Divine. Hardly begun as the foundations are yet, the work is one of the most interesting sights not only in New York, but in America. The crypt is open to the public three afternoons in the week, with an attendant to explain the work, and visitors who cannot come upon the regular days can easily arrange with the attendant to be admitted at some other time.

If you go to New York, do not miss seeing the greatest church in America.

The Schley Court of Inquiry.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

man sometimes leaps into fame, or noto-riety, at one bound. Such seems to be the case of one Maclay, whose only title to fame, heretofore, was the fact that he held some civil position in the Brooklyn navy yard. It seems that he has been writing a history, and that the same was used in the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. When the third volume reat Annapolis. When the third volume re-cently appeared it was found to contain most the third volume recently appeared it was found to contain most a duniral Schley, who fought the great sea fight by which Admiral Cervera's Spanish fleet was pounded into wrecks that actually have not even value as waste iron.

But before explaining the present Court of Inquiry let us take a brief glance at its cause. It is openly charged that the routine officials at the Navy Department rave for years formed an autocratic clique which has made or unmade naval officers at will. Favoritism, social relations and political pull have given favored positions to many, while conspicuous merit and bravery would go unrewarded unless the man would humiliate himself before this coterie of government clerks and society sailors. These very people banished, as they thought, George Dewey to China, only in reality to give him the opportunity to win Manila for America.

In fact this inner circle are said to have rewarded unsparingly those in their good graces, while independence of character and manliness seemed to provoke their antagonism. This state of affairs had grown worse and worse ever since the close of our Civil war up to the time of the Spanish war four years ago.

In the early days of the Spanish American war a fleet under Commodore Schley, known as the Flying Squadron, rendezvoused at Fortress Monroe. Meantime a very strong Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera had been dispatched from Spain on a secret mission, which was believed to be the destruction of an American city on the Atlantic coast. To cut a long story short, we all remember the great fight and how from that time the matter has developed. The story of the war was told in COMFORT at the time; and we will now only give the immediate cause and history of the present Court of Inquiry which was called to meet in Washington on September 12th.

It will be recalled that so on after naval operations were over friends that soon after naval operations were over friends of the present rear admirals, Sampson and Schley, urged their respective claims to promo-tion with a great deal of warmth, and that action upon the advancement not only of the parties most prominent, but of their brother offitheir brother officers entitled to promotion for bravery and excellent service was delayed in consequence. It is not necessary to more than allude to the deep feeling which has since developed, the events are so recent and so well known. Neither Sampson nor Schley had taken official cognizance of reports and even charges against their characters, and nearly three years elapsed before such action was taken. When, however, in the third volume of Maclay's "History of the Navy" passages occurred reflecting severely upon Rear Admiral Schley's conduct, he felt impelled to seek a vindication in the following letter to the secretary of the navy:

GREAT NECK, N. Y., July 22.1901.

SIR.—Within the last few days a series of press comments have been sent to me from various parts of the country of a book entitled "The History of the Navy," written by one Edgar Stanton Maclay. From these reviews it appears that this edition is a third volume of the said history, extended to include the war with Spain, which the first two volumes did not contain, and were in use as text-books at the Naval academy.

From excerpts quoted in some reviews, in which the page and paragraph are given, there is such perversion of facts, misconstruction of intention, such intemperate abuse and defamation of myself, which subjects Mr. Maclay to action in civil law. While I admit the right of fair criticism of every public officer, I must protest against the low flings and abusive language of this violent, partisan opponent, who has infused into the pages of his book so much of the malice of unfairness as to any reputable institution of the country.

book so much of the mainee of unfarriess as to make it unworthy the name of history or of use in any reputable institution of the country.

I have refrained heretofore from all comment upon the innuendoes of enemies muttered or murmured in secret and therefore with safety to themselves. I think the time has now come to take such action as may bring this entire matter under discussion under the clearer and calmer review of my brothers in arms, and to this end I ask such action at the hands of the department as it may deem best to accomplish this purpose.

But I would express the request in this connection that whatever the action may be it occur in Washington, where most of my papers and data are stored.

Very respectfully,

Very respectfully, W. S. SCHLEY, Rear Admiral, U. S. N.

His request was promptly granted, as appears by Sec-retary Long's re-

NAVY DEPART-MENT, WASHINGTON, July 24, 1901. Sir.—I am in re-ceipt of yours of the 22d inst. with re-ference to the criticisms upon you in connection with the Spanish-American war, and heartily approve of your action under the circumstances in asking at the hands of this department such action as may bring this entire matter under discussion "under the clearer and calmer review of my brothers in arms."

ADMIRAL SAMPSON.

The department will at once proceed in accordance with your request. Very respectfully,

John D. Long.

The objectionable paragraphs in Maclay's "History of the Navy" are as follows:

"History of the Navy" are as follows:

Schley, on May 28, 1898, sullied this brightest of American mottoes by penning, "Much to be regretted cannot obey orders" and turned in caitiff flight from the danger spot toward which duty, honor and the whole American people were most earnestly urging him.

Viewed in whatever light it may be, the foregoing dispatch cannot be characterized otherwise than as being, without exception, the most humiliating, cowardly and lamentable report ever penned by an American naval officer.

And further:

In his report about the coal supply of the vessels under his command Schley exhibited a timidity either amounting to absolute cowardice or a pre-varication of facts that were intrinsically falsevarication of facts that were intrinsically false-hoods.

The coal supply of his squadron, so far from being meager, as Schley reported, is shown by the respective logs of those ships, as indicated at noon May 27, to have been most satisfactory.

Here, then, we have the humiliating spectacle of an American naval officer of high rank, having each and every one of his fighting ships with more than three days' coal supply aboard, with a collier laden with 4,000 tons of coal, reporting, at a moment when the greatest crisis of the war was at hand, that "as the prospect did not seem favorable for replenishing the meager coal supply of the larger vessels, the squadron stood to the westward," or away from the point the whole United States was most fervently praying and urging him to reach.

Soon after the fiasco with the Eagle Schley found another pretext for delay in the collier Merrimac, which embarrassed the movements of the squadron by breaking her intermediate pressure valve stem and cracking her stuffing box. "This," reported the commodore, "was a source of considerable anxiety, as, with the weather conditions that prevailed since leaving Cienfuegos, it appeared absolutely necessary to abandon the position off Santiago and seek a place where the vessels could be coaled and the collier's machinery repaired."

This excuse, like the surf off Cienfuegos, which Schley deemed too strong for American naval valor to surmount, and the "rain and rough weather" which delayed the run to Santiago, was soon shown to be groundless, for the energetic engineers of the Merrimac soon repaired the damage.

Again the author says:

Again the author says:

Again the author says:

The one great lesson that Nelson gave in naval strategy was that a captain is never out of position when alongside an enemy. Farragut's great axiom 60 years later, was that "the nearer you get to your enemy the harder you can strike."

Schley's contribution to naval strategy, as too plainly shown by his conduct throughout this campaign, was, "Avoid your enemy as long as possible, and if he makes for you, run."

campaign, was, "Avoid your enemy as long as possible, and if he makes for you, run."

The reader has doubtless already formed his own opinion regarding Rear Admiral Schley's conduct in the war and, what is made the most of by Schley's critics, the famous "loop" of the Brooklyn in entering the race against the Spanish warships—which is explained by his friends as a technical manœuver warranted by the exigencies of the moment. The whole matter for examination is summed up in Secretary Long's "precept" issued to the court of inquiry, which contains ten counts that will clearly explain the case in controversy, particularly if read in connection with the resume of operations leading up to and before Santiago.

The court is composed of Admirals Dewey, Howison and Benham. Schley's friends object somewhat to Howison. Captain Lemly, as Judge Advocate, General of the Navy, acts as prosecuting officer, while a large array of legal talent protect the interests of many interested officers.

While it is to be regretted that such a victory

While it is to be regretted that such a victory While it is to be regretted that such a victory should in the end arouse an unseemly quarrel as this is, it is a good thing that a public trial will bring out the many facts and effectually break up the system of rank favoritism which has existed in the navy. Some questions may remain open; but the rule of petty clerks clad in brief authority, to the detriment of the best interes ts of the officers and of the navy itself, will be abolished.

In closing, Com-

In closing, Com-FORT would call tne attention of tne attention of readers to a conspicuous fact apparent to all. There has been too much talk; too much newspaper interviewing by many interested. To such the nation may well point with pride to the one of the few real veloped. We refer heroes the Spanish war developed. We refer to Captain Clark. His bringing of the Oregon from the Northern Pacific to Cuban waters will rank as the most wonderful achievement in naval history, and the part of the ship and the captain in the battle were worthy of both; since then he has attended to business and kept his mouth shut. His great performance has had no adequate recognition or reward, but he has made no kick and will make none. His testimony at the Schley inquiry will be awaited with much interest for he is the kind of man upon whose word the courtand country awaited with much interest for he is the kind of man upon whose word the court and country will base the verdict.

The first session of this historic inquiry was held in Washington, as originally planned, on September 12th. A large concourse of spectators was present and much interest was manifested by the people there. Almost the first thing after convening the court was the formal objection to Admiral Howison, not as as man; but as having expressed biased opinions. After hearing four witnesses and allowing the Admiral a statement, the remaining members of the board allowed him to retire. At closing writing the funeral obsequies of the late President are being held and the Secretary of the Navy has made no nomination to the vacancy. Navy has made no nomination to the vacancy.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE. $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 E Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

BIGGER

BOX

SAME

PRICE

Enameline

Brilliant, Clean, Easily Applied, Absolutely Odorless.

BETTER YET! FIRE PROOF!

Madagascar's Silk Spider's Web.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HREE hundred miles

HREE hundred miles from the coast of Africa lies the large island of Madagascar. It is really a small continent with a government, people, and speech of its own. Extending for a thousand miles from north to south and three hundred and fifty from east to west, its surface is diversified by broad plains and high mountains, while its seacoast is sheltered by coral reefs and lagoons of fresh water. The people of Madagascar are far in advance of most of the natives of the Malayan islands, although we find that in feature and custom and language they resemble the Pacific Islanders more closely than the people of Africa, who are much more easily accessible to them.

The island is less known than would be expected when one realizes that for a thousand years Arab merchants have traded with the Malagash tribes. It is a comparatively short time since a correct map of the country was made and even now much of the interior is unexplored.

In the early part of this century a king arose explored.

In the early part of this century a king arose among the Malagashy who was a man far ahead of his times and his people. He united the scattered tribes into a nation and instiffed into them the necessity of adopting modern methods and European ideas if they would preserve their nationality.

By means of a treaty with England he obtained arms and ammunition and raised an ods and European ideas if they would preserve their nationality.

By means of a treaty with England he obtained arms and ammunition and raised an army which now numbers forty thousand men. Trade was encouraged and modes of living were improved so that the cities of the island are not without a semblance to European cities. Missionaries established schools in the island and education has flourished among a people who were naturally bright and ready to learn.

The women of the island have always been very clever in the making of cloth, using the most primitive appliances for weaving the fibers of aloe, palm or banana into clegant patterns. With such training it is not at all surprising that the Malagash women have been found so well adapted to the new work of spinning the silk from the silk-producing spider or "Halabe."

That silk was produced by certain spiders has long been known and many attempts have been made to use the silk after it was spun into webs. The Malagash women have done this for centuries, but the cloth thus produced was rough and uneven and of no commercial value. It was through the ingenuity of a missionary in the island, Father Cambone, that a new process has been employed. The father conceived the idea of compelling the spider to spin his thread in a long line which could be used, instead of in a tangled web. He constructed a small box, in which he confined his arachnid, and then by touching the abdomen with his finger he was able to draw forth the long silken threads which might easily be woven into cloth. This idea was taken and enlarged upon by the Professional School at Antananrivo, where the process is being perfected.

The Halabi is very hard to reproduce for the female is exceedingly ferocious and in nine cases out of ten, eats the male when he attempts to approach her. The spiders are caught and brought from the country in boxes made of bails or rushes. They are then placed each in a separate compartment of an upright frame. Each compartment represents the small box of JOHN WANAMAKER Wants reliable scriptions for EveryBody's Magazine with New Census Atlas or clubbing offers. Great opportunity. Experience unnecessary. Liberal commissions and Cash Prizes. John Wanamaker, Dept. 162A, New York.

A SMALL brings good returns if invested in a Magic Lantern or Stereopticon for exhibition purposes. Write for 260 page illustrated catalogue free.

McALLISTER, Mg. Optician, 49 Nassau St., N.Y.

For locating gold and silver. Positively

Rods for locating gold and silver. Positively guaranteed. From $5 up. Catalogue and testimonials free. A. L. BRYANT. Box 10, R Dallas, Tex.

EYESIGHT RESTORED.

A remarkable discovery whereby everyone afflicted with FAILING EYR SIGHT, BLINDARSS OR CATARACTS, can be permanently cured at home by mild medicines and without the us-of the knife. 13,000 cases of eye diseases cured last year by Dr. Coffee's wonderful absorption treatment. An 80-page book "The New System of Treating Di-cases of the Eye," sent free to all who write for it DR. W. O. COFFEE, 843 Good Blk., Des Moines, la.

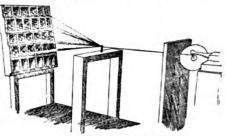

the reverend father and it is so arranged that the abdomen of the spider is the exposed part and the insect is held firmly with its legs turned back out of the way. A Malagash girl now approaches the frame (which contains about two dozen spiders) and touching the abdomen of each spider carries the twenty-four tiny threads to a point in front of the frame where they are joined and reeled off upon spools or bobbins ready for weaving. When all the thread has been taken the spiders are released quite uninjured by the operation, and after a few days are submitted to another reeling. Great care has to be taken that in this stage of resting the spiders do not devour one another. By giving them ample food and keeping them in an open space where exercise is possible this difficulty is somewhat reduced, yet it remains a most serious obstacle in the process of this silk manufacture.

The thread spun by the Halabi is strong and pliable and is of a most beautiful golden color. The silk fabrics which have already been woven have been allowed to retain the natural color and it is said that not only in color but in quality and durability the Madagascar silk will excel all others.

Visitors to the Exposition at Paris had an xcel all others.

Visitors to the Exposition at Paris had an opportunity of seeing the new and curious silk manufacture and it has been a question with many if this spider's silk will not replace that of the silk worm; but there are many arguments against it. First the spiders are less easily managed than the slow moving silk worm; then it is not as easily reproduced; it is not found in so various climates and localities as the silk worm.

DRAWING THE SILK.

This industry is, however, very new and we may all see, before long, all these obstacles overcome and the silk spinning spider as profitable an insect as the silk worm on the mulberry tree.

MEN WANTED to learn barber trade, only eight weeks required. Graduates earn $60 monthly, tools presented, board included, wages while learning. Write branch nearest, J. MOLER SYSTEM BARRER COLLEGES, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Omaha or Buffalo.

FREE Sleeping Beauty DOLL, elegantiy dressed, nearly two feet tall. Address, NOVELTY WORKS, Bridgewater, Conn.

KOIN MONEY.

It Won't Turn Silver to Gold, nor Turn Gold to Silver; but it Will Coin Dollars for You. Agents Wanted.

Will Coin Bollars for You. Agents Wanted.

The Electro Polishing Cloth: a wonderful prepared loth that gives electric brightness and lustre to every metal it touches. Without any powders or paste, simply by rubbing with this cloth, a brilliant insting polish will be placed on Tableware. On Tableware or paste, simply by rubbing with the placed on Tableware. The cloth is present the placed on Tableware or paste, the place of Tableware or paste, the place of Tableware or paste, the place of all Polishes, Powders, Pastes, Liquids and aisonated the place of all Polishes. Powders, Pastes, Liquids and also Chamois Skins at less than one-quarter the cost. It is especially under the cost. It is especially oblish just as well when black as when new. No matter all collishes, polishes, post of the lands. Can be used until middle huntil the cloth until the cloth in until the cloth in the lands. Can be used until middle huntil the cloth until the cloth in the lands. The control of the lands. Can be used until middle huntil the cloth until the cloth in the lands are the control of the lands. Can be used until middle huntil the cloth until the cloth in the lands.

portion will clean and a dry portion polish until the cloth is worn threadbare. Directions with every cloth. Simple and sare Ready, Quick, Clean, Economical. The Greatest Invention of the (cutury.

A Bargain offer to All. We want 20,000 agents to sell there cloths at fairs, campaign meetings, on the street, from house to house, everywhere. You can make $100 a month profit, young and old, both sexes. Sells like greased lightning. One sample cloth (u) size sent free to anyone who will send only 10 cents for agent's prices. The greatest introduction offer ever made; we will return money if not perfectly satisfact.

SUNSHINE, BOX 551, ATGUSTA, MAINE.

WE GIVE THIS WATCH FOR A CLUB OF 4.

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever offered to our readers at no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of course, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but they will not keep any better time, simply because they cannot. This watch keeps not perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you get four subscribers to this paper, at our special subscription price of 55 cents a year each. Do this, sending us $1.00, with the names of four subscribers to this paper, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send our paper to each subscriber for one year, and we will send you the watch to reward you for your efforts in our behalf. Start out now and see what you can do. Remember we guarantee every watch. If you get five subscribers and send us $1.25 for the same we will also send you an independent.

BDITOR'S NOTE. The following rules govern the publi-tion of matter in this department. Contributors must without exception be regular subscrib-to Comfort, and every contribution must bear the writer's in name and post-office address in full.

Original letters only, which deal with matters of general interest, will be published. They must be as brief, plain and correct as the writers can make them, and may vary in length from one hundred to four hundred words. Only letters of exceptional merit and interest may reach six hundred and fifty words. Contributors must write on ene side of the paper only.

$10 CASH PRIZES $10.

The following cash prises will be paid monthly:

1st. For the best original letter

3nd. " second best original letter

3rd. " third " "

4th. " fourth " "

5th. " fifth " "

Sth. " fifth ". 1.00
Competitors for these monthly cash prizes must comply swith all the above rules, and in addition must bring at least two new Cousins into the Comport circle: that is, they must send two new subscribers with each letter, together with 50 cents for the yearly subscriptions.

These cash prizes will be announced monthly in this department.

No premiums will be given for subscriptions sent in standar this Prize Offer.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerys.

All communications must be addressed to Aunt Minerva, care of Comport, Augusta, Maine.

CASH PRIZE WINNERS.

$8.00 2.50

1.50

Mrs. Maud B. Rodgers, Elizabeth Wood, C. F. Watts, Ivea B. Clark, Mrs. F. A. Mitchell,

EAR NIECES AND NEPHEWS:

I have been reading Browning, and this month, instead of opening our chat with my own remarks, I propose to give you a few of his words that you may enjoy them with me. He says:

me. He says:
"I trust in Nature for the stable laws
Of beauty and utility. Spring shall plant
And Autumn garner to the end of time.
I trust in God—the right shall be the right
And other than the wrong, while he endures."

"God's in his heaven; All's right with the world."

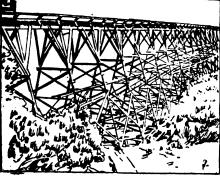

"I see my way as birds their trackless way. I shall arrive—what time, what circuit first,

I ask not—.
In some time, in his good time, I shall arrive;
He guides me and the bird. In his good time."
Our first letter this month is from California, and shows us one of the marvelous feats of man in overcoming the difficulties of nature.

coming the difficulties of nature.

"Taken from a picturesque as well as material standpoint the Madera flume, the longest one in the world, may be classed as the sightliest adjunct to one of the greatest industries of the West—that of lumbering. Situated as it is in the midst of the isolated grandeur of California's finest hills there awaits the visitor to this flume all that is sublime in the way of mountain scenery and the gentler forms of nature and that which is suggestive of the endurance and ambition of man.

"For almost sixty miles this flume traverses the hills and spans the ravines, covering in its onward course portions of the earth impassable to animals and over which the lumber for its construction had to be carried upon the backs of men. There is quite a section of this flume that has a grade of thirty-six inches to the sixteen feet, and to appreciate Numerous antiquities and curiosities gathered from old buildings and ruins in the vicinity are built into the house. Among them is the door of the old prison in Edinburg—the Heart of Midbhan—and several fragments from Melrose Abbey.

"Not only is Abbotsford interesting from being the home of Scott, but it is a perfect museum of relies identified with Scottish history. All around the different clans of the Border. Here too, as well as in the armory, are a great number of weapons of bastlefields; axes, broad swords, maces, a claymore used by a soldier under "Bonnie Prince Charlie," and a pair of pistols found in Napoleon's carriage after the battle of Waterloo. In the dining-room are portraits of Cromwell, Charles XII. and other historical subjects, while at one end is a ghastly picture of the head of Mary, Queen of Scots, after decapitation.

"But he for the most interesting rooms to use the form of Scots, after decapitation.

"But how the water came so suddenly in upon them is the doctor's wife was at a table death. As the uncle hurled a spear at the young chief hurled a spear at the young with option of him, thinking to save his life by the sacrifce of her own, but the sacrifice of her own, but the save ride of her own, but the save rail in from heing the high strong that the child and the young chief perished by the sacrifice of her own, but the save ride of her own, but the strong his his by one of her own, but the save ride and milk with oyster salad and meat croquets served up.

"That night the uncle and his warriors camped in a thickly wooded hollow among the hills. This hollow filled with water during the night and all were drowned, and their camping ground of the him a thickly wooded hollow among the hills. This hollow filled with water during the night and all were d icture of the head or many, secapitation.

"But by far the most interesting rooms to us at bbotsford were the library and study. We came to these rooms with a reverential feeling, for here was that most of those wonderful romances which e had all experienced such delight in reading, ad been written. We saw even the very writing the and chair that Scott used while at work, and and chair that Scott used while at work, and by were the reference books of which he made nt use. There were some twenty thousand es in the library and such works as you would. Scott to have collected. Here were also curiosities; two beautiful carved ebony chairs, the gift of George IV., two other chairs presented by the Pope, Marie Antoinette's clock, a piece of Robert Burns' coffin, and, last but not least, Rob Roy's gun. We had a boy in our party and that latter curiosity was to him more interesting than all the other treasures to be seen at Abbotsford. In a glass case in the study was the unpretentious suit of clothes last worn by Scott. By the side of them were his walking stick and pipe.

"As we sauntered about the grounds after leaving the house we were reminded of the charming description given by our Washington Irving of his visit to Abbotsford; of his walks and talks with Scott, and the delightful home life he found there. We continued to speak of this as we drove away from Abbotsford, carrying with us Irving's regrets that Scott could not have contented himself with the modest house he first built on this spot, and not have enlarged it into a palace, which in the end lost for him his fortune which he had worked so many years to gain."

ELIZABETH WOOD, Wounchang, China.

Here is another California cousin who has

Here is another California cousin who has remembered us this month.

ELIZABETH WOOD, Wounenang, China. Here is another California cousin who has remembered us this month.

"Santa Cruz county is on the coast line of California about half way between the Oregon and lower California lines. Its northern boundary is about thirty-seven degrees north latitude. Its length is about forty miles, its average width about thirteen miles. The county, like the state, which it resembles in shape, lies in the same general direction as the coast line and mountain range. Its surface is greatly diversified and therefore adapted to the many pursuits of man. Its climate is equable, there being but little frost or snow in winter, and the ocean breezes and fogs overruling the summer heat. On the east the Santa Cruz mountains, a low but beautiful range, present to the orchardist and vineyardist a most admirable opportunity to ply their trade. There are still a good many red-wood trees although the best have been sawn into lumber. Our fencing, too, is principally red-wood pickets and barbed wire. There are two rivers, the Pajaro on the southern boundary, and the San Lorenzo in the northern part. Santa Cruz, the county seat, is situated at the mouth of the latter river. It has a population of about eight thousand and is a health resort of considerable note. The business portion is almost shut in by the surrounding hills and consequently sheltered from winds, especially 'northers'. It is also the site of one of the old Franciscan Missions established over a hundred years ago. Its highest temperature is eighty-eight degrees; its lowest twenty-three degrees below zero. Many inland places are much warmer. It has good public schools, Business College, Catholic Seminary for young ladies, churches of all denominations, banks, etc. There are several minor towns, but Watsonville, at the lower extremity of the county, is the only other incorporated city. At the last election (Nov.) an amendmentwas passed closing all saloons outside of incorporated cities. Mostly all land is arable, but hesouthern parts are far more

It is some time since we have had a chat with a Colorado cousin, so the following letter is most

Colorado cousin, so the following letter is most welcomes every the control of the furnity of the present day to the salar principle of the furnity of the present day to the slambering history of the past our next letter pleasantly draws and resident with the wilding him the uncilon tot, leave that section without a wist to mot leave that section without a wist to mot leave that section without a wist to mot leave that section without a wist to while the North.' The house-or rather the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot where the North.' The house-or rather the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot which the North.' The house-or rather the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot which with our owners was attacked to the control of the say of the wind of the North.' The house-or rather the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot in the North.' The house-or rather the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot which willout a wist to say the say of the North.' The house-or rather the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot in the say of the past our next letter pleasantly draws us.

"We had been spending the night at McIrose in the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot in the say of the past our next letter pleasantly draws us.

"We had been spending the night at McIrose in the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot in the say of the past our next letter pleasantly draws us.

"We had been spending the night at McIrose in the palace I should say-i in a most picturesque spot with th both bodies and the child and the young chief perished together.

"That night the uncle and his warriors camped in a thickly wooded hollow among the hills. This hollow filled with water during the night and all were drowned, and their camping ground of the night is known as Green Lake to this day.

"How the water came so suddenly in upon them I have never learned, but tradition has it that the warriors who loved the young chief and who wished to revenge themselves for his death turned the waters of a mountain stream into the valley with the intention of causing the destruction of his murderers."

MRS. F. A. MITCHELL, Montezuma, Colorado.

Here is a letter which has not carried out the

Here is a letter which has not carried out the conditions attached to the prize contests of this page, so it wins no prize, but it is, nevertheless, very enjoyable.

very enjoyable.

"Are you always glad to welcome sunshiny days in mid-winter and do you enjoy gazing upon verdant meadows from snow-capped mountains? If so you will enjoy my letter upon the Yukon river.

"This river is about two thousand miles long and is divided into three distinct parts,—the Upper Yukon, which extends from the source to Fort Selkirk, five hundred miles away, where it is joined by the Pelly river. The Middle Yukon occupies another five hundred miles, reaching up to old Fort Yukon, where it is joined by the Rat or Porcupine river. The longest division is that known as the Lower Yukon, which stretches from Fort Yukon to its many mouths in Bering Sea and Norton Sound. This division measures about one thousand miles.

"There are four passes known to the Indians

Norton Sound. This division measures about one thousand miles.

"There are four passes known to the Indians between the salt water and the sources of the Yukon of which the one by Lynn Channel and Chilkoot Inlet is the best. Chilkoot Inlet has much more the appearance of a large river than of a salt water estuary, flanked as it is on either side by precipitous mountains covered nearly to their tops with a thick growth of spruce and pine, and capped with white glacier ice.

"After clearing Chilkoot Inlet and the swift waters of the Daguay one pauses in wonder at the foot of Perrier Pass. Nothing is now to be done but to shoulder our load and climb to the top, some thirty-five hundred feet above us, constantly cautious lest one mis-step hurl us from the frozen heights to be dashed to pieces in the awful chasms below.

"Beyond Perrier Pass we find Lake Lindowan as the same passed to the same and the same passed to the same passed to Below.

"Beyond Perrier Pass we find Lake Lindeman, a beautiful sheet of water about ten or twelve miles in length, whose shores in June are covered with wild flowers of remarkable beauty. After running along through a countless host of such lakes one beholds at last in the distance the blackened chimneys of Fort Selkirk.

Mamie B. Sandider, Nelson, Mo.

Amanda Hayden, of Graphiteville, N. C., does not make her wishes clear to me. Will she not write again and explain more fully what book it is which she desires?

The following letter was sent me in July last, and as the present number of our Chats was prepared in August my readers must imagine themselves for the moment, back in last summer's heats. Our correspondent says:

"At this season of the year, when fans are on the move and the ice-man finds himself suddenly popular, a trip into the country, where cool shades and in vigor at in g breezes await all comers its very inviting; so just now I wish to tell the country of the prettiest parts of Virginia.

Four of us, students of the Washington and Lee University, started out for a day in the woods. A drive of some fifty miles lay before us. The first and most important point of interest was the beautiful Goshen Pass, where the head waters of the James break through the Alleghanies. The drive along the banks of the stream, with tall mountain cliffs rising on either hand, now almost perpendicular for a hundred or more feet, now sloping away toward the clear blue sky, and now breaking into caves with countless overhanging rocks, mountain streams leaping over cliffs and forming miniature falls, made up a landscape which was simply grand, while laurel and rhododendron covered the mountain sides with richest bloom. The Pass is four miles in length, and is filled from end to end with wonderful freaks of nature.

"Atter decorating our carriage with the laurel bloom and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country when a state of the little and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country when a state of the little and the country when a state of the little and the country when a state of the little and the country when a state of the laurel and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country would dark brooth the state of the little and the country when a state of the little and the country was in the state of the little and the country was dark and the country when a state of the little and the country was dark and the country when a state of the little and the country when a state of the little nature. "After decorating our carriage with the laurel blooms a rapid drive brought us to the little village of Goshen where a good dinner and two hours of rest fitted us to enjoy the remainder of the ride. Rockbridge Alums was the next place visited. This fine old summer resort is set deep back in the recesses of the mountains, but surely it was not born to blush unseen', for 'footprints' are found on 'the sands of time' telling of the march of civilization even in this lonely place, and its many and fashionable visitors testify to its present popularity as a summer resort.

ularity as a summer resort.
"The long shadows of the locust and maple trees warn us of evening's approach, the signboard by the roadside tells us that it is 'Four miles to Lex-asleep.

"By and by Willie grew out of the habit of whining; and one night the Doctor took him home and landed him on the attic stairs where he had taken him up. Willie never whined after this, but he always remembered the Frog-Eyed Doctor, and his trip to his house, which, after all, might have been a dream."

CARRIE S. STRWART, Boston, Mass.

CARRIE S. STEWART, Boston, Mass.

A consin from Hyco, Virginia, writes me a long letter for which I thank her and will give my readers a bit from its opening, because it will be appreciated by those who have spent weeks tossing on "the briny deep."

ing on "the briny deep."

"After weeks spent on board ship how delightful it is to step on land, and to feel solid earth beneath one's feet. How different too, are the smells! how pleasantly new are the sights on every side! Brain and nerves are alive to all the fresh sensations. I remember how happy I felt after being twenty-nine days on the Pacific Ocean when at last I stepped upon a land covered with mountains. How grand, solid-looking and fast they seemed. Nothing was rocking, swimming, tossing or seesawing, and at night I could undress and go to bed without holding on to the door knob or the clothes hook as I did so. I have a fancy that Americans call their ship bedrooms 'staterooms' because they are in such an uncertain state while in them."

MRS. LUCIE COLE, Hyco, Va.

And now my lap is empty of letters and so we

And now my lap is empty of letters and so we must turn our backs upon each other and attend each to his or her own affairs until the bleak winds of November whistle a call to us to again assemble for a talk. Until then, goodby.

AUNT MINERVA.

HIGHER SALARY

namental Design, Menograph wach, etc. (Troular Free. ational Correspondence S Box 1190, Scranton, Pa.

TWO RINGS FREE!
Sell 20 Mineral Lamp Wicks at 5 cents each; no Trimming, Smoke orSmell. We Trust Veu 20 days; when sold send meney and we send 2 Rings or choice from big list premiums. HINERAL WICK CO., Providence, B. L

PLAYS Best List of New Plays. 325 Nos. Dialogs. Speakers, Hand Books. Catalog free. T.S.DENISON, Pab., Pept. 8, Calcage AGENTS WANTED. For Cook's Shear Sharpenterms and prices. The Cook Mfg. Co., Albion, Mich. AGENTS (REDIT. Perfumes, Flavore, etc. Herbene Agency Co., Box 54, Station L. New York.

FREE A valuable present of jewelry to any boy or girl sending us their address. N. M. York & Co., Nashua, N. H.

$5 A DAY Selling Flavor Powders. Sample Free, C. S. HORNER CO., 1409 Penn Ave., Pittsburg, Pa. Home Work 60c. a sheet, copying. Send stamp. Wholesale Supply Co., South Bend, Ind.

C. S. A. MONEY Circulars free. Address P. E. Cheney, Box 6, Mutual, Ohio. Sell Your Farm. New plan, no commission. Particulars tree. White, 608 Omaha Bldg., Chicago.

CHICAGO HOUSEHOLD GUEST 50 cents a year. Sample copy free on application.

Positive Cure for Epileptic Fits, Convulsions, Spasms, St. Viitus Dance and Falling Sickness. Two weeks treatment free. The Metropolitan Treatment Institute, Hudson, Ohio.

SBOYS WRITE to GRANDCATALING WHICH AND CATALING WHITE TO GRAND CATALING WHITE

Cards, Biggert Catalogue. Send 2c. stamp CARDS for all. OHIO CARD CO., CADIZ, OHIO. CARDS

bacco and lasts for years. Agents outfit and a 25c. sample mail, 10c. stamps. NewEnglandPipeCo., Dept.3, Stamford, Co

THIS IS A PIPE

This elegant, imported, hand-carved Swiss clock is given free for selling only $2.00 ter. It is 7n. high, guaranteed a good time-keeper and a fine ornament. Or instead we give a fine stem windandstem set watch for seiling $2.00 worth. They are finely finished and should last for years. Everyone desiring a fine timckeeper should have one. If you want one of these premiums send your name and address (no money) and we will send court plaster. When sold, send received money and we will send present. You run no risk as we take back any you do not sell. Our goods sell quickly as they are used in all families. Write GLOBE M'FG CO.,

97 Liberty St., Dept. C, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

NOT A PIG

in a poke, but did we there a Piger a in a poke, but did you ever hear a Pig Sing? Welt, this Musical Pig right from the Paris Exposition, is the latest and greatest wonder out. More fun with this cute little porker than anything ever invented. You simply blow him up like the picture here then the Pig begins to Sing. After singing a while he squeaks, then collapses, then gives up the ghost with a last faint grunt and finally dies. Everything about the trage for ending is so laughable, however, that you nearly burst with hilarity, so funny is the ending of poor Piggy. Thousands of these Musical Dying Pigs were sold in Paris at the Exposition this senson and they are now all the rage in New York. Don't fail to get one if you want some fun. They are strongly made of a thin ruble r substance so you can carry them in your vest pocket and suddenly blow him up and then there is more fun ahead than a box of monkeys. Just get one and try it. Agents can sell them at the rate of a hundred an hour in a crowd. If you will send us one new subscription at the special price of 25c. for two years, we will send our magazine each month and send two Pigs to you as a premium. Or if you will send one fig. 5 Pigs seld for 50c; i dow, 31.00c. Address COMFORT, Box 770, Augusta, Maine.

Little Prince Edward.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

T was the time for the changing of the guard in front of St. James Palace, London, and a crowd had gathered around the Color Court where the cere-mony was to take

On top of the high brick wall of Marl-borough House just opposite, stood a little boy in sailor suit of

On top of the high brough House just to brough House just to borough House just to borough House just to be ju HEIR TO ENGLAND'S THRONE.

for a longer period than at any former time for a longer period than at any former time and his court became the most splendid in Europe. This Edward delighted in deeds of chivalry and reveled in jousts and tournaments. The beautiful stories of King Arthur were in

The beautiful stories of King Arthur were in his mind and he planned to revive the noble knighthood of the Round Table. While he was thinking about it an incident occurred that gave him a name for his order.

There was a ball at which the Countess of Salisbury was present. The Countess dropped her garter. Then some of the courtiers who knew not King Arthur and the noble manners of the Knights of the Round Table, laughed. The king, seeing this, picked up the garter and of the Knights of the Round Table, laughed. The king, seeing this, picked up the garter and buckled it about his knee, saying as he did so, "H mi soit qui mal y pense"—evil to him who evil thinks—adding in further rebuke, that his courtiers should soon see a garter held in such high regard as to account themselves fortunate indeed if allowed to wear it. The garter, which is blue, having the king's words as a motto worked upon it in gold thread is the name-gift of the third Edward to his little namesake, for the chivalrous king at once established the Order of the Garter, and the sovereigns of England together with those whom they deem worthy, can wear the badge.

This ruler had a son, also named Edward, and they called him the Black Prince because of his armor. He was never king for he died before his father, but they fought together and won renown. Once at the battle of Crecy—against the French—the prince, when sixteen years of age, was sorely pressed, and messengers rode to the king bearing word that he should reinforce his son.

"Is my son killed?" asked the king.

"No, sire."
"Is he wounded?"

"No, sire."
"Then tell them that sent you, he shall have no help from me. Let the boy win his spurs."
This answer long ago passed into a proverb.
Though a king by right of birth it was nevertheless necessary for the Black Prince to "win big spurs."

theless necessary for the Black Prince to "win his spurs."

The same words ring down through the years to a little boy in sailor suit of blue, standing with his attention on the high brick wall of Marlborough House. A new century with its infinite possibilities has dawned on the horizon. "Let the boy win his spurs."

Though a prince of royal blood this little Edward has his world to conquer as it has been conquered many times before. Not by din of battle and crash of arms, not by inherited greatness and precious name-gifts from early kings, but by a life well lived, by duties well performed, by a deep sense of the responsibilities of the state whereunto God has called him, must he conquer like every other boy throughmust he conquer like every other boy through-out the wide, wide world, and, like them in the higher meaning must he too, "win his spurs."

The Greek Slave.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HESE homely, almost rugged features and deep set eyes belong to the man who startled the world features and deep set eyes belong to the man who startled the world of civilization in 1843 with the "Greek Slave." Hiram Powers, born in Woodstock, Vermont, was less than forty years old when he gave to man kind his masterpiece. The wonderful figure in marble of the nude, shrinking young wo man, the man acles still clinging to her wrist, was hailed throughout civilization as the most remarkable contribution to the art of sculpture since Canova. That the sculptor was an American only added to his fame and that of his work. Brought to America not long after the production in Florence, the "Greek Slave" was exhibited to large enthusiastic crowds in all the principal cities of this country. Copies of it were ordered by rich Americans and foreign noblemen, and the sculptor grew rich on the profits of this work alone. But the intervening years had been the usual story of long and tedious struggle. Born in 1805, Hiram Powers was taken by his parents to Cincinnati then in the far west, where they settled when he was about ten years of age. Here he grew up to manhood, a tall, awkward youth with a wonderful pair of glowing, earnest eyes to distinguish him from the common herd. There was not much else remarkable about him. He got very little education and did odd jobs of every sort for a living till he grew to manhood. Then his originality and genius seemed to bloom all of a sudden. For a local museum, the principal place of entertainment in the future metropolis at that period, he conceived the plan of a set of wax figures representing the inhabitants of the Infernal Regions as delineated by Dante in his immortal poem. The audacious venture, which seems to have been the suggestion of Mrs. Trollope, the celebrated Englishwoman then living in Cincinnati, and who wrote the first widely read book on American Life and Manners, was a great success from the start. Encouraged by this proof of his talents as a modeler Powers went to Washington a year or two later, where he constructed a revolving jet. Areau, or fountain, for the

the most part to strenuous labor at such orders for a living. Every spare moment of his time, however, was devoted to imaginative work, the germ of which was laid in the wax figures in the Cincinnati museum.

In the art capital of the old world, surround-in the Cincinnati museum.

In the art capital of the old world, surrounded by the master works of ncient sculpture, his mind became clarified and finally, after three years' residence abroad, he startled the world with the Greek Slave. This statue is founded on the purest models of antiquity, and the world hailed it as though a new Praxiteles had come again. It was an hour of wonderful triumph, both for the sculptor and his native land, which had not up to this time, produced one single great work of sculpture. The original was bought by A. T. Stewart, the New York merchant prince.

The artist's position was now assured and his life was henceforth an easy one. He had, in fact, won greater fame than any sculptor since Canova at a single stroke. The prices he obtained for busts and decorative pieces as well as replicas of his masterpiece made him independent and enabled him to enjoy the decline of life honored and admired by all who knew him, in peace and comfort.

His ideal genius was very largely dedicated to his native country, and although he spent the remainder of his days in Italy, he produced a number of striking American works. Among these are his Statue of Washington, The Fisher Boy, America, Ave Disconsolate, and The Last of the Tribes.

Boy, America, Ave Disconsolate, and The Last of the Tribes.

Notwithstanding his great fame he remained Notwithstanding his great land he remained a typical, shrewd, plain Yankee to the end of his days, and it is related of him that when his wrife was receiving visitors on stated occasions in their elegant home in Florence, he could have and br. Haig will be glad to send you a trial package of the remedy free. Do not delay.

only be found in his studio with his cap and apron on. He died in Florence in 1873, at the apron on. He died in Florence in 1873, at the age of sixty-eight, having suffered from declining health less than six months previous to

The America Cup.

HE America Cup, that famous trophy for the possession of which the international yacht races are held every year was originally offered by the members of the Royal Yacht Squadron at Cowes in 1851. The race was to be open to yachts of all nations. The American yacht America was the only representative of a foreign country entering the races and was successful in winning the race by a generous mareign country entering the races and was successful in winning the race by a generous margin. The trophy thus won was presented by the owners of the America to the New York Yacht Club, with the condition that it was to be always "a challenge cup for friendly competition between foreign countries."

Equine Millinery.

HE terrible hot weather that has afflicted the whole country this summer has proved especially hard upon horses; more particularly horses that are obliged to work hard in the sun all day. Somebody has invented a hat which thousands of the horses in the big cities are wearing with a great deal of comfort. Certainly it seems to be a most humane invention, and the horses in the big cities are wearing with a great deal of comfort. Certainly it seems to be a most humane invention, and while it has furnished columns of matter for the newspaper funny man, there is no doubt but what it has saved the lives of many valuable horses this summer. Most drivers place a wet sponge in the crown of the horse's hat, which by the way is an ordinary straw hat such as hay-makers wear, except that holes are made on each side of the crown for the horses' ears to pass through. The bonnet strings are either fastened coquettishly under the chin or more prosaically fastened to the bridle. Lately there seems to be some attempt at decoration, as several hats have been noticed trimmed with paper roses, artificial violets and other flowers. The horses of a famous Boston brewery wear picture hats with a large quill stuck in each, bearing in prominent letters the motto of the enterprising firm. The Humane Society have been much interested in these hats for horses and has given away thousands to drivers this summer.

Cures Goitre

Remarkable Discovery that Cures this Dangerous and Disfiguring Disease Without Pain, Operation or Inconvenience.

TRIAL PACKAGE SENT FREE.

Dr. John P. Haig, a well known Cincinnati physician has had marvelous success with a remedy that cures Goitre or Thick Neck. And owing to was cured after suffering for 28 years; if you wish you are at liberty to write her.

MRS. ELLEN A. GLAYNOR, Covington, Ky.,

the fact that most sufferers believe Goitre is incurable Dr. Haig sends a free trial package of his dis-covery so that patients may try and know positive-ly that Goitre can be cured at home without pain, ly that Goitre can be cured at home without pain, danger, operation or any inconvenience.

Send your name and address to Dr. John P. Haig, 2314 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will forward the treatment, postage prepaid. Do not fail to get this wonderful remedy. In Bombay, India, 60,000 patients in that infected district were cured with this same remedy, and wherever used its success has been marvelous.

Write at once, send name and address to-day.

75% Discount OUTFIT

Agents Wanted. Life of McKinley and Story of His Assassination.
Lowest price. This book outsells all others. About 500 extra large pages. Biggest, best book, superbly illustrated. $25.00 per day. Freight paid, credit given, no experience necessary.
Sell the Best Book—Take the Most Money.
HENRY NEIL. Como Building, Chicago, III.

NATIONAL SPECIAL WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

PERFECTION AGENT'S OUTFIT FREE Five articles, express prepaid. This win has loose bottom which allows removal city most delicate cake without breaking. Bottom fits in groove; will not leak batter. Ten styles TIN round, square and oblong. We are largest mnfrs. of Aluminum, Granife and Tin Ware Noveltlesin U. S. Dept.X. HOUSEMOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, Buffalo, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Seattle. This Co. is worth a Million Dollars and is reliable.—Ed.

WOMEN WANTED Do Binding. $9.00 week. Steady sent prepaid. Send stamped addressed envelope for par-ticulars. Universal Co., Dept. 29, Walnut Street, Phila., Pa

ADIES WANTED to do writing at home. Good wages. No canreply. MISS MODELLE MILLER, New Carlisle, Ind.
Please mention COMFORT when you write. for reply. MISS MODELLE Please mention Come

SOFT GORNS, positively and permanently cured by no poison. Cures while you sleep. Trial package, 10 cents Dept. A. The Cornicure Co., Wilkes-Barre, Penna. YOUR FACE ON A BUTTON, Send 10c, and a fine photo button, 3 buttons 25c. Cata-

Earn $8 WASHING FLUIDS OF SAMPLES OF a LADIES' or GENT'S size WATCH, or a large ladies' or gent's size watch, or portrait of whom you wish.

E. A. REUSS & CO., 175 N. 3rd St., Newark, N. J.

Nors.—This firm is reliable and will give you $100.00 in cash

't' you fail to get the tea set, watch or portrait.

MUSICAL PIPE.

queer and varied noises. The diaphragm has the same principle as the Telephone and Phonograph, and the operator can successfully imitate most any sort of Musical instrument or sound, and the vibration the vibration is such that you can have a Saxaphone, Bag Pipe, Clarionet, Trombone, or most any other instrument, all contained and manipulated in the Musical Pipe. These Pipes are beautifully and strongly made, colored Red, White and Blue. It is the most ingenious and satisfactory production ever offered to the public. Get one. You cannot fall to make a lit. Full directions with each instrument.

SPECIAL OFFER. If you will send the name of one to our interesting home magazine at 15c, we will send the magazine regularly, as issued, and as a free gift we will send you postpaid One Musical Pipe as above described. One dozen postpaid, S&c. Address

85c. Address NATIONAL FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

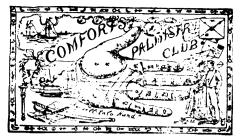

A Labor-Saving device entirely new and universal indemand. Will last a lifetime and costs but Twenty-five cents. Just on the market and over 300 Gross sold last month. Every family in the land wants one or more. All you do to sell them is simply show the lady of the house or the office man how it works on his window and you will depart with one less every time, but in its place a quarter.

The Magleal Sponge differs from the ordinary sponge in nature, while the common sponge is of vecetable origin and found in the United States, dug from the ground, carefully prepared and manufactured into sponges for the Housekeeper, Merchant, Liveryman, Stetal Yorkers, and all persons who desire to keep their homes, offices, and business places in a clean and healthy condition.

No Sorp or water is needed or even used with the Magleal Sponge for Cleaning Windows or any outside Metal. In the winter time it has no equal, it does not freeces, and no water beling used (other than when Backboards, Windows Sills, Wainscoating and painted surfaces, it acts like a charm; takes all over the country to handle these goods, big inducements offered steady workers, and exclusive sale.

SPECIAL OFFER. If you send two yearly subscriber at 15c, each or one two year subscription and 25c. we will send our magazine regularly and the sponge to you as a premium,

CONDITIONS.

To have one's hands read in this department, by Digitus, one of the finest living palmists, it is necessary to observe the following conditions:

Impressions of both hands must be sent, fully postpaid and having the name, address and nom de plume of the sender enclosed in the package also.

The package must in every instance be accompanied by the names and addresses of eight new subscribers at twenty-five cents each, the whole amount, $2.00 being remitted, with the package, addressed to Comport Palmistry Club, Augusta, Maine.

No notice will be taken of impressions and requests for readings unless the sender has fully complied with the above conditions.

for readings unless the sender has fully compiled with the above conditions.

To take impressions, first hold two large pieces of blank paper over a candle or similar flume, until they are heavily coated with the smoke. Then lay these pieces down, smoke side uppermost on a pad of cotton. Now place the two hands, palms downcard, one on each sheel of paper, pressing firmly and steadily down, but taking care not to move the hand. Keep them so for one minute and lift carefully, so as not to disturb the impression. Have ready some fixally, which can be bought at a drug store or an art store or made with yum arabic and water in an atomier. Spray this over the impressions before they are moved and allow them to dry. Then they are ready to send.

Smoked paper impressions are the best. But if it is desired to send a plaster cast, take plaster of Paris and dissolve in water to the consistency of thick cream. Pour this into a large shallow dish and when it is hardening place the hand, well-or-eased, paim downward, in the plaster, pressing downward. Several minutes will be required to get this impression and great care must be taken in removing the hand, not to break the plaster. Casts are exceedingly difficult to send without breaking and should be very carefully packed in a box with the name of the sender written on it. Putty is sometimes successfully used in place of plaster. A good photograph if sufficiently well taken to bring out all the lines, can also be read, although in all cases the smoked paper is the best, if properly treated with fixalif.

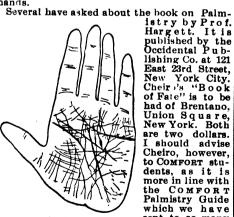

Bear in Mind that all the above conditions must be observed.

Also, that letters not complying with them will go into the waste-basket. Readings cannot appear for several months after impressions are sent.

HERE are always a good many questions for me to answer and I am always glad to get them; only you must not go too far and try to get a full reading of your hands in answer to questions, for it is impossible to give you a correct one. I once got myself into a funny scrape and through these columns too. Bomeone sent impressions and signed only initials. The handwriting was like a man's and the hand was masculine in appearance, on paper at least. Consequently I read the hands under the nom de plume sent and supposed everything was all right. A year or so later I received a very wrathy letter from a lady who resides, well, on this earth, not to be too explicit; she was furious because she had, as she claimed, sent the impressions and the proper amount of money with the necessary subscribers, and had never been able to get a reading. Now I keep a close record of all the impressions read and on looking up this lady. I found that I had given her the reading, but spoken of the hand as "his" and called the owner a man in several instances, all of which was published here. She read it doubtless, but naturally did not recognize it. As I have asked over and over again that senders of impressions will state their sex or at least indicate it, I do not consider that! was in fault if I read a masculine hand as a man's especially as I was not told that it belonged to or at least indicate it, I do not consider that. Was in fault if I read a masculine hand as a man's especially as I was not told that it belonged to a woman. This demonstrates the science, I maintain, for I must read a hand as it appears to me and if the sender does not intimate his or her sex I can only guess at it from his hand.

A subscriber asks the meaning of certain positions and branching of the fate line. Any forking of the fate line, if the branches run upward towards a mount and are clear and unbroken, means that there will be a turn of the life of fate or business at the age indicated by the fate line where the branch leaves it and the new venture will partake of the qualities of the mount towards which it ascends; thus, a good strong branch leaving the fate line just before the head line and going to the mount of Jupiter will mean that the subject adopts some new profession or calling at the age of thirty new profession or calling at the age of thirty or thereabouts and will realize his ambitions. therein. Of course this should appear in both

A. B. C.

lishing Co. at 121
East 23rd Street,
New York City.
Cheir i's "Book of Fate" is to be had of Brentano,
Union Scane Union Square,
New York. Both
are two dollars.
I should advise Cheiro, however, to Comfort students ag it is dents, as it is more in line with the COMFORT Palmistry Guide which we have sent to so many of our readers and Cheiro is an acknowledged authority the world over. Another reader asks shout the Alumbia Another reader asks about the Alumbia Scientific Academy which is supposed to teach palmistry somewhere in New York. I have never heard of it. There are a good many "fakes" in the palmistry business, just as in all other things, and I would not advise the members of this club to be duped by any of them if they can help it. them if they can help it.

"A. B. C," says "I want you to read my hand exactly as you see it; don't be afraid to tell the worst that you see." Others have written the worst that you see." Others have written the same thing and when I have complied, for I have had some very bad hands as well as some very good ones to read here, they have taken offence at my reading and written to explain that I know nothing of palmistry. Now I shall tell all I see in "A. B. C.'s" hand and take him at his most when he save he wants it.

at his word when he says he wants it.

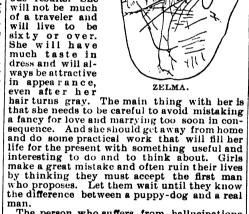

"A. B. C." then has a hand in which the good and ill are not evenly divided. There are some excellent readings there; for instance, he has a fine, long fate line which promises a good business career; but the hollow mount of Apollo, which is the mount of riches shows that he will never become wealthy and the many deep cross lines on the fate line show that he will have to fight adversity all the way. I think he will gain a moderate competence in the end. He is very ambitious as is shown by the line running from the life line to the mount of Juvier but be will. the line running from the life line to the mount of Jupiter but he will not fully realize all he desires. He will not live to be much over fifty and will leave his affairs in a complicated condition. He will leave a widow and probably some children, but he will have been very happy in his married life. He will be one of those men, and we all know plenty of them, who strive hard all their lives; who seem to have every chance to make money and get on who strive hard all their lives; who seem to have every chance to make money and get on in life, and yet they don't. Some adverse fate seems to hang over them and just as the apple of fate is about to drop into their mouths, off it goes elsewhere. This man will have an upright character and a pretty good disposition but has a nervous temperament and there are so many cross lines indicating petty trials and disappointments, that he will be a trifle, just a trifle difficult to get along with. He will have a severe disappointment in his love affairs early in life but will get over it and will live to rejoice that fate saved him for the one he finally marries. And he will always be a great favorite with the opposite sex. His health will be fairly good but his constitution is not naturally strong.

strong.
"Zelma" does not obey the rules about send-"Zelma" does not obey the rules about sending smoked paper impressions and I have only pen-drawings instead; but they seem to be carefully done and I will do the best I can with them. I only ask that she will remember what I have often said, that it is impossible to give a perfect and exact reading from a pen or pencil drawing. Zelma is a girl that is hampered by her relatives; they dictate to her and find fault with her and repeat gossip to annoy her. She would be happier to get something to do and go away from home where she can live her own life and do her best without interference from those who do not understand her or apfrom those who do not understand her or appreciate her motives. She would succeed as a typewriter, or if she has had sufficient education in music, as a teacher of music. She is very attractive to the opposite sex and will have a number of admirers before she is really settled in life. She needs to be careful show. have a number of admirers before she is really settled in life. She needs to be careful about marrying too soon or taking up with the first man who offers himself. She lacks a little the perseverance and energy that would lead her to strike out and make her own way; if she can bring herself to do this, she will succeed finally and be much happier in the end.

She has an imaginative temperament and a nervous disposition but she is affectionate and will make the right man, who will appear when she is about twenty-five, an excellent wife. Her married life will not last over fifteen years and she will out-and she will out-live her husband some twenty or more years. She more years. She will make an excellent house-keeper and is quite domestic in her tastes. She will be inclined to headaches or brain troubles but with no serious results. She will not be much of a traveler and will live to be sixty or over. She will have much taste in dress and will always be attractive in appearance, man.

The person who suffers from hallucinations The person who suffers from hallucinations has a long mount of Luna, well developed; he will have a long second finger and a hollow hand with soft palm and tapering fingers, rather a pretty hand to look at. The first phalanx of the thumb will be short and will lack character every way. If he has a very broad hand with bad lines look out for him; he will perhaps be a dangerous character. "Jennie" wants to know if the bracelets at the bottom of the hand, at the wrist, are important. I pay no heed to them, although some palmists claim that the length and even the state of happiness and amount of trouble one is to undergo is written there. I do not believe it, however.

Digitue

Nickels and Pennies.

HE smaller coins that satisfy our daily needs of car fare and newspapers are coined in the Philadelphia mint, and this part of the business of the mint is by no means a small matter. Every year one hundred million pennies are required to satisfy our needs, as the demand for these small coins is always brisk. Thousands of them are lost every year and it take a good deal of work on the part of the government to keep the supply adequate to the needs of business. The government makes a very good profit out of its small coins as none of the mony-except gold coins-contain their face value in metal

The blanks from which pennies are stamped are supplied the government by an outside firm for one dollar per thousand. Blanks for nick-els are also supplied by the same firm for one and one-half cents each. Gold is coined at and one-nair cents each. Gold is coined at Philadelphia and at San Francisco. Not enough comes to New Orleans to make the coining worth while. The gold coins contain their face value in metal besides a small amount of copper alloy in addition.

In regard to small coins it is said that the

HONEST WOMEN

ucts among friends and neighbors. and best assortment of premiums of any firm in the coun-With our liberal way of dealing you can enjoy the use of your premium while working for it. ask you to pay one cent of money in advance. Could anything be more liberal, honest or fair?

We send the premiun you select with the goods ordered, WE PAY FREIGHT and allow ample time to deliver before paying us, thus proving there is no scheme and you are sure of getting the premium you select. Remember you see with your own eyes that everything is just as advertised before paying one cent.

We want your fullest confidence, so that we may work in harmony to our mutual advantage. Confidence in business is as necessary as steam is to an engine, it is the unseen power which makes the wheels of progress revolve and ultimately leads to success. We assure you your confidence will not be misplaced.

Experience is not necessary, our plans are so carefully explained you cannot fail to understand them and are sure to be successful from the start. A great many of our successful agents work only during their spare time. Our Belle Baking Powder stands Ohio Food Law Test. is firstclass and worth full purchase price alone. As an extra inducement and to assist agents making sales, we give each purchaser of a pound FREE! a full half gallon half gallon FREE. Offer No. 1 We give to every woman who mounting to $12.00 a 58 Piece Decorated Dinner Set, 27 Pieces Solid Silver Plated Tableware or a White Enameled Iron Bed. Offer No. 3 For the sale of 33 packages a mounting to $19.80 we give a Gold Filled Watch, a 100 Piece Decorated Dinner Set, Tailor Made Suit or a 8 Drawer Oak Chiffonier.

Fall Wete ELEANING BRIGHTEIUNG LINWOOD ART POTTERY PITCHER, newest shape, decorations finely embossed, and gold stippled, also a bar Physicians Odorless Soap and cake holds full FREE. Starbright Polish, ALL FOR ONLY 60 CENTS.

Offer No. 2 For the sale of 25 packages and packages and Offer No. 4 For the sale of 42 packages a-plece Decorated Dinner Set, a Corduroy Covered Couch or Six Oak Dining Room Chairs and an Arm Chair to match. Tea and Dinner Sets, Furniture, Wraps, Silverware, Sewing Machines, Watches, Musical Instruments and hundreds of other premiums or cash given on the same plan, you get the premium and earn it afterwards. We depend entirely upon your honesty to pay us.

SEND US your name and address, stating which offer you accept, while waiting for premium list go ahead and sell to everyone you know and others, you will soon earn a handsome premium or cash needed. Try it.

Arm Chair to match.

Arm Chair to matchines, Watches, Musical Instruments on the same plan, you get the premium and earn it afterwards.

Arm Chair to matchines, Watches, Musical Instruments on the same plan, you get the premium and earn it afterwards.

Arm Chair to matchines, Watches, Musical Instruments on the same plan, you get the premium and earn it afterwards.

Arm Chair to matchines, Watches, Musical Instruments on the same plan, you get the premium and earn it afterwards.

Arm Chair to matchines, Watches, Watches, Musical Instruments on the same plan, you get the premium and earn it afterwards.

Arm Chair to matchines on the ionesty to pay us.

IF YOU AOCEPT offer No. 1, we send 20
Linwood Pitchers, one for each buyer. 20 pounds
Baking Powder, 20 bars Physicians Odorless Soap
20 cakes Polish, 58 piece Dinner Set or ofher premium.. Freight paid to your nearest R. R. Station.

Sallie Peck, Indiana, Pa., earned a Tea Set in Biom a half day, Clara Baur, Pana, Ills, a Guitar in four hours, Mrs. A. Beck, Sullivan, Ind., a Sewing Machine in two days, Mrs. Chas Page, Dayton, O. $32.25 in 7 days. Jennie Shuster, Joplin, Mo., $6.25 in a day and a half, hundreds of other agents doing equally as well, why not you?

Write for plans, order blanks, premium sheet and complete instruction how to earn big wages or handsome premiums right at your own home in your spantime by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything you want we will send it to you at once and let you pay for it by selling our goods to your friends are in the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods, and if there is anything the by our modern and easy methods and the by our modern and easy methods and the by our modern and easy methods and the by our modern and easy methods are in the by our modern and easy methods and it to you are not any our properties.

BEGIN AT ONGE Call on your friends, neighbors in fact everyone until you have sold to 20, BEGIN AT ONGE 25, 31 or 42 persons. Write name in pen and ink, of party you sold, mention this paper, have your Postmaster, Banker or some reliable business man assure us of your integrity, mail it to us, and as soon as received we will ship, FREIGHT PAID, goods you sold, pitchers to give away and the present you select, allowing 10 days to deliver before paying us. MENTION PLAN 111.

THE PURE FOOD CO., 966 MAIN ST., GINGINNATI, OHIO.

Established in 1896, had we not dealt fairly and honestly with our customers we should never have grown to be able to occupy our present enormous buildings. OUR MOTTO. "If anything is not right, we stand ready to make it right," government contemplates issuing a new three-cent piece. It is to be of nickel, about the size of a five-cent piece. It will be radically differ-ent from any other piece of United States mon-ey, however, in that it will have a hole through the center equal to one-half the diameter of the coin. This will distinguish them readily from all other pieces of money, so that in hand-ling money rapidly they cannot be taken for coins of larger denomination. In many ways the new coin should prove very useful, and ought to become a valuable aid in the business world. business world.

Col. Fremont was the first to navigate Great Salt Lake in 1834.

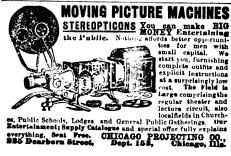

The Dawn of Peace.

The piece of music under the above title on another page of COMFORT is singularly appropriate. The last public speech of the late President McKinley finished with an eloquent allusion to the dawn of peace. This particular march was played at his inaugural last March and has since become the popular march of the day with many military and other bands. Mr. W. T. Pierson is to be congratulated on the popularity of his present composition. It is a particularly bright and catchy two-step and makes a general hit.

Music is a refining influence at all times. Poor music should be rejected and discarded. The best and most delightful sheet music is in the list which appears in the offer on another

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

Prof. W.H.PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., N.Y.

We will send you a magnificently engraved double hunting case." AMERICAN STANDARD." watch for free inspection. Case is made of the newly discovered gold alloy with extra heavy plate of 14 karat Solid Gold, and even be sperts cannot tell it from a 50 dollar watch. High-grade movement, fully jeweled, duplex escapement, patent in Dinion quick train, tam wind and set.

$10.00 profit. State express office and if Ladies or Gents Watch. BAGLE WATCH MFG. CO., 21 Lees Bldg., Chicago.

Farmers' Sons Wanted—with knowledge of caucation to work in an office; $45 a month with advancement; steady employment; must be honest and reliable. Branch office, of the association are being established in each state. Apply at once, giving full particulars. The Veterinary Science Ass'n, London, Canada, ORPHINE or the Trial Treatment for Morphine, Opium or other drug habit. Palnies, permanent of the Grant of the Cure. Contains great vital principle lacking in all others. Confidential. St. Paul Association, 48 Van Buren St., Chicago.

ASTHMA Instant relief & positive cure. Sample maled free to many surferer. "Physician" Box 36, Augusta, Maine.

A CUTE SWISS CLOCK. Made of Swiss Woods. Hand

A Million and a Quarter Homes.

It has the largest sworn circulation of any publication of any kind, anywhere.

The Only Monthly in the World Printed in five to eight bright colors on a perfecting press, which takes the paper from rolls, prints and

It is regularly read by more people than any other paper or magazine in America.
Its matter is original, copyrighted and cannot be found elsewhere.

Its watchword is "Onward and Upward." It presents something new, novel and entertaining for each and every member of each and every household.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S PAPER. TERMS: 25c. PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

BURNCHIPTIONS are entered on our books as soon as received, and re always dated from the current issue, unless otherwise ordered. PONTAGE to all parts of the United States and Canada is prepaid by us. CHANGE OF ADDRESS. When ordering change in address, be sure to give former as well as new address. We cannot find your name on ut books unless you do. Due notice given upon expiration of sub-contributes unless you do seriptions exceptions. CONFIGE was started and its subscription price fixed on the basis of an 5 page paper it has been voluntarily enlarged to 12, 16 and 24 pages. When more than 12 ingress are now given the subscriber can consider ta gift from the publisher.

Entered at the Post Office at Augusta, Maine,

Published Monthly at Augusta, Maine.

Boston Office, Hancock Building.

New York Office, Temple Court. Chicago Office, Marquette Building

Guaranteed Circulation: ONE MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COPIES Bach and Every Issue, Or Exceeding 15 Millions A Year.

What city combination of "wine and walnuts" ever equalled the real expedition to the woods after nuts? The homely American butternut has a flavor beyond any tropical product.

Dame Nature is certainly a barbarian. Her gorgeous scarlets, oranges, yellows and browns would never be permitted in any art school. Pastel shades are not for her in her October mood. Even the sunsets pale before the blaze of the foliage. Happy are those whose horizon line is not bounded by brick and mortar but who can watch the riot of color in even a single

The yacht races seem destined to accomplish at least one result between the two great Engligh speaking nations. The Irish baronet has made such persistent use of the phrase "lift the cup" that the term "lift" may be transferred from the vernacular of crookdom to polite phraseology. Everyone knows that the English call an elevator a "lift." Hereafter the verbal and substantial forms of "lift" will mean simply "to win."

The Goddess of Chance has rarely assembled her devotees in such great numbers as the thousands who watched the drawing of the Oklahoma lots. The wheel whirled before a vast crowd who listened eagerly to the announcement of winners. Some lots drawn were worth from $20,000 to $40,000. One of the richest prizes was drawn by a young woman who had been a telephone operator. It was perhaps the best method of distribution in view of the fact that thousands had made application for the land and there could be no weighing of individual claims.

The women on American farms have shown great industry in the construction of homemade rugs and carpets. The result is a monument to patience and perseverance but a violation of all sense of beauty or artistic feeling. Among the exhibits at the Pan American were some rugs of native manufacture that combined utility with beauty. A woman of strong artistic sense made a study of the matter and with the aid of the women in the small villages and on some of the farms in Maine, has produced a rug which will command a good price in a city market. The native yarn in shades of dark blue and the background of the rugs is made from this with designs in white. The yarn is tied into a firm foundation and then cut. The surface has something of the appearance of an Oriental rug. A profitable home industry could be maintained by the manufacture of these rugs

The first convention held in this country in the interest of good roads is the International Congress for Good Roads which has just closed its session in Buffalo. A national good roads train carried to Buffalo all the latest machinery for the improvement of roads. The greatest experts on road building from the United States and from foreign nations spoke at this congress. During the summer the national good roads train visited sixteen different cities in five states and gave simple practical demonstrations of the best methods of road making. Over eighty miles of earth roads and three of macadamized were constructed as object lessons. The time has passed when the country road was considered in good shape after the farmers had turned out once a year and dug out the side ditches and piled the dirt in a ridge in the cen-

of Yale college will be held in New Haven in October. The Old New England city will have its entertaining capacity taxed to the uttermost as all available space has been engaged for months. The sum of $2,000,000 has been raised as an appropriate expression of satisfaction in the two hundredth anniversary of this great institution. Yale University with its vast eninstitution. Yale University with its vast endowment and its two century record of culture in 1901 has a long look backward to its inception in 1700. In that year ten Congregational clergymen met in New Haven and made a contribution of ten books each toward the establishment of a library and college. Yale is the third oldest college in the United States, Harvard and the college of William and Mary having been established previously. Its great Harvard and the college of William and Mary having been established previously. Its great influence in the educational field has been second to none. For two hundred years it has been a powerful factor in American life and every American whether he be an alumnus of Yale or not should feel a personal interest in this event.

The "Exposition habit" seems to be a growing one. We have been surprised and delighted at the fact that centennial celebrations were possible at this stage of our history. The opportunity to combine a centennial exhibition and an industrial exposition is eagerly seized. It is not often that our centennial events are national in interest, but the purchase of Louisiana in 1803 is of peculiar national significance in this decade of territorial expansion. The precedent has developed more momentous results in our history than any other single The precedent has developed more momentous results in our history than any other single event. St. Louis has seized its opportunity and already the Louisiana Purchase of 1903 is being discussed and planned. "The Pan" is now at the height of its glory but all visitors there have their attention directed to the Exposition of 1903. All nations are to be invited to join in this exposition. In the earliest development of commerce the Fair promised the only means for an exchange of goods. In Southern Russia the great yearly fairs are still the merchant's opportunity for sales. Aggressive modern commercialism has returned to the spirit of the early method and the time seems to be approaching when each summer will find some great city attracting crowds to an exposition which above everything else is industrial in character. in character.

in character.

It was believed for a long time that science and the Bible could not agree. Modern investigations have however reconciled some apparent discrepancies. It remains for a French doctor to stir up a new discussion. "Who by taking thought can add a cubit to his stature?" is the old Biblical question and the French savant answers that he can. It is claimed that two fifths of an inch a month can be added to the stature by the use of electricity. An electric bulb is applied to the bony matter at the knee and ankle joint and its growth is stimulated so that amazing changes in height result. There are many alarming and pleasing results possible in the development of this latest scientific discovery. The undoubted fact that women are extremely tall has made it rather embarrassing for many a youth of low stature and tender heart. The fear of ridicule has prevented his setting his affection upon a Gibson girl who bore about the relation to him that Texas does to Rhode Island. Now, this can all be properly adjusted and he can take a little electricity and grow up to his ideal. There is, however, an alarming possibility of this discovery's ruining the market for giants. If giants can be manufactured to order, the real unelectrified article will have to find some other occupation than being a sideshow. Again the French government might seize upon the invention and proceed to turn the whole French army into a giant force that would threaten the balance of power in Europe.

"Child Study" has developed a scientific side

"Child Study" has developed a scientific side "Child Study" has developed a scientific side to the natural love for children. The games and amusements of children are wonderfully illustrated in the Children's building of the Paris Exposition which has been retained as a permanent exhibition. It is an exemplification of the Children's Pleasure Palace which was commented upon sometime since by COMFORT. Along with this added interest in the pleasures of children has developed a practical care for their physical well being. It has no better illustration than the investigations that have recently been made into the conditions of child labor in our Southern states and in Italy. recently been made into the conditions of child labor in our Southern states and in Italy. Systematic investigation of the factory and mining conditions in the South disclose conditions that are horrible. These abuses are permitted only because people are ignorant of them. Efforts are being made to procure legislation in the Southern states that will prevent such abuses. The American Federation of Labor is working to this end but as yet no laws have been secured. Conditions must be understood before public opinion will demand protection for child life. Conditions similar to the child labor in the Southern states exist in Italy where children are practically sold to contract labor in the factories of other countries. The labor in the factories of other countries. derived from selling children to long hours of work in the furnaces of glass factories at Lyons. There is a demand in Italy for government intervention. These are hopeful signs. It is the pathetic contrast between the interest in the leasures of favored children and the fight for he very lives of the poor victims of child labor, that must appeal to any one familiar with the different phrases of the subject.

The Pan-American Congress to be held in Mexico during this month of October is one of the most important gatherings that has been held in America. Two features of the relation to one another of American republics must be discussed and the questions are of immediate and practical significance. The political rela-tions and the commercial relations in America should be instantly influenced by this Congress if its delegates appreciate that should be instantly influenced by this Congress if its delegates appreciate that no academic discussion should be indulged in. The United States has the opportunity to do a great work in the field of practical politics. The Latin Republics of South America owe their existence and continuance to the Monroe Doctrine. The United States should clearly define at this Congress the force of that act, since it practically proclaims the United States the protector of the autonomy of South American republics. The constant revolutions in South America and ditches and piled the dirt in a ridge in the center of the road. The old town office of "pathmaster" will soon be no sinecure for it will system of arbitration an imperative necessity.

demand an intimate knowledge of all the modern ideas in regard to the difficult task of proper road building.

The bi-centennial celebration of the founding of Yale college will be held in New Haven in tion of commercial conditions in America. We have made enormous commercial gains in Mexico, Central America and the West Indies. We have absorbed at least three-fourths of the business of those countries. In South America we have made but little advance during the past ten years. Europe has control of the foreign imports of South America. We import from South America double the value of the goods we sell her but the growth of trade is slow. The congress should help us to a realization of the importance of the field that lies so close to us and is bound to us by the ties of political gratitude. political gratitude.

Have You Got Rheumatism?

For Rheumatism, that horrible plague, I discovered a harmless remedy, and in order that every suffering reader may learn about it, I will gladly mail him a trial box and book on rheumatism free. Write without fail—it is a wonderful remedy which has enabled many a person to abandon crutch and cane. Address JOHN A. SMITH, 22% Germania Building, Milwaukee, Wis-

PAYING THING for Agents is our PHOTO FAMILY RECORDS, OTHER PICTURES, PORTRAITS & FRAMES. Address Dept. Z C. P. CORY & CO.. 41 & 45 Jefferson St., Chicago.

WE PAY 820 A WEEK and EXPENSES to mea with rigs to introduce our Poultry Compound. Send stamp. JAVELLE MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Parsons, Kansas.

This offer is, without the least doubt, the greatest value for the least money ever offered by any newspaper in the whole history of journalism.

* FULL SIZE *

SHEET

* GOOD PAPER *

WE have made arrangements with one of the largest music houses of Boston to furnish our readers with ten pieces, full size, complete and unabridged Sheet Music for thirty-five cts. The quality of this sheet music is the very best. The composers' names are housened words all over the continent. None but high-priced copyright pieces or the most popular reprints. It is printed on regular sheet-music paper, from new plates made from large, clear type—including colored titles—and is in every way first-class, and worthy of your home. 3,000.000 copies sold!

OB ORGAN.	TRED AT THIS TIME. V (7 CE AND PIANO OR O Across the Bridge	ECES OF	LIST OF THE P	No.
g? Cho. Rutledge	Across the Bridge Areyou lonely now my darling? Ch At Noontide Ave Maria, From Cavalleria Rustica	Waldtenfel	da Transcription Il for Thee Waltzes merican Liberty March ncients Abroad, March—Two St ngel's Dream. Op. 36. rtist's Life Waltzes nid Lang Syne. Variations natrian Song. Op. 69. ttle of Waterloo. Descriptive nautical Blue Danube Waltzes auntiful Blue Danube Waltzes	313 Aida '
nsticana Mascage	At Noontide AveMaria.FromCavalleriaRustica	. Cook	merican Liberty March	165 Ameri
Rutabrook	Manager Light of Home	Lange	ngel's Dream. Op. 36.	319 Ange
H. Jud	Bells of Seville	. Durkee .	ald Lang Syne. Variations	181 Auld
Dryde	Beautiful Moonlight. Duet Bells of Seville Ben Bott. of 'Trilby 'tame Between Love and Duty Blue Lyes Boylood Days, Chorus Boylood Days, Chorus	Anderson	ittle of Waterloo. Descriptive	187 Austri 215 Battle
Principal Principal	Blue Fyes Boy hood Days, Chorus Bridge, The, Words by Longfello Bride Bells Brown Eyed Bessie Lee. Chorus Can You. Sweetheart. Keepa Secret Childhood's Henry Hours	Streabbog Strauss	eauties of Paradise Waltz. 4 hand eautiful Blue Danube Waltzes .	179 Beaut 227 Beaut
Roeck	Bridge, The. Words by Longfello Bride Bells	. Walsh Richards	ack Hawk Waltzes ue Bells of Scotland. Trans.	213 Black
orus Arbuck Secret? Estabrook	Brown Eyed Bessie Lee. Chorus CanYou. Sweetheart. Keepa Secret?	. Morrison	ack Hawk Waltzes ue Bells of Scotland. Trans. uebird Echo Polka ston Commandery March ridal March from Lohengrin	221 Blueb
Tarmer	Citiumood a mappy mound	Wagner Bragg	idal March from Lohengrin	109 Brida
nt Falls Schuman	Come When the Soft Twilight Falls	Noles	runette Waltz ryan and Sewall March	321 Brun 229 Bryan
Cake walk Blak	Christmas Carol Come When the Soft Twilight Falls Come Back to Our Cottage Coon's Breach of Promise. Cake v Cow Bells The. Boyhood's Recollec	Mascayni	runette Waltz ryan and Sewall March avalry Parade Polka ivaleria Rusticana. Four hands ivaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo	307 Caval
· · Tous	Cow Helia The. Boyhood's Recollec Crown of Glory Danube River. Darling I Shall Miss You. Darling Nellie Gray De Banjo am de Instrument. Dear Heart. We're Growing Old. Dear Little Heart Neath the Dalsie Did You Ever Call Me Darling? Don't drink. my Boy, tonight. Tem Dream of Love	Mascayni Czerny	ivaleria Rusticana. Intermezzo idences and Scales in all Keys.	289 Caval
. Cohe	Danube River . Darling I Shall Miss You	. Lange	hatelaine, La Menuet	297 Chate
Hand Rutled	Darling Nellie Gray De Banjoan de Instrument.	tep Missud	ayton (Adjutant) March-Two S	145 Clayte
Old . Estabroo	Dear Heart. We're Growing Old . Dear Little Heart 'Neath the Daisie	Wheeler Deibles	oming from the mices dutop	25 1 ((0)1111)
Temp Hoor	Did You Ever Call Me Darling?	Coole, Jr	orn Flower Waltzes	A
Elso	Dream of Love	Durkee Cook	rystal Dew Waltz av Dawn Folka ewwy's Grand Triumphal March lamond Valley Waltz astlake Waltz choing Trumpets March delweiss lectric Light Galop stella, Air de Ballet. Very fine. vergreen Waltz antastic Schottische atinitza Galop aist. Selections lith Nocturne litting in the Staright. Waltz	71 Cryst 235 Day I
Chorus. Turn	Dream of Love Dream of Spring A. Op. 1,2 Dwelling with the Angels. Chorus Easter Eve. Sacred	Marcel : Morehouse	ewey's Grand Triumphal March	163 Dewe
		. Daggett	astlake Waltz	299 Eastl
	Falling Star	. Hennes	delweiss .	303 Edely
M	101 4 00	Robinson	stella, Air de Ballet. Very fine.	Estel
Fo	Flag. The. Quartette	Gabriel	vergreen Waltz	155 Ever. 241 Fant:
Coh Con	Flather is Drinking Again. 19mp; Flag of Our Country. Patriotic. Flag, The. Quartette. Flirting in the Starlight Flossic. Waltz Song For a Dream's Sake	Durkee	atinitza Galop aust. Selections	29 Fatin
Home Fetabroo	Total Dicama Stance In mad Home	. Lasaide	aust. Selections if the Nocturne iirth nocturne iirthing in the Starlight. Waltz lower Song. Op. 33. orestville Waltz reischutz. Selections rolic of the Frogs. olden Rain. Nocturne rand Commandery March—Two leel and Toe Polka	77 Firth
. Pinsu	For You We are Praying at Home From our Home the Loved are Goi Gathered Roses	Lange Zahu	lower Song. Op. 39.	239 Flow
ther Jew	City a Kiss to Me	Durkee Watson	reischutz. Selections	277 Freis
Mendelsso	Golden Moon	Cloy	olden Rain. Nocturne	177 Frolid
Glor	Greeting Duet Gypsy Countess. Duet	Faust	rand Commandery March—Two	147 Grand 281 Heel
at . Greenwoo	The Dust	. Kichards Jewell	leel and Toe Polka for Bright Smile Haunts Me Still Johson of the Merrimac Waltzes	185 Her 1
Pinst	1 Can't Forget the Happy Fast.	n . Slack Muller	ome, Sweet Home. Transcription only Lind polks. Four hands	139 Home
Marzio Offenba	In Summer Time •	Gottschalk Kahn	ast Hope. Meditation	157 Last
	3 It Is a Legend Old	. Behr	e Petit Bal. Polka Mazurka.	253 Le Pe
. Crou	n Kathlaan Maganraan	. Durlee	eo's (Gen'i) " On to Cuba " galop ohengrin - Selections	159 Lee's 249 Lohe
ibye Rutled	6 Killarney 2 Kiss me, but don't say goodbye 3 Kiss that bound my Heart to thin 4 Larboard Watch. Duet 2 Let me dream again	Roeder	ondon March — Two Step ove's Dreamland Waltzes	141 Lond 243 Love
. Willia	Kiss that bound my Heart to thin Larboard Watch. Duet	Badarzewske Johnson	laiden 's Prayer, The lartha Selections .	99 Maid
Hawthon	2 Let me dream again	Krug Keefer	Lay Bre ezes. Four hands	207 May uet . Estabro	6 Listen to the Mocking Bird 8 Little Boy Blue. Solo or Duet. 4 Little Voices at the Door	Turner Hewitt	Ickinley and Hobart March	225 McK
Sulliv De	6 Lost Chord, The 8 Mamie	Wely	Ionastery Bells. Nocturne	131 Mons
urchyard . Kee	4 Margaretta Massa's Sleening in de Churchy	. Liebich	fusic Box, The. Caprice	201 Musi
Chorus . Al	4 Margaretta Massa's Sleeping in de Churchy. Memories of my Mother. Chorus Mother's Welcome at the Door	Parlou	icel and Toe Polka icer Bright Smile Haunts Me Still tobson of the Merrimac Waltzes tome. Sweet Home. Transcriptie enny Lind polka Four hands ast Hope. Meditation eap Year Schottische ee's Gen'l) "On to Cuba "galop ohengrin. Selections. ondon March—Two Step ove's Dreamkand Waltzes faiden 's Praver. The fartha Selections Lay Bre exes. Four hands lay bay Schottische Ickinley and Hobart March Homorial Day March Homorial Day March Homorial Day March Horning Star Waltz fuste Box, The. Caprice of Star Waltz fational Anthems of Eight Great	125 My*()
nda Fetabro	2 Musica i Dialogue. Duet	. Blake	i wold Kentucky Home. Variat Napoleon. National Anthems of Eight Great National Songs of America Nightingale's Trill, op. 81 Joean Waves Waltz Jid Folks at Home. Transcriptic Jid Oaken Bucket. The. Variatione Heart, One Soul. Mazurka Dut the Wave Waltz.	87 Natio
O'Hallo	Must the Sweet Tie that binds 6 My Home by the Old Mil l	Kullak Keefer	lightingale's Trill, op. 81	135 Nigh
. Pa . Fo.	O My Little Lost Irene O My Old Kentucky Home	n . Blake ons Durkee	old Folks at Home. Transcription of Oaksa Bucket The Variation	123 Old i se Ribber) Fo.	O My Old Kentucky Home 6 Oh, Sing Again that Gentle Strain. 8 Old Folks at Home (Swance Ribt	. Strauss . Dinsmore	One Heart, One Soul. Mazurka	273 One
fulRiver Estabre	Old Village Church On the Banks of the Beautiful Rive On the Beach. Most beautiful ba	ep Robinson	pregon, Queen of the Sea. Two st	197 Oreg
iful ballad Robin	On the Beach. Most beautiful ba	Rosa s Durk ee	ne Heart, One Soul. Mazurka on the Wave Waltz Dregon, Queen of the Sea. Two si Drvetta Waltz Over the Waves Waltz	191 Over
Song · F	8 Out on the Deep. O Outcast, An. Character Song. 4 Parted from our Dear Ones.	a) Kennuer	A Company (Curan	7 5 1 10.00
Chorus	A Parted from our Dear Ones. B Peace to Thy Spirit. Duet.	Mattei [arch Blake	Poet and Peasant Overture (Suppose of the Cavotte Red, White and Blue Forever. Malte Control of the Cavotte of	285 Paye 167 Red.
omic.	4 Peace to Thy Spirit. Duet 4 Peace to the Village Bell. Chorus 4 Picture of My Mother, The 5 Peor Girl didn't know. Comic.		Richmond March—two-step Rustic Waltz .	143 Rich
	4 Littate Toming Virginia	Lange	Rustling Leaves. Idylie	127 Rust
Grain to Deep Kn	4 Private Tommy Atkins 8 Request. Sacred 8 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep	on List! Wilson	Schubert's Serenade Transcript	149 Salei 189 Schu
		Wyman Martin	Schipperd Boy. Idylle	309 Shep
sceAgain? Adria		Clark	Souvenir of the Ball Waltz	169 Smit 295 Souv
Evening Dinsn	4 Softly sline the stars of Events	Devrient
. Jlu Marz	Storm at Sea. Descriptive Summer Shower	Fahrbach Weber	Stepha nie Polka Storm. The. Imitation of Nature	279 Step
Rstabre	Summer Shower .	Keefer Brown	stephanie Folka Storm, The. Imitation of Nature Storm Mazurka Bultan's Band March.	73 Stor
other	6 There's Sure to be a way	Blake Arbuckle	weet Long Ago. Transcription	209 Swee
re calling Tur	R Thinking of Home and Mother Titania's Cradle Tread another the Angels are calli	Wede	Sultan's Band March. weet Long Ago. Transcription formado Galop frifet's Grand March, op. 182 fwilight Echoes. Song without luder the Double Eagle March	103 Torn
Add	3 Trea d softly the Angels are calli B True to the Last Warrior Bold	Wagner	Twilight Echoes. Song without vinder the Double Eagle March	223 Twil
		Allen Cook	Village Paratic Quinting	205 Villa
Gone . Tra	When the Roses are Droumber	. Richards . Blake	Warblings at Eve Waves of the Ocean March Wedding March Wedding March	203 War
		Mandula solis.	Wedding March	261 Wed
de Bar Wa	8 Why do Summer Roses Fade	. Stanley	Woodland Whispers Waltzes .	251 Will Estabro	2 Zelma Lee. Chorus	Bragg	Yacht Waitz	30 Yacı
at it is sent to	et ten pieces, not one; that it is	nce you have t for this vo	N'T FORGET that the pi	דישחח
_	O Yellow Roses	Dusmore Bragg ice you have t for this yo details are companiments usic is equal	Woodland Whispers Waltzes Yacht Waltz Zephyr Waltz N'T FORGET cents; tha 188, postpaid; that all the little 189 pieces have full piano acc 189 pieces that this sheet m	A SADI YACI

ly thirty-five is sent to any d titles; that e the bass as the vocal pieces have full plane accompaniments; that the instrumental pieces give the bass as well as melody; that this sheet music is equal to any published. Also don't forget to make your selection at once, to send us the order, and to tell your friends about this Sheet Music Offer. Satisfaction guaranteed. Order by Numbers, not Names.

PRICE OF ABOVE PIECES. Any 10 for 35 cents.

Any 20 for 60 cents Any 40 for 81.10. Any 100 for $3.00.

Write your name, full address, and list of pieces wanted by the numbers; enclose this, with stamps or silver, and mail or bring to address given below, and the music will besent direct from Boston, postage prepaid

SPECIAL PREMIUM OFFER

Owing to change of law, making a further increase in postal rates, soon an advance in price of this Music may take place. Until then we will supply as above. After that the price may be much higher. Don't fail to order at once as this is positively the last chance to secure good full size Music so low. tively the last chance to secure good full size Music so low.

If you will induce your friends to subscribe to COMFORT we will give you Music Free for lyou will induce your friends to subscribe to COMFORT, we will give you must construct monthly, your trouble. Send 15c. and one name for a 6 months' subscription to our great monthly, your frouble. Send 15c. and one name for a 6 months' subscribet, or get one new yearly sub-COMFORT, and we will mail you any six pieces of music you may select, or get one new yearly subscriber for 25c. and we will send you any 10 pieces in the list postpaid.

Address COMFORT, Music Dept. S, Augusta. Maine.

THE DAWN OF PEACE.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HERE has always existed to a greater or less extent a super-stitious belief in the occultor supernatural. In the somewhat hazy stitious belief in the occult or supernatural. In the somewhat hazy times of ancient Greek mythology the universe was run by signs and symbols, and the Sphinx and her colleagues kept pretty active with their divinations and arbitrary turning of fortune's wheel. Later the wonderful astrologers and sooth-sayers of the far East wrought mysteries and witcheries portent-ous and often fatal as well as fateful in outcome. The Romanys told their strange tales and fortunes when their palms were crossed with silver; and from it all have gradually been evolved the mind-reading, palmistry, gypsy fortune-telling and horoscopy of modern days, all of which deal with the good and bad luck of the individual, and have produced a small undercurrent of superstition in every day life, so that by many people certain incidents or objects are interpreted as meaning or predicting a happy fortune or otherwise, as the case may be.

An outgrowth of this somewhat superstitions influence is the belief in certain things as talismans or charms for inducing propitious fortune to smile, and for driving away evil cliance, though why a four-leaved clover or a black eat should produce such results is rather inexplicable. This faith in charms is as old as doomsday, but within the past few years a revival of the old-fashioned superstitions has set in, making something of a fad of everything that has to do with good luck. Talismans and emblems of every variety are owned or worn by maid or matron alike, and many of sterner sex are made feetpients of some mascot supposed to portend happy fortune, for it is part of the charm.

part of the charm that these omens must be given or received, as it is said that good luck cannot be bought, but must come to one un-sought—it must be 'k is met" fate.
Good luck

luncheons, sup-pers and cotil-lions can be made great sport, when all the favors are mascots or lucky symbols, and spells are wrought, often the cause of much merriment.
When all things pertaining to the occult and mysterious are so popular naturally Hal-

ALL SOULS EVE.

merriment.

When all things pertaining to the occult and mysterious are so popular, naturally Hallowe'en would be hailed with greatest enthusiasm, the enchanted thirty-first day of October which has been made so much of ever since the days of Scotch "Bobbie" Burns and the other graphic chroniclers of its mystic rites, particularly by light hearted young folks who are eager to tempt their future destiny.

It is the night of nights of all the year when spells and charms hold good, when unseen spirits are supposed to walk abroad, called forth from the vasty deep, when the witchery of all things uncanny spreads a subtle influence and mortal man and maid delight to try their fate by a peep into the unknown.

As so many of these young people, both city-bred and rural, are preparing to keep "All Hallows," numerous are the plans being devised. Probably the two that will be most widely followed will be the Hallowe'en party, or entertainment, where the traditional charms of the night, mostly of Scotch and English origin, will be indulged in; and the up-to-date function, where all the magic is to be "spick and span," freshly invented for the occasion.

The old observances consist in the familiar "ducking" for apples in a tub of water, roasting of chestnuts named for the sweetheart before the open fire, carrying a lighted candle and a looking-glass downstairs as the clock strikes midnight, walking backwards all the time blindfolded; to try one's fate in three dishes of water set on the table, one of them empty, the second filled with clean water, the other with soapy water; and a score more of dishes of water set on the table, one of them empty, the second filled with clean water, the other with scapy water; and a score more of equally quaint doings handed down from generation to generation.

For making the new Hallowe'en affair successful, invitations could be issued on curious three cornered bits of red paper—three being the magic number, red the symbolic color—in each corner engraved some mystic design or emblem of good luck. Each guest should be requested to appear at the symposium attired to represent some secret character, and to be prepared to work some original trick of magic, to east horoscopes, to participate in a dance of uncanny spirits or perform a witch's pas seul, to sing or play weird music, to tell a ghoulish tale, or perform something else in keeping with the spirit of the night.

This could be made a novel and exciting with the spirit of the night.

This could be made a novel and exciting form of Hallowe'en fun. A crop of appropriate ideas could be secured by dipping into old volumes of mythology and mystic lore, and studying up ancient Greek, Assyrian and Egyptian stories of the black art, literature usually neglected save by the scholar in antiquities. Even the pagan rites of the ancient Druids who believed in the transmigration of souls might give some hints, for these priests of past ages were great devotees at the shrine of Hallowe'en, and also observed November first. All Souls Day, as the festival of the sun, filling the preceding night with strange ceremonies to usher in the day.

"When I get a bright idea I always want to pass it along," said a thrifty housewife, as she sat watching a young girl sewing: "Do your buttons ever come off?"

"Ever? They are always doing it. They are ironed off, washed off and pulled off until I despair. I seem to shed buttons at every step."

"Make use of these two hints when you are sewing them on, then, and see if they make any difference. When you begin, before you lay the button on the cloth, put the thread through so that the knot will be on the right side. That leaves it under the button, and prevents it from being worn or ironed away, and thus beginning the loosening process.

and thus beginning the loosening process.

"Then, before you begin sewing, lay a large pin across the button, so that all your threads will go over the pin. After you have finished filling the holes with thread, draw out the pin, and wind your thread round and round beneath the button. That makes a compact stem to sustain the possible pulling and wear of the buttonhole. "It is no exaggeration to say that my buttons never come off, and I'm sure yours won't if you use my method of sewing."

The summer time is the golden opportunity clover cushion?

A very happy thought it was to stuff that neces-sary article with fragrant clover blossoms. The balsam of the Maine pine woods, after this discovery, may as well hide in oblivion, for what livion, for what odor is more re-freshing than that of the flower associated with luck. A balmy pillow? it must indeed make, and on it the weary head will have vision of peace-ful fields redolent of the breath of kine. Clover and cows always go together, or should,

CURIOUS contest has recently taken place in England to determine, by vote, the twelve most notably good women of the nineteenth century. Among those selected were, in the order of their names, Queen Victoria, Florence Nightingale, Elizabeth Fry, the Baroness Burdette-Coutts, the Princess of Wales, the late Duchess of Teck, Sister Dora, Grace Darling, Lady Henry Somerset and Frances Ridley Havergal. ry Somerset and Frances Ridley Havergal.

HEN the Duke of Clarence, afterward William IV., went down to Portsmouth to inspect the British seventy-four, the guide allotted to him was a battered old lieutenant with one eye, who lacking "a friend" at court, had served years without promotion. As the veteran removed his hat to salute his royal visitor, the latter remarked his baldness, and said jestingly, "I see my friend, you have not spared your hair in your country's service."

"Why, your Royal Highness," answered the "old salt", "so many young fellows have stepped over my head that it's a wonder that I have any hair left." A few days after the "old salt" was surprised to receive his appointment as captain.

Handsome Double Cape $1.98 No. 2202 H. Made Send $1.00, re HARD B.GROSSMAN 170-172 STATE ST. CHICAGO THE GREAT MAIL ORDER CLOAK HOUSE Wholesale and Retail

The State of Texas.

EXAS has had the most varied history of all the states of the Union. It has at different times been under six different governments. France, Spain, and Mexico have all claimed its territory at different times, and it has also been an independent republic, one of the Confederate States, and now is nited States flag. It was first set-

Confederate States, and now is under the United States flag. It was first settled some two hundred years ago and its first American colonists found it a foreign country. Later in its history when it belonged to Mexico, its colonists declared their independence, and for seven years ruled as a republic. Annexation to the United States was accomplished by a freely.

A Valuable Forest.

HALCEDONY park is the name of a peculiar forest which is situated near Holbrook, Arizona. The park, which is hundreds of miles in area, contains thousands of trunks of trees which have become petrified or agatized. Some of the trunks are one hundred and fifty feet agatized. Some of the trunks are one hundred and fifty feet long, and where they have broken apart show beautiful color effects in the stone. The bark of these former trees is of a dark red color, but the chips and the interior of the logs show all kinds of beautiful colors, amethyst, red and yellow jasper, chalcedony in all colors, besides topaz, onyx and other semi-precious stones are blended in these logs forming a wonderfully effective grouping of brilliant effects. It is supposed that years ago these logs were overwhelmed by some volcanic cruption and covered with ashes and hot mineral-charged water from kinds of beautiful colors, amethyst, red and yellow jasper, chalcedony in all colors, besides topaz, onyx and other semi-precious stones are blended in these logs forming a wonderfully effective grouping of brilliant effects. It is supposed that years ago these logs were overwhelmed by some volcanic eruption and covered with ashes and hot mineral-charged water from geysers. As the wood decayed, the minerals in the water of the geysers took its place and crystallized to form the beautiful color combinations that delight the eye now.

The first printing press in America was set up in Cambridge by Richard Day in 1639.

The modern and turn him down without any hard feeling. The eris strongly made of metal, the front is painted in natural life-like colors and the wink is produced by pulling aninvisible string from behind and there is a long strong and durable and the most talked about novelty today. Every one is wild for one, every young man in the big cities has one and all the girls too. "Just because she made daw one so send 12e, eday for a special sample. 6 for 50e; il doz. $1.00. Agents' make big money. Address SUNSHINE, Dept. C. Auguste, Maine.

MITTER

everything. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED S. J. E. GEARHART, Box 13, CLEARFIELD, P. PERFECTION

package, any color, by mail, locents; 3 for 2 cents or 6 for 40 cents. New catalogue of 70 popula colors and shade cards FREE Agents wanted W. CUSHING & CO., Dept. 8 Foxcroft, Me

The popular "Goo Goo" Winking Eye is what you must wear on your coat or vest if you want to cut out all the other fellows and mash the pretty girls. You can engage in conversation and slyly turn back your coat lapel and wink your "Goo Goo" eye so easily you will win the girl and fool the other fellow or if a list telling a funny story that is old and stale or not me, you can bring your winking eye into play

A NOTTY WINK.

DRESS GOODS OFFER A BIG 6-YARD DRESS PATTERN Norton fast black, mercerized erepon dress goods, 40 inches be furnished $1.50 for A Big 6-fard DRESS PATTERN, or at lot $1.50.

as the equal of any fancy black dress goods you can buy from your storn one at 50 to SEND US $1.50 for a 6-yard dress pattern, or ents per yard. SEND US $1.50 for a 9-yard for as many yards th, cut this ado out (No.87M) and send to us and we will send the dress good h the understanding, that if not found perfectly satisfactory, exactly a ted, the greatest value you have ever seen, the equal of any dress good buy from your storkeeper at home at two to three times the price, return the goods to us at our expense, and we will immediately return your money THIS IS A GENUINE NORTON FAST BLACK MERCERIZED CREPON DRESS GOODS, inches wide, a new up-to-date fabric for dresses for all classes and all ages ciful new patterns. They are goods we bought direct from one of the largest mills under guarantee for quality car price is less than dealers can buy in any quantity. It is the GRIATEST VALUE EVER OFFERED IN BLACK DRESS OF FALL AND WINTER, one of the get Norton mercerized crepon, one of the latest effects for this season, such a dress pattern as you could not buy where at less than $3.00 to $5.00, do not full to cut this ad, out and send to us with $1.00 and we will send the such as The express charges on one dress pattern will average from 25 to 30 cents. If you order two or more dress pattern the express charges on each pattern will be reduced from 10 to 15 cents, according the quantity ordered. DO NOT DELAY, ORDER TODAY. The stock will some be disposed of. THERE WILL NEVER BE SUCH AN OFFER MADE AGAIN.

Address all orders SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago, Ill.

plainly to

The Victoria Stamping Outfit.

It has been our special pleasure to select designs for this collection for our artistic friends. Illustration A shows a floral and ribbon design which can be used for almost anything the dainty worker has use for. The flowers are best executed in Kensington stitch, the ribbon may be either simple outline, outline filled in with feather, herring-bone or cat stitch, or, what is still more effective, the long and short stitch. Illustration B is a dainty little design for monograms or what-nots.

Note the sizes of the designs named below and the number of sheets of patterns in this outfit.

1 Very Handsome Centerpiece | 1 Floral Wreath for the content of the con

1 Very Handsome Centerpiece of Carnations, 17x17 inches.
1 Pretty Corner-piece of Pansies and Leaves, 6x6 inches.
1 Design of Strawberries and Leaves for Doily, 5½x6½.
1 Design Orchid and Leaves for Scarf Corner,

1 Design Orchid and Leaves for Scarf Corner, 61/4x10.
1 Clover Design for Dolly.
1 Design for Baby's Bib, Rosebuds and word Baby, 4x4.
1 Design for Cheese Dolly, 31/4x6.
1 Design for Souvenir Case with Motto, 51/4x6.
1 Design for Shoe Bag, 5x10.
1 Design for Shaving Bag with Motto, 6x6.
4 Fruit Designs for Fruit Plate Dollies, 31/4x31/4.
1 Design for Carving Cloth, 111/4x151/4.
1 Design for Tumbler Dolly, 4x4.
1 Pretty Corner Design for Tea-cloth, Jewel Work, 9x9.

1 Pretty Corner Design for Tea-cloth, Jewel Work, 9x9.
1 Design for Table Doily, 8x8.
1 Design for Water Bottle Doily, 6x6.
4 Designs for Butter Plate Doilies, 3½x3½.
1 Cut Work Doily Design, 5x5.
1 Very Pretty Design for Corner, Battenberg Work, 7x7.
1 Design for Border with Corner, 5x16.
1 Floral Corner Geranium, 6½x6½.
1 Design Water Lily for Doily.

The rettern's are made of lines bond paper on

1 Floral Wreath for Monogram of Handkerchier Case, 5x5. Tray Cloth, 7x15.
1 Design for Centerpiece, Maidenhair Ferns, 94x94.
1 Rosebud Doily, 73x74.
1 Alphabet for Towels or Table Linen, 114 inches

1 Design Centerpiece, Pansies, 10x10. 1 Pansy Doi-ly, 6½x6½. 1 Alphabet for Hand-for Hand-kerchiefs or Fine Linen, linch high-for Fiannel Work, 3½ inches wide, and 29 other designs for embroidery of every description too numertoo numer-ous to men-tion here.

The patterns are made of linen bond paper, and consist of 7 sheets of patterns, each sheet 17x2 inches in size. One double sheet 22x24 with extra large designs.

With each outfit we send full instructions for doing the stamping, and one piece of EUREKA ConFOUND, enabling anyone to do permanent stamping, instantly, without heat or trouble. Your money back if you want it, but no one ever does.

AN OFFER TO EVERY LADY. If you will send us 25 cents and the name of a subscriber to our charming monthly, a copy will be sent the subscriber each month for 2 years and the Stamping outfit to you as a free premium.

Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

Summer Visitors.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE sun was casting long golden rays back on the earth he was leaving one warm evening in June when motherly Mrs. Byram came out on the porch where her husband was smoking his evening pipe, ex-claiming, as she dropped into her rocking chair and began to fan her heated face with claiming, as she dropped into her rocking chair and began to fan her heated face with her apron:

"There! Thank fortune, I'm all through. The last curtain is hung, and the last rag is washed and dried and put away, and now every inch of this house is as clean as hands and soap and water can make it. Now it's ready for haying, and after that I sha'n't have anything special to do till fall; and I'm goin' to rest and take things easy for a speil. What's that you're a'sayin? Summer visitors? Oh, I don't believe they will trouble us much this year. I wrote Sarah 'long back in March that I didn't feel over and above smart this year; and I guess she has too much sense to bring her family here after that, and she'll tell the rest of'm, too, that I'm not able to have 'em come visiting this year. I should feel that way if I was in her place. I can't do for other people this summer as I did last. I ain't strong enough. I suppose that daughter Maria will come with little Ernest, but that is different. That's our own, and it don't seem to trouble to have them here, but 'pears like I can't have sister Sarah and her children, and cousin Ellen and hers, and all Sam's children, married and single."

At this Mr. Byram stirred, looked at his wife, and took the pipe from his month.

"Indeed, you can't, Sabriny, and that's a fact. But if your letter to Sarah last March is all you've said to any of 'em against comin', I'm afraid you'll have 'em all here this summer as sure as preachin'. 'Pears to me you'd better drop Sarah, and maybe Ellen, another line, and tell 'em how beat out you be this spring, and that you ain't going to do nothin' but rest all summer."

"Oh, I don't just like to do that, Jotham. Looks like I was refusin' their comments have."

"Oh, I don't just like to do that, Jotham. Looks like I was refusin' their company before I was asked. Besides its drefful hard work for me to write letters, and I don't feel equal to trying it,—not till I'm more rested than I be now."

now."
"Well, Sabriny, I don't blame ye a mite for "Well, Sabriny, I don't blame ye a mite for feelin' that way, but, all the same, I'm afeard you're takin' a big resk in not writin. It's more'n likely they'll come down on ye without any warnin' some of these warm days. If I was well and strong it wouldn't be so bad, but you've got me on your hands to look out for as well as everybody else, and I can't make it come right for you to have other people's burdens and expense to bear as well as your own. 'Taint right at all!' and good old farmer Byram rose, knocked the ashes from his pipe, and limped off to bed, coughing a staccato accompaniment to his halting steps.

Mrs. Byram sat thinking and rocking a few moments; then, sighing heavily, she rose and went into the house, locking the front door behind her, and murmuring as she did so—"I don't believe they'll have the heart to come."

come."

The June days went by, one after another. A hot June, everyone called it. Haying time came, and with it the added care of hired haymakers, for Mr. Byram was too feeble to do much except to oversee and direct the men. makers, for Mr. Byram was too feeble to do much except to oversee and direct the men. Mrs. Byram spent the long, hot days from five in the morning until sunset in her kitchen, cooking bread, pies, doughnuts and gingerbread, boiling meat and vegetables, and making "sweetened water" for the hungry and thirsty men. Into the midst of it came the widowed daughter Maria and her little Ernest. Maria white and thin from the heat of the city, and the winter's work of taking boarders for a normal school in her neighborhood. But she could not sit idle and see her mother work, even though she needed rest; so together the two women worked, and talked, and exchanged the confidences so dear to mother and daughter; while they cooked, and washed dishes, and were happy in each other's company. Meanwhile little Ernest followed his grandpa around, and helped and hindered all he could. One hot day, just as the dinner had been cleared away, and Mrs. Byram and Maria had seated themselves on the cool porch to rest and "piece patchwork" until it should be time to get supper the stage stopped at the gate. The two women looked up in dismay.

"The land! Maria, it's Cousin Ellen, sure as you're a living woman!"

"It surely is," ejaculated Maria, "and she has all four of those dreadful children with her. You ain't fit to have them here, mother, and I'm going to tell her so."

"No, no, Maria, you mustn't. She's come so fur we mustn't drive her off. Maybe she won't stay but a week."

"She will, too, mother. She'll stay a moth

"She will, too, mother. She'll stay a month at least. Just look at her trunks, three of them!" and Maria groaned as she followed her them!" and Maria groaned as she followed her mother down the yard to greet her guests.

"How do you do, cousin Sabrina?" called Ellen, in a loud strident voice as they approached her. "How do, Maria? Surprised to see us? Well, you see, we hadn't time to write, for my cook got mad and left me yesterday morning because I told her I was going to do without a housemaid this summer, and she must do the chamberwork and sweening, and must do the chamberwork and sweeping, and table-waiting. She has had an easy time all winter, and I don't think she had any right to complain if the work is a bit harder this summer; but she flew into a rage and took herself off at once. I had already let the housemaid go, so there was no one to do a hand's turn, and I had to get away. I knew it wouldn't make a bit of difference to you if I didn't write beforehand, and the children were wild to come," and Mrs. Brooks stopped to scream breathlessly at one of the wild children who was balancing himself on the well curb to see where the bucket went to when it was lowered.

Mrs. Byram hurried to the spot, and Maria

Seized the moment of her absence to say:—
"But, cousin Ellen, didn't Aunt Ellen tell you how frail father is this summer, and how worn out mother is with the care of him? I think mother wrote to her about it early in the spring."

"Why I think she did say something about his not being very well, and your mother being a little tired; but I supposed that was all over long ago."

NT ON ONE YEAR'S FREE

CORNISH CO. 50 YEARS WASHINGTON, NEW JERSEY.

he requires a great deal of care and waiting upon and needs a quiet home, too, he lies down so frequently."

"La now, I'm sorry Uncle Byram is failing, the now, I'm sorry Uncle Byram is failing, but you mustn't lose heart. Probably it is only the heat, and he will soon be better. We'll do all we can to give him cheerful conversation, and take his thoughts off himself. I shouldn't wonder if that is what he needs. The children won't disturb him, dear little souls! They will be out of doors all the time."

Marie had no time to say more, for by this will be out of doors all the time."

Maria had no time to say more, for by this time they had reached the house where her mother joined them again, and her father came out to welcome the guests. A scream from Ernest drew her around to the back door, where she found two of the visitors dragging his maltese kitten around the yard by the tail, and stoning it for scratching them. Peace was restored, and order reigned until at the teatable one of the boys complained because his was restored, and order reigned until at the tea table one of the boys complained because his saucer of strawberries was not so full as his brother's, and the whole meal was spoiled by his whining and faultfinding.

The next morning it was no better. Cousin Ellen, arrayed in a fresh white wrapper, sat in the cool sittingroom and crocheted edging, while Maria spent the whole forenoon trying to keep the peace among the wrangling children, and to prevent her father being annoyed by them; and her mother struggled on alone in the hot kitchen, with her work more than doubled by the advent of the city cousins.

In the hot kitchen, with her work more than doubled by the advent of the city cousins.

Two or three weeks went on in this way, until one afternoon the stage again stopped at the gate, and discharged Cousin Susan and her two babies.

"Now I hope I don't intrude, Aunt Sabrina," she cried as the glanced about her at Mrs.

"Now I hope I don't intrude, Aunt Sabrina," she cried, as she glanced about her at Mrs. Brooks and her noisy brood, and Maria and Ernest, "but it is just this way—my baby has been sick for a week from the hot weather in Boston, and yesterday took sick in just the same way, and the doctor said that I must get into the country at once, or he wouldn't answer for the consequences; so I started right off this morning, without waiting to write to you. I didn't dream that you had so much other company; but any way, it was the only thing I could do, for I couldn't run the risk of losing my babies," and Susan took off her own and the children's hats, settled the children comfortably on the rug, and ran into the pantry for cookies for them—all in such a matter-of-course way, as if she owned the place, that Maria could bear it no longer, and was on the point of pouring forth a flood of angry words when she caught her mother'seye. Mrs. Byram shook her head and beckoned her silently into her bedroom.

"Mother it's outrageous"! she began; but shook her head and beckoned her shently into her bedroom.

"Mother, it's outrageous"! she began; but Mrs. Byram checked her.
"Yes, I know, daughter; it does seem kind of wearin'; but I can't grudge the leetle creeters the fresh air they need so badly. We'll have to let 'em stay a spell, Maria."
"Well, but mother, it will kill you, and I'm not going to let you be killed by Susan's babies, now. Better they than you, any day. Besides, not going to let you be killed by Susan's babies, now. Better they than you, any day. Besides, Susan can go somewhere else, and pay her board. There's Mrs. Mixer would be glad to make a little money in taking boarders."

"Well, daughter, so she might; but you know she won't do it if we ask her, and it would only make her dreadful angry with us if we should mention it; so we shouldn't gain anything but her ill will. No, no; better take things as they are, and make the best of them. But I should like to have things more quiet for father's sake," she murmured as she went into the kitchen and started the fire to bake hiscuits. the kitchen and started the fire to bake biscuits for her large family.

The next day Daisy was cross, and the baby The next day Daisy was cross, and the baby screamed for cookies and fruit. Susan let them both have their own way in all things, and eat whatever they wished; and so in a few days both were seriously ill; and as their mother had no "faculty" in sickness Maria had them both to manage and take care of, while Susan sat idly by and nearly drove her frantic with her silly suggestions and interference. If Maria had one child quietly sleeping on the lounge while the other lay in her arms Susan was sure to come in and wake the sleeper by fussing over it in some way. Then she would take the other child from Maria's arms, and when she had made it thoroughly uncomfortable she would drop both, and leave the room saying—"

"They are the worst children I ever saw! It makes no difference how much I do for them, they scream whenever I touch them."

Father Byram stayed alone in his bedroom now the greater part of the time trying to bear the noise and confusion as well as he could, and gaying retiently and pathetically out over the noise and confusion as well as he could, and gazing patiently and pathetically out over the green fields from which his noisy visitors debarred him.

One hot, still morning his wife found herself unable to get out of bed. Her strength seemed to be all gone, and she could not so much as lift her head from her pillow. "Never mind," long ago."

"No, my father is very feeble this summer, and besides being unable to attend to his work long ago."

she said, "I am only tired. Tomorrow I shall be all right." But tomorrow came, and she was not all right, and when a neighbor came in to bring a letter from the post-office Maria sent him for the doctor. When the doctor came he said her vitality was very low. She was tired out—used up—and she must have rest, care and nursing; and even then he did not feel sure that she would rally.

Poor Maria! She felt that her burden was greater than she could bear. To lose her mother! and all on account of the thoughtless selfishness of those who called themselves friends, but who had willingly allowed her to work herself to death that they might have a good time. She could not speak, but silently gave the doctor the letter received that morning from her Aunt Sarah, asking if she and her daughter might come for a visit of a month.

"Great Scott!" cried the doctor, as he mastered the contents "I'll answer this letter myself, and tell your aunt that if she will come and help you nurse she will be welcome; otherwise not to dare to show her face. And you must get rid of all this tribe at once; at once! Do you hear me? I'd tell 'em myself, but your mother won't let me. She is afraid I'll be too harsh. Good gracious! my dear, you've got to be harsh with such people. They won't understand anything else," and the fiery little doctor threw himself into his buggy with a slam, and drove off still muttering to himself.

Hardly had the doctor gone when little Ernest came in dripping from head to foot, and with a cruel cut on his head. Malcolm Brooks had pushed him into the pond because he refused to climb a neighbor's apple tree and steal apples for him. This was the last stroke for Maria. She could work for these people, and put up with their impositions upon herself to please her mother; but to see her one treasure abused in this way by boys three or, four years older than he she could not and would not. Silently she carried him to her mother's room and rocked him, and bound up the bleeding head, and then bore him to her mother's room and rocked him, and bound up the bleeding head, and then bore him to her mother's room and rocked him, and bound up the bleeding head, an others' expense because she was too lazy to care for them, and too parsimonious to pay for it herself; and when she had finished she buried her face in her hands, and sobbed in utter shame and wretchedness at the misery of it all, while her cousins crept away without a word, to quiet their screaming children and pack their trunks for home.

Did her mother die? No. She crawled slowly back to health under the tender care given her by Maria and her sister Sarah. Maria gave up all thoughts of earning for herself that winter by taking boarders, and remained on winter by taking boarders, and remained on the farm with the old people; coaxing them back to life by every device in her power; and by spring the returning color in her mother's step gave her hope of success. But summer visitors were carefully invited, early in the spring, not to come that year, and all the long, sweet summer the family of farmer Byram imbered only four.

EVERY LADY READ THIS.

I will send free a positive cure for all female diseases, irregularities, etc. A simple home treatment, a common sense remedy that never fails. Free with valuable advice. Mrs. L. D. HUDNUT, South Bend, Ind.

Real Estate Wanted and for sale. If you want to sell or buy (no matter where located) send description and cash price and I will send (FREE) my successful plan. W. M. Ostrander, North American Building, Philadelphia. See my big ads. in all magazines.

FULL SIZE THE BEIGH GRADE SEWING MACHINE aranteed for 20 YEARS op Head Cabinet hand nely finished in carry ourselves and our Herba Pills

They are a sure cure for Heads etc. We are reliable and guarwe give you; and the Sewing Mac laim. Why buy a Sewing Mac Send us your name at once, also I office. We pay all express and other expense.

FROM

pense. HERBA CURA DRUG CO.

Dept. E2, 98 Maiden Lane, New York

Drunkard

for the Drink Habit, and will cost you nothin MILO DRUC CO., Dept 19. St. Louis, Mo.

PER WEEK easily made selling "Family Memorials," Wonderful seller, New method, Steady work, W. H. Midland Co., Montelair, N. J.

GET MARRIED $5 and 10 c. Many Rich Photos, etc. Free STANDARD COR. CLUB, Dept. 8, Station E, CHICAGO, ILL.

LADIES WANTED to work on Sofa Pillows. Materials carperience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to Miss S. McGee, Needle Work Dept., Ideal Co., Chicago, Ill.

LECANT

III is a Solid Cold Plated Watch with genuine American movement, fully warrant of to keep good time and with proper care it should wear and give satisfaction for 20 years. It has the appearance of a $40 Solid Gold one. The watch is accompanied with a 20 Year Guarantee and if it is not as represented we will buy it back at $10.00. Just the watch for a railroad man or those who want a close timer. We give it free as a premuun to ladies, boys and girls or anyone for selling 20 pieces of our handsome jewelry for 10 cts. each. Simply send your name and address and we will send you the jewelry postpaid; when sold send us the money, $2.00, and we will send you this elegant Watch postpaid. We trust you and will take back all We propose to give away 50,000 of these watches to case. This is an honest offer; no catch word about hat we say, and if you get to work quickly we will also send you a fine Gold Plated Chain. Write to-day. Address ERIE MFG. CO.. Dept. 22. Austin Station, CHICAGO.

KICK!

Foot Ball playing leads the van for real live sport, very best make, genuine large size rubber canvass Foot Balls, they are twenty-seven inches in circumference and made in the strongest and most thorough manner. Men, boys and everybody enjoy the exercise of Foot Ball and now all can enter into the sport. It is the most exhilarating amusement and healthful pastime agoing. Our charming monthly Comport has always some interesting accounts of all the leading sports in the world and many spicy, lively, college yarns that please young men and foot ball players especially. You will find it is very easy to get subscribers as Comport is the popular magazine everywhere at the proper price per year. Read this special control of the state of

AN ART GIFT FOR THE HOME.

There is nothing about a home as necessary as a fine duster. This picture shows the new All Wool Duster. Neat and convenient and so soft and clean that the daintiest article may be dusted with it without danger of scratching or scarring. Removes all dust without effort. Every duster may be hung in parlor where they make nice ornaments. Assorted Art Colors with highly finished wood handle firmly secured with Bright Aluminum Ferrule, that never tarnishes or grows dull. Will last for years and always just the handlest thing a woman can have in the house, or a man in the store or office. Make delighiful presents for your friends as a gift or souvenir. Agents will find them the best selling article in the market. Special terms for those who wish to sell. A GREAT OFFER FOR ALL. If you will send our magazine to the name you-furnish and send you one Wool Duster for your effort. The best offer ever made. Address GOLDEN MOMENTS, Augusta, Maine.

Everyone well pleased with what they ordered. Like my tea set very much; much nicer than any I have seen. MISS MOLLIE COX, Turon, Kans.

16

pay you. No money required. You risk absolutely nothing, as we send you the goods and premiums you select, pay the freight and allow you sufficient time to deliver the goods and collect for them before paying us. Write today for the easiest plan on earth to get anything you want ab. AMERICAN SUPPLY CO., Department 57.

ST. Louis, No.

Good success delivering goods;
im delighted with my skirt. Address me at Cleveland, Texas, in future.

MRS. M. M. WOOD.

Solutely free. AWLKICAN SUTL

Your goods came promptly to hand; are most elegant, My premium was really fine, I am much pleased with your easy plan.

MISS INEZ POLLARD,
Langston City, Okla.

Solutely free. AWLKICAN SUTL

Your goods came promptly to hand; are most elegant, My premium was really fine, I am much pleased with your easy plan.

MISS INEZ POLLARD,
Langston City, Okla.

MRS. EUNICE DANIELS, McComb City, Miss.

asing Powder, we will make a re, handsomely decorated and ewing Machines, Musical instru-also give cash commission. remiums to customers; it will we send you the goods and lime to deliver the goods and plan on earth to get anything id 808 North Main Street, tment 57

FOR A FEW HOURS' PLEASANT WORK SELLING OUR QUEEN BAKING POWDER.
Our inducements are enormous. To every purchaser of a pound can Queen Baking Powder we give FREE a beautiful PITCHER AND Latest cut glass pattern (like picture). To the lady who see all 16 pound cans Queen Baking Powder, giving free to each purchaser of a pound of Baking Powder, we will make a

I am more than pleased with the dinner set; they are simply handsome; words fail

CONDUCTED BY AUNT SARAH.

HE "Pie Belt" isn't bounded by any particular states, although we all think of New England when pie is mentioned; but it seems to be just as popular in one part of ourgreat and glorious country as another—also in the Mother Country—only by er there they call them "tarts." HE "Pie Belt" isn't "tarts."

While pie isn't as wholesome as fruit, or a simple cottage pudding for dessert, it is still in great demand, and the house-wife must know how mand, and the nouse-wife must know how to make light and delicate pastry, for if the family will have pie, it must be given them in as wholesome and digestible a condition as possible. For the benefit of those housewives who are willing to learn how to make it in the easiest manner and gain the desired result of lightness and delicacy, we give the following method for making plain paste and puff paste.

cacy, we give the following method for making plain paste and puff paste.

PLAIN PASTE.

Wash one-fourth cup butter and form in a circular piece. Add one-half teaspoon salt to one and one-half cups flour and work in one-fourth cup lard with the tips of the finger. Moisten to a dough with cold water. Toss on a board dredged sparingly with flour and roll out into a square piece one-fourth inch thick. Place the roll of butter on center of lower half of the paste. Cover the butter by folding the upper half of paste over it. Press edges firmly to enclose as much air as possible. Fold the right side of paste over the enclosed butter and the left side under enclosed butter; cover and let stand five minutes. Roll the paste out to one-fourth inch thickness, lifting often and dredging board with small amount of flour to keep it from sticking. Fold from ends to center, making three layers. Cover and let stand five minutes. Repeat twice, turning paste half way round each time before rolling. After fourth rolling fold from ends to center and double, making four layers. Put in a cold place to chill.

Puff paste is made in the same way, using one pound butter, one pound pastry flour and cold water.

The butter should be washed, to remove salt

The butter should be washed, to remove salt and buttermilk, thus making it of a waxy consistency and easy to handle. To wash butter: Scald and chill an earthen bowl. Heat the palms of the hands in hot water and chill in cold water, and then the butter will not adhere to the bowl or hands. Wash the butter in the bowl by squeezing with the hands until soft and waxy, placing the bowl under a cold water faucet and allowing the water to run.

Puff paste is used for patties, cheese straws, tarts, vol-au-vents, etc. The butter should be washed, to remove salt

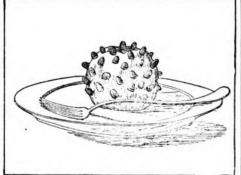

QUICK PASTE.

Mix three-fourths teaspoon salt with one and one-half cups flour. Cut in one-fourth cup of cottolene or cocoanut butter with a knife.

Moisten to dough with cold water. Toss on floured board, roll out and roll up like jelly roll. roll.

APPLE PIE.

Line a pie plate with paste. Pare, core and cut four or five sour apples into eighths; put row around plate one-half inch from edge and work toward center until the plate is covered,

BAKED APPLE WITH ALMONDS.

then pile on the remainder. Mix one-third then pile on the remainder. Mix one-third cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon grated nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon lemon juice and a few gratings of lemon rind, and sprinkle over the apples. Dot over with one teaspoon butter. Wet the edges of under crust, cover with upper crust (in which slits have been made to let the air out) and press edges together. Bake forty or forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

If evaporated apples are to be used instead of fresh ones, they should be soaked over night in cold water.

in cold water.
BLUEBERRY PIE.

Line a deep plate with plain paste; fill with two and one-half cups blueberries dredged with flour; sprinkle with one-half cup sugar and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Cover and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

CURRANT PIE.

Mix one-fourth cup flour with one cup sugar; add yolks of two eggs slightly beaten and diluted with two tablespoons water. Wash one cup currants, drain, remove and measure; add to first mixture and bake on one crust. Cool and cover with meringue. Cook in slow oven until lightly browned.

MERINGUE.

MERINGUE.

Beat whites of two eggs until stiff; add two tablespoons powdered sugar gradually and continue beating; then add one-half teaspoon lemon juice or one-fourth teaspoon vanilla.

Beat two eggs slightly, add three tablespoons sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt and one and one-half cups milk. Line deep plate with paste and build up fluted rim. Strain in the mixture and sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake in quick oven to set rim, and decrease the heat afterwards, as egg and milk in combination need to be cooked at a low temperature.

need to be cooked at a low temperature.

LEMON PIE.

Three-fourths cup sugar; three-fourths cup boiling water; three tablespoons corn-starch; two eggs; three tablespoons lemon juice; grated rind of one lemon; one teaspoon butter. Mix corn-starch and sugar, add boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook two minutes; add butter, egg yolks, rind and juice of lemon. Line plate with paste same as for custard pie. Turn in mixture after it has cooled and bake until filling is well browned. Cool slightly and cover with meringue; then return to oven and bake meringue. bake meringue.

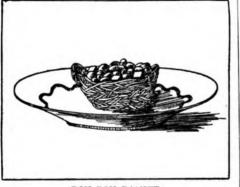

bake meringue.

SQUASH PIE.

Mix one-fourth cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, ginger or nutmeg, add one and one-fourth cups steamed and strained squash, and one egg, slightly beaten; then add seven-eighths cup milk gradually. Bake in one crust.

MINCE PIE.

Four pounds lean beef; two pounds beef suet; Baldwin apples; three quinces; three pounds sugar; two cups molasses, two quarts cider; four pounds raisins seeded and cut in pieces; three pounds currants; one-half pound finely cut citron; one quart cooking brandy; one tablespoon each of cinnamon and mace; one one tablespoon each of cinnamon and mace; one tablespoon powdered clove; two grated nutmegs; one teaspoon pepper; salt to taste.

BON BON BASKET.

Cover meat and suet with boiling water and cook until tender; cool in water in which they were cooked; the suet will rise to the top forming a cake of fat which is easily removed. Chop meat fine and add it to twice the amount of finely chopped apples. The apples should be quartered, cored and pared before chopping. Add quinces finely chopped, sugar, molasses, cider, raisins, currants and citron, also suet and stock in which meat was cooked, reduced to one and one-half cups. Heat gradually, stir and cool slowly two hours. Then add brandy and spices.

Mince pies should always be baked with two hould always be baked with two

Our illustrations show apples baked with Our illustrations show apples baked with almonds, and a basket made of orange straws and filled with bon-bons. The apples are prepared by coring and paring six or eight tart apples; let them simmer in a cup each of sugar and water boiled together three minutes, until tender; turn apples often to prevent breaking. If apples are rubbed with the cut side of a lemon it will keep them white while cooking. Set the apples in an agate pan and press into them blanched and split almonds. Brown in oven and serve hot with whipped cream.

CANDIED ORANGE PEEL. Soak the peel of orange in salted water for three days; drain and repeat three times. Cover with cold water, let boil and then drain thoroughly. Make a syrup of one pound sugar and one pint water; skim, and in it simmer one pound of peel, cut in thin strips, until tender, then boil rapidly and stir until covered with the sugar. Weave the strips while hot and pliable into small baskets in which to serve bon-bons.

Now for that delightful poem of the late Eugene Field.

APPLE PIE AND CHEESE.

Full many a sinful notion Conceived of foreign powers Has come across the ocean To harm this land of ours; And heresies called fashions

THE YANKEE FIRE KINDLER BUILDS 100 FIRES WITH 3 CENTS WORTH OF GOAL OIL NO KINDLINGS.
Warranted for three years constant use. Greatest seller for agents ever invented. Agents selling price 50 cts. Exclusive territory to workers. Ten kindlers sold per day nets agent $4.00 clear profit. Clarence J. Smith, of Middletown, Md., has just sent in his 32nd order, having sold $0.50 to worth in Frederick County, his exclusive territory. In every home there is

Have modesty effaced, And baleful, morbid passions Corrupt our native taste. O tempora! O mores! What profanations these That seek to dim the glories Of apple pie and cheese!

I'm glad my education
Enables me to stand Against the vile temptation
Held out on every hand.
Eschewing all the tittles
With vanity replete,
I'm loyal to the victuals
Our grandsire used to eat!
I'm glad I've got three willing boys,
To hang around and tease
Their mother for the filling joys
Of apple pie and cheese!

Your flavored creams and ices
And your dainty angel-food
Are mighty fine devices
To regale the dainty dude;
Your terrapin and oysters,
With wine to wash them down,
Are just the thing for roisters
When painting of the town;
No flippant, sugared notion Shall my appetite appease,
Or bate my soul's devotion
To apple pie and cheese!

The pie my Julia makes me
(God bless her Yankce ways!)
On memory's pinions takes me
To dear Green Mountain days;
And seems like I saw mother
Lean on the window-sill,
A-handin' me and brother
What she knows'll keep us still;
And these feelings are so grateful,
Says I, 'Julia, if you please,
I'll take another plateful
Of that apple pie and cheese!"

De gustibus, 'tis stated,
Non disputandum est.
Which meaneth, when translated,
That all is for the best.
Solet the feeling belong temporary So let the foolish choose 'em, The vapid sweets of sin, I will not disabuse 'em Of the heresy they're in; But I, when I undress me Each night, upon my knees Will ask the Lord to bless me With apple pie and cheese!

DEAR READER:

DEAR READER:

Pursuing our regular policy of making our magazines attractive we can promise many new features the coming season.

To extend the circulation of all our publications we have arranged a line of very attractive premiums in bound form for our customers and will gladly send a copy of our latest issue gratis to every one making their want known to this office on a postal card.

LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

PICTURES LIFE SIZE. Send 98c. and get a life crayon portrait copied from any picture. S. A. White, Timberville, Va.

TRENCH DOLL

the United States and Candan and we take this method of giving valuable method of g

IES I Make Big Wages

AT HOME—

and you can readily do the same, for the nit and will easily pay 418 weekly. I have often made nyour spare time is valuable. This is no deception.

es. Address THE G. O. PLASTER CO., Box 1229, Augusta, Mains.

A Big Lot of Real Silk and Plush Also Stamped Satin Factory EMNANTS Necktie FOR CRAZY PATCHWORK. Wer ork is on the advance. We know the ladies delight in d satin-"CRAZY QUILT" making is again VERY POPsilk and satim—"CRAZY Q'ILT" making is again YERY POPre sure we have a bargain that all ladies will now delight in.
o me, odd-shaped, and pretty colored goods accumulate very fast FACTORIES; the styles were never so bright and pretty as they past season and they are now burdened with remnants' of many RICH GOODS. We have thousands of pieces of silk and satin on hand. People at a distance have hard times getting the right assortment to put into sofa-pillows, quilts, etc., and we can help you out now. We want new readers to "COMPORT" and are going to dispose of this immense lot RICHT OFF to induce you to help us. Our packages contain from Wite 168 pieces of the best quality assorted goods, and we want to get a lot introduced into every home; then you can order as you like for your friends, and MAKE MONET doing our work and helping your friends, and MAKE MONET doing our work and helping your friends, and dides sell itdies, fancy pillows, etc., at a great work. Maily adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Maily adapted to all sorts of fancy, art, and needle work. Maily sell the property of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the conprice made from the control of the control of the con fit of the control of the control of the control of the con branch of the control of the control of the control branch of the control of the control of the con certain of the control of the control of the con certain of the control of the control of the control control of the control of the control of the control

control of the control of the control of the control

control of the control of t

Five Skeins Embroidery Silks Free. In order to work your stamped sain and other pieces we also send absolutely FREE, five skeins of elegant embroiders wilk, all different bright colors. This silk is worth a good price by itself; but we know if you ORDER ONE to we will sell many in your locality, to make this ofer besides giving you a large and elegant piece of Plush.

BEST WAY. We send ONE of the above complete assorted lots FREE as a premium to all who secure trial subscribers to our great 5 color manazine "COMPORT," "the best all round tome Months now published, and in order to get yo: to confirm Months prove published, and in order to get yo: to confirm the color pick even new book, With Eight Full-Page Illestantions, for ornamenting the seams there have so the has no equal. It shows how pieces for we cover up seam with facey stitches, how to join edges, etc. lifty of these besides directions for taking ART EM-sington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.

States, etc. It also tells how to do Kensington Painting.

Send us the name of only one new trial yearly subscriber to "COMPORT" at 25c. and we will send you a complete package as above free for your effort.

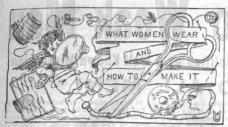

Send 36c. and names of two yearly subscribers and 15c. additional, 65c. in all, and we will send you three packages free postpaid.

Send $1.00 for a club of four yearly subscribers and we will send for the packages postpaid free.

Remember, each package contains one big lot (over 100 pieces) Silk Remants, assorted stamped sain pieces, 5 Skeins Embrollery cilk; large piece of elegant plush, and great embroidery book.

Address COMFORT, Silk Room 4, Augusta, Maine.

stamped satin pieces, 5 Sk cins Embroidery zffk; large piece of elegant plush, and great embroidery by the stamped satin pieces, 5 Sk cins Embroidery, Silk Room 4, Augusta, Maine.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

AND-PAINTING, as a decoration for gowns, daily becomes more popular. For inmore popular. For instance a dainty gown of crisp white taffeta trimmed with a multitude of little frills of white mousseline de soie, has, as a heading to these frills quite a wide band of handpainted flowers in delicate pinks and greens. When one is not naturally artistic or clever with the brush, there are the artificial blooms in cotton and silk fabrics for applique.

slik labrics for applique.

A clever girl, finding elbow gloves a considerable addition in expense and being not over blessed with pin-money buys those of ordinary length to which she adds fitted armiges of lace, black or white as the case may be ordinary length to which she adds fitted armiets of lace, black or white, as the case may be. The effect is smart, and quite as satisfactory as if she had paid the price for the long glove.

Then to dress the neck is more or less of a worry, especially now that collars are worn so much lower than has been the case in years. Bodices intended for indoor wear may be quite collarless, when the throat is sufficiently pretty; or, if lace is used on the gown, a single narrow band of the lace fitted to the neck and boned with tiny whale bones covered so as not to be seen or run through by a narrow velvet ribbon to keep it in place is quite correct. The day of the high stock has gone and we have rejoiced all summer—it's such a relief. Long ties of swiss muslin, or thin, soft silks, intended to pass around the neck and tie in a smart bow in front, are very serviceable and easily adjusted. They are made to wear without any stiff support and are wonderfully comfortable. The piece used to ercircle the throat is usually finely tucked to afford a slight body, while the ends are left plain.

Such wonderfully dainty negligees are made up of bands of lace and taffeta ribbon of equal width, finished with lace frills at the edge and down the front.

Coats, three-quarters in length will be pop-down the front.

Coats, three-quarters in length will be popular, later in the season. The coachman's cape is a feature of the fall coat and is universally becoming. It is a mistaken idea that only a slender figure can wear a loose box-coat, especially if it is short. The fact that the waist is not out-lined lessens the seeming size of the hips, and the result is good. For the home dressmaker they are a bonanza, to use a slangy expres-slangy expres-sion, they are so easy to fit; still a certain grace-ful curve is necful curve is necessary or the result is ruinous.

A new gown, direct from Paris is made of pale ciel blue wool, rather rough in texture. The entire skirt, which fits like a sheath down to the flounce is crossstitched with white giving the effect of quilting. This is carried out in the short bolero, while the remainder of the gown is as soft collar of white biege appliqued handsomely with yellow lace of a coarse pattern, furnishing an uneven edge. This collar is round and flat, and is caught together at the front by a soft knot and ends of pale blue crepe de chine. Large silver buttons of an antique design fasten the garment down the front.

fasten the garment down the front.
In Paris the fashion of wearing the hair low in the neck has become so universal that the old style, high on the head, seems remarkably passe. The hair is still combed back, a la pompadour, and pushed well forward by means of the sidecombs, but the mass of hair is gathered at the nape of the neck, and braided loosely or twisted into a figure eight and fastened snugly into place. A flat bow of black velvet, placed at just the right angle, is the popular mode of decoration, and proves most becoming. For evening wear the hair is worn low also, and made smart by the clever adjustment of a posie, made smart by the clever adjustment of a posie, or newer still, two small rosettes of ribbon placed on opposite sides of the braids.

Coats for fall made of velveteen or corduroy are exceedingly smart and most comfortable. They are quite long and perfectly loose, and with their big sleeves and collars are wonderfully picturesque.

The New Apron.

WRITTON FOR COMFORT

LARA May lived in a big square house with a large flower garden in front, and a big back garden behind, a nice side yard for her to play in and a big green field for her to pick daisies and buttercups in. There was a swing for her in the stable, a hammock in the front yard, a whole room full of playthings, a canary bird, a pussy cat, and whole trees full of birds which woke her in the morning by their in the morning by their sweet songs, and sung her to sleep again at night. She was a pretty little girl, with white hair that curled all over dd rosy cheeks.

little girl, with white hair that curled all over her head, blue eyes and rosy cheeks.

In the house with Clara lived her mamma, her grandma and grandpa, her Aunt Sasie, Uncle Dave. Uncle Ned, Cousin Sam, and Mary, the cook. Papa was away at sea.

In the next house lived Lottie May, who was just as old as Clara, but who had brown hair, brown eyes, and the prettiest little dimple in her chin. Lottie had only her papa and mamma in the house with her, and she thought it rather unfair that Clara should have so many people in the house while she had so few.

There was a fence between Clara's yard and Lottie's yard, so that the two little girls could not get at each other without going away down to the gate and round by the street to the other gate and up the other yard, and they were continually running away to do so.

One day when Uncle Ned was coming home to dinner he found little Lottie away down the street, trudging along alone.

"Where are you going little one?" said he.

"Oh, I am going to see Caga and show her my new apen."

"But you are going the wrong way. You won't get to Clara's house this way."

"Oh, 'es I will. I is doin 'ee millpond way to det some daisies for her."

U n cle N ed thought the front

aaaaaa

(10)

Uncle Ned thought the front way would be the safest, and so he picked Lottie up in his arms and carried her home, telling her mother, whom he met at the gate looking for her, that he would hand her over the fence as soon as she had showed Clara her new apron.

Next day Clara trotted over to the fence and called to her little friend:—"Dottle, where 'oo det 'oo new apen?"

"My mamma buyed it down to Mr. Percy's store

"Has he dot any more?"
"Es, heaps of 'um."
"Oh, dear," said Clara, "I wis my mamma would buy me one, but she says I've dot 'nuff remainder of the gown is as soft as crepe in its clinging effect.

For early fall wear, coats of black peau de soie in three-quarters length are fetching and wonderfully serviceable. Taffeta jackets have been so universally worn they are really common. A smart long coat of peau de soie is made halffitted at the back and with a deep circular flounce, wider at the back than the front. The lining is white brocade with dashes of pale blue as a ground-work and there is an enormous on the street to Clara's home, and he knew that the two small girls must have run away from their mammas; so he stopped his horse and spoke to them.

"Good morning, little women; where are you going so feet?"

"Good morning, fittle women; where are you going so fast?"
"Oh," said Clara, "we's doin down to 'oo store to det me a apen like Dottle's."
"Indeed! then I'm very glad that I came glad that I came along. Now you both jump right in here with me, and we'll go down to the store for it and then I'll take you home."

So with great delight the children allowed themselves to be lifted into the themselves to be lifted into the wagon, and away they all went to the store, where kind Mr. Percy not only allowed Clara to select an apron for herself "just like Dottle's", but he presented each of them with a lovely "hankvish" with a pink border of pussy cats. Then he drove them home as fast as he could, for he knew that their mammas must be hunting everywhere for their runaway daughters.

Next day Lottie's papa sawed a piece right out of the fence between the two houses so that the little girls need not be obliged to go around by the street to get to each other, and he put a strong fastening on each of the street gates, which the little hands could not open, and so Lottie and Clara could not run away any more.

NOVEL and successful experiment with the Roentgen rays has been tried in the French custom house. The rays were turned upon unbroken packages of goods, revealing the contents with perfect accuracy. The result cannot but be beneficial to both custom officers and to the traveling public. The officers are saved a vast amount of work, and the search is more thoroughly carried out by means of the rays, as nothing can be concealed from them; while on the other hand travelers are saved the annoyance of having their baggage opened and tumbled about.

T is said that the sweet pea flower is an excellent safeguard against flies, as these insects cannot bear its odor. There are two varieties which are particularly offensive to flies, and it is strongly advised that they should be cultivated in sick-rooms, as they will furnish a great relief to the patient by keeping these troublesome little pests out of the room. These two varieties are the lathyrus maritimus, which grows near the seacoast from New Jersey away round to Oregon, and beside maritimus, which grows near the seacoast from New Jersey away round to Oregon, and beside the shore of the Great Lakes. Its flowers are purple in color. The other, the lathyrus ochroleucus, is found on the hillsides from New England to Minnesota, and even further west, and is of a yellowish white color.

materials will be

VALUABLE BOOK FREE M. PHILIPSBORN, 138 State St., CHICAGO.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CURES

Pains, Backache, Inflammations Weak Lungs, Headache, Nervousness, Nervousness, Constipation and other ills. No internal attachment; no mediclne; no heavy expense; no publicity; nothing objectionable; worn with or without conset; perfectly comfortable.

Rexburg, Idaho, July 9, 1900.

In a living, walking advertisement of the Natural Brace. It cured me when all else failed. My nts were falling womb, backache and general female MRS. D. W. CHARLES."

The Natural Body Brace Co., Box 27 Salina, Kansas.

30 DAYS TRIAL FREE

LADIES To DO SEWING AT HOME; paid; send stamped addressed envelope for sample and particulars. R. W. HUTTON & Co., Dept. 4, Phila, Pa.

GET MARRIED. 10,000 LADIES ARE Many very rich and beautiful. Send stamp for big sealed list, giving full description and residence. Satisfaction guaranteed. STAR AGENCY, No. 415, Austin, III.

A Remarkable Remedy which cures old standing ases of Baldness. Restores gray hair to its natura olor without dyeing, stops hair falling, eradicate andruff, cures weak eyebrows and eyelashes, scan y partings and all scalp humors, from whateve anse arising.

FREE. The price of Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Abelian Scalp Soap, 25c. per bar, but we send A FREE THIAL OF these grand treatments together with testimonials and full particulars how to cure all hair and scalp troubles, and restore gray hair to its natural color without dyeing, on receipt of 5c. to cover Lorrimer & Co., PEPT. Baltimore, Md. 118-120

Free Trial Coupon

ARS AND 95 CTS BUYS THIS FIVE-DRAWER SOLID POLISHED ANTIQUE OAK CARINET DROPHEAD Cenuine OHIO SEWING MACHINE.

found perfectly satisfactory, strictly high grade and equal to sewing machines that retail at $30.00 to $40.00, then pay the railroad agent our special price $8.95 and freight charges, if YOU SEND $8.95 WITH YOUR ORDER you will save $0 to 50 cents express charges on return of money to us, (nearly everyone s.nds cash in full). THREE MONTHS' FREE TRIAL your money any time within three months if you become dissatisfied for any reason. EVERTY MACHINE CUARANTEED FOR 20 YEARS. ONLY $8.95 ABONANZA CHANGE FOR MERGHANTS. DEALERS AND AGENTS ABONANZA CHANGE FOR MERGHANTS. DEALERS AND AGENTS WILL ASTONISH YOU, WRITE SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL:

LADIES to do piece work at their homes. We furnish all material and pay from $7 to $12 weekly. Experience unnecessary. Send stamped envelope to ROYAL CO., Desk C., 34 Monroe St., Chicago.

$250 will be paid to the person selling the most of our elegant monograms for marking linen before Dec. first. Send 25 cents for sample outfit. Every lady needs one. Buffalo Monogram Co., 394 Jersey St., Buffalo, N.Y.

Ladies Make $8 to $10 weekly in their own homes. We furnish all materials. Experience unnecessary. Pleasant work. No Canvassing. Send stamped envelope. Co-Operative Home Work Co., 40 Dearborn, Chicago.

FREE! Fun and Money. FREE! DROP A PENNY IN THE SLOT. Golden Moments is a bright, home monthly that has been published for cutertaining and instructive receivers. It is full of interesting, different depenments are edited by the best talent. We can send the top the best talent. We can send the top the best talent. We can send the following Premium Office of the following Process of the following Office of Office off

R WE GIVE IT FREE Mum

watch. We true you am.
sell. We propose to give away those watcher simply to seal. We propose to give away those watcher simply to seal. We propose to give away those watcher sell in the advertisement. WALTER S. SIMPSON. New York.

METAL HERO KNIFE

Two solid best of steel blades, bright me handle, strongly riveted, without bolsters, be but two parts and nothing to break, g ing the knife a smooth, thin appearan knife a smooth, thin appearance,
This is not a clumay woodsman's knife but suitable for a gentleman's vest pocket, or desk or the school boy and in every way will be found practical and servicesble. Makes a most acceptable present for father or brother and is something very law a very away and an avery and an avery and an pleasure to the Creiver. new style thin knife that just fits the pocket without making holes in the cloth. Better for vest pocket use than scissors and given absolutely free as a present.

FREE Oxien Arnica Court Plaster, we will send seven wallets Free. Each handy pocket wallet contains an assorted tof different colored court plaster and although a regular life. Store a few and the court plaster and although a regular HOSE OF LOYE. THOSE OF LOYE

An Army of Heroes.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

MERICA is justly proud of her brave boys in blue. But another and vaster army steadily and just as bravely daily marches forward in the cause of humanity—marches without the inspiration of mithe inspiration of uni-formed regiments and martial music, with-out the flutter of flags, and the cheers of the populace, but in every day attire, in solitary company, wages valiant battle against the despotism of ignorance and disease. I refer to the common country physician.

physician.

Each diploma grants the possibility of becoming a medical Dewey, but each physician knows that only an infinitesimal per cent. ever receive fame however much they may deserve it, and that ninety per cent. must, perforce, spend their lives in little country towns.

It is of this ninety per cent. we speak, misjudged frequently because their inner life and motives are so largely unknown. Most have one or two motives for adopting the noblest and most arduous profession: an inborn love of the work, an intellectual fascination for building up the intricate human machine; or, that and most arduous profession: an inborn love of the work, an intellectual fascination for building up the intricate human machine; or, that highborn love of humanity that leads a man to give years of hard study preparatory to a life of service and usefulness, a life like the Master's in that daily duty is doing inexpressibly difficult and disagreeablethings for the suffering. A good conscience is its own reward—and too frequently the physician's only reward. He must learn to endure hardness with patience if he would win. This is burned into his experience again and again.

There is no time day or night the active physician does not hold himself in readiness to answer calls, be it far or near, fair weather or foul, 98 degrees in the shade or twenty-eight below zero, roads good or almost impassable, be the patient a pay patient or one who cannot pay, be the illness serious or only a nervous freak. Only those who have tried it know what it is to be on duty seven days in the week—as a physician necessarily is.

If there is any class which needs the comfort and strength of religion it is they, yet if he attends church and is frequently called out professionally, it is said to be an advertising dodge, so, too frequently, he stays away altogether. Often a diversion of creed keeps pastor and physician from working shoulder to shoulder—to the detriment of the usefulness of each.

Because a physician is paid (and his fee is Because a physician is paid (and his fee is gauged by store prices of farm produce) many people feel they own their physician body and soul. Most physicians feel their best professional service is all the patient is entitled to, and decidedly object to being considered common property, owned by a stock company of invalids.

If patients recover many times the physician is credited with the cure. In equally many instances credit is given to the ministrations of some universal "aunt" or for reasons climatic some universal "aunt" or for reasons climatic or constitutional.

If the results are unfavorable it is almost always the doctor's fault. It is more because the medicines were taken irregularly, or the exposure, the results are critical period. Knowing the cause of failure to be other than himself, still the physician has no alternative but silently to bear the blame that is not his.

Comparatively few country people permit themselves to realize what every well-read physician knows that excepting acute and surgical cases, hygienic laws are worth as much to them as medicine. They won't believe the physician's advice of a diet, bathing, exercise and sanitation generally is worth more than his drugs. Many a man pays a dollar for a big bottle of nauseous stuff for his "liver" who could free himself from indigestion by the simple observance of hygienic laws. The physician who is brave enough to intimate a lack of personal cleanliness usually finds his advice supurpolar the patient betakes himself in high single observance of hyghenic laws. The paysician who is brave enough to intimate a lack of personal cleanliness usually finds his advice spurned, or the patient betakes himself in high dudgeon to a doctor "what knows doctorin"."

A great drawback to his professional success is the dearth of trained nurses, for it is the almost invariable custom in rural communities for neighbors to "take turns" in the care of the sick. With the best of intentions and all kindness of heart these self constituted nurses are not always a blessing. Not only because they sometimes forget directions, and at others "take matters into their own hands," but oftentimes they don't know the essentials of good nursing, noiseless movements, quiet and calm in crises, how to change the linen, and give baths without subjecting the patient to chill or draft, how properly to prepare gruels, broths, jeli's, etc., while country prejudice is a solid bulwark against the use of ice water and cold packs in cases of inflammation and fever.

The greatest hardships are not purely physical. People day realize the constant de-solid bulwhick against the use of ice water and cold packs in cases of inflammation and fever. The greatest hardships are not purely physical. People dor realize the constant demands on a physi n's sympathy, or the depressing influence of case after case of acute suffering—in so many instances the patient is beyond permanent help. The wrongs he sees inflicted upon the helpless which he is powerless to prevent, the tragedies he alone knows and sometimes even crimes that he is asked to be party to, and because he refuses to make base uses of a noble science his own character is smirched in baffled revenge, all these things test the metal of the man. Fortunately in most cases the metal rings true. They don't realize the tremendous strain on a man who performs surgical operations when the deviation of a hair's breadth is a question of sight or blindness, of life or death. They don't realize how it saps the vital forces to sit many hours without once removing the eyes from a patient that no subtle change may escape his notice, one hand on the ebbing pulse, the other administering stimulants as needed in the hand to hand fight with death, sitting in heat, or cold, or draft as may be best for the patient without one minute's respite lest the last great change come in the momentary unwatchfulness. They can't realize the anxiety of having patients day after day whose lives are swaying in uncertainty between here and the beyond, where even his utmost endeavors can be of no avail. These are some of the things not included in the bill. Most physicians will bear witness that in half some of the things not included in the bill.

Most physicians will bear witness that in half the cases this is the last bill to be paid.

Patients expect and need the sympathy and Patients expect and need the sympathy and loyalty of their physicians. Do they reflect that in an equal measure, the physician needs theirs? Do patients often thank a physician for giving up a longed-for trip or calling when he should himself be in bed and cared for, to save their temporarily changing doctors? When some illnatured gossip or damaging report is current (and such remarks are made of every physician), does the patient promptly every physician), does the patient promptly say, "I credit no such rumor. I believe Dr. Smith did his best."

There is no filth or disease so loathsome, no place so poor or vile but the physician must go there, or be branded a coward, though possithere, or be branded a coward, though possibly not another respectable person in town will risk their reputation by crossing the threshold. It is a physician's business to heal complaints but patients should make their complaints to him—not of him. Patients are free to tell him when his medicines are not palatable, when they don't relieve, when he hurts in the treatment, that he didn't come when he said he would and for no good reason, all of which may be strictly true. But when the firm touch is gentle, when the obstinate disease is conquered is it any less fair to tell your physician that?

that?
The common country physician should be a strong man intellectually and morally, whose purity of character and life inspires the respect and trust of all, for he has thousands of opportunities to do good that no other human being can have. The man who brings you into this world, who all the way along pulls you through all the physical crises of life, who knows more of your sorrows than any but the very nearest kin, whose firm hand takes your last heart throb, this man should be (and in more cases than we always realize, is) a tower of strength in a community.

"Not to him who rashly dares, But to him who nobly bears, Is the victor's garland sure."

The American Chair Industry.

HE American chairmaking industry, one of the most important of the interests which have made our country famous, was founded early in the nineteenth century in one of the New England States. Four brothers had for some years been engaged in the manufacture of chair stock, and finally in the year 1830 they purchased a and finally in the year 1830 they purchased a small factory in Gard-ner, Mass., and there was laid the founda-tion of the present immense business, immense business, in the production of this furniture.

The writer spent some hours recently inspecting the various departments of the concern, and while it would be impossible to relate a tenth part of the interesting points connected with the business in the present brief article, still, a general idea of the business can be presented to the readers of COMFORT.

The stock used in the manufacture of chairs business in the present brief article, still, a general idea of the business can be presented to the readers of Comport.

The stock used in the manufacture of chairs is for the most part oak and maple, though other woods are occasionally handled. It comes from the mill sawed to the right size and shape, the length varying from six inches to six feet. In the Gardner factories alone there is used annually over 25,000,000 feet. Having been thoroughly dried in kilns, it is sent to a department where it is shaped into the various parts that go to make up a chair, spindles, rungs, backs, seats, etc. The parts that require bending are placed in a sort of boiler and made supple by the action of steam, after which they are easily bent into any required shape.

Numerous machines are used in the finishing of the wood, all ingenious and worthy of attention, but none more so than one designed for imitating hand carving. The back of the future chair, it may be, is introduced into this machine, which is in reality a great press of enormous power fitted with dies of almost every conceivable design. An instant of pressure and the plain wood is transformed into a richly carved back, more regular and certainly as beautiful as the best hand-workman can produce. This machine is capable of turning out five thousand backs daily.

The different parts having been rounded out and finished, they are sent to a department called the assembling-room, where the chair is put together.

The cane and rattan that is used in the manufacture of the seats and other portions of the chair, come from swampy forests in the East Indies, Sumatra, Borneo and other adjacent islands. It is a species of the palm tree and grows to a great height, though rarely over an inch in diameter. Free from knots and peculiarly tough, it is splendidly adapted for the use to which it is put. It reaches the factory in bundles of about one hundred pieces each, doubled in the middle and securely tied.

Formerly this rattan was prepared entirely by hand, the outer coating bei of the time, more accurately and less waste-

In the early days of chair-making the strips In the early days of chair-making the strips of cane were woven into the so-called Chinese pattern by hands, a slow, laborious process; machinery has done away with the most of this at the present time, however, the seats and backs being woven in much the same manner as textile fabrics. The strips of cane are first joined together by means of small metallic despressions and wound processing the strips of small metallic despressions. metallic clasps and wound onto great spools. These spools are sent to the weaving room where they are woven into the cane fabric, the strands crossing each other at right angles. Up to the present time there has been no machine devised that would weave the octagonal design, known as the Chinese pattern, hence it is necessary to weave the diagonal strands by hand, girls on each side of the cane fabric inserting a needle in the proper meshes, this needle leaving behind a single strand of cane. This having been accomplished, it is sent to the department where the frames are ready for

The cane fabric having been secured to the frame, the chairs are now ready for the finishing touches, some going to the staining and varnishing departments, others being reserved

Proclamation to Weak Men

Charity, the Noblest Impulse of Man, Exemplified by a Well Known Missourian.

SENT FREE TO ALL MEN!

W. S. Harter, an honored and influential citizen of Nevada, Mo., makes a statement and an overgenerous offer that comes in the shape of a proclamation of health to all afflicted with lost vitality and its kindred allments. His case was a most pitiable one, by reason of continual drainage, his constitution was weakened to such a degree that it was impossible for him to perform his duties. He spent hundreds of dollars for remedies and to specialists, but could not regain his vitality or check the awful drainage. One day a brother lodge member called his attention to a remedy, in fact, implored Mr. Harter to take the remedy for his affliction; he did so, and in one month's time was entirely cured, his constitution rejuvenated and his vitality regained. Today he is a man in every sense which that word would imply. Mr. Harter is not what one would call an immensely rich man, but his gratitude for this marvelous remedy is so great that he says he intends making his life's labor that of putting this remedy in the hands of all those afflicted as he was. Mr. Harter, being a very conscientious man, thought perhaps the for shipment "in the wood." to be finished in the hands of all those afflicted as he was. Mr. Harter, being a very conscientious man, thought perhaps the for shipment "in the wood," to be finished upon arriving at their destination. The majority of the chairs that are to be shipped any considerable distance are put together without glue, so that they can be "knocked down" for shipment in the closest possible form.

It is interesting to note the characteristics of the different nations as revealed by the style of chairs which they import. The Germans demand a heavily built chair, quite in keeping with their personality. The French desire a lighter construction, contrasting strongly with their neighbors, the Germans. Goods sent to Cuba, Mexico and Spain are almost entirely of light colored wood and are made in sets that match. The Netherlands, Belgium and Dutch Colonies seem to follow the German style, while the Japanese are more like the French.

The acorn of seventy years ago has grown into the great oak. The business started in a small room in a country village has spread out until today thousands of hands are employed in the mother-town alone, all working together to preduce something they will make life easier.

in the mother-town alone, all working together to produce something that will make life easier others-a chair, an American chair, the disease, Lost Vitality and its kindred ailments, absulutely free, the means which directed him to heaith and contentment. At Nevada, Mo., there is located State Asylum No. 3, in which there are at present about 70 patients; Mr. Harter claims that upon good authority by is informed that about 75 per cent of these unfortunates lost their minds through this disease, and the awful drainage brought upon them. With this awful picture ever before him, he believes it is his duty to humanity to save those now upon a brink of destruction, which is much worse than death. Any reader sending his name and address to Mr. W. S. Harter, 232 Ash Street, Nevada, Mo., will receive without delay, and free of charge, this wonderful knowledge.

The Little Princess preparation enlarges the Bust safely, surely, permanently. Costs little, easy to use, Always Effective. Works like nature. $1.00 postpaid. Booklet for stamp. The Regent Co., Springfield, Mass.

Pimples. Get rid of them for 10c. Perfectly harmless Leaves the skin soft and smooth. Send (10c. coin) and 4c postage. Address Pure Chem. Co., Box 575, Oshkosh, Wis CONTRACT PROVIDING FOR PAYMENTS WEEKLY BY OLD RELIABLE FIRM, ESTABLISHED 12 YEARS. Also 6 more State Managers for office work at home. No capital or experience required. Any worthy Man or Woman desiring a good paying position with no Canvasing to should write at once. We allow $3.00 a day for expenses in addition to payments produced for in contract of $83.33 per month, and share profits on business. As soon as arrangements are completed for you to begin, we send first work in grantees. reclate the confidence reposed in them and who desire to be house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house. Address with references and rell treated and have an opportunity to build up with the house.

WOMAN'S DELIGHT AND MAN'S PRIDE.

An Article in which Luxury and Utility are Harmoniously Blended.

BEAUTIFUL IN DESIGN, CONSTRUCTION AND USE.

A writing desk and bookcase are indispensable in every home. We are enabled to make it possible for every reader of this paper to obtain a fashionable and luxurious article of furniture which will be of use every hour in the day, and, which by its rich elegance and tasteful appearance, will prove an ornament in every home

THE ELITE WRITING DESK AND BOOKCASE

THE ELITE WRITING DESK AND BOOKCAS is richly designed in the artistic and graceful Modern-A Style that is the correctistyle in the homes of wealthy and fast ionable people in society. It is built of clear, solid oal in a thorough and substantial manner, and will last century with ordinary care, growing handsomer as the wood constantly improves with age. It is 5 feet in height, and 2 feet 6 inches in width. Four large, deep shelves for books or vases and bric-a-brac; and a splendid desk with folding top, full compliment of pigeon-holes and receptacles for paper, envelopes, letters, bills, securities, etc. In fact, a perfect and complete secretary for the library, the office, the parlor, or anywhere where an ornamental desk is needed. The most desirable premium ever offered to the people at a popular cost, and everyone guaranteed satisfactory.

SPECIAL OFFER. We give away this beautiful Desk premium for a small club of subscriptions and if you will send only 30 trial yearly subscribers at 15c. each we will send our charming magazine one year to each and one desk to you as a premium. Or you may send 18 two year subscriptions at 25c. each and we will send magazines and premium as above. We will send this splendid premium for only $5.00 cash, freight charges only to be paid by the receiver on arrival. This piece of furniture is and protected before shipment is made. Address ranteed and will be carefully packed LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

In the purple October, dear cousins, and a onth of the Autumn gone. I wonder if the lling leaves and the dying summer make you d. I fancy they do, or you would not be like sybody else in the world. However, we have time to be sad, and we should thank God or that. Now let us go to work.

The first to arrive is Senior of Columbus, Kans., ho has a girl friend and a man friend, who are not a terms with each other, and as this embarrasses ar she wants to know which to give up. Don't give peither. If either want to let you go, let that one take the break. (2) Better graduate at the High chool than to lose it for $2 a week.

chool than to lose it for $2 a week.

Clover, Lisbon Falls, Me.—It is not right to accept ne man's escort and go home with another, hether you like him or not. (2) Wait at least half n hour for an expected caller from a distance. (3) [ou may ask a man for his picture.

Ray and Gay, Blythe, Pa.—If he is too bashful to rrite after your telling him he might, he is not sorth bothering about. (2) Treat the man as you sould any other. It is for him to make the ad-

Romance, Sunnyside, Cal.—The man pays the way f he asks you to go to the picnic.

Sally, Lakota, N. D.—Not so very. (2) I do not now that it is very impolite for a gentleman to snap a lady's handkerchief."

Shap a lady's nandkerchief."

S. H., Reading, Pa.—"Miss A. may I introduce (or resent) Miss C." would be the formal way. Friends re much less conventional.

Puss, Coleta, Ills.—Write to Music Dep't. Compar, or to any music dealer advertising in Compar.

Pocahontas, Paris, Me.—Yes, and silly besides.
2) Don't ask the man whom your parents dislike o call.
(3) Yes.
Babe, Sperl, Minn.—A ring might do for a paristmas present, but there are better things.

Cinderella, Lewiston, Me .- No to all your ques-

Mabel and Grace, Prentiss, Wis.—I did not think mere were any girls in Wisconsin quite as silly as

Lessie, Portsmouth, Va.—You can wear almost

Doris, Warsaw, Cal.—Massage is good for wrinkles und lines in the face. (2) Don't try any chemicals in superfluous hair. A wash of the leaves and roots of celandine is said to be good. Make a compress und lay on over night until the hair is removed.

3) Sunday is calling day for men, but not for women.

Madge, Galesburg, Ills.—You ought to be ashamed of yourself for letting him kiss you.

Columbine, Aurora Springs, Mo.—Moonlight picnics are only proper when there are chaperones.

(2) Young men of eighteen are scarcely company for girls of twenty-eight, I should think. (3) Be polite to the man so long as he is polite to you, but have no friendship. (4) Yes.

Bye bye, Midland, Va.—A young man of twenty-three is not too old. (2) You were quite right in refusing to kiss your siter's sweetheart.

Broken Heart. Ft. Benton. Mont.—You cannot

Broken Heart, Ft. Benton, Mont.—You cannot be any unhappier by marrying the young man you love, and you had better marry him and get away from your cruel father.

Pauline, Ellington, Mo.—No. (2) The young man's first duty is to you. (3) Not unless in a group man's first duty is to you.

Rose and Pink, Circleville, O.—Thank your escort imply and talk to him as usual. You should not have escorts if you do not know how to entertain them.

Innocence, Lowell, Ind.—I cannot answer your question. It is one that each person must answer for herself. I think I would tell the man.

Sunflower, Kinsley, Kans.—It will be all right to accept the loan of the buggy. (2) The best method of making yourself attractive to young men is by not trying to.

Dolly, Altoona, Cal.—Dress to your shoe-tops, or a little lower, and braid your hair. (2) You did right in snubbing the young man.

Lonely Flora, Roscommon, Mich.—Better not talk to your sister's beau while she is away, unless she wants you to. (2) Exchanging articles of jewelry with young men is often done, but it is not always in the best of taste. (3) Yes, ask the young man to call. (4) There is no rule about calling men by their first names. It depends on many things. Not at all with most men.

Maurien, St. Reul, Minn. Don't sing there are not to the state of the state Maurien, St. Paul, Minn.—Don't sing "love songs to the gentlemen." (2, More than a good complexion is required to make girls attractive. (3) A girl may write to a man she does not intend to marry. (4) It is not good form to chew gum any where.

May Bloom, La Grange, Ind.—A girl of eighteen may write to a man of thirty. (2) Exchanging "tokens of friendship" depends on the tokens. (3) Let the man ask you to write to him.

E. L. H. M., Appleton, Wis.—Ithink there is nothing in that old fortune-telling "fake" of the Bible and the key.

M.J. W., Eddyville, Ore.—Don't make a practice of standing on the road talking to the young man. It is his place to come to see you, at home. (2) Some young people talk at the gate for hours. There is no rule. (3) Once a week is enough for a man to call who is merely a friend, but there is no rule.

Snow Flake, Courtlandt, Minn.—Your mother should have spanked you for kissing the young Queenie, Echo, La.—It is very foolish to let your-self fall in love with a man whom you know only by letter. If he is honest he will visit you. Then introduce him to your parents.

Kathryn, New Paris, O.—Don't worry about the young man. If you don't hear from him, forget him. Let him keep your letters unless you are ashamed of them. ashamed of them.

Anxious, Lombardsville, Ohio.—If you are young, I think you might risk a few lessons in drawing, but take them from a regular teacher.

Blue Eyes, Brownwood, Texas.—Use your own sense and say what your heart tells you to. Coquettes, Mewis, Mo.-Girls of fourteen and fitteen should devote themselves to books, not beaus.

Fritze, Laurel, S. D.--Girls of sixteen should not marry men of any age. You will have trouble enough without beginning so early. (2) First come, first served is the rule. That will make the one you like best try to be first. (3) Diet, exercise and washing your face in milk.

Unhappy, Ute, Iowa.—It is proper to thank a man for any courtesy that he extends to you. Thank him for the engagement ring, too, but can't you give a little more than mere thanks? (2) Merely tell the other man with thanks that you have company.

Apple Blossom, Ironton, Mo.—Don't advertise for a husband. Just wait and the right one will come after you. It will not kill you even if he does not. (2) A grand-uncle is your grand parent's brother. (3) Conversation is carried on with deaf persons by signs on the fingers or lips.

signs on the fingers or lips.

Pansy Star, Norfolk, Va.—The boy is either a knave or a fool, and you are silly to have anything more to do with him. Make him explain himself openly, or drop him entirely.

Joe and Jeannette, Steward, Ills.—I do not think you are crazy, but for seventeen year old girls you ask questions that would indicate you were very nearly being feeble-minded.

Sporty, Pine Forest, Va.—Don't let the young man kiss your hand. (2) Engaged people, married people and near kin may kiss each other. (3) If you know the young man quite well it is prudent to drive into the country with him. P. S. Why do you call yourself "Sporty"? It is not a nice word.

you call yourself "Sporty"? It is not a nice word.

S. A., Hecter, Minn.—The answer to all of your questions is that there is no arbitrary form for such things, and you may do as you please, so long as you do it kindly and politely.

Alumnae, Columbus, Kans.—Of course you may accept refreshments from a man you do not know, who is waiting on a crowd of people most of whom he does know. Did you ever hear the story of the lady who drowned because she had never met the man who reached into the water to save her? (2) It would seem to me that the class, not the Principal should say what it would do.

Lily of the Vale, New York City.—The girl is very forward, and you ought to help the young man snub her as she deserves to be snubbed. (2) The lady takes the man's arm.

Green Sweetheart, Bridgewater, S. D.—Accept all the attention you can get from other young men and that will bring yours around in a hurry, or drive him away altogether, which, in this case, is better.

Buttercup and Daisy, South Lancaster, Mass.— Let the young man get acquainted with you. If he wants to meet you he will find a way, if he is any good at all.

good at all.

Starlight, Manhattan, Kans.—Eighteen is too young to be engaged, though some women are married earlier than that. (2) It is one of the unsolved problems how to get rid of a man you like, but don't love, without offending him. (3) Wear long dresses. (4) Better trust your parents on the man question, for the present. P. S. Tell sunshine to ask her mother the questions she asks me.

Miami Belle, Brookville, Ohio.—If you love the little man, marry him, no matter how tall you are.

Love isn't to be measured with a yardstick.

There, my dears, all your questions are answered, and I hope they will be of as much value as I want them to be. By by, and may the good Lord keep you.

Cousin Marion.

A CURE FOR ASTHMA.

A CURE FOR ASTHMA.

Asthma sufferers need no longer leave home and business in order to be cured. Nature has produced a vegetable remedy that will permanently cure Asthma and all diseases of the lungs and broughial tubes. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases (with a record of 90 per cent. permanently cured), and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all sufferers from Asthma. Consumption, Catarrh, Bronchitis and nervous diseases, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail. Address with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 847 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

THE LIGHTEST METAL

in the world is Aluminum. You have no idea how well it is adapted to every-day use unless you have one of our Frosted Silver Finish Aluminum Pencils, vest pocket size, patent lead protecting delivery when not in use, can be concealed and prevent lead from breaking. A business man's pencil, a ladies' pencil, or for school children there is no equal. To get our big catalogue of novelties into new hands we will send one for only 5c.

Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

Spanish Needles, Rods, Goldometors for locating Gold, Silver and hidden treasures.
Our instruments are the best, Catalogue 2 cents. B. G. Stauffer, Dept. C, Harrisburg, Pa.

The Marine Band.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE Marine Band of Washington has quite HE Marine Band of Washington has quite a national reputation. This large organization is a part of the regular service of the United States, and being stationed at the Capital is constantly in demand for public and social functions of various kinds. It is but just to say that they never fail, no matter how trying may be the service into which they may be called.

Musicians in the United States service, military or naval, receive regular pay, and, in ad-

Musicians in the United states service, mintary or naval, receive regular pay, and, in addition to this, are allowed under certain rules to add to their income by playing for civilians or others for pay. In this way they earn good salaries and, as a consequence, the bands in the services become very proficient from regular practice.

reactice.

The Marine Band is a very popular organization and plays for the President at the White House on all public occasions; so that they have become very well known to people visithave become very well known to people visiting Washington, where they are present at most of the larger social affairs. This band plays on the White House ground every Easter Monday for the children, who for that day are allowed to "roll" eggs on the broad lawn and to have a general holiday. The piece of music published upon another page is one that was played by this noted band at President Mc-Kinley's second inaugural and received great applause. It is now of much interest on account of the feeling awakened by the recent tragedy, which makes everything relative to the late President pleasing.

LOCK Island, situated fifteen miles off the shore of the state of Rhode Island, and almost directly south of the stormy Point Judith, still retains among its inhabitants the habits and customs of one hundred and fifty years ago. The busy hum of the old-fashioned spinning wheel is to be heard in every direction, and the yarn thus produced is knitted by the same hands which spun it, into stockings, mittens, and other articles for the comfort and protection of the members of her family.

The first woolen mill in Connecticut was established near the close of the last century at Oakland, the carding being done by power cards. In 1798 the Block Islanders began to send wool to this mill to be carded into rolls, LOCK Island, situated fifteen miles off the send wool to this mill to be carded into rolls, and generation after generation have kept up the practice until the present day.

4 for 10 cents

We will send to any one, 4 handso Duchess Lace Handkerchief Patter all different. Also our new 100 pc catalogue of Fancy Work Novelties Handkerchiefs. All for 10 cents. C. S. DAVISSON & CO., 391 Broadway, New York. Dept. 26.

$[$0

Im. 21 JEWELED adjusted patent raguinated highest grade full ruby jeweled remine the state of the GENUINE 25 YEAR GOLD-FILLED WATCH WARRANTED FOR 25 YEARS. WARRANTED FOR 25 YEARS.

Send this to us and we will send the WATCH & "GOLO" CHAIN & CHARM
C. 0. 0. $5.50 and express charges for examination If as represented, pay 85.50 and express charges and it is yours.
Writel fry ou desire Ladies' or Gents' size.
Nat'l Consolidated Co., Dept. 12, Chicago.

$688 PROFIT first month by one agent; article Patented; beware imitations. Special proposition and exclusive control to first applicant. Dry Powder Fire Extinguisher, 154 E. 23rd St., N. Y. City. "California and Texas Oil Wells," Send 10c. and addressed envelope to J. POOLE. Box 85, Westport, Maine, for reliable information to Investors in the above.

Learn TELEGRAPHY.-Typewriting Course FREE Whiteman's Telegraph School, Chatham, N. Y.

600 Second-Hand BICYCLES $3 to $8. Bargain list free. Dept.17F, MeadCycleCo., Chicago.

$8 a thousand distributing samples. Enclose stamp. Mercantile Distributing Agency, 203 Broadway, New York. $10 CASH Paid per 1000 for used stamps. Send 10c, for price list paid. A. Scott, Cohoes, N.Y. A GENTS, credit, Flavor Powders, etc. Big Profits, Ex. Pd. Terms Free. Martens Co., Box 40, Sta. L, New York.

FITS Epilepsy; the only sure treatment and quick cure; free to poor. Write Dr. Kruse Co., St. Louis, Mo. CASH PAID for distributing circulars. Send stamp. American C. Distributer, Kansas ('ity, Mo.

WRITERS WANTED to do copying at home. 10,000 ARE YERY ANXIOUS TO GET MARRIED pictures and addresses FREE. The PILOT, 6, Station E, Chicago.

Dollars for Pennies.

"THE LIGHT THAT WON'T GO OUT."

Every family in America is ready to buy "The light that sells on sight"—the wonderful new invention called ARC-LIGHT WICK. It burns a whole year without trimming. It kills a candle, dis-oun's kerosens, beats gas, and almost equals electricity or sunlight.

It saves 20 per cent. of oll. It's clear, white and brilliant. It's the light that won't go out. It's the light in the window for thee.

BOTTLED AE CORDE and turns night into day. Every buy the Arc-Light Wick on made arrangements with the introduce this wonderful dis-offer for 60 days the following Charles of the control of the contro car company will sight. We have manufacturers to covery, and we wholeesale terms Medium or A for house lamps—

SPECIAL FREE COUPON OFFER. To all who send

One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars

in cash and special premiums positively GIVEN AWAY for subscriptions to THE AMERICAN WOMAN. . .

$500.00 IN CASH -$1000.00 IN SPECIAL PREMIUMS

Read Every Word of This Most Liberal Offer.

Every Club Raiser Has An Equal Chance.

Premiums will be awarded NOT to those sending the largest number of subscribers to The American Woman, but to those sending the largest number IN PROPORTION to the population of each town IN WHICH THEY are secured. Therefore, the person taking subscriptions in the smallest town has just as good a chance to win the largest cash prize as the person taking subscriptions in a city. For example, a person taking subscriptions in a town of 1000 population has the opportunity of winning one of the 192 prizes, and possibly may win a larger premium by sending in twenty subscriptions than would the one who sends in ninety-five from a town of 5,000 population, because the former's proportion of subscriptions to population would be larger. THIS BEING THE CASE, SOME VERY SMALL LISTS are likely to win some OF THE LARGEST PREMIUMS.

HERE ARE THE PREMIUMS:

$200.00 1 Special Cash Premium, -2 Special Cash Premiums of $100.00 each, 260.00 2 Special Cash Premiums of 50.00 each, 100.00 20 Music-Boxes,

20 Dinner-Sets, 112 pieces, $12.00 each, $240.00 50 Tea-Sets, 56 pieces, -300.00 6.00 each, 50 Crystal Outfits, 35 pieces, 3.00 each, 150.00 12.00 each, 240.00 | 47 Gentlemen's Watches. -1.50 each,

Only think of it—192 valuable premiums, worth $1500.00! There is not a cheap one in the list, and all will be awarded, without favor, to those entitled to them. Subscriptions may be sent in each week and credit will be given for them. Besides the opportunity offered you to earn one of these special premiums, WE PAY YOU LIBERALLY for every subscriber you send us; so even if you should not get one of these prizes, you actually earn as much while working for us as you could at work at any other business. We have plainly and truthfully stated what we have to offer. Nothing has been overdrawn. We mean just what we say and every promise made will be faithfully kept. Remember, the opportunity is now yours to secure several hundred dollars without investing a cent. Full particulars will be sent to every one who applies, together with a FREE OUTFIT with which to start at once.

The contest begins with this announcement, and will close December 31, 1901. Subscriptions can begin with August, September, October, November or December issues. Renewals may count the same as new subscribers and such subscriptions date from expiration of present subscriptions; but agents should be careful to mark all renewals plainly on the subscription lists.

The special subscription price is 25 cents, but all who take subscriptions under this offer may do so at our low club rate of 15 cents a year each. The publishers of The American Woman who make this offer are a perfectly reliable company who will do exactly as they promise.

REMEMBER, in addition to your chance of securing one of our cash or special premiums you are also earning other valuable premiums which we give club-raisers for securing subscriptions; so that under no circumstance do you run any chance of working for us for nothing. If you only succeed in securing as few as two subscriptions you get a fine premium. Write to-day for free outfit and be first in the field.

Address THE AMERICAN WOMAN, No. 11 Chapel St., Augusta, Maine.

Comfort for Dumb Animals.

NCE it was thought that if a "hoss-doctor" knew how to bleed and knew how to bleed and physic an animal, that was all. Now, he is no longer called by that name and a "veteri-nary" must be as well prepared to care for dogs, cats, cows, horses and every other animal before he can be trust-ed to treat our pets. ed to treat our pets. The veterinary courses in medicine are just as thorough as those in the medical schools and the educated "vet" stands immeasurably above

the educated "vet" stands immeasurably above the old horse-doctor.

We have several fine veterinary schools in this country—notably the Harvard Veterinary in Boston. The most wonderful one in the world, however, is at Stuttgart, Germany, which has been known for more than eighty years as one of the best of its kind on the continent, and the steadily increasing number of its students necessitated an entire rebuilding of the premises and enlargement of the institute. This work has been going on for about two years and the new buildings have just been completed and equipped.

two years and the new buildings have just been completed and equipped.

One of the principal features of the institute is the new great operating hall for horses. This department had been equipped with all the latest improvements and best apparatus and appliances. Where in former years manual labor had to be applied under the greatest difficulties to place the sick animals in convenient positions for various operations, almost everything is now done by ingenious machinery.

Of course there are departments for all domestic animals, but the horse department is quite an institution in itself. Most prominent among the new divisions of this apartment are among the new divisions of this apartment are the dark rooms, the stables, the rooms for massage and electrotherapy, the bath rooms, the great laboratory, the operating rooms, halls for examining sick horses, the pharmacy and the department for the preparation of medicines and bandages. The stables, both for sick and healthy animals, are the finest ever built. They are heated and ventilated by electricity, and the water troughs are automatically filled and emptied. The walls and roof of the operating room are of glass. For the construction of the walls Sierven's glass bricks were used, while the roof consists of thick polwere used, while the roof consists of thick polished plate glass. The amount of light thus obtained is marvelous.

obtained is marvelous.

The bath room is equipped throughout with machinery worked either by electricity or hydraulic power. If a horse is to be given a foot bath it is lifted by means of an apparatus to a certain height, kept in such a position that it cannot move in any way, and then lowered into the bath.

certain neight, kept in such a position that it cannot move in any way, and then lowered into the bath.

Horses to be operated upon, before placed upon the table, are given a dose of morphine followed by the administration of chloroform. The table, with the animal fastened on, is then placed into the desired position, by pulling a lever. It can be brought into any position, and is said to be the most practical operating table ever constructed. The table is an invention of Professor Ernst, of the Polytechnical High School of Stuttgart.

Our cut shows a horse affected with a toothache. The examination is made by means of a mouth-opener, and the bad teeth are extracted by instruments worked by electricity.

All the carriages and wagons used throughout the horse department have wheels provided with India-rubber tires, so as to afford easy and silent transportation.

with india-rubber tires, so as to anord easy and silent transportation.

The work of the Veterinary Institute of Stuttgart is, however, by no means confined to the treatment of horses. Every domestic animal, from a tiny canary bird to a heavy milch cow, is treated. Soon after the opening of the new infirmary a poor family from a near-by village brought a cow whose leg had been broken. The cow represented the whole wealth of the family. The leg was amputated and a wooden leg substituted. During the first few days after the amputation the cow did not seem to be very fond of its wooden leg, but she soon became familiar with it, and in the second week following the amputation she walked back to her old pasture ground.

EXTRACTING A HORSE'S TOOTH.

The Stuttgart Veterinary High School is a Government institution; the lectures are not only attended by regular students, but also by numerous army officers from all parts of the world and by a great many farmers and cattle numerous army onneers from an parts of the world and by a great many farmers and cattle raisers. The institute has spacious reading rooms, a first-class technical library, departments of anatomy, pathology, chemistry and physics. It is indeed a comfort, to those of us who love our animals, to know that human nature in these modern times is giving so much thought to their comfort and well-being.

HE belt worn by Napoleon I. at his coronation is now in the possession of a French family living in Paris. It is of crimson velvet embossed with exquisitely chiselled gold eagles and is starred with monograms in gold. Napoleon must either have been very slender, in order to wear it, or else he must have been very uncomfortable at the ceremonies, for it is certainly very small.

Some Odd Bookbindings.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

OMEBODY said once of Richard A.
Galliene that he loved his books, and like a true lover, wished to see the objects of his affection daintily clad. So to every true book-lover the subject of fine bindings is of the greatest interest, and the greatest interest, and artists of all ages have utilized their skill in this direction.

The first bindings of which we have any record were made of baked clay. They were merely pockets made to contain each a clay tablet upon which were inscribed characters by the ancient Assyrians. Some specimens of these books are preserved in the British Museum, and are more than thirty-five hundred years old.

The books written by Latin authors were copied on vellum, and after being illuminated and decorated, were mounted on cylinders of wood, bone, ivory, or gold. The ends of these cylinders were sometimes of gold or were jeweled. The manuscript was mounted like a map and rolled up. These rolls were called "volumen," from which is derived our word "volume."

Other books of the Romans were made of

Other books of the Romans were made of several tablets of wood or other material covered with wax, upon which the writing was inscribed. At first these were joined by rings, but later were covered with leather or boards which were often richly decorated.

Five or six hundred years before Christ about all the book-making was done by monks, and the volumes were very expensive. These volumes were bound in covers of heavy boards, or even planks, often inlaid with gold or jewels. The monks took advantage of these thick covers, and were accustomed to hollow them out to make a receptacle for holding spectacles or other small articles, and afterwards for a place to hold valuables. This fact caused the destruction of many valuable books, for during the various wars of this period these books were ruthlessly destroyed by invaders for the sake of the jewels supposed to be hidden in the covers.

At this time a favorite present to a monas-

At this time a favorite present to a monas

sake of the jewels supposed to be hidden in the covers.

At this time a favorite present to a monastery or church was the gift of a manuscript book, richly decorated and bound in covers of gold or silver. To preserve valuable books from theft it became customary to chain them to their shelves. Sometimes, as the books were too heavy even to be lifted, they were chained to a revolving desk. A collection of these chained books is still on exhibition in the Abbey of Wimborne in England. At Wolfbuttal in Germany is now preserved the richest collection of these manuscript volumes in the world, including Luther's own Bible.

Of course the invention of printing caused the book-binders art to assume vastly greater proportions. The 17th century was famous for its beautiful bindings, produced by the Italian artists. Magnificent collections of rare editions were made by collectors of this and later times. One Frenchman who had an especially fine library kept a pile of white gloves in his ante-room, which visitors were obliged to wear while handling his books.

Eccentricities in bindings have been many and varied. One English author bound a book on wood-carving in carved covers. A copy of "The Golden Ass of Apuleins" was bound by one collector in asses' skin. Another collector had a volume containing an account of Charles I. bound in a piece of that king's silk waist-coat. Another English collector, whose father had circumnavigated the globe, had a book containing his travels bound in a pair of buckskin trousers that the old gentleman had worn on his journey. A Russian poet who had the misfortune to fall and break his leg, necessitating amputation, carefully preserved and tanned the skin and bound in the leather a copy of his own poems, which he presented to the lady of his choice.

In a public library in England is preserved a volume giving the report of a murder trial, bound in the murderer's bide, while we are told that Flammarion had bequeated to him the skin from the shoulders of a beautiful French countess, who reques told that Flammarion had bequeathed to him the skin from the shoulders of a beautiful French countess, who requested that he should bind with it his personal copy of his next work. Human leather is said to resemble pigskin, though it is somewhat finer in texture.

The litrary of the British Foreign and Bible Society has in its possession an old Swedish bible which presents an ordinary gilt edge when closed, but upon the cover being thrown back, and the leaves slightly separated, the gilding disappears and in its place various pictures come into view on the edges of the leaves. Sometimes books are bound with a silver or bronze plate inserted in the cover. upon leaves. Sometimes books are bound with a silver or bronze plate inserted in the cover, upon which an inscription may be engraved.

Another queer cover is composed of sheets of isinglass mounted upon cardboard. Between the sheets are pressed flowers, and the whole makes a beautiful effect. Other odd bindings have been made of all sorts of metals, celluloid, ivory, and basket-work. A history of Boston published some years ago was bound in wood from the historic old elm that used to grow on Boston Common.

Boston Common.

This article would not be complete without a description of what is one of the largest and costliest books ever produced. It is the property of a Milwaukee man, and contains a splendid collection of autographs. The book represents a cash outlay of over $8,000. It weighs over one hundred pounds; is bound in pig-skin mounted with silver. The autographs are arranged four on a page and the slip containing the autograph were both pared down so as to form but a single thickness of paper. It required four months to do this work alone. In regard to the collection itself. It contains Boston Common. In regard to the collection itself. It contains the autographs of famous people all over the world including George Dewey, Edward W. Kemble, Rudyard Kipling, William McKinley, Frederic Remington, Edward de Rezske and thousands of others. Our illustration is a removement of this former book. production of this famous book.

Forty-three million stars are revealed by a pow-erful telescope.

Cures Weak Men Free

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have it Free and be Strong and Vigorous for Life.

INSURES LOVE AND A HAPPY HOME.

L. W. KNAPP, M. D.

How any man may quickly cure himself after years of suffering from sexual weakness, lost vitality, night losses, varicocele, etc. and enlarge small weak organs to full size and vigor. Simply send your name and address to Dr. L. W. Knapp, 1043 Hull Bldg., Detroit, Mich., U.S. A. and he will gladly send the free receipt with full directions so that any man may easily cure himself at home. This is certainly a most generous offer and the following extracts taken from his dailymail show what men think of his generosity.

L. W. KNAFF, M. D.

"Dear Sir:—Your method worked beautifully. Results were exactly what I needed. Strength and vigor have completely returned and entrouble in making use of the receipt as directed and can truthfully say it is a boon to weak men. I am greatly improved in size, strength and vigor."

osity.
"Dear Sir:—Please accept my sincere thanks for yours of recent date. I have given your treatment a thorough test and the benefit has

All correspondence is strictly confidential, mailed in plain, sealed envelope. The receipt is free for the asking and he wants every man to

PER WEEK SALARY to represent a large and thoroughly responsible manufacturing. Company.

We need one manager in each district, and several in each state to turing company. The several in each state to the we will pay a straight out guaranteed salary of $23.08 per week, together with all expenses. All necessary expenses are remitted in advance and salary is manied each salary as we teach you the business. No capital required as we have ample and give credit to all that are deserving. Position Permanent. References required. Enclose stamp. Address

ERMANY is following the example set by England and America, and employing women in its government positions. They act as clerks and directors in small post-offices, and more recently have been employed as assistants in railway and telephone offices. In Norway, women have been for some time employed as Government telegraph operators and as station agents. In this latter capacity they not only attend to the train dispatching and to waiting upon travelers, but they manage the baggage as well.

An Offer You Must Not Miss.

Every home has one or more lovers of music within the family circle, and to such an offer of most surpassing value is made upon another page. We have been introducing best sheet music into millions of homes at prices which have revolutionized the music trade. We take no backward steps but offer best full size music at a price practically the shipping charges. In the several years we have been putting out this music we have received thousands of testimonials and never complaints. We only ask you to try and will gladly refund every cent of the money if you are dissatisfied, or if we have misrepresented the music or offer in any way.

The Egyptians are the first people who erected temples to their Gods.

Every home has one or more lovers of music within the family circle, and to such an offer ince black hair on your friend the fine growthed the fine growthed latest fad out. You show your friend the fine growthed the flow is the fad out. You show your friend the fine growthed latest fad out. You show your friend the fine growthed latest fad out. You show your friend the fine growthed atout. You show your friend the fine growthed the fine growthed the fine growthed latest fad out. You show your friend the fine growthed atout. You show your friend the fine growthed the fine growthed atout. You show your friend the fine growthed atout. You show your friend the fine growthed the fine growthed the fine growthed atout. You show your friend the fine growthed the fine growthe Every home has one or more lovers of music within the family circle, and to such an offer of most surpassing value is made upon another page. We have been introducing best sheet music into millions of homes at prices which have revolutionized the music trade. We take no backward steps but offer best full size music at a price practically the shipping charges. In the several years we have been putting out this music we have received thousands of testimonials and never complaints. We only ask you to try and will gladly refund every cent of the money if you are dissatisfied, or if we have misrepresented the music or offer in any way.

GENERAL MANAGER MNFG. DEPT., 919, STAR BLDG., CHICAGO, ILL.

ERMANY is following the example set by England and America, and employing women in its government positions. They act as clerks and directors in small post-offices, and more recently have been address ERIE. 193 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

MARRY day May willing to Milling the Hubbert a PLAIN Led, wards BCC, 600 Couls as Westing Dung independently rich, wants and directors in small post-offices. and more recently have been address ERIE. 193 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

MUSTACHE EXPAN SION

THE . EAGLE CLAW,

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.
BEST TRAP
IN THE WORLD FOR CATCHING
FISH, ANIMALS, AND ALL MANNER OF CAME. A wonderful and most ingenious

device. It is easy to set, suited to any bait, can be used anywhere, nothing CAN ESCAPE UNTIL RELEASED. EV can escape until released. Every fish, muskrat, or squirrel which bites at the bait is surely caught. Perfectly safe for children, will not rust. One bait will catch from 20 to 30 fish. Will spring in any position; in short, it is a grand triumph over the unsafe and uncertain common fish-hook. Highly recommended by the Tribune, World, Press, and the Turf, Field and Farm. The Ohio Farmer says: "The Eagle Claw is a very ingenious article. The best device for catching fish and game we ever saw. Safe, sure and convenient." No. I is for all ordinary fishing, the ladies' favorite, No. 2 is for general use, both large and small fish and game. We have sold thousands, and they have all given splendid satisfaction.

and small IISN and game. We have sold the special year's subscription at did satisfaction.

SPECIAL OFFER. 1f you will send the name and address of a friend for a special year's subscription at Claw to you as a free gift. Or you may send us a club of two trial yearly subscriptions at 25c. each pure year and we will send our magazine one year to each subscriber and one No. 2 Claw to you as a free gift.

Address LANE & CO., Augusta, Maine.

A Chinese Dinner Party in Boston.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

R. Ah Fang has the happy to say Mr. — that he is the joy to invite a few friends to dinner next Thursday. Which is at Number— Harrison at 2 o'clock, P. M., in Ave., at 2 o'clock, P. M., in the afternoon, up stairs."

When I received this note, enclosed to me in a thin en-velope addressed in fire red ink, I read it with some con-siderable uncertainty which a second reading did not dissi-pate. I did not feel quite sure whether I was invited to a second reading did not dissipate. I did not feel quite sure whether I was invited to a dinner in the Chinese quarter, the next Thursday, or whether I was to give a dinner there myself, "up stairs."
With a desire to satisfy myself as to whether I was guest or host, when it came my lunch time I walked around to Haro a favorite restaurant where I venue, to a favorite restaurant where I was in the habit of going when I wanted a dish of "chop suey," or a cup of such tea as can be had nowhere else but in a Chinese eating house. Ah Fang frequently lunched there, too, and I knew if I saw him I could find out what the note meant.

note meant.

My Chinese friend was there when I went in, and saved me the embarrassment of showing my ignorance, by exclaiming as soon as he saw me: "You come my dinner, next Thursday, I hope very glad?" and then launching out into an explanation of how he was to have some friends from Chicago, in Boston at that time, and was to give them a dinner in true Chinese style, to which he wished me to come to meet the strangers.

the strangers.

I expressed my delight to receive the invitation, accepted with thanks, and sat down to have some tea.

have some tea.

When the appointed day came, and I went to the dinner, I was surprised to meet, not some of Ah Fang's fellow countrymen, as my guests, as I had expected, but a finely educated Chicago professional man and his wife, and a lady friend of theirs. One of the women was a Quaker, and wore the close fitting bonnet and neat gown of beautiful dove gray silk which the women of that faith love to be dressed in. Two young women who were teachers in a Chinese Sunday school in Boston had been invited as the remaining guests. Was it not an odd little company to sit down to a formal dinner in Chinatown?

The room in which the dinner was served vited as the remaining guests. Was it not an odd little company to sit down to a formal dinner in Chinatown?

The room in which the dinner was served was the front part of one of the second story restaurants. The whole front of the room was open to the light and air of the street, but screened in part by curtains of soft red silk gorgeously embroidered. The tables in a Chinese restaurant are small, high, and made of ebony, teak or some other dark colored wood. Those used for us were magnificently inlaid with mother of pearl. Three tables were set side to side to make one board large enough to accommodate so many guests. We sat on stools of similar make to the tables, richly carved.

In deference to our customs a table cloth had been laid on the table. This is something one never sees in a Chinese eating room as a general thing, and when the first course was moved we begged to have the cloth go with it, so that we might enjoy the beauty of the table tops, and also feel like doing "the real thing." Another concession to our heathen ways was that at the plates of all but Ah Fang there had been laid knives and forks as well as chop sticks which celestials use. Our chop sticks were of ivory, about eighteen inches long and as large through as a lead pencil. Sticks made of ebony or some other wood are used for ordinary occasions. Most of our party, after a few awkward and laughing attempts with the sticks, clung to the forks, but I had come determined to "go the whole ticket," and after the soup ate every dish with my sticks, and did not drop very much of the food into my lap, either. "Going the whole ticket," meant eating of every dish of every course, and I went it. I have often wondered what some of the things were I ate that day, but only providence could not, and the cooks would not, so I am in ignorance yet.

Before our stools, when we sat down, were then proved in the cooks would not, so I am in ignorance yet.

could not, and the cooks would not, so I am in ignorance yet.

Before our stools, when we sat down, were tiny porcelain plates. On each of these was placed a queer china dish, a sort of one sided cup about as, and something in shape like, a medicine spoon. In these was served a spoonful of intensely strong liquor as an appetizer. When this had been sipped, and the dishes removed the first course was brought on, birds nest soup. This looked and tasted not very much unlike chicken soup. but was more munest soup. This looked and tasted not very much unlike chicken soup, but was more mucilaginous. This was served in small bowls. We have heard and read so much about Chinese birds' nest soup that I was interested to find after that, some authoritative information about the material from which it is made.

the material from which it is made.

Prof. Dean C. Worcester, who is one of Prof. Dean C. Worcester, who is one of the Philippine Commission appointed by the late Previlent McKinley and who before the war had spent several years in scientific exploration of the islands, has described the swallows of the islands, has described the swallow referred to in these words:

"One species of swift (they are called so because they dart around so swiftly in the air), is of considerable commercial importance, for its nests are much prized by the Chinese as an article of food, and when perfectly clean sometimes bring more than their weight in gold. article of food, and when perfectly clean some-times bring more than their weight in gold. They are found at the proper seasons in caves or on the faces of inaccessible cliffs, and the gathering of them is attended with considera-ble risk. They are made from a salivary secre-tion which rapidly hardens on exposure to the air into a substance resembling white give tion which rapidly hardens on exposure to the air into a substance resembling white glue in appearance. The best nests contain no foreign substances whatever, but after being repeatedly robbed the birds grow discouraged, or their supply of secretion begins to give out, and they supplement it with bits of moss. "The best nests are taken on the Peron de Coron in the Philippines, a very precipitous rocky island at the mouth of the strait which separates Culion and Busuanga. Fairly good separates Culion and Busuanga. Fairly good ones may be found in Guimaras, Siquijor and Palawan."

After the soup we had fish of some kind. I cannot begin to describe all the dishes. One I know was roast duck, cut from the bones and served hot with rice in which there had been cooked small bits of boiled lamb and small preserved pears, served whole. Strange as this

The first convention was held at Geneva, Switzerland, and the emblem of a red cross on white was chosen out of compliment to the Switzerland, and the emblem of a red cross on white was chosen out of compliment to the Swiss republic, whose flag is the same, with colors reversed.

The treaty provided "for the neutrality of all sanitary supplies, ambulances, surgeons, nurses, attendants and sick or wounded men and their safe conduct when they bear the sign of the organization." And at the present date forty-two governments have accepted it.

Mr. Moynier is president of the International Committee, which is the authority. In times of peace as well as war a constant activity is necessary in preparing and collecting supplies. Russia set the good example of placing boxes in convenient public places that material and clothes might be contributed. And now the countries of Europe vie with each other in making the best collections. At The Hague about twenty-five years ago it may be recalled, there was an exposition where Red Cross work exclusively was displayed.

Training schools have been established in England, Germany, Russia, Sweden, Holland, and other smaller European countries in order to obtain efficient nurses for just this work.

Recognition was first asked of the United States government during our Civil War when Recognition was first asked of the United States government during our Civil War, when it was naturally declined. In 1866, Rev. G. Bellows presented a letter from Pres. Moynier to our government again, and for some reason it passed again unnoticed. Then during President Hayes' administration a letter was again presented by Miss Clara Barton, who had been for some time an active worker in the cause, and still no action was taken.

But by constant perseverance it was finally

But by constant perseverance it was finally recognized by President Garfield and adopted at a meeting held at Washington, D. C., May food.

For dessert we had delicious little lemons or limes—I could not decide which they were—about as big as the end of one's thumb. These were put up in a thick sweet syrup and were served out of earthen jars just as they came from China. We also had another kind of preserves which I could not place as anything I had ever heard of, nor could my host explain what they were so that I could understand. The fruit was small and round and green in color, and looked exactly like the potato balls that I used to gather off the potato vines when I was a boy in Vermont. They were delicious to eat, though. Instead of spoons with which to eat these preserves we were given slender silver forks which looked very much like hair pins. Each lemon or potato ball was speared separately and eaten in that way. Last of all we had delicious tea, made as only the Chinese can make it. I shall never forget the look of horror of the attendants when one of the guests insisted on having sugar and cream for her tea.

After the dinner Ah Fang went as escort to show his Chiegog guests. Publicy Hill. at a meeting held at wasnington, D. C., May 21, 1881.

Right away came the opportunity for work with the Michigan forest fires, and from that time on funds and energy were forthcoming and well expended during the Mississippi and Ohio River floods, the Mississippi and Louisiana cyclone, Texas famine, yellow fever epidemic in Florida, and May 30, 1889, came that awful and heartrending report of the Johnstown flood, where twelve million dollars capital was lost and as near as can be estimated, five thousand lives swept away.

We recall with reverence "Octave Thanet's" name in connection with the food and supplies sent at the time of the Russian famine. And in the fall of '95 Frances Willard's name stands forth against the horrors of Armenia. But first and foremost in our hearts looms one whose name and face go hand in hand with the

But first and foremost in our hearts looms one whose name and face go hand in hand with the only ray of sunshine the "Reconcentrado" knew. And who, during our Spanish-American war, did not feel the soothing touch? Clara Barton and Florence Nightingale! Could any two names have more significance.

As the American leader herself says concerning the Red Cross society: "It has no rich offices to bestow, no favorites to reward, no enemy to punish," the purest kind of philanthropy—that of alleviating suffering.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

I have discovered a positive cure for all female dis-eases and the piles. It never fails to cure any of the various diseases peculiar to women, such as leucor-rhea, displacements, ulceration, granulation, etc., or the piles from any cause or in either sex. I will gladly mail a box of this wonderful medicine free to every sufferer. Mrs. C. B. MILLER, Box 103, Kokomo, Ind.

John Wesley was the founder of Methodism in England in 1739. It has existed in the United States since 1766.

A GIFT OF EMBROIDERY SILK.

Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money bought at the store. We have a great jobbing-house lot of rich silk bought at wholesale. No high retail price with a lot of middle profits; but we get actual cost price. We want to give the whole benefit to our lady readers. We have prepared a lot of assorted packages containing a liberal supply of bright, rich, new silk in a variety of tones and shades, which would cost a heap of money bought at the stores. We will send our illustrated bargain list and full assorted, large sized silk package for the ridiculously low price of ten cents; or, three packages for twenty cents. Write to-day before the rush. S. W. LANE & Co., Augusta, Maine. Embroidery silk will cost you a lot of money

$300 Genuine Conf. money for $1. $100 for 50c.
R. MAXWELL, Box C, South Bend, Ind. $50 A Month distributing samples. Enclose stamp.
Inter'l Dis. Bureau, 8 Gold St., New York.

NO DECEPTION

We Speak Nothing But the Truth.

You can get a full size decorated breakfast, dinner or tea set (140 pieces) and 12 silver-plated knives, 12 forks, 12 tea spoons, 12 table spoons, 1 butter knife, 1 sugar shell, and salt and pepper set, for selling our Remedies. We have a reputation for square and honest dealing, and to prove it, every honest person who sells 4 boxes of our famous Carbolettes at 25 Cents a box, a positive cure for constipation, indigession and torpid liver, will receive our generous offer of a 140 piece Decorated Set and 50 Pieces of Silver plated table ware, with a Salt and Pepper Set, which we give absolutely free for selling the 4 boxes of Carbolettes. Don't send a cent, order to-day, and we send the Carbolettes by mail; when sold, send us the $1.00, and we guarantee if you comply with our offer, we shall send you with the Salt and Pepper set; the 12 knives, 12 forks, 12 table spoons, 12 tea spoons, 1 butter knife, 1 sugar shell, and 140 piece docorated set will be given absolutely free. We are an old reliable concern, and guarantee the dishes and silverware full size for family use.

We allow you x5 days in which to sell and payfor these 4 boxes of Carbolettes, and we will state right here that any person who receives dishes and silverware from us, and who finds that they are not exactly what we claim, they are at liberty to return them to us and we will pay them their value in cash.

N. B.—Never before was such a generous inducement made by any reliable concern, but we expect it to quickly advertise our Remedies and place them in the hands of reliable people.

reliable people.

Every piece of Silverware is guaranteed Sterling Silver plate, and the dishes are exquisitely decorated in the most artistic designs.

USE. EMPIRE REMEDY CO., Dept. K, No. 47 Warren Street, New York.

YOUR FORTUNE TOLD for 10 cts. In after and 2c, ctsmp for unalling. State your b rth meetin, cult of eyes, and corious sock of your hair. Murtimer sower farls. Lucky charm free. E. MOSTIMER, Chicago.

Marriage PAPER FREE, many very rich.

Marriage Eastern Agency 54, Bridgeport, Ct. PRETTY, honorable girl, with fortune in own name, de-sires marriage. A. M., Lock Box 627, Chicago.

TAPE-WORM EXPELLED WITH HEAD, QUARANTEED, DOWN THELD & CO., DOWN THE ST. CHICAGO.

Young Americans Letter Writer. Or the New Art of Polite Correspondence. A Book that Will Lead You on to Fame.

Book that Will Lead You on to Fame.

Adapted for Both Sexes. This is the Best Letter writer published in Bourpe or America. It teaches how to write a Letter on any subject out of the writer's own head, or to compose a first class, intelligent Business Letter, or a Love Letter, or a Love Letter, or a Presudly Letter. It gives as the compose a first class, intelligent overy kind, shows you how to carry on a long correspondence with a Lady or Gentleman-Letters that never fall to penetrate the Heart. No other Book has this MYSTER NO. Other Book has this MYSTER NO. Other Book have it. It is the Book to refer to when you want to write what you cannot find words to express. It opens all the little revolutes that start from any topic with ease and elegance; or how to write a Complimentary Note, or how to write for the Press, Rules on spelling Correctly, on Punctuation, on Directing Letters, and an immeuse amount of information to be found in no other book, There are many young people who are good scholars, but are woefully smium gift, all charges paid. Address

SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

Prof. Baron's Complete Instructor in all The Society Dances of America.

Al' the Figures of the German and Every New and Fashior Waltz, Round and Square Dance known in Europe or America.

the Waltz Qu

SPECIAL. m gift, all charges paid. Address
SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

The STANDARD BOOK on Politeness

Good Behavior and Social Effquette. Your Manners May Be Your Fortune.

Manners May Be Your Fortune.

At last the door is opened and the riddle solved. This Book gives Practical Advice and knowledge to all that desire to enter Society or Business Perfect and Graceful in the Manners. There is a SOME.

THING in this Manners. It were you eat a friendly gathering where at a friendly gathering where at a friendly gathering where and to go wrongs—great in separated by a barrier of reserves—gloom settling down on the scene, when set il at once a person enters, who seems gifted with a spell, like that of the old Magicians, the gloom disappears, the lea thaw and they all enjoy themselves. This Book tells that great Secret—how to so behave that your society will be courted and sought after by every one. This is the wonderful power of Manners. It is worth to you more than Beauty. True Politeness, as this Book any family in America, and then you access the Usages and Case than talent or wealth. This Book embraces the Usages and Case than talent or wealth. Englished the secret is any emergency, or enter any society without embarrassment, and how to avoid incorrect and vulgar habits, in the Street, at Home, or in Society. It is a Perfect Guide to New Beginners in fashionable 'fee. Parents should purchase this Book, and keep lit where their Sons and Daughters can easily refer to it. It is a Text Book of Gentility. It will bring out the finer qualities of a Lady or Gentleman, even it you were born in the backwoods. Price 25 Cents.

SPECIAL. Send us four yearly subscriptions and 6xc. or one SPECIAL. Four year subscription and 50c. to our popular

SPECIAL. Send us four yearly subscriptions and fixe, or one monthly SUNSHINE and we will send our magazine the full length of the subscription period and immediately send to you the three books, "The Book of Politeness," "Society Dances" and "Letter Writer" as Politeness, "society bald. Address gift, all charges paid. Address SUNSHINE, Augusta, Maine.

N an age so over-run with sects and socie-ties, leagues and clubs, one can scarcely keep in mind the names and emblems daily pop-ping into existence.

For dessert we had delicious little lemons or for her tea.

After the dinner Ah Fang went as escort to show his Chicago guests Bunker Hill monument. Of course that was the first thing they wanted to see in Boston, and they were going to walk to the top of it. Wasn't it a funny combination? A Chinaman showing off Bunker Hill monument to a Chicago Quakeress and her friends?

One Emblem of Brotherhood.

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

But there is one which commands a recognition and respect by even the least informed.
On June 24, 1859 after the battle of Solferino, sixteen thousand French and Sardinians and twenty thousand and twenty thousand Austrians lay dead or disabled on the field and the medical staff was as usual wholly unprepared. So for days even hundreds of wounded lay among the unburied dead, or crawled away as best they could to care for themselves. A certain Henri Dunant who was on the scene at the time, was so strongly impressed that he determined to use all possible influence in organizing a society to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded soldier.

And it was due wholly to his exertions and the co-operation of the Swiss General that the

L

BY EVERETT G. WHEELMAN.

T is useless to say the bicycle has had its day, for it is just as popular as ever, judging from the sales of the present year.

It is an actual fact that there are today between ten and eleven millions of wheels in use in the United States. Our army uses them and the armies of other civilized nations make use of them in various ways. They are employed in Africa to distribute tracts (thus being utilized in the gospel service), and in Jerusalem one sees Arabs, Jews and Gentiles riding the wheel. Once a fad over which the country went crazy, the bicycle has now become a necessity and an article of daily utility. Incidentally the bicycle is again growing in favor and reports from manufacturers all over the country indicate an increase of about twenty-five per cent. in the sales of the present season.

While they are selling at practically the same season.

While they are selling at practically the same prices as last season, there has been a great reduction from the prices of a few years ago. The best chain wheels can now be bought for The best chain wheels can now be bought for thirty-five dollars to fifty dollars and the chainless for sixty dollars to seventy-five. This puts it at a reduction of about fifty dollars a wheel from five years ago and brings the bicycle down where the ordinary working man can afford it; thus making a place for the wheel as a standard necessity instead of a lux-ury. This is a welcome development for the bicycle trade, for it means that the wheel has taken its place in the economy of the masses as a necessity, and that dealers can hereafter count on a steady and increasing demand for their wares from the average people and depend upon a trade that will not run by fits and starts.

their wares from the average people and depend upon a trade that will not run by fits and starts.

Several years ago bicycling was a fad and the craze for it swept over the country like a wave, swallowing everybody in its track. The rich and fashionable took it up for a season or two and everybody followed their lead, especially the women. But everybody did not drop it when the rich tired of wheeling. On the contrary, we all found out how much utility as well as enjoyment there is in a bicycle and the "bike" was here to stay.

After the craze had gone over us like a wave of the sea, a good many riders laid aside their wheels perhaps, with the intention of never taking them up again; but after a season or two without the bicycle they have come to realize that something had gone out of their lives. In other words, they miss their wheels and discover that nothing else has come to take its place. Their memory goes back to long afternoons in the woods, moonlight rides by the sea, the animation of the city parks, and the pleasure of covering long distances with comparative ease. No practical flying machine has been invented yet and until it is, nothing comes so near it as a first-class bicycle. The old rider who had laid aside his wheel realizes this as never before and there comes back to him the old zest for speeding hither and yon on the "wings of the morning". And so the wheel has now taken its place as a necessity for hundreds of thousands and on that basis the trade foresees a permanent demand not wholly dependent upon fickle fancy; and the trade knows.

Exercise on the bicycle in the open air is one of the greatest boons vouchsafed to modern man and cannot help being beneficial whenever exercise of any kind is desirable. The burden of proof is on him who denies it. He has to show either that the person has too much exercise, or not as much exercise as he ought to have; or that he has some displacement or peculiarity of organization, or some acute or chronic malady that makes the wheel unsuited to him, or that ought to have; or that he has some displacement or peculiarity of organization, or some acute or chronic malady that makes the wheel unsuited to him, or that makes it unhealthful for him when some other form of exercise might be of benefit to him.

As to women, there is no physiological reason why they may not ride the bicycle, provided they are well and strong. All physicians who say otherwise are contradicted by the best and wisest doctors on both sides of the Atlantic. Most evils result from absurdities and excesses, such as parents letting their children ride too much, or letting beginners ride as much as those who have been riding for months or years. Here is where so many make a mistake, in thinking that a naturally strong person who is a beginner can ride as long at a time or as much as a naturally weaker one who is accustomed by long habit to riding. No one Noone is accustomed by long habit to riding. should ever attempt to regulate his speed by that of another. It is a matter of temperament and of judgment. To obtain the best results a man should ride his own wheel which has been properly adjusted to himself, and he should be particular that it is just suited to him.

FOR GUNS OR GOLF CLUBS

him.

There are many questions about weight; but if you undertake to push a wheel uphill you will see that it takes comparatively no strength at all; so that I think that matter has been given undue importance. I do not believe it makes much difference whether a wheel weighs eighteen or twenty-six pounds. With a good wheel and a reasonably careful rider the liability to accident is not great.

There is no reason why middle-aged men, or even old men, should not take up cycling, provided of course, that they keep in mind the limitations that their age imposes. Great speed, long rides and hill-climbing put a strain upon even the young and robust and will naturally find out the weak places in an elderly man's constitution, the parts of the system that are going faster than others. But with reason and caution the bicycle is just as much of a boon to the man of sixty and over as to the man of twenty.

of a boon to the man of sixty and over as to the man of twenty.

The bicycle develops courage and courage is a moral quality that is needed everywhere today. It develops the power of self-determination, which is also needed among men today as never before. The wheel prevents irritability, especially that kind that comes from lack of exercise and indigestion. It helps to overcome low spirits, for no one can go out in the open air and race with the wind without coming in a happier and a healthier man. The bicycle is indeed a great and marvelous machine, one to which we owe a debt as great as to the printing press. May it remain with us as long as the world lasts!

We have had a number of inquiries for a world lasts!

We have had a number of inquiries for a motor machine that can be attached to the ordinary bicycle. The E. R. Thomas Company of Buffalo have the best I have yet seen. At the Pan-American Exposition the machine was well shown and interested many people.

The article is an outfit which can be attached to any frame twenty-two inch and upwards without change, making a safe, compact and ed to any frame twenty-two inch and upwards without change, making a safe, compact and speedy motor bicycle excellent as a light roadster. Since I saw it at the Pan-American Show I have seen it on the road in New York and Massachusetts and it seems to be able to do all that is claimed for it, rendering bicycling on a hot day a very easy and simple matter. I do not know the price of the attachment and it will be useless for readers to apply to me for it; but I presume it can be had through any religious controlled. but I presume it can be had through any reli-able bicycle agency.

The motor is of the air-cooled electrically ignited four cycle type, the only cycle answering all the requirements for use on a small light vehicle. The motor is placed the best possible for balance, safety and non-vibration, possible for balance, safety and non-vibration, and the additional weight is not excessive, less than any other I have seen. The method of attachment, by means of an aluminum motor frame, gives to the whole outfit rigidity, strength and compactness.

MECHANICAL HORSE.

The entire motor is made to gauge and is minutely adjusted. All parts are interchangeable and can be immediately duplicated if necessary. A reserve of strength has evidently been the motto throughout, permitting high initial compression and greatly increased power. Every detail, it is claimed, is the result of expert study, and all the features adopted have been proved best in the inventor's mind, so that the highest efficiency is guaranteed. guaranteed.

At any rate this motor has been adopted by some good wheelmen and is giving satisfaction. This outfit is shown in the illustration, as it may be attached to any single or tandem wheel. It has an individuality of its own and wheel. It has an individuality of its own and will do much to overthrow the popular idea that a motor bicycle is a dangerous affair that is to be mounted only by dare-devils and that he who rides it is inviting death. There is no reason why a motor cannot be so successfully made that it will be as safe as leg-power. All that is needed is an ordinary high-grade bicycle made a little stronger to meet the conditions imposed by the weight of the motor. This particular motor weighs twenty pounds, which I believe is as light as they have pounds, which I believe is as light as they have been successfully made as yet.

It is claimed that every well-made bicycle is capable of carrying eight times its weight with but little effort on the part of its rider; this will be a good thing for you to remember when investigating attachments of any kind. The additional weight of a motor resting on the front wheel (unlike the conditions of an ordinary bicycle, where the weight is principally on the rear wheel), gives the rider the benefit of the resilience of both tires, so that a motor bicycle may be easily far more buoyant and comfortable than an ordinary wheel.

To ride the auto-bi, or motor-wheel, the be-

To ride the auto-bi, or motor-wheel, the be-ginner should place the rear wheel in a bicycle stand and learn to start and stop the machine, which can be quickly done by merely turning the levers on or off before starting the pedals. Within a short time anyone can master the thing so as to ride easily hundreds of miles with no trouble at-all.

SELF HOME TREATMENT FOR LADIES.

I will send free; with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of Leucorrhœa, Ulceration, Displacement and all Female troubles, to all ladies sending address. I have nothing to sell. Tell other sufferers of it—that is all I ask.

MRS. SUMMERS, Box 420, Notre Dame, Ind.

GENTS FREE WATCHES, RINGS, ETC.
LADIES SEND NO MONEY. We will give you a splendid Solid Gold
Bold Gold
Gentler of Render of Re a reasonable length of time to sell them. The take back all you cannot sell. Write to-da ress THE MASON PIN CO., Dept. 15.

SPECIAL PRICEOF $9.75 and express charges, otherwise THE BRIGHTON sent, $9.75 does not begin to cover first cost of material. We etc. $9.75 dought them at a forced sale and until all are gone we SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

Hall Chemical Co.

ST. LOUIS, MO. CAPT. COLLINGS FREE BY MAIL trial of his not delay, but write to-day. Capt. Collings had a h rupture and will gladly free trial. WRITE HIM.

Dance the Highland Fling. REAL SCOTCH BAGPIPE

MEN let me show you how to avoid scheming medical quacks and regain your health without personal embarassment.

PAST EXPERIENCE HOUGHT IT WAS FREE YOU DON'T TAKE THIS COLD MUCH GOOD. AS MEDICINE ILL HAVE YOU ARRESTED LECTRIC BELTS IF HUNG ON A TELEGRAPH POLE, THEY WOULD DO THE POLE AS MUCH GOOD AS A HUMAN BEING. THE RESULT

If you are suffering from Lost Manhood, Nervous Debility, Shrunken Organs, Varicocele, Sexual Weakness, etc., and want a sure, quick cure, just write to me in confidence, and I will send you a free prescription, with full directions for a simple home treatment, in plain, sealed envelope—one that I know will do the work, no matter how long standing or from what cause. My business is manufacturing Churus and other merchandise, but I have taken up this war against medical fakes, and propose to send this prescription free to all who need it. It is free from humbug, and you can, out of gratitude, the noblest impulse of the heart, conscientiously recommend it to your fellow-men.

Do not delay until the last ray of hope is gone, but begin NOW-TODAY, and win back your manhood. This offer may not appear again. Address,

THOS. BRADFORD, 135 Bradford Building, Cincinnati, O.

FREE! ADJUSTABLE RECLINING CHAIR.

This Easy Chair is Full of Durability and Utility.

What Some of Our Patrons Say About Our Reliability and Standing

A NINE YEARS' TEST.

GALENA, ILLINOIS, Oct. 15th, 1900,

TO THE GIANT CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.
GENTLEMEN: Do you realize I have been selling your remedies for the past nine years? After acting thus as your that no business house exists that can surprise your nore, generosity to its patrons. Not one jar of the slightest cause for complaint is surely evidence beyond question in mine years' dealings with you. May you live long to enjoy the good you are doing is the wish of Your truly,

FANNIE AUBUCHON.

A TEN YEARS' TEST.

THE GIANT CO. MUNCE, INDIANA, Oct. 10th, GENTLEMEN: After ten years of successful work for an truthfully say that you have more than done agreed during my long period of selling your famous Remedies. There has nothing taken away the joy that to me from getting my first box of Oxien. As for Prem have received so many and such nice ones, too, cannot possibly enumerate them. They were all fine are feetly satisfactory. I consider your firm one of the best

Ve guarantee it THE BEST ELECTRIC BELT MADE.

BE A STRONG, VICOROUS MAN AMONG MEN. THIS GRAND FREE OFFER

IS MADE TO YOU ONLY AND IT HOLDS COOD FOR A FEW DAYS ONLY, SO WRITE TO-DAY.

al. Urinary. Kidney or Liver Diseases, such as impotency, varicocele, spermatorrhoea, etc., YIELD AT ONCE TO ITS INC. INFLUENCE. We give away only a limited number of these belts. IT WILL CURE YOU then your friends will want one and from those sales we make our profit. Write to-day in confidence, telling at about your case and the Belt will be on absolutely free at once. Address PHYSICIANS' INSTITUTE, 2124 Masonic Temple. Chicago. III.

CONDUCTED BY REGULUS.

HE Lunation or New Moon this month occurs at about twenty-six minutes past two o'clock in the morning of the 11th day, Washington Time. The moon in passing the Sun nearly covers its face, constituting what is known as an ANNULAR ECLIPSE of the SUN.

LAR ECLIPSE of the SUN.

Happening during our night hours but will be seen the most perfectly in the southern parts of Europe, Asia, and the northern parts of Africa. The path of the Annulus runs through the Mediterranean Sea, by Cairo in Egypt, across Arabia, the Arabian Sea, the southern part of Hindustan and Siam to the Philippine Islands. The Eclipse is not visible in Great Britain though it may be seen quite generally throughout Europe and Asia and in the Indian Ocean.

The Eclipse falls in the watery sign Scorpio and when it so happens it is said to portend some unusual damage "to navigators and such as converse on the sea and in sea affairs" in the regions where most perfectly visible. It portends turmoil and disorder attended with "slaughter of obscure and the common plebeian kinds of people" also "mischief to some king whose mind is averse to war." We may look for turbulent weather very mischievous to shipping in the Mediterranean and Arabian Seas and the Indian Ocean. In our own country it is apprehended there will be an unusual number of railway accidents and explosions with loss and injury by fire, especially in our northeastern regoins.

In the latter part of November occurs a great conjunction of the regoins.

Seas and the Indian Ocean. In our own country it is apprehended there will be an unusual number of railway accidents and explosions with loss and injury by fire, especially in our northeastern regions.

In the latter part of November occurs a great conjunction of the ponderous planets JUPITER and saturn. This happens only once in about twenty years and the moment of conjunction is assumed by Astrologers to be one of prime importance in judgment of events likely to transpire during the ensuing period of twenty years. A figure erected for the time of conjunction, at the seat of our Government in Washington this year shows the Sun and Herschel in the 10th house. Mars in the Ith; and Venus in the 12th house. The two great planets are together on the cusp of the 6th house. The conjunction this year will be very close as there is a difference in declination of only about twenty-eight minutes, Jupiter being a little higher up in the heavens than Saturn, though only twenty-eight minutes in arc. Jupiter will creep slowly up to Saturn in the last part of November and his progress may be watched in the southwestern part of the heavens every evening just after sunset. He will overtake and pass him on the 28th day of the month when the fiery Mars will be seen only eleven degrees to the westward and the brilliant Venus only eight degrees away upward toward the east, she having passed the two great bodies on the 18th and 19th of the month, although two or three degrees higher in declination than either of them. This race through the heavens in the latter part of November will be interesting to watch. The best time to observe them will be, of course, just after the sunset each evening before they sink to rest in the west behind the sun.

The figure shows Mercury in the 9th house having the benvolent rays of the conjoined bodies and those of Venus and the Moon. This is a remarkable testimony of good to our country and people. The coming year will be marked by great progress in literature and in educational methods and results.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR NOVEMBER, 1901.

NOVEMBER 1—Friday. Urge business during all this day, wasting no moments in idleness or pleasure: prosecute mathematical studies and scientific investigations; press all engagements concerning books or writings and dealings with all in the literary callings; let literary productions be launched, do important correspondence, travel, make contracts and urge all commercial transactions generally.

2-Saturaday. A superior day after the early morning has passed. Urge all honorable undertakings to the atmost. Resolutes recommends it for his friends to make important beginnings in all major enterprises; purchase materials for manufacture and merchandise for trade; seek money accommodations and deal with persons of seek money.

3-Sunday. An excellent Sabbath though the mind will incline more towards activity and social engage-lents than to mental application or sober contemplations.

of March, 6th or 11th of June, 8th of Septem-December, of past years; for such persons be under considerable excitement and prone gh hasty judgment or action or to be having of consequence, dependent upon the hour of their birth.

5—Tuesday. One of the superior days of the month and Regulus advises his friends to engage actively in the prosecution of their several callings, but particularly those in the strictly commercial and the literary pursuits; the day should be fully improved for the inauguration of all principal efforts, the forenoon hours being the best for commercial ventures and for all manner of appeals to the mind; let judges weigh testimony and decide important cases; adjust financial matters; seek money accommodations; purchase goods for trade and push every honorable transaction; bargain and sell lands and make contracts for their improvement or possession; put a bridle upon the temper and look out for fires upon the temper and look out for fire and quarrels in the evening.

6—Wednesday. An indifferent day when little encouragement can be given for the major ventures of life; do not seek favor from thine employer in the evening.

7—Thursday. The middle hours of this day are the best and should be given preference for the general transactions of life; have care as the late hours approach, that thy purse be not depleted for needless or unsatisfactory gratifications.

8—Friday. Push business with large manufacturing corporations or with municipal or state authorities; consistry, trade in cattle or metals, and travel; deal with mechanics, carpenters, military men, druggists, tailors, tanners, bakers, brewers, cutters, and all workers in metals.

9—Saturday. An excellent day for dealings in artistic, musical, dramatic, and fancy wares; purchase wearing apparel and furnishings and generally urge the elegant pursuits.

ing apparel and furnishings and generally urge the elegant pursuits.

10—Sunday. One of the best Sabbath days of the month, being peculiarly propitious for the services appropriate for the time: the efforts from the pulpit will meet more than the ordinary approval and church contributions are likely to be very liberal.

11—Monday. Annular Ectipse of the Sun. Push general business and routine labors during this day, but do not inaugurate any important matters.

12—Tuesday. Give preference to this day for urging the elegant pursuits, conditions encourage special activity in dealings in fancy goods, jewelry, perfumes, slik, and all articles of beauty and adornment; urge literary matters, particularly concerning poetry, the drama, and musical and artistic engagements.

13—Wednesday. Not a promising day: it cautions musical and artistic engagements.

13 — Wednesday. Not a promising day; it cautions avoidance of disputes and domestic infelicities, especially in nativities susceptible in this respect; seek no favor from railroad officials nor from persons high in public office; have care of fire in the evening.

14 — Thursday. Improve this day for the ingenious and mechanical trades and avocations, having due regard for a tendency to harmful haste in action and judgment.

ment.

15—Friday. Choose this day for urging all honorable business to the utmost; for buying goods for trade and money transactions generally; take the early foremon for effecting engagements of consequence pertaining to houses and lands or their improvement; literary labors are performed with more facility and better satisfaction in the early part of the day; make purchases in the forenoon of all classes of artistic goods, wearing apparel, and furnishings, when also deal with banks and monied institutions of all kinds.

16 - Saturday. Apply for favors to those in office or in authority during the first two-thirds of this day and crowd all affairs pertaining to corporations and large organizations of persons into public bodies.

ganizations of persons into public bodies.

17—Sunday. The morning is excitable and patience and moderation are admonished; the balance of the day abounds in benevolence and conduces in a marked degree to enjoyment of religious and moral elevation and intellectual improvement; the days just passing are quite fortunate in a social sense for persons in the nice avocations in life who were born about the 4th of March or September or the 5th of May or November, of past years, and quite agreeable experiences come to them at this time; but those born about the 4th of January or April, or the 5th of July or October, of past years, are less favored now, being likely to meet disappointments in their social engagements and they should surely avoid any matrimonial entanglement just at this period.

18—Monday. Personal applications for favor meet.

18—Monday. Personal applications for favor meet more than usual success if made during the early hours of the day, to persons in high life or to officials in supe-rior stations.

19—Tuesday. Hold on to the purse strings during this day, being careful that temptations to indulge do not flich the purse; conditions are not propitious for paying court to the fair sex or seeking pleasure in the social or dramatic circles.

20 — Wednesday. Be early astir, for the morning hours are golden, especially for commercial men, woolen dealers, clergymen and bankers; choose the forenoon for buying merchandise for trade and transacting business with dealers in silks and other dress materials, jewelry, fancy goods, and all articles of adornment; seek the dressmaker, tailor, milliner, and all the classes engaged in artistic labors.

in artistic labors.

21—Thursday. Beware of all manner of contentions in the morning hours when be sure to "make haste slow-ly" in thy respective avocations; be careful if compelled to be about machinery or electrical works and in the handling of chemicals, firearms, hot liquids and fire; engage no servants and do not begin thy journey; the noon hours are a little better but should be employed only for transactions of minor character with thy superior or transactions; the afternoon is again adverse.

22—Friday. Let the business transactions of the thine employer; the afternoon is again adverse.

22—Friday. Let the business transactions of this day be conducted with the greatest circumspection; sign no money obligations of consequence and be slow to give credit; do not hire or purchase houses or lands and postpone transacting business with lawyers or judges; the afternoon and evening bid thee refrain from pressing thy suit with the fair sex and discourage dealings in fancy goods or articles of dress or adornment; be sure not to make any matrimonial contract in the latter half of this day, nor should any enjoyment be expected from musical or dramatic entertainments or the social gathering of the evening.

23-Saturday. Be early at work, for the day is excellent for the manufacturing and mechanical ventures and trades and for transactions with chemists, surgeons, bakers, iron and brass workers, carpenters, and all who pursue their avocations by the use of fire, chemicals, or sharp instruments.

samp instruments.

24—Sunday. This is a day of nervous unrest and mental irregularity until the noon hours; the afternoon gives improved conditions for religious contemplation and discourse, and pulpit efforts will be more effective.

25-Monday. A good day for the literary pursuits, mathematical studies, and scientific investigations, though adverse for making any money agreement; see that extravagance does not mark thy purchases during the middle hours of this day; give no offence to thine employer in the afternoon or evening when he will not be

Orange Lily cures Leucorrhoea, Ulceration, Displacement, Painful Periods. For a free trial address, Mrs. H. C. Fretter, Detroit, Mich.

FREE TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS.

smi incline more towards activity and social engagelents than to mental application or sober contempla 3—Monday. Quite fortunate in the morning hours for transactions with artists and musicians, workers in ilk, jewellers, tailors, dressmakers, and milliners; less throrable influences prevail in the early forenoon when lisappointments attend most efforts; after 11 o'clock the lay is saperior in every respect for the general affairs of life, though extreme caution is urged in the passing lours for persons handling inflammables and explosives.

Especially is this true of persons born about the let of

This 44 Pc. TEA SET FREE h we give this 44-pc. handsomely decorated Tea Set, full handsomely decorated Tea Set, full or table use, free. No money required in advance. Simend your name & address & we will send you our plans, blank, etc. We will allow you time to deliver the Baking ler, & collect the money before paying us. You run no risk pay the freight, & will trust you with the Baking Powdes also, etc. We also give away 112 Piece Dinner Sets, Dress s, Couches, Furniture, etc., for selling our goods. Address s, Couches, Furniture, etc., for selling our goods.

inclined to give fair consideration to thine application for favor or advancement.

26—Tuesday. A fair day until the afternoon which is not promising; avoid disputes and domestic differences; seek no advantage from railroad officials nor from persons high in public office.

persons high in public office.

27—Wednesday. Give preference to the first two-thirds of this dây, especially for the fine arts and elegant avocations generally; artists and musicians and all classes es of caterers for public entertainment should use the forenoon for their important moves in life; literary efforts in the latter part of the day are not satisfactory, being likely to be contentious and arouse controversy; see that thieves and pickpockets are not given opportunity to ply their vocations successfully, and look out for fires.

28—Thursday. Urge thy sales during the middle hours of this day but do not buy goods for trade; avoid dealings with banks or wealthy persons, keep sharp watch of the purse; have no real estate transactions nor sign any contracts pertaining to houses, promissory notes, or any commercial venture of consequence. Mental efforts in the latter part of the day will be more satisfactory than usual and more enjoyment can be had from contemplation of literary and scientific matters.

contemplation of literary and scientific matters.

29—Friday. The middle hours of the day are the best; the elegant pursuits are adversely affected during the morning hours, when do not buy wearing apparel or any articles that please or gratify; the afternoon is not to be depended upon for good.

30—Saturday. The month closes with an excellent day; good progress should be made in all honorable ventures; have transactions with government authorities of all grades; deal with officers of railroads and with all large organizations of men; seek favor or advancement from thine employer in the morning.

NO MORE TORN CLOTHES.

NO MORE TORN CLOTHES.

We have in envelopes a preparation used by tailors and dressmakers for mending and in all new work where sewing is required. It is a peculiar composition of gutta percha, thin, transparent and very strong. With it you can do all kinds of new work or mend Shoes, Stockings, Rubber Coats, Mackintoshes, Gloves, Umbrellas, etc., with the aid of a hot iron and once done will be permanent. We call this material Electric Mending Tissue and to introduce our magazine into new homes we make this liberal offer: Send the name of one new subscriber for one year at 15c. and we will send our magazine regularly and mail you two packages of Tissue. One you can sell for 15c. and the other will be a year's supply for your own use.

LITERARY COMPANION, Augusta, Maine.

REVEAL YOUR IS LOVE, MARRIAGE BYSINESS and SPECULIFE COMPLETE William When to MARY And whom Your Visit Complete William Visit Complete Street William Visit Complete Street William Visit Complete Street Street William Visit Complete Street S

Get Married S.OOO Ladies of VERY ANXIOUS Many very beautiful and wealthy. Send 2 cts. for big list of ladies and anteed. UNION CORRESPONDING CLUB, No.608 AUSTIN, LLS.

• A Complete Outfit of 44 Tools FREE.

BRISTLES

Which could be done by yon just and was the play find have to color while you cannot be a which was the capter of the above cut, viz. I iron a stant for women's work; 1 iron stant for men's work; 1 ir

LIFE SIZE DOLL FREE "Baby's clothes will now fit Dollie."

Girls can get this beautiful Life Size Doll absolutely Free for selling only four boxes of our Great Cold & Headache Tablets at 25 cents a box. Write to-day and we will send you the table. 3 by mail postpaid; when sold send us the money (81.00) and we will send you this Life Size Doll which is 2½ feet high and can wear baby's clothes. Dollie has an Index Show as Gold Plated Beauty Plin. Soly a Doll Dept. 6 K, New Haven, Conn

LEARN TO HYPNOTIZE! whom you wish. Make others love and obey you, liseases. Makes fun by the hour. New and in-seous method. Quick as a flash. YOU can learn coss sure. Mammoth illustrated LESSON

6th and 7th Books of Moses, the 2 unknown books. Circulars in sealed envelope for 2c. stamp. E. B. S., 544 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

PILES Absolutely cured. Never to return.
A Boon to Sufferers. Acts like Magic.
Trial box MAILED FREE. Address,
Dr.E.M.Botot.Box 978.Augusta,Me. ---FORTUNE

Freat REVIEW ON ASTROLOGY

which does most amazing tricks at your will, we send, butlely Free, our Wonderful X-Ray; apparently sho on watch through cloth, or any object through wood, stone on watch through cloth, or any object through wood, stone to the control of the cont on watch through cloth, or any object through wo metal, etc. Worth many times the price, but for tion we send all, postpaid, for only Fifty Cents, gest bargain you ever saw, return them and get we tion we send all, postpaid, for only first, and get your money back, gest bargain you ever saw, return them and get your money back, Evolia Mdse. Co., 155 German-American Bldg, Phila. Pa. Women Made

THE LATE PRESIDENT MCKINLEY.

Assassination of President Mc-Kinley

WRITTEN FOR COMFORT.

HE attempted shooting of President Mc-Kinley, while holding a reception to the public at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo on the afternoon of Friday, September 6, is familiar to our readers it having been fully given out in the daily

This is the fourth time that a president of the United States has been shot by assassins.

The first case was the attempt on the life of Andrew Jackson, in which the brave old General seized his assassin and nearly killed him before he let him out of his hands. No injury was received by General Jackson, although the assassin was armed with both a knife and pis-

The second shooting of a President was that of Abraham Lincoln, who, just as the Civil War was closing, was shot down in the old Ford theater at Washington by John Wilkes Booth. Laura Keene, the talented actress, was playing "Our American consin". There was a large attendance, owing to the fact that the President was there, as well as General Grant and other military leaders. General Grant was called away and Booth entered the back of the box and shot the President in the head. He died at the house across the street next morning, not having regained consciousness. The same night an attempt was made on the life of the Secretary of State, William H. Seward, who was badly knifed, together with his son who rushed to his rescue, so that for a time he was confined to his bed with illness.

A reward of $100,000 was offered for the capture of Booth, who had fled on horse back. It developed that in jumping from the President's box, he broke his leg, and was finally surrounded by soldiers in an old barn in Maryland, and after the barn was fired was shot by Sergeant Boston Corbett, and he lingered in great agony for four hours before dying; his body was buried secretly. Years later it was moved to the family lot in Baltimore.

On July 2, 1881, James A. Garfield accompanied by James G. Blaine, Secretary of State, was in the station at Washington, about to leave on the train, when a disappointed office seeker from Chicago, named Charles Guiteau, walked up to him and deliberately shot him.

Guiteau was tried at Washington, and finally hanged. His skeleton is in the museum at Washington.

After the shooting of President McKinley, he lingered for a week, apparently rapidly recovering from the effect of the shooting; but unfortunately his heart was unable to hold out and he died Friday Sept. 13th, of heart failure, to the universal sorrow of the American people, who had learned to love him intensely.

He was immediately succeeded in the office by Vice President Roosevelt. It has been so fully recounted in the daily press that COMFORT only points out the more important facts. This foul deed of an Anarchist is certain to bring vengeance upon the members of that society.

Men, Women and Things.

CONDUCTED BY JENNIE MELVENE DAVIS.

Mrs. Howard Gould is one of the most charitable women in New York. She is considered as a real Lady Bountiful by all organizations that have the care of children within their province. The Goulds have never been prominent socially, although George Gould has lately commenced to entertain in a royal manner at his_magnificent country home, Georgian Court. Mrs. Howard Gould was Miss Katherine Clemmons. She had a brief career on the stage as the star in a play called A Lady of Venice. While the play had a New York hearing it was not a success, although the public agreed that the star was a beautiful woman however opinions might differ as to her histrionic ability. She was a Western girl and had worked her way through difficulties to the stage. When Mr. Gould came of age he married the beautiful actress and although his family have never received her, Mrs. Howard Gould has been able to entertain herself. The magnificent yacht of Howard Gould is well known in all European ports. The Emperor of Germany was an admiring visitor when the yacht was in a German port. Mrs. Gould has been much in the public eve through her refusal to submit to the extortion of dressmakers. Women who are the helpless victims of bills that show the ingenuity of the craft rather than an actual rendering of work done have admired Mrs. Gould's refusal to submit to extortion. Mrs. Gould is a brilliant blonde with a beautiful figure and carriage.

Uncle Remus and his quaint philosophy are household words with the entire reading public of America. Joel Chandler Harris is as sunny and happy himself as the character that he depicts. Mr. Harris is red headed and freckle faced. He could hardly be called handsome by the most prejudiced friend but his most earnest critic would be forced to admit that his face attracted and held attention by its thorough sunniness. For nearly twentyfive years Joel Chandler Harris was identified with the Atlanta Constitution. His famous Uncle Remus stories were written at the suggestion of the editor that Harris furnish some dialect stories. Brer Rabbit and Brer Fox made their debut and since then have become classics. Mr. Harris has written many books but his long stories have not rivalled his short ones. He gave up newspaper work some time ago although he is but fifty-two years of age. He loves his home and is rarely seen abroad so that many of the people of his own city do not know him by sight. He has himself the blending of quaint humor and hard common sense that makes his character sketches so irresist-

Count von Bulow, the Chancellor of the German Empire, is a statesman by training and heredity. His family have been prominent in the annals of North Germany for generations. It was a Bulow who gave Napoleon his first defeat on German soil, a Bulow who established the principles of the present German war method; a Countess of that family stores, for no article above that price is handled.

and another Countess von Bulow who first demanded the civil right of women in Germany. The family have been pioneers and originators in war, philanthropy and art. The race has been independent and obstinate and these qualities combined with their intellectual supremacy have made them leaders for generations. The father of Count von Bulow was imperial Secretary and the son has at last reached that rank. Von Bulow had the usual training of the German schools and universities with the forced term of military service. This fell during the Franco-German war and young von Bulow won the rank of a lieutenant. Von Bulow was a disciple of Bismarck in his early life but he is free from the littleness that spotted the career of the great chancellor. He possesses in a rare degree the tact that leaves him free from personal animosities. He entered the diplomatic service and for twenty years pursued a steady course of successful progress. France, Russia, Italy and Greece and the secretaryship of the Berlin Congress at last led to the dignity of the appointment of ambassador to Rome. Here he became intimately known to the young Emperor and here he met the brilliant woman who is now Countess von Bulow. The interest and friendship of the Emperor led to a call to take the important position of Minister and Secretary of Foreign Affairs. No man ever entered upon the difficult duties of this position with a more thorough preparation than that of Count von Bulow. His entire training had been in the foreign service and he knew his Europe like a primer. He conciliated the Reischstag at once by a simple, direct, business-like statement of his reasons for certain moves. He has been an expansionist but withal a conservative one in spite of his statement "Germany wants a place in the sun". His acquisition of the Carolines and other Spanish Islands and the skillful manner in which Germany won the leading influence in Samoa were triumphs both at home and abroad. The fierce aggressiveness of the warlike William II. is tempered by the calm suavity of the Chancellor. Count von Bulow has a commanding figure although his fifty years have added a little too much flesh for elegance. He is fair with blue eyes and light hair that are typically German.

who founded the first kindergarten in Germany

The five and ten cent counters were a popular feature in general merchandise stores some few years ago. One man saw in them his business opportunity and today over sixty stores located in different cities east of Pittsburg bear the name of F. W. Woolworth.

His success is one of the many that may be found in America. His magnificent house on Fifth Avenue, New York, is a palace even on that street of palaces. In 1879 its owner could not pay the monthly rent of $30 for the store where he started his success. Mr. Woolworth was born away up in New York state in a little town of Jefferson county. He lived the life of a poor farmer boy until he was twenty-one. He had had seven years' schooling, walking four miles a day to the little country schoolhouse in order to get it. After a short course in a commercial school, he secured a position in a store at Watertown. After ten years he was receiving $10 a week, yet on this sum he managed to marry and also to save about fifty dollars a year. He noticed the success of the five cent counters which were then a feature of country stores. On borrowed capital he opened a small store in Utica-and failed. His old firm agreed to give him the assitance to make another trial and this was made in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, with a stock of less than five hundred dollars in value. The first year he cleared $1500 and now his business is reckoned in the millions. His central office is in New York and from there he keeps in daily touch with the sixty stores that are the result of his success. During the holiday season he has 5000 employees and his salary list exceeds half a million. Some idea of the volume of business may be gained by the record of 44,060 sales in one day in one of his New York stores. His buyers are constantly searching the markets of the world for goods that can be sold in the five and ten cent

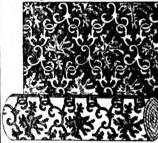

Mr. Woolworth has an erect figure, a simple, energetic manner and a plain direct address that indicate the qualities that have led him to

Alfred C. Harmsworth. the editor and owner of the London Daily Mail, recently made a tour of the United States. The young man seems to have the Yankee quality of "hustling" for his newspaper career dates only to 1882. Today he is the owner of a large number of English newspapers and magazines. He is the son of an Irish barrister. After receiving an ordinary common school education he entered the office of the Illustrated London News. He seemed from the first to have an instinctive sense of what the people wanted and would buy in papers and cheap magazines. He considers that English newspapers are more accurate than American newspapers in the printing of news but not so aggressive or active in securing it. He edited a New York paper one day in order to show his idea of a newspaper. Mr. Harmsworth has met with a meteoric success in the newspaper world. In 1894 he equipped an Arctic expedition at his own expense. His comments on America are evidences of the keen discernment that has been the prominent factor of his success pattern. 1879-8—Dark green ground, large scroll pattern in ight brown intermingled with flowers in green and prown, making a very handsome pattern for good sized ooms. 1458.8—This has a gray background with handsom new scroll effect a shade darker, with bouquets artist new scroll effect a shade darker, with bouquets artist new scroll effect a shade dark green colors. This carpet is cally interwoven in dark green colors. This carry very rich and cannot help but please the most fastidi We show hundreds of other designs and prices in ored plates in our catalogue. We cut and match car FREE when desired and charge but 3c extra per yard sewing, when ordered. Samples of either the charge bered patterns sent in the carry and several parts of the color iercial agency in the U.S. as to our responser.

Beautiful New Carpets, Only 48c Per Yard.

H. LEONARD & SONS (Estab. 1844)

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., U. S. A.

LYON & HEALY'S Own Make

NO SPAVINS The worst possible spayin can be cured in 45 minutes. Curbs, splints and ringbones just as quick. Not painful and never has failed. Detailed information about this method sent free to horse owners Write today. Ask for pamphlet No. 5. FLEMING BROS., Union Stock Yards, Chicago, III.

c., Lewville, N. Y., U. S. A.

. A CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY O TTHE W - 12 .

•

.

.

M.
•

